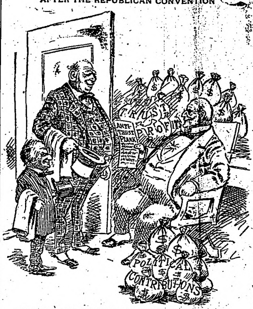
An important development of the week is the attitude assumed by the local Silver or Lincoln Republicans of Minneapolis, who through an authorized committee announce that they join the Democratic organization in fact, as they have in reality acted during the past four years. This will strengthen the Democratic organization materially, and it is well known that many Republicans are leaving their party on other issues than silver coinage, and will go to the Democrats. G. S. C.

AFTER THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION



HANNA AND LITTLE MACK WILL MAKE A CALL.
—National Watchman.

MINNEAPOLIS TIMES PHILADELPHIA SPECIAL ON REPUBLICAN CONVENTION:

SECRETLY THIS TREMENDOUS CORPORATE INFLUENCE IS THE MOST IMPORTANT FORCE IN THE GATHERING ORGANIZATION WHICH WILL MAKE UP THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION. THE CORPORATIONS WILL WORK IN SECRET UNTIL THEY ARE COMPELLED TO SHOW THEIR HAND. IT IS ONLY GUESSING AS TO THE PART THAT HANNA IS TAKING, BUT HE HARDLY WILL RUN CONTRARY TO THE MEN WHO WILL CONTRIBUTE SO MUCH MONEY.

—OTTO CARMICHAEL.

THE MONEY QUESTION

How Shall It Be Treated by the Democratic Platform at Kansas City?

Sioux Falls Plank Discussed by Hon. Geo. N. Lamphere of Minnesota.

State Welcome to Boers, and Other State and National Political Points.

The following views on the money question, bearing on what should be the issue in the coming campaign, are from Hon. George N. Lamphere, of St. Paul, formerly editor of the Moorhead News, and ex-member of the State Normal School Board, and who was a delegate to the recent Sioux Falls convention:

The question of imperialism and trusts have of late assumed so prominent a place in the public mind as to obscure the question of money which predominated in the presidential campaign of 1896; but thinking men, who look beyond the surface of things, realize that the money question is today as serious and calls for a remedy as loudly as then. The withering effects of a money standard that is constantly appreciating in value have been somewhat ameliorated by an increase in the gold production from the mines and from the increased expenditures of the government in prosecuting war. It has, however, only delayed the sure effects, which will eventually result from a standard whose volume is inadequate for the redemption and payment of the enormous obligations charged against it, when the day for liquidation shall arrive. Then it will be found that the value of property will be reduced to the volume of gold and the few who own the gold will own the property, thus bringing financial ruin upon millions of people.

We do not approve of extreme measures. We believe that platforms should be adjusted so as to harmonize the beliefs of the largest number of voters by a process of concession and adhesion, arrived at on a friendly basis, without surrendering any paramount principle, and that while all points and questions of reform cannot be included in a platform, these can be second after the main questions have been adopted and the successful party has assumed the reins of government. For these reasons we would favor the framing of a platform which would not by any extreme declaration repress those who are inclined to co-operate with us on account of accord on other questions by them deemed of more urgent importance. Thus while we hold that the money question is at bottom just as important to-day as it was in 1896, yet by reason of new questions that have arisen and threaten the very form of our constitutional government, we are willing to place these uppermost in this campaign, and appeal to the patriotism of voters for their decision, believing that they will by a decisive majority sustain the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

In our opinion the money plank adopted by the Populist party in national convention at Sioux Falls, has not received the attention and has not been discussed in the Reform press to that extent which its importance and the excellence of its statement deserves. Let us reproduce the kernel of this plank:

"We affirm the demand for the reopening of the mints of the United States to the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, the immediate increase in the volume of silver coins and certificates thus created to be substituted dollar for dollar for the bank notes issued by private corporations under special privileges granted by the law of March 14, 1900, and prior national banking laws, the remaining portion of the bank notes to be replaced with full legal tender government paper money and its volume so controlled as to maintain at all times a stable money market and a stable price level."

The above, it seems to us, admirably states the whole question. It declares for bi-metallism and does it squarely and without equivocation. It asks for nothing new, but simply a restoration of former conditions. It makes a direct issue between the parties. It proposes that the new coinage of silver shall take the place of an equal amount of national bank notes and it further proposes to replace the remaining amount of such bank notes with government paper money. Thus the plank does not call for dangerous inflation of the currency, but aims to restore to the government the sole right of coining metal money and the issuing of paper money and forbidding the issue of such money from any other source whatever. Such a demand made into law would result in great benefit to the producer and the debtor, while it would not wrong the creditor. It would prevent panics and financial stringencies, which under present conditions, are inevitable, and can be produced at any time by the act of the bankers and money loaners.

This plank in the platform of the Populist party is preceded by a severe and comprehensive arraignment of the Republican party for the enactment of the act of March 14, 1900, which it is claimed deprives the people of their constitutional right over the money of their nation and delegates it to a gigantic money trust. For making all money obligations payable in gold, thus enormously increasing the burdens of debtors and enriching creditors. For refunding coin bonds which do not mature for years into long time gold bonds, making the debt perpetual. For taking from the treasury over $50,000,000 and presenting it as a premium to bondholders to accomplish the refunding of bonds not due. For doubling the capital of bankers by returning to them the face value of their bonds in current money notes so that the bankers may draw one interest from the government and another from the people. For allowing banks to expand and contract their circulation at pleasure, thus controlling the prices of all products. For authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue new gold bonds, to an unlimited amount whenever he deems it necessary to replenish the gold hoard, this enabling usurers to secure more bonds and more bank currency by drawing gold from the treasury, thereby creating an endless chain for perpetually adding to a perpetual debt. For striking down the greenback in order to force the people to borrow $346,000,000 more from the banks at an annual cost of more than $200,000,000.

It would be difficult to state the evil effects of this law in plainer or more convincing language. The denunciation cannot be successfully met or explained. If the act does not have the effects enumerated, then it will fail of its plain import and purpose to foster the interests for which it was enacted. The two strong points in this denunciation are the granting of the power to control the money of the people to private corporations, whose interests are absolutely selfish and to accomplish which men would have to be more than human to refrain from doing; and compelling the people to pay two interests on money the one by taxation, the other by way of compensation for use of money borrowed. The burdens of this method of finance are so heavy and exacting all for the benefit of a small privilege class, that they appear like a great mountain heaving up on a level plain. While the benefits of the methods proposed by the platform are so great and salutary to the great mass of the people, that one might see them though physically and intellectually blind. How is it possible that intelligent men can be so blinded by partisan prejudice as to extol an act that deprives them and their [illegible] of one of the most priceless rights of freemen?

We doubt whether the ingenuity of man can devise a law frought with more baneful injury to the rights and interests of citizens than this gold standard and currency law will be sure to inflict. And yet men doing business, men who must needs borrow capital to carry it on, approve of it and extol it as a wise, just and beneficent measure. They will awake some day to a realizing sense of their lack of penetration and wisdom.

Under such a law panics and financial distresses are as certain to come as that the roll of years shall pass. At the present time there is great activity in the loaning business. Vast amounts are being placed upon land. When the day for the redemption of these loans arrives it will be in the power of the mortgagee to demand payment in gold as "denominated in the bond," and then the crash will come. The borrower will lose his land and the lender will own it. The sheep will be shorn. Then the process will be gone over anew, men will begin again, borrow again and be fleeced again, and the hard working, industrious producer, who should have the just reward of his labor and a competence in his old age, will become the subject of charity, while the man who works with his brain and manipulates the channels of trade and industry by controlling the money or medium of exchange, will dwell in mansions and roll in wealth and luxury.

KANSAS CITY PROPOSED MONEY PLANK.

We would be glad to have the opinion of our editors and other friends upon the following proposed money plank, which will be powerfully advocated in the Democratic committee on resolutions, by eastern as well as original silver men. It is similar to the Sioux Falls declaration, and is advocated as an addition to the re-affirmation of the Chicago platform:

"We reaffirm the demand for the reopening of the mints of the United States to the free and unrestricted coinage of silver along with gold, at the existing legal ratio, the immediate increase in the volume of immediate increase in the volume of silver coins and certificates thus created, to be substituted, dollar for dollar, for the bank notes issued by private corporations under special privilege granted by law of March 14, 1900, and prior national banking laws, the remaining portion of the bank notes to be replaced with a paper currency issued by the government direct and its volume so controlled by rules laid down by Congress, as to maintain at all times a stable money market and a stable price level. The currency shall at all times be kept at a parity with specie.

"The silver coins and certificates and government currency shall be a lawful tender at their par value for all debts public and private, except where otherwise specified in existing contracts, and it shall be declared that thenceforth it shall be unlawful to contract for any special form of money."

POPULIST MONEY PLATFORM.

Attention of our editors is specially called to the "silver" plank of the Sioux Falls convention, the fact that so little comment has appeared, confirming the impression that our editors have been mislead by the Republican press manipulation of the convention reports, in that the true plank adopted on that subject was garbled or omitted altogether.

Read the full platform, and you will see that it was not merely a 16 to 1 declaration, but a declaration for government money, redeemable in gold and silver equally coined at the existing legal ratio, such soundest of money to be substituted for the "rag money" of national bank corporations. Note also the declaration as to maintaining by money issues, a stable price level.

This part of the Sioux Falls platform was the result of work by Hon. George H. Shibley, of New York, and we are informed that this plank and declaration is acceptable to Eastern men like Gorman, and that it is more than likely to be put into the coming Democratic platform.

Let our state papers speak out their views on the subject.

STATE RECEPTION TO BOER ENVOYS.

Governor Lind's welcome:—"Outside of the United States of America I could count the republics of the world on the fingers of my hand. Two of these, professing the same principles which we uphold and framed on the same general lines, are now engaged in a death struggle with a powerful foe. Their representatives are here. Dr. Abraham Fischer, a member of the cabinet of the Orange Free State, and Mr. Wessels, president of the volksraad of the Free State. They have not come to ask us to embroil ourselves on their behalf in the present struggle, but to learn for themselves the truth of the reports that these United States are in sympathy with England in this conflict. ((Cheers, cries of "Never.")

"We welcome these patriots from another section of the world in your behalf, and I know that our hearty reception is that which extends also the welcome of nine-tenths of the people of the state. I have only this to say concerning their visit, that they had a right to come to us, to come expecting a royal welcome and the sympathy of a sister republic, the sympathy which we could expect and would receive from them were we in their position. (Applause.)

"The life of nations is at stake. These sturdy republics may not win, but their valor, their patriotism and their bravery will bring them the victory which they deserve at some future day. Our sympathy, plainly and moderately expressed, may some day aid them in their struggle. (Cheers.) My friends, the integrity of two republics of South Africa is not all that is involved in this struggle, but there are other questions of significance and import. The right of those aliens who occupy the soil to exploit its treasures for the benefit of a favored class, is not the least of them. Would that every nation of the world could only take the true significance of this conflict to heart. Would that all might learn the true facts as we shall hear them, without distortion and without exaggeration.

"I again extend the greetings of the people of Minnesota to our guests and with them [illegible] welcome to the city, and to the great state which we represent." (Applause.)

Following were the resolutions adopted:—Whereas, the State of Minnesota and its capitol city, St. Paul, have been honored by the presence amongst us of those eminent Boer citizens and envoys, Messrs. Fischer and Wessels,

Resolved, that we, the citizens of St. Paul, in assembling to extend to our South African friends a hearty welcome, assure them of the strong and continued sympathies of our people for them, their people and the sacred cause of liberty that they represent.

Resolved, that we exhort them to stand steadfast in their glorious defense of their liberties, to meet with fortitude such temporary reverses as may occur, and, like the fathers of the American Revolution, continue in the prairies and forests the struggle for that liberty which is their due and birth-right;

Resolved, that we ask our honored guests to carry back to their fellow citizens and to Oom Paul, the Lion of the Transvaal, to President Steyn, of the Orange Free State, and to his younger conferees, the best sympathies and wishes of our people and the prophetic hopes that soon their efforts will be successful, and that human freedom in South Africa will be placed safely on the deep and enduring foundations on which our Revolutionary fathers placed it in this republic;

Resolved, that we give to our friends the solemn and sacred assurance that at no time, at no place and under no circumstances will the people of the United States ally or associate themselves with any morarchy or aristocracy, or directly or indirectly aid in any attack upon the liberties of the people, and particularly upon the republics of South Africa; but on the contrary, will on all and every occasion that may offer itself, protest against such attacks as they do hereby protest against the unwarranted attack that has been made upon the republics of South Africa;

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be presented to our guests and forwarded to the president of the United States and our senators and congressmen."

Said C. D. O'Brien, who was also the author of the resolutions:

"The story which the people of South Africa are telling to the people of this country is the same old story. It has been told in Ireland and in other countries by the Irish for more than 700 years. You have before you now, gentlemen, the living witnesses of the truth of our assertions about British oppression. They come to you from the scene where it is being carried out to the satisfaction of the British government. And they don't come here asking you to take up their cause in your own thoughts, to hear them and to give your judgment to your neighbor and your friend. We will write our verdict in no uncertain words on our ballots next fall."

REAL "SOUND MONEY" CAMPAIGN.

Twin City old soldiers have received the call of the The Old Soldiers' Bryan Silver Club of Denver for a convention of old soldier Bryan men, to meet during the G. A. R. encampment at Chicago, Aug. 28. The call says:—

"BRING YOUR FLAGS, TRANSPARENCIES, BANNERS, TORCHES, MOTTOES, BADGES, FIFES, DRUMS, BUGLES AND GUIDONS, FOR USE IN THE HALL AND UPON THE STREETS. WE ARE GOING TO WHOOP IT UP FOR BRYAN, AS WE DID FOR LINCOLN IN THE DAYS OF GOOD OLD 60."

THE POLITICAL PENDULUM.

Much of the hope for carrying New York is based on the fact that in 20 elections since 1872 the Democrats have won 10, to the Republicans 9. The manner in which the vote has shifted from side to side is shown by the following:

Majorities by the Democrats—
1872—President	53,524
1879—Governor	42,727
1880—President	21,033
1883—Secretary State	18,583
1888—President	13,003
1893—Secretary State	24,484
1894—Governor	156,108
1896—President	268,463
1898—Governor	17,863
Majorities by the Republicans—
1874—Governor	50,317
1876—President	32,818
1882—Governor	192,854
1884—President	1,047
1888—Governor	19,171
1889—Secretary State	20,527
1891—Governor	47,937
1892—President	45,518
1897—Judge	60,889

Thus the pendulum is now DUE to swing to the Democracy.

Paris cab drivers are on strike.

The bubonic plague is increasing at Rio Janeiro.

The famine in India continues to grow worse.

Sudden tension has developed between Japan and Korea.

The German reichstag has voted for an increase in the navy.

Colombian government troops have been defeated by the insurgents.

Moors in Algiers have revolted and are massing for a fight with the French.

British are said to have had a hard fight with Ashantis and suffered a severe repulse.

Advices received from Japan say the cabinet, presided over by Marquis Yamagata, has resigned.

Japan has protested against the landing of a large force of Russians in China and is apparently preparing to resist the move by the use of force.

Wheat advanced 3 cents on the Chicago market Friday.

Hail storms in Kansas have caused great damage to grain.

Grain dealers predict the price of wheat will go up to $1.

July wheat has touched 74 cents at Chicago, the highest point reached since last October.

The steamer City of Seattle has arrived at Port Townsend from Alaska with $400,000 in gold dust.

Helen Gould will be the guest of honor at the unveiling of the Dewey cannon at Three Oaks, Mich.

BOBS SEES THE END.

Considers the South African War About Over.

London, June 19. — There are some indications that Lord Roberts considers the end of the war in South Africa not far distant. In confirmation of this fact the volunteers who have seen hard service were dismissed to their homes by Sir Redvers Buller on Saturday. They were cheered as they left camp. It is said in competent military circles in London that several complete regiments are to be withdrawn from Gen. Buller's army and embarked at Durban for China. The troops withdrawn from India will probably go next. The orders for were sent by telegraph. Official news for several days have been scarce. Unofficial news from Machadodorp, via Lourenzo Marques, is to the effect that British troops are near Middleburg. The Boer version of the recent fighting posted on the outside of President Kruger's car at Machadodorp runs thus: "The commandoes east of Pretoria, in the district of Bronkhorst spruit are compelled to retire after a fierce stand of more than two days in a way that won admiration of the acting commandant general. The short range rifle

Their Withdrawal

Fire Was Very Hot

and for part of the second day, especially late in the afternoon, the enemy fought at a distance of 100 yards. Our loss cannot yet be given. The acting commandant general only mentions Field Cornet Dunken killed. He was one of the best men in the field. Information is to hand regarding the miserable condition of the enemy's troops that have penetrated to Johannesburg and Pretoria. They continually complain of the lack of food. Several British soldiers have died in the streets of Pretoria of exhaustion and starvation. Along the roads of horses and mules, while the living animals are so weak that they are hardly able to carry their loads."

Lie the Corpses

A bulletin at Machadodorp, according to a dispatch dated June 15, says: "Fifteen hundred British soldiers, prisoners, have arrived at Slanderton, Orange Free State, bound for Noodai Geacht. Forty Boers were killed and wounded during the last few days' fighting near Pretoria."

Mr. Steyn, in consequence of Lord Roberts' annexation of the Free State by proclamation, has issued a counter proclamation declaring that the is independent and does not acknowledge the authority of Great Britain. The British prisoners at Noodai Geacht have been exercising violently every day in order to keep themselves warm. They are reported to be without shelter or medical attendance, and are confined between two mountains where the sun does not shine before 8:30 a. m. Delagoa Bay merchants are rushing goods toward Machadodorp, the Boer expectation being that the use of the railway soon will be lost and the preparations for a final stand in the Lydenburg district must be promptly completed.

Free State Still Exists,

TRAIN BADLY WRECKED.

Passed Through a Severe Hail and Wind Storm.

Kansas City, June 19.—The Burlington train from Denver reached the station Saturday night in a sadly wrecked condition, having passed through one of the severest hail, rain and wind storms which railroad men say they ever encountered. The train ran into the storm between Falls City and Rulo, Neb., forty miles west of St. Joseph, Mo. The railroad men say at times it seemed as if the cars would be lifted from the tracks. The storm struck the train in an open piece of country and the engineer threw open the throttle in the hope of running away from it. The train was filled with people and in the cars was the wildest of excitement. With all the wind and rain came hail. Hailstones fell as large as baseballs. Every window on the north side of the sleeper, three coaches and one mail car were smashed. Glass flew all over the cars and many of the passengers were cut by flying glass. The mail clerks climbed up near the roof to keep dry. Much of the mail matter was damaged by water. The damage done to the cars will amount to about $500. Every window in the engine cab was smashed by the hail.

AFRICANS KILL EIGHT BRITISH.

Natives Rise in Gambia Colony, West Africa, and Slay Two Commissioners and Eight Policemen.

Bathurst, West Africa, June 19.—A native rising has occurred in the Gambia colony, and two British commissioners and six members of the police have been killed at Sannkanndi, on the south bank of the Gambia river, by Mandingoes. The party had gone to Sannkanndi to settle a question of local administration when the Mandingoes suddenly attacked and murdered them. Cecil Sitwell, one of the murdered commissioners, was formerly an official in the Windward Islands.

Jap Premier Will Stick.

Yokohama, June 19. — The marquis of Yamagata, the premier, at the request of the emperor, consents to remain in office in view of the Chinese situation. The Japanese government is inclined to confine its action in China to the protection of Japanese.

Four Children Burned to Death.

Leadville, Colo, June 19. — Fire destroyed the home for friendless children, a charitable institution maintained by the churches. Four children were burned to death.

Sunk in Collision.

London, June 19.—The British steamer City of Rotterdam, from Hamburg for Dublin, was sunk near the Eddystone light by the British coasting steamer New Biggin, laden with coal. Two of her crew were drowned.

Escaped Convicts Recaptured.

Kingston, Jam., June 19. — A large number of European convicts escaped from Cayenne, the French penal settlement recently and landed on Trinidad, British West Indies, where they were rearrested.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

None so little enjoy themselves and are such burdens to themselves as those who have nothing to do. Only the active have the true relish of life.

The age of whales is ascertained by size and number of laminae of the whalebone, which increases yearly. Ages of 300 and 400 years have been assigned to whales from these indications.

It is the crowning honor of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who has just celebrated her 86th birthday, that the world does not so much say how much money she inherited, or how much she is now worth, as how much she has given away for the good of her fellows. More than five million dollars is the record of her beneficence, and there are few that surpass it.

Bishop Whipple heard a person abusing a man of great wealth because of his supposed meanness. He answered the critic thus: "I would not conclude too hastily in such a case as that; for although I cannot explain fully, I know of a certain fifty-thousand-dollar gift accompanied by the stipulation that the name of the giver should not be made known." "Judge not," is a working rule with which it is not safe to dispense.

Recently two French aeronauts left Paris in their balloon at 6:15 o'clock in the evening, and on the evening of the following day, 23 hours and 15 minutes after their departure from Paris, dropped safely down near Vestervik in Sweden. They had traveled 825 miles, their average speed being nearly thirty-five and one-half miles per hour. At one time they drifted over the Baltic sea, and the fall in temperature and increased humidity immediately caused the balloon to drop.

Canon Edmonds, who spoke for the foreign delegates at the farewell meeting of the Ecumenical Missionary conference, said: "You have got your problems to solve in this nation, but you will solve them." There has never been a moment since the foundation of our government when that feeling has not been supreme in the hearts of the American people. No temporary fear or depression has weakened the nation's purpose to fulfill its mission, nor eclipsed its faith in its ability to do the things given it to do.

In 1866, Gen. Garfield, then in congress, made a strong speech in support of the measure which finally took form in a national bureau of education. "The children of today," said he, "will be the architects of our country in 1900." The prophecy was easy to make, because certain to be fulfilled. Yet there is something impressive in the fact that the affairs of church and state, and all the complex interests of civilization, are now largely in the hands of those who thirty-four years ago were passing into the public schools. To them, too, is committed the custody of those who, in turn, will make the history of the swift-coming future.

The success of a great invention often depends upon some auxiliary discovery to make it practicable. Without the telegraph, modern railroading would have been impossible. Without the air-brake, the high speed of the great express trains could not have been permitted. To-day the electric automobile, which is much heavier than the steam-power carriage, would be given a great impetus by the discovery of something better than the present rubber tires. The great weight and swift motion of the carriage upon rough streets cause the tires to wear out rapidly. Which will come first, a lighter electric storage battery or a firmer elastic substance for the tires? The history of inventions suggests that one or the other will appear at an early date.

The real reason behind the projected ship canal through Nicaragua or the isthmus of Panama, which is now engrossing so much attention, is the fact that goods may be transported more easily on the water than over the land. Examples in every-day life emphasize the difference. Two mules draw one hundred tons of coal in a canal boat; on land they would have difficulty in tugging three or four tons in a coal cart. Hence, whatever the power used, water-borne freights the world over are cheap and land routes are dear. This consideration greatly affects the growth of cities and of nations. Pittsburg coal and Lake Superior ores are near together, because they can be transported so great a part of the distance by water. It also largely accounts for America's prominence as a great steel-producing country. Stove coal is usually cheap in places to which it can go by water, and high where it must go by rail. The same is true of all bulky and heavy commodities.

Gen. Davis ordered Capt. William V. Judson, United States engineers, to make a report on the best way to rid the harbor of San Juan, Porto Rico, of the two ships sunk there. The report sent to Washington recommends a $6,000 appropriation to clear the channel. With the entrance rid of both of these hulks, it will give a fine, wide entrance with water not less than fifty feet deep and will permit all large war vessels to anchor in the bay. Range lights will be placed in the harbor soon, so as to allow vessels to enter at night instead of lying outside.

In painting or papering the walls of a room the question often arises, What color reflects the most and what the least light? Recent experiments in Germany gave the following results: Dark blue reflects 6½ per cent of the light falling upon it; dark green about 10 per cent; pale red a little more than 16 per cent; dark yellow, 20 per cent; pale blue, 30 per cent; pale yellow, 40 per cent; pale green, 46½ per cent; pale orange, nearly 55 per cent; pale white, 70 per cent. Glossiness and varnish of course increase the amount of light reflected.

THE "CONGRESSES" AT THE PARIS FAIR

A Few Valuable Pointers to Americans Visiting the Exposition

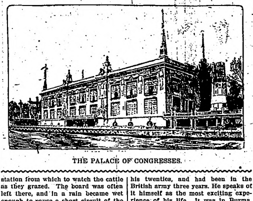
Paris Letter.

There is nothing like a "mission." A year ago I met a man of science on his way to one of the great international congresses. "I find them useful," he said, with an unscientific wink. "Alone, what am I? Call me a doctor. Hotels and railway companies care nothing for a doctor on his travels; but when a thousand men of science meet to discuss the welfare of humanity, it means reduced fares, special rates, half-price accommodations, free excursions, banquets, official courtesies and decorations." The ideal, according to my scientific acquaintance, is to have your expenses paid by some home institution; but even without this climax capper, congress-attending is what the frivolous would call a "snap."

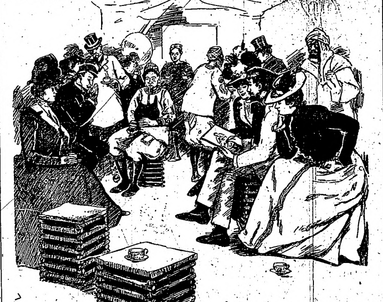
Year by year this truth has been dawning on the thoughtful of all nations until this summer, in innumerable congresses of the Exhibition, the high-water mark of the snob flood-tide threatens to be reached. If you are coming to the show there is still time to join a congress. Try Horticulture, or Photography, or Hygiene or Hypnotism, or Cheap Dwellings, or Deaf Mutes, or Women's Rights, or Peace, if you desire to keep within your depth. These great subjects are oceans in which a child may swim or an elephant may drown. Or, if you want to put on style, join the Ornithologists, or the Economists or the Dermatologists. More than 200 of these congresses will be held during the exhibition. Few of them are exclusive. To some the initiation or membership fee is as cheap as sixty cents, while none exceed five dollars.

The Congress Palace itself has one curious distinction. It was planned, built, decorated and furnished entirely on co-operative principles. Not a nail was driven by the order of capital. Workingmen's syndicates—of masons, carpenters, plasterers and so on—bid for the contracts and co-operated in their completion. It is true that, in their inexperience, they forgot all about the exterior decoration of the palace, so that there were only bare white walls when it rose perfect from the waters of the Seine. The little slip, however, was soon remedied. They found a lot of plaster wreaths and festoons that were not working, and engaged an artist to design some allegorical reliefs. They slapped them to the different facades, erected pyramidal flagstands on the roof's four corners and the trick was done.

Snobism apart, there are reasons why Americans may find relief and comfort in and around the Palais des Congres. Snobisme, in the modern Paris jargon, refers to that hunger and thirst after "correctness" in learning, literature, art and living, which, in its eagerness to "get there," adopts and proclaims principles even before perfectly understanding them. It is hard to imagine a photographic snob, but there are certainly hygienic snobs. The Britisher who after an hour's acquaintance, brags to you about his mahning bawth may be suspected of snobisme. While it goes without saying that the snobs of, say, hypnotism, women's work, anti-slavery, social science and the history of religions will find in the Palais des Congres precious facilities for the blowing of their little horns, there will still be room left for honest folk with sincere hobbies.



THE PALACE OF CONGRESSES.



SCENE IN AN ALGERIAN COFFEE ROOM.

Crossed Wires.

Grasshoppers have been known to stop a railroad train, and snakes or eels have often been drawn into a water-pipe with disagreeable results, but what is probably the first story of a snake's interference with telegraphy comes from Country Life. Early last November there was trouble on the wires north of London. Tests were at once made, and the difficulty was located a few miles north of Peterborough. A lineman was sent on his bicycle, and found a dead snake, four feet long, which had been thrown up over the wires by boys. The snake's body was causing a short circuit, and interrupting the messages of the world's metropolis. The trouble was remedied in half an hour from the time it was first discovered. Another story is told of a mysterious interference with messages on the wires between Kansas City and Denver. The interruption was variable. At last it was discovered that a young cowherd on the prairie had driven spikes into a telegraph-pole, climbed it, and placing a piece of board across the wires, had secured a sightly lookout station from which to watch the cattle as they grazed. The board was often left there, and in a rain became wet enough to cause a short circuit of the wires on which it rested.

TELEGRAPHONE.

That Receives Telephone Messages When Attendant Is Absent.

A new phonograph has been perfected in Denmark by Valdemar Paulson. The instrument is called the telegraphone. The new and important feature embodied in this phonograph is that instead of the Edison wax cylinder for receiving and reproducing speech, Mr. Paulson substitutes a steel band or steel wire. Moreover, this type of phonograph is intended to be used only in connection with a telephone. The steel band referred to passes between the poles of a small electromagnet, the coil of which is connected with a telephone. The pulsation of the current caused by speaking into the telephone varies the strength of the electromagnet, which in turn affects the magnetism of the steel band. The band is thus variably magnetized at different portions of its length, corresponding to the variations of the speech current, and will keep in this state for a long period. When again passed between the poles of the same or similar electromagnet, it reproduces the initial variations of current, and the speech is again heard through the telephone. In this way the steel band can be used to reproduce the message a great number of times. When it is desired to use the telegraphone to receive a new message, all that is necessary is to pass the band between the poles of a strong electromagnet or to send an electric current through it. Then all the magnetism of the steel band will disappear and it will be again ready for use. It is proposed to use the instrument in connection with telephone central stations, and it is already thus used in several places in Denmark. As an example of this application, the case will be considered of a telehone subscriber, A, who leaves his office, after having adjusted his instrument to receive messages during his absence, and also answer any inquiries concerning the time he will be back. B, another subscriber, rings him up. The telegraphone is put into action by the ringing up, and tells that A is not in, but that it will be pleased to receive the message for him. When this is received, B rings off and the telegraphone goes out of action. This can be repeated a number of times, and the messages then read by A when he returns. Such an arrangement has been introduced at Copenhagen, and is said to work satisfactorily.

An Exciting Run.

The following incident in Lord Wolseley's military career is recorded as having taken place when he was in his twenties, and had been in the British army three years. He speaks of it himself as the most exciting experience of his life. It was in Burma, and Wolseley was in charge of a small detachment. During the advance he had the bad luck to fall into a deep hole, and when he crawled out found himself on the enemy's side. As he emerged, he was met with such a shower of bullets that he slid back in short order. After a few minutes he came out again, and amid a vigorous volley, ran for his life. He was nearly two hundred yards from the British line, and was hit three times before he reached a place of safety.—Youths' Companion.

Diamond Costs $75,000.

Only five years ago the largest stone known to the history of jewels was found in "washing" the "blue ground" taken from the Jagersfontein mine in the Orange Free State, lately visited by the Brigade of Guards in the line of their advance. It was blue-white in color, and weighed in the rough over 900 carats, but it had to be cut into two separate stones for the market. The wonderful processes of nature had crystallized it into two oval figures, connected by a narrow band. As yet, it is said that no purchaser has been found for so costly a curiosity. The biggest mounted diamond in the world is the Orloff, set in the scepter of the czar of Russia. I myself saw it at the coronation in Moscow. It is shaped like half of a pigeon's egg. It weighs 194 carats, while the Koh-i-Nur of her majesty goes but to 106. One of the finest diamonds in Asia, that taken by Abba Mirza at Khorassan in 1832, is of 13 carats, and was long used by a Persian peasant as a flint with which to strike fire on his tinder box. The Persian name for the diamond is "almas." Blue, yellow and black diamonds are fairly common, but a red stone is very rare. That of ten carats in the Russian regalia cost $75,000. Don't drop your diamonds, women, on a hard place simply because they are called in Greek "unbreakable." They will split with tragic certainty, if struck at the angle of their natural cleavage. The largest ruby possessed by an owner is that which Gustavus of Sweden gave to the empress of Russia. It is as big as a bantam's egg. Australia is greatest in the way of jewels with her opals, today, outdoing even Hungary and Mexico in those lovely stones. If you make a ruby hot it becomes green, but goes back again presently to its own color.—London Telegraph.

DOG'S COSTLY LUNCHEON.

Chewed on Diamond Till Its Symmetry Was Destroyed.

Allegheny has produced the champion dog story of the season, says the Pittsburg Press. It is a champion dog because it chewed the corner of a diamond stud. Peter Donaldson, a second ward saloonkeeper, is a little sore over the loss on his diamond, for it was damaged so that it had to be recut, but he can't help feeling proud of a pug dog with such power in its jaws. The story is told by August Lock, a jeweler on Federal street, Allegheny. Donaldson walked into his store yesterday with a diamond that he wished reset. Mr. Lock took the stone and on examining it found it was cracked. He told Donaldson, who gave the following explanation: A few days ago Donaldson left his diamond stud, a beautiful two carat gem, on the dresser and went into an adjoining room. When he came back he noticed his pet pug dog chewing something and saw that his diamond was missing. Upon investigation he found the dog had got it and crushed the mounting out of shape. After some time he succeeded in taking the diamond out of the dog's mouth and at his earliest convenience started to have it reset. Mr. Lock then examined more closely and discovered the dog had bitten a piece from the stone and damaged it badly. Donaldson was certain the stone was perfect before the dog got it in his mouth. He could scarcely credit the jeweler's statement until he saw it through the magnifying glass. Telling of the matter this morning Mr. Lock said: "I have been in the jewelry business for thirty-five years and it was the first time I ever heard of such a case. The diamond was a beauty and to all appearances as hard as the ordinary diamond. One corner, however, about one-fourth of a carat, had been bitten off by the dog. The dog that can bite pieces off a diamond is a wonder.' The stone had to be recut and set and that cost a fair sum. There is a great moral in this case, too. It demonstrates the fact that a pug dog has more power in its jaws than the average person imagines and the moral is that people should keep their gems out of their pets' reach. The news of Donaldson's dog chewing up a diamond is widespread in Allegheny and every person wants to se the dog that has eclipsed all his canine friends. The case is being talked about everywhere and all claim that Allegheny leads the country with the sensation.

Baptism.

Baptism is a sacrament of the Christians and was instituted by the authority of Christ as recorded in the Gospels. Its essential feature is the outward rite of washing with water. Before the time of Christ religious meanings were attached to washings with water both by heathens and Jews and proselytes were required to be baptized before admission into the Jewish church. Washing with water was requisite for the removal of ceremonial uncleanness, and John the Baptist baptized to indicate the necessity of the purification of the soul from sin. Christian denominations have indulged in prolonged controversies as to whether children and infants should be baptized the same as adults. The two modes of baptism are immersion or dipping and aspersion or sprinkling and these forms have caused much controversy. The advocates of sprinkling acknowledge the validity of dipping, but those who favor dipping do not admit that sprinkling can be true baptism. Immersion could be adapted to all countries by making proper arrangements for tanks and water at moderate temperature, but it seems unreasonable to immerse a person in icy cold water, or to immerse any person who might be physically injured by the action. When Christ and his disciples practiced this form of baptizing it was in countries where the climate was mild.—Exchange.

The Only Difference.

"Did you ever see my dressmaker, John?" asked the wife, leading up to the unpleasant subject of that person's bill. "She's so awfully small; the most petite little thing I ever——"

"Come! Out with it!" exclaimed the great brute. "What are you driving at?"

"Well—er—I was going to remark on the similarity between the size of her bill and her own——"

"My dear madam," he interrupted, "the difference between her and her bill is only a question of pronunciation. She is not a tall modiste, and her bill is not at all modest."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Madame Nevada's Sister.

Mme. Nevada, the soprano, who returned from Europe this season after a long stay abroad, found a long-lost sister in Cleveland yesterday. Mme. Nevada arrived in Cleveland Tuesday evening, says an exchange. Today the sister, who is Mrs. Laura Icks of West Brookfield, O., knocked at the door of Mme. Nevada's apartments and introduced herself. Mrs. Icks is the wife of a farmer and was thought by Nevada to be dead. She left home eight years before the death of their mother, and has not seen her distinguished sister in twenty-eight years.

Gorman's Power of Silence.

Judge Grubb, of Delaware, has a high opinion of ex-Senator A. P. Gorman's power of silence. "We've been spending a summer as friends for a dozen years at the same hotel," he recently said to Gorman, "and I've told you everything there is to tell about myself, whereas you never told me a thing." William Bryan is fond of books and has a good-sized general library, but he cares little for art and rarely visits a picture gallery.

KNOW HOW TO DIE.

A WRITER'S TRIBUTE TO THE BOERS

And a Graphic Pen Picture of Pathetic Incidents on the Battlefield—Remarkable Devotion to One Another—Description of a Fight.

The pathos and awful tragedy of the war in South Africa are admirably painted by a British writer, who at one time was a prisoner among the Boers. I was only a prisoner in their hands for about a month, he says, yet every moment of that time was so fraught with interest that I fancy I picked up more of the real nature of the Boers than I should have done under ordinary circumstances in a couple of years. I was moved from laager to laager along their fighting line; saw them at work with their rifles; saw them come in from more than one tough skirmish, bringing their dead and wounded with them; saw them when they had triumphed and saw them when they had been whipped; saw them going to their farms to be welcomed by wife and children; saw them leaving home with a wife's sobs in their ears and children's loving kisses on their lips. I saw some of these old gray heads shattered by our shells, dying grimly, with knitted brows and fiercely clenched jaws; saw some of their beardless boys sobbing their souls out as the life blood dyed the African heath. I saw some passing over the border line which divides life and death, with a ring of stern-browed comrades around them, leaning upon their rifles, while a brother or a father knelt and pressed the hand of him whose feet were on the very threshhold of the land beyond the shadows. I saw others smiling up into the faces of women—the poor, pain-drawn faces of the dying looking less haggard and worn than the anguish-stricken features of their womanhood who knelt to comfort them in that last awful hour—in the hour which divides time from eternity, the sunlight of dusty life from the shadows of unsearchable death. Those things I have seen, and in the ears of English men and women let me say, as one who knows and fain would speak the plain, ungilded truth concerning friend or foe, that not alone beneath the British flag are heroes found. Not alone at the breasts of British matrons are brave men suckled; for, as my soul liveth, whether their cause be just or unjust, whether the right or the wrong of this war be with them—whether the blood of the hundreds that have fallen since the first rifle spoke defiance shall speak for or against them at the day of judgment—they at least know how to die; and when a man has given his life for the cause he believes in he is proven worthy even of his worst enemy's respect. And it seems to me that the British nation, with its long roll of heroic deeds, wrought the world over, from Africa to Iceland, can well afford to honor the splendid bravery and self-sacrifice of these rude, untutored tillers of the soil. I have seen them die. Once as I lay a prisoner in a rocky ravine, all through the hot afternoon, I heard the rifles snapping like hounds around a cornered beast. I watched the Boers as they moved from cover to cover, one here, one there, a little farther on a couple in a place of vantage, again in a natural fortress a group of eight; so they were placed as far as my eye could reach. The British force I could not see at all. They were out on the veldt, and the kopjes hid them from me; but I could hear the regular roar and ripple of their disciplined volleys, and in course of time, by watching the action of the Boers, I could anticipate the sound.

They watched our officers, and when the signal to fire was given they dropped behind cover with such speed and certainty that seldom a man was hit. Then, when the readen hail had ceased to fall upon the rocks, they sprang out again and gave our fellows lead for lead. After a while our gunners seemed to locate them, and the shells came through the air snarling savagely, as leopards snarl before they spring, and the flying schrapnel reached many of the Boers, wounding, maiming or killing them; yet they held their positions with indomitable pluck, those who were not hit leaping out, regardless of personal danger, to pick up those who were wounded. They were a strange, motley looking crowd, dressed in all kinds of common farming apparel, just such a crowd as one is apt to see in a far inland shearing shed in Australia, but no man with a man's heart in his body could help admiring their devotion to one another or their loyalty to the cause for which they were risking their lives.

One night I saw which will stay with me while memory lasts. They had placed me under a wagon, beneath a mass of overhanging rocks, for safety, and there they brought two wounded men. One was a man of 50, a hard old veteran with a complexion as dark as a New Zealand Maori. The beard that framed his rugged face was three-fourths gray; his hands were as rough and knotted by open-air toil as the hoofs of a working steer. He looked what he was—a Boer of mixed Dutch and French lineage. Later on I got into conversation with him, and he told me a good deal of his life. His father was descended from one of the old Dutch families who had emigrated to South Africa in search of religious liberty in the old days when the country was a wilderness. His mother had come in an unbroken line from one of the noble families of France who fled from home in the days of the terrible persecution of the Huguenots. He himself had been many things—hunter, trader, farmer and fighting man. He had fought against the natives and he had fought against our people. The younger man was his son, a tall, fair fellow, scarcely more than a strippling, and I had no need to be a prophet to tell that his very hours were numbered. Both men had been wounded by one of our shells, and it was pitiful to watch them as they lay side by side, the elder holding the hand of the younger in a loving clasp, while with his other hand he stroked the boyish face with gestures that were infinitely pathetic. Just as the stars were coming out that night between the clouds that floated over us the Boer boy sobbed his young life out, and all through the long watches of that mournful darkness the father lay with his dear laddie's hand in his. The pain of his own wounds must have been dreadful, but I heard no moan of anguish from his lips. When at the dawning they came to take the dead boy from the living man the stern old warrior simply pressed his grizzled lips to the cold face, and then turned his gray beard to the hard earth and made no further sign.

HEAT BREAKS THERMOMETER.

Arizona Has Summer Weather That Cannot Be Recorded.

The cottonwoods have shed their caterpillars, there has been a thunderstorm, mesquite wood has fallen in price, Indians are selling bows and arrows, the rose and the oleander have long been out, oranges are in bloom, the umbrella tree is putting out its leaves, last summer's suit has been cleaned and pressed, the small boy has gone swimming in the canal, the wise man stays up nights and steals irrigation water from his neighbors, alfalfa is almost ready to cut, strawberries have been shipped, mulberries are nearly ripe, summer will soon be here and the Phoenix summer bedroom will soon be necessary. Phoenix sleeps out of doors in the summer and the bedroom is born out of that necessity. It is on stilts, is built of wire screen of fine mesh, for the Phoenix mosquito is microscopic in size. It is furnished according to the taste of the occupant, with interior curtains to keep out the morning sun, the gaze of the curious and the sand storm. The bed is a cot of canvas or woven wire, covered, perhaps, with a sheet, but even a sheet feels like a featherbed on a Phoenix summer night. The bed covering is the roof of the bedroom, and careless folks who consult their comfort only don't wear nightshirts. Phoenix is proud of its climate during eight months of the year, but it doesn't talk much in public about its midsummer. It is a right warm day when the government weather bureau doesn't know what the sun temperature is and is unable to determine it, and that is how hot it gets in Phoenix. I called on Observer Burns one day last July and asked him what the "official" temperature was in the sun. He said he did not know and that the government couldn't afford to experiment to that end. He said he had attempted to catch the sun temperature during the summer of 1898 and had broken a $3 thermometer in the attempt. To please my curiosity he hung a thermometer in the sun, watched it until it registered 136 degrees, and then took it in, fearing it would break. The dryness of the atmosphere relieves this great heat of any terrors to all living things except women and cats.—Phoenix Graphic.

REACHING BUSINESS BASIS.

Woman Customer Dropped from $60 to $2.50.

"I think I should like to look at some of your brass bedsteads." "Yes, ma'am. Step this way, please. You want to see our best, I presume?" "It pays to buy the best, doesn't it?" "Yes, it's economy in the long run. The price of this one is $60." "Oh, I couldn't afford to buy anything as expensive as that." "Well, we have some over here that are practically just as good. You can have one like this for $45." "Haven't you something still cheaper?" "Well, here's a special bargain, the cheapest all-brass bedstead in the house. We can sell you this for $25." "I can't afford to pay any such price as that, either. What is it about brass that makes it come so high?" "A great many of our best customers, ma'am, are buying bedsteads of iron, painted in any color desired and trimmed with brass. They look almost as good and don't cost nearly as much." "What can you sell me one of that kind for?" "Here's one for $12.50." "Haven't you some that——" "Here's the greatest seller we've got in the store. It's iron, painted white, trimmed with brass, neatly made, and ought to bring $14, but we're selling it for $9.75." "Is that the cheapest you've got?" "It's the cheapest bedstead trimmed and ornamented with brass you can find here or any place else. We guarantee it to——" (With a sigh) "I see I'll have to give up the idea. Show me a folding cot with woven wire springs you can sell for about $2.25."—Chicago Tribune.

Resources of Culture.

A distinguished lecturer once told a story of an engagement he had made to deliver a discourse in one of the interior towns, on the subject of "The Beacon Lights of Civilization." "I reached the place," he said, "a little behind time, and went directly to the hall. A large audience had assembled. I was introduced in due form by the president of the literary society under whose auspices I was to appear, and laying my manuscript on the desk before me I opened it and waited a moment for the appaluse to subside. Imagine my horror when I found I had accidentally brought along the wrong lecture—one on the 'Wonders of Modern Electrical Science'!" "What did you do?" asked one of the group to whom he was narrating the incident. "I went right ahead," he replied. "The audience didn't know the difference."—Youths' Companion.

Illiteracy in North Carolina.

Illiteracy in North Carolina is increasing, particularly among the whites. By the census of 1870 there were 38,111 illiterate white voters in North Carolina; in 1880, 44,420; in 1890, 49,570—an average increase of 800 illiterate voters a year, and a total of 21 per cent of the entire white voting population.

Motor Car for Warfare.

A patent was issue recently for a "motor driven car for use in warfare." It is nothing more than a battleship on wheels, or an armored automobile full of guns and other terrifying weapons, and also adapted to be so charged with electricity that rash storming parties attempting to board it will instantly be electrocuted.

SCIENTIFIC TOPICS.

CURRENT NOTES OF DISCOVERY AND INVENTION.

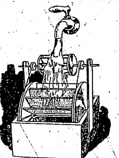
A Scientific Discussion of the Indian's Art in Respect to Charming Serpents—Some Useful Inventions—Interesting Discoveries.

Snake Charming in India.

With a musical instrument made of reeds or bamboo the Hindu, or native of India, manages ot soothe the evil spirit of the deadly Indian serpents, playing a peculiar droning melody that, according to its quickness, or slowness, causes the snake to raise its body and sway its head about in time with the music, or to lie quietly with dull eyes watching the immovable musician. Gradually the player may draw the poisonous cobra de capello to his side without danger so long as the music lasts; but many snake charmers, either through carelessness or fatigue, have lagged with the music and have been struck and fatally poisoned by the fierce snake. Many are the stories told of the powers of these snake charmers, however. A General Campbell of the British Indian service tells how a big cobra was found at the bottom of a well near his headquarters. The soldier hurried to get his gun and a crowd of natives remained to pelt the hated snake with stones. In this way they drove it into an opening in the brickwork of the well. Two snake charmers were sent for. They were let down into the well by means of ropes, and one of them began to play a shrill and monotonous tune on a sort of bagpipe. His companion stood on the other side of the hole where the snake was hidden, and held a long pole with a slip noose attached to its end ready to noose the snake as soon as its head should appear. For a time the snake appeared unconscious of the seductive music, but in about half an hour, during which the playing had been constant, the cobra was heard to move, and soon out slowly came its ugly head. In an instant the slip noose had done its work and the snake was a dangling prisoner. After being hoisted from the well the snake charmers carried their prize to an open place and released it. The ugly snake made a rush at the bystanders and sent them scattering. The piping charmer now tapped the snake on the tail, causing it to turn angrily, but hearing the subtle music the cobra coiled up and lifted its head in the striking position. But it did not strike. The head swayed a little from side to side, and not till the music stopped did the creature spring at the musician, who barely escaped being struck by a quick leap to one side. Many of our own wild creatures are singularly affected by certain notes repeated in succession. Often have I caused a rabbit to sit up in his tracks by whistling in a low tone some simple tune. The squirrel will chatter from his treetop if you whistle to him. But if you keep it up the little fellow will gradually work his way down to the trunk of the tree and will crouch there and listen as if spellbound. Try whistling a simple warble near a catbird. The impudent little fellow will ruffle up his feathers, cock his head on one side, listen attentively for awhile and then will try to imitate the sound.

Photographic Washing Apparatus.

Every amateur has his own troubles in printing, toning and washing films, plates and prints, and even with the best of appliances to be purchased at the photographic shops, this task is none too pleasant. However, William Fitzgerald Crawford, residing in London, England, disclosed in a recent patent a water motor washing bath, which, he asserts, makes the toning, fixing, and washing processes comparatively convenient and pleasant. The apparatus by which he accomplishes this consists of two grooven discs or wheels, mounted upon a horizontal axis and belted by means of cords with a tiny water wheel, by which they are revolved in a trough. This is for washing only. For toning, fixing or printing, when the water has to be kept out of the bath, the straps are removed, and the discs turned by hand, by a crank or milled buttons.



WATER MOTOR WASHING BATH.

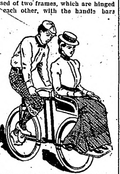
To hold films and prints suitable carriers are provided. These are plates are placed between the discs, with their opposite sides in corresponding radial grooves. A rubber band, which encircles the circumference of the discs prevents their falling out when the discs are revolved. The toning, developing, fixing or rinsing solution is placed in the trough. For simply washing plates the trough is filled with water and placed under a running spigot, when the small water wheel shown at the top of the device is caused to turn, thus rotating the discs, and thereby thoroughly washing the plates held between them.

Is the Pineapple of a Poisonous Nature?

The chemists now say that we must give up the pineapple as an article of food, and be particularly careful to keep its juices out of our circulation. They find that the pineapple has a very bad record. In Java, the Philippines and through the far east it is said and believed that the juice of the green and growing plant is a blood poison of an extremely deadly nature. It is said to be the substance with which the Malays poison their krishes and daggers. It is also said to be the "fingernail poison" formerly in use among aboriginal Javanese women, who cultivated a nail, or more, on each hand, to a long, sharp point, and that the least scratch from one of these was certain death.

Improved Cycle Cab.

All the bicycles hitherto in use are adapted to carry only one person, or are so arranged that when two or more are carried each rider must aid in the propulsion of the machine. James C. Anderson, a Chicago inventor, has turned his attention to the designing of a vehicle which is adapted to carry two persons through the physical exertions of only one. The inventor states that the machine will be found useful in cities and towns for the purpose of conveying a passenger comfortably and economically to any locality expeditiously. The person who propels the machine also has full control of the steering, which is accomplished by turning the front wheel exactly as though it were the forward wheel of an ordinary bicycle, and the driver is also expected to maintain the cab in an upright position when at rest, in order that the passenger may seat himself or alight in perfect safety. The vehicle is composed of two frames, which are hinged to each other, with the handle bars attached at the rear of the forward frame, causing the wheels to turn in opposite directions and aid in maintaining the equilibrium of the machine.



CYCLE CAB FOR PLEASURE OR BUSINESS.

Expectoration in New York.

The board of health of New York is giving considerable attention to the question of regulating and abating the practice of expectoration. A recent ordinance of that board might be profitably adopted by the health boards of other cities. It forbids expectoration in cars, other public conveyances and in public places and requires that notices to such effect shall be posted. It further provides that the proprietors of cigar manufactories and printing offices must provide cuspidors in proportion to one to every two persons employed in such places. It is probable that eventually the demands of the public will compel the introduction of cuspidors in smoking cars and the smokingroom of ferry boats. The question of preventing the atmosphere from becoming laden with infectious germs and microbes is causing a great deal of discussion all over the country at present, and if promiscuous expectoration can be stopped a long step in the desired direction will be made.

The Toucan on Its Roost.

The amiable, usually silent and generally sleepy bird known as the toucan, had to carefully adjust itself before going to sleep for it will become overbalanced and fall from its roost or perch. It first cocks up its little scut of a tail which is not more than three or four inches long, in a very slow and cautious manner. This must materially affect its balance, for it never moves on its perch after the tail is once adjusted. Later it gently turns its huge, unwieldly bill around by degrees and lays it along its back in the usual bird fashion. It then perches on one foot and goes to sleep. If awakened suddenly it will tumble down in a heap, being unable to adjust its balance owing to the weight of its ponderous bill.

Dryest Spot on Earth.

The reputation of being the dryest spot on earth is claimed by Payta, in Peru, a place about five degrees south of the equator. In February there was a fall of rain of more than 24 hours, the first for eight years. The average interval between two showers is seven years. Sea fogs are common. Of about nine species of plants noticed by a recent visitor seven were annuals, and their seeds must have remained dormant in the ground for eight years. In spite of the lack of rain the long-rooted Peruvian cotton is grown in the dried up river bed, furnishing crops that yield subsistence to the natives.

Scientific Jottings.

During the year 1899, 21,080 patents were applied for, compared with 20,080 in 1898 and 18,347 in 1897. Of these 7,430 were awarded after examination by the patent office, the corresponding number during the last year having ben 5,570, says the Electrician. Thus, while the number of applications increased by only 3.7 per cent, the number of successful applications increased by 33.4 per cent. During the year 5,171 patents have expired or become void and the total number of patents in force is 22,198. The increase in the number of patents awarded is chiefly marked in the case of electrical apparatus and machinery. Two hundred and sixty-five patents were awarded in this class in 1898 and 439 in 1899. Patents granted to foreigners are also on the increase. United States leads the way, with 722. England follows with 554, France 474, Austria-Hungary 372, Sweden and Norway 99 and Russia 85.

A wrought iron gas main, 23,015 feet long and three inches in diameter, is in use between Phoenixville and Royersford, Pa. The gas is conveyed under pressure of 20 pounds.

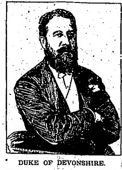
It is said a naptha pipe line 160 miles long has been laid by the Trans-Caucasus Railway company.

MAY SUCCEED LORD SALISBURY

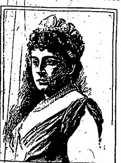
The Duke of Devonshire a Conservative Conservative

Premier Salisbury has become inexpressibly bored with his high office, writes a London correspondent. He has had everything he wanted in life except peace, and he yearns for that. He would like to potter about with the chemical apparatus in his big laboratory at Hatfield House, and would rather experiment with liquefication of hydrogen than control the destinies of Europe. The only question now is whether he can persuade himself to go on through the weary round with the next general election, which may come in a few weeks, or may be put off till next spring. It is thought not unlikely that he may retire the moment the end of the Boer war is in sight. And who comes after him? The question is of commercial and political importance to the United States, and would be highly interesting even if it were not important. I have been asking the question of several members of parliament, and, better yet, of press gallery veterans, and the answer almost invariably got around, after some twisting and turning, the Duke of Devonshire, not because he was any one's warm personal choice, but because there was no one else on the Conservative side who would make so little trouble in party politics or in national affairs. Even if Lord Salisbury remains in office till the next election, the answer remains the same, for unless the war department involves the government in some new disaster, it is believed generally that the Conservatives will be kept in power, although with a smaller majority.

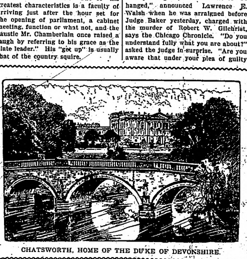
The marquis became Duke of Devonshire on the death of his father, the seventh duke, in 1891. He is now 67, plainness is the keynote of his life, and the most simply furnished chamber in each of his houses is his. To this quietness of life his phenomenal health is probably due. He never was a personally attractive man; his face is heavy, his frame lacks grace and he has no taste in dress. One of his greatest characteristics is a faculty of arriving just after the hour set for the opening of parliament, a cabinet meeting, function or what not, and the caustic Mr. Chamberlain once raised a laugh by referring to his grace as the "late leader." His "get up" is usually that of the country squire.



DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.



DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.



CHATSWORTH, HOME OF THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

In the house of lords he sits with his hat tilted over his eyebrows, his body buried in a long, dark colored coat with deep pockets, and one leg thrown over the other, revealing a stretch of drab stocking, invariably on the point of coming down. His hair and beard have grown wholly gray. Unlike Lord Salisbury, who never uses a note, the duke, on rising, drags a roll of manuscript from an inside pocket, adjusts his eyeglasses, and, standing in a loose attitude, drones out his speech. Many parliamentarians make an effective use of the pocket handkerchief; the Duke of Devonshire grips his tightly under his hands. Tricks of oratory, the coining of happy phrases, are beyond him, and what meager success he has had in speechmaking has come from his common sense and candor.

In 1892 the duke married a woman who was already a duchess—the widow of the Duke of Manchester. The marriage was of the most private nature, as the duchess' son, the late Duke of Manchester, died in the same week. The bride and her husband had been firm friends for over thirty years and it was even said that they had been engaged before the marriage to Manchester, but this has been denied with positiveness.

Justice.

While M. Constans, the artists, was spending a day with President Loubet at Rambouillet he was asked by his host upon what subject he was now engaged. "M. le President," said the other, "I am painting a big canvas symbolizing justice." "Indeed, and how do you conceive her?" Whereat the painter began to describe his ideal in glowing words, speaking from the heart as only an artist can when delivering his soul to a sympathetic listener. But the president quietly interrupted him with a twinkle in his eye. "Is that how you conceive justice?" he said. "Parfait! And now would you like to know what she really is, in point of fact, and in actual life?" He rummaged in his pocket and produced a coin, which he spun in the air. "Head or tail!" he said. "That is justice!"

Russia's Wickedest Town.

Krasnoiarsk is not all as good as it looks. It is one of the most notorious centers of crime in all Siberia and violence is so common that it is hardly noticed by the townspeople, says the Philadelphia Press. Hosts of exiled criminals from European Russia have been distributed in the region immediately surrounding the city for many years past. The gold mines in the vicinity have helped to attract a lawless class, not only to work in the mines, as is usually to some extent the case, but to profit by robbery of those who work and get the gold. Murders, robberies and other crimes of violence are of almost nightly occurrences. When darkness falls it is the signal to stay at home, and except on nights when society functions and entertainments draw the people out in crowds it is not often that any one is seen alone in the streets. The fear of violence is ever present and the people talk about the latest crime as something of interest, but in no way surprising.

ASKS TO BE HANGED.

L. E. Walsh Pleads Guilty, but His Sanity Is Questioned.

"I plead guilty and I want to be hanged," announced Lawrence E. Walsh when he was arraigned before Judge Baker yesterday, charged with the murder of Robert W. Gilchrist, says the Chicago Chronicle. "Do you understand fully what you are about?" asked the judge in surprise. "Are you aware that under your plea of guilty the court can send you to the penitentiary for not less than fourteen years, or for life, or may inflict the death penalty?" "Yes, I know all that. This is a capital case and I want capital punishment inflicted," said the prisoner quickly. "I am guilty and I enter that plea. I killed that man and therefore I am guilty." "Take him back to jail," said Judge Baker. The case will be put on the call for trial soon. Walsh is believed to be mentally unbalanced. March 21 he shot and killed Robert W. Gilchrist, a barber at 1764 West Twenty-second street, without cause or provocation, it is said. Just before the adjournment of court at 5 o'clock Judge Baker asked Walsh to withdraw the plea, inasmuch as all the pleas arising from the work of the recent grand jury should go to Judge Hutchinson on arraignments. Walsh firmly declined. "Well, why did you kill Gilchrist?" asked the judge. "During the Spanish-American war I enlisted in the Second regiment of Louisiana at New Orleans," Walsh replied. "Soon after I had several fights with other soldiers and I discovered that a conspiracy was on foot to make me suffer something worse than death. Gilchrist was in it. When I came back to Chicago I saw him make a sign which convinced me that he was one of the men in the conspiracy. Then I decided to kill him." Judge Baker decided to let the plea of the prisoner rest for a few days. It is likely the court will enter a plea of not guilty and that Walsh will be tried as to his sanity. He was once confined in the detention hospital.

WHITMAN HELPING CHILDS.

Unique Employment Given to the Poet by the Editor.

The poet Walt Whitman was, as is well known, dependent during most of his life upon the kindness of his friends and admirers for a support. A few years before his death one of these friends called upon him in his little house in Camden, a suburban town of Philadelphia. "Well, Walt," he said, "how goes it this winter? Any subscriptions needed for Christmas?" "No," said Whitman; "no, I'm at work now. I'm in the employ of George Childs. He pays me $50 a month." "You at work! May I ask what is your occupation?" "Why, I ride in the street cars. I fall into talk with the drivers and conductors and find out which of them have no overcoats and guess at their size and notify Childs and then he sends the overcoats. It's not hard work," said the poet, thoughtfully. "And then, you know, it helps Childs along."

Man and Bird in Collision.

A dove winging its flight over the tracks of the Southern Railway near Juliet, in Georgia, collided with a passenger train going in the opposite direction at a high rate of speed. The bird's body plunged through the glass window of the cab. Its beak, sharp as a needle point, pierced the right eye of Engineer Charles Wallace, and the surgeon say it destroyed the engineer's sight temporarily, and possibly permanently. The dove was killed by the sudden contact with the cab window. Its quivering body fell on the iron floor of the cab, after striking the engineer, and was picked up by the fireman. So great was the momentum of the train and the dove's body that the glass window was not smashed by the blow of the collision. The hole through which the bird was hurled was clean-cut, like that made by a bullet fired through glass.

School Children Help Army.

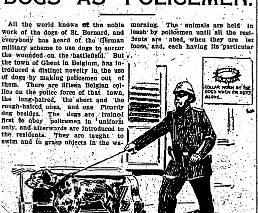
The public school children have sent away their first contribution of articles of clothing and creature comforts of all descriptions to the Australian soldiers in South Africa, and now more of our men will soon claim their attention. The imperial bushmen are almost ready, six squadrons having been enrolled. Col. Mackay, vice-president of the legislative council, has been selected as the commanding officer, and the only work remaining to be done is the final selection of officers.—J. Hunter Stephenson, in Sydney correspondence to Chicago Record.

Kaiser's Mustache Curl.

Emperor William has had to abandon that peculiar curl of the mustache which has helped to make the kaiser famous because Haby, the imperial barber, and the only man that knew how to do it, has been dismissed for impudence and for trading on the royal favor he enjoyed.

DOGS AS POLICEMEN.

All the world knows of the noble work of the dogs of St. Bernard, and everybody has heard of the German military scheme to use dogs to succor the wounded on the battlefield. But the town of Ghent in Belgium, has introduced a distinct novelty in the use of dogs by making policemen out of them. There are fifteen Belgian collies on the police force of that town, the long-haired, the short and the rough-haired ones, and one Picardy dog besides. The dogs are trained first to obey policemen in uniform only, and afterwards are introduced to the residents. They are taught to swim and to grasp objects in the water; to save people from drowning, and to leap high obstacles. The duties of the dog service begin at 10 o'clock at night and finish at 6 in the morning. The animals are held in leash by policemen until all the residents are abed, when they are let loose, and, each having its particular "beat," patrols the streets noiselessly and vigilantly. The dog wears a huge spiked collar, so that if it is attacked it cannot be grasped by the throat.



COLLAR WORN BY THE DOGS WHEN ON DUTY ALONE.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

SOME GOOD STORIES FOR OUR JUNIOR READERS.

Boy Frog Catchers—Boys Who Received Whippings Due the Prince — Kite Day in China — Children Should Read Aloud.

Put-Off Town.

Did you ever go to Put-Off Town,
Where the houses are old and tumble-down,
And everything tarries and everything drags,
With dirty streets and people in rags?

On the street of Slow lives Old Man Wait,
And his two little boys named Linger and Late;
With unclean hands and tousled hair,
And a naughty little sister named Don't Care.

Grandmother Growl lives in this town,
With her two little daughters, called Fret and Frown;
And Old Man Lazy lives all alone
Around the corner on Street Postpone.

Did you ever go to Put-Off Town
To play with the little girls Fret and Frown,
Or go to the home of Old Man Wait
And whistle for his boys to come to the gate
To play all day in Tarry street,
Leaving your errands for other feet?
To stop, or shirk, or linger or frown,
Is the nearest way to this old town.
—Selected.

Boy Frog Catchers.

"Brother John! Brother John!" Even though you are not Brother John to every one, the frog cares not for that. He claims a relationship in the only language he knows—his unceasing croak. Another traveler, making his way along this marshy country, may hear the same frog. To him he is saying: "Come along! Come along!" He goes and finds himself to his knees if not to his neck, in the slime and mud of a bog, but you say, surely not at all due to the wheedling voice of a frog, says the New York Times.

But I am not to write of travelers' experiences with the "Brother John" or his exploit in the marsh, but of the way in which frogs are caught and made ready for the city markets. There are frog ponds for the exclusive use of propagating frogs, and a fair fortune can be made in this business. The following is the experience of a boy and the way in which he made money:

In taking a drive recently I came upon a large pond lying among the foothills of the Blue Ridge. "Green Pond"—rather more euphonious is "Erin Lake"—is alive with these interesting little animals with naked bodies, four feet and no tail, this last having disappeared when Master Tadpole became a "Brother John." We could hear the hoarse croaks on all sides. Spying a lad on the bank busily engaged, I jumped from the carriage.

"What are you doing?" I asked, pointing to the quivering bit of white flesh with a string of slimy green hanging from it.

The boy replied:

"I'm skinnin' this 'er frog."

Just the thing I wanted to know. Seating myself by his side I began to ply him with questions:

"How many have you caught? When did you come out? Is this the best time of day? What is that box of green flies for? And that fishing pole? Surely you didn't use a hook to catch frogs?"

He began by answering the last first. He caught the big frog in his hands with that identical fishing pole. On the hook was a piece of red flannel, which, being drawn across the surface of the water, was immediately jumped at by the frog, making him a prisoner. The boy thought the frog very large, though to me it seemed but a mite, half the size of my hand. Then to my astonishment the boy said: "I may send both saddles of this 'un, he's such a 'beaut.'"

"Both saddles?" said I. Then he explained that the hind legs, or saddles, was the part sent to market. After being salted they are carefully packed in ice and shipped.

Though as yet but one of my questions had been answered, I was ready with another. He said he received 20 cents a saddle and sometimes more. On a bright, hot day, in an afternoon and early evening, he could catch and skin frogs as fast as the line was thrown into the water and the wriggling frog stripped of his green mantle. Thirty or forty frogs in three hours. When the red flannel failed he used the green flies and red worms.

Before the boy had given all this information he had flung his line into a clump of bushes. In an instant he had a frog dangling by one leg in his hand. What was my astonishment and disgust when, in removing the skin, out jumped an immense toad. It is not necessary to inquire what do frogs eat? Rather more pertinent, "By whom are frogs eaten?"

If the boys who read this article care to make a little money, I advise a stroll along the shady side of a creek, or a visit to a pond or spring, where the surface is covered with frog spawn. For, mark my words, you will find a "Brother John" if not a hundred, whose hind saddles are worth 20 cents. So in for the fun, and you will be fully repaid.

"Whipping Boys"

That there is no "whipping boy" in Germany was evidenced the other day, when the Empress sent her oldest son, the future Emperor, from the table on account of his rudeness. The Prince, it appears, was unmannerly to a younger brother, and the Empress, turning to the French tutor, who on that occasion had charge of the Princes, said: "Monsieur, I beg that you will ask me to excuse His Royal Highness the Prince." The tutor begged that the Prince be excused, and that young gentleman was forced to leave the table without finishing his meal. It is well known that the royal boys of Germany have had to grin and bear many a sound flogging, administered by the imperial hand, along with a vast deal of discipline from governors, tutors, etc. A different state of affairs this from the time when a boy was kept to be punished instead of the Prince. In England such a youth was called the whipping boy, and a famous English artist, W. A. Stacey, painted a portrait of Prince Edward, afterward Edward VI., trying to defend his whipping boy from a flogging which he himself deserved. In those days a Prince who was to be a king was looked upon and treated as a person of great importance. His person was held to be sacred, and so it would never have done to punish him. If an English Prince missed his lessons, was rude to his teachers or committed any of the other naughty tricks common to saucy children, his whipping boy was flogged. In Stacey's picture the Prince's governess, an old woman, is represented to be about to flog, with a formidable bundle of switches, the little whipping boy, who, with hat in hand, appears astonished when the Prince, rushing up, seizes the bundle of switches. On that occasion Prince Edward had not only refused to learn his lessons, but had persisted in teasing his old governess to such a degree that she was finally forced to resort to the extremity of punishing his whipping boy. The name of the lad who took Edward VI.'s flogging for him was Barnabas Fitzpatrick, and it is said that he and the Prince were lifelong friends. The painting represents the last flogging which he was compelled to take for the royal child, who was so much impressed by the injustice of the practice that he ever after behaved himself so well as to leave no excuse for punishment.

Kite Day in China.

There is one time of the year when every boy would not object to becoming a subject of the Chinese emperor for just one day. This time is the ninth day of the ninth month, according to the Chinese calendar. On this day a kite-flying festival is held. Then every Chinaman who has any regard for his spiritual and physical welfare and can afford a kite—and there are few, indeed, who cannot afford such an inexpensive trifle—goes to a hill and flies his kite the whole day long. This custom prevails more generally, of course, in the rural districts, for were the inhabitants of a great city like Canton or Pekin each to send up a kite the strings would become entangled and the very heavens would be darkened with such a collection of paper and string as never was seen. This custom was originated by a man who had a strangely realistic dream, in which it was revealed to him that some calamity would befall his house on a certain day. Wishing to avoid this unknown but inevitable disaster, he took his family to a neighboring hill top and amused the children by flying a kite. When he returned home that night he found his house had literally fallen to the ground, thus killing all the dogs and pigs that had been left at home to keep house. That set the fashion and since then whenever the anniversary of that day comes round other families, remembering the providential escape of their countrymen, fly their kites from the hills in the belief that as the paper toys ascend they will carry off the evil spirits that might otherwise demolish their own houses and bury them in the ruins should they stay at home.—Chicago Record.

Children in Japan.

From one end of Japan to the other a child is treated like a sacred thing. Each little one is put at birth under "the protection of the public." Each little one carries its name and address clearly marked on a ticket worn around the neck. This is useful not only in case the child is lost or wanders away, but in case of the conflagrations which suddenly lay low the modern villages of Japan. In case of the outbreak of a fire it is customary for some one to go from house to house, calling out the little folks, who are then removed in a body to some place of safety, leaving the elders to protect their property untrammeled by the harrowing thought that some child is missing in a corner of the house. The first duty in case of fire is to protect the little folks. The beautiful behavior of Japanese children is always commented upon by English and American travelers. It is the result of a system of careful education, which clothes boys and girls, rich and poor, with "a garment of perfect courtesy." The lesson is inculcated without robbing infancy of a moment of thoughtless happiness. A great deal can be said in praise of this system of domestic education which gains the desired end, without snubbing, weary scolding or punishments.

A Letter from W. Johnson.

Teecher says Ime a bad boy. I dunno wat she calls me bad for cos I most always no my lessons and I aint never late. Praps she means that I licked sissy Wilson thats wat I call Jonny Wilson hes a good boy I spose. I dont want to be a good boy if Ive got to be a sissy like him hes a sneak an a telltale an a galboy but you bet he wont tell on me agen even if I do put burdox in his hare. Ive been reeding I have reed lots cos mother makes me Ive been reedin Esops stories say Old Esop new a lot of stories I remember one about a kid on a roof makin faces an callin a wolf names an the wolf said he wouldnt dast to do it if he wassent on the roof an it was just the same as if the roof called him names an I gess thats so he didnt tell wat the kids name was but Ile bet it was sissy Wilson. An theres another story about a fool dog that pinched a piece of meet an he had to go over a brook an he saw in the water wat he thought was another piece of meat biggern hisn so he leggo his piece an grabbed for the other but he didnt get it cos there want no meet there an this fabel teeches us that we cant most always tell good by Ile rite again some day.

W. Johnson.

Children Should Read Aloud.

A mother should take great pains to teach her children to read aloud, distinctly and pleasantly. Much time and money are often expended in cultivating the voice for singing, and yet much pleasure may be given by the person who reads aloud in a pleasing manner. No attempt need be made at elocution, as the word is ordinarily understood; distinct utterance and proper emphasis, so as to convey easily to the mind of the hearer the meaning of the sentence read, are all that is necessary. To be able to read aloud is a most satisfactory accomplishment.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAH & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"
Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured.
Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE INSURANCE

DO YOU NEED SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound..........5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound..........15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound..........20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.
LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn, as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE, 20, 1900.

Decorating the Teeth.

"It's a curious thing," said the dentist as he caught the end of a nerve on a crochet needle and knotted up a few inches of it in chain stitch, "that while some people consider gold fillings very disfiguring, more people look upon them as desirable decorations. I have had a great many people come in here and ask me to put gold fillings in perfectly sound front teeth. Of course I wouldn't do it; it wouldn't be professional. A great many colored people want solid gold teeth where there isn't the slightest necessity of having them.

"But the oddest request I've had yet was from a variety actress—vaudeville, I believe you say nowadays—who played here a short time ago. She came in to have a front tooth filled. When I told her that the gold would show a great deal, what on earth do you suppose she asked me? Why, she wanted to know if I couldn't drill the cavity larger and make the filling look not like a mere gold edge, but like the letter 'J.' She told me she was going to marry a man named John, and she thought it would be lovely to have a gold 'J' in her tooth.

"Of course I couldn't do that either. It would not be according to professional ethics. It would be malpractice. But that woman offered me the price of a dozen gold fillings if I'd only make the filling in her tooth look like a 'J.'"—Washington Post.

A Floral Miracle.

"The most magnificent floral effect I ever saw in my life," said Robert N. Wilson of the Morgan line, "was in Texas. They have a flower there called the rainflower, the botanical name of which is the cooperia. It usually blooms three or four days after a rain. I was through the country to look after some land for a friend, and the thing that struck me in that particular locality was the utter barrenness of the whole landscape. There was a low piece of land of ten acres or more that was covered with low, black vines that were decidedly uninviting. Four hours later, after a heavy thunder shower, I passed this piece of land, and it was absolutely covered with what seemed to be the prettiest flowers I had ever seen. It was one enormous bouquet, and the fragrance from it was almost intoxicating.

"I could scarcely believe the evidence of my own eyes, but there it was, what seemed to be an unsightly waste transformed as if by magic into a bower of bloom.

"I made inquiry of the natives and learned that once in a long time the rainflower bloomed in a few hours after a rain, though ordinarily the blossoms did not appear for three or four days and then usually came in the night."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

She Didn't Pay.

Not all car conductors are merely hardened ringers in of fares. A poor woman got on a Twenty-third street crosstown car at Fourth avenue, and as it was well under way and she was about to hand her fare to the conductor she asked him if he transferred to Sixth avenue. On being told no, she drew back her 5 cents and asked to be let off.

"I've a long ways to go on Sixth avenue," she said, "and I'd better walk to there and then ride."

The car then had reached Madison avenue.

"Wait till we get across the street," answered the conductor. She waited, and instead of stopping there he let the car go on, past the transfer station and across Broadway to Sixth avenue. There he pulled the bell and looked at her.

"Thank you," she said gratefully.

He had carried her within a block of where she wanted to go and had taken no fare.—New York Telegram.

More Than He Could Stand.

"What's this?" demanded the police, hurrying to the scene. "A hold up?"

A pale, scholarly looking man in spectacles was standing over a burly ruffian and shaking his slender fist at the prostrate form

"I presume that is what you would term it," he replied. "This fellow stopped me just now and ordered me to hold up my hands. I complied, and he began to search my pockets. 'I will put a bullet through you,' he said, 'if you take them down all during the time I am'— And then I knocked him down. 'All during' is an abominable perversion of correct English that no man can utter in my presence unrebuked."

The unlucky footpad had tackled a professor of rhetoric.—Chicago Tribune.

And He Knew.

"Algernon is very interesting," said the stockbroker's daughter.

"What does he talk about?" inquired her father.

"Why, he's ever so well posted in Shakespearean quotations."

"Young woman," said the financier sternly, "don't you let him deceive you. Don't you let him make sport of your ignorance. There ain't no such stock on the market."—London Standard.

How Dan Rice "Fixed It."

To Dan Rice the people of Lewiston are indebted for their town clock. He exhibited his circus in this town in the fifties without a license and the next day was arrested at McVeytown. So that his show might not be delayed he promised to give a clock to the town if he was permitted to go on, and he kept his promise faithfully—Lewiston (Me.) Free Press.

There is no surer mark of the absence of the highest moral and intellectual qualities than a cold reception of excellence.—Bailey.

It is said that the color tones of the sky have an influence upon the character and temperament of the people who live under them.

While the Republicans pretend to be hostile to trusts, and passed a farcical anti-trust resolution in the House during the closing days of the session, their real attitude on the subject is well known. If there were nothing else, their action on the armor plate proposition would be conclusive. Senator Hanna, as high priest of the armor trust, denounced with extraordinary vigor the proposition of Democratic Senators to fix a price for armor and, in the event the manufacturers would not accept contracts at the figure named, to build a Government plant for the manufacturer of armor. The Ohio Senator, who is also chairman of the Republican National Committee, insisted that the time had come to "take the armor-plate question out of politics" and to make it purely and exclusively a "business matter." This, it may be said, is also the view of the armor-plate manfacturers and monopolists generally. They are as anxious to get the question of high prices out of politics and to make it wholly a business transaction as the Republican politicians. With the assistance of the Republican majority in both branches of Congress they have succeeded. The "discretion" of the Secretary of the Navy is all that stands between the United States Treasury and the exorbitant demands of the armor monopolists. If Mr. Long decides that our navy must have the new ships authorized by Congress without delay the Armor Trust will get any price it sees fit to exact. Mr. Long is a man of integrity, but under the act of Congress he is authorized by the representatives of the Republican party in Congress to pay what ever he regards as a reasonable price, and he may conclude that any price the armor makers demand is reasonable in the year of a Presidential election. This is the result of applying what Mr. Hanna designates "business principles" to transactions between trusts and the Government. It is an elegant arrangement for the trusts, but a bad thing for the Treasury. The trusts should be willing to contribute handsomely to the campaign fund under such circumstances.

Nerves and Hair Picking.

"Persons whose nerves are in any way out of gear should not pick hair," observed a well known specialist in nervous diseases to a reporter, "and indeed I am almost willing to go further and to say that they should not handle mattresses or pillows stuffed with hair. The tactile nerves, the nerves that are located in the ends of the fingers, seem to be specially affected by handling of hair or animal wools of any kind.

"Many good housewives do themselves great injury in picking hair in the repair or alteration of mattresses, and, while they think they will save money by doing such work themselves, they often find out that, besides the personal suffering in consequence, they pay out many times in doctors' and medicine bills what they save from mattress makers.

"I know of some persons, men more frequently than women, however, who would be thrown into nervous spasms if they were compelled to handle velvet for 15 minutes—that is, to handle it on the fuzzy or velvety side. Those who are unpleasantly affected by velvet know it and therefore avoid it as much as possible."—Washington Star.

The Spider and the Tuning Fork.

A gentleman was recently watching some spiders, when it occurred to him to try what effect the sound of a tuning fork would have upon them. He suspected that they would take it for the buzzing of a fly. He selected a large, ugly spider that had been feasting on flies for about two months. The spider was at one edge of its web. Sounding the fork, the man touched a thread at the other side and watched the result.

Mr. Spider had the buzzing sound conveyed to him over his telephone wires, but how was he to know on which particular wire it was traveling? He ran to the center of the web very quickly and felt around until he touched the thread against the other end of which the fork was sounding; then, taking another thread along, just as a man would take an extra piece of rope, he ran out to the fork and sprang upon it. Then he retreated a little way and looked at the fork. He was puzzled. He had expected to find a buzzing fly. Then, strange to say, he got on the fork again and danced with delight. Evidently the sound was music to him.

No Use For Him.

"No," said the practical politician, "we don't want him figuring in the campaign."

"But he is exceedingly well informed."

"I doubt it. He has put in all his time studying the tariff and finance and the United States constitution. He doesn't know anything about politics."—Washington Star.

One or the Other.

"Doctor, what ails my daughter?"

"Before I answer that question let me ask if you have reason to think she has had a love disappointment of any kind?"

"I know she has not."

"Then, madam, your daughter has the grip."—Chicago Tribune.

Gratitude is a nice touch of beauty added last of all to the countenance, giving a classic beauty, an angelic loveliness to the character.

An orange hit in the exact center by a rifle ball will vanish at once from sight, scattered into infinitesimal pieces.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned, P. G. Paradis, hereby make application for a license to be granted to him to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot ten (10) of block forty (40) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having three outside entrances, one in front, one in side and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire this 12th day of June 1900. P. G. PARADIS.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Friday the 29th day of June 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned, M. E. Bjerk hereby make application for a license to be granted to him to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot three (3) of block forty (40) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having two outside entrances, one in front and one in side.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute in said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 12th day of June 1900. M. E. BJERK.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Friday the 29th day of June 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned, Lang & Mosleth hereby make application for a license to be granted to t en to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot fourteen (14) of block thirty-nine (39) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having three outside entrances, one in front one in side and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 12th day of June 1900. LANG & MOSLETH.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Friday the 29th day of June 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned, Markham Hotel Company, (M. McAndress, Manager) hereby make application for a license to be granted to him to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the three story building situate on lot twenty (20) of block thirty-nine (39) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having two outside entrances, one in front and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said state of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 12th day of June 1900.
MARKHAM HOTEL CO.,
M. MCANDRESS, Manager.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Friday the 29th day of June 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned Clara Peterson hereby make application for a license to be granted to her to sell intoxication liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot eleven (11) of block (40) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having two outside entrances, one in front and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to her pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 12th day of June 1900. CLARA PETERSON.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Friday the 29th day of June 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

NOTICE.

Department of the Interior.
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office under authority in him vested by section 2455 U. S. R. S., as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895 (28 Stat., 687), we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 20th day of July 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., the following tract of land, to-wit:

SE¼ NW¼ Sec. 1, T. 151 N., R. 43 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated June 5th 1900.
SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.
Misol. App. [illegible]-2161. 46-51

UNCLE SAM Is not In the Shoe Business, And Neither Am I, But I can Interest You in CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

J. B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

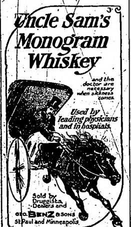
FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice, Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.
—o—
Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.
Razors honed and put in first-class order.
J. H. PENNO, Prop.
ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA



Uncle Sam's Monogram Whiskey
and the doctor are necessary when sickness comes.
Used by leading physicians and in hospitals.
Sold by Druggists, Dealers and
GEO. BENZ & SONS
St Paul and Minneapolis

Order For Hearing Proof of Will.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss In Probate Court.
County of Red Lake. } Special Term, June 5th A. D. 1900.

In the matter of the estate of John Sorsoleil, deceased.

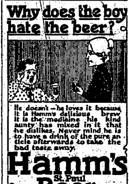
Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last Will and Testament of John Sorsoleil, deceased, late of said county has been delivered to this court; and

Whereas, Mary Sorsoleil has filed therewith her petition, representing among other things that said John Sorsoleil died in said county, on the 12th day of January A. D., 1900, testate, and that said petitioner is the sole Executrix named in said last Will and Testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to her issued thereon;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the St. Hilaire Spectator, a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire, in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 5th day of June A. D. 1900.

By the Court,
[SEAL] JOHN T. KNIGHT,
45-48 Judge of Probate.



Why does the boy hate the beer?
He doesn't—he loves it because it is Hamm's delicious brew it is the medicine his kind aunty has mixed in it that he dislikes. Never mind he is to have a drink of the pure article afterwards to take the bad taste away.
Hamm's St. Paul Beer
Drink a beer you know is pure.
Theo. Hamm Brewing Co.
Tel. 972, St. Paul, Minn.
Agents Everywhere.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

For Fine Goods
Good Goods
New Goods
Up to Date Goods

Visit Us as we are the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents Furnishing House in the City.

GREAT WESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route

All Under One Roof

On the Burlington's Chicago and St. Louis Limited, you can live as well as at the finest hotel in America. You can dine in a dining car; smoke in a smoking car; read in a library car; sleep in a comparment or standard sleeping car; and recline in a reclining chair car. All under one roof. Electric lighted and steam heated. Leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m. St. Paul 8:05 p. m. daily, arriving Chicago 9:25 next morning. The "Scenic" Express, an elegant day train, leaves Minneapolis 7:40 a. m., St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday. Ask your home agent for tickets via this line, or address

P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. Agent, CHICAGO, ILL.
GEO. P. LYMAM, Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent ST. PAUL, MINN.

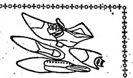
TIME AND SPACE are practically annihilated by the ocean cables and land telegraph systems which now belt the circumference of Old Earth in so many different directions. "Foreign parts" are no longer foreign in the old meaning of the term. Europe, Africa, Asia, are "next door" to us. What happens there to-day we know to-morrow—if we read THE CHICAGO RECORD, whose Special Cable Correspondents are located in every important city in the world outside of the United States. No other American newspaper ever attempted so extensive a service; and it is supplemented by the regular foreign news service of The Associated Press. For accurate intelligence of the stirring events which are shaking the nations—of wars and rumors of wars—of the threatening dissolution of old governments and the establishment of new—of the onward sweep of the race in all parts of the world—the one medium of the most satisfactory information is the enterprising, "up-to-date" American newspaper, THE CHICAGO RECORD.

FREE A large map of the world on Mercator's Projection, about 22½x16 inches in size, beautifully printed in colors, with a large-scale map of Europe on the reverse side, will be mailed to any address free of charge on receipt of request accompanied by two 2-cent stamps to cover postage and wrapping. The maps illustrate clearly how comprehensively the special cable service of THE CHICAGO RECORD covers the entire civilized world. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.

Cigars.

BRINK BROTHERS
DEALERS IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.
Corner Broadway and 3rd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.



ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

NEW MEAT MARKET.
L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

It's Time

Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. ST. HILAIRE LODGE No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
J. B. O'BRIEN, N. G.
A. F. LANG, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. JACKSON, V. C.
JAS. M. HALL, Clerk.

R. N. A.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 634 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
MRS. W. A. ARTHUR, Oracle.
MRS. L. LACOURSIERE, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant	Councilmen
T. J. Thorkelson	Councilmen
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposite M. E. church. ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnson
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

The Ideal
Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS.
PROMPT SERVICE.
OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd ☛ STORE
(SECOND HAND STORE.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA

New Restaurant
[Brink Bros. Corner Building.]
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.
If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
C. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the SPECTATOR, Official county and village paper.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	60½	Oats	16
Wheat No. 2	58½	Barley	26
Wheat No. 3	54½	Flax	156
Eggs (per doz).	8	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

Fourth street is being graded from Broadway west.

W. A. Sorsoliel received a car load of brick yesterday.

M. E. Bjerk left this morning on a business trip at Holt.

E. J. Brink has rented his place of business for one year.

Every turnout jn the upper and lower Falls was here Sunday.

Attorney Richardson was down from the upper Falls Monday.

K. O. Gigstad returned home to-day from a trip to Crookston.

Threatening rains is the best we can get to help out the drouth.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

The foundation for the new Catholic church is about completed.

Even bees feel the effect of drouth—no wild flowers to speak of.

The Red Lake Falls saw mill has shut down for want of logs.

A few thunder claps were heard early this morning but no rain fell.

I. Dahleen made a business trip to the upper Falls last Saturday.

BORN: To Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Bergh Thursday June 14, 1900, a son.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

Miss Carrie Hoff of Akeley arrived Monday on a visit to her parents.

Rector Watson of St. Vincent prayed for rain at Christ church last Sunday.

N. J. Nereson, the Garnes photographer was in the village last Friday.

Rapp & Post have an A No. 1 mason doing the work of building their root house.

Collins, the photographer, has been very successful lately in taking farm views.

About twenty-five base ball enthusiasts of Red Lake Falls biked it up last Sunday.

After the 25th inst. Collins the photographer will take no more of the stamp size photos.

Alfred Bergh came up from Crookston Monday to visit with his brother and family.

Frank Garvey representing the Grand Forks Woolen Mills was here the first of the week.

Miss Lucy Golla of Thief River Falls is here visiting with her sister, Mrs. Geo. Hughes.

W. A. Case left Monday on the mission of organizing a Woodmen camp in Norman county.

The weather of last Sunday was a scorcher, especially so between the hours of 10 and 4.

Miss Helen Makinson of St. Paul arrived Tuesday to visit with her sister Mrs. J. B. O'Brien.

E. J. Kellogg of Walhalla N. Dak., arrived last Thursday on a short visit with relatives here.

The Garnes people guarantee a good time to everyone attending their Fourth of July celebration.

Fourth of July is not far distant—the young people have commenced buying fire crackers.

Mrs. H. Hendrickson returned home Monday from a few days visit with friends at Crookston.

Several teams were in from Garnes last Friday after lumber for their new Modern Woodmen hall.

Mrs. Ed. Bridge left Monday on a two weeks visit with relatives and friends at Thief River Falls.

Billy Warner, the shingle weaver resigned his position at the mill and left Monday for the upper Falls.

The St. Hilaire Lumber Company has eight million feet of logs in the river between here and the outlet.

E. M. Hoff returned home Saturday from attending the session of the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. at St. Paul last week.

Emard, the Red Lake Falls vegetable man makes regular trips now days in order to supply the wants of St. Hilaire people.

Mrs. L. N. Nolan, and daughter Myrtle, of Red Lake Falls spent Sunday visiting with Mr. and Mrs. John Knowles.

Miss Agnes Roland returned Monday from Crookston where she had been on a short visit to her sister, Mrs. O. R. Miller.

About thirty river drivers went up to Thief River Falls Saturday afternoon to bring down a drive of logs for this company.

Messrs. Lee, Jackson and Jas. Meehan, Jr. passed through here yesterday enroute to St. Paul to attend the democratic convention.

J. G. Ballard, one of the head pushes of the Thief River Falls Lumber Co., was here the first of the week enroute below on a business trip.

Ole Johnson and Henry Norland returned to-day from Crookston where they had been since Monday attending the drainage convention.

The Erskin Echo says J. C. Nelson a prosperous farmer in the town of Winger, Polk county, is the proud possessor of a six-legged pig.

Drouth and poor crop prospects are reported from nearly all sections of the northwest which is very discouraging to the farmers to say the least.

Just at this particular time its not safe to mention the word "prosperity" to a farmer—that is—if he really understand the meaning of the word.

L. T. Bergh departed Monday for Bottineau, N. Dak., where he goes to look after the interests of the McCormick people in that part of the state.

H. E. Ives returned yesterday from a weeks trip at Duluth and the twin cities, having taken in several excursions—the U. C. T. being one of them.

The base ball club of St. Hilaire is in bad shape since our old reliable pitcher left town and the chances are no more matched games will be played this season.

Six hundred and fifty trusts and combinations have been organized since March 4, 1897 with capital ranging from one million to ninety-nine million dollars each.

John Thorkelson, father of our popular druggist, terminated a pleasant three weeks visit with his son and family and left Monday for his home at Brandon, Minn.

Beware of fakirs of all kinds—they are coming around thick and fast. We do not advise you to set the dogs loose upon them, but suggest that you give them the marble heart.

The Mission Friends sewing society will meet at Mr. Helberg's about one mile southwest of St. Hilaire tomorrow afternoon June 21st, at 2 o'clock. All are cordially invited to attend.

The sixth annual Firemen's tournament will be held at Fosston next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 27, 28 and 29. Three whole days of enjoyment is in store for all who attend.

In some unaccountable manner a large Rochester lamp fell to the floor in Petersons saloon last night, creating quite a little excitement for a minute or two. No particulor damage was done.

St. John's Day will be celebrated at Terrebonne next Saturday. Dancing will be carried on in their new Woodmen hall during the day and evening and a grand display of fireworks at night.

A. M. Hanson, who lives two miles north of Wylie will sell his threshing machine outfit at auction on July 7th. Someone is liable to get a bargain as the rig is practically new being used only ninety days.

The Mission Friends will hold a series of meetings next Monday and Tuesday June 25 and 26 in the Norwegian United church. The first meeting will be held Monday afternoon June 25th at 2 o'clock. All are invited to attend.

The Mission Friends sewing society will have their auction in the Norwegian United church next Tuesday June 26th. The auction will begin at 8:00 o'clock in the evening. Ice cream and lemonade will be served. All are very welcome.

Seeing that St. Hilaire will not celebrate the Fourth a great many of our people have signified their intention of going out to Garnes to help swell the crowd. They promise a good time and why not remember our neighbors of the east on this occasion when nothing is going on at home?

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Case were over from St. Hilaire Thursday calling on Warren friends. Mr. Case is prominently mentioned as a candidate for register of deeds in Red Lake county on the Republican ticket. If the people of that county want a good, competent accommodating man in that position, they can find none better than Mr. Case.—Warren Sheaf.

A woman will yank up the guyrope of her corsets until she is almost squeezing her immortal soul out of place, put a dead bird on her hat, and go strutting around over town, selling tickets for an entertainment to raise money to help send missionaries to some foreign clime for the purpose of teaching civilization to the poor heathen who has never known what it is to wear a corset and who have been struggling on in the ignorant belief that birds were created to sing instead of to be worn on the hat.—Exchange.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, June 25th and 26th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 25th and 26th.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Woodmen Memorial Day.

The third Sunday of June of each year has been designated as Memorial Day by the Modern Woodmen of America and on Sunday the 17th the Woodmen of St. Hilaire met at their hall, and proceeded in a body, accompanied by the Royal Neighbors, to the M. E. church where the Rev. Myers delivered a very interesting and appropriate service, at the close of the service the Neighbors and Woodmen, 65 strong marched to the cemetery and in a fitting manner decorated the grave of deceased neighbor Fred Elkhoff. This faithful observance of the day will not only bring the Woodmen in a proper light before the public but will be paying a proper tribute to the beloved neighbors who have been called to their eternal rest.

First Game.

The first game of base ball on the home grounds was played between the Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire clubs last Sunday afternoon. It was a very interesting game up to the sixth inning when the home team allowed the visitors to pile up eight scores which was disastrous but the boys got back at them in a like manner before the ninth inning was played. We cannot give the score by innings as the scorer has a faculty of loosing the book at the end of every game that has been played the past year or two. However the score stood 12 to 13 in favor of Thief River Falls nine. Manager Goodwin of the visiting nine makes an A No. 1 umpire and will not tolerate "ragchewing" among members. A large delegation came down to see their boys win.

—For screen doors and windows go to I. Dahleen's.

The Minnesota Experiment Station has sent out circulars urging the farmers to grow fodder corn and save the live stock. The following urgent advice is given for the farmers: The drouth has cut the hay crop in two. The grain yields will be seriously reduced. Farmers must look to stock for their years profits. The greatest crop for stock is fodder corn. It may be planted as late as July 1st. By putting in a crop of fodder corn profits on live stock can be saved. Plow and drill crip corn on fields containing unpromising grain. Every acre of fodder corn planted before July 1st will winter five head of cattle. Fodder corn is better feed than timothy hay. Common dent corn is our best variety for fodder corn. Plant thickly in drills and cultivate.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

Census Enumerator Johnson has almost completed the rounds of this district and if there are any in the village that have not been enumerated they should report the fact at once to Mr. Johnson. The lists will be closed on June 30, and Mr. Johnson expects to go over the lists again before that date to see if anybody has escaped his notice. It is very necessary that everybody should be enumerated, both for the accurtnacy of the reports and the good of the village. If you reside within the confines of the village you should make it a point to ascertain whether or no you have been enumerated. The work has been performed very thoroughly, but there is, of course, a possibility that some one may have been missed.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, June 25th and 26th.

Card of Thanks.

EDITOR SPECTATOR:—

Please publish in your next issue our sincere thanks to all the good people of St. Hilaire and also one appreciative of their sympathy and generosity during our sad bereavement.

Yours in sorrow,
Mr. and Mrs. A. Mousseau.

School District Notice.

Whereas, a petition signed by Joseph Laurent a freeholder who is a legal voter, residing in School District No. 81 asking that the n w ¼ section 3, Township 150 of range 43 be set off from school district No. 79 to school district No. 81 was presented to the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota, at a session of said board held on the 11th day of June A. D. 1900, for the action of said board thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that a hearing of parties interested in the matter of said petition will be granted at the next session of said board, on the 10th day of July A. D. 1900, at the office of the County Auditor Red Lake Falls in said county.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.

ADAM ZEH,
Clerk of the Board.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

—Screen doors and windows made to order at I. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to say that I feel under lasting obligations for what Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has done for our family. We have used it in so many cases of coughs, lung troubles and whooping cough, and it has always given the most perfect satisfaction, we feel greatly indebted to the manufacturers of this remedy and wish them to please accept our hearty thanks.—Respectfully, Mrs. S. Doty, Des Moins, Iowa. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

SIDEWALK NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota have ordered the construction of a new sidewalk on the west side of Broadway from Second street to Thirt street in said village to be eight (8) feet wide constructed of dressed and sized two (2) inch pine planks six (6) inches wide placed flat-wise and firmly spiked upon four (4) sleepers or stringers of norway pine two (2) inches thick and six (6) inches wide, placed edgewise at equal distance from one another and those next to the edges of the walk to be four (4) inches from their respective edges and all to be placed upon a firm foundation and the material in said sidewalk to be of a quality acceptable to the street commissioner of said village and the work upon the same to be done to his satisfaction. The side of the walk towards the centre of the street to be eight (8) feet from the front line of the lots upon the side of the street upon which it may be built, and said sidewalk to be constructed to a grade line established by said village council.

That for the purpose of constructing said sidewalk the said village council have levied and assessed a tax of forty-two (42) cents per front foot upon all the lands hereinafter described and the owners thereof, and delivered to the undersigned a warrant for the collection of said tax.

That the description of the lands in said village fronting upon said sidewalk and the names of the owners thereof, which are known as well as the lands whose owners are not known are as follows:

Names	Lot	Blk	St. Hilaire
Annie G. Holmes	1	40	"
H. E. Ives	2	"	"
Bjerk & Tedford	3	"	"
	4	"	"
R. K. Brown	5	"	"
Mrs. E. L. Elkhoff	6	"	"
Minneapolis Bre. Co.	7	"	"
J. J. Branum	8	"	"
C. A. Chelin	9	"	"
P. G. Paradis	10	"	"
M. E. Bjerk	11	"	"
E. M. Hoff	12	"	"

Now, therefore, the owners of the aforesaied lands are hereby notitied and requested to pay the said tax in labor, material or money on or before the 30th day of June 1900 and the labor and material offered in payment of such taxes are to be such as may be required by the street commissioner of said village and done and furnished to his satisfaction.

Dated at St. Hilaire, Minn., this 7th day of June 1900.
S. HARRIS,
Street Commissioner.

—Go to Rapp & Post for harness and harness supplies.

SIDEWALK NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota have ordered the construction of a new sidewalk on the south side of Second street from Broadway to Railroad avenue in said village to be six (6) feet in width constructed of dressed and sized two (2) inch pine planks six (6) inches wide placed flat wise and firmly spiked upon four (4) sleepers or stringers of Norway pine two (2) inches thick and six (6) inches wide, placed edgewise at equal distance from one another and those next to the edges of the walk to be four (4) inches from their respective edges and all to be placed upon a firm foundation and the material in said sidewalk to be of a quality acceptable to the street commissioner of said village and the work upon the same to be done to his satisfaction. The side of the walk towards the center of the street to be six (6) feet from the front line of the lots upon the side of the street upon which it may be built, and said sidewalk to be constructed to a grade line established by said village council.

That for the purpose of constructing said side walk, the said village council have levied and assessed a tax of thirty-three (33) cents per front foot upon all the lands hereinafter described and the owners thereof, and delivered to the undersigned a warrant for the collection of said tax.

That the description of the lands in said village fronting upon said sidewalk and the names of the owners thereof which are known are as follows:

Mrs. Anna Abrahamson, Lot 12, Block 37, St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

Now, therefore, the owners of the aforesaid lands are hereby notified and required to pay the said taxes in labor, material or money on or before the 30th day of June 1900 and the labor and material offered in payment of such taxes are to be such as may be required by the street commissioner of said village and done and furnished to his satisfaction.

Dated at St. Hilaire, Minn., this 7th day of June 1900.
S. HARRIS,
Street Commissioner.

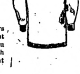
Charles H. Marks, while acting in the capacity of nurse at the Second Davison Hospital of the Fifty Army Corps at Santiago de Cuba, used a few bottles of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhoea and found it to work like a charm. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly
PROF. J. Q. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and Optician.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.



We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right
And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries
Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware
We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

—Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of
Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO Buy
Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

Her Heart's Secret

Or Under a Spell.

By JEAN WARNER.

CHAPTER XXX—(Continued.)

A voice, low and sweet as the murmur of the western wind, floated through one of the western corridors, in the notes of a well-remembered song:

"Thou in the sunlight,
And I in the shade:
But, ah! by the sunlight
The shadow is made.
Thine be the gladness,
And mine be the gloom,
For Love, though thy triumph,
Is only my doom!

In silence and shadow,
Through weal and through ill,
My fate is to love
And to follow thee still.
Unseen and unknown
Will I cling to thy heart,
For fetters have bound me
That death cannot part."

Like one spellbound, Herbert listened, and then, letting the portfolio he held fall from his grasp, he turned swiftly down the corridor whom which the song-notes seemed to come.

It led to a sort of conservatory, which had, a few months ago, been one of the madam's pet follies, but whose novelty had at present faded away before some still more charming caprice.

It was a mammoth aquarium—the stone walls overgrown with sea-mosses and trailing water plants; the light, coming faintly through shades of sea-green glass; the central fountain sending up its pearly spray from a miniature lake, on whose bosom the Victoria Regia spread its mighty leaves, and Egyptian lilies floated in spotless beauty.

The entrance to this enchanted nook was low and rugged, like the opening of an ocean cave. Huge sea-shells surrounded the tiny lake, and the moss-grown rocks dipped into the crystal waves.

Seated on one of these rocks was a form that seemed the fitting guardian of the fairy scene.

Her filmy white robes were looped with clusters of white lilies over an underskirt of pale sea-green; her floating hair a cloud of golden light, was wreathed with sea-grasses and waxen water plants, while the jewels encircling her snowy throat and arms glittered like the spray of the ocean as it breaks in mid-air.

She was masked, but the form, the hair, the voice, made Herbert's heart bound within him, and, springing forward, he whispered:

"Sybil, Sybil! my lost darling! Have I found you at last?"

She started, trembled and recoiled from him; then, as if conquering a momentary terror, spoke, in a low, constrained voice:

"You are bold, sir knight—over bold. I am no Sybil, but Lurline, the water siren. They who brave an entrance to my ocean kingdom, do it at their cost!"

"Has the cost not been great enough already? he murmured, despairingly. "Sybil, Sybil! torture me no longer by these masks and mysteries! Call yourself what you will—spirit, mortal, angel, or demon—you are to me, you can only be to me, the woman I love, with a love that has changed my life, blasted my future, broken my heart!"

"No, no!" she whispered, in tremulous accents; "not that—not that! The heart never breaks—never breaks. It can suffer all things, even the death-pang itself, and still beat on. Oh, there are those who carry hearts that even in such scenes as these quiver with death-throes, and yet cannot die."

"Do you, too, suffer?" he asked, moved by the passionate sorrow of her tone. "Oh, my love—my lost love—what need is there of this pain, this sorrow, this mystery? Why do you thus madden me by brief gleams of hope, that only serve to darken more cruelly the night of despair? I am like one tossing on a sea of doubt. All things have failed me—faith, hope, courage, reason, energy—all but love. Love, that ignis fatuus that leads me on deeper and deeper into the darkness—love that I cannot turn from—that I must still pursue!"

"Is it indeed so?" was the low, quivering answer. "Alas, alas! Must your darkened life, too, atone? I—I—oh, I would have spared you this—Herbert, Herbert! I would have spared you this! I thought, I hoped, that mine alone would be the sorrow, the doom!"

"Sybil! Now it is indeed Sybil who speaks!" was his rapturous rejoinder. "Oh, Sybil, my beloved one, only trust me with your sorrow! Tear from your life the mystery that enshrouds it! Let the eye of love read all! In death or in life, you are—"

"Mine!" said a fierce voice at his side, and a tall form, shrouded in the flowing garments of a monk, loomed up behind the shrinking Lurline. "Again, again? Girl, girl, have I not warned you that—that—"

He stopped as if checked with rage.

"Go, go!" she pleaded, turning to Herbert—"go, for God's sake, and leave us!"

"Never, never! till I know the mystery of your fate!" was the determined answer. "Never, until I know who it is that dares to stand between me and the woman I love!"

"Do you ask who?" cried the monk, tearing the mask from his face, and disclosing the features of the one man on earth whom he remembered as an enemy—the antagonist whom he had encountered three years before at Sunset Hill. "Traitor and robber that you are, would you steal from me the only treasure I have left? Begone, or I will forget myself and be again a madman! Begone! I tell you she is mine!"

"Sybil!" exclaimed Herbert, turning his white face toward her, as if he heard neither the insults nor the menaces of the other—"speak to me, Sybil. Choose between us—for, by heaven, no man shall force me again from your side! Speak to me, and tell me, if you can, to go from you forever. I swear to you that if I leave you now, my mad pursuit will end, my dreams be o'er! I bid farewell to love and hope forever! Choose betwen us. Your word alone will decide my fate—your word alone!"

"Farewell!" she whispered. "It is all that I can say. Father, father! See, I do not falter, though you bid me rend my heart in twain. My own beloved, farewell! Farewell to—to hope, and love forever!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

Gathering Clouds.

The snows of December were whitening the turrets and gables of Clive Towers; the forest was a bleak wilderness, through whose mazes the winter winds sighed and raved; the cozy little cottage of Dr. Bond was almost lost sight of in the white waste surrounding it.

But though the diamond panes of his little shady window were well-nigh covered with snow wreaths, and his one small factotum—a crisp-haired mulatto boy—was making futile efforts to shovel a passage way to the gate, the doctor's serenity was undisturbed, and he sat before a huge fire with a large medical book in his hand, the perusal of which appeared to afford him perfect satisfaction.

"Seasonable weather," said the doctor, rising at last, and rubbing his hands together before the cheery fire. "White winters are not the kind to fill doctor's pockets. Good, fierce, snapping frosts strike sense into people. They take to red flannel and thick shoes. Then, naturally, you can't persuade man, woman or child what a cold is, until Jack Frost nips their noses for them, and gives them his promise to pay— Hello!"—a horseman, stopping at the gate, interrupted the old man's satisfied revery—"who is fool enough to turn out such a day as this? Young Grey, the lawyer's son! Must be a matter of life and death that brings such a steady-going fellow as he is through such a storm. Come in, sir—come in! Don't stand shaking your self all day on the door-mat. There's no woman here to look sour at a sprinkling of snow in the hall. Come in to the fire right away. There's liquor on the sideboard yonder; but I forgot—you don't drink. All the better for you in the long run. Sit down, then, and get warm. Don't say a word until you are warm through."

"I'm not at all cold now, sir," answered Laurence, as he obeyed the old doctor's hospitable injunctions. "I came up home for the holidays last evening, and have taken the earliest opportunity—"

"Of paying your respects to me, eh?" said the doctor, grimly. "Come, young man, out with it. What's the matter? I don't doubt your friendly feelings; but they wouldn't have brought you out for a social call on a day like this."

"I was up at the Towers last night," continued Laurence, gravely, "and I could not help noticing the change in Mr. Clive. My deep interest in all that concerns Herbert and"—he paused ere he added—"his sister, makes me, perhaps, unduly observing; but it seems to me, sir, that he is much broken within the last few months—so much so that I determined to consult you as to the propriety of informing Herbert of his father's condition at once."

"Humph!" muttered the old doctor, giving Laurence a keen look over his spectacles: "do you happen to know where Herbert is, young man?"

"I have not heard of him for several months," answered Laurence: "but I suppose a letter addressed to his bankers in Paris will find him."

"No person else has heard of him for several months," continued the doctor, drily. "He ought to be at home now, sir—he ought to be at home. It's none of my business, for Robert Clive has never consulted me either as to his health or prudence—but he's breaking fast. He has never been the same since the wreck of the Ocean Queen. He first weakened then, body and mind, and he's been weakening ever since. That one week during which he thought his son was lost, broke his spirit forever. Yes, sir—yes," added the doctor, abstractly resting his hand on the ivory miniature he always wore hidden in his breast; "let skeptics talk as they please, a just God rules the world, and, sooner or later, His justice triumphs over all things."

"Miss Fannie"—the young man's hesitating mention of her name was not lost on his listener—"Miss Fannie tells me her father keeps to his room nearly all the time—that for days together she never sees him. She seemed very much depressed, and anxious for her brother's return. Poor girl!" added Laurence with a sigh; "sorrow is new to her. She needs a friend."

"Where's that young jackanapes she is going to marry?" asked the doctor, abruptly. "What's his name—Wood, Grove, Forest? Oh, yes, Forest. Where is he?"

"Fenton Forest," answered the young man, somewhat stiffly. "He is off on duty just now."

"Glad to hear it. Best to keep him on duty," said the doctor, gruffly. "I hope he'll stay on duty for the remainder of his life. Women are fools—the best of them—when it comes to choosing a mate for life they look at the fine feathers first. A pair of shoulder-straps and a dozen gilt buttons have made many a wretched match. Well, it's none of my business, of course, but I like that little girl and her brother, and if there's to be a crash, I'd like to have them stand clear. But I don't know—I'm not much of a Bible scholar, but there is a verse you may have heard of, keeps running in my head." And, with a solemnity that puzzled Laurence, the old man laid his hand upon his arm, and added, impressively: "The sins of the father shall be visited upon the children, even to the third and fourth generation." I'll go up to the Towers this evening and see Fannie—see Robert Clive, if he will let me," the doctor said, more cheerfully, as Laurence rose to go, "and I'll give you my opinion then about writing to Herbert. No use alarming the boy unnecessarily; trouble will come to him fast enough."

"Trouble will come to him fast enough!" These words, and the doctor's solemn Scriptural quotation, haunted Laurence Grey, as he rode homeward through the bleak winter woods, past the white wastes of meadow land, the shrouded gardens and deserted lawns of Clive Towers—the Eden of his boyhood's and manhood's dreams.

Only a few months ago, and the sun light shimmered through the rich foliage of spreading trees upon springing fountains and blooming flowers. Only a few months ago birds warbled their love songs in the fragrant shadows of the grove the brooklet laughed in the sunbeam; a summer sky smiled upon a summer world. Young hearts bounded joyously to the whispers of love and hope; young voices blended in gay song and merry laughter; young lives, bright with beautiful promise, made these still and lifeless paths a paradise.

Now, Laurence Grey was not a romantic dreamer, but the dark, heavy snow clouds, hanging like a pall around Clive Towers; the dead silence that reigned over lawn, the garden and terrace; the shadow that dwelt within—all seemed ominous of coming evil.

He reached home. Miss Marian was watching for him at the window. He little knew the secrets of his sister's envious heart, or he would never have confided to her the object of his mission. He little guessed the secret joy and triumph that filled her breast at sight of the gathering clouds that caused him such generous and heartfelt pain.

And so he told her, without reserve, the substance of this interview with Dr. Bond, adding that he feared some heavy trouble was impending over Clive Towers—some secret sorrow crushing its master to the earth.

Miss Marian listened with the greatest apparent sympathy. It was sad for poor Fannie, very; but she had suspected for some time there was a skeleton hidden in Clive Towers—some trouble known to none.

"However that may be, sister," interrupted Laurence, gravely, "it is our duty to keep all we have heard sacred, as though entrusted to us under the seal of friendship. There is a poisoned sting on the tongues of gossips that inflames every wound."

"Dear me, brother!" exclaimed Miss Marian, indignantly, "how could you suppose for one moment that I would gossip about anything which concerns poor, dear Fan?"

Nevertheless, when Miss Felicia dropped in that evening, after the storm, the dark allusion of Miss Marian to the trouble at Clive Towers harrowed up her "recollections to such an extent that she could talk of nothing else.

She was compelled to drop in at the sewing society, on her way home, and relieve her mind by a few moments' chat with several of the oldest inhabitants, who shook their heads gravely, and "always thought Robert Clive was a-hiding something behind that solemn face he wore."

Sybil's strange coming, and strange disappearance; Herbert's sudden departure and prolonged absence—all were brought forward to swell the tide of gossip that, before night, ran high and dark against the unhappy Clives.

Something was wrong at Clive Towers—something that kept its master a gloomy misanthrope, in his secluded study, and made its heir a homeless wanderer in foreign lands. Something was wrong, rumor whispered, darkly—very wrong.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Fall of the Mighty.

The winter sunset was burning over the snow-clad hills, and touching with its lurid glow the turrets and windows of Clive Towers, as Dr. Bond mounted his sturdy little pony for his promised visit.

It was no very pleasant duty to him. Robert Clive and he had never been congenial spirits, but in the children whom he had watched blossoming into a beautiful youth, and ripening into a promising maturity, the good old doctor felt an almost paternal interest, that was only intensified by his knowledge of the dark shadow that lowered over their young lives—the wrong for which they must innocently suffer—the injustice for which they must atone.

As he rode along over the snowy hills his thoughts wandered backward through the clouds and sunshine of forty years, and a strange conviction came over him that he was determined to unravel the web of mystery that surrounded the story of his early love.

He was the chosen champion of Sybil Lee—the Sybil who, perhaps, from a brighter world, was watching the fortunes of her children, and smiling as she saw, with a clearer vision than that of earth, how all things work, slowly yet surely, to a rightful end.

Fannie was waiting for him, standing in the lofty doorway, guarded by the "lions couchant," that was the armorial crest of the old baronial Clives.

She was paler and a trifle sadder than of yore, but far more beautiful. The shadow of sorrow that darkened her laughing eye, and rested upon lip and brow, gave a new charm to her girlish loveliness.

In her soft, flowing crimson dress, with a few white snowberries twined in her waving hair, and a single pearl clasping the delicate lace at her throat, she looked so fair and winsome that the doctor thought he had never seen a sweeter picture, more fittingly framed by the stately grandeur of a noble home.

"Oh, doctor, I am so glad you have come!" she said, eagerly, as she grasped his hand. "Papa won't consent to see a physician, though I know"—the dark eyes filled—"I know he is very unwell. I have been so wretched and anxious about him, and I did not know what to do, until last night, when—when Laurence came, and he said he would get you to come, and make a call as a friend. Only as a friend; for both papa and Mrs. Wyllis say that he is not sick. They will not hear of a doctor visiting him."

"They!" echoed the doctor, drily; "they! I thought you were the the mistress of Clive Towers."

"Mrs. Wyllis has all the influence with papa now," answered Fannie, sadly. "He seems to trust to no one else. Sometimes I do not see him for days together. Herbert is away, and Fenton, and I—I—Oh, doctor," she concluded, with a burst of tears, "I am so lonely and miserable and wretched!"

"There there!" said the doctor, hurriedly, "don't cry, my dear—don't cry. I'll see your father, and if there's much the matter, we'll have Herbert home at once. Don't cry! There, there! be a woman, and not a baby. So, Mrs. Wyllis has all the influence? Humph! A pantheress in petticoats, if ever there was one. Been waiting to take a spring this twenty years, and, I reckon, has done it at last."

The concluding portion of the doctor's speech was delivered entirely to himself, as he followed Fannie through the richly-carpeted halls and ante-rooms that led to her father's study.

The room was already darkened, though the last rays of sunset had not yet faded in the west; the carved lamp that stood on the marble center table was turned down to a feeble glimmer; and in his easy chair before the hearth, sat Robert Clive, with bowed head and folded arms.

As the door opened, a slender, black-robed figure moved noiselessly out of the shadow at the farther end of the room, and Mrs. Wyllis faced the visitors.

"Papa, here is Dr. Bond," said Fannie, regardless of the housekeeper's murmured remarks that Mr. Clive had requested her to invite all visitors into the parlor, as he was desirous of being alone. "Papa, you know dear mamma's friend, and our old friend, Dr. Bond?"

Robert Clive raised his head slowly, and, prepared as the doctor was, for a change, he was, for the moment, shocked by the haggard countenance, the hollow eyes, the worn and aged expression of the man who, but a few months before had been seen in all the vigorous prime of manhood.

"Dr. Bond!" he repeated, rising, with a feeble assumption of his former stateliness. "Of course, my dear, I am pleased to see Dr. Bond. Take a seat, doctor. It is very—very cold without. Mrs. Wyllis, a little more light, if you please. And perhaps the doctor will have something warm after his ride. It is very cold this evening—very, very cold!"

He sank back in his chair, rubbing his wasted hands together before the fire, as if he would infuse some of its glow and fervor into his weakened frame.

"I stepped in to see how all were," said the doctor, cheerily. "This sort of weather makes a dried-up old bachelor long for a glimpse of bright home fires and glad young faces. Miss Fannie don't look as blooming as I have seen her of yore. You must keep an eye on your roses, my dear. They ought to bloom both winter and summer, on such cheeks as yours."

"Miss Fannie confines herself too much," interposed Mrs. Wyllis, softly. "I often tell her a brisk walk through the woods would be good for her health. The young need change, recreation, excitement."

"Yes, yes," said Mr. Clive, nervously; "Fannie needs a change. I have been thinking that she ought to go to town for the winter. Mrs. Wyllis tells me that it is lonely for a young girl here."

"Go to town without you, papa?" exclaimed Fannie, in dismay. "Go away and leave you here alone? Oh, you surely do not mean it! I could never leave you here alone!"

"Wyllis would give me all the attention I require," answered Mr. Clive, in a constrained voice. "It is quite unnecessary to think of me. I am quite well—very well! Mrs. Wyllis, as you know, my dear, attends perfectly to my comfort and well being. There is no use in your remaining here—none at all!"

"When did you hear from that wandering son of yours?" asked the doctor, changing the conversation, in pity for the young girl, whose quivering lip and tearful eyes showed how keenly she felt her father's words. "It is time he was thinking of a homeward journey."

"Herbert? When did we hear from Herbert?" repeated Mr. Clive, thoughtfully. "Do you remember when we heard from Herbert, Mrs. Wyllis? Take a seat; I did not observe you were standing. When was it we heard from my boy?"

"About two months ago, I think, sir," said Mrs. Wyllis, whose light eyes emitted gleams of crafty triumph whenever her master thus referred the conversation to her. "You remember, it was a very short note from Paris, stating he was about to travel East."

"Yes, yes; I remember; a very short note—very short, indeed. We have not heard from him since then."

"I should advise you and Miss Fannie here to run over and look him up," said the doctor, as, after a few moments' longer stay, he rose to take his leave. "The trip would do you both good, and so would the change," he added, with a glance toward the figure in the shadow—the noiseless woman, who, with her mittened hands folded one above the other, saw the visitor out, and then returned to her post in the darkened room, where Robert Clive again bowed his head before the fire, like one stricken by sorrow or shame.

"You haven't taken your tonic, sir," whispered the crafty temptress. "It is past the time. I was about to hand it to you when Miss Fannie insisted upon introducing the doctor, much against my remonstrances; for I knew you wished for no professional attention at all."

"Certainly not—certainly not!" he answered, sharply. "Admit no such visitors again, Mrs. Wyllis, no matter who introduces them. Hand me the drug. It is the best physician, after all. It soothes body and mind, heart and soul. A potent nervine—a potent nervine. That is all—yet how it aids me to bear with life!"

She handed him a silver box that contained a white, crystalline powder.

He swallowed a portion of it eagerly, and then asked:

"Has the doctor gone?"

"He is talking to Miss Fannie in the parlor," answered Mrs. Wyllis. "Poor girl! it is so lonesome here for her now that she is glad even of an old man's company."

"Yes, yes, she must go away—must go away," repeated Robert Clive. "Make arrangements so that she can go to town immediately, Wyllis. We must save her, no matter what happens. She is young and—and innocent. She knows nothing of injustice and wrong."

"I must beg you again to be careful, sir," said the housekeeper, in a warning whisper.

"Careful, woman—careful?" he cried, angrily. "Am I not careful? Has not my whole life been a carful, studied lie? Has not every look, and word, and gesture for the last five-and-twenty years been careful? Did I ever once, even to the wife of my bosom, the children of my love, lay aside the mask that guarded me from their glances of tender watchfulness? Did not my gentle Agnes die on my bosom, believing me an honest and honorable man? Have not my children grown into manhood and womanhood honored and courted as the children of Robert Clive? And you speak to me of prudence now! Am I going mad, think you? Do I need a keeper for the secret that has been corroding my heart, eating out the core of every joy however pure, every success, however merited, every bliss, triumph and memory for five-and-twenty years? Am I likely to free the monster now?"

"I trust not, sir, now that all danger is over," was the softly-purred reply. "But the first night after the tidings of Mr. Herbert's loss, when—"

"When you saw the proud man laid low, the strong man crushed?" continued Robert Clive, whose cheek began to flush and eye to brighten under the subtle influence of the drug to which he had become a slave—"when you came to me as an evil genius, and—"

"Saved you from yourself, sir," she added—"saved your children, saved your name. What would repentance have availed you then? What would it avail you now? Your path was chosen five-and-twenty years ago. It is too late to retrace it now."

"Too late! aye, too late!" repeated the wretched man. "I must keep on now until the end—the end. But the dead man's curse is falling upon me and mine. It is falling, slowly, slowly. I see it in my daughter's fading cheek; I feel it in my silent home; I recognize it in the doom that hangs over my silent house, darkening, darkening, day by day. Do you remember the night, Wyllis—the night that the old man died? How the wind shrieked around the lonely mansion? How the November rain beat against the window panes? How the storm raved and sobbed without, as if Nature were bemoaning the coming wrong? There were demons around that night—demons who had broken their chains, and roamed the earth to tempt and destroy."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Smooth Brome-Grass.

A circular from the department of agriculture says: Smooth brome (bromus inermis) has been known in Europe for over 130 years. The early agriculturists did not consider it of any value because of its creeping rootstocks, thus resembling couch grass. In 1884, however, Stebler and Shroeter demonstrated by experiments conducted for thirty years at Magocs, Hungary, that it had the power to withstand long periods of drouth when all other grasses succumbed. These experiments resulted in introducing the grass into cultivation in Hungary, where it still retains the name of Hungarian brome-grass. Its introduction into the United States must have taken place about the same time, for we find the seed is offered for distribution in Bulletin 22 of the California Experiment Station, issued Nov. 5, 1884, and the statement made that "our experience indicates that it will do well here either with or without irrigation." Since then the experiment stations of Colorado, Minnesota, Manitoba, North Dakota, South Dakota and the different grass stations of the agricultural department, Washington, D. C., have conducted extensive experiments and all speak of it in the highest terms.

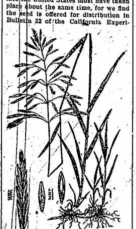

Fig. 20.—Smooth brome-grass showing rootstocks, culm, head, spikelet, and parts of flower.

Smooth brome-grass is a native of Europe and Asia, ranging from France eastward to Siberia, growing along roadsides, river banks, borders of fields and woods, and upon sterile hillsides and pastures. It is a vigorous, hardy perennial with strong, creeping rootstocks, smooth, upright, leafy stems, one to four feet high, and loose, open panicles, or "seed heads," four to eight inches long. In a few years it forms a very tough sod, soon crowding out other grasses, clovers and weeds. Its remarkable drouth-resisting qualities have proved it to be the most valuable grass for dry regions where other grasses could hardly exist.

As it is thoroughly permanent and grows with wonderful rapidity, producing heavy crops and luxuriant pasture, its value to the farmers of dry regions cannot be over-estimated. All kinds of stock eat it with relish and the chemical analyses made show that it is rich in flesh-forming ingredients, much more so than timothy. It is very hardy and not injured by severe spring and fall frosts when once established. As it starts to grow very early in the spring before any of the grasses upon the native prairies show any signs of life, and remains green and succulent far into November, it will supply the long-felt want of early spring and late fall pastures.

Horticultural Observations.

It will pay the ordinary farmer to grow only well tried fruits. He has not the time to experiment with new things, or at least he will not take the time. Avoid high-sounding names, and accept as established only those that are extensively grown. We would not give this advice to the professional fruit grower. He has time to give to some new things, and a man to be progressive must be looking after the new things as well as the old.

A correspondent of The Farmers' Review recently wrote that he had no faith in spraying; that if the birds were protected there would be no need of spraying. The attention of the correspondent should be called to the fact that the prime reason for spraying is to prevent fungous attacks, such as those producing the apple leaf scab. Birds can have no effect in checking troubles of that kind. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture was first tried in Bordeaux, France, to keep the boys from stealing the grapes. The owner of the vineyard found that it also saved his grapes from mildew. Now birds have no effect on the mildew. So it is evident that the preservation of the birds does not remove the reasons for spraying.

According to the laws in several of our states trees and plants can be only sold from inspected nurseries. It is well that our readers should understand what this means. It is not a positive guaranty that the plants purchased are free from disease and insects. The state entomologist does not wish it understood that every tree and shrub has been inspected. The method of inspection is rather general. The inspectors pass through the nursery, going across it diagonally several times. They inspect a few trees in each row of trees, and it is presumed that if San Jose scale exists there at all it will be met with. Yet if the scale were on a single tree it might easily be missed. This is no fault of the inspectors. The work is too great to be accomplished in any other way with the force of inspectors that the state has provided. Yet the inspection has this advantage over no inspection, that it stimulates the owner of each nursery to make a more thorough inspection than can be made by the state inspectors. Doubtless, in every case before the coming of the inspectors, the owners of the nurseries make a close inspection of every part of their nurseries, if not of every tree, for they can not afford to have the inspectors find the evidences of scale and blights. There is no doubt that the inspection law is bearing good fruit.

Blackleg in Nebraska.

The Division of Animal Pathology of the Nebraska Experiment Station of the University of Nebraska has been busy since the first of the year in the distribution of the blackleg vaccine, in which it is co-operating with the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture. The increase in the distribution is shown in the fact that during the year 1899, the division furnished blackleg vaccine to 203 applicants in fifty-six counties, the total number of doses being 23,256. Since the 1st of January, 1900, the division has furnished the vaccine to 211 applicants in forty-seven counties, the number of doses aggregating 15,000. In the corresponding period of 1899 twenty-three applicants received 1,500 doses, or one-tenth as much as the present season. This greater demand for vaccine is due rather to an increased knowledge of and confidence in the remedy than to an increase in the prevalence of the disease.

The records show that the calls have come from persons that used the vaccine last year and from their neighbors. The reports of the applicants show that it has reduced the mortality, absolute satisfaction having been given in over 96 per cent of the cases. This work is being taken up very enthusiastically by farmers and stockmen over the state. It has been one of the very important subjects that have been discussed at farmers' institutes by this division of the station. The division at these institutes explained the process of the manufacture of the vaccine and how it is applied. There is now ready for publication by the station a bulletin which treats on the subject in a popular way, dealing with the age and species of animals attacked, the cause of the disease, disposition of the blackleg carcass, symptoms, post-mortem appearances, methods of treatment, and a full discussion of what is regarded as the only reliable and economical method, vaccination.

Improvement in Swine.

The term improvement is only relative. There is no such thing as the improvement of swine in the abstract. When we speak of the improvement of swine we mean in the relation of the hog to man. In the relation of the hog to himself there has been no improvement, but rather an absolute deterioration. Let the human race disappear from the earth at this time and the hog would be in bad shape to survive. At least this would be true of the improved hog. He would fall a prey to hunger, for he could not hunt his own food except under the most favorable circumstances; if any wild animal got after him he would be unable to fight, for his tusks have been bred out. Even as relates to man the improvement made by one generation is not the improvement desired by another. There was a time when bigness counted for nearly everything in the improved hog. Now the buyers want quick-grown hogs of medium weight. The next improvement will probably be more lean meat in the hog, because the buyers taboo the fat. The next generation will see new standards of improvement established. The present lines of breeding will have to be modified from year to year as demands change.

Sneezeweed.

This is a smooth, angular, branching perennial, 1 to 3 feet high, with rather thick lance-shaped leaves, and a large number of showy yellow flowers, which do not appear until autumn. It grows commonly in moist ground from Connecticut to Michigan and Illinois, and southward to the Gulf.

The whole plant, especially the flower, is bitter and more or less acrid and pungent. Sheep, cattle and horses that are unfamiliar with the plant are often poisoned with it when driven to localities where it abounds. As a rule, these animals avoid it, but it is claimed that they sometimes develop a taste for it and are killed by eating it in large quantity. The poison exists principally in the flowers. The young plants appear to be only moderately dangerous. In the mature ones the amount of poison varies greatly in the same field.

Fig. 21.—Sneezeweed (Helenium autumnale), one-third natural size.

Sneezeweed may be best kept in check by cultivating the ground or by mowing the plants before the time of flowering.

Space for Hens.—All of our readers are familiar with the advice not to crowd hens into space only large enough for half their number. On the other hand it is sometimes a dertiment too give them too much space, when that means giving them access to all the grain bins and corn cribs. True, at this time of year the fowls will be more eager to get grass and insects than grain, but a little later on they are likely to fall back on the grain bins as a base of supplies.

Land Misapplied.

Heman—Ah, what a fine stretch of land over there!

Niblack—Beautiful! But what a shame to put it under cultivation! It would make such an ideal golf links!—Boston Transcript.

Revolution in Water Travel.

Experiments have proven that vessels, fitted with propellers which imitate the fish's fin, develope remarkable power. It will cause a revolution in water travel. Men gradually learn that Nature's ways are best. One cause of the remarkable success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the fact that it is a sure cure for constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia and biliousness.

Plainly Impossible.

Young Mr. Spoonamore (who has just been accepted)—But what will your father say, darling? You know he doesn't like me any too well."

The Young Woman—Well, you can't expect me to use the exact language in which papa will express himself when he hears it.—Chicago Tribune.

Straight Road To Health

Is by the way of purifying the blood. Germs and impurities in the blood cause disease and sickness. Expelling these impurities removes the disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla does this and it does more. It makes the blood rich by increasing and vitalizing the red globules and giving it power to transmit to the organs, nerves and muscles the nutriment contained in digested food.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the Best Medicine Money Can Buy.

And He Was.

The latest contribution to the collection of curious epitaphs comes from Rutland, Vt., and expresses in an indirect but forceful manner the reputation of the deceased among the community in which he lived:

William Wilson.
Died October 4, 1896,
Aged 85 years.
The good die young.

Are You Using Allen's Foot-Ease?

It is the only cure for Swollen, Smarting, Burning, Sweating Feet, Corns and Bunions. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Wasn't Just Sure.

Sir William McCormac, the president of the Royal College of Surgeons of London, is at times quite absent-minded. He is an indefatigable worker, and often, to save time, when studying in his laboratory, has a light luncheon served there. Once his assistant heard him sigh heavily, and, looking up, saw the doctor glaring at two glass receptacles on the table.

"What is the matter, doctor?" asked one of the youngsters.

"Nothing in particular," was the reply, "only I am uncertain whether I drank the beef tea or that compound I am working on."—Argonaut.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes.

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

The Farewell.

"Good-by," said the pale, determined man, as his wife flung her arms wildly about his neck and gave way to a flood of weeping.

"Do not go into unnecessary dangers," she said. "I know you will be brave and return with honors."

And he was gone. He was not off to war. No; he was a baseball umpire and he was leaving home for the opening game.—Philadelphia Nort hAmerican.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

Merely a Good Listener.

Miss Swelltop—Sister is so disappointed. She can't go to the opera tonight.

Miss Bluegore—Is she so ill as all that?

Miss Swellton—Oh, no; it is just a nervous affection of the throat. She's not really ill.

Miss Bluegore—Why can't she go, then?

Miss Swelltop—Why, goodness gracious! She can't speak above a whisper.—Philadelphia Press.

For What He Missed.

"Didn't I tell you that I didn't want any of your infernal grind around here?" shouted the irate citizen, as a hand-organ man stopped at the gate.

"Yes, you tella," was the reply.

"Then what are you doing here?"

"I'm here to no playee. No playee, 2 centa. Muchee playee, 1 centa. Bon! Good-bye!"

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Coin Values in France.

Referring to a remark as to the difficulty in distinguishing what silver has current value in France, a correspondent writes: "It may be of interest to your readers to know that all 5 franc pieces, whether French, Italian, Swiss or Belgian, have current value in France if coined since Dec. 23, 1865, and the 2 franc, 1 franc and 50-cent pieces coined since Jan. 1, 1869. Silver bearing the pope's head and Spanish silver have no currency in France."—Pearson's Weekly.

A woman's hair would soon look sweet if she tried to dress it with a honeycomb.

A Book of Choice Recipes

Sent free by Walter Baker & Co. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass. Mention this paper.

Mother Hubbard dresses ought to be economical; they so seldom get worn out.

The charm of beauty is beautiful hair. Secure it with PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM.
HINDERCORNS, the best cure for corns. 15cts.

A money drawer—the dentist's forceps.

Indians and detectives long for a happy hunting ground.

25 CTS
PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION
25 CTS

FOR WOMEN AND HOME

ITEMS OF INTEREST FOR MAIDS AND MATRONS.

Pique and Duck Costumes for Summer Wear—A Lace Bodice—Khaki Is Popular — The Latest Driving Coat — A Picturesque Batiste Frock.

Pique and Duck Costumes.

Pique and duck costumes are to be very fashionable this year, and the new designs are certainly charming. Many of the piques are light in weight and gracefully embellished with designs of embroidery. Colored pique and duck gowns are built in a variety of different colorings. A blue duck costume is made with a circular skirt and some slight fullness at the back. The sailor blouse is wide, and the tucker is of tucked muslin. Many of the smartest piques have the seams banded with a contrasting color. For example, a white pique has the seams banded with a narrow piece of red stitched with white, the Eton coat decorated with a red sailor collar with a band of white. Cotton canvases in all colors are in evidence. The delicate pastel colors are deemed very fashionable. One in pastel blue has a skirt laid in plaits, or rather shingles, that reach nearly to the line of the knee. The Eton coat opens in the front to reveal a waistcoat of white canvas buttoned with two rows of small gold buttons. The jacket is collarless and is ornamented with inch-wide bands two inches long, with pointed ends, that form a trimming, which follows the outline of the coat. The sleeves are plain, and the choker consists of finely tucked grass cloth. All of the striped piques make charming costumes and they are especially becoming to a stout figure. A simple but pretty black and white stripe has a plain skirt save for the plaited fans, which are set in all of the seams at the hem. The sailor blouse has a deep collar and a necktie of soft black silk, the girdle of the same material, the tucks of corded white muslin. Among the smartest costumes are those of pure white. The favorite model is built strictly on tailor lines, all the seams stitched several times. Butchers' linens are novel and bewitching. This fabric in dark blue, trimmed with light blue, constitutes an unusual frock. There is no light blue on the skirt except the heavy stitching. The underskirt is trimmed with a plaiting and the long tunic is buttoned in front with a row of small pearl buttons. The blouse has a jacket front. There is a deep sailor collar, made double, with the light blue over the dark blue. White duck makes the vest and choker. A model of red has a skirt made with clusters of little plaits in the sides. The short jacket has an inner vest of white, and stitched pieces of red ornament the biases.

Khaki Is Popular.

An undoubted authority writes from Paris that the khaki cloth is much in vogue and that it is used to build many of the chic racing costumes. An effective model of this strange but becoming material has a skirt which is laid in shingles. The bodice is of ecru lace mounted over black satin and held by a high plaited belt of the cloth, the sleeves of the material laid in shingles. White organdies trimmed with black lace are prominent among the thin costumes. The lace appears in wide insertions set in stripes all around the skirt and bodice between groups of fine tucks. Every possible phase of tucking, every conceivable mode of using lace is illustrated in the gowns this season. Some of the prettiest summer gowns are made of white nun's veiling, both in the fine sheer weaves and the variety called course veiling. Russian and cluny laces are especially effective as trimming when set in around the skirt above the hem in a deep, pointed design. Above this the skirt is a series of vertical bands, joined with an openwork stitch. Other white veiling gowns, with simple tucked skirts, are made very effective with a wide collar of embroidered white taffeta edged with applique lace. Organdy gowns are as elaborate as they are alluring. The pure white ones are especially beautiful. A lovely model just completed has a deep overskirt with bias lines of three widths of white satin ribbon ranging from one-quarter to one-half an inch in width. These groups meet down the front and back and form bias lines over the sides. The edge of the overdress has a deep accordion plaited flounce, finished by triple rows of satin ribbons. The bodice has a deep yoke simulated by narrow valenciennes and Swiss insertions over the top of the sleeves. The two kinds of insertion are joined by herringbone stitching. Over the shoulder is a deep bias stripe laid in a series of plaits, fichuwise, the lowest edge of this finished by a ribbon edged and lace trimmed ruffle or organdy. The waist band is of white satin.

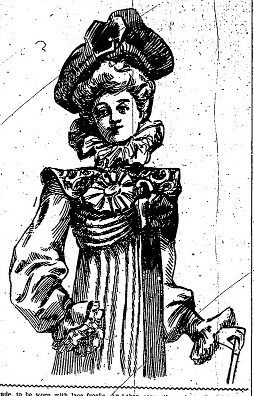
Batiste Frock.

A picturesque batiste frock has a skirt laid in clusters of fine plaits about the hips, which gives the effect of a full round skirt. The blouse is made with clusters of vertical tucks, and is half covered by a deep, round collar of embroidery. The sleeves are full, almost baggy, and fasten into a little lace cuff at the wrist. Shirring is seen everywhere, and there will be more of it as the season advances. A lovely model of white mousseline de soie has shirred sleeves that meet lace undersleeves. The bodice is built with a sleeveless, short bolero. The skirt is shirred on the side and trimmed about the bottom with squares of lace like those making the little jacket.

Turnover Bolero.

A high turnover is the latest feature of the bolero. A model of gray nun's veiling, made with a full, round skirt has a boloro laid in plaits that form inverted Vs in the back, which is cut up in the back to show a high belt of black satin. The sleeves and chemisette are of embroidered white muslin. The collar of this jacket is coat-shaped, high and turned over. The elbow sleeves are also finished with turnover cuffs, and the undersleeves are full. As the season advances the bolero is more popular than ever, and the majority of the summer frocks are built with them. Their variety is endless. Perhaps the latest phase of this accessory of fashion is one of rich brocade, to be worn with lace frocks. An effective ecru lace gown beruffled and inserted from hem to waistband has a short bolero of black and white brocade with an over pattern of gold. The girdle is of cloth of gold and a band of the gold embroidered with black and white French knots encircles the neck. Double-breasted boleros are also seen among the latest importations. A model of gray crape, the skirt hung from a yoke of ecru lace, has at the hem a trimming of three waving rows of puckered black satin ribbon. The bodice of gray accordion plaited mousseline de soie is finished by a bolero of ecru lace, fastened with two rows of small steel buttons.

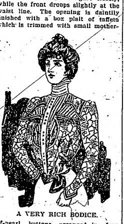
THE LATEST DRIVING COAT.



A Lace Bodice.

The beauty and richness of afternoon waists increase as the season grows older.

The bodice of an effective one is made of the heaviest taffeta silk and covered with renaissance lace. The back and sides fit the figure closely, while the front droops slightly at the waist line. The opening is daintily finished with a box plait of taffeta which is trimmed with small mother-of-pearl buttons arranged in four groups of four buttons each.



A VERY RICH BODICE.

A very charming feature of the waist is a deep yoke of taffeta laid in the tiniest box plaits and finished with lapels treated in the same way. The lapels are bordered with a narrow band of green-blue velvet, and there is a belt of the same ribbon at the waist finished with a stylish bow.

The sleeves are pointed over the hands and are also bordered with the ribbon velvet. The neck is completed with a stock of plaited taffeta, which rises in round points just back of the ears. The bodice is becoming to both old and young and can be worn with any handsome skirt at formal afternoon functions.

Guimpes, Sleeves, Fichus.

Yokes and guimpes play an important part in the new summer gowns, and the one idea seems to be at present to have them as novel and distinctive as possible. Very pretty ones made of lace are now for sale at the shops. They are well cut and quite desirable. The newest models in the silk gowns have guimpes and yokes made of black and white striped silk or of white chiffon with lines of black velvet.

Reference has already been made to the elbow sleeves, and the new double sleeve which are highly favored for thin gowns. The latter sleeve ends apparently at the elbow, but is really joined to an under-sleeve of a white fabric that extends down over the hand, and gives quite the effect of the old-fashioned under-sleeve. Made in Malines lace or any of the thin thread-laces it is very charming. In some of the foulard and India silk gowns the sprigged hand-embroidered and tambour under-sleeves have reappeared; anyone fortunate enough to have these sleeves on hand will now find a chance to use them again.

The fichu with its scarf ends will be a graceful feature of the summer styles. Whether the figure be slender or the reverse the fichu lends itself with equally good effect if only the wearer knows how to arrange it to her own advantage. The tall, slender woman may gracefully tie the scarf ends in soft ripples at the waist and then carry the ends to the back after crossing them, and knot them loosely behind. The short woman will draw the folds down very trimly to as much of a point as possible below the waist-line, fastening the one small knot with a long, slender pin and allowing the straight scarf ends to fall low on the skirt. The fichus may be of the material of the gown, or of white trimmed with ruffles of lace or plaitings of mousseline de soie. On some of the gowns that are made of silk these fichus are of liberty silk or chiffon. Soft, folded girdles and sashes will also play an important part in adding to the dainty, graceful and picturesque effect of the summer toilette.

OUR COOKING SCHOOL.

Calf's Liver with Fine Herbs.

Take a fresh calf's liver and cut it into slices of equal thickness and shape, dip the slices in seasoned flour and fry them in a rounding tablespoonful of butter until a dark brown. When done remove the liver from the pan, add a little more butter and a tablespoonful each of chopped parsley and onions and two tablespoonfuls of mushrooms. Fry the herbs until done, add a tablespoonful of flour, moisten with a coffee cup of stock, if you have it; not, with warm water, and when a sauce of the right consistency is formed put in the liver and let it warm through; season with salt, pepper and a little lemon juice and serve very hot.

Stuffed Turnips.

Select one quart of medium sized turnips; peel and boil them in salted water until tender, drain, cut a slice from the top of each, scoop out half the middle with a teaspoon, mash the part taken out, with salt, pepper, butter and the yolk of an egg, and fill the turnips with the mixture. Put back the slices cut off, brush over with the beaten white of an egg, set them in a baking dish and brown in a hot oven. Serve hot.

Eggs, Newport Style.

Soak one pint of bread crumbs in one pint of milk; beat eight eggs very light and mix with the bread crumbs. Have ready a soucepan in which you have melted two tablespoonfuls of butter and pour in the egg mixture; season, as the eggs are scrambled, with salt and peper. Cook as quickly as possible without burning. Serve on a hot platter and garnish with small triangles of buttered toast.

Doughnuts.

One pound of sugar, yolks of four eggs, one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of molasses. Mix together; add one pint of sour milk or buttermilk, one teaspoonful of soda in a little water, and enough flour to stiffen into dough of moderate stiffness.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Rainbows in the eyes indicate love in the heart.

An empty purse is responsible for some matrimony failures.

Unless a man keeps moving the world will soon throw him down.

You can seldom judge a man by his actions when he is away from home.

A gem is not polished without rubbing—nor is a man perfected without trials.

Every time a woman loses ninety-eight cents she worries a dollar's worth.

A married woman says that dead letters are those a wife gives her husband to mail.

Sleep is said to be a great beautifier. No wonder St. Louis is noted for its handsome policemen.

A man isn't necessarily intoxicated because he mistakes one of the new spring bonnets for a flower garden.

The man who permits himself to be baffled by an adverse current will never make much headway in the voyage of life.

A Timely Observation.

Myer—"Those chorus girls are certainly well trained. They keep step in such excellent time."

Gyer—"Oh, that's easily accounted for. They have clocks in their hosiery."

THE SIOUX GHOST DANCE

Indians Give Up Looking for a Messiah.

Ghost dancing among the Sioux Indians, which led to such fierce battles with the whites in years gone by, has died out and the noble red man no longer looks for the coming of a Messiah who would bring dead Indians to life, reincarnate the buffalo and deer and effectually dispose of the white population of the earth. Ghost dancing, according to one who has made this custom a study, is nothing more nor less than an adaptation of the frenzy dances of the whirling dervishes of Turkey and Egypt, an exercise undertaken for the purpose of placing the physical being in a state of exaltation wherein the spirit gains intimate communion with the dead and with the Messiah. It is a curious fact, attested by the better educated Indians, that the idea of an Indian Messiah was an adoption of the Christian idea of the Savior, doubtless traceable to the teachings of the early missionaries. The expected advent of an Indian Messiah has been among the traditions of the Indians of North America almost from the beginning of their contact with the whites, and when the failure of crops in 1889 and 1890 left the Indians without the subsistence upon which they depended—the government failed to furnish all of the supplies demanded—their minds naturally turned to the thoughts of the Messiah's advent.

In the summer of 1890 the idea became widespread and was followed soon after by the announcement that the Messiah had actually come. Twenty miles from the Pine Ridge agency about 2,000 Indians gathered, many of them belonging to the band of the famous old medicine man, Sitting Bull. They believed the Indian millennium would come with the next spring, when the new grass appeared. Soldiers were hurried from all parts of the country. They herded the Indians into their agencies and pursued the wandering bands of fanatics into the Band Lands, and there proved to them that their ghost shirt was only painted muslin and incapable of turning the bullet of the white man. The ghost dance was held for six days and nights at the beginning of every new moon, by command of the Messiah. Month after month in 1890 the dance was kept up. By the influence of the agents and the Indian police, backed by the soldiers, all of the Indians, except the Sioux, were brought under control. The Sioux were numerous and defiant. They refused to quit dancing and treated the agents' orders with contempt. The collision came at Wounded Knee creek on Dec. 29. Several companies of soldiers had surprised and captured Big Foot's band, the leaders of the deviltry of the times. They were lined up while a search of their tepees was made for arms. This proved fruitless and a personal search was ordered. The first detachment of searchers was shot down by the Indians, who had their guns concealed beneath their blankets and ghost shirts. There were 140 bucks and 250 women and children in the band. The signal for hostilities was given by the medicine man grabbing a handful of earth and flinging it above his head. The soldiers were of Custer's old command and soon rallied. The Indians retreated to their tepees after they had lost 52 men. Before the battle ended 116 Indians, including Big Foot and 60 or 70 women and children, hiding in the tepees, were killed. The soldiers had 25 killed. The demonstration of the worthlessness of the ghost shirt as armor had a powerful effect upon the other dancing Indians, and they sullenly submitted after weeks of protest. The ghost dance belief died hard, however. So alluringly did the Messiah idea present the future to the simple-minded braves that they were loath to give it up. The following year ghost dancing was again started, but was soon stopped by the Indian police. Periodically since then have the followers of the craze sought to revive this dance, but each time it was sternly repressed. The end came last year, when only a score of the believers in all the Sioux could be got together. Then and then only was it finally abandoned.

Bible for Prisoners.

A precedent has been established by the grand jury, which will probably be followed by members of that body who succeeded the incumbents, says the Indianapolis News. In the statutes of 1879 a provision is made that at every session of the grand jury the member shall visit the county workhouse and jail. Any defects in the management, or discrepancies in the accounts of the officials, are to be reported to the judge of the Criminal Court. Recommendations tending to add to the comfort of the prisoners are to be submitted to and considered by them. This section has never been closely observed, it is said. In the report made by the grand jury, yesterday, there was a recommendation that the prisoners of each institution be furnished a Bible. The county officials have received notice from one of the local charity organizations that the Bibles can be had without cost to the county.

Fish Knew the Professor.

Dr. Samuel Dixon, the president of the Pennsylvania Academy of Natural Sciences, in Philadelphia, has a large aquarium containing goldfish and marine creatures which he is in the habit of feeding every morning. During the winter he wore dark-colored clothing, and as soon as he approached the glass tank all the fish came to surface of the water looking for crumbs. Changing his clothing to light-colored fabrics the first of May, the fish failed to recognize him, and went without food for two days. At last, however, they began to recognize his face as he approached the aquarium, and rose to the surface for their food from his hands. His friends, who know the tenderness of his heart, assert that he had ordered an extra black serge suit to please the fish, when they gave in, and allowed him to appear in gray.

one of the youngsters. "Nothing in particular," was the reply, "only I am uncertain whether I drank the beef tea or that compound I have been working on."

BET ON SURE THING.

Traveler Knew if Accident Occurred Wager Would Be Off.

"Speaking of railroad accidents," said a veteran commercial traveler at the Cosmopolitan yesterday to a New Orleans Times-Democrat reporter, "I am reminded of a curious experience and incidentally of the most incorrigible gambler I ever met in my life. I was going west over the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe some years ago, and one of my fellow passengers in the Pullman was a race horse man from Louisville. He was an interesting fellow and a good story teller, but his conversation was marred by his habit of leading everything up to a proposition to make a wager. Every statement he made was clinched by an offer to back it with money, and finally the thing became rather tiresome, and I made some excuse for avoiding his society. Our sections in the sleeper happened to be directly opposite, and that night we were sitting on the edge of our respective lower berths preparing to retire when all of a sudden the whole car was shaken by a series of swift and heavy concussions. We both realized instantly what had happened. The train had jumped the track and was at that moment bumping its way over the ties preliminary to heaven only knew what kind of a plunge. We were at that time in a part of Kansas that is full of ravines and gullies and short bridges are of frequent occurrence. That disquieting fact flashed into our minds simultaneously. 'Bet y' a hundred we're on a trestle!' yelled the Louisville man above the pounding of the wheels. 'Take y'!' I yelled back, and with that the coach gave a sickening lurch and rolled completely over. When I extricated my self from a broken window I found we had stopped on level ground, and while everybody was more or less cut and bruised no one was killed. I encountered my Kentucky friend wandering about the wreck and he promptly handed me a $100 bill. 'What made you take me up so quick?' he asked. 'Because if we had been on a trestle we would all have been killed,' I replied, 'and you couldn't have collected the bet. I stood to win, but not to lose.' 'That's so,' he said, regretfully. 'Next time this happens I'll take the other end.'"

NAMES FROM CELEBRITIES.

Manner in Which the Memory of Noted Persons Is Kept Alive.

As soon as a man or woman becomes famous, something or other—generally an article of dress—is sure to be named after him or her. Usually the new word sinks into oblivion with the celebrity who inspired it, but not always. Wellington boots continue to be worn, although some people prefer to call them bluchers, after the iron duke's great rival and friend. Gladstone bags, which superseded the old carpet variety in the '60s, are as popular as ever. The brougham, was called after Lord Brougham, one time chancellor of England, who first discarded for it the old, lumbering hackney coach, whilst the victoria, of course, received its title out of compliment to England's queen. "None of your blarney," on the other hand, can be clearly traced to one Cormack Macarthy, who was lord of Blarney castle in 1602. The fortress was besieged by Gen. Carew, with an overwhelming force, but the wily and soft-spoken Irishman literally talked him into raising the siege. The boycott is an even more striking example of an Irish celebrity-derived phrase. Although now a recognized English word and incorporated as such in all the best dictionaries, it only came into being in 1881, in which year Capt. Boycott, an unpopular Irish landlord, was ostracised by order of the Land league. Neither is it always necessary for an individual to be exactly famous in order to originate a word or a phrase. It is sufficient to get one's self to be talked about to be notorious. Mrs. Amelia Bloomer was of no particular consequence even in her own locality, while the black maria, which dail conveys prisoners from the metropolitan police courts to the jails, and vice versa, derives its quaint nickname from a certain Maria Lee, a burly negress, who kept a sailor's boarding-house in Boston. She was a woman of such great size and strength that the unruly stood in dread of her, and when the constables required help it was a common thing to send for black Maria, who soon collared the refractory and led them to the lockup.

Exhaust Steam By-Product Saved.

In the business of manufacturing electricity for public supply, where steam power is used, the only available by-product is exhaust steam. This steam contains much of the heat of the furnaces which are fired to produce it when it is discharged into the air, and is entirely available for steam-heating purposes. In certain towns in the western states, notably in Wisconsin and Minnesota, where the winters are long and severe, the electric light stations have laid systems of underground pipes and have supplied steam heat and hot water to citizens through them. The experiment has been an unqualified success.

Lacked Sufficient Boodle.

"So you were defeated for the senatorship?" "Yes." "How did it happen?" "Oh, it was a pure case of forgetfulness. I had my plans all made, but when I got to the capitol, just before the voting began, I found I'd forgotten my check book, and I hadn't more than $15,000 or $20,000 in my pocket."—Chicago Evening Post.

Sure Preventive.

"Say, old chap, there'll be no more rear-end collisions after this——" Old Chap—"Why, you don't say!" "Yes. They're to take off the last car on all trains."

Hoaxed the Signers.

Congressman Bromwell, at the meeting of the Past Masters' club, a few evenings ago, told an instance illustrating how careless men are in signing petitions presented to them. They often do so without looking to see what the caption of the paper is they sign. He said a petition was circulated in the city of Washington in reference to the colored children of the District of Columbia. After many signatures had been placed on it some wag circulated one in the house of representatives, and it received a number of signatures by congressmen before some one discovered that the heading of the petition was as follows: "We, the parents of colored children," etc.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Henry L. Day, Minneapolis, Minn., Relief-valve for suction or blast pipes. Clarence E. Mead, Duluth, Minn., Strand or rope for weaving rugs, etc.; John Place, Duluth, Minn.; Indicator mecanism for shafts, etc.; Larkin S. Kelso, N. D., Automatic sink opener. David Slucock, Clyde Park, Mont., Mowing-machine.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul

Chicago View of Death.

"Death," he cried, in a loud voice, "before dishonor!"

Other citizens of Chicago stood aghast.

"How lacking in public spirit!" they exclaimed, shuddering. For this was the year of the census, and death was not a thing to be thus lightly spoken of.—Detroit Journal.

Gold Medal Prize Treatise, 25 Cts.

The Science of Life, or Self-Preservation, 865 pages, with engravings, 25 cts., paper cover; cloth, full gilt, $1, by mail. A book for every man, young, middle-aged or old. A million copies sold. Address The Peabody Medical Institute, No. 4 Bulfinch St., Boston, Mass., the oldest and best institute in America. Prospectus Vade Mecum free. Six cts. for postage. Write to-day for these books. They are the keys to health, vigor, success and happiness.

Head Work.

"It might be well enough," said the lecturer, "before the lights are turned down and the pictures are thrown on the screen, for the janitor to close one or two of those windows. The ladies in the audience will be taking their hats off in a few moments, and the breeze upon their heads may be unpleasant."

The windows were not closed, but the hats came off.—Chicago Tribune.

Binder Twine at Low Prices.

If you want a special inside price on binder twine, either Sisal, Standard or Manila, cut this notice out and mail to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co. (Binder Twine Department), Chicago, stating about how much twine you will require and how soon you will want it, and they will save you money by quoting you a price that will either secure your order or compel the party who supplies you to sell to you at a lower price than he otherwise would.

Little Tillie's Endless Chain.

Eva—Mother, Tillie gets a dime every time she takes cod liver oil.

Mother—And what does she do with the money?

Eva—Well, she puts it in a box until she gets 50 cents, and then her mother buys more cod liver oil.—New York Sun.

It Would Seem So.

Gyer—They must have queer cattle down in old Missouri.

Myer—Why do you think so?

Gyer—I saw an advertisement in the want columns of a St. Louis paper the other day for a woman to wash, iron and milk two cows.—Chicago News.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'BRIEN, 322 Third Ave., N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

Read the Advertisements.

You will enjoy this publication much better if you will get into the habit of reading the advertisements; they will help you in the way of getting some excellent bargains. Our advertisers are reliable; they send what they advertise.

Carter's Ink Is Used Exclusively

by the schools of New York, Boston and many other places, and they won't use any other.

Not at All.

"Willie," asked his mother, "are you making the baby cry?"

"No'm," replied the boy. "I'm holding my hand over her mouth to make her stop."—Philadelphia North American.

Keep Your Hair On

by using Coke Dandruff Cure. Money refunded if it fails. $1.00 a bottle.

Not in Need of Help.

The principals had taken their places upon the field of honor. The American tourist, who had consented to act as second to one of them, said to his man:

"Monsieur, all is ready. Let me shake your hand."

"Voila!" he cried. "Can you not see? Eet ees shake too much as it ees."—Catholic Standard.

$18 Per Week.

A salary of $18 per week and expenses to man with rig to introduce our Poultry Compound and Lice Killer among Farmers. Address with stamp, Acme Mfg. Co., Des Moines, Iowa.

Nothing Broken.

"So you quarreled with George?" said one young woman.

"Yes," answered the other, with considerable pathos.

"Is your engagement broken?"

"Oh, no. I told him I never wanted to see his face again, and he said that he would leave me forever. But we didn't go so far as to break our engagement."—Washington Star.

When a breezy girl sails by, every man knows that there's something in the wind.

The top manufacturer makes homespun goods.

When cycling, take a bar of White's Yucatan. You can ride further and easier.

Too Much.

Albert Edward—Mamma, here are the bills for the month.

Mrs. Wettin—Eddie, I told you I didn't want to look at that horrid butcher's bill!—New York Press.

Eggs never get beaten because they are bad.

ALUMINUM BOOK MARK FREE!—Our novelties sell on sight; profit large; agents wanted everywhere. Ewald Novelty Works, Book Dept., Eau Claire, Wis.

Many a walking delegate is elected to do the boardwalk at Atlantic City this summer.

GREECE'S RAILROADS.

Her Lines Are at Last to Be Connected With the European System.

The Greek government has just signed a convention for the construction of a railroad from Piraeus to Demirly, near the Turkish frontier. The road is to be completed in four years, and the section from Piraeus to Livadia is to be in operation in two years. The line will run through Attica and Thessaly. It is not yet exactly known at what point the Ottoman line will reach the boundary, and so the route of the short extension of the Greek line from Demirly to the frontier is to be settled later.

When the railroad is completed the lines of Greece will, for the first time, be placed in connection with those of the rest of Europe. It will then be possible to travel all the way by rail from Athens to Paris. A concession to build the line was granted in 1889, but the government declared it forfeited in 1894, because the company had not carried out its agreements. It is said that under the present auspices there will be no interruption of the enterprise, and that the capital of Greece is certain to be brought into closer relations with the rest of the world.

She Lets Him Dictate.

"Heard to-day that Jilkins is teaching his wife short-hand writing," said Mr. Deucelow the other evening.

"Huh! that so?" said Mrs. Deucelow. "Well, Mrs. Jilkins can't have very much spirit, that's all I've got to say."

"Much spirit? How's that?"

"Why, to let him dictate to her."

Four Royal Flush.

"Talking about remarkable poker hands," remarked the Lunch Room Liar, "did you ever see four royal flushes, all at the same time?"

"No," growled the other men at the Lunch Room Liar's table.

"Neither did I," said the Lunch Room Liar, falling to the floor to avoid the flying crockery ware.

Every town and city makes its mark. That is, its postmark.

LIKE MANY OTHERS

Clara Kopp Wrote for Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Tells what it did for Her.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have seen so many letters from ladies who were cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies that I thought I would ask your advice in regard to my condition. I have been doctoring for four years and have taken different patent medicines, but received very little benefit. I am troubled with backache, in fact my whole body aches, stomach feels sore, by spells get short of breath and am very nervous. Menstruation is very irregular with severe bearing down pains, cramps and backache. I hope to hear from you at once."—CLARA KOPP, Rockport, Ind., Sept. 27, 1898.

"I think it is my duty to write a letter to you in regard to what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I wrote you some time ago, describing my symptoms and asking your advice, which you very kindly gave. I am now healthy and cannot begin to praise your remedy enough. I would say to all suffering women, 'Take Mrs. Pinkham's advice, for a woman best understands a woman's sufferings, and Mrs. Pinkham, from her vast experience in treating female ills, can give you advice that you can get from no other source.'"—CLARA KOPP, Rockport, Ind., April 13, 1899.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY.

Genuine

Carter's

Little Liver Pills.

Must Bear Signature of

Brent Good

See Fac-Simile Wrapper Below.

Very small and as easy to take as sugar.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

FOR HEADACHE.
FOR DIZZINESS.
FOR BILIOUSNESS.
FOR TORPID LIVER.
FOR CONSTIPATION.
FOR SALLOW SKIN.
FOR THE COMPLEXION

Purely Vegetable.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

LEWIS GAS ENGINES

Adapted for All Purposes

SIMPLE . . .
ECONOMICAL
DURABLE . .

Send for Catalogue and state your power needs.

J. THOMPSON & SONS MFG. CO.
Box 501. BELOIT, WIS.

No Fire, Smoke, Heat. Absolutely Safe. Send 5 stamps for Catalogue. TRUSCOTT BOAT MFG. CO., ST. JOSEPH, MICH.

N. W. N. U. —No. 24. 1900.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

THE TEXAS EYESHIELD.

A PERFECT DEVICE

for protection against dust, wind, snow, insects, etc. Frames made of wire gauze. Mica lenses. Weight, ½ ounce. Conforms to the face. Does not blind. Does not blurr the eyesight. Does not make your head ache. It's a comfort to wear one. To be had at the stores or sent postpaid on receipt of 25 cents. (Dark mica with blue frames only.)

THE TEXAS CO.
260 Kinzie St. CHICAGO, U. S. A.

CHINA IS CUT OFF

EUROPEAN CABINETS COMPLETELY IN THE DARK.

No News From Peking in Five Days, Nor From Tien-tsin in Three Days—News of the Murder of German Minister Not Confirmed—Empress Dowager's Agent Censoring Telegrams From Shanghai — Americans in Danger—120,000 Men Outside of Peking to Resist Advancing Foreigners—Peking in a State of Panic.

London, June 19. — There is not a cabinet in Europe apparantly that knows what has been transpiring in Peking for five days or in Tien-tsin for three days. Nor is there any that knows with what difficulties the small and inadequately equipped international column is contending between those cities. The German foreign office, upon learning the report of the murder of Baron von Kettler, the German minister at Peking, sent a telegram of inquiry to St. Petersburg, the Russian government, because of its wires to Manchuria, being supposedly than the other governments to obtain direct news. In reply the German foreign office was informed that nothing whatever was known on the subject, as communication with Peking was interrupted. The news spread widely from Shanghai that the delegations had been attacked and that one minister, probably the German, had been murdered, has been traced to Ta-tai-Sheng, who for a few days, as the empress dowager's agent, has been censoring telegrams from Shanghai. The Daily Mail correspondent at Shanghai says: "Sheng, as the government agent, contended that the wires

In a Better Position

Between Tien-tsin and Peking had been down since June 15, and that they were cut on June 15. Nevertheless it is notorious that constant communications have been passing from Shanghai to Peking over the northern and Western routes, although Sheng has refused both ministers and consuls the privilege of using the lines. It is known that last Friday Sheng received a message from either Peking or Tien-tsin. This dispatch said that Gen. Fung Tuh Siang's troops aided the Boxers in an organized attack on the legations and that in the course of the attack some of the legation buildings were reduced to ashes and one foreign minister was Shot to Pieces."

Why in the cables it should have been added that the murdered minister was Baron von Ketteler is not explained. According to another telegram from Shanghai, dated June 15, 7:25 p. m., Sheng has fled, fearing that the foreign authorities were about to arrest him because of the stoppage of telegrams. A third cable asserts that the reports of the murder of the German minister, emanating from London, are quite unconfirmed, and are discredited at Shanghai. The German minister has is the announcement to the Morning Post from Peking in a dispatch dated June 13, 5 p. m., via Tien-tsin, June 15. This is the latest press message known to have left Peking. It continues as follows: A crows of Boxers occupies Legation street, cutting off communication between buildings. A few Boxers are parading in the city. Their superstition in regard to foreign arms is pitiable. The Boxers hold the officials of Tung-chau for redemption.

Not Been Captured

Anarchy Reigns

at that place. The Americans in the interior of the two neighboring provinces have been advised to leave, but several have no means of doing so. Unless a relief force is sent there is danger of a massacre of native Christians. A large native army is ready to oppose the relief column on the way here. The Chinese government cannot decide whether to adopt the policy of rigidly suppressing the Boxers or that of defying the world. The decision rests with the dowager empress."

Wild Stories From Shanghai.

During the isolation of Peking and Tien-tsin Shanghai is supplying a bewildering bunch of reports and conjectures, most of them picturesque and threatening. Here is one: "Miscellaneous crowds have been in progress northward for some weeks and the hordes around Peking are being constantly swelled by these arrivals. Well informed Chinese here who are not unfriendly toward foreigners declare that there must now be more than 120,000 men outside the city gates,

All of Them Armed,

although some in a more or less crude fashion. The probability is that there are not more than 75,000 Chinese troops among them, all told. Information from Peking, brought hither by refugees, says that the city is in a state of panic. Incendiary fires are of nightly occurrence and scores of outrages are reported." The following summary of the situation was telegraphed to the Daily News from Shanghai last evening: The situation and without parellel since the Indian mutiny. At the yan-tz-ports there is a grave feeling of unrest among the natives. As yet there has been no outbreak, but placards have been posted in Kin-kiang, Ugas-skin and Wu-hu, calling on the people to "Kill and burn." A body of rioters 5,000 strong are at Kwel-hsein, in the prefecture of Canton, and troops have gone to suppress them. The powers, unprepared, are helpless to prevent disaster, but barring trifling local friction, they are working admirably.

Is Critical

Murder of German Minister Doubted.

Washington, June 18.—Up to a late hour last night the foreign ambassies and legations, like the American government, were without news. Some comfort was obtained by the officials of this government, as well as the members of the diplomatic corps from the Associated Press dispatches from Paris that there was a show of doubt as to the occurrance of the reported attacks on the legations and the killing of a foreign minister at Peking. They felt shure that happenings of such great importance as those reported to have taken place in Peking must have reached the outside world by this time. At the same time there was a great deal of apprehension in all circles regarding what may have happened.

Concord Under Sealed Orders.

Manila, June 19.—The gunboat Concord, with marines on board, has sailed under sealed orders, supposedly for China. The British cruiser Buena Ventura has sailed for Hongkong with troops and stores for Hongkong and Tien-tsin.

American Regiment Going.

Manila, June 18. — The Ninth regiment has been ordered to Manila, whence it will proceed to China.

Memorial for a Socialist.

Glasgow—A memorial to Robert Owen, the Socialist reformer, in the form of a mechanics' institute, is to be erected at New Lanark, near Glasgow, the scene of his experiments.

King Oscar Decorates Delcasse.

Paris—King Oscar of Sweden has decorated Minister Delcasse with the grand cross of the Order of St. Olaf.

Monument to Indians.

Charleston, S. C.—Capt. S. E. White of Columbia, S. C., an old Confederate soldier, will erect a monument to the Indians who assisted the Confederate cause.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, June 19.—Oats—The oat market is firmer; demand heavy. No. 3, 24@24 1-2c; No. 3 white, 25@25 1-4c. Corn — Market firm; No. 3, 37 3-4 @ 38 1-4c; No. 3 yellow, 38 3-4c. Seeds—Timothy, $1@1.25; clover, $4.50@5.20; flax, $1.74@1.76.

Duluth, June 19. — Wheat — July opened at 72 3-8c, sold to 72 3-4c and closed at 74c. No. 1 hard, 75 3-8c bid; No. 1 Northern, 73 1-2c bid; No. 2 Northern, 71 3-4c bid; No. 3 Northern, 69c bid; No. 1 hard, to arrive, 75 5-8c bid; No. 1 Northern, to arrive, 73 3-4c. Corn—Cash, 37 7-8c. Flax—Cash, $1.80 bid. Oats, 23c bid.

Minneapolis, June 19. — Wheat — July opened at 70 7-8c and closed at 72 1-4c. On track—No. 1 hard, 75c; No. 1 Northern, 73c; No. 2 Northern, 71 1-2c. Corn, 38 1-4c. Oats, 24 1-2c. Flax, $1.75.

Chicago, June 19.—Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 75 1-2@76c; No. 3, 73@75c; No. 2 hard winter, 72 1-2c; No. 3 hard winter, 66@72 1-2c; No. 1 Northern spring, 71 1-2@73 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 66@72c. Corn—No. 2 38 7-8@39c; No. 3, 38 3-4@38 7-8c. Oats—No. 2, 22 3-4@23c; No. 3, 22 1-2c.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 19.—Flour is firm. Wheat steady; No. 1 Northern, 72 1-2@73 1-2c. Rye steady; No. 1, 57 1-2c. Barley firm; No. 2, 44c; sample, 39@43c. Oats steady; No. 2 white, 25 3-4@26c.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 19.—Cattle—Beeves, $4.80@4.95; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50@4.40; stockers and feeders, $3.50@4.50; calves and yearlings, $4@4.60. Hogs, $4.85@4.90; bulk, $4.85 @4.87 1-2.

Chicago, June 19.—Cattle—Good to prime steers, $5.05@5.75; poor to medium, $4.40@5; stockers and feeders, $3.40@5; cows and heifers, $3@5.20; Texas-fed steers, $4.60@5.25. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $4.90@5.07 1-2; good to choice heavy, $5.05@5.07 1-2; rough heavy, $4.90@5; light, $4.90@5.07 1-2; bulk of sales, $5@5.07 1-2. Sheep—Strong and active; sheep, $3.75 @5.25; lambs, $5@7.50.

South St. Paul, June 19.—Cattle—Choice butcher cows and heifers, $4@4.50; fair to good, $3.25 @ 4; thin cows and canners, $2.25@2.75; choice butcher steers, $5@5.25; fair to good, $4.50 @4.90; fat bulls, $3.50@4; bologna bulls, $2.75@3.40; veal calves, $4&6; good to choice stock cows and heifers, $3.25@3.50; fair to good, $3@3.25; common and tailings, $2@3; heifer calves, $3@3.50; good to choice stockers and feeders, $4@4.40; fair to good, $3.50@4; common and tailings, $2.50@3.25; steer calves, $4@4.25; stock and feeding bulls, $2.75@3.50; feeding cows, $2.50@3; stags and oxen, $3@4; milkers and springers, $25&40. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $4.85@4.87 1-2; good to prime heavy, $4.85@4.87 1-2; rough heavy, $4.65@4.70; stags and boars, $4.25@4.60; pigs and skips, $4@4.50. Sheep — Fat sheep, $4@4.50; stock sheep, $2.75@3.25; feeders, $3.25@3.75; fat lambs, $5.40@5.90; yearlings, $4.50@5; stock and feeding lambs, $4@4.50; buck lambs, $3@4; bucks, $3@3.50; spring lambs, $6@6.75. Above quotations are on shorn sheep and lambs.

FIGHT TO THE END.

Negotiations Off Between St. Louis Street Railway Company and the Strikers.

St. Louis, June 19.—All negotiations between the officials of the St. Louis Street Railway company and the striking employes are at an end, attempts to settle the trouble at a conference Saturday having failed. President Mahon, of the International Association of Amalgamated Street Railway Employes, made this statement after a conference:

"This is now a fight to the finish. President Gompers told me yesterday that he proposes to turn the entire power of the American Federation of Labor, with its membership of 2,000,000, against the Transit company and fight the issue out, if it takes five years to do it. The boycott to be declared will apply not only to the Transit company, but to every person, every business man, every association, and, in fact, any corporation or individual favoring it in any way."

Dynamite was more freely used yesterday than on any day since the strike was inaugurated. In addition to the wreck of a car on Page avenue, four other cars were wrecked last night in various parts of the city, but no one was seriously injured. A car on the Southern division had its trucks shattered and the roof torn off.

NEGRO BORN IN 1777 DIES.

Ohio Colored Man Passes Away at the Advanced Age of 123.

Lisbon, Ohio, June 19.—James Reddick, believed to be the oldest man in Ohio, if not in the United States, died in the Columbus infirmary, aged 123 years. He was born a slave in Virginia in 1777. Among documents he had showing his age was a certificate of a sale of himself as a slave, dated Aug. 6, 1800, in which he was described as a stout negro, twenty-three years old. His blind widow, aged ninety, survives him.

Big Elevator Destroyed by Fire.

Kansas City, June 19—The big Union grain elevator, located on the west river bottoms but a few blocks from the union depot, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, causing a damage of over $100,000. The building was valued at $70,000 and it contained $30,000 worth of wheat, all of which was destroyed. It is insured. The C. A. Brockett Cement company, whose warehouse adjoins the elevator, sustained a loss of $15,000. Several freight cars were also burned.

Washington Monument Statistics.

Washington—During May, 17,752 visitors went to the top of the Washington monument, making a total of 1,844,635 visitors since the shaft was opened to the public in October, 1888. Hardly a month of the spring or summer passes that the monument is not struck by lightning.

Dr. Pozzi Hurt in Duel.

Paris—Dr. Pozzi, the senator, in a duel with Dr. Devilliers, was wounded in the hand so that it may interfere with his surgical operations for which he is famous.

News of the Northwest

TWO MESSIAHS AT IT

PILLAGERS ARE GATHERED AT SQUAW POINT.

Great Storm Which Is to Annihilate the White Man Is Scheduled for July 14, and Not June 14, as Previously Stated — White Earth Medicine Man Also Predicts a Storm to Occur on the Same Date With Like Results—Capt. Mercer Has a Narrow Escape—Promises Made by Indians Are Not Kept.

Walker, Minn., June 17.—In an interview with Deputy United States Marshal E. L. Warren, who has dealt with the Indians for thirty years, some interesting features of the present gathering of the Pillager Indians at Squaw Point, Leech lake, were learned. Since the troops have been withdrawn from Walker the Indians have grown more bold. The reported case of their breaking into a warehouse at Walker and stealing liquor goes to show this.

Date of the Great Storm.

Earlier dispatches have stated that the date of the great storm which was predicted by Da-dah-quence was June 14, and this was the general understanding, but Marshal Warren has learned that the date is July 14 instead, a correction which seems to be borne out by the fact that the numbers at Squaw Point are steadily increasing. Bear island, about twelve miles across Leech lake from Squaw Point, is the home of the Pillagers. This island is now

Practically Deserted,

although about 400 Indians make their homes there. All have gone to Squaw Point. It is now estimated that there are at least 400 Pillagers in the wigwams at Squaw Point. These Pillagers are said by Marshal Warren to be the most hostile and troublesome of any of the bands throughout the country. One peculiar fact learned by him is that the same story of a storm to occur

On the Same Date

is being told by an Indian named Mis-Quo-gue-quance, on the White Earth reservation. So far as the authorities know the Indians on these reservations have no means of communication. In both places the Indian leaders are great medicine men, and as such have a religious authority which is absolute with their followers, as they are supposed to have miraculous power. When Da-dah-quence was arrested he resisted, and by his

Threats of Evil

to follow frightened some of the Indian policemen so that they refused to assist in the arrest. Capt. Mercer visited Da-dah-quence in jail at the agency and succeeded in time in securing a promise that he would send his followers back to their neglected homes and gardens, and the children back to the schools. Capt. Mercer stated that he then stepped out of the jail with Da-dah-quence, and to his surprise found outside dressed in war paint and feathers. Da-dah-quence spoke to them and they seemed satisfied and went quietly away with him. Not one of the promises made by him have been fulfilled. Marshal Warren has been notified that the prophet is to give his great proclamation to-day and that there is to be dancing. As dancing is strictly prohibited by the government the outcome is awaited with interest.

A Band of Pillagers

BIBLE IN SCHOOLS.

Manitoba Anglican Synod Urges Its Adoption.

Winnipeg, June 17.—The Angelican synod passed a resolution urging the use of the Bible in the public schools. A patriotic message to the queen was also passed. Many temperance people are displeased at Greenway's carping at Premier Macdonald's prohibition bill. Macdonald personally is not a prohibitionist, but his stock has gone away up among all classes because he has fulfilled an ante-election pledge.

DUNSMUIR IS PREMIER.

Canadian Capitalist Sworn in to Succeed James Martin.

Victoria, B. C., June 17. — James Dunsmuir has been appointed to succeed James Martin as premier and has been sworn in. Dunsmuir is a railroad and steamboat capitalist and a large employer of labor in the provinces.

SAMUEL P. ELY DEAD.

Veteran Pioneer Promoter Passes Away in Paris.

New York, June 17.—Samuel P. Ely, the originator of the Minnesota Iron company, and for a generation prominent in mining and railway interests in the Northwest, died yesterday in Paris.

Pleaded Guilty and Is Sentenced.

La Crosse, Wis., June 17. — George M. Benjamin pleaded guilty to the charge of adultery before Judge Brindley this morning and was sentenced to state prison for one year. He was arrested at Fond du Lac, Wis., escaped from an officer, was rearrested at Minneapolis and returned to the state on extradition papers. He deserted a wife and family of young children who must be supported by public charity.

Clements Again Convicted.

Caledonia, Minn., June 17.—The jury in the Clements case on the sixth indictment, brought in a verdict of guilty, as charged.

Boy Drowned in a Well.

Crookston, Minn., June 17.—Charles, the two-year-old son of Remi Fortier, Jr., of Gentilly, was missed by his parents while at play, and search being made he was found drowned in a well. All attempts to resuscitate the lad were unsuccessful.

State Good Templars to Meet.

Watertown, S. D., June 17. — The grand lodge, I. O. G. T. of South Dakota, will meet in Watertown June 27 and 28. Capt. W. C. Dutton of Texas, a speaker of national reputation, will be present and deliver an address.

Swedish Lutheran Synod.

Burlington, Iowa, June 17.—The Swedish Lutheran general synod assembled here with delegates present from all parts of the country. The business of the synod was taken up in the afternoon. The election of president for Augustana college at Rock Island, Ill., will be the chief feature of the assembly.

BIG DAM IS BLOWN OUT.

Farmers Take the Law Into Their Own Hands.

Stillwater, June 19.—A telegram was received here stating that the Chenguatonna dam, near Pine City, had been blown out by farmers. This will prevent millions of feet of Snake river logs from reaching here this year.

Pine City, Minn.—Great excitement was created here when a number of farmers proceeded to the Chenguatonna dam, two and a half miles from town, and blew up the structure with dynamite and let the water out of the lake. The grievance of the farmers is that the damming of the lake has ruined their meadows along the river. The dam was put in by A. Munch, St. Paul, for logging purposes. No arrests have been made.

WORK OF AN INCENDIARY.

Big Auditorium at Des Moines Destroyed by Fire.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 19.—The Des Moines auditorium, used as a convention hall and constructed a year ago at a cost of $50,000, was destroyed by fire yesterday. It was insured for $25,000. It was occupied by the Commercial exchange and the T. W. P. Chase Amusement company, the latter holding a lease and conducting a vaudeville show. All the seats, effects and scenery were burned, amounting to $5,000, making a total loss as now estimated, of $40,000, with $27,000 insurance. The origin of the fire is a mystery, and the belief seems to be that it was incendiary. The auditorium will be rebuilt immediately.

CLARK BEING "VINDICATED."

He Beats Daly in County Conventions in Montana.

Helena, Mont., June 19.—Ten counties held primaries or county conventions Saturday night and the returns were received yesterday. They are selecting delegates to the Democratic state convention in Butte Wednesday and complete the list of counties. The fight in all has been between Senator Clark, who is seeking vindication, and Marcus Daly, who has conducted the fight against Clark from the beginning. The figures conceded by both parties give Senator Clark 261 votes to 217 for Daly, with the vote of Granite county, which sends 13 delegates, in doubt.

WITH TWO WOMEN

Is an Iowa Man Said to Have Run Away.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, June 18.—Domestic woes of Webster City were brought to Fort Dodge in the person of a woman who came here in search of her husband who had run off with two other Webster City women, and was landed here by his late spouse. The assistance of the Fort Dodge police force was called in and the fugitive complied and returned to Webster City. Legal proceedings may be instituted.

ARSENIC IN THE COFFEE.

Too Much Poison Saved the Family's Lives.

Madison, Wis., June 19.—An attempt was made to poison the entire family of seven persons of George Bringer, a farmer seven miles east of this city, by putting arsenic in the coffee. The only reason it failed was that the would-be assassin used too much of the poison and it acted as an emetic. James Breland, a farm hand, was arrested and held in $3,000 bail.

At Last Cleared Away.

Seattle, Wash., June 19.—According to a dispatch received from Alaska the strange disappearance of the sealing schooner Pioneer, last seen Oct. 4, 1899, when spoken by the Alnoke on her way down from Bering sea with sealskins, has been at last cleared away. The Siwash Ranchos of Quatsinok are said to have found the hull of the vessel tossing on the rocks fifty miles from the coast. The Indians are said to have found eight skeletons, supposed to have been those of Capt. Stone and his crew.

Made Bald by Lightning.

Sandusky, Ohio, June 19. — Albert Dawson, son of Thomas Dawson, who lives near Marsailles, was in an outbuilding during a storm when the place was struck by lightning. He said the room was ablaze at the time, and a few seconds later he became unconscious. When he recovered he was minus all the hair on his head, but otherwise was not injured.

Mystery Surrounds a Fire.

Chicago, June 19. — The Douglass school, located at Twenty-second and Forrest avenues, one of the largest institutions of learning in Chicago, was destroyed by fire. Loss on building, $75,000. The cause of the fire is a mystery. Several churches in the district have been destroyed recently by incendiarism.

Horse Theft Charged.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 19.—Casper Djernes of Bagley, Minn., arrived here yesterday and caused the arrest of S. L. Davis and George Butler on a charge of horse stealing. The men hired a team from him eight weeks ago, and as they failed to return it he set out in search of them, overtaking them here.

Department Store Burned.

Litchfield, Minn., June 19.—Fire destroyed part of the stock and building of McLaughlin Mercantile company's department store. It started in the second story, where furniture is stored. Damage, $5,000; fully insured.

South Dakota Brawn.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 18.—Alexander Mitchell, a thirteen-year-old boy living near Hecla, chased a wolf for several miles the other day, and after tiring out and capturing the animal, in the absence of any weapon, grasped it by the throat and choked it to death.

Many Killed in a Wreck.

London, June 19. — A collision between an express train and a train filled with Windsor race-goers occurred at Lough. Six persons were killed and sixty-one injured.

State Land Sale.

Brainerd, Minn., June 16.—State Auditor Dunn is here conducting a sale of state lands. The sale is being held in the large district court chamber, which is well filled with prospective buyers. Competition is lively on some tracts, $15 being bid on land appraised at $5, while other pieces valued at the same figure were sold for $10 and $12.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 19.—The cooper shop of the Otter Tail mill was destroyed by fire. Loss $1,500; no insurance. The origin was incendiary.

In Minnesota.

State News of the Week Briefly Told.

The re]kunnlaEM vbgkqj n vbgb

Jacob Kinsey, aged eighty-one, is dead at Faribault.

Charles Burris of Delano was found dead by the roadside.

A. Barto's hardware store at Long Prairie was scorched. Loss, $1,500.

Jas. D. McCobb, pioneer resident of Stillwater, died suddenly of heart disease.

Fire in a butcher shop and Langford's saloon at Waverly causes a loss of $1,500.

The Minnesota grand lodges of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs met at St. Paul last week.

A record-breaking attendance is expected this year at the summer schools.

Mrs. Hover Hoverson, wife of an old settler of Minneota, died of typhoid pneumonia.

Ex-Gov. Alexander Ramsey was reelected president of the Mesaba Iron company at Duluth.

United States Marshal Grimshaw does not believe that the Indians at Walker will make trouble.

The Eureka Mining company of St. Cloud, has been capitalized at $70,000. Over 1,200 acres will be developed.

The state fair managers are preparing to make the state fair grounds one of the beauty spots of the Twin Cities.

State Auditor Dunn has received reports indicating that the receipts from the recent tax sales were more than expected.

A farmer named August Kolander was struck by a Chicago Great Western train on a crossing at Elysian. His recovery is doubtful.

Philip Chruelick, aged ninety, an inmate of the poor house at Albert Lea, assaulted the matron Mrs Hazleton. He has been placed in the Rochester asylum.

A large number of Indians are being taken by Gus Beaulieu to White Earth from Leech Lake. They will select lands upon which to make their future homes.

The controller of the currency has granted the application to convert the Houston County Bank, of Caledonia into the First National Bank of Caledonia; capital, $25,000.

In the presence of a large crowd Tafel Peaterskey leaped seventy feet from the high wagon bridge at Winona into the Mississippi. The leap was successful, and on coming up he swam to a boat in waiting.

The barn of W. A. Ferguson, west of Fergus Falls, was burned to the ground Saturday evening. Four horses and a large number of hogs perished in the flames. The fire was set by a passing freight train.

Rural free delivery has been ordered established at Eyota, Olmsted county. The length of the route is twenty-five and three quarters miles; area covered, fifty square miles; population served, 612. John H. Grandy, carrier.

Hans Hanson, who was last week arrested on the charge of threatening to kill his wife, and who attempted to shoot officer Norton while being arrested, has been adjudged insane and sent to the hospital at Rochester.

All of the saw mills on the St. Croix with the exception of one of the St. Croix Lumber company's mills at South Stillwater, are in operation, and mill men hope to secure logs enough to enable them to run during the summer.

Rural free delivery has been ordered established at St. Charles, Winona county. The service will cover an area of thirty-nine miles, with a population of 608. Walter Hessgrove has been appointed regular carrier, and Earl Smith substitute.

While sinking the village well at Cloquet recently, the diggers came across a chunk of pure native copper imbedded in the slate rock. It weighs some twenty-five pounds and is a piece of smooth, rounded float from some distant ledges of native metal.

Mrs. Frederick Stensiofa, aged sixty-three years, wife of a farmer near Fairmont, left the house at night, and, going to the hay loft, cut her throat with a razor. Three large gashes were cut, any one of which would have been fatal. Her mind had been affected for the past year.

While fishing in the Red river, near Hendrum, recently, in company with two of his neighbors, Jens Staarten, a young farmer who lived east of that town, in attempting to swim across the stream to procure a boat, sank in midstream and drowned before help could reach him. The body was recovered shortly afterwards. He leaves a widow and one child.

S. F. Ligday of Winona is missing, and with him is Harry Marsch. It seems that young Ligday went to Naylus livery stable and hired a horse and buggy, saying his father wanted to go to Stockton. That was the last seen of the two. When they did not return the following day a search was begun, but no trace has been found.

E. M. Walbridge, Northfield, the grain and elevator man, has been indicted by the grand jury of Dakota county for disposing of grain stored in his elevators at Farmington and Wallace and said to have belonged to local farmers. The jury returned three such indictments and Walbridge was arraigned in open court this afternoon. He waived the reading of the indictments and gave bail of $2,000—$1,000 in one case and $500 in each of the other two.

The board of county commissioners adopted resolutions calling for bids for a new court house for Beltrami county. Contractors and architects are called on for plans and specifications, accompanying bids for a building not to exceed in cost $25,000. The commissioners do not propose to issue bonds, but will levy a tax to cover the whole cost.

Work has begun on the new depot at Frost by the Chicago & Northwestern. The rails have been laid between Mason City and Belle Plaine, on the south end, and from Blue Earth to Fox Lake on the North, and the tracks are being graveled and surfaced at the rate of two miles per day.

August A. Swenson, an employe of the Brooke Elevator company at Rice, was struck by lightning during a recent storm, just as he was entering the doorway of Patock's hotel, and instantly killed. The only mark found on the body was a small spot on the top of the head about the size of a pinhead. The hotel was in no way injured. Swenson was a resident of Elizabeth, Otter Tail county, at which place his parents reside, and had been located at Rice since last October. He was twenty-eight years of age.

OF GLOOMY TINGE.

The Crop Reports Received by the Northern Pacific.

Northern Pacific crop reports from Minnesota and the Dakotas completely reverse preceding reports and place a gloomy outlook on the crop situation. It says the yield will not be more than 75, perhaps 50 per cent of a crop.

Last week the Northern Pacific officials were rather optimistic, as was evidenced by President Mellen's telegram to New York, contradicting adverse rumors. Great Northern officials have been pessimistic from the start, and their calculations seem to be nearer the truth.

The latest reports cover the entire system clear to the coast. The report on the Minnesota division, given below, seems to apply equally to all Northwestern divisions, with little variation.

The recent showers, which gave rise to favorable comment in grain circles, turned out to be of little consequence, because of the hot winds which followed. Between Staples and the Red river considerable damage is reported to all vegetation; especially on low lands, owing to frost the early part of the week. The most conservative persons do not expect, as stated above, more than 50 to 75 per cent of a crop. Flax, corn and potatoes, for the most part, have not sprouted, and, generally speaking, farmers will not replant. Wheat and oats are losing their strength and are sadly in need of rain. Rye is in poor shape, and grasses, also.

On the Little Falls & Dakota branch the situation is a few points better than on the Minnesota division, especially along the western half of the branch. Wheat is from four to eight inches high and shows a fairly good color. Yet all vegetation needs heavy rain. Rye ground near Sauk Center is being replowed, as the crop is too poor to cut. Everything else is on the decline.

The Fergus Falls line is also in bad shape. From Wadena to Underwood grain is heading out at six and eight inches and turning yellow below. Between Fergus falls and Wahpeton a killing frost occurred Friday night.

That portion of Minnesota south of the "Dakota Crossing" of the Manitoba division is in better shape. Wheat has a good stand and color and is from four to five inches high. All other growths need moisture badly. That section seems especially favored, as one agent reports "the farmers expect the largest crops seen in many years."

In North Dakota some farmers are harrowing up poor wheat. The plant has matured too rapidly and has not developed in a healthy manner. The shot blade is appearing, although the wheat is but seven or eight inches in height. If the hot weather continues ten days longer early wheat will be headed out. The only thing which can assure even half a crop is plenty of rain and cool weather. An average yield of flax is anticipated.

Farmers in Manitoba believe it is not yet too late to revive the crops in the provinces and yet secure a fair yield.

Oliver Dalrymple of Casselton thinks the crops will revive if there is more rain, although most farmers along the Dakota division do not expect more than ten bushels to the acre.

Along the Fargo & Southwestern branch, the general impression is that wheat has been damaged 10 to 15 per cent by drought. The damage is regarded as permanent.

A "wonderful transformation" is reported along the Cooperstown branch, where there have been splendid rains and cool days.

A marked improvement is reported on the Jamestown & branch, where wheat is commencing to take on a healthy look.

In Montana there is no uneasiness. That state will have a good crop.

NATIONAL GUARD ON ACTIVE DUTY.

Col. C. A. Van Duzee Decides Upon an Innovation.

Col. C. A. Van Duzee, of the Third regiment, N. G. S. M., has received reports from all the companies of his regiment relative to the proposal that the regiment give up the usual summer encampment and devote ten days later in the season to the practice of field maneuvers. The proposition received the approval of the adjutant general and was then submitted to a vote of the officers and men of the several companies. The majority in favor of the change was very large, and yesterday Col. Van Duzee made definite announcement to that effect.

The plan contemplates the mobilization of the regiment at Milaca about the second week in September. The regiment will then engage in field maneuvers, covering the territory between Milaca and Brainerd, where the experiment will terminate. The distance between these two points is sixty miles. It will be in no sense a practice march, which would cover the distance in two or three days, but a continuous succession of maneuvers, outpost work, advance and rear guard, attack and defense, fortification and all the other details that might be anticipated by an army operating in the enemy's country.

Three days will be spent on Mille Lacs lake, the camps being pitched at various points on the south and west shores of that beautiful sheet of water. The regiment will proceed in light marching order and will be accompanied by a baggage train. It is already equipped at regimental cost with much of the equipage necessary for such an expedition, and the adjutant general has promised the rest.

An engineer corps and a signal corps will be organized at once, and there will also be a detail of scouts. Col. Van Duzee expects to take along at least 100,000 rounds of blank ammunition to add a realistic color to the work. The colonel expects to go over the ground in advance of the regiment and arrange all the details.

This is believed to be the first attempt in any state to give a national guard regiment an idea of the actual work that would be required of them in actual service, and it is believed that it will afford an example that will be more or less generally followed. There is already some talk of the artillery battalion joining the Third regiment in the expedition.

Not His Turn.

"You go first," said the condemned, as they started for the scaffold.

"No; after you," replied the jailer, politely.—Philadelphia North American.

Duke of Oldenburg Dies.

Berlin—Grand Duke Peter of Oldenburg is dead. His death was sudden, although he was seventy-four years of age. He was the reigning grand duke of the state of Oldenburg, and his house is one of the oldest in Europe.

Advocates United States of Europe.

Paris—Leroy Beaulieu, in addressing the Congress of Political Sciences, declared that a United States of Europe should be formed as a protection against the [illegible] of the people of America [illegible]

HIGH WAGES FOR LABORERS.

Inspector Moersch of Labor Bureau Tells of Prosperity of Working Men.

The prosperous times of the laboring classes are well exemplified in the report made by Inspector Moersch to the labor bureau. Mr. Moersch has just completed an inspection of the iron mines in Northern Minnesota, and he finds boom times everywhere. As against twenty-two mines operated last year, forty-one are now in operation. And these employ over 8,000 men as against less than half that number last year. Wages have gone up from an average of $1.80 per day to over $2, and work everywhere is plentiful. The complaints all come from the mine operators, who say that laborers can find employment so readily that changes are constant. Inspector Moersch also reports complaints regarding the division of profits. The price on ore has gone up from $2 and $3 per ton in the past year to $3 and $4 at present, delivered at Cleveland. Of this total 33 per cent is consumed in railway shipping, 23 per cent for lake shipping, and only 14 per cent goes direct to wages. A few large mine owners, it is stated, control the transportation facilities so that the rates are excessively high. At present it costs from 80 cents to $1 per ton to ship from the mines to the lake, and the lake rates to Cleveland are 62 1-2 cents.

FEDERAL MAN ON CROPS.

Report Covering Every Point of Minnesota.

The weekly crop report of the federal observer, covering the State of Minnesota, states that dry weather generally continued until the 9th, when there were light to heavy local rains in the central and southern portions of the state, and light and more scattered showers in the northern portion. The heaviest rains occurred in the southeastern counties. The drouth effect had been generally intensified up to the 9th, and opinions differ as to the condition and the prospects. Some wheat is heading out very low; on ridges and dry ground it is practically a failure; in some places wheat is being plowed under and the ground seeded to millet. The rye crop is very poor. Barley is beginning to head very irregularly, and is short. Clover is generally short, but some fairly good is being cut in the southern portions. Early corn is doing fairly well, but late planted has come up irregularly, and in some locations it has not yet sprouted. The outlook for flax is about the same as previously reported, and the crop will be short. Pastures are becoming very short, and in some localities some hay was being fed.

NEW MILITIA OFFICERS.

First Regiment Elects a Lieutenant Colonel and Three Majors.

The officers of the First regiment, N. G. S. M., met at the armory at St. Paul and elected four field officers, a lieutenant colonel and three majors. The officers were chosen practically by acclamation, as but one ballot was taken. Gen. W. B. Bend, who ordered the election, presided. Maj. J. H. Friedrichs of Red Wing was made lieutenant colonel and Captains Frank T. Corriston, Company I, Minneapolis; C. Treat Spear, Company E, St. Paul, and Oscar Seebach, Company G, Red Wing, were elected majors. They will take rank as given from the seniority of their commissions as captains.

BUTTER FOR PARIS EXPOSITION.

Six Minnesota Creameries Will Compete for the Awards.

Samples of butter from six Minnesota creameries will compete for awards at the Paris exposition. Three firms have already made shipments, and these are H. T. Sondergard of Litchfield, Samuel Haugdahl of New Sweden and A. H. Jorgensen of Albert Lea. Some of the samples will contain the product made from "commercial culture," that is, lactic acid bacteria. So far as known Denmark is the only other country in which high-grade butter is artificially produced with bacteria.

FEAR OF LOCUSTS.

Gov. Lind Grants $1,000 to Ward Off a Possible Plague.

Grasshoppers have found their way into the Red river valley, and a destruction of crops is threatened. In order to ward off the danger Gov. Lind has placed $1,000 at the disposal of Prof. Lugger, of the state experiment station, and every effort will be made to ward off a plague. Special precautions, it is said, must be taken to prevent the propagation of the grasshoppers in the fall so that a more serious plague may not come next season.

WANTED FOR ROBBERY.

Gov. Lind Issues Requisition for Return of Thomas O'Neill.

Gov. Lind has issued a requisition on Gov. Tanner of Illinois for the return to this state of Thomas O'Neill. O'Neill is under arrest in Chicago on suspicion of being the man who robbed the bank at Dover, Minn., on May 25. The requisition papers contain a detailed statement of the money supposedly taken by O'Neill to the value of about $1,800.

WILL BECOME CROWN COLONIES.

London, June 14.—It is learned by the Associated Press that the government has at last decided upon a plan for the civil government of South Africa. The details are kept most secret, but it can be safely said that the Orange River Colony and the Transvaal will become crown colonies, the latter probably being renamed Transvaal Colony. Sir Alfred Milner, it is declared, is to be high commissioner of South Africa in spite of the opposition he has incurred.

JAPS COME BACK.

Several That Were Deported Land Again.

San Francisco, June 14.—The Examiner asserts that of a band of thirty-two Japanese immigrants recently deported on the steamer Thyra, at least four, and possibly twenty, are already back in this state. One of them has been identified and is now in custody. The men are supposed to have left the steamer at Portland or Astoria, where the vessel touched, but the northern customs officers declare that such could not have been the case.

Bobs Figuring Ahead.

London—According to a London paper, Lord Roberts has made several engagements for himself in London for September, and has ordered his town house to be ready for him the first of that month.

Senator Who Keeps Mum.

Washington—Senator Thos. S. Martin of Virginia has never made a speech in the senate, although he has been a member for six years. On the stump he is an orator of high rank.

The letter "e" may be more used than any other, but "i" is first in importance.

Minnesota Historical Society

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOLUME XIX | ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1900. | NUMBER 49.

MET AWFUL DEATH

THIRTY-FIVE LIVES LOST IN A RAILROAD DISASTER.

Passenger Train Runs Into a Wash-out and Is Completely Wrecked—Every Person on the Train Except the Occupants of the Pullman Perished — Wreck Caught Fire and Escape Was Impossible—Death Came Without a Moment's Warning — Bodies Terribly Mangled.

Atlanta, Ga., June 26.—A passenger train on the Macon branch of the Southern Railway ran into wash-out one and a half miles north of McDonough Saturday night and was completely wrecked. The wreck caught fire and the entire train, with the exception of the sleeper, was destroyed. Every person on the train except the occupants of the Pullman car perished. Not a member of the train crew escaped. Thirty-five people in

All Were Killed.

Tremendous rains, of daily occurrence for the past two weeks, have swollen all streams in this part of the South, and several washouts have been reported on the different roads. Camp's creek, which runs into the Ocmulgee, was over its banks and its waters had spread to all the low lands through which it runs. About a mile and a half north of McDonough the creek comes somewhat near the Southern's tracks, and running alongside it for some distance, finally passes away under the road by a heavy stone culvert.

A Cloudburst

broke over that section of the country about 6 o'clock Saturday night, and presumably shortly after dark washed out a section of the track nearly a hundred feet in length. Into this the train plunged. The storm was still raging and all the car windows were closed. The passengers, secure, as they thought, and sheltered comfortably from the inclement weather, went to death without an instant's warning. Every person on the train except the occupants of the Pullman car perished

In the Disaster.

There was no escape as the heavy Pullman car weighted down the others and the few alive in the sleeper were unable to render assistance to their fellow passengers. For a brief time there was silence. Then the occupants of the Pullman car recovered from the bewilderment, and after hard work, managed to get out of their car and found themselves on the track in the pouring rain. The extent of the catastrophe was quickly apparent.

Flames Were Already Seen

coming from that part of the wreckage not reached by the water. As the wreck began to go to pieces under the destructive work of both flames and flood, human bodies floated out from the mass and were carried down stream by the swift current. Flagman Quinlan, who was one of the first to get out, at once started for the nearest telegraph station. Word was quickly sent to both Atlanta and Macon, but no assistance could be had from the latter city as the Interrupted Track

prevented the arrival of any train from Macon. Nearly the entire male population of McDonough went to the scene to render assistance, but little could be done by the rescuers, as the fire kept them at a distance. A wreck train was started out from Atlanta to the scene, but nothing could be done save to gather up the bodies. As the dead were found they were removed to McDonough. Some of the bodies and burned. The only means of identification in the majority of cases were letters and papers in the pockets of the victims. The bodies were prepared for burial as rapidly as possible. Some may be buried at McDonough. Others will be sent to their homes as fast as their proper addresses can be ascertained. Only three women were on the train. Two escaped. It is presumed that the other perished, but the body has not been found.

Were Terribly Mangled

BOERS ARE PURSUED.

Driven From Heidelberg By Hamilton.

London, June 26. — The Transvaal military incidents are summed up officially by Lord Roberts in the following message to the war office, dated at Pretoria, June 24, 11:30 a. m.:

"Buller reached Standerton June 22. He found a good deal of rolling stock. All the Dutch residents had left the town. The British prisoners captured since our occupation of Pretoria have been taken to Machadodorp. Ian Hamilton

Occupied Heidelberg

Saturday. The enemy fled, pursued by our mounted men six or seven miles. The previous day Broadwood's cavalry had a skirmish with the enemy, dispersing them completely and capturing six. Hunter's advance brigade reached Johannesburg, toward Heidelberg, June 22. The enemy attacked our post at Honingspruit and before reinforcements arrived from Kroonstad they had burned three culverts. These had all been repaired by this afternoon."

British Casualties.

An Associated Press special from Cape Town says:

"The British casualties at Honingspruit were thirty-seven killed and wounded."

Sir Redvers Buller, in a dispatch to the war office says that among the prisoners taken to Machadodorp are Lords Antrim and Ennismore, both of whom are in good health. Lord Langford was left at Reitz, severely wounded. The force now available to President Kruger is estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000. The Standerton correspondents assert that is to hold out until after the American presidential election. Mr. Kruger is reported to have issued a proclamation on June 17 announcing that the Russians had declared war upon the Japanese and that Great Britain must help Japan. Lord Roberts and Commandant General Louis Botha are still exchanging letters. Two hundred rebels have surrendered to Gen. Warren at Blikfontein.

His Sole Idea

AMERICANS KILLED.

Kempff Reports a Disaster Near Tien-Tsin.

Washington, June 26.—The navy department yesterday afternoon issued the following bulletin from Admiral Kempff, dated Chefu, June 24:

"In ambuscade near Tien-tsin on the 21st four of Waller's command killed and seven wounded. Names will be furnished as soon as received. Force of 2,000 going to relieve Tien-tsin today."

The secretary of the navy has ordered Admiral Remey to go with the Brooklyn to Taku and to tender to Gen. MacArthur conveyance of any army troops which the Brooklyn can carry.

Long Takes Prompt Action.

Admiral Kempff's dispatch, giving the first definite news of the shedding of American blood on Chinese soil came early yesterday morning and was turned over to Secretary Long as soon as he arrived at the department. With Admiral Crowninshield the secretary carried this dispatch to the White House, where, on the president's return from church, it was laid before him. The determination thereupon was reached to order Admiral Remey, in command of the Asiatic squadron, from Manila to Taku on board of the armored cruiser Brooklyn. The Brooklyn is expected to sail at once, as contemplate getting the admiral on the scene at the earliest moment. The advantage of this, it was officially stated, is not so much in adding the strength of the Brooklyn to the fleet already there, as the fleet is considered by Secretary Long to be quite adequate, as it is in allowing the authorities here to deal directly with the situation in China instead of through the circuitous communications by way of Manila. Admiral Kempff's reports that four Americans were killed and seven wounded of Waller's force caused the gravest concern among officials, but the chief fear was as to the outcome as to the second attack which the admiral reported would begin to-day.

The Orders Sent

In the Ambuscade

While the Berlin reports as to the safety of Baron von Ketteler and the legations at Peking appear to dispose of one of the most alarming stories of the crisis, Minister Conger at Peking is still cut off from communication here, and there is no direct and official assurance of the safety of the ministers and legations, nor is there a word of the relief force including the Americans which sought to break through to Peking.

Increases in Peril.

London, June 26. — The position of the international forces in Northern China where 10,000 men are striving to keep a footing and to succor the legations in Peking appears to increase in peril with every fresh dispatch. Peking has not been heard from direct for fourteen days. The last dispatch was one imploring aid. Admiral Seymour's column of 2,000 was last heard from twelve days ago. At that time it midway between Peking and Tien-tsin. Possibly now it has reached Peking. The 3,000 internationals at Tien-tsin were hard pressed and fighting for their lives on Thursday, and a rallying force of less than a thousand had been beaten back to Taku Friday. Observers on the spot think that 100,000 men would not be too many to grasp China firmly. The admiralty has received the following from the British rear admiral at Taku, dated June 23:

Was Surrounded

One Rumor Got Through.

"Only one rumor has got through from Tien-tsin for five days. No information could be obtained except that the foreign settlement had been almost entirely destroyed and that our people were fighting hard. News is received as this telegram is dispatched that an attempt to relieve Tien-tsin on June 22 was repulsed, with some loss. The allied admirals are working in perfect accord, with the Russian vice admiral as senior officer."

Defeat of Allied Forces.

A press message from Shanghai, dated yesterday at 4 p. m., embodies some later information. It says:

"Official Japanese telegrams confirm the reports of a defeat of the allied forces at Tientsin. The Russian admiral, Hildebrandt, yesterday sent a mixed force of 4,000 from Taku to attempt the relief of Tien-tsin. Nearly half of the force consisted of Japanese. The remainder was made up of contingents representing the other nations.

Guns Are Superior.

"The guns of the Chinese around Tien-tsin are superior to anything the defending European force has or is likely to have for some time. It was reported last evening that the allied forces had blown up the Taku forts and that every available man had been sent to the relief of Tien-tsin. Two thousand three hundred Chinese bodies are alleged to have been cremated at Taku and more than 4,000 Chinese are said to have been killed at Tien-tsin. Chinese runners who have arrived at Taku report a foreign force was engaged several days ago with an overwhelming body of Chinese forty miles west of Tien-tsin. It is assumed that this force was Admiral Seymour's."

Well Known Broker Dead.

Washington, June 26—Arthur Edgerton Bateman, a well known stock-broker, died of heart disease last night at his residence here, aged forty-nine. He acquired a large fortune, reputed to be in the neighborhood of $2,000,000, but became involved at the time of the Baring Bros. failure in 1890 and lost the greater part of it. He was engaged in business in New York and Washington for a number of years as banker and broker.

Mine Flooded and Wrecked.

Belleville, Ill., June 26.—While miners were engaged in making an explosion in the Oak Hill coal mine, west of Belleville yesterday afternoon, they made an excavation into an abandoned mine which was filled with water. The water poured into the Oak Hill pits with great force, flooding and completely wrecking the mine in a remarkably short time. Fifty workmen in the mines came very near losing their lives, being rescued by heroic work of the mine engineer.

NORTH STAR DEMOCRACY

LINES UP ENTHUSIASTICALLY FOR BRYAN AND TOWNE.

Resolutions and Delegates For the Western Men of the Hour—Now Let the "Effete East" Stop Once and Listen. The Greatest of State Conventions. Marked Difference Between Democratic Enthusiasm and Republican Apathy. And Now For Kansas City, Who's Going?—The Special Train Announcements. Other Political Note—The Great Duluth Freight Strike and Its Deep Significance—State and National Points of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, June 25, 1900.

By all odds the most imposing, enthusiastic and effective Democratic state convention ever held in the history of the state was that of last week at Minneapolis, announcing the state sentiment on national men and issues, and selecting the state's representation to Kansas City. The convention—with preconvention discussion and speculation and subsequent comment, which has been universal in approval of all the action taken—has almost completely monopolized political interest of the week.

Features of the convention, aside from the large attendance, unbounded enthusiasm and absolute unanimity, may be briefly enumerated, beginning with the address of State Chairman L. A. Rosing, in the course of which, having covered national and state issues and the record of the state administration, he paid well deserved compliments to his associates of the state central committee and the committeemen throughout the state, especially to Hon. T. D. O'Brien, our popular national committeeman, and to Secretary T. R. Kane for his untiring labors. Mr. Rosing concluded with such a reference to Mr. Towne as touched off the pent-up enthusiasm of the convention for our beloved son, and was the keynote of the ringing endorsement of Mr. Towne, brought in by the committee on resolutions.

A distinct feature was Mr. Hudson's address as temporary and permanent chairman, and the ability with which he conducted the convention.

Other features were the speeches of the gentlemen called upon by the convention, including Mayor Gray of Minneapolis, Mr. Kane and Governor Lind. The latter's was probably one of the shortest speeches on record and never-the-less one of the most effective.

Another feature was the unanimity with which the delegation to Kansas City was selected, not a single ballot being required. Like unanimity was shown in action upon the platform adopted. It was significant that the recognition of Mr. Bryan and Mr. Towne was almost synonomous with the Sioux Falls resolutions, while the money plank is almost exactly the same as adopted by the Peoples party at that convention.

And a very significant feature was the enthusiastic response of the convention to every mention of Governor Lind or his administration.

And speaking of the deep interest attending the convention, what a contrast between the Democratic enthusiasm and the Republican lack of it as to the Republican national convention. During the early days of the Philadelphia-Hanna affair, there was no gathering at the bulletin boards in either St. Paul or Minneapolis. And there was no popular greeting in either place to the nominees when announced.

And now the question is, are you going to Kansas City? If not, why not? It is the duty of every son of the state to go who possibly can. Full particulars of the trip are obtainable from either Democratic or Silver Republican headquarters.

Speaking of the convention trains, both will have bands and both will be decorated for Bryan and Towne "to beat the band." "Solid trains through for Bryan and Towne" they will be. The convention train roads, the Chicago Great Western and the Minneapolis and St. Louis, will do their utmost to deserve the honor accorded them in their selection as official roads.

The next and the last state political events prior to the election will be the state nominating conventions for the Democrats and Peoples party, respectively. Both have been called for Sept. 6 and there is every indication of uniting on one ticket.

Speaking of combines, in the line of those covered by the state convention's denunciation of the Hanna-Payne subsidy, there is a situation at Duluth not only distressing to home shipping interests, but of threatening danger to every interest of Minnesota. This is the understood combine in control of lake rates. The matter seems carefully hidden by some at least of the daily press, who give meager reports to events unless they are favorable to the combine. Thus the published reports are that trouble as to rates has again been patched up, whereas the existing peace seems to be that the lion has the lamb inside, instead of running along by its side. The following summary is made by a gentleman in a position to know, almost officially, what is the real situation:

"The present trouble," says this gentleman, "is the culmination of an old scheme. In the shipping season of 1898 it was commonly talked that the small craft was being forced off the lake. There is now a strong combination, of which Rockefeller is at the head, which, while there was a show of competition, forced the rates down so that the small craft couldn't live. Having practically frozen them out, the rates are now so exorbitant that vessels have lain idle, for the reason that shippers couldn't use them and keep from loss. The little ones are now practically out of the carrying business. This will also affect the independent mine owners and lumbermen, who will find that they cannot ship without prohibitive rates, while the firm at the head of the steamship combine practically controls the mining and lumber business, and so can afford to pay heavily out of one hand into the other. The combine now demands a freight rate that is larger than has been known before, and the days for cheap carrying rates on the lakes are over. This state of affairs is vitally interesting and dangerous to shippers tributary to Duluth."

Particulars concerning this situation will be awaited with deep interest, for it may reasonably be expected that this "murder will out." And yet it will be a question, as Hanna would say, of "What are you going to do about it?" For those fellows who are seizing on the great waterway that God has provided and Uncle Sam improved for use of all the people will say, like Hanna, "We know our business."

Speaking of other transportation interests, decreased railway earnings over last year, marked decreases, as well as in bank clearings, are further gold-standard, Mark Hanna prosperity signs for June to this date.

It actually worried the goppite Fairmont News that Adjutant General Lambert turned out in military uniform to welcome the Boers. Why, bless you, nothing more proper, considering the fight the Boers put up against powerful England—a fight, by the way, they would never have had to make had the McKinley administration been truly American.

The American Federation of Labor raises its banner of unionism and will make the test fight under the leadership of President Gompers, taking the St. Louis cases as the foundation. If need be every city in the country will be involved. Since the St. Louis corporations made that distinct issue, by its refusal to arbitrate the question of union rights, no other course is left labor than to make the fight to the bitter end. Already orders against going to cities affected by strikes are out for a dozen or more large places. President Gompers has an army of 2,000,000 in the unions to follow him, and he has the moral support of a large majority of the people of the land.

The New York World gives the list of trusts organized in the last two years of the McKinley administration. It fills two columns of small type, footing hundreds of millions of dollars. They are more in number and amounts than were organized before in all the history of the country. Four more years of it under McKinley promotion, and where would the country be.

The Republican national committee would skin the Southern officeholders alive, they would, for interference with politics, and passed a resolution calling on McKinley to attend to it. Then Hanna quietly asked Payne to put the paper in his pocket, and he did. That's the way they will do with trusts.

The state railroad commission while investigating rate charges in the southwest, have found reason to investigate rates in general in the state, and such a hearing will be commenced June 26, of which all the roads have been given due notice.

Bad omens from the rep Hanna convention are too numerous to mention. But the most distressing, after the ominous "thirteen" of the minute when Foraker spoke Little Mack's name, was Hanna's entanglement with a funeral procession on the way to the convention on the fatal morning.

And they do say that the manufactured cheering of McKinley lasted thirteen minutes. Blaine's in 1884 lasted three times thirteen, and all know what happened to Blaine.

The death's head and crossbones, also, of Kentucky Taylor were conspicuous, not to mention Quay and other dead things. Altogether the goppite outlook is full of forebodings.

And by way of correction of the statement elsewhere of no enthusiastic ratification in the Twin Cities, Minneapolis had one, with 100 Republicans taking a 10-cent, gold-standard lunch, with ice water, which they called "banquit."

And speaking of conditions, gold continues to go abroad, and Uncle Sam's surplus now stands but a trifle above $65,000,000.

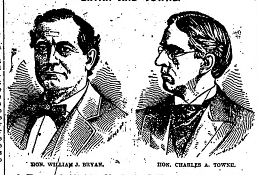
Depew called Mr. Bryan a "body-snatcher." He is right. He has the G. O. P. corpse in the vat.

Even our esteemed "independent" Minneapolis Times discusses the "improbability" of confidential or other letters of W. J. Bryan having been "found" in Aguinaldo's captured correspondence. Along about election time it will be natural for a good many things to be "found," in this way. However, The Times seems rather to discredit the story!

Thanks to prompt action by Governor Lind and Professor Lugger, state entomologist, fears felt at the appearance of grasshoppers in portions of the Red River valley are diminishing. The governor has increased the state allowance to fight the hoppers, and the late rains in that region have assisted to stop the threatened spread of the pests.

G. B. C.

BRYAN AND TOWNE.



HON. WILLIAM J. BRYAN. HON. CHARLES A. TOWNE.

A Team of Mighty Giants to Pull in the Presidential Harness.

MINNESOTA DEMOCRACY

Triumphant, Harmonious, Enthusiastic, Opens State Campaign for President.

Keynotes for Nation by Instructions for Bryan and Towne and by Platform.

No Uncertain Sound in North Star State—Minnesota's Delegation to Kansas City.

It is an easy prediction that the Democratic convention of June 10, the first Democratic gun in the state for the national campaign of 1900 will long hold the record for enthusiasm, attendance, harmony, earnestness, and for its platform declaration as being the expression of the people themselves.

The Platform will prove as historic in a state way as the Chicago platform in a national way, with which the state document is closely in accord in all essential particulars. Inasmuch as it has not been printed in its entirety by any of the papers, it is published herewith for record and for information. The authors are the following gentlemen, given by judicial districts, the resolutions have been reported by the Fourth district member, State Senator S. A. Stockwell:

1st—A. J. Schaller, Hastings.
2nd—T. R. Kane, St. Paul.
3rd—J. F. McGovern, Wabasha.
4th—S. A. Stockwell, Minneapolis.
5th—Peter McGovern, Waseca.
6th—W. S. Hammond, St. James.
7th—J. R. Bennett, Jr., St. Cloud.
8th—W. H. Leman, Henderson.
9th—Thos. E. Davis, Marshall.
10th—W. H. Harris.
11th—Bert Fessler, Duluth.
12th—Edward McManus.
13th—W. B. Brown.
14th—Henry W. Lee.
15th—Geo. C. Gilbert, Grand Rapids.
17th—Geo. Lester, Fairmont.
18th—A. G. Aldrich.

MINNESOTA DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL PLATFORM.

The Democrats of the state of Minnesota, in convention assembled, reaffirm their belief in the great fundamental doctrines of Democracy and in the principles of the national platform at Chicago in 1896 as a wise and authoritative statement of those doctrines.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR BRYAN.

We recognize William Jennings Bryan as the leader of the political forces in this country opposed to the present drift of the government as controlled by selfish interests, and we declare our absolute confidence in his honesty, courage, ability and patriotism. We congratulate the country that his inflexible purpose and strict adherence to principle stand in such hopeful contrast to the vacillation, uncertainty, weakness and subservience to dictation by cruel and powerful influences manifested by the present chief executive.

We appreciate the splendid ability, brilliant attainments, broad statesmanship, unselfish patriotism, great public services and personal sacrifices of that champion of human rights and American liberty, Charles A. Towne; and in accordance with the spontaneous and unanimous demand of the Democrats of Minnesota we instruct our delegates to the Democratic national convention to be held at Kansas City, to support by their votes and every honorable means for the nomination to the presidency of the United States, William J. Bryan, and to the vice presidency Charles A. Towne.

GOVERNOR LIND'S ADMINISTRATION.

The wisdom of looking to the Democrats for the relief has been fully demonstrated in the splendid administration of Gov. Lind, which was cordially indorsed and under whose courageous policy we have seen the corporations made to stand their share of the burden of taxation, while a new freight schedule, recently secured, has made a saving to the farmers of the West and Southwest, of from one to three cents on a bushel of grain.

FOR THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

We believe that the principles of the Declaration of Independence lie at the very foundation of this government, and that, as our history progresses, instead of endeavoring to curtail the operation and meaning of that great charter of human liberties, it should be the constant ambition of the government and the people to approximate nearer and nearer to a complete realization of that high ideal. The important truth that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed is as true today as when enunciated by the fathers of the republic, and we here and now repledge ourselves to the time honored doctrine of a government "of" for and by the people."

ON IMPERIALISM AND MILITARISM.

We deprecate the present tendency of the Republican party toward the establishment of militarism in the United States and the transformation of this republic into an imperial system, forcing its authority upon unwilling people, and ruling subject nations against their consent. We declare that this nation cannot endure half free and half vassal; that the constitution of the United States must go wherever the flag of the republic is permanently planted, and it is our abiding conviction that the American people will never deliberately approve a surrender of the fundamental doctrines of this government and the immortal principles of the Declaration of Independence.

AS TO TRUSTS AND COMBINATIONS

We demand the enforcement of existing laws against trusts and combinations of capital for the arbitrary control of industry and trade, and the enactment of whatever additional legislation is necessary to insure the healthful play of competition in all branches of business. Believing that nearly every article upon which there is a traiff has gone into a trust, and the price thereof to the consumer has been raised from 25 to over 100 per cent, we demand that all articles in the United States which are controlled by a trust shall be put upon the free list.

NATIONAL MONEY PLANK.

We believe in the principle of bimetalism, and we demand the reopening of the mints of the United States to the unrestricted coinage of both silver and gold at the existing legal ratio without charge; the immediate increase in the volume of silver coin and silver certificates so issued to be substituted dollar for dollar for the bank notes issued by private corporations under the special privileges granted by the law of March 14, 1900, and prior national banking laws, the remaining portion of the bank notes to be replaced with a paper currency issue by the government itself, the volume thereof to be so controlled, under rules laid down by congress as to maintain at all times a stable money market and a stable price level; all forms of money and currency to be kept on a parity, and all gold and silver coins and certificates and government currency to be a lawful tender for all debts public and private, except where otherwise specified in existing contracts, it being made unlawful thenceforth to contract for the payment of any special form of money.

SYMPATHY FOR THE SOUTH AFRICANS.

We sympathize, as heretofore the American people have always done throughout our history, with the efforts of nations fighting for the right of self government, and we extend our sincere sympathy to those unfortunate republics of South Africa that for the past several months have been, with a heroism unsurpassed in the annals of the world, opposing the love of liberty to the lust of conquest and sustaining the cause of republican government against the greed of an empire which, as at present controlled, is restrained by no consideration of right or justice. If freedom must find a grave in South Africa it is our earnest hope and prayer that it may have a re-birth in the United States of America.

MUST KEEP FAITH WITH CUBA.

We demand the honest performance by this government of its promise, now more than two years old, to the people of Cuba that they should be given independence and self government when we should have expelled the Spanish power and have pacified that island.

REPEAL OF WAR TAXES.

We demand the repeal of the socalled war taxes as being vexatious to the conduct of business, oppressive upon many industries and productive of more money than is needed for the economical conduct of the government, thus constituting an encouragement to extravagance and corruption.

POSTAL SAVING BANKS.

We favor the passage of laws that will give to the people of the United States a postal savings bank, where savings can be deposited with safety and where the funds deposited will not be used against the will of the wage-earning depositors.

TAX ON INCOMES.

We favor the passage of a law for the graduated taxation of incomes, and a constitutional amendment for that purpose if necessary.

ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATORS.

We demand the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

REFERENDUM AND PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

We favor the extension of the principles of the initiative and referendum and of the public ownership of natural monopolies.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

We re-affirm our allegiance to the Monroe doctrine, and insist upon its application to present conditions.

HANNA-PAYNE SUBSIDY.

We denounce the manifest intent of the Republican party to force the passage of the Hanna-Payne Subsidy bill as a party measure, should the Republican party prevail at this election.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

We condemn the Republican administration for its injury to the cause of Civil Service Reform, by removing a large number of appointive offices from under the operation of its Civil Service law.

ARRAIGNMENT OF M'KINLEY ADMINISTRATION.

We denounce the present administration as one whose inconsistencies, abuses of power, betrayals of American principles and scandalous misgovernment have rightfully forfeited the trust and confidence of the American people. We denounce it for betraying the cause of international bimetalism, which in its platform of 1896 it solemnly promised to promote; for its open and notorious partnership with trusts and combines, as manifested by refusals upon the part of the attorney general and his subordinates to enforce existing laws, and the failure, with a majority in both houses of congress for the past two years, to enact any further legislation in this direction; for its breach of faith to the people of Cuba; for its cold indifference in the presence of the unprovoked onslaught of the existing British Government upon the liberties of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State; for its open co-operation, if not indeed actual alliance with the British Empire; for its change of a war for the liberation of Cuba into a war for the conquest and subjugation of the Philippine islands; for its practice of "criminal aggression" under the hypocritical pretense of "benevolent assimilation;" for its broken promises to Porto Rico, which the government welcomed to all the privileges and immunities of the United States, but which the administration has loaded with burdens and the ignominy of a vassal; for the shameful scandals in the conduct of the war with Spain and in the subsequent maladministration of the islands acquired in that war, as shown by the investigations under which Gen. Egan was dismissed; by the disbursements of vast sums of money in army and naval contracts through favoritism and collusion; and by the postal and revenue frauds in those islands which are today affording the People of the United States an object lesson of what irresponsible and despotic government means when mistakenly attempted under republican institutions; and for unparalleled extravagance in the conduct of the government whereby the appropriations for the fiscal year 1901, without counting the $131,000,000 credited to the "war with Spain," which was concluded nearly a year and a half ago, amounted to $50,000,000 in excess of our expenditures during the fiscal year 1898, before the Spanish war broke out, and without, also, considering the many millions which everybody knows must next year be appropriated to supply a certain deficit created by the cowardice of the administration in not daring to confess to full extent of its extravagance.

MINNESOTA DELEGATION TO KANSAS CITY CONVENTION.

The following are the delegates and alternates who will represent Minnesota at the Kansas City convention July 4, with postoffice addresses. It is important to have this list absolutely correct, and if there are any corrections they should be sent at once to Hon. L. A. Rosing, St. Paul.

DELEGATES-AT-LARGE
T. D. O'Brien, St. Paul.
L. A. Rosin, St. Paul.
P. B. Winston, Minneapolis.
C. O. Baldwin, Duluth.

ALTERNATES-AT-LARGE.
Winn Powers.
J. J. Thornton, St. James.
Geo. F. Porter, Minneapolis.
Beriah McGoffin, Proctor Knott.

FIRST DISTRICT DELEGATES.
C. F. Buck, Winona.
William Gausewitz, Owatonna.

FIRST DISTRICT ALTERNATES.
S. A. Smith.
Jas. M. Hanley.

SECOND DISTRICT DELEGATES.
H. Himmelman, Mankato.
S. B. Nelson, Luverne.

ALTERNATES.
Dr. M. N. Tripplett, Dawson.
J. J. Green, Mankato.

THIRD DISTRICT DELEGATES.
R. T. Daly, Renville.
F. L. Glotzbach, Fairbault.

ALTERNATES.
Dr. B. F. Gorman.
G. Faber.

FOURTH DISTRICT DELEGATES.
Humphrey Barton, St. Paul.
J. J. Kilty, Stillwater.

ALTERNATES.
Fred L. McGhee, St. Paul.
T. J. McDermott, St. Paul.

FIFTH DISTRICT DELEGATES.
W. H. Donahue, Minneapolis.
Julius J. Heinrich, Minneapolis.

ALTERNATES.
Ed Egan, Osseo.
Harry Stone, Minneapolis.

SIXTH DISTRICT DELEGATES.
J. D. Sullivan, St. Cloud.
L. M. Davis, Duluth.

ALTERNATES.
Chas. Reinholstein.
J. T. McDonald.

SEVENTH DISTRICT DELEGATES.
John R. McKinnon, Crookston.
W. P. Bailey, Fergus Falls.

ALTERNATES.
T. F. O'Hair, Wheaton.
C. W. Stanton, Appleton.

The exchange of old bonds for new 2 per cents has passed the $300,000,000 mark.

Chicago's colored population is deeply interested in a plan to establish a colony in Hawaii.

General Joseph Wheeler has been assigned to the command of the Department of the Lakes.

The estimated population of the United States, from figures furnished by enumerators now at work, is 78,000,000.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

Lillian Russell indignantly denies that she is engaged to William C. Whitney. Miss Russell's denial was the first news of the matter that got into general circulation.

A military expert says, in Harper's Weekly, that the number of wagons and animals required to supply an army increases in geometric ratio with each day's march from the base. The statement makes it easier to understand why forces can be moved so much more rapidly in the offices of sensational newspapers than in the field.

Heavy is the burden of poetic ancestors which weighs on the little son recently born to the Hon. Neville Lytton, heir-presumptive to the earldom of Lytton. Through his father he is grandson of Owen Meredith and great-grandson of Bulwer Lytton, and through his mother great-grandson of Lord Byron and grandson of Wilfrid Blunt.

The establishment of international telegraphs and telephones has made possibly direct dialogues between the foreign offices of different governments. A writer in the National Review sees herein a lightening of the duties of diplomatic functionaries and a possible diminution of their importance. The world is becoming one neighborhood.

During the past winter, which has been marked by uncommonly high temperatures in the Northern Hemisphere, a similar elevation of temperature appears to have occurred in the Southern Hemisphere, which, of course, has its summer when we have our winter. In South America, South Africa and Austria exceedingly hot weather was experienced while our part of the world was enjoying a mild winter.

The studies of the zodiacal light made at sea lead Mr. F. J. Bayldon, formerly of the British navy, to remark that the air over the Pacific Ocean appears clearer and better adapted for celestial observation than that lying over the Atlantic Ocean. Honolulu is admirably situated for clearness of air, and it may become an important outpost in astronomy. It has already been selected as one of the chief points for the study of the vibrations of the earth.

A very large attendance has characterized the Paris exposition ever since the formal opening. The American attendance is much larger than was anticipated. President Loubet of the French republic, attends every dedication made necessary by the delayed completion and throwing open to the public of the various buildings. The two palaces of fine arts were opened, with pictures by several hundred American artists prominently displayed. American sculptors have a fine display, while architects, engravers, and miniature painters have a separate section. It is claimed that America excels in all the arts except sculpture.

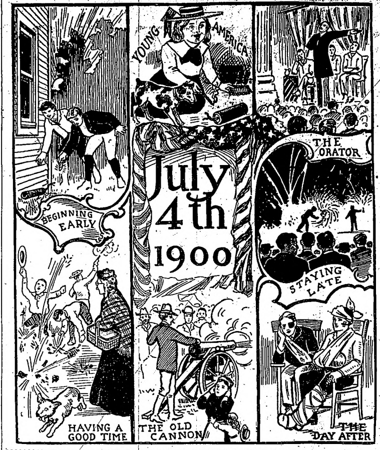
It is well known that Mrs. Emmons Blaine has made munificent provision for establishing the Chicago Institute, with the twofold object of providing ideal educational conditions from kindergarten to college and offering to teachers the best advantages for professional training. One feature of the enterprise which is not often mentioned is of much importance. After the staff of instruction was appointed, the twenty-six men and women who comprise the staff were placed under salaries and were allowed a year for maturing their own qualifications before being called to their respective chairs. Most of them are now pursuing special studies at universities.

In a little western town, originally settled by Quakers, stands a church in which the practice of seating men and women apart still prevails. A few years ago, a newcomer mustered courage to cross the aisle and sit beside his bride. The second Sunday another man committed the same offence, and the third Sunday saw a generous sprinkling of bared heads alongside spring bonnets. The aged minister, with outraged sense of propriety, chose for his text: "Let destruction come upon him at unawares; and let his net that he hath hid catch himself;" and minced no words in exposition. The men who had dared to stray from established custom rebelled at being eternally doomed for sitting beside their wives, and left the church in a body. The result is that today in that little town stands two church buildings, side by side, counterparts in size and paint and outlook; but in one the sexes are divided by a middle isle, while in the other "promiscuous sitting" prevails. The trivialities which hinder Christian comity may travel far for an apter illustration.

Fire insurance experts' report that the last year has been one of great fire losses. They think the "moral hazard" as the risk of people burning their own property to get the insurance money is called, was probably smaller than usual on account of the good times. When buildings are pretty well occupied there is less temptation to commit the offense than in a period of stagnation. Just now, electricity comes in for a good share of the blame for fires. As a cause, it operates for the most part out of sight, behind walls and under floors.

Envoy Fischer, in a recent speech, placed the Boer strength in all at between 35,000 and 40,000 men. That such a small army as this should hold the greatest empire in the world at bay for eight months will hereafter rightly be regarded as one of the most brilliant and notable exploits in the annals of patriotism and heroism.

An Arizona man is only half paralyzed from the bite of a Gila monster; which suggests that the creature is just half as poisonous as four or five drinks of Arizona whisky.



THE PATRIOT SPY.

FRANCIS M. FINCH.

To drum beat and heart beat
A soldier marches by;
There is color in his cheek,
There is courage in his eye;
Yet to drum beat and heart beat,
In a moment he must die.

By star-light and moon-light
He seeks the Briton's camp,
He hears the rustling flag
And the armed sentry's tramp;
And the star light and moon light
His silent wanderings lamp.

With slow tread and still tread,
He scans the tented line;
And he counts the battery guns
By the gaunt and shadowy pine,
And his slow tread and still tread
Give no warning sign.

The dark wave, the plumed wave!
It meets his eager glance,
And it sparkles 'neath the stars
Like the glimmer of a lance,—
A dark wave, a plumed wave,
On an emerald expanse.

A sharp clang, a steel clang!
And terror in the sound,
For the sentry, falcon-eyed,
In the camp a spy hath found;
With a sharp clang, a steel clang
The patriot is bound.

With calm brow, steady brow,
He listens to his doom;
In his look there is no fear,
Nor a shadow-trace of gloom;
But with calm brow, and steady brow,
He robes him for the tomb.

In the long night, the still night,
He kneels upon the sod,
And the brutal guards withhold
E'en the precious Word of God;
In the long night, the still night,
He walks where Christ has trod.

'Neath the blue morn, the sunny morn,
He dies upon the tree,
And he mourns that he can lose
But one life for liberty;—
And in the blue morn, the sunny morn,
His spirit-wings are free.

But his last words, his message words,
They burn, lest friendly eye
Should read how proud and calm
A patriot could die,
With his last words, his message words,
A soldier's battle-cry!

From Fame Leaf and from Angel Leaf,
From Monument and Urn,
The sad of earth, the glad of heaven,
His history shall learn,
And on Fame Leaf and Angel Leaf
The name of Hale shall burn.

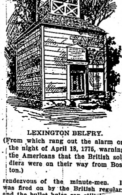
LEXINGTON AND ITS COMMON.....

The village of Lexington lies about ten miles northwest of Boston. The first settlement was made there in 1640 near the site of what afterwards became known as the Buckman Tavern. There still remain in the village several well-preserved houses which were standing at the time of the battle of Lexington 125 years ago. They have been well cared for and have undergone little change. They add much to the historic interest of the place and are annually visited by thousands of tourists. The local historical society has placed tablets on them enumerating the dates and facts of especial interest.

Lexington Common is in the form of a triangle and stands nearly in the center of the village. At the time of the fight on April 19, 1775, it was an open space and used as a drill ground for the militia. Today it is a beautiful park. At the southern end of the triangle is what is known as the Pulpit monument, in the form of a granite pedestal surmounted by an open Bible. This monument stands on the site of the first three churches built by the colonists. Just behind it, properly protected, is a thrifty elm which was set out by Gen. Grant 25 years ago on the centennial anniversary of the battle. Near the northwest corner of the Common is the Minute-men monument, at the foot of which are buried those killed in the battle. It is quaintly inscribed and bears the names of those whose last resting place it marks. In 1824 Lafayette was given a public reception in front of this monument, and fourteen survivors of Capt. Parker's men shook hands with him. Near the northeast corner of the Common is a huge boulder marking the place where Parker's men were drawn up. Engraved on the boulder is a musket and Capt. Parker's command to his men.

The original church on the Common had no steeple and a belfry was erected near by. In 1761 a new belfry was erected on Belfry hill, just to the west of the Common. From this belfry rang out the alarm on that memorable morning 125 years ago. The belfry remained on the hill until 1791: then it was removed to the Common and its bell was used to summon the people to worship, to toll for their funerals, and to tell them at 9 o'clock each night that it was time to rake up the fires and go to bed. In 1797 it was bought by a son of Capt. John Parker and removed to his homestead, remaining there for nearly a century. Then it was purchased by the Lexington Historical society, restored to its original appearance and replaced on Belfry hill.

Three buildings of great historical interest stand one opposite each of the three sides of the Common. To the east is the Merriam House, known at the time as the Buckman Tavern, the rendezvous of the minute-men. It was fired on by the British regulars and the bullet holes can still be seen.



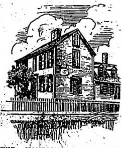
LEXINGTON BELFRY.

(From which rang out the alarm on the night of April 18, 1775, warning the Americans that the British soldiers were on their way from Boston.)

To the west of the Common is the Monroe house, built in 1728. A bullet passed through the glass over the door and imbedded itself in a bureau. The bureau, bullet and all, is in the possession of one of Monroe's descendants at Chicopee, Mass.

At the north of the Common is the Harrington house, at the door of which the original owner died with his head in his wife's lap the morning of April 19, 1775.

Only 100 rods northeast of the Common is the famous Hancock-Clark house. The original part of the house, which is now the rear L, as shown in the illustration, was erected in 1698 by Rev. John Hancock. His son built the two-story front in 1734. After Rev. John Hancock's death it passed into the hands of Rev. Jonas Clark, who had married Hancock's granddaughter. The ministry of John Hancock and Jonas Clark extended over a period of 105 years. Young John Hancock and Samuel Adams were hiding with Rev. Jonas Clark in this house when warned to flee by Paul Revere —A. M. D.



THE HANCOCK-CLARK HOUSE, LEXINGTON, MASS.

ADAMS' SPEECH.

John Adams, second president of the United States, was a man of great vigor and directness. He was the most prominent advocate of the declaration of independence, in the Continental congress. In the following extract, Daniel Webster utters what he thinks might naturally have been Mr. Adams' language while speaking on this theme. Some of the members of of congress were timid—afraid of openly resisting the great power of England. They are stimulated here, by the most encouraging considerations, to go on and make the declaration:

"But, whatever may be our fate, be assured, be assured, that this declaration will stand. It may cost treasure, and it may cost blood; but it will stand, and it will richly compensate for both. Through the thick gloom of the present, I see the brightness of the future as the sun in heaven. We shall make this a glorious, an immortal, day. When we are in our graves, our children will honor it. They will celebrate it with thanksgiving, with festivity, with bonfires and illuminations. On its annual return, they will shed tears—copious, gushing tears, not of subjection and slavery, not of agony and distress, but of exultation, of gratitude, and of joy. Sir, before God, I believe the hour is come. My judgment approves this measure, and my whole heart is in it. All that I have, and all that I am, and all that I hope, in this life, I am now ready here to stake upon it; and I leave off as I began, that, live or die, survive or perish, I am for the declaration. It is my living sentiment, and, by the blessing of God, it shall be my dying sentiment—Independence now; and Independence forever!"

Hindoos Are Vegetarians.

The Hindoo is a strict vegetarian. The low caste Hindoo is a fatalist. So, when the famine stalks abroad the Hindoo submits uncomplainingly. Day by day he will subsist on less food, until at last, when a mere shadow, he will drag his bony self to a relief station. There he may get food—or he may not. If not, he crouches in some corner, or out in the fields, under the trees and awaits the coming of death.

Mule Catches Turtles.

A mule patrols the beach at St. Augustine, Fla., in quest of turtles. When she has found one she turns it on its back, and then ambles off to inform her master.

A man never accomplishes much till he has got something behind him to be ashamed of.

THE FIRST BATTLE.

IN THE WAR FOR OUR INDEPENDENCE.

How the American Farmers Drove the British Back to Charlestown—The Latter Were Permitted to Fire the Opening Guns.

It is the night of April 18, 1775, in the little village of Concord, some eighteen miles northwest of Boston. The gray-haired sires have gathered their little flocks about them, read a chapter from the Good Book and prayed for King George and the Colony of Massachusetts. The fires have been raked up in the open hearths, the candles have been extinguished and the good people of the little village have retired for their rest.

Suddenly the clatter of a horse's hoofs are heard, echoing along the road, leading from Lexington and young Dr. Prescott, who has spent the evening in that village, gallops into the town and sends up the cry: "The red-coats are coming! Awake! Awake!"

The news which Dr. Prescott brings is dire news indeed. One Paul Revere and a man named Dawes have galloped from Boston to Lexington with the information that the British regulars to the number of 800 under Col. Francis Smith and Maj. Pitcairn are on the march toward Lexington and Concord. Their purpose is the capture of Samuel Adams and John Hancock, two colonial leaders whose activity and fearlessness have made them especially obnoxious to Gen. Gage and the destruction of military stores which Gage has learned are hidden in Concord. The doctor reports that he was present when Adams and Hancock were aroused from their beds at the Hancock-Clark house and induced to flee; that he and Revere and Dawes then started for Concord; that the two Boston messengers were surrounded and captured, but that he leaped his horse over a stone wall and managed to escape by riding hard across the fields.

The people are thoroughly aroused by his story and messengers are sent out afoot and ahorse to alarm the people of other villages, while the local minute-men gather and parade in the darkness of the Common. As daylight comes, Col. James Barrett, commander of the militia, hurries hither and thither directing the work of removing the military stores to new hiding places, the farmers gladly tendering their huge wagons and ox teams to the service. Even the women carry away ammunition and hide it in their feather beds. While Col. Barrett is thus engaged, Maj. Buttrick leads the minute-men, to the number of fifty or more, to the top of the Old Hill burying ground, directly overlooking the Common and the road from Lexington. There are some fiery spirits among them, but the majority are sober-minded men—men who do not want war, who are still loyal subjects of his dull-brained majesty, King George, but who would die rather than yield one jot or tittle of what they believe to be their just rights. Moving among them with prayers and words of encouragement is their beloved minister, Rev. William Emerson, whose grandson, Ralph Waldo Emerson, is to become famous the world over, a century later.

The devoted little band on the hill await they know not what. Perhaps the red coats will turn back when they see the colonists are disposed to oppose them in their work of destroying the military stores. They did so at Salem and other places.

It is about 7 o'clock when the scouts whom Maj. Buttrick has sent out on the Lexington road hurry back and report that the regulars are almost on them and that they are in great force. There are 600 light infantrymen and 200 grenadiers. Maj. Buttrick's little company of minute-men has by this time been swelled to perhaps 150, for the alarm has been widely spread and minute-men are constantly arriving in twos, in dozens and in scores. Shall they retreat and take up a new position? There is a difference of opinion among them. Rev. William Emerson, grand old preacher-patriot that he is, argues against a retreat.

"Let us stand our ground," he says; "if we die, let us die here!"

How like is this to the command which Parker had given his minute-men on Lexington Common only a few hours previously: "Stand your ground! Don't fire unless fired on! But if they mean to have a war let it begin here!"

As the minute-men march away to the north the British troops enter the village. Col. Smith immediately details a number of men to search for and destroy military stores in the center of the village. To prevent the possible arrival of companies of minute-men from other towns he sends a company to guard the South bridge, and orders Capt. Lawrence to take six companies and proceed to the North bridge, to which he learns the local minute-men have already retired. Arriving at the North bridge and seeing the minute-men grouped across the river, on the hill to the right, Capt. Lawrence leaves three companies under Capt. Laurie to guard the bridge while he sends the other three companies, under Capt. Parsons, across the bridge, not to attack the minute-men but to proceed along the road to the left and search the house of Col. James Barrett for munitions of war which are said to be stored there.

While Col. Smith is thus engaged in sending out his men, Maj. Pitcairn, who seems to be somewhat of a swashbuckler, enters Wright's tavern for refreshments. As he stirs his hot toddy with his finger he turns to a group of fellow officers and boastfully says:

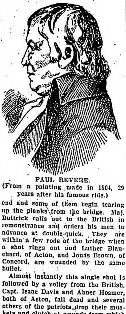
"Thus will I stir the Yankee blood before night!"

Little does he realize how true a prediction he is making. Little dreams he of how the Yankee blood is to be stirred by that day's events—stirred until it refuses to quiet before the misused colonies have united and by means of a long and bloody war have won their place as a free and powerful nation.

The minute-men on the hill at the northern extremity of the village see the smoke arising from the fires kindled in the center of the village and Capt. Joseph Hosmer turns indignantly to Col. Barrett and demands:

"Will you let them burn the town?"

Col. Barrett now calls the other militia officers about him and they consult over the situation. Finally they resolve to "march into the middle of the town and protect their homes or die in the attempt." But it is understood that they are not to fire upon the British regulars unless they are fired on first. The march is immediately begun with the minute-men from the neighboring town of Acton in the lead, under command of Capt. Isaac Davis. As the minute-men approach the west end of the North bridge the British soldiers draw up at the other end and some of them begin tearing up the planks from the bridge. Maj. Buttrick calls out to the British in remonstrance and orders his men to advance at double-quick. They are within a few rods of the bridge when a shot rings out and Luther Blanchard, of Acton, and Jonas Brown, of Concord, are wounded by the same bullet.



PAUL REVERE.

(From a painting made in 1804, 29 years after his famous ride.)

Almost instantly this single shot is followed by a volley from the British. Capt. Isaac Davis and Abner Hosmer, both of Acton, fall dead and several others of the patriots drop their muskets and clutch at wounds from which the blood is gushing. The war has begun.

Maj. Buttrick, now as hot for the fight as he was earnest for delay, springs to one side, fires his musket at the British and shouts out his order:

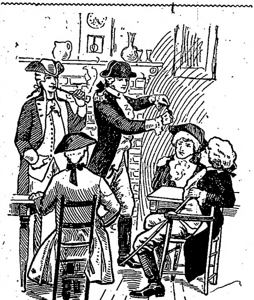
"Fire, fellow soldiers! For God's sake, fire!"

A volley crashes out and the first British soldiers to die in the face of the colonists drop to the ground. Three of them fall dead and a half a dozen are wounded, among the latter being three minor officers.

The British immediately retreat toward the center of the town, and the Americans follow them a little way and then turn off and draw up on the hillside. The regulars carry one of their dead with them, but two are left lying on the bloody ground.

Hearing the firing at North Bridge, Capt. Parsons ceases his work of destruction at Col. Barrett's and hastens with his three companies towards the scene of conflict. His progress is not interfered with, and the minute men on the hill watch him as he joins his defeated comrades.

During all this time reinforcements have constantly been adding to the number of minute-men, and they are growing more and more confident. Moreover, Col. Smith sees that the people are desperately in earnest. He gathers his men together, marches, halts, countermarches, hesitates and finally, fearing that in further conflict his command may be utterly worsted, he gives the order to return and his soldiers turn their faces toward Boston. They have no premonition of the very hell of shot which shall accompany them until they sink exhausted and decimated under the protection of the warships at Charlestown. Truly, Maj. Pitcairn has stirred the Yankee blood. The Lexington road through Concord curves in almost a semicircle and while the regulars are wearily marching southward over the route by which they so bravely came in the early morning, the minute-men swarm through the fields behind the wooded hill which skirts the road, thus getting by a shorter route in advance of the regulars.



MAJOR PITCAIRN AND HIS TODDY.

["Thus will I stir the Yankee blood before night."]

At Meriam's corner the minute-men secrete themselves behind rocks, trees and stone fences, and as the British come along the road the muskets of the colonists cough out leaden death, from front and side and rear. Pitcairn's horse is wounded and throws him. The swashbuckler receives a bullet in the arm; and, binding up his wound, trudges wearily on with his men. Pitcairn has learned something since he shouted "Disperse, ye rebels, disperse!" and fired his pistol in the faces of the rustics on Lexington Common. He has stirred the Yankee blood until his own is dripping through his coat sleeve. A musket ball enters Col. Smith's leg. Men drop dead and wounded from one end of the line to the other.

At last the British reach Lexington, pass the Common, scene of the bloody tragedy of but a few hours before, and see down the road but a little ways what must have brought relief to their harrowed spirits—Lord Percy and a thousand troops sent out from Boston as reinforcements.

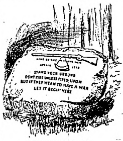
Like hunted deer close pursued by hounds the panting British rush forward and fall exhausted within the lines made safe by Percy's cannon and musketrymen. Drink and food are furnished for as many as possible from the Monroe tavern, which Percy has made his headquarters, and the wounds of such injured as have been able to keep up with the weary march are hurriedly dressed.

The day is now well spent and Percy fears the consequences of remaining till dark. Speedily he forms the troops in order and the march toward Boston is resumed.

And the colonists? Are they content with the disaster they have inflicted?

Not so. Scarcely has the march been resumed until they are on the flanks of the retreating British again. And thus it is until Charlestown itself is reached and the red-coats, worn, dispirited, decimated, fling themselves under the protection of the guns on board the ships of war in the river.

The first day of the American revolution is passed. Forty-nine colonists have been killed and thirty-six wounded. But the British loss has been far heavier—seventy-three killed, 173 wounded, and twenty-six missing.



STAND YOUR GROUND
DON'T FIRE UNLESS FIRED UPON
BUT IF THEY MEAN TO HAVE A WAR
LET IT BEGIN HERE

HISTORIC STONE.

(This historic old bowlder lies on the northeast corner of the Lexington Common and marks the position of the American minutemen when fired on by the British, April 19, 1775. On it is chiseled the command of Capt. Parker to his men.)

Wales as a Jockey.

The Prince of Wales once rode and won a horse-race. This event took place in Ireland, nearly forty years ago. The horse's name was Rupee, and the distance run a mile and a half. To the spectators the jockey was known as "Capt. Melville." His colors on this occasion were all white. Rupee was the prince's own horse. He determined to ride him himself, and, if possible, to win. This he did, though there were several experienced jockeys riding against him.

A Business Point of View.

They had gone through the fire drill four weeks, and the other day when visitors were present the teacher thought it well to show the results of their training. "What is your first duty in case of fire?" she inquired of the school. "Sue the insurance company," shouted a youngster.—Detroit Free Press.

Snowblindness in Kansas.

A large number of cases of snowblindness are reported from western Kansas. The late snowstorm of April 10 scattered the cattle widely and cattlemen were out for days hunting them in a snow on which the sun shone brightly.—Leavenworth (Kas.) Times.

DARA'S TREASURE CHEST

[Arranged from James Russell Lowell's poem "Dara."]

Away in far-off Persia lived Dara, a shepherd. By day he watched his flocks as they cropped grass from the hillside, and at night he saw that they were carefully guarded from the wolves, which came from near-by forests to carry off and devour the sheep.

So faithful was Dara to his fleecy subjects, and so wisely did he look after the affairs of his own household, that the villagers, humble folk like himself, chose him to govern their village. Their choice was a fortunate one, for so well did the village propper under his rule, that several neighboring villages selected him to govern them. Under his sway they, too, throve, growing in well-being and justice. But in the cities of Persia, and indeed in most of the villages and country districts, affairs went ill. The viceroys, or assistant rulers, were unjust, dishonest and cruel. Who could wonder at this? Their monarch was a weak and wicked man, debased by every conceivable vice. An unconscious and willing slave to the flattery of his viceroys, who well knew how to gain his consent to any plan, no matter how unjust or cruel, if it only served to enrich the royal pocket, and, unknown to him, add to their own possessions.

But it chanced that the king died, a victim to his own wicked indulgences. To the throne now came "a king more wise." He searched for men to aid him in ruling who should be brave and just. The mountain shepherd's fame had reached his ears. For Dara he sent and to him gave a satrapy, or province, in trust to rule.

This unexpected elevation did not make Dara conceited. He took no more pride in his viceroy's sceptre than in his shepherd's crook which he held in earlier days. Envy, however, soon pursued Dara, and found more listeners in towns and cities than in hillside villages. It wanted a chance to undo Dara's favor with the king.

At stated times Persia's monarch sent out a demand for tax, or revenue, to every province. This revenue was not paid wholly in money, but partly with gold and gems, in which the country was rich.

So greatly had Dara's province grown in wealth and honor that immediately upon receipt of the tax edict the treasures were collected and sent to the king's exchequer. The advance and wealth of the province pleased the king, but displeased others, who hated to see Dara so successful. Soon its was whispered to the king that he had been greatly deceived in believing Dara to be honest. Enemies accused the viceroy of keeping from the king's tax some gems more rare than all the rest for his own private store.

For proof they stated that no matter where the viceroy went a camel followed, bearing a heavy chest. Closely guarded were beast and burden by archers armed with bows and arrows, directed to shoot any who came too near. No one save Dara knew its contents. At times the chest was carried into his tent, where, secure from observation, he removed the precious gems from their hiding place. Then all the tent glowed and glistened with jeweled light.

The king was vexed. With a retinue among which were Dara's accusers, he immediately set out for Dara's province to investigate.

The viceroy heard of his monarch's approach, and, as was fit, with stately train met him at the city's gate. And there in the midst of the procession was seen, as had been told, a camel circled round by archers.

The monarch was furious. To his mind there was no doubt of Dara's guilt.

"Open me now," he cried, "yon treasure chest!" 'Twas done, and only a worn shepherd's vest was found therein.

The defamers flushed and hung their heads.

Not Dara. Open as the sky's blue roof he stood.

And "Oh, my lord, behold that I was worthy of thy trust," he said. "To rule wisely I had first to be master of myself. Fortune's gifts are hard to wisely bear. They often bend men from the truth and make them stagger from the path of honesty. When prosperity was pressing hard and I was tempted to yield some point of honor I ordered this chest to be borne into my tent. Alone, I took from it that vest. At its sight my mind was taken to the days when, though but a humble sheep tender, I was honest and trustworthy. As my better self struggled for victory, this mute witness helped me to be lord of simple Dara still. With this in view I cannot lose the road of right."

The king felt deeply rebuked for his distrust. Tears thrilled his eyelids. Before night two provinces were added to Dara's kingdom.—Bessie F. Clements, in the Chicago Record.

Return of Miracles.

Dr. Sheldon would better give himself longer than a week wherein to unravel the servant girl problem. If he straightens it out in five years the country will rise up and hail him as a worker of miracles.—Kansas City Times.

Eve may have had her troubles, but Adam never brought his friends home to dinner unexpectedly.

A PASS IS HANDY.

Valuable Hints for Those Intending to Visit the Paris Exposition.

If going abroad it is always the best to take a passport, says Leslie's Weekly. Although one is not necessary in France, it is often useful in case of admittance to public buildings or should one's identity be required. The first thing to do upon arriving in Paris is to register at the American consulate, and it is well to know that the hours are from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. The hours of the American bankers are from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. All postal money orders from foreign countries, made payable at Paris, must be cashed at the general postoffice. If uncertain of one's address, letters with G. P. O.—general postoffice—Paris, will be found at the general postoffice. Letters for foreign countries should be posted before 6 p. m. at the general postoffice, instead of at branch offices. There are 85 branch offices—bureaux de poste—in the different districts of Paris. They are open from 7 a. m. till 9 p. m. Boxes for the posting of letters are also to be found at most public buildings and at tobacconists' shops, where stamps (timbres-poste) and post cards (cartes postales) can be purchased. A telegraph office is found at nearly all branch postoffices, which are open till 9 p. m. At the bourse the telegraph office is open all night. The tariff for telegrams, for any part of France, is 5 cents per word; for Great Britain, 25 cents per word, and for New York, 60 cents per word—that is, for cablegrams. There is communication by telephone with all parts of Paris from most of the postoffices. The charge is 50 cents per five minutes. There is also communication by telephone with Marseilles, Lyons, Havre and Brussels. Upon engaging a cab ask the driver for his number. This ticket will be of use in case of any dispute. A cab hired in the street for two persons is 40 cents per hour from 6 a. m. to 12:30 midnight; from that hour till 6 a. m., 50 cents per hour. There is no charge for small parcels taken inside the cab; for a trunk or large parcel the charge is 25 cents each. A few sous—pourboire—will be expected by the driver. Any article forgotten in a cab should be asked for at the prefecture de police, 2 Quai du Marche-Neuf, from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. Any complaint should be referred to the guardian stationed at every cab stand or to a policeman. The hours for religious services are as follows: American Episcopal church, 19 Avenue de l'Alma, 11 a. m.; Church of England (Episcopal), 5 Rue des Bassins, near the Arc de Triomphe, 11 a. m.; English Roman Catholic church, 50 Avenue Hoche, 7 and 11 a. m. and 4 p. m.; English Congregational chapel, 23 Rue Royale, 11:15 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; Wesleyan Methodist church, 4 Rue Roquepine, 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

MODEL INDIAN SERVANT.

Description of the Siwash Indian as Domesticated.

The Siwash is a short, dirty, undemonstrative, harmless looking Indian. He appears on the surface to be part Oriental and the rest Eskimo. Perhaps a Chinese or a Japanese sailing ship was blown out of the Bering sea and up the Yukon, the survivors got ashore, mixed up with the aborigines, and the Siwash resulted. The northwest is not densely populated, but where it is settled the native is a Siwash. The natives there, however, are not so useful as the natives of South Africa. The English who go there to trek and prospect use the South Africans for servants and for beasts of burden. Some of them try to use the Siwash, but with little success. Capt. B. had one, however, that was a jewel. His master grew very proud of his Siwash servant, or "man," as he called him. One day a friend was visiting at the cabin. The visitor had been out for a stroll with his host. Returning to his cabin they passed the window of a little lean-to that had been fixed up as the captain's bath. As the men peered in through the open window they saw the Indian. He had just stepped out of a warm bath. Upon the floor lay the soiled towels. The Indian was standing on his master's bath robe in front of the small mirror, vigorously scrubbing his teeth with his master's tooth brush. The visitor, who hated Indians, looked at the captain. Without a word the captain grabbed an old barrel stave and darted around to the door. The visitor heard a spank, a yell, and saw the naked Siwash shoot out through the narrow window and scoot for the woods.

Escaped Successfully.

In 1879 the Crown Princess of Denmark, while on a tour through Europe, was robbed of jewels valued at £70,000. These were taken from the saloon of the vessel in which the Princess was traveling incognito, by some expert thief, whose identity, by reason of his having escaped capture, has never hitherto been established. Another chevalier d'industrie who is still wanted is the adroit gentleman who, when the Crown Prince of Sweden was staying, in June, 1888, at a Franzensbad hotel with the Crown Princess, surreptitiously entered their apartment and left with the contents of their jewel case, worth over £20,000.

Chinese and American Almanacs.

The census authorities have had some difficulty in classifying the Chinese in this country and in fixing their ages, the latter trouble being caused by the difference between the calendar used in this part of the world and that of the Chinese, which has the lunar months, giving some of the years twelve, some thirteen months. While every Chinaman so far interviewed knows the month, day and hour of his birth, the information is useless to the bureau unless converted into the time adopted here.

Spoke 225 Words a Minute.

There is a legend about the senate chamber that General Hawley, for ten or twelve minutes, in a speech, once spoke 225 words a minute. The average speed of senators in speeches does not reach 110 words, and in dictating letters rarely reaches 100 words.

AMERICANS AT PARIS EXPOSITION

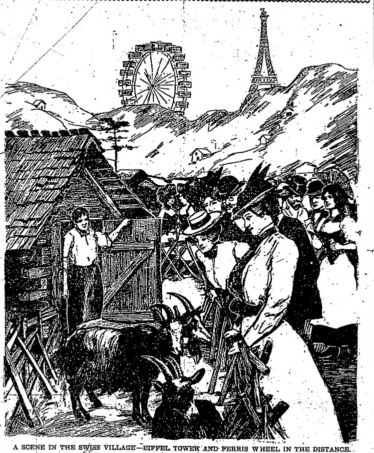
How Commissioner Peck Is Making Friends with France and Germany

One of the French papers remarked the other day that Mr. Ferdinand W. Peck, the United States commissioner-general to the exposition of 1900, was doing more inaugurating than President Loubet himself. This has been literally true for the past fortnight. And, from present appearances, when Sousa comes back from his triumphal tour in Germany, his company will be equally indispensable at all exposition functions. Peck has certainly made himself known among his confreres. While few persons could name at once without reflection the English commissioner, the German or the Belgian, certainly nobody, least of all the French themselves, are in doubt as to who heads the United States commission. A few days ago Peck and a party from the commission went down the riven to Vincennes to open formally the United States section of the machinery exhibit there. They took the boat back, sharing it with Sousa's band. When the boat had reached the front of the German national palace on the Seine front, Peck ordered the boat to stop, and requested the band to play the German national hymn. The German building was being inaugurated, quietly and with moderate enthusiasm, that afternoon. Sousa's band played the hymn, and the German commissioner-general, the German ambassador to Paris, and various other high functionaries of the Franco-German set here, appeared on the balcony and bowed in a dignified manner to the Americans in the middle of the river. This did not satisfy Mr. Peck, who seemed to think they ought to show more spirit at the compliment he was paying them. So he stopped the boat at the nearest wharf, ordered everybody off, and then the whole line, headed by Sousa, marched to the very doors of the German building, where the "Wacht am Rhein," the "Marseillaise" and American national hymns were played over and over again. Up to the appearance of that boat in the Seine nobody had been aware that the German building was being inaugurated. It took the United Seates' energetic commissioner to advertise the fact. The occasion called forth the expected enthusiasm from the Germans, and the evening papers spoke of the occurrence as "a pretty international compliment." Mr. Peck's point was gained.

The very last thing that Mr. Peck has inaugurated was the American Corn Kitchen, which is now a reality, and a very engaging one, to judge by the number of visitors who climb the two long flights of stairs in the United States agricultural annex, and taste of the various dishes which the American maize propaganda is offering to its guests. The only trouble is that most of the visitors are Americans. That is not just what the men who head this curious enterprise desire. They know well enough that Americans are fully persuaded of the beneficent qualities of corn; what they are trying to do is to interest the French, to attract a large number of French visitors, who will, it may be presumed, advertise the kitchen and its products.

The night illuminations of the exposition are proving a great success. There have been a variety of accidents which have prevented, hitherto, these night fetes from keeping the promises that have been made in regard to them. The electrical apparatus of the Chateau d'Eau caught fire the other day, just as everything had been gotten ready for the first fete, and threatened at one moment to reduce the whole Cham de Mars to black and mournful cinders. It took ten days to repair the damage, and then the Eiffel tower lights refused to work, and a variety of other little accidents happened, so that not until night before last did the illuminations materialize in all their splendor.

Some little distance from the Maxim exhibit is that of the Red Cross society, the two cynically contradicting each other. Here one sees the whole working of this great organization. One meets its officers, reads its abundant literature and gazes curiously at fearful surgical tools that glitter beneath glass cases in a score of boxes. Everything that the society uses is there. Against the wall stand various models of wagons, stretchers and combinations of the two, tolerably familiar in the streets of nearly every large city. Machines to make bandages, others to roll lint, and piles of medicated cotton of different kinds fill cases on one side of the room devoted to this exhibit, and in the middle of the room a very realistic figure of a man with a bloody head and his entire body wrapped in bandages reclines on a typical field stretcher; wax doctors leaning anxiously over him, and wax Sisters of Charity hovering about in case of need.



A SCENE IN THE SWISS VILLAGE—EIFFEL TOWER AND FERRIS WHEEL IN THE DISTANCE.

Hay Fever in Germany.

The hay fever season is now beginning in Germany. In north Germany it lasts from May 27 to June 3, in south Germany from May 20 to May 25. To counteract the mistakes of those physicians who usually send their patients to the mountains or out into the country, an association has been formed after the pattern of the American Hay Fever association, which has, after careful consideration, selected the island of Heligoland as the most suitable resort for hay fever patients. The society styles itself "The Hay Fever Union of Heligoland" and has its headquarters in Hanover. All possible information concerning the ailment is gathered and advice and other assistance to applicants is given free of charge. The union is rapidly spreading over all parts of the empire, particularly in the northern and eastern sections, where grass and grain grow in abundance.—Wolfgang Voltz, in Bremen correspondence to Chicago Record.

Subject was a Tender One.

Not long ago a charming young Australian was presented to the Prince of Wales, and not knowing how long she should talk to him, naively requested him to tell her when to leave, says a London correspondent. His highness assured her that it was for her to tell him when she was bored. In the chat which followed the girl said she had lived all her life in one place. "And how many years have you lived there?" said the prince. "I am bored, sir," quietly said the Australian, who thought her royal questioner sought to learn her age.—Los Angeles Times.

Madame Wu's Costumes.

Madame Wu has remained faithful to the Oriental dress, and her costumes are the envy of her American sisters. On state occasions she wears a brilliant petticoat of red or blue, just short enough to show her little feet, heavily embroidered with gold. Over this is worn a tunic of black and purple, also richly wrought with bullion. On her breast is a large gold eagle, which signifies that her rank is equal to that of her husband, and she may at all functions enter and leave the room at his side instead of behind him, as would be required if she were of lesser rank. Her headdress is a narrow band of black satin, ornamented with a handsome jewel—a large pearl usually—worth quite a king's ransom, worn directly in front. This band is decorated with flowers which fall just behind the ears and add much to its picturesqueness. Her jewels are beautiful.—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

Celebrated Marine Painter.

The town of Feodosia, on the Black sea, gave a public funeral to its great citizen, the celebrated marine painter, Aivazofsky, who died there in his eighty-third year, soon after returning from St. Petersburg. No contemporary Russian painter, except Verestchagin, has enjoyed a wider reputation, and most of the great picture galleries of Europe possess example of Aivazofsky's work.

Meaning Dudes.

Evangeline—Have you become acquainted with many of the young men in our social circle? Angeline—Oh, yes; I know a "thing" or two.

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE TEA BALL

The popular tea ball, that has become a feature of every girl's tea table, is really the only proper way to make tea, as the Chinese, who are admittedly experts in tea making, and the greatest tea drinkers in the world, will testify. A novelty of the same character, but somewhat differently arranged, more on the order of the Chinese teacup, is illustrated herewith. When it is desired to make a cup of tea the necessary quantity of tea leaves are placed in the screen basket arranged in the center of a cover of somewhat larger diameter
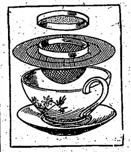
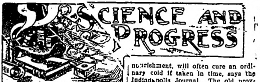
In the cut it illustrated a useful im-than the top of the cup. Boiling water is then poured through the leaves into the cup, and a cap, which is provided to cover the basket, is placed over it to prevent the escape of the vapor and aroma of the tea, which is thus allowed to steep for a few moments, when the tea will be ready. According to the inventor, the leaves can be used again for making a second cup of tea, as they are not deprived of all their valuable qualities by a single percolation of hot water.



TEA-MAKING ATTACHMENT FOR CUPS.



In a communication made to the Academie des Sciences, M. Graby gives an account of a method of color-photography by which he has succeeded in obtaining an approximation to the natural colors. After having made a series of prints upon a paper containing subchloride of silver and bichromate of potassium, he found that in some cases prints were obtained which gave an appearance of the natural colors.

He came to the conclusion that since this effect is obtained by the violet blue of the subchloride and the orange of the bichromate, the next step would be to make a separate print of the blues and violets upon a blue paper and one of the oranges and reds upon an orange paper, and that these prints, when superposed, would give more or less the desired effect, says the Scientific American. His method of working is to make the first expcsure upon a plate sensitive to orange, behind a red screen; the second exposure is made with a screen of bluish-green, upon a plate sensitive to the blues and greens; by using a stereoscopic camera the two exposures may be made at the same time, besides obtaining relief.

The first plate is printed upon the ordinary ferro-prussiate, or blue print paper, the second upon a chloride of silver paper, which is not toned; but merely fixed in the hypo bath and washed, giving thus an orange-brown color. The two prints are pasted upon a stereoscope card and viewed through a telescope, a red screen being placed before the blue print and a blue screen before the orange. In this case the colors of the object are seen with a greater or less approximation, and if a stereoscopic camera has been used at first, relief is also given. A remarkable point observed is the brilliancy with which the metals are reproduced; thus, in the case of gilding, the color is not merely yellow, but a fine metallic luster is given.

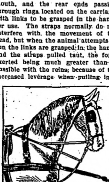
This process is one of great simplicity, as it requires but two exposures and two prints, which are made without toning. By making one of the prints transparent the colors may be obtained by superposing one on the other. This process is now in an experimental stage, and is capable of further improvement to obtain a close approximation to the natural colors. It has the disadvantage of not reproducing the reds or violets to any great extent, but as there are many subjects which do not contain these colors, the process may be used to advantage in certain cases. M. Graby states that he is also at work upon a process by which he uses but one exposure and one photographic print.

The Metric System for Russia.

It is probable that the metric system will be introduced before long in Russia; the bill which has been prepared to this effect by the minister of finance has received the approbation of the state council, with the understanding that the university and the various scientific societies will give their assistance in the verification of the weights and measures necessary for commercial use. The details have been nearly all decided upon, and will be submitted to the council in the near future. Since 1896 the metric system has been used by the medical service of the army in compounding of formulas, this having been made obligatory.

FOR CONTROLLING HORSES.

The control of vicious and runaway horses is a matter that has often been the study of the inventor, as numerous devices already on the market attest; but there is always room for improvement, and the illustration shows one of the newest forms. The inventor is Geza Egyesy, director general of Orszaggyulesi Konyonyomda of Budapest, Austria-Hungary, and it is his intention to have the appliance used especially for those animals which are in the habit of taking the bit between their teeth, which, as is well known, makes it almost impossible to control them with the ordinary reins. The new apparatus consists of two straps threaded through guiding devices attached to the thills of the vehicle, the forward ends of the straps connecting with the bit in the animal's mouth, and the rear ends passing through rings located on the carriage, with links to be grasped in the hands for use. The straps normally do not interfere with the movement of the head, but when the animal attempts to run the links are grasped in the hands and the straps pulled taut, the force exerted being much greater than is possible with the reins, because of the increased leverage when pulling in a direct line with the driver's feet, enabling him to draw the animal's head down and dislodge the bit.

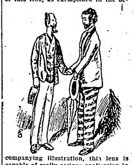


If You Have a Cold.

Drinking cold water when one has a cold coming on is one of the best remedies, because it stimulates the system and helps to wash out poisons formed in the body. Living on fruit for two or three days and drinking hot or cold water freely, with milk, for nourishment, will often cure an ordinary cold if taken in time, says the Indianapolis Journal. The old proverb, "Stuff a cold and starve a fever," is a contradictory one, for a cold is a fever. People suffering from a cold and continuing to eat heartily of beefsteak, mutton chop, roast pork and similar foods, are simply adding fuel to the flames as surely as one pours oil on a fire. Such heating food stimulates the morbid processes at work in the body, and far from curing the disease, makes it worse.

QUEER WORK WITH A LENS.

The "Anamorphot" is a lens which is the outcome of the investigations of Dr. Rudolph on the use of cylindrical surfaces in objectives, for the purpose of getting different ratios of enlargement or reduction in directions at right angles to each other. Apart from the frivolous use which can be made of this lens, as exemplified in the accompanying illustration, this lens is capable of really serious application in the modification of decorative designs.



DANGER OF CLOUDBURSTS.

Cloudbursts are sometimes destructive of life as well as property. They come up so suddenly that it is almost impossible to escape if the wayfarer is caught in the bed of the creek. Campers in the mountain regions usually select the high ground above the creek rather than pitch their tents close beside the gently rippling water which may become a roaring torrent while they sleep, sweeping them to destruction before they know that danger is near, says Ainslee's Magazine. It was from neglect of this precaution that many lives were lost in a cloudburst near Morrison, Col., in the spring of 1897.

Some people were camping along the borders of the stream, and, as it was just after dark, and had been raining heavily, they had sought the shelter of their tents. Suddenly they heard the awful and peculiar roar of the approaching cloudburst. It grew louder every second. Realizing what had happened, the unfortunate campers—men, women and children—rushed from their tents and tried to reach the higher ground. In the confusion and darkness some turned the wrong way, and were soon struggling in mad torrents, battling with tree trunks and wrecks of cabins and immense masses of moving stone in the bosom of the flood. Thirteen lives went out in that dire night. The bodies found later showed the marks of buffeting with the debris in the flood of waters, and it is believed that few if any of the unfortunates lost their lives by actual drowning.

Occasionally the sudden downpour of rain will be precipitated on a soft, yielding soil, and instead of taking the form of a cloudburst with a wave of water carrying everything before it, the whole surface of the ground will take on the consistency of molasses and roll slowly but irresistibly down the water courses. This happened in Chalk canyon, near Mount Princeton, in Colorado, three years ago. Chalk cliffs are a peculiar formation at the head of the canyon, the so-called "chalk" being of a lime nature, which, after being dissolved in water, quickly hardens again like cement.

Glass-Lined Water Pipes.

In making repairs upon the interior of a dwelling house in Boston recently the discovery was made that the water pipes were lined with glass. The house was built some sixty years ago, and when Cochituate was introduced into Boston the owner of the house, with hundreds of others, became panic-stricken over the possibility of lead-poisoning, and had all of the pipes used in bringing city water into his house lined with glass. This was expensive and unsatisfactory, and few attempted to have the glass-lined pipes. It is thought no other house in Boston has plumbing of this unique nature.

Poisoned by Hydrogen.

Recently an aeronaut was poisoned by hydrogen arsenide, which escaped from the balloon. This shows the necessity of purifying the hydrogen used for balloon purposes. The balloon was filled in the ordinary way and nothing peculiar in the odor of the gas was noticed. A few hours afterward the persons who had assisted in the operation were taken seriously ill and one of them died.

New Idea in Map Making.

In England a new kind of map for railway stations is being introduced by the Northeastern Railway company. The map is made up of white tiles and is about six feet square, and each tile is eight inches square. The lines are marked in black and burned sienna.

The Wherefore of It.

Mrs. Naggin—Cheer up! Don't be so grumpy. It's so strange you men will get that way, while we women are invariably happy and hopeful.

Mr. Naggin—Why shouldn't you be? You haven't any wives to bother you.—Philadelphia Press.

As the weather warms up congress dries up.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE
TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to:

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE
INSURANCE
DO
YOU
NEED
SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound.......5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.......15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.......20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.
LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn, as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE, 27, 1900.

When the Puss Gets Her Back Up.

It is not anger alone that makes cats arch their backs. Indeed, when two cats are preparing to fight they do not assume this attitude, but crouch low, just as they do when about to spring on their prey, the body being extended and the hair not in the least erect. But when, on meeting a dog suddenly, fear is combined with anger then the cat, standing at its full height, at once arches its back, with an instinctive effort to appear as formidable as possible.

Darwin compares it to the similar attitude of the lynx when attacked and to that of birds which ruffle their feathers and spread out their wings and tail when alarmed. It is noticeable that a cat will also arch its back when in an effectionate frame of mind, rubbing itself against its master's leg. At the same time it slightly raises its fur and holds its tail erect. Its whole attitude is just the reverse of that which it assumes when savage.

Darwin accounts for this in the following words: "Certain states of mind lead to certain habitual actions which are of no service. Now, when a directly opposite state of mind is induced, there is a strong and involuntary tendency to the performance of a movement of a directly opposite nature, though it may be of no service."

A Bride's Clever Idea.

Out in a big apartment house on Columbia heights there dwells a young married woman who is as naive as the bride in the comic weeklies. The housekeepers who live in the same house with her have been somewhat annoyed of late by mice. The young woman met one of them in the hall the other day, and the conversation naturally turned on their common pests.

"The mice have been so bad lately," said the elder woman, "that I keep everything locked up and all my eatables in the boxes."

The younger woman's eyes sparkled with eagerness.

"My!" she said. "I wouldn't dare do that. I wouldn't want to run such a risk. I leave crackers and cheese lying about every night when I go to bed so that when the mice become hungry they'll find something to eat and not gnaw things. I'm always afraid they'll bite holes in my new tablecloths and my nice centerpieces if I don't leave the cheese right where they can find it easily. I feel perfectly safe when I know there's plenty for them to eat right where they can get at it."

There's nothing after all like having a clever idea like that now and then.—Washington Post.

Nicknames of British Regiments.

The grenadier guards were nicknamed "The Coalheavers" because they were at one time allowed to work in plain clothes at odd jobs for private employers. The Seventh foot were "The Elegant Extracts" because at one time all their officers "had been chosen from other corps." The Forty-sixth owed their name of "The Lacedemonians" to their colonel's stirring speech on the ancient Spartans. Like many other regiments, "The Gallant Fiftieth" received several nicknames—"The Blind Half-Hundred," from their ophthalmic troubles in Egypt, and "The Dirty Half-Hundred" because in their peninsular fights they wiped themselves with their black facings. The One Hundredth regiment are "The Old Hundred" and "The Centipedes." The Twenty-eighth were called "The Fore and Afts" because, standing back to back, they repelled a front and rear attack before Alexandria in 1801. The Cheshire regiment has been christened "The Lightning Conductors" because "in the Irish maneuvers of 1899 several men were struck by lightning during a night march."—London News.

The Ring-hals.

The ring-hal does not disdain an insect diet. Beetles, grasshoppers, locusts and termites are all readily devoured, as well as ticks and bots picked from the hides of cattle. I have sometimes amused myself by watching the bold yet cautious and gentle manner in which one of these ravens will approach a reclining ox and, after a preliminary course of soothing caresses, accompanied by a soft "cawing" note, insert his head into the ear and dexterously extract the ticks. These birds always seem to have a good understanding with the older and more experienced oxen, who will, at a hint from one of them, lie down and place themselves in the most favorable position for the extraction of their parasites.—Stark's Birds of South Africa.

Easy.

"Excuse me," said the shabby looking young man. "But would you be so kind as to cash this check for me?"

"Why don't yew git somebody thet knows yew to cash it?" asked the old countryman, picking up his carpet sack from the curb.

"The people that know me won't do it," bitterly exclaimed the young man, turning away to hide a tear.

"Poor fellow!" sympathetically answered the farmer as he took out his wallet. "How much is it fer?"

And still they say money's hard to get.—Kansas City Independent.

The Toothbrush Plant.

One of the most curious plants in the world is what is called the toothbrush plant of Jamaica. It is a species of creeper and has nothing particularly striking about its appearance. By cutting pieces of it to a suitable length and fraying the ends the natives convert it into a toothbrush, and a tooth powder to accompany the use of the brush is also prepared by pulverizing the dead stems.

Asia Minor was the chief opium market until the twelfth century, and from then on it was gradually distributed all over the globe. The Chinese obtained the drug in the thirteenth century.

WHEN A FELLER'S STUBBED HIS TOE.

Did ye ever pass a youngster et'd been an stubbed his toe
An was cryin by th' roadside, sorter quietlike an slow,
A-holdin of his dusty foot, all hard an brown an bare,
An tryin to keep from his eyes th' tears that's gatherin there?
Ye hear him sorter sobbin like an snuffin of his nose,
An ye stop an pat his head an sorter try to ease his woes;
Ye treat him sorter kindlike, an th' fust thing that ye know
He's up an off an smilin—clean forgot he stubbed his toe.

'Long th' road of human life ye see a feller trav'lin slow,
An like as not ye'll find he's some poor cuss that's stubbed his toe;
He was makin swimmin headway, but he bumped into a stone,
An his frien's kept hurryin onward, an they lef' him here alone.
He ain't sobbin or ain't snifflin, he's too old fer tears an cries,
But he's grievin jes' as earnest, if it only comes in sighs,
An it does a heap of good sometimes to go a little slow
An say a word of comfort to th' man that's stubbed his toe.

Ye're never sure yerself, an thar ain't no earthly way to know
Jes' when it's goin to come yer turn to trip an stub yer toe;
Today ye're smilin, happy, in th' bright sun's light an glow,
An tomorrow ye're a-shiverin, an ye're strugglin through th' snow.
Jes' th' time ye think ye've got th' world th' fastest in yer grip
Is th' very time, ye'll find, et yer th' likeliest to slip,
An it's mighty comfortin to have some feller stop, I know,
An comfort ye an try to help ye when ye're stubbed yer toe.

—Bismarck Tribune.

NIGHT BELLS.

Various Kinds of Help to Be Invoked Through Their Aid.

Of night bells of one sort and another there will be found in cities many. There is, for instance, the drug store night bell, which is old and familiar. In large cities there are nowadays more drug stores than formerly that keep open all night, but the drug store night bell is still an institution. Inside the window there is a light so placed that its illumination serves at once to give a glow to some highly colored jar of water—time honored emblem of the apothecary—and make that serve as a sign and to show to those who are seeking it, when they shall have come near, the location of the bell.

Likewise is the undertaker's night bell old and familiar and to be found in numbers, with a light so placed within as to reveal it plainly.

A peculiarly modern night bell is the plumber's night bell, for whose coming into existence there are two reasons—one the multiplication in cities, for the equipment of dwellings in accordance with modern ideas of comfort, of pipes and plumbing of all sorts, for steam heat and water and gas, and so the multiplication of emergencies arising out of the use of them; the other being the modern way of not putting things off till tomorrow, of following always a beaten track in doing things, but of being ready if called upon for work at any time, day or night.

The night bell that probably is to be found in most limited number and then only in great maritime cities is the night bell of the wrecking company. Even in this big town there is perhaps but one such night bell, but there is at least one, which may be found placed in the wall outside of a wrecking company's office, in a waterside street, with a painted sign on the wall beside it, in the usual familiar words, "Night bell," a place where one can go to get help for vessels in distress by night as well as by day.—New York Sun.

No Use For a Throne.

Napoleon Bonaparte is quoted in The Century as saying to Dr. O'Meara at St. Helena:

"If I was in England now and the French nation was to offer me the throne again, I would not accept of it because if I was to do so I would be obliged to turn bourreau (executioner). I would be obliged to cut off the heads of thousands to keep myself upon it, which would not be pleasing to me. Oceans of blood must be shed to keep me there. No, no; I have made enough of noise already in the world; perhaps more than any other man will make; perhaps too much. I am getting old and only want retirement. What could I do in France? Alone, to set myself against all the powers of Europe. Madness!"

Vegetable Ivory.

In the forests of the Pacific slope in Ecuador abounds the species of palm which bears the nuts known as "vegetable ivory." The nuts are exceedingly hard and white. Germany takes two-thirds of the product, and the rest goes to the United States, France and England. The harvest is in the rainy season, and great rafts loaded with the nuts are sent down the swollen rivers. Those engaged in the industry are Indians and mixed races. The unpeeled nuts bring, in the native markets, about 60 cents for 100 pounds.

Rat Tail Tendons.

Among the many materials for sewing up wounds are the strong sutures that can be obtained from the tail of the rat. By proper manipulation a bundle of five or six tendons per tail can be obtained and can be used as they are, being easily threaded.

A Bargain.

May—How on earth did you come to accept him?

Fay—Oh, he looked so cheap when he proposed I couldn't help taking him!—Philadelphia Press.

Market gardeners around Paris cultivate the dandelion on a very large scale and sell it for good prices in the market.

Irish stew is a dish never seen in Ireland.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned, P. G. Paradis, hereby make application for a license to be granted to him to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot ten (10) of block forty (40) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having three outside entrances, one in front, one in side and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire this 12th day of June 1900.
P. G. PARADIS.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Friday the 29th day of June 1900, at eight o'clock p.m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned, M. E. Bjerk hereby make application for a license to be granted to him to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot three (3) of block forty (40) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having two outside entrances, one in front and one in side.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute in said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 12th day of June 1900.
M. E. BJERK.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Friday the 29th day of June 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned, J. B. Senate, hereby make application for a license to be granted to him to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot fourteen (14) of block thirty-nine (39) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having three outside entrances, one in front one in side and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 26th day of June 1900.
J. B. SENATE.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Monday the 16th day of July 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned, Markham Hotel Company, (M. McAndress, Manager) hereby make application for a license to be granted to him to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the three story building situate on lot twenty (20) of block thirty-nine (39) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having two outside entrances, one in front and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said state of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 12th day of June 1900.
MARKHAM HOTEL CO.,
M. MCANDRESS, Manager.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Friday the 29th day of June 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned Clara Peterson hereby make application for a license to be granted to her to sell intoxication liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot eleven (11) of block (40) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having two outside entrances, one in front and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to her pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 12th day of June 1900.
CLARA PETERSON.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Friday the 29th day of June 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

NOTICE.

Department of the Interior.
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office under authority in him vested by section 2455 U. S. R. S., as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895 (28 Stat., 687), we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 20th day of July 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., the following tract of land, to-wit:

SE¼ NW¼ Sec. 1, T. 151 N., R. 43 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated June 5th 1900.
SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.
Misc'l. App. 206—8161. 45-51

UNCLE SAM
Is not
In the Shoe
Business,
And Neither
Am I,
But I can
Interest
You in
CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

J. B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

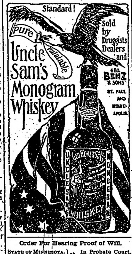
FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans ☞ A Specialty. ☜

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.
—0—
Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.
Razors honed and put in first-class order.
J. H. PENNO, Prop.
ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA



Standard!
Pure
Palatable
Uncle Sam's Monogram Whiskey
Sold by Druggists Dealers and
GEO. BENZ & SONS
ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.
GEO BENZ & SONS
UNCLE SAM'S MONOGRAM WHISKEY

Order For Hearing Proof of Will.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. In Probate Court.
County of Red Lake. } Special Term,
June 5th A. D. 1900.

In the matter of the estate of John Sorsoleil, deceased.

Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last Will and Testament of John Sorsoleil, deceased, late of said county, has been delivered to this court; and

Whereas, Mary Sorsoleil has filed therewith her petition, representing among other things that said John Sorsoleil died in said county, on the 12th day of January A. D., 1900, testate, and that said petitioner is the sole Executrix named in said last Will and Testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to her issued thereon;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the St. Hilaire Spectator, a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire, in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 5th day of June A. D. 1900.

By the Court,
JOHN T. KNIGHT,
Judge of Probate.

[SEAL]
45-48

Love in a Cottage
Bread and cheese and kisses are all right but a few other things to eat and Hamm's
St. Paul
Beer
add a heap of comfort.
Hamm's Beer is a pure delicious home brew. Won't you try it? ~ Agents everywhere.
Theo. Hamm Brewing Co.
Tel. 972 ~ St. Paul, Minn.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

For Fine Goods
Good Goods
New Goods
Up to Date Goods

Visit Us as we are the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents Furnishing House in the City.

GREAT WESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA
GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route

All Under One Roof

On the Burlington's Chicago and St. Louis Limited, you can live as well as at the finest hotel in America. You can dine in a dining car; smoke in a smoking car; read in a library car; sleep in a compartment or standard sleeping car; and recline in a reclining chair car. All under one roof. Electric lighted and steam heated. Leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m. St. Paul 8:05 p. m. daily, arriving Chicago 9:25 next morning. The "Scenic" Express, an elegant day train, leaves Minneapolis 7:40 a. m., St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday.

Ask your home agent for tickets via this line, or address

P. S. EUSTIS,
Gen'l Pass. Agent,
CHICAGO, ILL.

GEO. P. LYMAM,
Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent
ST. PAUL, MINN.

TIME AND SPACE are practically annihilated by the ocean cables and land telegraph systems which now belt the circumference of Old Earth in so many different directions. "Foreign parts" are no longer foreign in the old meaning of the term. Europe, Africa, Asia, are "next door" to us. What happens there to-day we know to-morrow—if we read THE CHICAGO RECORD, whose Special Cable Correspondents are located in every important city in the world outside of the United States. No other American newspaper ever attempted so extensive a service; and it is supplemented by the regular foreign news service of The Associated Press. For accurate intelligence of the stirring events which are shaking the nations—of wars and rumors of wars—of the threatening dissolution of old governments and the establishment of new—of the onward sweep of the race in all parts of the world—the one medium of the most satisfactory information is the enterprising, "up-to-date" American newspaper, THE CHICAGO RECORD.

FREE A large map of the world on Mercator's Projection, about 23½x16 inches in size, beautifully printed in colors, with a large-scale map of Europe on the reverse side, will be mailed to any address free of charge on receipt of request accompanied by two 2-cent stamps to cover postage and wrapping. The maps illustrate clearly how comprehensively the special cable service of THE CHICAGO RECORD covers the entire civilized world. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.

Cigars.

BRINK BROTHERS
DEALERS IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.
Corner Broadway and 3rd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.
ST. HILAIRE, - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW MEAT MARKET.
L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

Supplement to
St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, MINN., JUNE 27, 1900.

CO. COMMISSIONERS

THEIR LAST MEETING SOUNDED THE DEATH KNELL OF DITCH NO. 2.

June 11th, 1900.

Special meeting of the board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, Minn.

Pursuant to call dated May 2nd, board met in extra session this day.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Hearing was then had on viewers' report on Thief River Falls ditch.

County attorney requested to give written opinion as to legality of service of notice of presentation of petition.

On motion carried unanimously a recess was taken to 7 o'clock p. m.

7 o'clock p. m.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Hearing was then had on school petition of L C Erickson and others.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Johnson, that the same be granted, and on motion carried unanimously, the following order was made:

Order Altering Boundaries of School Districts.

State of Minnesota
County of Red Lake

The petition of L. C. Erickson and others, who constitute a majority of the freeholders who are legal voters residing in district No. 10 in said county, asking that the boundaries of such districts be altered, having been presented to the board of county commissioners of said Red Lake county, and the county superintendent of schools having indorsed thereon his written approval thereof, and the county commissioners having appointed a time and place for a hearing upon said petition; and due notice thereof having been given as by law required, and it appearing that no other school district will be affected thereby.

Now, said petition having been publicly read at a meeting of said board of county commissioners held at Red Lake Falls on the 11th day of June, 1900, being the time and place specified in said notice, and it having been duly considered by said board, it is by said board ordered, that the boundaries of school district No. 10 within said county of Red Lake be and they are hereby altered as follows, to-wit:

By annexing the south half of sections 16, 17 and 18, and the north half of sections 20 and 21, township 151, range 40, to said school district No. 10. Such alterations being as prayed for in said petition.

By order of the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, Minn., at a meeting held June 11th, 1900.

Wm. C. L. Demann,
Chairman Board of County Commissioners.
Attest:
Adam Zeh,
Auditor Red Lake county.

Hearing was then had on school petition of Wm. Albrecht, and on motion carried unanimously the same was granted and the following order was made:

Order Setting off Legal Voter From One School District to Another.

Whereas, the petition of Wm. Albrecht, a legal voter, freeholder and resident of school District No. 81, in this county, with the approval of the county superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the lands hereinafter described, which are situate in said school district, and adjoin school district No. 27, and asking that he with his lands may be set off from said District No. 81 to said adjoining school district No. 27 for the following reasons:

"That the schoolhouse in Dist. No. 81 is 3½ miles from my place, and the school house in Dist. No. 27 is only 1½ miles from my place, said distance of 3½ miles to the school house in district No. 81 is too far to send children to school."

Was presented to the board of county commissioners of this county, at a session of said board held on the 30th day of April, A. D. 1900, for the action of said board thereon; and whereas, it was thereupon ordered by said board, that a hearing should be had on said petition at a session of said board, commencing on the 11th day of June, A. D., 1900, at the county auditor's office in Red Lake Falls, in said county; and whereas, it was further ordered in and by said order, that notice of the time and place of such hearing be given by posting a notice of said order in one public place in each of the school districts to be affected by said petition, and by handing to and leaving with the clerk of each of said school districts, personally, a copy of said notice, at least ten days before the time appointed for such hearing; and whereas, at the said session of the said board of county commissioners, commencing on said 11th day of June, A. D., 1900, due proof of the posting and service of said order of hearing as therein directed and required, more than ten days prior to said last named date, having been made and filed, said petition was publicly read and considered by the Board, with everything which was said by said interested parties for or against granting the prayer of the petitioner, and said board being of opinion that said petition should be granted, it is hereby ordered and determined, that the said petitioner and the following described lands owned by him, to-wit:

SW¼ sec. 18, township 150, range 43.

Be and the same are, hereby set off from said school district No. 81 to said adjoining school district No. 27, and said lands are hereby made a part of said last named school district for all purposes whatever.

By order of the board of county commissioners.

Dated the 11th day of June, A. D., 1900.

Wm. C. L. Demann.
Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, of Red Lake County, Minn.
Attest:
Adam Zeh,
County Auditor,
And ex-officio Clerk of Board.

Hearing was then had on school petition of Joseph Laurent, asking to have the NW¼ of sec. 5, town 150, R 43, set off from district No. 79, to District No. 81, and on motion carried unanimously the 10th day of July was set for a day of hearing on the same.

Hearing was then had on school petition of Theo. Lefevre.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Hebert, that the same be granted.

Motion carried unanimously, and the following order was made:

Order Setting off Legal Voter From One School District to Another.

Whereas, the petition of Theophile Lefavre, a legal voter, freeholder, and resident of School District No. 15, in this county, with the approval of the county superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the lands hereinafter described, which are situate in said school district and adjoin school district number forty and asking that he with his said lands, may be set off from said district No. 15, to said adjoining school district No. 40, for the following reasons:

That his said land is in the township of Red Lake Falls, and that the schoolhouse in district No. 40 is [illegible] schoolhouse in district No. 15.

Was presented to the board of county commissioners of this county, at a session of said board held on the 30th day of April, A. D. 1900, for the action of said board thereon; and whereas, it was thereupon ordered by said board that a hearing should be had on said petition at a session of said board, commencing on the 11th day of June, A. D. 1900, at the county auditor's office in Red Lake Falls, in said county, and whereas, it was further ordered in and by said order, that notice of the time and place of such hearing be given by posting a notice of said order in one public place in each of the school districts to be affected by said petition, and by handing to and leaving with the clerk of each of said school districts, personally, a copy of said notice, at least ten days before the time appointed for such hearing; and whereas, at the said session of said board of county commissioners, commencing on said 11th day of June, A. D. 1900, due proof of the posting and service of said order of hearing as therein directed and required, more than ten days prior to said last named date, having been made and filed, said petition was publicly read and considered by the board, with everything which was said by said interested parties for or against granting the prayer of the petitioner and said board being of opinion that said petition should be granted, it is hereby ordered and determined that the said petitioner, and the following described lands owned by him, to-wit:

W½ NW¼ and W½ SW¼ Sec 21, Twp 151, range 44

Be and the same are hereby set off from said school district No. 15, to said adjoining school district No. 40, and said lands are hereby made a part of said last named school district for all purposes whatever.

By order of the board of county comissioners.

Dated the 11th day of June, A. D. 1900.

Wm. C. L. Demann,
Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, of Red Lake County, Minn.
Attest:
Adam Zeh,
County Auditor
and ex-officio Clerk of Board.

Hearing was then had on school petition of A. Robillard.

Motion made by Johnson seconded by Hansen that the same be granted.

Johnson, Hansen and Sutor voting in the affirmative, Hebert and Demann voting in the negative.

Motion carried and the following order was made:

Order Setting off Legal Voter from One School District to another.

Whereas, the petition of Arastide Robillard, a legal voter, freeholder and resident of School District No. 81, in this county, with the approval of the county superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the lands hereinafter described which are situate in said school district, and adjoin school district No. 27, and asking that he with his said lands may be set off from said District No. 81 to said adjoining school district No. 27 for the following reasons:

There are no laidout or opened roads leading from my farm to school house of district No. 81, which is distant about 2¼ miles, while the distance to school house of district No. 27 is distant a little short of two miles with good roads at all seasons. My children cannot go to district No. 81 and I want them to go to school, was presented to the board of county commissioners of this county at a session of said board held on the 30th day of April, A. D. 1900, for the action of said board thereon; and

Whereas, it was thereupon ordered by said board that a hearing should be had on said petition at a session of said board, commencing on the eleventh day of June, A. D. 1900, at the county auditor's office in Red Lake Falls, in said county; and

Whereas, it was ordered further in and by said order that notice of the time and place of such hearing be given by posting a notice of said order in one public place in each of the school districts to be affected by said petition, and by handing to and leaving with the clerk of each of said school districts, personally, a copy of said notice, at least ten days before the time appointed for such hearing; and

Whereas, at the said session of the said board of county commissioners, commencing on the eleventh day of June, A. D. 1900, due proof of the posting and service of said order of hearing as therein directed and required, more than ten days prior to said last named date, having been made and filed said petition was publicly read and considered by the board, with everything which was said by said interested parties for or against granting the prayer of the petitioner, and said board being of the opinion that said petition should be granted, it is hereby ordered and determined; that the said petitioner and the following described lands owned by him, to-wit:

NW¼, section 17, township 150, range 43,

be and the same are hereby set off from said school district No. 81 to said adjoining school district No. 27, and said lands are hereby made a part of said last named School district for all purposes whatever.

By order of the board of county commissioners. Dated the 12th day of June, A. D. 1900.

Wm. C. L. Demann,
Chairman,
of the board of county commissioners of Red Lake County, Minn.
Attest:
Adam Zeh,
County Auditor,
and ex-officio clerk of Board.

Application of J. J. Soll for liquor license at Wylie station was on motion laid on table.

Commissioner Hebert offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved, that the petition of O. L. Larson, chairman of the board of supervisors of the town of Sanders, and others, for an appropriation in the sum of one hundred dollars for the purpose of grading the range line between the townships of Sanders and Rocksbury be granted, provided the town of Sanders appropriates $100.00 and the town of Rocksbury appropriates $100.00, and the county auditor is hereby ordered to draw his warrant in favor of the treasurer of the township of Sanders in the sum of $100.00.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Johnson and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Application of town board of Lambert, for an appropriation for building bridges between sections 3 and 4 across Lost river in said town was read.

Commissioner Hebert offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved, that the sum of $100 be and is hereby appropriated out of the county Road and bridge fund and that the auditor is hereby instructed to draw his warrant on said fund in favor of the town treasurer of said town, provided the township of Lambert also appropriate the sum of $100 for the construction of said bridge.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Sutor and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Commissioner Johnson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that the sum of $100.00 be and is hereby appropriated out of the Road & Bridge fund for the purpose of grading the road between St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls through sections 7, 18, 19, 30 and 31, provided an equal amount is appropriated by the township of River Falls and the village of St. Hilaire, and the auditor is hereby instructed to draw his warrant in favor of the treasurer of the village of St. Hilaire in the sum of $100.00.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Hansen and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Commissioner Sutor offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that the sum of $50.00 be and is hereby appropriated out of the Road & Bridge fund for the purpose pose of grading the road on the section line between sections 27 and 28 in the town of Black River, provided the town of Black River appropriates an equal amount and the auditor is hereby ordered to draw his warrant in favor of the treasurer of the town of Black River in the sum of $50.00.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Johnson and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Commissioner Sutor offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that the sum of $50.00 be and is hereby appropriated out of the Road & Bridge fund for the purpose of grading road and approaches to bridge on section line between sections 26 and 23 town of Polk Centre, provided said town appropriates an equal amount, and the auditor is hereby instructed to draw his warrant in favor of the treasurer of Polk Centre in the sum of $50.00.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Hebert and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

On motion carried unanimously a recess was taken to 8 o'clock a. m.

8 o'clock a. m. June 12th, 1900.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Petition of A. D. Berry and others, for aid in constructing bridges in the township of Louisville, on section line between sections 3 and 10 where said section line crosses the Black River, was read.

Commissioner Sutor offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that the county auditor be and is hereby instructed to issue his warrant on the county Road & Bridge fund in the sum of $100.00 in favor of the treasurer of Louisville to forward the construction of said bridge.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Hebert and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Hon. Board of County Commissioners of the County of Red Lake, Minn.

Gentlemen:

Replying to your inquiry concerning the sufficiency of the service of notice in the matter of proceedings to establish a ditch in town 154, ranges 43 and 44, will say that I am of the opinion that the record hereto attached shows such service to have been defective, and that on account of such defects your Hon. Body will not be warranted in proceeding to a hearing upon the merits in said matter.

Yours respectfully,
Van R. Brown,
County Attorney.

Dated June 12, 1900.

Application of H. M. Hicks for auctioneer's license was on motion granted.

Bids for painting Co bridges at Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls were then opened.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Johnson that the bid of Frank Freund for painting the Red Lake Falls iron bridge for $50 and the bid of Emil Zeh for painting the Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire bridges at $50 each, be accepted.

Motion carried unanimously.

On motion carried unanimously a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 O'clock p. m.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

On motion carried unanimously bills were allowed as follows:

County Poor Fund.
Luc Dubuc board of Anton Juneau, 1 month to May 30	$ 10 00
Dr W O Tessier services rendered Mrs. Osmund Tyrdal	2 00
Dr W O Tessier services rendered and medicine for Theo Carle	29 00
Dr H Francis services rendered Mrs Chas Rockstad	16 00
Dr N M Watson services rendered A Juneau and Mrs Osmund Trydal	15 00
Dr H Grundy services rendered Clark Owens	10 00
Mrs Frank LeRoy board and care of Clark Owens 10 days	7 50
A M LaBounty, 1 months board of Mrs Violette	10 00
F X Lambert board of Theo Carl 1 month to June 1st	25 00
Theo. LaBissoniere mdse to Mrs. Brault to June 1st	5 00
Theo LaBissoniere mdse to Andrew Farstad 2 months	19 00
Ed Garceau board of Joe Doyen, 1 month by Lacoursiere	10 00
Henry Leppert mdse to O A Nelson	2 65
Ernest Buse house rent for Mrs Marchildon 1 month	4 00
Ernest Buse house rent for Mrs Marchildon May 5th to June 5th	6 00
Ernest Buse house rent for Mrs Marchildon April 5th to May 5th	6,00
W A Schreiter medicine for A Juneau and Poutz	19 40
John Rridston board of Bertha and Ida Steen	15 50
County Revenue Fund.
O E Traverse justice fees state vs. Martin Peterson	4 90
G Bally jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
John Whiteman jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
Benj Hocking jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
Christ Porter jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
Geo Humphrey jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
M E Todd jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
O P Johnson jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
J F Cary jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
John O Oas jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
Ole Gunderson jurors fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
E Golly witness fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
Geo Monroe witness fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
S Kenison witness fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
K Knutson witness fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
Andy Erickson witness fees state vs Martin Peterson	1 00
Wm Benzie constable fees state vs Martin Peterson	8 65
Wm Benzie constable fees state vs H E Mussey	5 95
Polk County boarding prisioners 30 days 2 bills	21 30
Joseph Perrault clerk of court fees	28 30
W A Schreiter ink supt of schools	10
I Barli getting ballots special election	3 50
Joseph Belair coroner's fees case of Barney Mousseau	13 55
C H Peterson right of way for Sanders-Black River ditch	25 00
Adam Zeh telegrams, telephones and messages etc. ditch bonds	10 00
St. Hilaire Spectator publishing commissioner's proceedings of April 30	39 60
St. Hilaire Spectator publishing school district notices	6 00
St. Hilaire Spectator publishing notice of hearing ditch proceedings	14 50
Courier Publishing Co. Stationery co. officers	15 70
Pioneer Press Co. blanks county officers	2 35
Grand Forks Herald tax lists for 1900	52 50
Geo D. Barnard & Co blanks for Judge of Probate	15 85
Geo D Barnard & Co blanks for County Auditor	23 13
Geo D Barnard & Co deed and assignment record register of deeds	46 70
Geo D Barnard & Co. blanks register of deeds $20 50 allowed at	15 50
K M Hansen 2 days county commissioner and mileage and one day committee work and mileage	28 00
Ole J Johnson 2 days county commissioner and mileage and one day committee work and mileage	17 00
J B Hebert 2 days county commissioner and mileage and 1 day committee work and mileage	17 00
Wm C L Demann 2 days county commissioner and mileage and one day committee work and mileage	14 40
James Sutor 2 days county commissioner and mileage and one day committee work and mileage and one day attending poor	23 00
Chas Sampson sheriffs fees $42 40 allowed at	13 40
Fred Cyr sheriffs fees $51 80 rejected

On motion carried unanimously meeting adjourned.

Adam Zeh. Co. Auditor.

Saved by a Nez Perces Pocahontas.

Word comes from far up the Clear-Water, Idaho, that Andrew Gibson, chief of the Northern Pacific Engineers, almost lost his life at the hands of a vicious Nez Perces Indian. At Kamiah the railroad runs through an old Indian graveyard. The company agreed to take up the bodies, put them in suitable boxes and bury them wherever they were told to do so.

Most of the Indians consented, but one old warrior, who fought at Chief Joseph's elbow during the late unpleasantness, objected to the desecration of the tomb of his ancestors. Engineer Gibson gave orders to move the sacred bones at all hazards. The Indian said he would shoot the first man who struck a spade into the grave. The laborers refused to do the digging at their modest wages. Mr. Gibson drove the spade into the ancestral sepulchre. The Indian raised his rifle, but a squaw seized the gun barrel and turned it aside. The rifle was discharged, but the bullet went wide of its mark. A number of friendly Indians removed the warrior and the work proceeded without further interruption.

She Endorsed It.

She handed the check to the paying teller. She was calm and collected, as if it were an everyday matter. "Madame," said the teller, gently, "you have forgotten to endorse it." "Endorse it?" with a little worried smile. "Yes, you must write your name on the back here to show that you will repay this bank in case the issuer of this check should fail to answer our call." "Oh!" she said, accepting the pen. When the teller looked at the check this is what he read: "The —— bank has always paid up what it owes, and you need have no worry. Therefore, I endorse this check. Very truly yours, Mrs. J. B. Blanks." The teller fell over into the vault.

WOLVES IN DENVER.

A Citizen of That Town Chases in a Buggy Two of the Beasts.

An exciting and exceedingly novel wolf hunt was one of the incidents of current life yesterday within the municipal limits of Denver. The hunter in the strange chase was Norris Sprigg, editor of Mecca, a weekly newspaper published in this city. Two large and lively prairie wolves, which he flushed on the car tracks near the Colfax avenue entrance to City Park, were Nimrod Sprigg's quarry.

Sprigg resides on Park Hill, just beyond the easternmost bounds of the park. He left home for his office about 7:30 o'clock in the morning, intending to take a Colfax avenue car. As he neared the point on the track where a stop is made for the accommodation of visitors to the park, the [illegible]or was startled by seeing two big, [illegible] wolves trotting between the rails toward him.

At first he believed himself the victim of a delusion. It was too late in the city's growth, he thought, to hear the wolf's lone howl in the streets of Denver. But just then the pair of wolves halted and howled as one wolf, and Sprigg concluded they were real. He is an old hunter, and office duties were forgotten as he looked about for one or other available weapon with which to attack the wolves. But while he was engaged in the quest the game had taken to the park and were loping smoothly toward the more [illegible] open prairie to the east.

The excited Sprigg, all his hunting blood aboil, set after the escaping beasts of prey. They hung together and were headed in the direction of Sprigg's residence, so the pursuer hoped to reach home in time to get his gun for a shot at one of them.

Sprigg and the wolves had gone but a short distance when a boy in a light vehicle drove across the path of the hunter.

"Hi, boy, jump down for a second. Show you something here," panted Sprigg, as he caught the bit and stopped the horse.

Without thought the boy alighted, and in a jiffy Sprigg had subsidized his horse and buggy and was in the driving seat.

"Wolves," he yelled at the paralyzed boy, waving his hand wildly. "You stay here. Be back in ten minutes."

And then he cut by the shortest route toward his dwelling.

The wolves were in sight all the time on the nearly level prairie, and Sprigg's keen eyes were still on them when he reached home and shouted:

"Gimme my guns, quick!"

One of the household handed him the only loaded weapons on the premises—a No. 12 Parker's shotgun and a 42-calibre revolver.

Then Sprigg urged on his borrowed nag after the disappearing wolves. He took no account of the numerous irrigation ditches that crossed his way, but drove pell-mell over every obstacle. Fortunately for him and the horse the wolves avoided ditches and other perpendicular barriers, keeping to the level and open country. There must have been a hunter strain in the blood of Sprigg's steed, for it began to gain on the wolves, and finally, after a run of nobody knows how many miles, the editor concluded that he was within range.

He opened fire with the shotgun on the hindmost wolf, and delightedly saw the beast stumble, rise again, and then go on with the most perceptible limp. The horse lifted to a spurt, and Sprigg made ready for another shot. He was now sure of the wounded wolf, so the second shot was aimed at its mate. Sprigg thinks he wounded this wolf, too, but not serious enough to bag it, so he turned all his attention to the other one. Upon getting close enough to the lame wolf he jumped from the buggy, dropped on one knee and brought down the quarry with a pistol bullet.

After finishing the wolf, the triumphant editor remembered the waiting boy and his own neglected pastepot and shears. He returned the rig to the boy, rewarded him for his unwitting assistance in the morning's chase and, after leaving the dead wolf at home, caught his downtown car.

Editor Sprigg had the fresh pelt of the wolf on exhibition. He prizes it above any souvenir of the chase that ever fell to his lot, because of the queer circumstances surrounding its taking. It is Sprigg's opinion that the two wolves were returning from a night's poaching among the small game in City Park when he ran across them. He can think of no sufficient cause to account for their being driven into the city for forage. There has been far too little snow to drive them out of their usual haunts.

From another source it was learned that newly made wolf dens had been noticed recently a short distance beyond City Park. It is possible that a colony of wolves, driven from some wilder neighborhood by scalp hunters eager for bounty money, has settled in the locality. A regular round-up hunt for the pests is already discussed.—Denver Republican.

Franklin's Last Words.

Mr. Moncure D. Conway, always a careful scholar and excellent authority, writes to the London Athenaeum that he has found in the archives of the Department of State in Paris a letter from Louis Otto, who was the French Charge d'Affaires in Philadelphia, dated May 10, 1790, in which, writing of Benjamin Franklin's last words, he says: "A few minutes before his dissolution he repeated those words based upon the religion he had made for himself that 'a man was never perfectly born until after his death.'" Mr. Conway remarks that Otto, who was well acquainted with the Franklin family, had good authority for the incident reported to his government, and that these were really the philosopher's last words, instead of those attributed to him by Parton, who writes in his well-known biography: "Some one advising him to change his position so that he might breathe easier, he said: 'A dying man can do nothing easy.' These were the last words that have been recorded."—Chicago Tribune.

The Best Fumigant.

Dried orange peel allowed to smolder on a piece of red-hot iron or on an old shovel, will kill any bad odor in existence and leave a fragrant one behind.

900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
The Kind You Have Always Bought.
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.
An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.
NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.
Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.
Send 2c stamp for new Illustrated Catalogue, with prices.
THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

RACINE GAS ENGINE
Uses Gasoline, Natural Gas or Manufactured Gas. Fitted with both Hot Tube and Electric Batt. Are used for Pumping Water, Grinding Feed and all Farm Purposes; also Grain Elevators, Machine Shops, etc. The most Simple, Reliable and Economical Gas Engine on the market. Send 2 cent stamp for catalogue and prices to RACINE HARDWARE CO., Racine, Wis.

MANGLES —FOR— FAMILY AND HOTEL USE.
An ordinary family ironing can be done on the "RACINE" Mangle in twenty minutes, without heat or fuel.
NO FUEL. NO HEAT. NO SCORCHING.
Prices within the means of every family. Made in six styles and ten sizes, for Families, Hotels, etc. Every Mangle Guaranteed.
Send 2c stamp for new Illustrated Catalogue, with prices.
THE RACINE MANGLE CO., Racine, Wis.

Perfect in Quality
No Rochelle Salts
No Alum
MODERATE IN PRICE
in the food prepared with
Calumet Baking Powder
We will give $1000 for anything injurious found in food prepared with CALUMET
NOT MADE BY THE TRUST.

Dr. Humphreys'
Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICES.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.
Sold by druggists, or sent on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

A FREE PATTERN
(her own selection) to every subscriber. Beautiful colored lithographed plates and illustrations. Original, latest, artistic, and strictly up-to-date designs.
McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50c A YEAR
Dressmaking economies, fancy work, household hints, short stories, current topics, etc. Subscribe to-day. Only 50c. yearly. Lady agents wanted. Send for terms.
For ladies, misses, girls and little children. That certain stylish "chic" effect not attained by the use of any other patterns. Have no equal for style and perfect fit.
McCALL BAZAR PATTERNS 10c & 15c
Easily put together. Only 10 and 15 cents each—none higher. Sold in nearly every city and town, or by mail. Ask for them. Absolutely very latest up to date styles.
THE McCALL COMPANY,
113-115 West 31st Street, New York City, N. Y.

"Calumet" makes the lightest, sweetest and most wholesome bread and pastry.
CALUMET Baking Powder
NOT MADE BY THE TRUST.
NONE SO GOOD.

PATENTS GUARANTEED
Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.
Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.
Send for sample copy FREE. Address,
VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

BLANK PAGE

It's Time

Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
J. B. O'Brien, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3350.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. A.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Mrs. L. Lacoursiere, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant
T. J. Thorkelson
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Hidalgo Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

The Ideal
Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS,
PROMPT SERVICE.
OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd STORE
(Second Hand Store.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
St. Hilaire, Minnesota

New Restaurant
[Brink Bros. Corner Building.]
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.
If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
C. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the Spectator. Official county and village paper.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.71½	Oats	.30
Wheat No. 2	.69½	Barley	.26
Wheat No. 3	.65½	Flax	.156
Eggs (per doz).	8	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

The Fourth one week from to-day.

A light shower of rain fell Monday evening.

Joe Maxfield made a trip to Crookston Friday.

Attorney Richardson of the upper Falls is here to-day.

J. G. Ballard was down from Thief River Falls yesterday.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

The hotel thermometer registered 110 in the sun Monday afternoon.

Supt. Miller returned Monday from a short business trip at Minneapolis.

Miss Anna Abrahamson has been ill the past week with heart troubles.

Since the China war is on the Philippine and Boer wars are back numbers.

The marriage of Miss Mamie Mousseau to Mr. Fred Lemay will occur today.

Otto Olson returned home Saturday from an absence of several weeks in Dakota.

About a dozen little girls helped Eva McAndress celebrate her sixth birthday last Friday.

The members of the I. O. G. T. turned out in full Sunday and celebrated the day at Valhall.

Street Commissioner Harris is waging war on the weeds that grow alongside of the sidewalks.

Geo. Ossmann departed yesterday after a few days in Red Lake county buying up "snake-root."

Heavy dark clouds have been hanging over us more or less for the past three days but no rain yet.

The East Grand Forks Lumber Co., get their logs now by the train loads. They can not wait for water.

M. Rosenberg came up from Crookston the first of the week to assist in his branch store at this place.

Mrs. T. Gunness of Barnesville and Mrs. D. B. Ferguson of Mallory are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Aimer.

A ten year old boy was drowned at Thief River Falls last Saturday while fishing off some logs above the dam.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, July 23rd and 24th.

H. E. Ives and K. M. Hansen returned home Monday from attending the congressional convention at Fergus Falls.

Canned Peaches went up over 100 per cent, yet from every section of the country come tales of enormous peach crops.

Chief Moosedung disposed of his section near Thief River Falls to C. J. Knox last Monday. Consideration $4,500.

On account of the scarcity of coaches no special train was run from Thief River Falls to Red Lake Falls last Sunday.

H. D. Pettibone, a former superintendent of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company was here between trains Monday.

Messrs. Rapp, Brink and Dahleen took in the Mid-summer's celebration in the town of Polk Centre last Saturday afternoon.

Miss Bertha Loughridge is here visiting with her sister, Mrs. F. Case, having just finished a very successful term of school in the town of Holt.

A large delegation of the upper Falls people turned out and made a forty mile drive to see their boys win the game last Sunday at the lower Falls.

A river driver came down from Thief River this morning and said the water was so low that it was impossible to sluice logs over the dam at that place.

The band boys got out Monday evening and rendered several beautiful selections. They are becoming proficient in the way going through their marching maneuvers.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

The Fertile Journal says there are thirteen steele range peddlers canvasing the vicinity of Fertile and advises everybody to beware of the oily-tongue fellows. The advice is good.

Miss Madge, daughter of Fred Miller superintendent of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company arrived Monday from Minneapolis and will spend her vacation here visiting with her father.

A small sponge saturated with oil of lavender and hung near the bed, or a handkerchief moistened and laid near an invalids couch will be found an efficient aid in driving away intrusive flies.

A. M. Hanson, who lives two miles north of Wylie will sell his threshing machine outfit at auction on July 7th. Someone is liable to get a bargain as the rig is practically new being used only ninety days.

Mid-summers Day was celebrated in the Johnson grove in the town of Polk Centre last Saturday. A large gathering were present and listened attentively to the many speeches and the singing by the Black River choir.

An effective cement for mending cracks in a stove or oven is made by using wood ashes and salt in equal quantities mixed with water to a paste. This soon hardens with the heat, making a surface almost as firm as the original.

Messrs. Oyen and Burger will build a bowery in the grove near the north bridge that will be used during the afternoon and evening on July Fourth for those wishing to trip the light fantastic toe. Refreshments will be served on the grounds.

The Thief River Falls base ball nine passed through here early last Sunday with a swell turnout hauled by four horses enroute to Red Lake Falls where they showed the "Selects" how to play ball. 6 to 25 is the way the game ended in favor of the former nine.

Taken from a daily paper: About 10 o'clock this morning a horseless carriage, loaded with cowless milk, collided with a brainless rider on a chainless wheel. The luckless wheelman was badly injured and being homeless he was taken in a horseless cab to the home for the friendless where his death was painless in an hour or less.

A horseman—To protect horses from flies one remedy is to rub the animal with concentrated oil of laurel. Another is asafoetido, one pound; vinegar, half pint; water, one pint. Still another remedy is to take common smartweed and make strong decoction by boiling. When cold apply to neck, legs etc., and for twenty-four hours flies and insects will not trouble the animal. None of the above remedies are in the least injurious.—Fergus Falls Journal.

An exchange says "did you ever run across the old home newspaper, say ten years old or more? Did it not prove extremely interesting as you read its columns of local news and personal mention? As you look over its pages the many seeming trivial mentions carry with them a multitude of tender and pleasant associations. You wonder why you prized the paper so little when it was first printed when you find it so full of interest and food for reflection after so many years. It is only when one gets hold of an old local paper and views its panorama of the past and reflects on what a mirror of local events the papers are, that he begins to estimate their real value as a recorder of current history."

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

An old settler says that in 1876 there were 30 days of rains and showers beginning June 10, and in 1883 beginning June 15 it rained until July 3. Before that it was dry and dusty and vegetation made no progress. There was a good crop in 1884. The sloughs were filled with water also. None of the old settlers remember when the ground was quite so dry as at present nor when there was as little water in the ponds. In 1886 rain began on the 5th of July when the crops were in far worse shape than now. Then they were burned and dry and little hope was entertained that they ever would amount to anything. A fair crop was harvested that year to the surprise of many. The crops at present look green and thrifty despite the long drouth, giving assurance that if rains fall in the right quantities that good fair yields can be looked for.—Jamestown Alert.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

Spring wheat seems to be standing the dry conditions better that oats and barley, but on sandy soil this crop is said to be so dried up as to be worthless for cutting; on heavier soils all the small grains may yield some grain, but the straw is short, the stand irregular and thin and the heads small.—The grains are heading in all parts of the state. Flax which had a good start is apparently holding out well, but late flax is thin and poor, and all of it must have rain soon. Winter rye, and also the small acreage of winter wheat is ripening. Small grains are being plowed up for forage crops and for flax in some sections. In the southern part of the state corn and potatoes are doing fairly well, though the stand as a whole is not good; those best cultivated are looking well. The upland hay is nearly a failure, except in extreme southeastern counties, where it is good, and there clover is being cut. The wild hay crop is poor.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, July 23rd and 24th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 23th and 24th.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

The Thief River Falls Press makes an unwarranted attact in its last issue upon County Commissioner K. M. Hanson. The Press was evidently ill-advised. The county commissioners did not let the ditch contracts. They were let by the County Auditor and the bids of Anton Andersen (who is supposed to be K. M. Hansen's partner) was the only bids for that part of the work. All the other bidders being afraid to handle that part of the work because it was wet and uncertain. Had it not been for Anton Anderson's bid the ditch would not have been built. If Mr. Hansen was interested in the contracts he should be praised (not condemned) for making the first county ditch a success. It is possible they will clear some money out of the work, but if it had been an ordinary wet season instead of the dryest on record, persons well posted say that the contractors would have lost heavily. In justice to Mr. Hansen we believe Editor Mussey should investigate this matter more closely.

A Maid who Fought for Liberty.

"The Battle of Bunker Hill fired Deboria Sampson's patriotism and brought to her the resolution to fight in the Continental Army until liberty was secured," writes Mabel Percy Haskell in the July Ladies' Home Journal of "The Girl who fought in the Revolution." "She revealed her purpose to enlist to none for fear of opposition, but with the small sum of money she had laid by from the sale of her chickens she purchased the wool to make the cloth for her suit, weaving it herself and making the garments in secret. She informed her employer just prior to leaving that she was going to seek employment in Boston, and set off with her clothes in a parcel without creating any suspicions as to her plan. Deborah changed her garments in the woods and came forth a man to all appearances, and made her way to Taunton, and thence to Billingham, where she immediately enlisted in a recruiting party under the name of Robert Shurtleff, the small party of recruits going immediately to Worcester to join the company of Captain Thayer. A deep interest was taken by the Captain in Robert Shurtleff, the earnestness and beauty of the youth appealing strongly to him, and a home was given the young recruit in the officer's own family. Here Deborah Sampson experienced her first sensations at playing the part of a man, for a young lady visiting Captain Thayer's family fell deeply in love with the handsome young soldier."

A western editor is the author of the following golden thoughts upon marriages: Nine tenths of the unhappy marriages are the result of green human calves being allowed to run at large in society pastures without any yoke on them. They marry and have children before they have moustaches. They are fathers of twins before they are proprietors of two pairs of pants, and the little girls they marry are old women before they are twenty years old. Occasionally one of these gosling marriages turns out all right, but it is a clear case of luck. If there was a law against young galoots sparking and marrying before cutting all their teeth, we suppose the little cusses would evade it someway. But there ought to be a sentiment against it. It is time enough for these bantams to think of finding a pullet when they have raised enough money to buy a bundle of lath to make a hen house. But they see a girl who looks cunning and they are afraid there are not going to be enough to go around and they begin to spark real spry, and before they are aware of the sanctity of the marriage relation they are hitched for life, and before they own a cook stove or a bedstead they have to get up in the night and go after the doctor, so frightened that they run themselves out of breath, and abuse the doctor because he don't run, too. And when the doctor gets there, there is not enough linen in the house to wrap up the baby.

Equalization Meeting.

Meeting of the board of equalization at the village hall on Monday the 25th day of June 1900 at 9 o'clock a. m. pursuant of notice of village assessor. Meeting called to order by Pres. Rapp. On motion the following changes were made in the assessments. St. Hilaire Lumber Company raised $6,725.00 on stock; J. C. Dahl raised $320.00 on mortgage on real estate; A. C. Adams raised $50.00 on personal property; Red Lake Falls Milling Company raised $300.00 on stock; M. McAndress raised $24.00 on personal property; Leonard Holmes raised $200.00 on stock.

On motion meeting adjourned at 4 o'clock p. m. there being no more business for said board to act upon.

Attest:— C. G. Rapp
J. L. Johnson, President.
Recorder.

—For screen doors and windows go to I. Dahleen's.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to say that I feel under lasting obligations for what Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has done for our family. We have used it in so many cases of coughs, lung troubles and whooping cough, and it has always given the most perfect satisfaction, we feel greatly indebted to the manufacturers of this remedy and wish them to please accept our hearty thanks.—Respectfully, Mrs. S. Doty, Des Moins, Iowa. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

Platform Adopted by the Congressional Convention.

Senator M. J. Daly of Ottertail county was nominated for Congress by the Peoples Party convention at Fergus Falls last Saturday on the fifth ballot. Mayor Aaker of Moorhead, A. R. Holston of Crookston and T. C. Hodgson of Grant county were the candidates. Senator Daly is by far the strongest candidate that could have been nominated. He will without doubt receive the Democratic endorsement and will give Eddy the hardest kind of a fight. The following platform was adopted:

The People's party of the Seventh congressional district of the state of Minnesota, in convention assembled at Fergus Falls, Minn., on this 23rd day of June, 1900 adopts the following resolutions:

I.

We reassert our fidelity to the principles to the peoples party as formulated and laid down in the national conventions of that party held at Omaha, St. Louis and Sioux Falls, and congratulate the people's party upon the rapidly developing sentiment of the common people regardless of party affiliation in favor of the important reforms which have been uniformly advocated by the members of our party; and as a leader of the united forces of freedom and advocate of our principles we believe there can be found no greater man than the nominee of our party, William Jennings Bryan.

II.

The American people are this year confronted by the most momentous question it has ever faced. The republican party under the leadership of Mark Hanna has violated the sacred principles of self government and established a principle of government by force.

We believe in the words of Lincoln, "that a government cannot remain half free and half slave. The stars and stripes must not wave over subjects; all must be citizens." People that cannot become an integral of our republic should be given the same rights that we claim for ourselves—self government. We are opposed to imperialism not only on account of the wrong it does to the conquered people, but also because it threatens our own free institutions. It necessitates a large standing army—the pliant tool of the oppressor and the greatest menace to liberty.

III.

We believe in bi-metallism and condemn the financial bill recently passed in congress because it turns over to the national banker the function of supplying a circulation medium and regulates its amount, and because it strikes down one of the money metals of ultimate redemption and thereby changes the contract between the government and the holders of its securities.

IV.

We demand the enforcement of existing laws against trusts and combinations of capital for arbitrary control of the markets and the enactment of whatever additional legislation is necessary to insure the healthy play of competition in all great branches of industry. Believing that nearly every article upon which there is a tariff has gone into a trust and the price thereby has been enhanced from twenty five to one hundred per cent; we therefore demand that all trust articles be placed on the free list.

V.

We favor a graduated income and inheritance tax; we demand the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. We believe in the system of the initiative and referendum in important matters of legislation and the public ownership and control of all natural monopolies.

We believe that all who love freedom, all who desire to see popular government survive, and all who believe in the Declaration of Independence should disregard minor differences and past part affiliations and support our standard bearers in both nation and state, and present a united front against the hosts of oppression, imperialism, favoritism and financial slavery.

—Screen doors and windows made to order at L. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

India is a country not half so large as the United States, with four times its population. These 300,000,000 people must be fed from their own crops, as there is, relatively, no manufacturing resource to buy food with, says the Review of Reviewers. There are parts of India with a population of 1,000 people to the square mile, and there are millions upon millions of farm laborers vagrants, gypsies and nondescript classed whose means of living even in times of plenty, are inscrutable.

—Go to Rapp & Post for harness and harness supplies.

Charles H. Marks, while acting in the capacity of nurse at the Second Davison Hospital of the Fifty Army Corps at Santiago de Cuba, used a few bottles of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhoea and found it to work like a charm. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly
Prof. J. Q. Adams,
Watchmaker and Optician.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

We Handle Everything.
Start the Day Right
And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.
Our Groceries
Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.
Hardware
We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.
Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of
Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—of—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO Buy
Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

Her Heart's Secret

Or Under a Spell.

By Jean Warner.

CHAPTER XXXII. (Continued.)

"'Tis the drug working now," whispered the listening woman to herself. "It can loosen even his proud, still tongue."

In a dreamy tone, her master continued:

"I was watching at his bedside—I, his nephew, his heir. Aye, had not Basil Clive always taught me to believe myself his heir? Had he not tacitly accepted me as such, again and again? Grasping and greedy to all the rest of the world, he had been generous and lavish to me alone—to me alone.

"And, with the sunshine of fortune gilding my future, I asked Agnes Dean to be my wife. Her proud family would have scorned the penniless lawyer, but they smiled on the rich man's heir. We were betrothed, and my first and only dream of happiness begun.

"I was thinking of her as I watched by the dying man's pillow—thinking of her grace, her sweetness, her bright, gladsome beauty. I was planning, even then, our future—the future colored with every gorgeous hue of happiness and hope.

"And even while the dream still floated before my enchanted eyes, the dying man's hoarse whisper called me close to his bedside, and I heard from his trembling lips that he was awaiting his son—the son whom he had never recognized or cared for—the son of a clandestine and unhappy marriage—the unknown son, who was to supplant me, his acknowledged heir. I must right his wrong. I must do him justice. I must ruin all my life, blight all my happiness, darken all my future, for the sake of a rude, uncultured stranger. The old man raved, aye, he only raved! With the thought of Agnes in my heart, I could face the passionate madman, who forced himself into the dying man's chamber; with that thought in my heart I could hear my uncle breathe his last blessing to the son he had never known, and then, with his last breath, bid me do justice. I could listen calmly to the wild upbraiding of the imposter who called himself Basil Clive.

"He defied me over his father's corpse; he demanded the justice that was his father's dying legacy to him. With his hand on the dead man's breast, he swore a fearful oath of hate and revenge to me, to mine, forever, if that justice were denied.

"Justice—ha, ha!—justice! justice! The word has been echoing in my ears ever since. Justice! that would have robbed me of my fortune, of my bride. Justice! to an unknown, beggarly outcast, who could not even get a lawyer to take up his claim. Justice! justice! when"—the speaker's eyes flashed with unnatural fire, and he rose, gasping, from his chair—"when the proof, the only proof of my uncle's marriage—when the certificate he gave me on his dying bed, the paper that, armed with a scorpion's sting, has been hidden in my breast for five-and-twenty years—when old Basil Clive's marriage certificate was here!"

And, striking his hand on his breast, as if he would have crushed some monster clinging there, the master of Clive Towers, with a moan of pain, fell forward, senseless, on his own hearthstone.

And Mrs. Wyllis, stilling the cry of terror that rose to her lips, stooped down and, slipping her slender hand into the bosom of Robert Clive, drew forth the thin oil-skin packet concealed there, and thrust it into her own dress.

Then, ringing, with a deadly-pale countenance, trembling limbs and gleaming eyes, she shrieked loudly for help.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Blood-Red Star.

"Herbert must come home," soliloquized the doctor, as he rode homeward through the gray winter twilight, after a few moments' encouraging talk with Fannie as to her father's health. "It would be cruel to tell that poor little girl the truth; but Robert Clive is killing himself by inches. I saw it in his eyes, I smelled it in his breath, I heard it in his voice. And no friend dare approach him, for that she-cat mounts guard over him from morning till night. She is bent on mischief, and always has been, though she has hidden her claws skilfully for over twenty years. I suspect she knows as much about Robert Clive's affairs today as he does himself—aye, and as much about Basil Clive's, too! She had her eye on my poor little Sybil. The child shrank from her with instinctive dread. Hello! who have we here?" exclaimed the doctor, as his reverie was brought to an abrupt close by a start of his pony, that nearly flung the rider over his head—"who have we here?"

"Have ye forgotten so soon, Harry Bond?" said a sepulchral voice; and the tall, thin form of Rizpah loomed up amid the gathering shadows. "Have ye so soon forgotten the bondwoman of Sybil Lee?"

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the doctor, "you here again, Rizpah—exposed to wether like this? Come home with me at once; you are well-nigh perishing with cold."

"Neither the cold of winter nor the heats of summer—neither the frost nor the fire, the tempest nor the blast, can kill the purpose that lives in Rizpah's heart, and will live there until she sees the end! The end is near—the stars warned me of its coming—and I have turned my back on the sunny Southern land where my boy left me, and am here once more. Have you heard what they say of Robert Clive?"

At the question, her eyes flamed up likes coals of fire.

"I have just left him," answered the doctor, gravely. "He is changed now, Rizpah, sadly changed—weak, and old and broken."

"Weak, and old, and broken!" she exclaimed, triumphantly. "It is well—it is well! The curse of the dying is beginning to work. Weary and old, and broken: but 'tis not enough. He must be shamed, dishonored, crushed! The end is near—the end is near! The end is near!"

"Come home with me, Rizpah," said the doctor, soothingly. "You are ill yourself. This weather is too frosty for such old blood as yours."

"Cold, cold!" she repeated. "You know me—the old blood is boiling with fever heat in my veins. I must stay out amid the snows, beneath the stars. See, there is already gleaming, blood-red, in the heavens, that same star that brought me its message of evil five-and-twenty years ago. The red star of ill-omen to the Clives. Hark, hark!"

"Doctor, doctor!" cried an excited voice behind them, and one of the servants from the Towers ran up, breathlessly. "Come—quick, doctor, quick—the master's struck!"

"Struck! How? When?" asked the doctor, excitedly. "I left him not half an hour ago!"

"Aye, aye, sir! But the stroke came on him just afterwards. They told me to come quick, and I might catch you. For God's sake, hurry, sir, for he's lying like one dead in the study, and Miss Fannie is going on like one mad. Lord knows 'twill be the dark night at Clive Towers unless you bring him to!"

"Aye, a dark night!" cried the shrill voice of old Rizpah, as the doctor hurried away with the man—"a dark night, indeed! But no darker than another night five-and-twenty years ago, when the blood-red star was telling of death and dishonor to the Clives. Aye, tremble, tremble, tremble, Robert Clive!—for tremble now, you may. Your day has been long and sunny, but the night has come at last—a dark, dark night, that is lit only by the blood-red star!"

It was, indeed, a dark night at Clive Towers. Mute and helpless its master lay on the cushioned lounge in his study, while Dr. Bond and two of his confreres, hastily summoned from the city, labored skilfully and earnestly to bring back the life-tide to its accustomed flow.

But the channels seemed clogged; the breath came in heavy, stertorous gasps; the swollen veins, the sluggish pulse—all seemed to make the doctors' efforts vain.

Shut in her own room, whither Dr. Bond's friendly firmness had banished her, Fannie passed the dragging hours of that wretched night! Alone, alone—so utterly alone!

Oh, for Herbert's strong and loving arm to lean on in this hour of trial—for Fenton's cheering whisper—for Sybil's tender sympathy!

All had left her, and the hot-house flower, that had been sheltered from every blast, must bow its beautiful head to the storm of winter, and breast the keen wind of adversity alone—all alone!

The wing that had guarded her so tenderly was broken, the strength that had shielded her so faithfully laid low, and, sobbing in her darkened chamber through the weary hours of that awful night, Fannie felt that she was, indeed, an orphan.

It was nearly day when Dr. Bond tapped at her door and summoned her to her father's bedside.

"He is conscious, we think, my dear," said the old doctor, kindly; but there seems something on his mind taht he cannot speak. Perhaps you may understand what he wishes to say."

Trembling in every limb, Fannie was led into her father's chamber, whither he had been conveyed an hour before.

The white curtains of his bed were looped aside, and, supported in an almost upright position, amid the pillows, his features rigid and unnatural, his lips livid and tremulous, his eyes bloodshot and glassy, wandering from side to side in a despairing unrest—was the stately master of Clive Towers—the stern, haughty, indomitable Robert Clive.

His right hand kept straying ever and anon to his breast, as if he would make an effort to reach something there that pained him, and, when the effort failed, he would gaze around again with such pleading agony that even the physicians, accustomed to painful scenes of every description, felt indescribably moved.

"There is something that troubles him, my dear," said Dr. Bond, in a low voice, to Fannie. "Try and understand, my child, something your father wishes to say."

"Papa, papa!" the poor girl burst forth, piteously—"oh, papa, can you not speak, and tell me what you wish me to do?"

Oh, the dumb appeal of those quivering lips, those wandering eyes—the despairing energy with which the trembling hand tore at the uncovered breast—the agony of remorse that forced at length the husky whisper:

"Herbert, in God's name do justice—justice!"

Even as the words passed his livid lips Robert Clive fell back on his pillows, and, with a last despairing gesture, as if he would tear a veil from his heart, the master of Clive Towers lay a corpse.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

It was late one winter evening, that a sun-browned traveler stopped at a little inn that lay in one of those lovely valleys sheltered by the mighty fastnesses of the Alps.

So sheltered, indeed, that, even at this advanced season, this little oasis, deep-sunken in the heart of the hills and gemmed by a miniature lake, smiled with something of the freshness and beauty of perennial spring.

It was a secluded place, far removed from the ordinary line of tourists, and as the traveler reined in his horse at the little hostelry that looked, with its quaint style and appointments, like some German toy, and gazed around him at the placid lake, the modest hamlet, the church and a few villas dotting the slopes beyond, and then afar to the white, shining circle of the everlasting hills, clad in their spotless mantles of eternal snow, he felt that he had entered into one of those quiet nooks where Nature bids her weary children come and rest.

The invitation, in this case, fell on a responsive heart. Weary and wayworn, footsore and heartsick, Herbert Clive had just returned from aimless wanderings in the East. He had followed no route, being guided by no purpose. His only idea was to escape from curious eyes and busy tongues, to bear the bitterness of his sorrow alone—to forget, if possible, amid strange scenes and distant climes, the folly of his love, the madness of his pursuit and the agony of his loss.

But the spell was upon him still. Spite of every effort to put this beautiful, mysterious from his mind, Sybil reigned still in his heart its sovereign mistress, its crowned queen. He had sworn to himself never again to seek her. He had resolved to pluck from his breast the mad hope that, like some sweet yet poisoned flower, was blighting all the energy of his life. He had determined, once for all, to turn his back upon the dead past and leave it buried in oblivion forever—to face the future bravely and manfully, and live out his life as nobly as he could, dreary and loveless though it should be.

And it was in pursuance of this resolution that had come to him that he was going home, after months of purposeless wandering, that seemed, as he looked back upon them, like the phases of a feverish dream. He was going home—the home he had almost learned to think of as an unreal vision of the past—the home where all his duty and his life-work lay.

But he knew nothing of the dark cloud that lowered on Clive Towers. It had been months since tidings from America had reached him, and he felt as if there were no need of haste. He could yield to the whim of the moment that prompted him to enter into this quiet valley and rest—rest, before he had turned his back upon the dreamland of hope forever—rest, before he climbed the cold, dreary heights of a future that seemed typified by the snow-clad peaks that lifted their barren summits in his path.

The little inn was a very model of tidiness and comfort; the hostess was brisk and loquacious; and as Herbert trifled over the bountiful repast she set before him, he was soon made acquainted with all the points of interest in the neighborhood of St. Gothard, for the little hamlet took its name from the celebrated pass that was near by.

"Monsieur was American? Ah, many—very many Americans had stopped there the past year! One, two—ah, as many as three! Perhaps monsieur was a friend of dis Col. Laponte, who had taken the Ville du Lac, which monsieur could see from his windows. Ah, such a beautiful place! 'Twas a pity to have it left vacant so long."

Herbert listened with vague interest.

And then good Dame Marguerite, delighted to have so attentive a listener, went into a long dissertation on the beauty of the villa, the loveliness of mademoiselle, and the generosity of the brave monsieur, her father.

Laponte? Laponte? The name was familiar to him. Where had he seen it before? It seemed to belong to that dreamy, half-remembered past—the past he had put behind him forever.

And partly from this dim memory lingering in his mind—party because it was the only spot of interest near—Herbert strolled out that evening, when the moonlight was silvering the brows of the distant mountains, and bent his steps toward the Ville du Lac.

It was a lovely spot, the deep mountain lake mirroring in its pellucid waves the cloud, the sky and shore; the tiny island, that seemed almost to float upon the dark-blue waters, bearing the beautiful little villa, that, with its points and turrets, and cupolas, glistening in the moonlight, looked like some quaint German toy, and the great white peaks beyond, framing the whole, formed a picture fair to look upon, even in a dream.

He sat down on the fir-clad shore, and was taking in the beautiful scene as one of those

"To hang on memory's walls," when a little boat shot out from the villa, and floated out on the bosom of the lake, impelled by a young girl—a girl whose slender form was draped in a white cashmere mantle, and veiled in a glory of golden hair.

Herbert's sight suddenly grew dim, and he put his hand to his head, as if to clear the mists from his brain. His pulse seemed to throb simultaneously; his breath came quick and short.

Was he mad, dreaming, or bound, indeed by some fearful spell?—a spell from which he could not escape?

For the golden-haired chatelaine of Ville du Lac—the Mademoiselle Laponte of Dame Marguerite—had the eyes and the hair, and the form and the voice, of his lost love, Sybil Wraye!

She was singing softly to herself—singing as Sybil was ever wont to sing, the thoughts that were denied prosaic speech.

Herbert held his breath and listened, as the song came borne over the moonlit waters, to the musical accompaniment of her oars:

"Hast thou left me, love, forever?
No, ah, no, love! no, no, no!
Life indeed would be too dreary,
Could I believe that thou wouldst go.
By me still thy spirit lingers,
Ne'er to part, love—ne'er to part.
Rainbows link e'en earth to heaven;
So may Hope link heart to heart."

Hope! hope! When had the word found echo before in Sybil's song? Hope! What siren was it thus deluding him with her false, cruel strains? Had he not sworn to pluck hope from his breast?

And yet Herbert lingered, spellbound, watching the fairy skiff with a strained and fascinated gaze.

It crossed the placid bosom of the lake, and, urged by a few light strokes of the oars, then drifted on, past the very spot where he stood.

Herbert was unseen, but at the sight of that exquisite profile, shaded by the snowy folds of the Capuchian hood, the stern resolve of months melted away like mists before the sun.

"Sybil"—the word seemed almost forced from his quivering lips—"Sybil! again—again!"

She turned, with a nervous start, and let the oars drop from her trembling hands.

"Herbert!"

Even in the pale moonlight he could see the crimson life-tide flushing brow and cheek, as she spoke the name.

"Is it Sybil, indeed? or only some mocking vision?" he asked—"some cruel spirit, luring me on to destruction and despair? In God's name, if beings such as you have a God, speak to me! Tell me who and what you are! Free me from the spell that holds me, despite myself and all my efforts! Tell me why you haunt me—by what mysterious power you control my fate!"

"Is it Herbert Clive who speaks?" she asked, with a touch of scorn—"Herbert Clive? or some weak creature whom any juggler could delude? Spell and charm! Alas, it is only woman who bends a willing victim to her power—it is only woman who acknowledges the one mighty spell that enthralls heart and soul, and mind, and strength—the spell of Love! It is only woman who can suffer and die, smiling in her fetters, yet never ask to be set free!"

"Sybil, Sybil! do you speak to me in these accents of reproach?" was his bitter exclamation—"you, whom I have loved with such folly, such madness, that reason, judgment and wisdom have weighed as nothing against the power that drew me to your side? You have denied my suit, refused my prayers, perplexed me with doubts, tortured me by mysteries, well-nigh maddened me with masks and disguises. I loved you as purely and devotedly as man can love, and yet that love, based though it was, on honor, faith and truth, has been well-nigh my ruin. My life is still before me, sere and blighted, 'tis true, but I cannot cast it utterly away. Sweet and lovely though the flower may be, when its perfume poisons and bewilders us, that flower must be plucked from our breasts. Sybil, I have loved you—I must love you to the bitter end—but I must fly from you. I dream, I hope, I suffer all the agonies of doubt and suspense at your side. My firmest resolutions fail me. I am again a madman!"

The little boat rocked like a lily leaf on the moonlit waves. The fair occupant was trembling now—trembling with the weight of emotions pride could not control.

"Alas, alas!" she faltered, "it has been a cruel, cruel fate that has brought our lives together. I have flung a dark and poisoned shadow in your path. I have blighted where I would have blessed, embittered where I would have only sweetened and cheered. It is right that you should forget me, and yet—yet—"

She paused and buried her face in her hands.

"You would not be forgotten?" he interposed. "Speak to me, darling, and tell me it is so? Oh, my love—my only love—it is only from a deluding dream that I would escape; it is only from a glittering mirage that I would turn away. I cannot wreck my life in following an illusive phantom. The echoes of your voice, glimpses of your presence, snatches of your songs, have lured me on from land to land, from clime to clime. I have been too long an idle wanderer, a worthless dreamer. Sybil, you yourself would scorn the man who could waste his manhood in the vain pursuit of a shadow, a vision, a beautiful but evanescent dream!"

"I know," she whispered—"I know you are right. The web of my life has been woven so strangely, so darkly, that you may well look upon me with doubt and fear. And yet—yet I am no being of different mould from those around me. Sorrow and injustice, mortal's hate and mortal vengeance, have warped my life and made me what I am.—a woman, with all a woman's loves and hopes denied. Forgive me the unwilling wrong I have done you. Alas! I suffer enough without the thought that we have parted in anger or fear. Let us part in sorrow, Herbert, as those part whom the death angel severs for time alone, not eternity. I would have died, indeed, rather than have lived to cause you a moment's anguish, a moment's fear. Let us part here, beneath the moonlit skies—in sorrow and in peace."

"And in love!" he added, eagerly. "Say in love and in hope, Sybil, and the future, however cold, will gleam, as brightly as those snow-capped heights above us. I will wait and trust through the moonlit night for the coming day. The clouds and darkness have been heavy and bewildering, darling. Lighten them with one pale beam of hope?"

"Hope!" she whispered, rising in the boat and holding out her hand to him "Alas! the word is one I dare not utter. But love—even the sorrowing, the hopeless, may speak of love—love that can reach even unto heaven! Ah, yes, we may part in love!"

He lifted the little hand to his lips.

"Love, love! Henceforth that word shall be my talisman," he murmured. "We part in love. Aye, darling and in love—I know, I feel it—we shall meet again!"

(To be Continued.)

TURKEY'S RESOURCES.

It Is One of the Richest Countries in the World.

The Ottoman empire is, in potential resources, probably the richest country in the world, next to the United States. For years American and Turkish statesmen have been endeavoring with all their power to foster what little trade their countries have, and to create new trade channels to commercially connect the republic and the empire. These endeavors have already borne good fruit, and the future possibilities in that direction are infinite. The mutual relations of commerce already amount to millions, and it would be most unfortunate that an untoward event should disturb in their growth these promising shoots of trade, and bring about a distrust which would cause the originating of new branches of trade to be made impossible for many years to come.

The feeling of fellowship among nations is, to a large extent, sentimental, especially when there is no possible point of hostile contact. The Turks have been educated to know that there is a great, free nation far in the West, foremost in all the endeavors of commerce, industry and technical inventions—a nation to whom they could, without any fear, intrust the development of their infinite resources.—Collier's Weekly.

"I'd Leave My Happy Home."

It is not often that an organ grinder contributes anything to develop the sense of humor which is implanted, in a greater or less degree, in all mortals. As a general thing, the organ grinder awakens a sentiment just the opposite, particularly when he insists upon grinding out popular airs we have heard so often that the repetition is positively painful. One grinder, however, played better than he knew, when he struck up in front of School No. 5 the other day. The class in Greek history was on the recitation bench. One pupil was repeating the familiar story of Helen and Paris. In all seriousness, as she closed the telling of the tale, she said. "And she left her home for him." Just then the street organ outside began to peal forth: "I'd leave my happy home for you." Even the teacher was compelled to abandon dignity and join in the smile that spread throughout the school room.—Albany Press.

Luck at Cards.

Several men were discussing the subject of big luck, when one remarked:

"All this talk about thirteen being an unlucky number is sheer nonsense. What, for instance, is luckier than holding thirteen trumps at whist?"

"Humph!" replied another gentleman. "I held a thirteen-trump hand once, and didn't make more than one trick with it."

"How could that be?"

"Well, you see, my partner was somewhat hot-tempered, and when I trumped his ace he jumped up and kicked me out of the room."—Waverly Magazine.

The Meeting of the Ends.

We found him in his wretched garret. He had eaten his last candle and was writing furiously by the light of the stars.

"You seem scarcely able to make both ends meet," we said.

"I am a poet, not a contortionist," he replied, without the slightest trace of impatience.

And we felt ourselves rebuked, and slunk away.—Detroit Journal.

Not the Regular Thing.

"And do you call that a patriotic song?" said the publisher, handing back the manuscript.

"Certainly. Why not?" asked the other, in surprise.

"Why, you don't rhyme 'soldier boy' with 'mother's joy' anywhere."—Philadelphia Press.

The Merry Thespians.

Manager "Uncle Tom's" Company—We call the big bloodhound Sirius.

Rubber—Why?

Manager—Because he's our dog star.—Baltimore American.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

A Dream Song.

Lullaby, hushaby, hasten away,
Little pink pilgrim, till dawn of the day;
Slow swings the cradle, but swift is the flight,
Lullaby, hushaby, baby, good night.

Over the bridges of Slumberland's streams
Lies the most wonderful Garden of Dreams;
Short is the journey and soft is the sod
Down by the valleys of Drowsy and Nod.

Daisies and violets peep thro' the grass,
Buttercups beckon and bow as you pass,
Tiny dream-fairies in tunics of blue
Bring sweetest dreams in the garden for you.

Lullaby, hushaby, hasten away
Over the bridges till dawn of the day;
Short is the journey to hours of delight—
Lullaby, hushaby, baby, good night.

—Addie S. Cullom in Woman's Home Companion.

Ten Fairies.

Mamma had been telling Dorothy a pretty story about a friendly fairy, who always came just at the right moment to help a little girl in her work or play.

Dorothy thought about the story very hard for a few minutes, and then she looked up into mamma's face and said:

"I wish I had a little fairy like that, mamma, to help me."

"All little girls have fairies to help them, Dolly."

"Is it another story, mamma. Tell me about it!" for mamma's stories were the nicest stories in the world.

"But these fairies are truly ones, Dorothy."

"Truly, mamma?"

"Truly, Dorothy. Jump up here and I'll tell you all about it."

So Dorothy jumped up into mamma's lap again, for she had jumped down when she thought the story was ended, and mamma gave her a kiss and a "bear's hug," and began:

"Each little girl has ten real fairies to help her, Dorothy, and she can make them go to work whenever she likes."

"Dolly's eyes opened very wide indeed, and she said:

"Have I got ten fairies, too, mamma?"

"Oh, yes, Dolly; you have got ten fairies, too, just the same as other little girls. Your ten little fairies are very busy, useful little servants, and they love nothing better than to work for you all day long. The more they work the better work they can do, for they become quicker and more expert. That means they learn how to work better. Do you understand, Dorothy?"

Dorothy nodded.

Oh, yes; I know; just like when I pick up all the scraps and papers; I know better how to do it next time."

"Yes, and just so, if you make your little fairy servants work, they will serve you better each time. So you ought to keep them busy all day long. Don't you think so, Dorothy?"

"I just wish I knew where they lived, mamma," said Dolly, wistfully.

"They live with you in this house, Dolly girl," replied mamma, smiling at Dolly's puzzled look.

"Dear me!" Dolly exclaimed, with a long breath.

"They are not so very big, Dolly," went on this funny mamma, squeezing Dolly's plump little hands. "Two of them are about two inches long, and the rest not more than three."

"How much is three inches, mamma?"

So mamma got out her pretty tape measure, with the bird on the cover, and measured one of Dolly's fingers, and showed her just how long three inches were.

"Oh, I do wish I knew where they were, mamma!"

"Such dear, busy, faithful little servants they can be, Dolly," mamma went on, her eyes twinkling fast, with the little shiny sparkles in them that Dolly loved.

"Do—do tell, mamma!"

"And your fairies have learned how to do such nice things, Dolly. They can pick up the baby's toys, or bring papa's paper, or carry grandma her knitting"—and mamma laughed ever so hard.

"Oh, I know, mamma; I know! I've found out!" cried Dolly. "I know now who my ten fairies are!"

And since every little girl has ten fairies just like them, who knows what Dorothy's ten little fairy servants were?

Hold Up Your Head!

Hold up your head! Your teacher has probably dinned that at you until you are tired of hearing it, but it can't be too often urged. It is the only way to keep your shoulders back and avoid that "stoop-shouldered" condition that brings on lung trouble, spinal trouble and a host of other ailments that help to make a short life and a miserable one. If you go around with your head lopping forward you will soon begin to feel as "hang-dog" as you look. You get as slouchy in your dress as you are in your attitude; you become irresolute as to speech, absent minded, and a poor, sneaking counterfeit of the boy or girl you ought to be. Hold up your head physically and it will help you to hold up your head spiritually and mentally. You will breathe deeper, walk freer and see more of the world. The earth is beneath with its mud. The sky, trees, human faces and hundreds of other interesting and beautiful things are so high up that you will not see them at all unless you throw back your shoulders and lift up your head to its natural and honorable place. A bent head will always make the shoulders round, the chest hollow and the gait poor, for your tendency is always to be pitching forward. Don't do it! Hold up your head!

Making Children Grow.

The question has often been asked "Is there any method by which low sized persons can become taller?" and up to the present the answer has almost invariably been in the negative. Now, however, a distinguished French specialist assures us that if proper steps be taken at the proper time persons who would otherwise be of less than moderate stature can be, so to speak, forced upward to a normal height. This specialist is Dr. Springer, who is the guiding spirit of the laboratory of the Faculty of Medicine in Paris, and his views on this subject are clearly set forth by Dr. Cabanes in an article which appears in the current number of the Revue des Revues. With the object of artificially increasing the height of human beings, Dr. Springer recently made several experiments in Paris, the main reason which impelled him to do so being the discovery of the rather startling fact that the stature of French men and women has for some time been steadily decreasing. The latest statistics bear ample testimony in this direction, and, furthermore, they show that, while the average stature has decreased in France, it has increased in Russia. Dr. Springer's first experiments were made on dogs. Being satisfied that proper food would work wonders in the desired direction he experimented on several puppies, giving to some ordinary food and care and to other special food and novel hygienic treatment. The result was that in the case of the latter there was an increase of growth, or stature, varying from six to eight centimetres. How remarkable this was will be seen when it is stated that during the same time the growth of the other puppies was only increased from two to four centimetres. These experiments satisfied Dr. Springer of one fact—namely, that salts, used in solution with cereals that are being prepared as food, produce a powerful and beneficial effect on the bony system of animals. He also points out that the cereals which are prepared as food should always be fresh, and that the food, after being prepared, should be used as soon as possible.

Nests in Holes in Trees.

Woodpeckers all use holes drilled out with their strong bills, the chips making the lining. If you follow up a series of round holes drilled in the decayed branch of a tree you will usually come upon one of these nests. These birds waste much time and labor by drilling several holes before they find one to suit their fancy. These holes, besides forming the nest in summer, answer for a home in winter, though sometimes the male bird drills a hole just large enough for himself and lets his mate weather the winter storms as well as she can. The woodpeckers drill new holes for nests each season, and the old ones are quietly appropriated by the nuthatches, the chickadees and the brown creepers. Each has her notions of refurnishing the borrowed homes. The chickadees put down a soft carpet or rug of caterpillar silk or spider webs, mixed with down from plants. The nuthatches are satisfied with a mat of grass. The great-crested flycatcher also uses a convenient woodpecker's hole, but not finding it furnished to meet her fancy she upholsters it with the most curious material you could possibly guess. Snake skins. How can the bird know where to find them? Yet she does, and almost invariably, in every great-crested flycatcher's nest you will find one or more cast-off snake skins. Wrens, swallows, bluebirds, owls, eagles and some hawks use last year's nests with some slight repairs, or appropriate a deserted one that seems suitable. A wren will rear a little family in a hole in a tree that seems hardly large enough for the mother bird. The bluebird and the martin will be thankful for any boxes nailed about the garden to assist them in their housekeeping cares. By far the larger proportion of our birds bluld a new nest each season, though often returning to the same locality. Then comes that great army of birds that build not only a new nest each year, but a new nest for each brood.

His Merchandise.

A minister's little daughter and two little boys, the sons of commercial travelers, were talking about their respective papas and what they did. One little lad said: "My papa sells shoes," and the other said: "Mine sells paper," and, turning to the little girl, "What does your papa sell?" For a moment the child hesitated, but, not to be outdone by boys, she replied with the air of a duchess, "My papa sells talk."

What Mamma Would Do.

Jennie, aged 4, had been poking at the grate fire and burned a hole in her dress. "You must not do that, Jennie," said her mother, "or you'll catch fire and burn up, and there will be nothing left of you but a little pile of ashes. Then what would mamma do?" "Oh," replied Jennie, "I suppose you would call Bridget and tell her to sweep up the ashes."

Modern Children.

"Hans, our acquaintance is at an end!"

"Indeed? Why?"

"Because you mortify me so! I've been promoted to the fourth grade, and you are still in the third!"—Heitere Welt.

Bride's Cake 22 Years Old.

A novel feature of a wedding dinner at Port Jervis was the bride's cake, which was twenty two years old. It was made in 1878 by the mother of the groom on the eve of his birth. It was a fruit cake and was well preserved.

Honored Gen. Dix's Memory.

John A. Dix Post, No. 135, G. A. R., New York, of which Erward Payson Cone is commander, made an annual trip to Trinity cemetery on Decoration day to decorate the grave of Gen. John A. Dix.

A Worldly Point of View.

"That's the Rev. Dr. Bingley. He isn't considered mentally strong."

"Why not?"

"Not long ago he lost a $200 fee by refusing to marry a couple because the woman had been divorced."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Typewriter Invention.

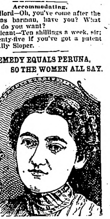
A statistician has proven that the invention of the typewriter has given employment to 500,0000 people, but he fails to state how many cases of weak stomachs it has induced. All people of sedentary occupation need Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It helps nature to bear the strain which ensues from confinement.

Accommodating.

Landlord—Oh, you've come after the place as barman, have you? What wages do you want?

Applicant—Ten shillings a week, sir; or twenty-five if you've got a patent till.—Ally Sloper.

NO REMEDY EQUALS PERUNA, SO THE WOMEN ALL SAY.



Miss Susan Wymar.

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman regarding Pe-ru-na. She says: "Only those who have suffered as I have, can know what a blessing it is to be able to find relief in Pe-ru-na. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Pe-ru-na I ever bought proved a good friend to me."—Susan Wymar.

Mrs. Margaretha Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Pe-ru-na is everything to me. I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good." Pe-ru-na has no equal in all of the irregularities and emergenices peculiar to women caused by pelvic catarrh.

Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O., for a free book for women only.

The National Convention.

Prohibition at Chicago, June 27-28, 1900. Tickets on sale June 26-27.

Democratic at Kansas City, July 4, 1900. Tickets on sale July 2-4.

The road to take to attend these conventions is the Chicago Great Western R'y, the popular "Maple Leaf Route," with its vestibuled trains free chair cars, satisfactory dining car service, and its unsurpassed sleeping car accomodations. ONLY ONE FARE FOR THE ROUND TRIP. For farther particulars apply to any agent of the Chicago Great Western, or address F. H. Lord, G. P. & T. A. 116 Adams St. Chicago.

Are You Using Allen's Foot-Ease?

It is the only cure for Swollen, Smarting, Burning, Sweating Feet, Corns and Bunions. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Her Instrument.

"Does Miss Giddy play?" asked Prof. Dalsegno of Mr. Hunker.

"Oh, yes. She's playing young Callowhill now."—Detroit Free Press.

Baseball players; Golf players; all players chew White's Yucatan whilst playing.

You can't outdo open-air amusements, but they are continually being done out.

I do not believe Piso's Cure for Consumption has an equal for coughs and colds.—John F Boyer, Trinity Springs, Ind., Feb. 15, 1900.

The judge is about the only man who can speak as long a sentence in two or three words as he can in twenty.

Diseases of the Scalp should not be neglected. Coke Dandruff Cure will clean the head and cure the disease.

Lily hands and rosy cheeks are appropriate to the maiden who is blossoming into womanhood.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Even deaf people seem to take a good many things according to hearsay.

Age tends to kill the hair and turn it gray. Parker's Hair Balsam renews color and life.
Hindercorns, the best cure for corns. 15cts.

It isn't money that makes the nightmare go.

LOOK OUT! For your family's comfort and your own. HIRES Rootbeer will contribute more to it than tons of ice and a gross of fans. 5 gallons for 25 cents. Write for list of premiums offered free for labels. CHARLES E. HIRES CO. Malvern, Pa.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO SUDDENLY

It injures nervous system to do so. BACO-CURO is the only cure that REALLY CURES and notifies you when to stop. Sold with a guarantee that three boxes will cure any case. BACO-CURO is vegetable and harmless. It has cured thousands. It will cure you. At all druggists or by mail prepaid $1 a box; 3 boxes $2.50. Booklet free. Write Eureka Chemical Co., La Crosse, Wis.

No Fire, Smoke, Heat. Absolutely Safe. Send 3 stamps for Catalog. TRUSCOTT BOAT MFG. CO., ST. JOSEPH, MICH.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Horticultural Observations.

A fruit and vegetable growers' association has been formed in Delaware. It starts out with the intention of having fruit put on the market in a condition that will make the people trust it on appearance. On each package of fruit will be the legend, "The contents of this package are guaranteed to be as good all through as on top." If this is carried out it will force reforms by other growers, and the trade in fruit will be stimulated. Dishonest packing is today largely responsible for the small sales of fruit in certain great markets compared with what they might be.

* * *

It is predicted that pineapples will be very scarce this year. The annual crop is said to be about 50,000,000 apples, and to come largely from Cuba and partly from Florida. The Florida crop has been cut short by the frost, and the crop in Cuba is small owing to the unsettled conditions there. Cuba is especially adapted to the growing of this kind of fruit and we may expect to see the industry develop as greatly as has the trade in bananas. The time must come, however, when the fruit will retail at a price far below that of the present time if the trade is to develop. As will be seen the 50,000,000 pineapples used in this country each year do not give one to each inhabitant.

* * *

Reports of success and non-success with spraying are common. The reports of success, however, far outnumber the reports of non-success. But they do not by any means convince the ones that claim to have tried spraying and found it not successful. The non-success of spraying is dependent on a good many things. It is like failure with some medicines or all medicines in diseases: A medicine may be excellent for use in the treatment of a certain kind of disease, and yet it will fail in numerous cases. Does it therefore follow that the medicine must be abandoned? The same is true with spraying. Everything depends on the conditions. The man that has a few trees that he sprays situated within short distance of numerous other trees that are not sprayed will have hard work to score a success. The codling moth at least may visit him even if he gets rid of the apple scab fungus. And here comes in a new phase. A man may stop the apple scab fungus from spreading in his orchard and never know it. He may later receive a visitation of codling moth from his neighbor's orchard and therefore declare spraying a failure. It is safe to spray.

Corn-Growing.

(Condensed from Farmers' Review Stenographic Report of Wisconsin Round-up Institute.)

Mr. A. A. Arnold spoke on corn growing. Corn is king of all the grasses. The natural area for corn growing in the United States is limited. It may be that in the next generation the price of corn will be as high as is the price of wheat now. No plant can get a good start unless the seed has a good stock of vitality. Therefore we must have good seed corn. This is essentially the case in the northern part of Wisconsin, where the winters are early and cold. One of the best ways to get good seed corn is to take the best ears and break them in two to see that the kernels are long. After a plant has been acclimated it will do better than a plant that has not been acclimated. Corn must be dried through. I have noticed by picking the corn early, when it is just dented, it comes up better than any other kind of corn. If you do not get a start the first time of seeding you are not likely to get a good crop. I have never known a good crop when it was not from the first seeding.

Nearly everything depends on the preparation of the soil. Soil should be plowed from five to seven inches deep, depending on the compactness of the soil. The ideal place to plant corn is on a clover sod. Corn wants a warm soil and a warm atmosphere. Timothy sod should be plowed only in the fall. Spring plowing of timothy sod is very dangerous on account of the cut worms. All cultivation should be done before a seed is put into the ground. All that is done afterwards should be to keep down the weeds and conserve moisture. This is not cultivation properly so-called.

Shallow cultivation is of great importance for the reason that it keeps the fertility in the soil. Nature's covering has been taken away, and in its place you must put on something to serve as a mulch.

The cheapest way to harvest corn is to put it in the silo. It can be done for 50 cents a ton.

Q.—Can you plow timothy early in the fall and not have trouble with cut worms?

Mr. Arnold.—Yes, sir; but you will lose fertility by early plowing.

Mr. Briggs.—You can put in oats or rye or turnips.

Q.—Would you keep the meadows down till they are filled with cut worms?

Mr. Arnold.—No, sir.

Q.—What effect on corn does deep cultivation have?

Mr. Arnold.—It will make the corn mature later. You can make it two weeks later by deep cultivation, cultivation say five or six inches deep.

Q.—What do you call shallow cultivation?

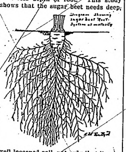
Mr. Arnold.—Two inches or above.

Mr. McKerrow.—At the station they call shallow cultivation everything above three inches, and everything below that deep cultivation.

Subsoiling and Sugar Beets.

Bulletin 43, of the North Dakota Experiment Station, tells us something of the effects of subsoiling on sugar beets. A sample of sugar beet roots, taken eighty-eight days after planting, when the beets had nearly reached their full growth, showed a depth of roots of over three and one-half feet. The vegetable is by nature a deep feeder. The main root development is deep in the ground, and not until late in the season do roots develop near enough to the surface to be injured by the cultivator. The root system of the sugar beet differs from that of any of the other plants studied. The vegetable itself is really the enlarged upper part of the taproot which extends almost perpendicularly downward into the ground, becoming rapidly smaller in diameter in the upper part of its course, the lower part being quite small and thread-like, and reaching, in several samples, a depth of over three and one-half feet. From this central root branches spread outward and downward into the soil on all sides. The upper main branches are the largest and extend outward almost horizontally for more than two feet. Those deeper down incline more and more until the last branches run nearly parallel to the taproot. The diagram merely represents the skeleton of the root system.

The main apparent difference between beets on subsoiled and un-subsoiled lands is in the shape of beets. The beets on the ground not subsoiled are short and ill formed and grow above the ground. The chemist tells us that for the best production of sugar the beets must grow well beneath the surface of the soil and be long and tapering. This form and condition are shown in the sample from the subsoiled ground. Aside from the difference in the form of the beets themselves, there is considerable difference in the rooting systems. The roots of the beets from the subsoiled ground, compared with the others, are found to extend deeper into the soil and to make a more extensive and greater fibrous growth in that portion of the soil loosened by subsoiling. The irregular form of the beets on the ground not subsoiled causes an irregular root development; divided taproots often occur, resulting in a less depth of root. This study shows that the sugar beet needs deep, well loosened soil, not only that it may have room to grow and expand, but also that the roots may properly develop and secure the necessary plant food.



By actual count 71 per cent of the beets from the ground not subsoiled were classed as ill formed, while only 40 per cent were so classed from the subsoiled plot. The total yield was about the same from each plot.

Well Tilled Soil for Roots.

When root crops are to be planted the soil should be well prepared beforehand. The ground must be placed in a condition where the root can develop. When only the top of the soil is loosened the roots tend to send out innumerable feeders, and these feeders are of no value to the crop after it is harvested. In other words, the conditions should be favorable to the development of the main root and not of supplementary roots. On sandy soil deep plowing is not of great consequence, as the root will go down through such soil anyway. But on heavy soils or where there is hard pan near the surface the plowing will need to be deep if roots are to be grown. It pays better to subsoil for root crops than for almost any other crops, and where large quantities of roots are to be grown it will pay to get the implements needed to give the land proper preparation.

Beets.

The beet is a very serviceable plant, as it can be grown at almost any part of the growing season. They can be put in early in the spring or late in the spring or in early summer and still give a good account of the work put on them. The beet, however, requires a good seed bed, which in this case means ground properly fined. The soil, too, should be fairly compact, or the beet seed will not easily get the amount of moisture it needs for germination. Thus if the land be left very loose the air, rather than soil water, will surround the beet seed, and its supply of moisture will be cut off. The seed, too, should be planted near the surface or much of it will fail to germinate. All the chances possible should be given beet seed, that the plants may get above the ground at least as soon as the weeds. If the latter get the start, their eradication becomes somewhat of a problem.

Begonias.

Begonias grow readily from seed, but as the seed is extremely small, very fine light soil should be used in the seed-boxes or pots. This should be settled, well watered and allowed to drain for an hour or more, when the fine seed should be dusted on the surface and barely covered from view with very fine, light soil. Keep the soil slightly moist until the young plants are well started, not allowing it to become dry or very wet at any time. As soon as the young plants are large enough, set them in small flower-pots filled with fine, light soil, repotting them into larger pots as they increase in size. The bedding varieties may be planted outdoors in rich soil when the trees are out in full leaf and nights quite warm, or grown as pot-plants on the porch.

New Use for Watermelons.—A Georgia farmer is said to have become the pioneer in a new industry—namely, making syrup out of watermelons. He cuts the melons in halves, scoops out the pulp, runs it through a cider mill, presses out the juice and then boils the liquid for 12 hours over a hot fire. Out of 270 melons, worth $5 or $6 at wholesale, he gets 30 gallons of syrup, and markets the product at 50 cents per gallon. The refuse is fed to the hogs, cattle and chickens, and the whole operation is very profitable.—Ex.

The cultivated orchard stands drouth far better than the neglected one.

The Pay of Rulers

Other Lands as Compared With Ours

If the salary of the president of the United States seems ridiculously small for the chief magistrate of the richest nation in the world, the salary paid to some European rulers seems ridiculously large. Of course, though, the president of the United States is in no sense a ruler his office being purely executive. Think of the czar of Russia getting $12,000,000 a year, while his nation has a debt nearly double ours and a population about one-half more than ours, and the boy king of poor, poverty stricken Spain receiving a salary of $2,000,000. The salary first fixed for the president was $25,000. This was by act of congress passed on Sept. 24, 1789. The salary of the vice-president at the same time was fixed at $5,000 a year. It was not until 1873 that the salary of the president was raised to its present amount of $50,000. The salary of the vice-president was raised to its present amount of $8,000 in 1853. Concerning the buying power of money in 1789 and at this time and the state and country finances then and now, the earlier salaries were far more liberal than those now.

Mulhall, the eminent English statistician, estimates the wealth of the United States at the close of 1896 as $81,750,000,000, with an annual earning capacity of $15,580,000,000. If these figures prove correct the census of the present year will show our national wealth to exceed one hundred thousand millions of dollars. The same high authority estimated the wealth of England at the same time at $59,030,000,000, France at $47,950,000,000, Germany at $40,260,000,000, Russia at $32,125,000,000, Austria at $22,560,000,000, Italy at $15,800,000,000, and Spain at $11,900,000,000. If these figures are correct they prove that the United States is by far the wealthiest nation in the world and increasing much faster than any other. Our wealth is nearly equal the combined wealth of England and Russia, or England and Germany, and exceeds that of France and Russia, or of Germany and Russia, and nearly equals that of Austria, Russia, Italy and Spain combined. As to a comparison of salaries of the higher officials the American list is as follows: President, $50,000; vice-president, $8,000; cabinet officers, $8,000; chief justice of the Supreme Court, $10,000; associate justices, $10,000; ambassadors, $17,500. Contrast this with the salaries in the following table of foreign nations:

England—Queen, $1,925,000; cabinet officers, $25,000; ambassadors, to the United States, $32,500; judges, lord high chancellor, $50,000; lord chief justice, $40,000.

France—President, $240,000; cabinet officers, $12,000; ambassadors to the United States, $28,000; judges, court of cassation, $5,000 to $8,000, and an allowance for expenses.

Germany—Emperor, $3,852,370; cabinet officers, imperial chancellor, $23,000; minister of foreign affairs, $11,500; ambassadors to the United States, $23,000; judges, from $2,500 to $23,000.

Russia—Czar, $12,000,000; cabinet officers, imperial minister of foreign affairs, $15,288; ambassadors to the United States, $31,200; judges, officers called senators constitute highest court in Russia, salaries, $3,600 to $6,500.

Spain—King, $2,000,000.

Greece—King, $200,000.

Mexico—President, $50,000; cabinet officers, $15,000.

Canada—Governor General, $50,000; cabinet officers, $7,000 to $8,000.

Cremating the Dead

The custom of cremation for the disposition of the dead is becoming generally recognized in the United States as is shown by the fact that nearly all the larger cities in this country have established crematories. The increased number of bodies cremated yearly is another evidence of the growing belief that cremation is not only the best method of disposing of the dead from a sanitary standpoint, but also that it dispels any possibility of being buried alive. In Philadelphia last year there were 116 cremations. The methods of cremation are similar to those that are used in placing a body in a vault. The funeral cortege arrives at the chapel, where the services are held. The body is placed on a catafalque, which is surrounded by an ornamental brass railing. After the services are completed the catafalque with the body descends by means of an elevator to the crematory. Before the coffin has entirely disappeared from view a black pall is drawn over the railing. After the body has reached the crematory the coffin, without disturbing the body, is placed on a light traveler, which rests on the top of a long carriage or table with wheels, that fit to a track leading to the retort. The coffin is then covered or enveloped with a white cloth that has been saturated in a solution of alum. This is done to prevent any part of the coffin igniting while it is being placed in the retort. The retort door is opened, and the coffin with the body is then moved into it by means of the traveler and table. The table is withdrawn, the door is closed and tightened so that no air can enter the retort or none of the gases escape. All is done quickly and in harmony with the solemnity of the occasion. The process of distillation begins—first the gases of the wood of the coffin and finally the body. In about three hours the coffin is reduced to charcoal, and the body to pearly white ashes. When the ashes are removed from the retort the charcoal is separated from the ashes, and the ashes are then placed in a temporary receptacle until final disposition of the remains are determined on by the relatives of the deceased. Many are placed in bronze caskets, eight inches square, or in terra cotta urns and buried in the ground.—Philadelphia Times.

TRAINING THE CHILD

The training of a child should begin as soon as it is born. Any mother knows how soon a habit is formed with her child, and it is just as easy to form a good habit in a child as it is to form a habit that will give every one trouble and inconvenience. If the nurse gives the child the habit of being carried by the hour, this habit will be so firmly fixed by the time that the nurse leaves that father and mother may spend the next few months walking the floor with the son and heir in their arms. If, on the contrary, the child is allowed to remain on the bed, where it is far more comfortable, a good child may reasonably be expected. This is the first habit that is usually formed. The next habit is the crying for everything that is wanted. A child should not be allowed to form this habit, for its own happiness, as well as for the happiness of all around it. A child knows very soon whether father and mother are to be obeyed, or it is to have everything that it happens to want. A child at six months is fully capable of understanding whether no means no or not, and on this point a mother should be very careful. No child should be overburdened, but by the time it is a year and a half old some very light duties should devolve upon it. At this age a child should be expected to pick up its own toys and to put away its clothes on its return from an outing. A low drawer should be given to the child for its coat and other belongings, and upon its return from an outing the drawer should be opened for it, and it should be taught to carefully place its rubbers in a small box intended for them; its cap in another box, and its coat, mittens and other wraps laid smoothly and carefully in place. Let the child help itself as much as possible, and you will make a self-reliant child of it, rather than one of those helpless children that one so often sees. So with the toys. When done playing, let the child pick up each block and put it in its own box.

Never President.

There once lived in a western village a woman who was anxious that her only son should achieve some great success in life, and lift himself above "the common run of men," as she said. When she reflected that even the presidency of the United States is within the reach of the poorest and humblest boy, she did not wish her son to fall far below that station in life. Long after the son was a man, an acquaintance met the ambitious old lady, then visiting in a distant state, and asked her about her son's success in life. "Well," she said, cheerily, "he ain't the president of the United States yet; he ain't a senator, nor yet a congressman, nor governor, nor mayor; but I tell you he's the very best blacksmith there is in our part of the country. Indeed he is!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Woman Lawyer's Cutting Retort.

Clara Folz, the San Francisco woman lawyer, being told by the opposing counsel in court that a woman's proper place was at home raising children, retorted: "A woman had better be engaged in almost any business than raising such men as you are, sir."

Wealth of Guiana's Mines.

British Guiana has long prided itself upon its gold mines, and, though American capital has never been attracted toward them to any considerable degree, thousands of ounces are exported to England every fortnight by the mail steamer. It is now claimed that diamonds have been discovered there, and an agitation has been set on foot for their exploitation. Somewhat extravagant statements are made to the effect that Kimberley has found in them a more formidable foe even than the Boers, but it is an undoubted fact that diamonds are there, and that it would pay to dig them out. It is strange that American capital should always have fought rather shy of British Guiana. The productiveness of the gold industry has been sadly hampered by the lack of capital, and of an enterprising spirit, while the splendid forests of the country, which might produce timber second to none in the world, are untouched.—William Thorp in Chicago Record.

It may be comfortable to know that every cloud has a silver lining, but some people would prefer to have the silver lining their pocket.

Doubtful.

"These Boers are an agricultural people," said the man who wears knickerbockers and smokes a short pipe.

"Yes," answered Mr. Corntossel. "I don't pretend to know much about international politics, but I must say I begin to feel kind o' skittish about them fellers' chances as soon as I found out they was a farmers' alliance."—Washington Star.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Leroy S. Buffington, Minneapolis, Minn., Automobile; Thomas Canty, Minneapolis, Minn., Hat-box; Oliver Crosby, St. Paul, Minn., Supplementary track; Carl Kartowitz, Pelan, Minn., Whiffletree attachment; Sidney L. Long, Magnolia, Minn., Type-setting stick; Silas E. Warrick, Pipestone, Minn., Band-cutter and feeder for threshing machines; Griggs, Cooper & Co., St. Paul, Minn., certain named grocer's merchandise. (Trademark.)

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul

A Paying Claim.

"Did you ever strike a paying claim in that mining region?"

"I did," answered the promoter. "I claimed we had found a marvel of richness, and I'm selling, at $5 apiece, all the stock certificates we can print. I don't know when I've done anything in the claiming way that paid so well."—Washington Star.

Fine Ranch Property for Sale.

800 acres, in the best part of North Dakota; Good buildings, protected by timber; 480 acres of unfailing hay land; large lake; part of land can be broken and cropped for feed. Ranch will accomodate 500 head of stock. This offer is limited in time and must be taken advantage of at once. For maps and particulars write immediately to

C. A. Grettum,
Rugby, N. D.

A Better Remedy.

Customer—Have you got any of Pillman's Popular Pellets in yet?

Drug Clerk—Yes, sir. They came this morning.

Customer—Good. I've been asking for them for a week back.

Drug Clerk—Are you sure you don't want a porous plaster?—Philadelphia Press.

Fourth of July Rates.

Be patriotic and take a Holiday trip on Independence Day. Cheap rates in every direction are offered by the Chicago Great Western R'y. One fare and a third for round trips, children half-rates. Tickets on sale July 3 and 4 good to return July 5th. For further information inquire of any agent of C. G. W. or address F. H. Lord, G. P. and T. A., 116 Adams St., Chicago.

Explained.

He—I have no appetite. There is a rumbling in my stomach like a cart on a cobblestone pavement.

She—Perhaps it's the truck you ate for luncheon.—What to Eat.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes.

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N.Y.

A Conservative.

"Come, Bobby, tell us which you love best—your ma or me."

"No you don't, pa; I'm a middle-of-the-roader."—Chicago Journal.

$18 Per Week.

A salary of $18 per week and expenses to man with rig to introduce our Poultry Compound and Lice Killer among Farmers. Address with stamp, Acme Mfg. Co., Des Moines, Iowa.

A Hopeless Case.

He—I don't believe Miss Howells will ever learn to sing.

She—Well, that wouldn't matter so much if she would only not attempt it.—New York Evening World.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

All musicians are now playing in springtime.

Bread is one thing that Philadelphia kneads.

For Shooters and Fishermen.

The new 1900 edition of "Shooting and Fishing Along the Line of the Great Northern Railway" is without an equal amongst books of this class. It is handsomely bound in colored covers, of new and attractive design. It is printed on fine plate paper, in two colors, is beautifully illustrated with photographs reproduced in half-tone, and is in all respects a magnificent specimen of the printer's art.

Complete information is given about all sorts and conditions of sport, from lion and grizzly bear to "cotton-tails," and including every fish that swims in the many lakes and rivers of the wide Northwestern states.

All the little details of lakes, boats, bait, distance, etc., have been carefully compiled by practical sportsmen and will be found a great convenience to anyone planning a trip. A new map of Minnesota in three colors is bound into each book.

The hunter or fisherman who is the fortunate possessor of this encyclopedia of sport in the Northwest needs no further guide to tell him where to go a-fishing or shooting. By mail for two cents from F. I. Whitney, general passenger agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Gold Medal Prize Treatise, 25 Cts.

The Science of Life, or Self-Preservation, 865 pages, with engravings, 25 cts., paper cover; cloth, full gilt, $1, by mail. A book for every man, young, middle-aged or old. A million copies sold. Address The Peabody Medical Institute, No. 4 Bulfinch St., Boston, Mass., the oldest and best institute in America. Prospectus Vade Mecum free. Six cts. for postage. Write to-day for these books. They are the keys to health, vigor, success and happiness.

You may cut the head off the devil, but the evil part of him will still remain intact.

Send for "Choice Recipes," by Walter Baker & Co. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass., mailed free. Mention this paper.

A man may remain cool when he's toasted, but he will get hot if you roast him.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is a constitutional cure. Price, 75c.

When a girl fishes for a compliment she usually gets it by hook or crook.

The Turn of Life

This is a critical period in the life of every woman and no mistakes should be made.

The one recognized and reliable help for women who are approaching and passing through this wonderful change is

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

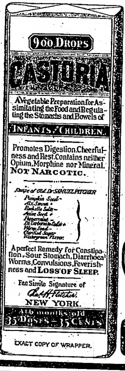
That the utmost reliance can be placed upon this great medicine is testified to by an army of grateful women who have been helped by it.

Mrs. Pinkham, who has the greatest and most successful experience in the world to qualify her, will advise you free of charge. Her address is Lynn, Mass. Write to her.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

N. W. N. U. —No. 25.— 1900



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of INFANTS & CHILDREN.
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

BABY'S BAWLS

MAM-M-MA!!
DON'T YOU HEAR BABY CRY?

Do you forget that summer's coming with all its dangers to the little ones—all troubles bred in the bowels.

The summer's heat kills babies and little children because their little insides are not in good, clean, strong condition.

Winter has filled the system with bile. Belching, vomiting up of sour food, rash, flushed skin, colic, restlessness, diarrhoea or constipation, all testify that the bowels are out of order.

If you want the little ones to face the coming dangers without anxious fear for their lives, see that the baby's bowels are gently, soothingly, but positively cleaned out in the spring time, and made strong and healthy before hot weather sets in.

The only safe laxative for children, pleasant to take (they ask for more) is CASCARETS. Nursing mothers make their milk mildly purgative for the baby by eating a CASCARET now and then. Mama eats a CASCARET, baby gets the benefit. Try it! Send for a 10c box of CASCARETS to-day and you will find that, as we guarantee, all irregularities of the little and big childrens insides are

CURED BY Cascarets CANDY CATHARTIC

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

10c. 25c. 50c.

ALL DRUGGISTS

To any needy mortal suffering from bowel troubles and too poor to buy CASCARETS we will send a box free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York, mentioning advertisement and paper.

M'KINLEY AND ROOSEVELT

TICKET UNANIMOUSLY SELECTED BY REPUBLICANS.

Such Unanimous Demonstrations in Honor of the Nominees of a National Convention Have, Perhaps, Never Been Equaled—McKinley Nominated by Foraker and Seconded by Roosevelt, Both of Whom Arouse Tremendous Enthusiasm—Roosevelt Placed in Nomination by Lafe Young.

For President—
WILLIAM M'KINLEY.
For Vice President—
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The national Republican convention convened in Philadelphia last Tuesday on the anniversary of the foundation of the party. Fully 15,000 people were crowded into the great auditorium when Chairman Hanna called the convention to order. Senator Wolcott of Colorado was selected as temporary chairman, and on taking the chair delivered an address in which he reviewed at length the record of the Republican party since the St. Louis convention. All the promises made at that time, said the senator, had been faithfully fulfilled. He reviewed the legislation that had been enacted under Republican auspices, and dwelt at length upon the prosperity of the country which, he said, was which Republican administration of affairs always inspired. His speech was frequently interrupted with applause. The appointment of the usual committees completed the business of the first day's session.

Due to the Confidence

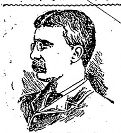
William McKinley.

On Wednesday permanent organization was effected by the selection of Senator Lodge as Chairman. The senator made a brief speech on taking the chair which aroused great enthusiasm. His speech was a scholarly effort, but it practically covered the same ground which had been gone over by Senator Wolcott. The adoption of the platform was practically the only business of importance which was transacted. It had been intended to nominate President McKinley at this session, but owing to the tangle over the vice presidential nomination it

Was Thought Best

by the leaders to postpone that important event until Thursday.

Late Wednesday evening Chairman Hanna issued a statement in which he said that his advice had been asked by the vice presidential candidates in order that an understanding might be arrived at and harmony assured. He said that after consultation with leaders of the party it was his judgment that the nomination should go to Theodore Roosevelt by acclamation.



Theodore Roosevelt.

The feature of the convention so far had been the great enthusiasm which greeted Gov. Roosevelt on his entrance to the convention and at every other time when his enthusiastic admirers could find the least excuse for showing their preference for the rough rider.

Nominations Are Made.

President McKinley was unanimously renominated for president of the United States by the Republican national convention at 1:48 o'clock Thursday, and an hour and ten minutes later Gov. Theodore Roosevelt of New York was unanimously selected to stand beside him in the coming battle. The scenes attending the selections were tumultuous. Such unanimous demonstrations in honor of the nominees of a national convention have never been equalled, perhaps, in the history of politics in this country. It was a love feast, a jubilee, a ratification meeting.

There was a fine setting for yesterday's spectacular demonstration. Bright peonies at either end of the stage made two flaming pieces of color. Over the Vast Multitude

fans moved ceaselessly to and fro like the pinions of a crowd of alarmed gulls beating the air. There were no preliminaries. The wrangle expected over the question of reducing the representation in the South was averted by the withdrawal of ex-Senator Quay's proposition. The great hall became quiet as Senator Lodge, standing before 15,000 eager faces, gavel in hand, announced that nominations for president of the United States were in order. The reading clerk advanced to the front of the platform. He was about to call the roll of states for the presentation of candidates. When Alabama was called a thin, red-whiskered delegate from that state arose and surrendered the first right to speak to Ohio. A flutter of handkerchiefs filled the air and from the delegates in the pit as Senator Foraker of Ohio, the idol of militant Republicanism, strode toward the platform. Foraker is a grand looking man with something of the imperiousness of Blaine and the dash of a Rupert about him. The air was surcharged with electricity as he mounted the steps, and when he turned about, standing there with gray eyes calmly sweeping the cheering thousands, the magnetic orator must have been conscious of his power to call up a storm that would sweep through the amphitheater. Below him, about him on either side were banked men and women, almost frantically waving hats, handkerchiefs and pampas plumes. In full view of the convention he stood erect, his face as inflexable as though chiseled in marble waiting for

A Cheer Went Up

The Applause to Cease.

When quiet was restored he began to speak. It was now noon, with the sun blazing through the roof and shooting its arrows into all parts of the hall. With resonant, ringing voice and graceful gestures Foraker stilled the noise. He began to call up the hurricane from the start. Whenever he raised his arms aloft the whistling of the gale ran round the hall. When he said the nomination had already been made, that Wolcott, Lodge and the platform had each in turn named his candidate, a great cheer went up. When he said his candidate was the first choice of every man who desired Republican success in November the roar was like the rush of a heavy wind through a rocky cavern.

Foraker's Speech.

He said in part: "Alabama has yielded to Ohio, and I thank Alabama for the act. However, it gives Ohio a superfluous duty to perform. Our candidate for president has already been nominated. He was nominated by the distinguished senator from Colorado when he took the temporary chairmanship of this convention. He was nominated by the distinguished senator from Massachusetts when he became permanent chairman here, and he was nominated, for the third time, when the distinguished senator from Indiana read the platform of his party. He has already been nominated by the whole of the American people. From one end of the land to the other there is mentioned for president on the Republican ticket. That man is the first choice of every other man who wishes for Republican success in November. It is, therefore, not necessary to speak of him here or elsewhere. He has already spoken for himself and to all the world. His record is replete with brilliant achievements in peace and war, of inspiring fidelity to duty and of good works accomplished. Four years ago the American people confided to him the highest and most sacred trust. What has been the result? When he entered office he found business paralyzed. He has brought prosperity unprecedented to the country. He Found Labor Idle,

But One Man

he gave it employment. He found mills, shops and mines closed and he opened them to the people everywhere."

Foraker said the people had put to sleep forever in the catacombs of American politics the 16 to 1 issue along with the "lost cause."

"He has opened the door to China and advanced our interests in every land. In a hundred days he drove Spain from the Western seas and filled the world with admiration for our power. It means freedom and independence for the long suffering people of Cuba and blessing and liberty to the people of Porto Rico. Here at the birthplace of the nation, where the Declaration of Independence

and the Constitution were framed, is a fitting place for the party of Lincoln, Grant and Blaine to pledge ourselves to continue his work. In his hands the destinies of the party will be carried to a triumphant victory next November. I nominate for president of the United States William McKinley of Ohio."

When Senator Foraker concluded bedlam broke loose. The hall was an enthusiastic seething sea of cheering people. Red, white and blue plumes waved, hats were lifted on canes, umbrellas were hoisted and twisted until they resembled whirling dervishes. On the stage, Senator Hanna, his handkerchief in one hand, a fan in the other, was spurring the vast audience to new endeavors. The music of the orchestra was drowned

In the Awful Din.

The demonstration had now continued with scarcely a lull for ten minutes. Chairman Lodge began to rap for order, but the ring of his gavel was of no avail. A Texas delegate shouted above the roar: "Three cheers for Mark Hanna." They were given with a will. The demonstration all told lasted exactly fifteen minutes. This protracted outburst was but the forerunner of the pandemonium that reigned a moment later when Roosevelt, the man of the hour, mounted the platform to second the president's nomination. When the convention caught sight of him it went off again like a rocket. As he stood there facing the yelling multitude the roar could have been heard for blocks.

Hanna Smiled Blandly

as a daring photographer set up a rapid-fire camera directly in front of the hero of San Juan and began banging away at him. But Teddy did not flinch. He looked about him while he waited for the storm to subside. Several times he raised his hand, but the cheering continued. His stern, square jaw was firmly set as he surveyed the scene. Only once did his face relax. That was when he caught sight of his wife, who sat in the reserved seats overhanging the pit on his right. Then he smiled until his teeth showed and Mrs. Roosevelt fluttered back her handkerchief. When finally he was allowed to begin

He Plunged Directly to the heart of his subject in the impetuous way which the people so much admire. His first statement was that he rose to second the nomination of William McKinley, who had faced more problems than any other president since Lincoln. The convention got on its feet and it was several minutes before he could proceed. Every movement and every word was characteristic of the man. He looked, spoke and acted like one giving direction to an army about to go into battle. And nothing would content him but to storm the heights as he did at Santiago. Roosevelt is no master of the foil. He prefers the broadsword, and as he laid about him with the multitude went wild with delight. A Nebraska delegate shouted: "Hit 'em again." He had the manuscript of his speech in his hand and referred to it occasionally, discarding page after page as he finished until the platform at his feet was strewn with white sheets. When he reached his peroration, and with a world of infinite scorn in his voice, asked if America was a weakling to shrink from the world-work of the world powers, the whole pit echoed "No" in chorus. When he concluded and resumed his seat in the New York delegation the other delegates rushed forward and surrounded him.

Sledge Hammer Blows

Many Embraced Him,

and it seemed for a moment as if they would lift him to their shoulders. Senator Thurston, the Demosthenes of the senate, John W. Yerkes, an orator from the Blue Grass State, and Gov. Mount also seconded McKinley's nomination, but before the latter concluded the convention was impatient for a vote and tried several times to howl him down. Then the roll of states was called and delegation after delegation rose in solid blocks and cast their votes for McKinley. When Chairman Lodge made the announcement that the president had been renominated for the term beginning March 4, 1901, there was the same wild storm which had been raised by Foraker, and when it was over for the vice presidency evoked a succession of similar demonstrations. Lafe Young of Iowa, who was with Roosevelt in Cuba, nominated him on behalf of the state which had originally come to Philadelphia for Dolliver. His nomination was seconded by Delegate Murray of Secretary Long's state, Delegate Ashton of Washington, which came here for Bartlett Tripp. Chauncy Depew wound up the oratory on behalf of the state which declared for Woodruff. Depew's speech aroused the most intense enthusiasm when he pictured the dazzling drama of

Roosevelt's Nomination

The Country's Future.

During every pause the band played but one air, the tune which Col. Roosevelt had heard in the trenches before Santiago.

At 2:14 the convention, which had done the unparalleled thing of nominating both candidates for president and vice president unanimously, adjourned.

Gov. Roosevelt drove from the convention hall with Mr. Odell, seated in the rear of an open landau. He lifted his broad-brim hat to the continuous salvos that greeted him as he passed through the densely packed streets like a conquering hero fresh from new victories.

The Platform.

The following is a synopsis of the platform unanimously adopted by the convention:

The platform begins by calling attention to the promises that were made in the St. Louis convention of 1896 and after enumerating these declares that faith has been kept in almost every instance, as is shown by the statutes which the last congress added to the laws of the country. Prosperity, more general and more abundant than we have ever known, it is asserted, followed these enactments. It is pointed out that while during the whole period of 107 years, from 1790 to 1897, there was an excess of only $383,028,497, there has been in the short three years of the present administration an excess of exports over imports in the enormous sum of $1,483,537,094.

The administration of President McKinley is indorsed. Its acts, says the platform, have been established in wisdom and in patriotism, and at home and abroad it has distinctly elevated and extended the influence of the American nation.

The general incapacity of the Democratic party to conduct public affairs is the reason given why prosperity halts and ceases when Democratic success at the polls is announced.

Allegiance to the principles of the gold standard is renewed. Steadfast opposition to the doctrine of unlimited coinage of silver is declared. No measure to that end, it continues, could be considered which was without the support of the leading commercial nations of the world.

On the question of trusts the document says: "That while recognizing the necessity of co-operation of capital in the industrial enterprises, we are opposed to all combinations intended to restrict trade, to limit production, to affect prices and to destroy competition, and we favor such legislation as will effectively prevent evils to arise from such combinations."

The resolutions also contain the usual declaration for a protective tariff.

There is also a declaration in the interest of labor, with which is coupled a demand for the restriction of immigration. There is also a demand for the raising of the age limit of children employed in factories and for eight hours of employment for all classes of labor.

The president is commended for his course in the British-Boer entanglement, and the fact is pointed out that the United States has been the only nation to offer arbitration between the warring nations.

There is a declaration in favor of liberal pension laws.

The policy of the administration in maintaining the efficiency of the civil service is commended.

There is an expression favoring the retention of the rights of colored people in the South under the Constitution.

An early reduction of the war taxes is promised.

The construction of an isthmian canal is strongly favored.

The part taken by our government at The Hague conference is commended and steadfast adherence to the Monroe doctrine is asserted.

The policy of the president with regard to the Philippines is indorsed throughout and the largest measure of self-government consistent with welfare and our duties is promised the islands.

Our pledges of independence and self-government to Cuba will be fulfilled to the letter.

William Penn, Philosopher.

William Penn was an Englishman before he came to America and founded Pennsylvania. An English publication has just reprinted some of his pretty sayings. These are samples:

"They have a right to censure, that have a heart to help: The rest is cruelty, not injustice."

"Tis no sin to be tempted, but to be overcome."

"A reasonable opinion must ever be in danger, where reason is not judge."

"(A miser) in some sense may be compared to Pharaoh's lean kine, for ald that he has does him no good."

"When the poor Indians hear us call one of our family by the name of servants they may cry out, 'What, call brethren servants? We call our dogs servants, but never man.'" opher as its founder.—New York Jour-
Not until Franklin's day did the new colony have again as shrewd a philos nal.

An "Adver."

"Thank you, sir. I think that is all, sir," said the census-taker.

"Hold on!" said Mr. Alkalye, slipping him a V, "just keep that for your trouble. By the way, if you could print my name in big type, and say 'proprietor of the famous Smellgood soaps,' or something like that, ye'd oblige me."—Philadelphia Press.

It would not be impossible for the snake-charmer to be overcome by delirium tremens.

News of the Northwest

REPUBLICAN CONVENTIONS.

Minnesota Counties Name Delegates to the State Convention.

St. Paul, June 23. — Conventions were held in all the counties of the state yesterday by the Republicans. Delegates were named for the state convention. The resolutions in most of the conventions indorsed Senator Nelson for re-election, commended Senator Davis' record in congress and indorsed the McKinley administration. Delegates were instructed for Van Sant for governor in the counties of Houston, Winona, Fillmore, Redwood, Douglas, Dakota and Washington. In the other counties the delegates were uninstructed as to governor.

NATIONAL GUARD CAMP.

Second Regiment in Quarters at Lakeview.

Lake City, Minn., June 23. — The Second regiment, Minnesota national guard, under command of Col. Joseph Bobletter, arrived at Lakeview yesterday for their annual camp of instruction. The regiment has a total strength of about 400 men, each of the nine companies averaging forty-five members. Dress parade at 7 o'clock last evening, followed by guard mount were the only drills attempted, but by to-day the men will be thoroughly settled in camp and thereafter the daily routine will be strictly observed.

Banker Todd Dead.

Preston, Minn., June 23. — M. R. Todd, the ex-banker and partner of J. R. Clements, who has been twice found guilty of defrauding the depositors of the Fillmore County bank, died from diabetis. Mr. Todd was released from jail on bail some months ago on account of ill health, many of the heaviest losers in the bank being on his bail. He leaves a widow and two children in destitute circumstances. Mrs. Todd made a deed of the homestead and bank building recently, so she is left without a home.

Roberts Found Guilty.

Salt Lake, Utah, June 23.—The jury in the case of B. H. Roberts, on trial for unlawful cohabitation, returned a verdict of guilty. Roberts, in an agreed statement of facts put before the jury, admitted that he entered into a polygamous marriage with Maggie B. Shipp, and lived with her and his legal wife, Sarah Louisa. It is claimed that Roberts relies on the supreme court to reverse the verdict on technical grounds.

Walter McCrea Has Lockjaw.

Anoka, Minn., June 23.—Walter McCrea, the fourteen-year-old boy accidentally shot at Round lake with a rifle found there, supposed to have been one gun used in the Wise murder, is not anywhere near well. Lockjaw has developed and his condition is extremely critical. He is a bright young man of splendid character. His injuries at first were looked upon as merely painful.

Killed in the Philippines.

Winona, Minn., June 23.—The news was received in this city yesterday of the death in the Philippines of Clarence E. Miller of this city. Mr. Miller was the first sergeant in Company B, Forty-fifth infantry, and was killed in an engagement with the insurgents. His parents live in this city. He was a young man, very popular with all who knew him.

Brakeman Killed.

La Crosse, Wis., June 23.—Leonard Graham, a Milwaukee road brakeman, was killed and badly mangled. He was a new man in this section and made his headquarters at Portage. No one saw the accident, but it is probable that he was hanging on the side of the car and struck against a viaduct.

Government Contractor Dead.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 23.—John Mitchell, of the contracting firm of Powers & Mitchell, building the addition to the government breakwater here, died suddenly of heart failure. He has relatives living at Marquette, Mich., where his body will be taken for burial.

Elopers Cannot Be Found.

Belmond, Iowa, June 20—The schoolboy and girl who eloped from here June 8 have eluded the officers and are still missing. They were traced to Stratford, where they stopped at a hotel and left without paying their bill. The young couple is driving a livery rig valued at $500.

Dragged by Horses—Will Die.

Clear Lake, Iowa, June 20—The team of Abraham Frazer, a Hebrew rag peddler, ran away and threw Frazer to the ground. He retained hold of the reins and was dragged some distance. When picked up it was found that the base of his skull was fractured. He cannot live.

Stopped by Low Water.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., June 20.—The Chippewa Lumber and Boom company are unable to operate their mill here, water in the Chippewa river being too low to supply power. This is the first time such a low stage of water has been known in years.

Big Elevator Burned.

Mondovi, Wis., June 23.—The Northern Grain company's elevator burned last night, together with 30,000 bushels of wheat, 1,000 bushels of rye and much oats and barley. Loss about $60,000; partly insured.

Two Drownings.

Winnipeg, June 23. — George Modeland was drowned at Rat Portage. He was a son of the jailor at Brantford, Ont. Alex Turner, rancher, of Gleichen, was drowned in Bow river.

Lightning and Hail.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 23.—Clarence Whistler, aged twelve, was killed by lightning. Three horses were killed and several buildings damaged by bolts. The storm was accompanied by hail.

Sought His Freedom.

Larimore, N. D., June 20.—William Kelly, who was lodged in jail Saturday charged with selling liquor illegally, made an unsuccessful attempt to escape last evening.

Hanged for Murder.

Rusk, Tex., June 23.—Perry Wagoner, a convict in the state penitentiary here, was hanged within the prison walls for the murder of a fellow convict in October of last year.

The Sixth district Democratic convention of Ohio nominated Adrian Bridge for congress.

TOWNE EXPECTS NOMINATION.

Says He Has More Support Than Any Other Candidate.

Duluth, Minn., June 26.—Charles A. Towne takes exceptions to the inference drawn in a recent Associated Press dispatch from Austin, Tex., that he will withdraw from the vice-presidential race if not nominated at Kansas City. He says, however, that he fully expects to receive the nomination. The dispatch referred to quoted an extract from a letter written by Mr. Towne to Maj. Walton of Austin, in which he said:

"My friends know that no personal consideration would influence me to stand in the way of success of the the party for which we are contending."

Mr. Towne said last night that there was nothing in the letter upon which and intimation of his course as to the vice presidency could be based.

"You may say, however," continued Mr. Towne; "that I expect to be nominated for vice president at the Kansas City convention, and I have more support at present for the nomination than any other man, although in some sections of the East there seems to be objection to a Western man for the place. Some of the people down there cannot get rid of the old idea that the United States does not extend beyond the Alleghény mountains. If, however, I am not nominated by the Democratic convention I am not prepared to say what action I shall take and will not decide until that time comes."

TERRORIZED BY A WILD MAN.

Residents Near Grantsburg, Wis., Have an Unpleasant Visitor.

Grantsburg, Wis., June 26.—An unknown wild man is terrorizing the people north of here. He appears to be about thirty-five years of age, has long black whiskers, is barefooted, has scarcely no clothing and carries a hatchet. He has appeared at several farm houses and asked for something to eat. He eats ravenously, and when asked where he came from, points to the east. He secretes himself in the woods during the day. His bloodcurdling yells have been heard in the neighborhood during the past three nights. The sheriff and a posse have been out after him but were unable to capture him. He runs like a deer through the woods and it is impossible to follow him with horses.

WORK OF A MANIAC.

Kills One Man and Fatally Injures Several Others.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, June 26. — Charles Mefford, a maniac, at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, killed James Fitzsimmons, fatally injured Joseph Drake and seriously and possibly fatally injured, Miss Kate Fitzsimmons and then ended his own life. Mefford was twenty-seven years old and had been insane for a number of years. Two years ago he was in the Independence asylum for a short time, but escaped and was never returned. He was not generally considered dangerous.

HAD NO FIRE PROTECTION.

Town of Huntley Wiped Off the Map by Flames.

Huntley, Minn., June 26.—The business portion of this village was wiped out by fire, causing a loss that will reach $25,000. The postoffice and general store owned by A. D. Malrers was burned to the ground. The town has no fire protection, and the flames spread rapidly to the general store of J. A. Hill, then communicated with the farm implement establishment owned by A. A. Williams.

SAILOR BURNED TO DEATH.

Fire in a Saloon Sends a Sleeper Into Eternity.

Ashland, Wis., June 26. — Smith & Dehnke's saloon caught fire Friday and Paul Harry was burned to death in a back room. Harry was a mate on the steamer Alcona and lived in Cleveland. He was in a drunken stupor and an exploding lamp fell near him.

Too Much Christian Science.

Lisbon, N. D., June 26.—Hamlin S. Hanson, a single young man who came up from Iowa in April and has since been living with his brother, a farmer in Coburn township, this county, became suddenly insane through too much "Christian Science." He claimed to be the greatest divine healer in the world, and that there was no other that could approach him in ability. He was committed to the insane asylum at Jamestown.

Substantial Economy.

Fargo, N. D., June 26.—The annual financial statement of Cass county for the year ending June 30, will show a reduction of $10,000 in the expenses for the year. Last year's statement showed a reduction of $11,000 over the year previous. Most of the reduction comes from the expense account of the district court.

Sentence Suspended.

Lead, S. D., June 26.—The father of William Mashen, one of the boys found guilty of stealing copper from the Homestake, and sentenced to the reform school, presented a petition in court, asking the sentence on his son to be suspended. The petition was granted, the suspension to continue during the boy's good behavior.

Defective Flue Causes Fire.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., June 26. — A fire originating from a defective flue destroyed a blacksmith shop and wagon manufacturing establishment of W. Tesar & Sons. The loss is quite heavy.

Found Dead in His Store.

Ashland, Wis., June 26.—Louis Kellman, a prominent and wealthy merchant of this city, was found dead in his store, death being caused by asphyxiation. Doctors say it is a case of suicide.

Brakeman Killed.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., June 26. — Owen Donahue of this city was accidentally killed while breaking on a west-bound freigh on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway Fortunate Farmers.

Blue Earth Minn., June 26.—Crops in the county are a good average. The farmers are all well pleased with present prospects. They are now hauling last year's crop to town.

Drowned in the St. Croix.

Grantsburg, Wis., June 26. — Guy chapman was drowned in the St. Croix river. His former home was Granada, Minn.

Oliver Dalrymple, who knows something about wheat, thinks that if rain comes soon the crops in the vicinity of Casselton will be all right.

CROP CONDITIONS.

Dry Weather Continues, With a Few Scattered Local Showers.

Sauk Center, Minn., June 24.—The drouth, which is the most disastrous this country has experienced for many years, continues unbroken. The wheat and oat crops on sandy soil are almost wholly destroyed. Many fields are being plowed and the struggle for hay is a hard one. No highland grass at all, and the river bottoms will have to supply the entire country. This shortage of feed will cripple the stock industry.

Stewartville, Minn.—A light rain fell here yesterday. The ground is very dry and more rain is needed badly. With plenty of rain from now on we will get more that half a crop of small grain. Corn is way behind. The hay crop will be nearly a total failure. pastures are very short.

Grafton, N. D. — It still continues very hot and dry. Yesterday the thermometer registered 95 in the shade, with a hot, scorching south wind, which was very disastrous to the growing crop. Hay is $10 per ton, and hard to find at that. Some of our old farmers say straw will be worth $6 per ton for feed. Unless favorable change in weather is soon made we shall be unable to secure feed for the stock here.

Marshfield, Wis.—This section was visited by rain, the first that has fallen for two weeks. Everything was in crying need of moisture, hence the value of this fine drenching rain can hardly be overestimated. Crops will progress henceforth at a rapid pace.

SIX PERSONS KILLED.

Serious Railroad Collision Near Green Bay, Wis.

Green Bay, Wis., June 26.—A northbound passenger train on the Chicago & Northwestern road, loaded with excursionists bound for the Saengerfest in this city, collided at 10:15 o'clock yesterday morning with a freight train at Depere, five miles south of here. Six persons were killed, one is missing and thirty-four were injured. The accident happened just as the passenger train was pulling into the station. A double-header freight was backing into a side track to let the passenger by, but had not cleared the main track. Those injured were nearly all in the second coach. When the two trains came together the first coach, which was a combination smoker and baggage car, was driven through the second coach, where the loss of life occurred. The dead were taken out of the wreck and to an undertaking establishment at Depere. The injured were first taken to the Depere high school, which was converted into a temporary hospital, and later were brought to St. Vincent's hospital in this city. None of the train men were injured, the engine crews jumping in time to save themselves. Both engines were badly damaged and two coaches were broken into kindling wood.

ALMOST A TRAGEDY.

Electric Light Controversy at Detroit, Minn., Grows Bitter.

Detroit, Minn., June 24.—The electric light agitation came near culminating in a tragedy yesterday afternoon. Mike McCarthy attempted to climb into the carriage of E. G. Holmes, president of the Detroit Light and Land company, and after a warning by Mr. Holmes to keep out, was shot. The ball made a slight scalp wound and McCarthy is reported out of danger. Holmes makes the statement, which is corroborated by several witnesses, that McCarthy hailed him to stop his team while going down the street, and upon McCarthy advancing and attempting to climb into the carriage, intent upon making an assault, Holmes repeatedly warned him to keep off, and as a last resort fired his revolver, with the result as stated above. McCarthy has had some reputation as a pugilist and is a very powerful fellow. It is hoped that no further trouble will ensue.

Stabbed by a Woman.

Milwaukee, June 26.—Frank Bonn, a white man of Sioux City, who had been living with Nina Brown, a colored woman, for the past six weeks, was stabbed to death last night by the woman. She resisted the efforts of three police officers to arrest her for fifteen minutes after the murder by brandishing a knife and a package of red pepper, but was finally overpowered. She claims that Bonn attacked her first.

Roberts Must Pay a Fine.

Salt Lake, Utah, June 26. — In the case of B. H. Roberts, found guilty of unlawful cohabitation, the judgment of the court was that he pay a fine in the sum of $150, or in lieu thereof that he be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of 150 days. A thirty days' stay was granted in order that the defendant might file a bill of exception.

Two Children Drowned.

Winona, Minn., June 26. — Herbert Wigdale, aged twelve, and Floryan Losinski, aged six, were drowned here yesterday evening. Both boys were bathing. Losinski stepped into a deep hole and Wigdale in attempting a rescue was also drowned. Both bodies were recovered.

Fell Onto a Fork.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, June 26. — Roy Petersmeir, a boy living near Fonda, was killed by falling on the tines of a fork. He was playing with another child, sliding off a haystack against which a pitchfork was leaning, the tines upward.

Died of Lockjaw.

Anoka, Minn., June 24.—Walter McCrea, the lad accidentally shot by his brother with the gun found in Round lake and supposedly the one used in murdering the Wise family, died of lockjaw yesterday.

Old Man Gored by a Cow.

St. Paul, June 24.—John Hagman, 1009 Beech street, was badly gored by a cow yesterday morning. Dr. H. O. Earl thinks the injuries may prove fatal on account of the advanced age of the man.

Indians and Squaws Fight.

Mora, Minn., June 24.—A lot of intoxicated Indians and squaws engaged in a fight a short distance from the village last night, in which several were injured.

Elma, Iowa, June 26.—The worst fire in the history of Elma occurred yesterday. Over $10,000 worth of property was destroyed. One whole block was swept clean.

Mabel, Minn., June 24. — Austin Wang, a farmer living west of town, was found dead in the hay field. It is thought he died from heart failure.

In Minnesota.

State News of the Week Briefly Told.

Owatonna's free-delivery system will begin on July 1.

Mills on Sagawa lake, near Ely, are short on logs.

Mrs. Timothy Kilty of Stillwater is dead, aged sixty-seven.

Winnebago City Presbyterians will build a modern church.

The census of St. Paul is expected to show a population of 165,000.

Parker college, Winnebago City, is out of debt and has money in bank.

Ambrose Reed, a school teacher at Orinoco, was drowned in Lake Shady.

The nurses' training school at Fergus Falls graduated a class of fourteen.

Brown's Valley has voted bonds for the establishment of a water works system.

John Donahue, arrested at Anoka, it was discovered, knew nothing of the Wise murder.

Charles Johnson of Madelia, aged eleven, accidentally shot and killed his cousin Frank, of the same age.

E. A. Harris of New Paynesville has been arrested for the burglary of G. H. Huntington's billiard hall.

Miss Marie Miller, a school teacher at Alexandria, died from the effects of an operation from appendicitis.

The wheat crop is reported a total failure at Brooten. Farmers are turning their stock into the wheat fields.

Frank O. Whitlock, West Point cadet from the First district, has been graduated and assigned to the Fourth cavalry.

The State Pharmaceutical association, in session at Owatonna, recommended the introduction of the metric system.

The Minnesota Horticultural society has decided to raise a fund to reward deserving students at the state agricultural school.

St. Cloud reports that the prospects for even half a crop are getting slimmer every day. Prairie chickens are thriving unusually well.

After two hour's deliberation, the jury in the J. R. Clements case, that of wrecking the Fillmore county bank, returned a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment.

Mrs. Courier of Maple Lake, who became violently insane, the result of illness, was brought to Buffalo for examination and committed to the asylum at Fergus Falls.

S. R. Flynn of St. Paul, in an address before the State Bankers' association, attacked the new financial law, and declared that our financial system is not upon a real gold basis.

The annual reunion of the old settlers of Lac qui Parle county occurred at Lac qui Parle. Gov. Lind was present, and made the principal address. It was the largest gathering ever seen in the county, estimated at 5,000 people.

John Linstrom was struck and killed by a Duluth & Iron Range train while walking on the tracks near Highland. It is said he was from Duluth, where he has relatives living, but as yet the authorities have been unable to locate them.

The secretary of the interior has denied the motion for a review of the decision cancelling the homestead entry of George M. Elliott for a small tract in the St. Cloud land district, the decision being in favor of Edgar L. Moore.

The suit brought at Buffalo by Jas. Boxwell against his wife and her father for goods taken from his house at the time he was tried for the murder of his father and step-mother, last summer, resulted in a verdict for the defendant.

Stillwater lumbermen having logs on Snake river are greatly discouraged over the reported blowing out of the Chengwatonna dam, near Pine City, by farmers. This will prevent logs on that stream from getting in this season.

R. O. Lunke, in plowing on his land, on the shore of Prairie Lake, a mile from Pelican Rapids, plowed up a number of skulls in good condition, supposed to be those of Indians, although there has never been evidence of any graves there.

John E. Searles of New York, who made a deal some time ago to purchase and operate three idle iron plants at the head of the lakes, has finally, and after long delay, taken over the second plant, the Ironton Structural Steel works, and it prob-

Action was brought by Washington county in the United States circuit court against Clapp & McCartney, St. Paul lawyers, to recover the Bristol tax judgment, on which they, as attorneys, claimed the right to withhold $12,500 for attorneys' fees. Both sides will fight hard.

Casper Djernes of Bagley arrived at Fergus Falls recently, and caused the arrest of S. L. Davis and George Butler on a charge of horse stealing. The two men hired a team from him eight weeks ago, and, as they failed to return it, he set out in search of them, overtaking them at Fergus Falls.

In the case of Lizzie Kelly against the Hastings & Dakota Railway company, involving a quarter section in the Marshall land district, action is suspended pending further filings of evidence, the secretary being inclined to reverse the land office decision and allow the entry of Lizzie Kelly to stand.

Horse thieves are unusually active in and around Rochester, and a number of valuable horses have been taken. Mr. Kassler of Rochester had a fine team stolen. The feeling is so strong among the farmers that a rope and a short shrift may be the fate of a thief if captured.

The Farmers' Elevator company, trading under the name of the Farmers' and Merchants' Supply company, held its annual meeting at Minneota. During the year it handled 132,100 bushels of wheat, making a profit of $1,200. A dividend of 25 per cent per $10 share was declared.

A suit for alienation of a wife's affections that is attracting much attention, goes to trial at Blue Earth City. The plaintiff is S. S. Black, a retired business man, and the defendant is Dr. F. N. Hunt, a prominent physician. Mr. Black claims that Dr. Hunt alienated his wife's affections while treating her professionally a year ago, and asks $5,000 damages. Mr. and Mrs. Black continue to reside together. Dr. Hunt has an estimable family and denies the allegations of the plaintiff.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

Minnesota Historical Society

VOLUME XIX ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1900. NUMBER 50.

GOES TO VAN SANT

NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR OF MINNESOTA.

Republican State Convention Meets at St. Paul and Names a Ticket—Senator Carter of Montana Makes an Address—All Nominations but Secretary of State and Railroad Commissioners Are Made by Acclamation—The Resolutions Indorse the Platform of the Philadelphia Convention.

United States Senator — Knute Nelson.

Governor—Samuel R. Van Sant of Winona.

Lieutenant Governor — Lyndon A. Smith of Montevideo.

Secretary of State—Peter E. Hanson of Litchfield.

State Treasurer—Julius H. Block of St. Peter.

Attorney General—Wallace B. Douglas of Moorhead.

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court—Charles M. Start of Rochester.

Associate Justice—Loren W. Collins of St. Cloud.

Railroad Commissioner, Four-Year Term—Joseph G. Miller of Two Harbors.

Railroad Commissioner, Four-Year Term—Ira B. Mills of Moorhead.

Railroad Commissioner, Two-Year Term—Charles F. Staples of West St. Paul.

-o-

St. Paul, June 30.—The above is the ticket selected by the Republican state convention which met in this city yesterday. All the nominations except secretary of state and railroad commissioners were made by acclamation. A feature of the day was the presence of Senator Carter of Montana, who made an address on the issues of the day which aroused considerable enthusiasm.

The convention was called to order at noon by State Chairman W. E. Steel. A contest arose over the selection of a temporary chairman. Dar F. Reese of St. Paul and Senator E. T. Young of Swift county were placed in nomination. Senator Young won out over the St. Paul man, the vote standing, Reese, 510; Young, 666. Senator Young, in his speech of acceptance, predicted Republican success. J. J. Everett of Fairmont was elected temporary secretary.

Permanent Organization.

The committee on credentials was dispensed with on motion of Mr. Roberts of Hennepin, and the certified delegates ordered seated. On motion of the same delegate the temporary organization was made permanent, and the chair announced the following committee on resolutions:

R. G. Evans, B. F. Hardstrom, Ed Bostad, S. J. Ray, H. Bert Miller, W. C. Whiteman, Patrick H. Morrison, C. S. Mitchell, J. S. Vandiver, C. L. Hilton, W. S. Moe, C. A. Pidgeon, E. W. Rossman, W. D. Smith, J. F. Jacobson, G. S. Ives and M. E. Bunnell.

At 1:10 an adjournment was taken until 2:30.

When the convention reassembled R. G. Evans offered a resolution indorsing Senator Knute Nelson for re-election, which carried.

Nominations for governor were then taken up and O. B. Gould of Winona placed S. R. Van Sant in nomination. The nomination was made unanimous by a rising vote amid Great Enthusiasm.

Senator George W. Somerville nominated Lieut. Gov. Lyndon A. Smith to succeed himself. Henry Feig moved that the nomination be made by acclamation and the motion prevailed.

C. S. Martin of Clay nominated W. B. Douglas for attorney general and the nomination was made unanimous.

W. P. Roberts of Hennepin nominated J. H. Block of St. Peter for treasurer, and the nomination was made by a rising vote.

W. P. Roberts moved that C. M. Start be nominated for chief justice by a rising vote. An amendment to the motion named L. W. Collins for associate justice. The amended motion carried.

It was at this point that Senator Carter was introduced, being given a tremendous ovation. At the conclusion of the Montana senator's spech Capt. Van Sant was presented to the convention and was greeted with a storm of cheers. He thanked the convention for the honor conferred upon him and asked for united and harmonious action on the part of the Republicans of the state. He concluded with an appeal for the whole ticket. "The most important thing is not the election of your governor," he declared. "First of all must the electoral vote of the state be cast for McKinley. And second we must elect the legislature to return that great commoner, Senator Knute Nelson. And then our splendid congressional delegation must be returned—all seven. I am ready to go to work. The campaign is now open. If you will all do your whole duty as I pledge you to do mine, Populism will go down for another forty years."

Eustis is Heard.

William Henry Eustis was then called for and delivered a short speech, touching briefly on the issues of the campaign.

The nominations for which contests were expected were then taken up.

For secretary of state Sam Langum, S. P. Sjoblom, A. F. Nordin, J. J. Lomen, S. B. Molander and P. E. Hanson were placed in nomination. The first ballot resulted in no choice, and before the second ballot was taken Messrs. Nordin and Sjoblom were withdrawn. Peter E. Hanson won out on the second ballot and his nomination was made unanimous.

For railroad commissioners J. C. Howard, Joseph G. Miller, Ira B. Mills, Job W. Lloyd, C. F. Staples and A. N. Dare were presented. The result of the ballot is given above.

The Platform.

The resolutions indorse the platform of the Philadelphia convention, express approval of the nomination of McKinley and Roosevelt and indorse the present national administration. The prosperity of the country is attributed to Republican legislation and the administration of President McKinley. The bravery and patriotism of the soldiers and sailors in the late war is commended. The platform strongly opposes trusts and combinations to restrict trade and control prices. Labor interests are touched upon and an eight-hour work-day is favored. Appreciation and approval is expressed of the course of Senators Davis and Nelson and the representatives in congress and Senator Nelson is nominated to succeed himself. Legislation to prevent the sale of oleomargarine is favored. The election of United States senators by the people is favored and the representatives in congress are urged to work for such a method of election. The party is committed to a just enforcement of all laws regarding transportation charges. The "Somerville law" is approved and the gross earnings system of taxation as to railroads is commended.

Chairman Young was authorized to appoint the usual state central committee, consisting of one from each judicial district and seven at large.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

SEYMOUR RELIEVED.

Chinese Forces Driven Off After a Brisk Fight.

London, June 30.—The casualties of the international force attacking Tien-tsin were Americans killed, 3; wounded, 2; British, killed, 2; wounded, 1; Germans, killed, 15; wounded, 27; Russians, killed, 10; wounded, 37. The gun fire of the Americans and British is described as "beautiful." After the relieving force pushed on to relieve Admiral Seymour Chinese regulars under Gen. Nieh, says a dispatch from Shanghai, again attacked Tien-tsin fiercely and bombarded the foreign settlement with A Terrible Fire.

Col. Dorward, British, commanded the column that relieved Admiral Seymour. American marines participated in the achievement. The admiral was found intrenched and surrounded by immense masses of Chinese, who were driven off by the relieving column after a fierce fight. His men made a brilliant resistance, never failing in courage for fifteen days of continuous fighting. During ten days the men were on quarter rations. They started with provisions for ten days, and they could have held out a day or two longer. The column was a few miles beyond Lo-fa.

Deeming It Hopeless

to attempt to break through the hordes Admiral Seymour essayed a night retreat toward Tien-tsin, but he came in collision with a strong force of Chinese arriving from the northwest, and could neither advance nor retreat. There was nothing to do but to intrench and stand siege. He vainly attempted heliographic communication. Seymour's men caught several Chinese who said the legations had been burned and the ministers killed. Others said that the ministers had been imprisoned. The Chinese displayed in the attack. Four thousand Russians left Tien-tsin four days after Admiral Seymour, but they never got in touch with him. Railway communication from Taku to Tien-tsin has been restored, and the force is advancing toward Peking. Fighting was in progress Wednesday in the vicinity of Tse Chulin. Large preparations are being made to support and reinforce the Peking relieving column. Twenty thousand troops of all arms, largely Japanese, have now been landed. The fate of the members of the legations is still a mystery. If they are alive and unharmed at Peking the Chinese government Deserves Some Credit.

Fanatical Courage

Shanghai correspondents think, after resisting the fanatical mob. The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, wiring at 9:05 p. m. yesterday, says: "It is reported on good Chinese authority that the government, alarmed at foreign military preparations, has issued an edict ordering the peremptory suppression of the Boxers, and announcing a decision to protect the legations at all hazzards."

However this may be, the British consulate at Shanghai received information yesterday, the Daily Express correspondent says, that while solemnly promising complete abstention from warlike preparations the Chinese are mounting several new six-inch guns at the Woo Sung forts.

Washington Officials Worried.

Washington, June 20. — Administration officials are quite concerned over Chinese advices to the effect that the members of the foreign legations in Peking are not at Tien-tsin with Admiral Seymour's column. The dispatches of the last two days indicating that they were with the admiral a few miles from Tien-tsin had allayed in a measure the tension existing here as to their safety, but as no word had come from Minister Conger the confidence temporarily felt again to fear that all may not be well with them. It is believed here that Mr. Conger would have taken the very first opportunity to communicate with his government, and the fact that he had not done so the officials say is very strong ground for believing that he may not be in Tien-tsin, although dispatches report the relief column there. This fact is considered confirmatory of the latest intimations that the legation representatives are still in Peking and some fears are entertained for them if still in the Chinese capital.

Is Giving Way

DAWSON GOLD.

Wealth From the Klondike Passing Through the Seattle Assay Office.

Seattle, Wash., June 30. — The gold received at the United States assay office since June 1, 1900, amounts in value to over $1,000,000. From information now at hand it is possible to make the certain prediction that the receipts of the office during the month of Jury will amount to over $3,000,000. The receipts for June were increased by the deposits of gold brought down on the steamer Rosalie, which arrived from Skagway Tuesday evening. There were 13,500 ounces in nuggets and dust deposited in the assay office in the names of fifty-five persons. The approximate value of the deposits is $216,000. The gold was all direct from Dawson, and is a part of the clean-up in that immediate vicinity.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH WEEK

AND ITS STORE OF EVENTS OF GREAT POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE.

Forecast and Roundup for the Kansas City Conventions—Certainty of Such Action as Will Send the United Reform Forces on to a Glorious Victory—The State Lugubrious Republican Convention—Its Cut and Dried Van Sant Programme Counterpart of Hanna's Other Affair at Philadelphia—"What Will the Harvest Be?"—The State Railroad Commission and "Politics"—Other State and National Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, July 3, 1900.

As these lines are written the hosts of Democracy, of true Democracy, are filling the ways and the byways leading to the Kansas City national convention. It is a joyous, enthusiastic host, filled with patriotism and full of the responsibility resting upon the party of which it is a part. Theirs the deep feeling that inspires an army going to battle, in a holy and just cause. Theirs the courage which falters not at any obstacles, a courage which has never faltered a moment since the victory they righteously won in 1896 was wickedly wrested from them by Hanna and his forces of plutocracy with all their despicable methods. Theirs a determination this year to double their armor, and doubly protect against the enemy's wiles.

And with a unanimity unexampled in political history the action that will be taken is forecast, both as to leading candidate and platform declarations, in both respects voicing the sentiments of a large majority of the American people, even more than in 1896 when without the coercion of the money power there was a large majority for Bryan and the Chicago platform, yes, hundreds of thousands if not millions more than a majority. Mr. Bryan's renomination has never been in doubt a moment since his defeat was thus certified. As readers of these letters will bear witness, they have maintained that there would be no other candidate, and he would have a nomination this time by acclamation. It will be the record that in the entire political history of the country and of the whole civilized world, no man ever had leadership with such unanimity as has William J. Bryan.

The sentiment as to platform is likely to be quite as unanimous, in all the essential principles of Democratic contention. This will certainly include reaffirmation of the Chicago platform, proceeding from which there will be ringing declarations upon the newer issues covering imperialism, the trusts, the domination of the money power, arraignment of the administration for its long list of sins of omission and commission, as are demanded by the great masses of the country. Especially will there be such recognition of labor and of the producing interest of the country as is demanded by the menace of competition of added alien peoples, or militarism which will take them from the workshops and put them into standing armies of foreign conquest. Especially will reassurance be given our smaller merchants and manufacturers, of arrest of the policy which is fast turning them into clerks and employes, and their business over to the big trusts and combines.

As to vice presidential candidate, not counting too much on Minnesota's hope for her noble son, Charles A. Towne, still there is at this date no sign of finding the man who will better fit all the requisites of success. Whatever is finally done, there is a perfect assurance that it will be the best that can be done, and that it will be in the main satisfactory to all reform forces in all parts of the country.

What a glorious work for the week of our glorious Natal Day.

The Republican state convention rounded out the cut and dried program mapped out for it by the particular interests dominating that party, shown in making its chairman Senator Young of Swift, of railroad notoriety, in defeat of the gross earnings tax. Young was a bitter pill for many of the rank and file, but the very audacity with which he was "vindicated," silenced open protest. Many delegates quietly confessed that this part of the convention would bring a storm when they reached home. Especially was this acknowledged by Republican editors of the state, of whom scores are on record against Young's acts and "leadership" in connection with the last session.

The Republican memory goeth not back to a convention like this, in lack of interest or discouraging features. When Van Sant and the other cut-and-dried officers had been put through, and Van had uttered his customary platitudes, Mr. Eustis, the late, aired his long soiled linen, and ripped it into those who laid him out in 1898. Cat calls, insults and tumult marked nominations. United States Marshal Grimshaw referred to "this emergency," in urging his man. References to Lincoln scarcely provoked a cheer. More than one speaker referred to the "popularity of John Lind," and "our popular governor." "Prosperity" references were almost laughed at. A speaker urged his candidate because he stood for "protection, sound money and imperialism." One (Jadam Bede) placed the requisites of a good candidate in the order of "nationality, geography, qualification;" universally, for one position, "nationality"—(Swedish)—was openly urged. Speakers referred to the "modern Goliath of Democracy."

Gray-headed Republican leaders noted these and other proofs of weakness, with many misgivings. They had never seen the like of this convention before, nor has any one else. It betokens certain disaster.

Lest the Reform issue might not be sufficiently raised by the prominence given Senator Young, the convention marked it with a big R. by putting on the ticket for railroad and warehouse commissioner Judge Mills of the old board and Miller of the Duluth and Iron Range railroad. The people will accept the issue with a big A.

The state Republican convention "endorsed" the "national platform." Which parts, Quigg's, or the parts Grosvenor says were suppressed? And by the way, that juggling may account for Tom Reed's kicking. Tom may not know one part from t'other.

While the railroad and warehouse commission has been pressing on to see where it should take action in the interest of the people, and in the discharge of sworn duties, the railroad companies have emphasized the commission's efforts by the cry that the commission is actuated by political motives. It is a comfort to know that the roads recognize the nature of the issue. The commission asserts that a railroad corporation is a public servant carrying on a public function. Its only interest in the property devoted by it to the use of the public is a financial interest. If it is permitted to charge rates that on the whole will enable it to keep intact its capital actually invested and to earn just and fair returns thereon, it has no further rights or duties in connection therewith. It is not for a railroad company to determine what policy it will pursue toward its patrons—the public. The policy is to be fixed by the public for the welfare of all. In this state it has fixed a policy by a statute which prohibits discriminations against persons, places and commodities.

The commission is determined to enforce the law against discriminations. This is, of course, an attack on the public policy, or, more correctly, political policy which the companies have heretofore been permitted to dictate, in spite of the law. The companies' utterances through the press prove conclusively that they understand the issue. It means the clipping of their political claws. It means that an honest effort will be put forth to make them the servants of industry. Now they are the masters of industry and of politics. By their scurrilous attacks on the commission the companies have betrayed the weakness of their cause. If they are exercising no unlawful powers the courts can be depended upon to protect them. By their present course they prove conclusively that they would rather try their case in the newspapers, owned by themselves, than in the courts, owned partly, at least, by the people. The commission is satisfied to rest its case with the courts. That being so the people themselves can judge whether the railroad companies or the commission stand on firm legal ground.

Speaking of the drouth, river shipping as well as crops is injured, as Diamond Jo boats cannot reach St. Paul, the river being lower than known in 40 years.

Every saw mill in Minneapolis is closed, but the lumber owners keep right on making prosperity, by raising lumber prices.

And speaking of the thousands of men out of employment by closing of Minneapolis mills, there seems proportionately as many in the different lines, carpenters, plumbers, plasterers. More than 50 applications for places by carpenters were on file at union headquarters last week.

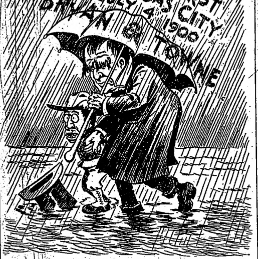
This condition gives our home people a taste of what this trust prosperity is in the many places throughout the country in which the trusts, having acquired some local factories, often the principal, and many times the only great industry of the town, closes the concerns and discharges the men.

While the hosts are gathering at Kansas City the great leader who is first in the love and admiration of the people, is harvesting his five acres of nice wheat by day, and receiving callers on the front porch in the cool of the evening. We have a private letter from Mr. Bryan's brother saying that our leader's health is perfect. The Chicago Chronicle correspondent thus speaks of his condition on arrival from his outing in Northern Wisconsin:

"Mr. Bryan never appeared to be in better physical condition nor to possess so much vigor, vim and vitality as it is his fortune to enjoy today. The great tasks of the campaign against the single gold standard, trusts, militarism and imperialism will be undertaken by a leader calm, self-poised, serene and strong."

The Boer commissioners have returned to Europe, having issued an address, in which they correctly state that they find an overwhelming sentiment in their favor in the United States. And what a shame to think that while they got no sympathy from any of the McKinley administration, France has started a movement for Boer independence, the initiators being 40 or 50 members of the French government, signing in their official capacity. Has any member of the McKinley government dared to express such anti-British sentiment?

Most encouraging reports are received from the anti-imperialist conference held at the Plaza hotel, New York, last week, at which Minnesota was represented by E. S. Corser. A conference, or "Liberty Congress," will be held soon following the Kansas City convention, to take formal action, and what they will do will be to adopt the best means for defeat of the Republican imperial ticket. This will probably be the endorsement of Bryan. G. S. C.



THE GREAT CLOUD-BURST AT KANSAS CITY JULY 4 1900
BRYAN & TOWNE

THE WAY MAC AND TEDDY ARE IN IT.
—Adapted From the New York Verdict.

LINCOLN REPUBLICANS

They Will Stand for Bryan This Year—Patriotism, Not Partisanship, Will Speak.

A Specimen Voice From One Who Marched With the Lincoln Wide-a-Wakes.

Other National and State Political Topics—Omens of Victory in November.

The Colfax, Wash., Commoner, publishes a letter from an Ohio Lincoln Republican, Capt. Silas S. Canfield, which from the gentleman's connection with the politics of that state may well be taken as indicative of where thousands of former Republicans of that state will be found in this contest. Capt. Canfield is widely known in the Buckeye state, where he was always a staunch party worker, and was a Lincoln wide-a-wake in the first Lincoln campaign. He has a proud soldier record in the civil war, and is of ancestry extending through the war of 1812, the Revolution, the French and Indian war, and traces his lineage back to the French Huguenots. He is the father of two sons prominent men in Washington state, and of George S. Canfield, of this state. He is connected with the anti-imperialist and independent movements in Ohio, which it is estimated numbers from 30,000 to 50,000 voters, most of whom last fall voted for "Toledo" Jones, but who expect this year to vote for Mr. Bryan.

The Commoner says, in publishing Capt. Canfield's letter, that it shows how the tide is going in Ohio. The letter is as follows:

"If anyone asks you how your father stands politically, you can safely say he is for the man or party that bids fairest to defeat McKinley and the Republican party. To everyone who disapproves of the policy of the Republicans—everyone who is in favor of the restoration of our currency, taking the control of money from bankers and restoring the system of Lincoln, to-wit, gold, silver and greenbacks—everyone who condemns the course being pursued in Cuba, to-wit, men drawing high salaries from this government, being sent there and exacting additional high salaries from the Cuban people when they ought to be 'Free and Independent'—everyone who is opposed to congress enacting laws to tax, govern and control 'foreign people' or enact any law without constitutional authority or restraint—everyone who is opposed to murdering people by the thousands, demanding abject submission under the specious pretense of commerce (to establish the whiskey trade) and for the pretended object of civilizing and Christianizing such people when it is evident that the real purpose is to send them governors, judges, marshals, commissioners, attorneys and other officers, ad. lib., to plunder and oppress the people—every man who is in favor of the Initiative and Referendum—every liberty loving citizen of this country who is willing or anxious that every inhabitant of this earth should enjoy the same liberty that your ancestors and mine fought to secure for themselves and us, should unite to defeat the Republican party. I forgot to put in trusts; nor was it necessary. I had already enough charged to "damn" any party.

"The only hope of the Republicans lies in dividing those opposed to their doings. For this they have labored for several years. Hence, I say all ought to unite for the defeat of those who are striving to deprive other people, as well as ourselves, of enjoying the fruits of our own labor. Hence, I say the first and principal plank in my political faith is, defeat the Republicans. As in war, let the object be to defeat the enemy. I fail to recognize any good intentions they have, either toward us at home or our species abroad. By us, I mean what some are pleased to call the common people, the producers—the toiling millions—the bone and sinew—the supporters, sustainers and defenders of our country.

"The opponents of reform have so far left nothing untried to get the money question out of the way or so modified that it can be rendered nugatory; not, as I believe, for supporting any reform party, but so that in case they are defeated at the election, they still may have a hope of defeating a return to our former system of stable currency, the best we or any nation ever had. No matter how much a platform might be modified or altered, gold imperial exploiters would vote against reform.

"Let us declare for the whole truth and get as much of it as we can and later strive for the balance.

"We should not suffer ourselves as reformers to be divided by tribes or technicalities.

"If we suffer ourselves to be divided and have as many parties as we have peculiar notions of government and governmental policy and each put up a candidate for president, we cannot hope ever to accomplish anything. Let us declare for all needed reforms and get all we can. If we can find out how the supporters of this administration would have us vote, let us vote contrary to that and I think we will be nearest right. S. S. CANFIELD.

"New Rochester, O."

A further idea of the sentiment among old soldiers, in this campaign, can be obtained from the following extract from a letter of H. G. Patterson, of St. Johns, Mich., formerly of the Third Michigan Infantry, in response to an appeal by the Republican candidate for governor, to give him his vote in this campaign. Comrade Patterson wrote, in concluding a long and convincing letter:

"No, my dear comrade, I cannot unite with you in this unholy alliance to destroy the Constitution and the spirit of Washington's farewell address, to which I now invite your serious attention. This is a time when men line up quickly, when questions of such grave importance are placed before them. Common danger makes common cause. The source of danger is a Republican administration, and while you may go along, others will not, even the administration cannot hope to carry all its party over the precipice of national destruction. The issues now to be fought over will burn deeply into the minds and consciences of men, and many who you presume will stay, on account of the g. o. p. brand, will certainly desert your party, like rats from a sinking ship.

"I hope you may stop and meditate on the difference between this Mark Hanna and the party of Lincoln and others we fought under."

Editor Richard L. Metcalf of the Omaha World-Herald, in the New York Journal:

In the campaign of 1900 the Democracy will follow a man whose rise from obscurity to a position of eminence has been due to his sincerity, his ability, his firm adherence to truth and his consistent attitude toward fundamental principles. Against him are arrayed all the forces that operate for class advantage. On all questions but one all men of the Democratic party agree with him. On that one question he represents the sentiment of ninety per cent of the Democrats. On that question he stands—as he has stood on all questions—the uncompromising champion of the truth as he has learned the truth. Men may urge him to yield his convictions, men may plead with him to deal in platitudes, but the urging and the pleading will be in vain.

So far as concerns the Democrats who sincerely advocate the single gold standard, the choice will lie between McKinley, with whom they agree only on one question, and Bryan, with whom they disagree on a single question. The choice will lie between a man of platitudes and a man who says what he means and means what he says, between a man whose ear is "tuned to catch the slightest pulsation of a pocketbook" and a man who "listens to the heartbeat of humanity;" between a man of whose policies none but the trusts can be certain and a man whose principles the world understands.

Those who choose McKinley cannot separate the man from his cant.

Those who choose Bryan cannot separate the man from his candor.

Those who choose Bryan cannot hope that he will abandon the policies thought out for him by others.

Those who choose Bryan need not expect him to abandon the principles he has thought out for himself.

It will be McKinley and an empire; or it will be Bryan and a republic.

If an empire resting upon gold is preferred to a republic resting upon gold and silver, then let us begin the erection of the imperial temple—the temple that shall testify to the correctness of European prophecy that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall perish from the earth.

New York Journal: The most important question which the Republican party has to face at present is not the planning and planking of a Hanna platform.

It is an easy matter to howl against the trusts without meaning it, and to fill a platform with deceptive cant and rant about the blessings supposed to follow the flag and the splendid prosperity of our satrapies.

The Republican platform, as we have learned from experience, is built of empty words and broken promises which can be written on a typewriter in fifteen minutes.

This does not worry the Republican party. The question which is causing sleepless nights is how to cover up the utter rascality of the administration. It cannot be hidden by a bombastic platform. The public cannot be deceived by rosy speeches.

Hanna leads the administration like a red ox with a brass ring through its nose. As the ox, McKinley, is irresponsible, except within the limits of his rope.

It is Hanna first, last and always, and for all the scandal and rascality connived at and covered up the people will demand an explanation.

Here are a few of the things that voters will do well to make an especial study of between now and election day:

The Alger embalmed beef scandal.

The financial collusion between John D. Rockefeller and Secretary Gage.

The tariff oppression of the Porto Ricans.

The United States army outrages on the Coeur d'Alene miners authorized by William McKinley.

Thefts, murder and mismanagement in the Philippines.

Postoffice rascality and embezzlement in Cuba.

The Hay-Pauncefote treaty by which we are to build an Isthmian canal while England commands it.

Tattooed and daubed with such a damning record, the Republican party will find its platform a very minor consideration with the people.

REV. DR. SAMPLE SKINNED HIM.

That certain Minneapolis preacher of diluted doctrine who is wont to characterize as "copperheads" and "traitors" those who do not agree with him politically, stirred up a hornets' nest with his Decoration day swash bucklerism. To Rev. Dr. S. W. Sample's criticism in Peoples' Paper, the "divine" made only indirect reply that he had not time to answer. Dr. Sample points out a few things that the "divine" does have time for, as follows:

"He has time to make in his own pulpit under the guise of a Memorial Sunday sermon, a partisan speech to which he will not permit an answer in the same pulpit.

"He has time to convey the impression that Anti-Imperialists are copperheads and traitors, but not time to defend that impression at a time and place when and where it can be answered as it deserves.

"He has time to stigmatize as rebels a people who have never sworn allegiance to our flag, but to whom our flag now stands for what President McKinley himself has characterized as criminal aggression.

"He has time to make the most erroneous and unjust statements concerning Aguinaldo, the Kossuth of the Philippines.

"He has time to decry the character of the Boers, and to deny to those conscientious and heroic strugglers against the aggressions of British Imperialism in South Africa the merit of having furnished in their present warfare any other admirable element than pluck and dogged resistance."

Making the plea for Dr. Shutter that he should not be top severely blamed, Dr. Sample says:

"The trouble with Dr. Shutter is not that he is any more cowardly than most men.

"The trouble is not that he is too busy. He is no busier than we are, no busier than many men who would be more than glad to debate this question of Imperialism with him.

"The trouble is not that he shrinks from notoriety or from conferring it upon his opponent.

"The trouble with Dr. Shutter is that he is an Imperialist."

FARM STOCK AND HOME "CHOP FEED."

In heaven there can be no approval of an attempt to force government and laws upon a people unless the government and laws are fully approved in heaven!

We may love the national flag, should love it, but wrong may be done under its folds, for all that. Even the cross of Christ has been perverted to base uses many times.

Our much talked-of Monroe doctrine is simply a diplomatic way of saying: "You mind your business and we'll mind ours;" and when we begin to mind the other fellow's business we repudiate our own doctrine.

Senator Depew says we are suffering from an "indigestion of prosperity." Monopolists, who have hogged prosperity in chunks, are doubtless such sufferers, but the other fellows haven't taken it in doses large enough to hurt.

The more one reads United States history the more clearly he sees that this government is now doing precisely what the people always protested and fought against, down to about two years ago. Annexing revolution!

The Cubans are not surprised at the stealings of alien officials in their island, they have been accustomed to such things ever since Columbus discovered them. And, yet the Cubans ungratefully and brazenly ask for self government.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

Some of New Zealand's experiments in state socialism seem to have been remarkably successful. The "Advances to Settlers Department" has just reported having issued loans to 7,000 settlers representing two millions of money. Not one shilling had been lost, and not one penny, either of principal or interest, had remained uncollected.

Many journals, each unique in its way, has been produced in the course of the campaign in South Africa. One or two of these are hard to beat in diminutiveness, but the smallest newspaper in the world, having a record of several years' regular weekly issue, is published in Guadalajara, in Mexico. Its name is "E Telegrafo," it appears every Sunday and is published in eight columns, 14½ inches long ,and one and a half inches wide, on thick Manila paper. Its staff includes an editor and director, an administrator or business manager, the printer, and last, but by no means least, the capitalist or owner.

The French fleet is to be provided with a new quick-firing gun, said to be superior to any now in use, and an order has been given to the Ruelle works, Charente, for the supply of 100 of these cannon to the fleet before the end of the year. The gun is of 16 millimeters (6.3 inches) caliber, throws a projectile of 52 kilos (114 pounds), has a muzzle velocity of 900 meters (2,952 foot-seconds), and can be fired five times per minute. The projectile will pierce steel armor plate of 32 centimeters (12.6 inches) in thickness and of 20 centimeters (7.8 inches) up to 3,000 meters.

At the recent marriage of the Crown Prince of Japan, immense multitudes in the streets watched and applauded the bridal procession, but not a person looked out of an upper window. To the American eye and mind this seemed strange. But the Japanese explation of it was simple. It is contrary to etiquette—indeed, to loyalty—for a Japanese to look down, either literally or figuratively, upon a member of the royal family. One smiles at the quaint conceit that would interpret the visual angle as a slight. Yet there is much that is admirable and worthy of emulation in scrupulous regard for what are esteemed duty and honor.

The Hon. Henry Copeland, who succeeds Sir Julian Salomons as agent-general for New South Wales in London, was, like the premier of New Zealand, originally a working miner. He spent years on the Ballarat goldfields in Victoria before he settled in Sydney, one of the divisions of which he represented in parliament until his recent promotion to London. In a farewell editorial a Sydney paper says of him: "A working miner he was, and a working miner he remains. He still expresses himself as of old in vigorous and unadorned Anglo-Saxon that will make Mr. Chamberlain sit up when the pair commence to negotiate on controversial colonial questions."

Dr. Andrew Gerber, a wealthy physician of Mount Joy, made a peculiar will, in which he devised to his son Christian, only one-half the income during life of one of his farms. Almost the entire residue of his estate, amounting to about $200,000, was bequeathed to his great grand-children, of whom none was in existence at the time of the decedent's death. Dr. Gerber held strange religious views and believed that at the time his youngest grandchild would arrive at the age of 22 years, he (the deceased) would return to earth, and he desired his estate kept intact until that time. The will was contested and the Supreme court gave Christian Gerber absolutely all that part of the estate bequeathed to the future generations.

Sensational morganatic marriages seem to be the order of the day in the Austrian imperial family; for after those of the Countess Stephanie de Lonyay and Archduke Franz Ferdinand it now appears that the beautiful Archduchess Maria Theresa has petitioned the emperor for permission to marry her master of the household, Maj.-Gen. Count Cavriani. The archduchess, who is the widow of the Archduke Charles Louis, the emperor's brother, whose third wife she was, is a princess of Braganza, and in her 45th year. She has been a widow just four years. Curiously enough, she is the stepmother of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, who has morganatically married the Countess Sophie Chotek. The archduchess has two daughters, the Archduchesses Maria Annonciada and Elizabeth, 24 and 22 years old respectively, who, with their cousin, the emperor's granddaughter, are at present the belles of the imperial court. Count Cavriani is a fine-looking, soldierly man, slightly older than his royal fiancee.

According to the Philadelphia Record, a great deal of the paper money that is in constant circulation in America gets frequent washing. In some banks there is a regular wash-day every month, when a clerk may be seen bent over a tub rubbing notes up and down on a wash-board. The dirty greenbacks are soaped and rubbed just like handkerchiefs and socks, and are put through a wringer before being put out to dry. After the notes have been passed through the wringer they are hung on a line stretched in the bank clerks' department.

A man who had been planning and promising the formation of a company with fifteen million dollars' capital was arrested the other day on the charge of having stolen one hundred and seventy dollars. Not often does the comedy of speculation present a finer example of reductio ad absurdum.

Pullman palace cars are to be used on the Yukon and White Pass railway, from Skagway to Lake Bennett. They are only 40 feet long and weigh 15 tons. The railway company is building two hundred freight cars.

ONE OF UNCLE SAM'S NAVY YARDS

The One at Portsmouth Was Founded a Century Ago.

Last Tuesday was the 100th anniversary of the establishment of a navy yard at Kittery, Me., on the Piscataqua river, opposite Portsmouth, N. H. The land was in 1800 purchased by the government for $5,500. April 25, 1800, Secretary of the Navy Benjamin Stoddert in a report to the president advocated the purchase of suitable sites for navy yards at Portsmouth, N. H., Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Norfolk, Va., and Washington, D. C. The secretary's report stated that "at Portsmouth the yard of Mr. Langdon, hired for the frigate, might be used for the 74-gun ship, but an island (Fernald's), quite convenient for all purposes of a large establishment, can be procured for $6,000, and believing it the truest economy to provide at once permanent yards which shall be public property, and always worth to the public the money expended on them," he recommended, among others, "the purchase of a building yard at Portsmouth, and to commence it on a scale as if it were meant to be permanent."

There are many things connected with the various shops which are not found in any other navy yard. For instance, in the block shop, there is a machine for manufacturing buckets, which, when run by one man, will turn out 30 buckets a day.

Over on one side of the island are the 30 graves of Spanish prisoners who died of fever or wounds when the Spanish prisoners were quartered there.

At the gun park are may styles of ordnance, from the old cannon marked with the date of 1809 to the two Spanish rifles taken from Spanish ships at the battle of Santiago.

The new dry dock, upon which the future prosperity of the yard will depend in a great measure, will be 750 feet long over all, 725 feet on the floor and 130 feet wide from coping to coping, and 80 feet wide on the floor. The greatest depth will be 39 feet 3 inches, with a draft of 30 feet over the sill at mean high water. It will be built of granite on a solid rock foundation. The pumping arrangements are for three powerful centrifugal pumps, capable of throwing 43,000 gallons of water a minute, so that the estimate of the time for pumping out the dock will be a little over two hours. The pump-house will be built 60 feet below the yard level, so that the drainage culvert will be nearly 20 feet below the foundation of the dock. The building will be of granite and steel, with the inside wall of glazed brick and the top of glass and iron. The power for running the pumps and working the docks will be supplied from the electric light and power station, now under construction, wherein will be set three vertical, cross compound, condensing, automatically governed engines, each engine having direct connection with six dynamos of 150 kilowatts each, these to three motors of 300 kilowatts each, each connected with a pump, the motors to be placed in the pumping well. The boilers will be six in number and of 22 normal horsepower, the draughts being supplied by a self-supporting steel stack on a brick foundation.

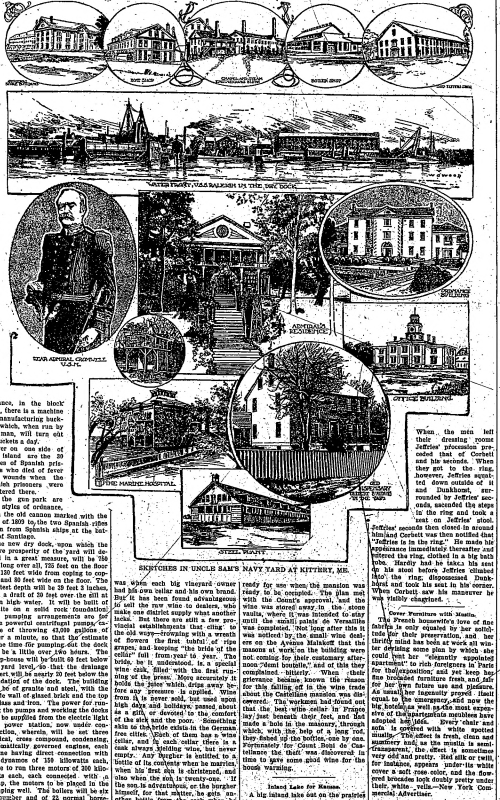
The present officers of the yard are: Rear Admiral Bartlett G. Cromwell, commandant; Capt. P. V. Harrington, captain of the yard; Capt. W. H. Harris, chief engineer; Constructor John G. Tawresey, construction and repair; Commander W. T. Swinburne, equipment; Civil Engineer Luther M. Gregory, yard and docks; Pay Director Edward Bellows, Paymaster J. T. Camm, Assistant Constructor William Dubose, Lieut. J. H. Sypher, admiral's aid.

At Washington plans are being prepared for the plant for handling and storing coal, for which $100,000 is already available. This plant will have a capacity for 10,000 tons, and will be erected on Seavey's island.

During the past year a telephone system was installed, giving an instrument to each officer's house and the main offices and shops, the old chapel being utilized as a central station.

In 1874 the present gas works were installed. The electric lighting plant will soon be completed.

The fire protection system has lately attracted considerable attention. The new plan is for a separate system of pipes in all parts of the yard, which will be supplied by a number of hydrants. Powerful pumps will be installed in the power station, and a high pressure of salt water will be kept at all times. Automatic sprinklers and alarms will be placed in the principal buildings.



SKETCHES IN UNCLE SAM'S NAVY YARD AT KITTERY, ME.

CASK NEVER EMPTY.

For Years Wine Is Drawn from It to Celebrate Great Events.

All really excellent champagne is the result of judicious blending. Time was when each big vineyard owner had his own cellar and his own brand. But it has been found advantageous to sell the raw wine to dealers, who make one district supply what another lacks. But there are still a few provincial establishments that cling to the old ways—crowning with a wreath of flowers the first tubful of ripe grapes, and keeping "the bride of the cellar" full from year to year. The bride, be it understood, is a special wine cask, filled with the first running of the press. More accurately it holds the juice which drips away before any pressure is applied. Wine from it is never sold, but used upon high days and holidays, passed about as a gift or devoted to the comfort of the sick and the poor. Something akin to the bride exists in the German free cities. Each of them has a wine cellar, and in each cellar there is a cask always yielding wine, but never empty. Any burgher is entitled to a bottle of its contents when he marries, when his first son is christened, and also when the son is twenty-one. If the son is adventurous, or the burgher himself, for that matter, he gets another bottle from the cask when he comes home from far countries. But there is an official specially charged to see that wherever a bottleful is drawn out another bottleful of as near as possible the same quality at once goes in. And thus it happens that the city cask is never empty.

Pleasant Treatment of Disease.

In a pamphlet on the superstitions and medical practices of Bernese peasantry Dr. Zahler, himself a native of the Bernese Oberland, states that the belief in witchcraft is slowly yielding to education. The medical literature consists of ancient manuscript family prescription books and printed volumes distributed by pedlars. The older the prescription the greater the credit. The peasant nowadays, while carefully concealing his ancestral beliefs, is yet, when disease affects him, inclined to revert to the old charms and remedies. Dr. Zahler attributes such efficacy as they possess to what is now called "suggestion," but admits the part played by the use of herbs in all primitive medicine.

CASTELLANE'S WINE

Was Disappearing Down the Throats of His Workmen.

Paris Letter in Chicago Record: Count Boni de Castellane had rather an annoying misadventure during the building of his palace on the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne. When its foundation had been laid and the building had progressed as far as the first story, the cellar being finished, his wine merchant went to Count Boni with a proposition. Instead of waiting two years for the wine to mature, the merchant suggested that he stock his cellar at once, so that it would be ready for use when the mansion was ready to be occupied. The plan met with the Count's approval, and the wine was stored away in the stone vaults, where it was intended to stay until the small palais de Versailles was completed. Not long after this it was noticed by the small wine dealers on the Avenue Malakoff that the masons at work on the building were not coming for their customary afternoon "demi boutelle," and of this they complained bitterly. When their grievance became known the reason for this falling off in the wine trade about the Castellane mansion was discovered. The workmen had found out that the best wine cellar in France lay just beneath their feet, and had made a hole in the masonry, through which, with the help of a long rod, they fished up the bottles, one by one. Fortunately for Count Boni de Castellance the theft was discovered in time to save some good wine for the house warming.

Inland Lake for Kansas.

A big inland lake out on the prairies of Western Kansas will soon be a reality. Kansas City capitalists have gone behind the Barton county lake scheme, and are pushing the preliminary work on it rapidly. In Barton county, about eight miles north of Great Bend, is a natural basin twelve miles long and six miles wide. Only one draw leads out of it, and that is only 250 feet wide. Damming this wall will make the basin a lake. The land in the basin is worthless for farming purposes. It is gumbo, and the only thing that will grow on it is salt grass. The scheme was recently laid before Kansas City capitalists, and they will finance the company. They have already advanced about $25,000 to pay for the land. It is estimated that it will take $300,000 to make the improvements contemplated. The big ditch leading from the Arkansas to the lake will be widened and deepened. Three irrigation ditches will be built leading from the lake. It is proposed to furnish water to irrigate all the land in that section of the country east of the basin. Aside from its use as a source of irrigation supply, the lake will be made a summer resort for western Kansas people.

CORBETT SUPERSTITIOUS.

His Plan to Have Jefferies Enter the Ring First.

Variety performers and baseball players are responsible for two-thirds of the slang that italicizes the American language, and they are also to be held accountable for a similar amount of superstitions of the day. They believe firmly in "mascots" and "hoodoos," and so do a large majority of fighters. Anent this fact, Billy Brady played it low down on Corbett at the Coney Island fight. One of Corbett's superstitions is that it is unlucky for a fighter to be the first to enter the ring when he is about to engage in a contest. He forced Sullivan to enter the ring first at New Orleans, and he defeated him. He intended to make Jeffries enter the ring first at Coney Island, but Brady had big Ed Dunkhorst wear a blue sweater similar to the one that encased Jeffries' body

When the men left their dressing rooms Jeffries' procession preceded that of Corbett and his seconds. When they got to the ring, however, Jeffries squatted down outside of it and Dunkhorst, surrounded by Jeffries' seconds, ascended the steps in the ring and took a seat on Jeffries' stool. Jeffries' seconds then closed in around him and Corbett was then notified that "Jeffries is in the ring." He made his appearance immediately thereafter and entered the ring, clothed in a big bath robe. Hardly had he taken his seat on his stool before Jeffries climbed into the ring, dispossessed Dunkhorst and took his seat in his corner. When Corbett saw his maneuver he was visibly chagrined.

Cover Furniture with Muslin.

The French housewife's love of fine fabrics is only equaled by her solicitude for their preservation, and her thrifty mind has been at work all winter devising some plan by which she could rent her "elegantly appointed apartment" to rich foreigners in Paris for the exposition, and yet keep her fine brocaded furniture fresh and fair for her own future use and pleasure. As usual, her ingenuity proved itself equal to the emergency, and now the big hotels as well as the most expensive of the apartements meublees have adopted her idea. Every chair and sofa is covered with white spotted muslin. The effect is fresh, clean and summery and, as the muslin is semitransparent, the effect is sometimes very odd and pretty. Red silk or twill, for instance, appears under its white cover a soft rose color, and the flowered brocades look doubly pretty under their white veils.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Exploration of Catacombs.

An appeal has been made to archaeologists and others who are interested in Christian antiquities to subscribe toward the further exploration of the catacombs. The commissioner of sacred archaeology has been performing an excellent work in continuing the excavations where De Rossi ended the work. The present pope, Leo XIII, has aided the work generously, but the means at the disposal of the commission are still inadequate. Of the forty-five cemeteries only about five are at present accessible to the visitor to Rome.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS

Asia's Great Sink-Holes.

While Asia has the loftiest mountains in the world, it also possesses the deepest and most extensive land depressions, several of them, as is well-known, sinking below sea-level, so that if the ocean could flow into them they would be filled to the brim. In the deepest parts of most of them water now stands, forming small seas. Others are destitute of water. Among these is the Lukchum depression in Central Asia, concerning which General Tillo writes, in the "Proceedings of the Russian Geographical Society," that in places it sinks as much as 400 feet below sea-level. This sink-hole in the middle of the largest of the continents is also remarkable for its meteorogical features, the yearly amplitudes of the barometer being greater than are recorded anywhere else on earth. In summer the temperature rises to Saharan heat, a record of 118 degrees Fahrenheit having been obtained in July, while the air is of desert dryness.

A Balloon for Polar Exploration.

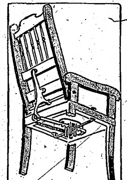
Among the equipments of the German Antarctic expedition, the details of which are now being worked out, will be a captive balloon to be employed for reconnaissance. It will have sufficient lifting power to raise an observer about 1,600 feet into the air. It is probable that the exploring ship, the building of which has been begun at Kiel, will carry a supply of compressed hydrogen for inflating the balloon, and it is intended that there shall be enough of the gas to enable the balloon to make ten ascensions. The expedition will endeavor to establish a station on the west side of Victoria Land, as it is thought that an extensive land surface exists there. A British expedition is simultaneously to attack Victoria Land from the east side.

How Silk Equalizes Temperature.

It is known to everybody that silk is electrified by friction. Acting upon the suggestion thus furnished, a French savant, Monsieur Henry, has made experiments which show that the electrification of the air enclosed in a tissue of silk produces a circulation of its particles, which tends to equalize the temperature. A similar effect is observable in wool, and hence the superiority of silk and wool for garments intended to protect the body against the vicissitudes of climate.

IMPROVED EASY CHAIR.

Among the many easy chairs on the market few approach in solid comfort the chair with the hinged back, which can be adjusted at various angles, to suit the lounger. In order to facilitate the movement of the back and adjust it readily in its several positions many devices have been tried, and the mechanism here shown is one of the newest inventions to accomplish this purpose. The back may be either hinged to the seat or pivoted on a rod to tilt freely, with the supporting brace pivoted in line with the hinges or on the rod. A coiled spring is attached to the chair seat, and to the forward end of the notched horizontal rod, serving to draw the rod toward the rear. A glance at the cut will show that this would tilt the back of the chair forward as soon as the person sitting in the chair leaned forward. The notched bar is held rigidly in place by a spring bar set at right angles to it, one end being hinged to the seat and the other end provided with a rod extending upward in position to be easily depressed by the hand, which action frees the back and allows it to be adjusted without rising from the chair.



HANDY ADJUSTMENT FOR EASY CHAIRS.

Potsdam's Twin Telescope.

The new double telescope of the Potsdam Observatory was recently dedicated. It consists of two very large telescopes arranged side by side on one mounting. The larger, of thirty-two inches aperture and 39.4 feet focal length, is for photographic use; the other, of twenty inches aperture, and 41.2 feet focal length, is for visual observations. The primary object of this telescope is to measure, with all possible accuracy, the velocity of stars that are approaching or receding from the earth.

A New California Industry.

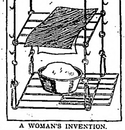
The growing of Belgian hares for the market in southern California is described by Mr. O. P. Wolcott in the Scientific American, as having recently become an extensive industry. The hares are imported for breeding purposes from England and Belgium. A high-bred buck or doe hare, Mr. Wolcott says, will bring $50 to $250. In the markets the price is about 25 cents per pound, live weight. From Los Angeles shipments are now made to all parts of the United States. A warm climate is not essential for the animals, and it is said they could be grown for the market in almost all parts of the Union.

California's Treasures.

The California Miners' Association has recently published a treatise on the mineral wealth of that state which brings out some facts that are not generally known. Gold, of course, holds the lead, but it will probably surprise many to learn that the value of the quicksilver annually produced in California is fifty per cent greater than the value of the silver found there, and that even the petroleum output of the state exceeds the silver production in value. Copper and borax rank among the important minerals of California.

DRIES CLOTHES, RAISES BREAD

It will not take a woman who does housework and makes her own bread long to appreciate the advantages and utility of the device shown in the picture, and it is almost needless to say that it is a woman's idea, the inventor being Annie Bennett of Maine. In families where the bread is made at home it is a common custom to set the dough to rise in a warm place at night, and it is difficult to find a place where the temperature is even on all sides, the sides nearest the fire receiving the greatest amount of heat and causing the loaf to rise unevenly. With this device suspended above the stove the heat rises and surrounds all sides of the tin with an equal temperature. The arrangement is constructed of a number of gratings suspended in a horizontal position over the range, with adjustable shelves which are adapted to be extended on either side, to increase the available space. The device is also well adapted for drying clothes, and has a sufficient number of rods to hold a fair-sized washing.



A WOMAN'S INVENTION.

Our Loftiest Mountain.

The records of the Geological Survey in Washington establish the fact that the loftiest known mountain in North America is Mount McKinley in Alaska, about 200 miles from the shore of Cook Inlet. The aboriginal name of the peak is Tralega. It is 20,464 feet high. This is not far from the elevation of Mount Chimborazo, the highest peak of the Andes, and is 2,440 feet greater than that of Mount St. Elias, which was at one time believed to be our loftiest mountain.

Sugar vs. Starvation.

Experiments by Professor Mosso in the University of Genoa have shown that sugar administered after a period of starvation, or a long fast, restores vitality much more rapidly than bread does. The temperature of the body quickly increases with the administration of sugar.

Recent Inventions.

Corks which have slipped inside bottles can be easily extracted by a newly designed implement, which has two handles pivoted together to control a pair of elongated jaws, which are made of strong steel and are narrow enough to pass through the neck and catch the cork.

For automatically throwing the rails of switches a new engine attachment has a beam extending out in front, with tackle for swinging the free end to either rail, with a small wheel at the outer end, which engages the switch rail and forces it into position as the engine moves forward.

For preventing hoisting engines from lifting the cage too far the derrick is provided with a tilting block set in line with one side of the cage, a rod running from the block to the cut-off on the engine, to stop the latter when the cage rises high enough to turn the block.

To indicate when the contents of a bottle have been partially removed and replaced with an adulterant a central rod is placed in the bottle, with a float mounted on the rod to fall as the contents are poured out, internal pawls engaging notches on the rod to hold the float down when the bottle is refilled.

Thomas Jogged His Memory.

A certain elderly gentleman suffered much from absent-mindedness, and was frequently compelled to seek the assistance of his servant. "Thomas," he would constantly say, "I have just been loking for something, and now I can't remember what it is," whereupon the obliging Thomas invariably made suggestions. "Was it your purse, or spectacles, or cheque book, sir?" and so on, till he hit on the right object.

One night, after the old gentleman had retired, the bell rang for Thomas, and on reaching the bedroom he found his master rambling restlessly about the room.

"Thomas, Thomas," he said, "I came up here for something, and now I've forgotten what?"

"Was it to go to bed, sir?" suggested his faithful retainer.

"Ah! the very thing—the very thing! Thank you, Thomas. Good night!"

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

The Dutch Kitten.

I have a little kitten gray:
She's just a ball of fluff,
Without a name to answer to—
She doesn't know enough.

Her nose is kind of wobbly pink;
Her eyes look greenish, but
It's hard to tell their color, 'cause
She keeps 'em mostly shut.

My aunty brought her 'cross the sea,
More'n a thousand miles,
From some warm Holland fireplace,
All shiny round with tiles.

I sometimes ask my kitten gray:
"Say, do you love me, dear?"
And then I blow real gently in
Her tiny tufted ear.

And when she shakes her head for "no"
I do not mind it much,
'Cause o' course she doesn't know a word
Of anything but Dutch!
—Fullerton L. Waldo, in Christian Register.

Found at Last.

Marjory and Brownie had been playmates from the very day that Marjory's father had brought Brownie home in his pocket, a little white puppy, mottled with brown, and with a pair of the brightest eyes you ever saw. It would be hard to find many brighter, livelier or more knowing fox terriers than Brownie soon proved himself. He took to tricks like a circus dog, and before very many weeks had passed he would jump through a hoop or over Marjory's hands; would sit with a bit of cake balanced on his nose, waiting while Marjory counted five, when he would give it a toss and then catch it in his mouth, and would stand up on his hind feet at a given signal and walk around the room, shaking hands, or paws, rather, with everybody, that was there.

You can imagine how sorrowful Marjory felt when Brownie disappeared one afternoon. Nobody knew how it happened, whether it was a case of lost, strayed or stolen. All they knew was that he had been out in the front yard, running about and playing, and that when Marjory went to call him in he was nowhere in sight. Marjory hurried to the neighbors, but no one could tell her anything about lost Brownie.

Marjory's father, when he heard the story, put an advertisement in the newspaper, telling about Brownie's loss, and offering a reward to anybody that would bring him back. For a few days after that Marjory ran to the door every time the bell rang, hoping to see Brownie, but the weeks passed without any news, and at last, very sorrowfully, she gave her pet up as lost.

Four, five, six months rolled away, and a dear little white kitten had taken Brownie's place in the house, though not in Marjory's heart, when one day a great dog show was opened in the city a few miles away. Nobody went from Marjory's home, but one afternoon an old friend of her father's, who had often been at the house, and who had been a favorite with Brownie, strolled into the show to see the dogs, big and little, that were on exhibition.

He was sauntering down an aisle between the open cages in which the fox terriers were chained, and was looking with a great deal of interest at the bright faces when suddenly he felt a pull at his coat. He looked quickly round, but there was nobody near him. He started on again, but again his coat was pulled, this time more sharply than before, as though somebody were very much in earnest. He turned around a second time, quickly enough to see that his coat had been caught and pulled by a small, lively, bright-faced terrier, whose face looked familiar to him, though the dog's name and that of his owner, which were posted above him, were entirely strange. Meanwhile the dog had let go the coat, and in his joy at having attracted the gentleman's attention was standing on his hind feet and trying to lick his face.

For an instant the gentleman looked sharply into the brown and white face, so close to his own, and then said in joyful surprise: "Why, Brownie, is it you, old fellow?"

At sound of the old, familiar name the dog fairly danced in his cage and tugged at his chain as though he would break it. And he began to whine pitifully when the gentleman turned and hurried away.

You can guess where he went. Straight to the managers of the show, to tell them that he had found among the dogs one that belonged to a friend. The man who had entered Brownie was sent for, but could tell nothing, except that he had bought the little fellow from a dog fancier some months before.

"Can you prove your claim?" the manager asked.

"I think so," was the ready reply. "If he is my friend's dog he will answer to the name of Brownie, and will go through several tricks that he was taught."

So Brownie was unchained and was taken to the circus-like ring, where the trained dogs performed every afternoon, and went through his tricks as easily and readily as though he had performed them only the day before. The managers were quite convinced that Brownie had proved his friend's claim, and the gentleman who had entered him said that he would give up his own claims. Marjory's father afterward saw that his loss was made good.

I need not tell you how happy Marjory was when Brownie was brought back to her, which was just as soon as possible after the little scene at the dog show. And now there is added to her fondness for Brownie a very great pride that he could make himself known and prove his claim so cleverly as he did.

Her Robber.

There had been quite a little talk about robbers, and reports had been circulated that some of the inhabitants had lost various things from their woodsheds.

These reports had greatly excited many of the residents, especially the children, many of whom never thought of going to bed without hiding their treasures and securely fastening every door and window.

In one home was a very imaginative little daughter named Mabel, who was about 12 years old. These stories had made a great impression on her mind, and she spent a good deal of time planning how she would meet them when they came. Time went on, but still the robbers made no appearance, and Mabel was beginning to feel rather slighted, because she longed for a chance to show her courage.

At last one night she thought her turn had come. She was awakened at midnight by a grating sound, which seemed to come from a closet in her room. Her courage began to waver and all her plans deserted her. She lay wondering what to do for at least five minutes, but could not decide. She had once almost decided to rouse the household, but she thought the robber would kill the person coming to assist her.

At last she could stand it no longer, so she called one of the members of the family, just to let the robber know she was awake.

Soon after that the noise ceased, but Mabel lay awake the rest of the night, ready to give the alarm. In the morning the first thing she did was to peer cautiously into the closet. To her surprise she saw nothing, but careful investigation showed that a corner of the door had been nibbled by some poor little mouse, who had made a vain attempt to escape.

That evening Mabel put a mouse trap in the closet and caught the disturber. Happy to relate, she has never been troubled by robbers since.

The Marble Witch.

(By Katharine F. Witzlemen, age 10, Detroit.)

There once lived in a certain village some very rich people who had a son and daughter. They kept a good many servants, the most important ones being Rose and Mary Holmes. One day after these girls had finished their kitchen work they strolled into the forest, which was not far from where they lived, and which was supposed to be haunted or enchanted. As they sat down to rest on a big stone Rose said she did not believe there were any fairies. As she said this she instantly turned to stone. It then started to rain, and the frightened Mary ran to go home, but she could not find her way. Suddenly she came to a house which was all lighted up. She knocked, and a hideous old woman appeared. She was very dirty and slovenly. She told the girl to come in, and she gave her a bed to sleep on. The next morning she gave her some breakfast and told her she would show her treasures to her. They went through many halls, of marble, of which the furniture also was marble. Then Mary saw a great many stones lying around. All at once some men came in and killed the witch. Mary then went back to find Rose, who was slowly returning to her natural self, and soon the two girls reached their home, where they told their wonderful story.

Arch Their Backs.

It is not anger alone that makes cats arch their backs. Indeed, when two cats are preparing to fight they do not assume this attitude, but crouch low, just as they do when about to spring on their prey, the body being extended, and the hair not in the least erect. But when, on meeting a dog suddenly, fear is combined with anger, when the cat, standing at its full height, at once arches its back, with an instinctive effort to appear as big and as terrible as possible. Darwin compares it to the similar attitude of the lynx when attacked, and to that of birds which ruffle their feathers and spread out their wings and tail when alarmed. It is not noticeable that a cat will also arch its back when in an affectionate frame of mind, rubbing itself against its master's leg. At the same time it slightly raises its fur and holds its tail erect. Its whole attitude is just the reverse of that which it assumes when savage. Darwin accounts for this in the following words: "Certain states of mind lead to certain habitual actions, which are of no service. Now, when a directly opposite state of mind is induced there is a strong and involuntary tendency to the performance of a movement of a directly opposite nature, though it may be of no service."

What Joseph Was.

The Sabbath school teacher had been telling the class about Joseph, particularly with reference to his coat of many colors, and how his father rewarded him for being a good boy, for Joseph, she said, told his father whenever he caught any of his brothers in the act of wrong doing.

"Can any little boy or girl tell me what Joseph was?" the teacher asked, hoping that some of them had caught the idea that he was Jacob's favorite.

"I know," one of the little girls said, holding up her hand.

"What was he?"

"A tattle-tale!" was the reply.

What the Minister Sold.

A minister's little daughter and two little boys, the sons of commercial travelers, were telling about their respective papas and what they did. One little lad said: "My papa sells shoes," and the other said: "Mine sells paper," and, turning to the little girl, "What does your papa sell?" For a moment the child hesitated, but, not to be outdone by boys, she replied with the air of a duchess, "My papa sells talk."

Life is a scheme of paying off our debts to the past by gifts to the

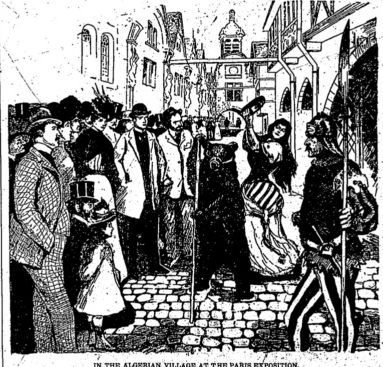
---

WINES OF FRANCE AND THEIR MAKING NOWADAYS.

Exhibit at the Exhibition Contrasts the Old and the Present Methods.

(Paris Letter.)

There are two weeks' free drinks in the Exhibition's exhibit of the wines of France. Bordeaux, Burgundy, the strong wines of the Rhone, the heavy juice of Rouissillon and the sparkling cuvees of champagne, in a stage-setting worthy of the Opera Comique itself, proclaim to the wanderer that he has reached the right corner of the Exhibition at last. The show takes up half of the old Machinery hall, beside the new and enormous Salle des Fetes. The scenery imitates old farm and village buildings, gothic barns and renaissance taverns, homesteads of patched styles from every corner of la belle France, whose leafy trellises declare them to be the real things. In the cool cellar of the Champagne Palace and on its bright florid balconies the visitor may flush his cheek and animate his eye with the most celebrated "fizz" at less than cost price. In the Champagne Palace every stage of champagne making is taught by a realistic object-lesson. A diorama combination of real vines growing in real dirt against a painted background, cunningly lit up, produces the illusion of a glimpse into the champagne countryside. Here, all around, are scattered the constructions that so closely imitate the real old buildings of old times when wine, the pure, invigorating juice of the grape, and not grain and potato spirits, was the people's drink. The buildings are constructed of staff wood and painted canvas, but you would not dream it to look at them. In one ancient tavern of cool black stone, seemingly 500 years old, at old black oak tables, a sweet damsel was pouring sparkling Saumur at 6 cents a glass. It is a frankly imitation champagne. The girl proved to be a Russian, the wine was an imitation, and the venerable building was a stucco fraud.



IN THE ALGERIAN VILLAGE AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

Ask a French peasant what wine is, and he will answer: "The juice of the grape." If you ask French chemists they will tell you: "Wine is the product of the fermentation of the juice of fresh grapes," a different thing. After twenty centuries of renown French wine has come too often to be only a thing made from dried grapes or raisins, from figs and other fruits, from glucose, doctored with alcohols made from grain, beets and potatoes. This is so much so that a cynical French chemist standing near me as I took my photographs, said: "When you see the clairet (the new pinkish juice) running from the winepress you may say goodby to it, for you will never see it again. It will make its way by rail to one of the great centers of the trade—Cette, Bordeaux, Dijon, Chalons and Bercy—to be 'commercially treated.'"

"Is it all doctored?" I asked.

"Yes," he answered, "all except the great vintages. I will not say that it is so much 'doctored' as mixed with the wine of Spain. All the wholesale dealers hold the same opinion. They cannot get on without Spanish wine. At Bordeaux they call it 'the wine doctor.' Others say it is 'the key' of wine, 'to wind it up.' It gives courage to the faint-hearted clairet of unfavored slopes, corrects its acidity, enlivens its flatness. It is not Malaga or sherry, but that strong, blue-red, astringent Spanish 'table wine' they use for the purpose."

It seems that this Spanish wine has come to stay in France because of its strength in alcohol. When the French growers send their mild juice to the wholesale dealer he tells them: "Your wine is not drinkable according to the modern taste. We must fortify it with Spanish wine." The French grower might truthfully answer: "Your real reason for fortifying our juice is that it helps your trade combinations. You can have Spanish wine brought you to Paris by water for half the price which our wines cost you by rail. Then, our wines cannot be watered, while two barrels of Spanish wine can easily be made into three for the use of Parisians and exhibition visitors. Do you expect us to compete with rainwater?"

STERLING HEILIG.

Woman's Marriageable Age.

Much has been said and written as to the proper age for a woman to enter the marriage state, says the Chicago Chronicle. Many have contended that she should never think of taking the all-important step until she has reached the more or less mature age of twenty-five, while others insist that the earlier she is settled the better. When it is all averaged, it will be found that a girl is happiest when she marries at the right time, and the right time is when she has found the right man. Of course the custom of hurrying little girls into matrimony when they have reached the age of sixteen or seventeen is out of the question. Still there are many girls of twenty more fit to be married than some at twenty-five. The rule does not always work well in one direction, and the modern, well-educated, self-reliant maid does well to marry when she finds the right man. A good husband will help even a very young girl to make a success of marriage, but a girl of the old-fashioned type runs a great risk of making a mistake, both in her choice of a husband and in the matter of marrying at all, if she marries before twenty-five.

Play on Words.

"Right ahead of us," resumed the traveler, who was narrating his experiences, "yawned the mountain pass—" "Do you know," artlessly interrupted one of the younger women in the company, "that seems very queer to me. How can a mountain yawn?" "Did you never see Cumberland Gap, miss?" he asked. And there were no more interruptions.—Chicago Tribune.

Anent Boer Envoys.

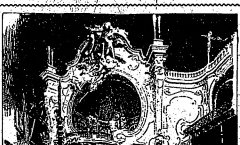
Dr. Leyds is about to pay another visit to Paris. M. de Blowitz says that no doubt the Transvaal envoy has noted that the papers which have become his mouthpiece and defend his cause most warmly show a diminution of zeal when he is not at hand to fire their ardor. This fact reminds M. de Blowitz of a little incident which he once witnessed at Berlin as he sat at table beside Prince Bismarck. In the middle of the room was the prince's great black dog lying on the rug. Toward the middle of the dinner the butler entered, carrying in one hand an earthen bowl and in the other a big platter full of boiled beef carefully cut up. Prince Bismarck took the boiled beef, emptied it into the bowl, which already contained soaked bread, and with his own hand began to knead the dog's supper. A second servant then brought the prince a bowl of warm water, and Bismarck, turning to M. de Blowitz, with a gesture of excuse, washed his hands, saying: "You see, when you want a dog to be faithful, to be a dog which you can count upon, you must feed him with your own hand." That is probably Dr. Leyds' opinion.—Chicago Record.

Story of the Minuet.

There is an interesting story told of the minuet, which is, perhaps the most popular of all Paderewski's compositions. Paderewski, while a professor at the Conservatoire of Warsaw, was one evening at the house of the Polish poet, Swicztochowski, who expressed the opinion that no living composer could compare with Mozart in beauty and simplicity. At the moment Paderewski merely shrugged his shoulders, but the following evening he appeared and asked permission to play his host a little thing of Mozart's which perhaps he did not know. He played the minuet. Swicztochowski was enraptured and cried triumphantly: "Now you must acknowledge that a piece like that could not have been written in our time!" "Well," said Paderewski, quietly, "that happens to be a minuet composed by me."

Goats and Children.

In some of the down town portions of the city there seem to be as many goats as children, and that is saying a great deal. A man who wanted to catch a train at Broad Street station was coming up in an Eighth street car yesterday morning, and after passing Washington avenue, he remonstrated with the conductor for the car was making wretched time. "We have to slow up for a few blocks here on account of the goats," was the astonishing reply of the conductor. "It's just about milking time, and they are going home to their owners."—Philadelphia Record.



THE CHAMPAGNE PALACE.

Statue Dedicated.

A monumental statue of the late Cardinal Lavigerie was recently dedicated at Biskri, on the confines of the Sahara desert. The cardinal is represented standing, his eyes turned toward the desert, holding in his right hand his pastoral cross, which he seems to be planting in that desert land, toward which went forth all his aspirations as bishop and colonizer.

PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The national campaign involves the creation of an executive organization quite as elaborate and complicated as that required to carry on the most extensive of modern enterprises, the collection and expenditure of a sum of money so large as to require seven figures for its expression, the selection and employment, directly and indirectly, of thousands of workers, the gathering and dissemination of special information on a scale not less extensive than that of a great telegraphic news association, and a hundred other things beside, none of which can safely be intrusted to anyone not an expert in his line. Until 1896 campaign headquarters were invariably established in the city of New York, and according to an unwritten rule they were almost always located in a four-story house on Fifth avenue. That year, however, both parties broke away from the old order of things and housed their chief headquarters in Chicago, though each committee perforce maintained a branch in the metropolis. In Chicago the forces of both committees were quartered in modern office buildings; in New York the Republicans took one whole floor in a handsome white marble structure on Union square, while the Democrats occupied rooms in a well-known hotel not a stone's throw away. The headquarters of a national campaign committee must of necessity be almost as extensive as a big railroad's executive offices, since room must be afforded for half a dozen different sets of employes, besides suites for the various committee officials.

In a sense, the "press bureau" is next in importance to the chairman's headquarters, since through it the reporters and correspondents are furnished with such news as the committee wishes to give out. This bureau, however, is only a small part of the committee's machinery for the distribution of correct political gospel. The bureau's relations are mainly with the country journals, but city papers are sometimes supplied with special information. The amount of plate matter sent out through the country weeklies during the heat of battle is appalling and costs an immense sum of money—in the millions.

It has commonly, though not always, been considered good committee practice to issue translations into almost every European language of nearly all the documents got out in English, and the troubles of the functionary who has to look after this job are simply indescribable. To begin with, he is generally and of necessity ignorant of the languages into which the documents are to be translated, and therefore quite incompetent to judge the ability of those whom he has to engage as translators or their work when it is finished. His only safety lies in engaging two persons familiar with each of the "unknown tongues" into which the matter is to be done. One of these he intrusts with the translation; the other examines it carefully when finished to see that no error has been committed.

Campaign committees are generally extensive patrons of what might by a stretch be termed the arts and also of what its writers fondly believe to be poetry.

Under the head of the arts may be included the millions of candidates' portraits which are put out under committee auspices, also the cartoons, diagrams, maps, badges (pins and buttons), and the like. Opinions differ as to the value of such things in the getting of votes, but committees always spend thousands, sometimes hundreds of thousands in this direction.

Most committees buy campaign songs pretty freely, and it is agreed on all hands that a taking composition set to stirring music is a mighty good investment whether the poetry is very good or not. The poetry sent to the committee—and it arrives at headquarters in wholesale quantities daily—is generally in the form of songs. It need hardly be stated that most of it is written by persons who have never learned to scan their lines and have little idea of rhyme.

Leaving out the chairman and possibly the treasurer, the functionary in charge of the speakers' bureau sees more grief probably than any other committee official, and his department is one of the heavier committee expenses. There are always hundreds of real and alleged orators in touch with the committee. The more effective speakers generally give their services to the party from a sense of loyalty, and because they know that political promotion lies that way; but nearly all draw expense money and the majority, pretty poor speakers as a rule, draw salaries; not large individually, but sometimes almost treasury breaking in the aggregate.

All these departments employ typewriters and stenographers, and clerks and messengers in numbers. Many of the clerks are employed because of political pull, but the stenographers and typewriters get their jobs on their merits. Women typewriters are seldom in evidence at committee headquarters.

Of course money in wads and rolls and bags is needed to keep the committee departments mentioned and others, of which there is no room to speak, in operation, and the real storm center of every national campaign committee is the treasurer's office. How he gets his cash nobody but himself ever knows in full, and there is no doubt at all that he and his collectors—more often than not political stars of the first water—are driven to their wits' ends to gather the needful. Presidential candidates themselves have rarely made heavy contributions, for the reason, among others, that they have rarely been able to do so. It may be mentioned in passing that while presidential candidates seldom visit headquarters, vice-presidential candidates often do.

Quite Thoroughly Inspected.

"I trust William" said the old gentleman in a kindly tone, "that you have not entered into this engagement hastily. I have only met the young lady casually, but I hope you have seen a good deal of her." "Oh, yes, indeed," answered the young man enthusiastically. "Why, I've seen her in the ballroom and on the bathing beach."—Chicago Post.

Protecting the Birds

The League of American Sportsmen rejoices greatly at the passage of the Lacey bird bill, and well it may, for with its 3,000 members it has done yeoman service in the cause. It has written and caused to be written thousands of letters to members of congress in favor of the bill. The president of the league estimates that more than 10,000 letters have been received by members of congress in the last four months. In opposition were the millinery interests and the game trade interests. But as the president, Mr. Shields, says, there will be no more shipping of prairie chickens, labeled poultry; or of venison labeled veal; or of quails labeled eggs; or of bird skins labeled anything else than they are; no more contracting for the slaughter of 20,000 birds in Maryland; no more slaughtering of sea gulls, in violation of the laws, and shipping them, to use President Shield's language, "to millinery bird hogs in New York, no matter how labeled." The provisions of the bill authorize the secretary of agriculture to buy game birds and eggs for propagation in depleted areas. It is believed, for example, that prairie chickens imported from Nebraska, and liberated in the Shenandoah valley in Virginia, will prosper. It prohibits the importation of foreign wild animals or birds, except under permit, there being a special prohibition of the mongoose and flying foxes, and of starlings and other birds, known to be injurious to agriculture and horticulture. If we had had such a law thirty years ago the English sparrow might not be here. The bill prohibits any common carrier from transporting the dead birds or animals, or parts of them, killed in violation of the law. The package containing them must be plainly and clearly marked, both as to the address and as to the nature of the contents. Another section regulates the traffic in foreign game, which is designed to prevent unscrupulous game dealers or hotel men "from maintaining a fence," as President Shields says, for the handling and selling of American game. All game, animals or birds, on arrival in any state or territory for sale or storage, shall be subject to the operation and effect of the laws of the locality, and shall not be exempt by reason of being introduced in original packages. President Shields thinks the passage of this bill with the enforcement that he believes will go with it means a gain of hundreds of millions of dollars to the agricultural interests of the country in the next twenty years. Coincident with work of this kind is that which our Audubon society and which this paper are doing in endeavoring to arouse interest in birds. It is all part of one great movement. It should be pushed in the schools. The pulpit has given it attention. Unquestionably we are coming on a better time, a time when we shall use not abuse our opportunities with reference to helpless animals and when we shall treat them all, domestic and wild, with greater mercy.

Valuable Eclipse Photo:::

One Taken by Prof. Barnard Among Best Ever Secured

Williams Bay, Wis., June 15.—One of the seven plates exposed at the final instant of the total eclipse of the sun by Prof. E. E. Barnard and Mr. Ritchey of the Yerkes observatory has been developed, and in the estimation of the authorities here is among the most valuable photographs of an eclipse ever taken. It is thought that the other six plates will, after development, make valuable revelations about the structure of the corona.

The photograph secured shows a group of three prominences upon the sun's chromosphere, and reveals clearly the nature of their composition. They are composed of gas, and seem to be thrown out from the main body of the chromosphere. Occasionally these prominences rise to a height of from 300,000 to 400,000 miles, but those shown by the photograph do not extend out more than one-tenth of this distance. Structurally they are beautiful.

The entire disc of the moon is shown with the chromosphere about it, like a white ring. The diameter of the moon in this photograph is seven inches. The group of prominences was the largest noticed at any time during the eclipse.

The plate from which the photograph was made was exposed for one second. The time of exposure on the six undeveloped plates varied from one-half to thirty seconds.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. ☞ Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Fost's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY Notice in "Inventive Age" Book "How to obtain Patents" FREE

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY

D. COLLINS

THE

Photograper.

ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED

FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE INSURANCE

DO
YOU
NEED
SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound.....5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.....15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.....20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.

LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn, as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JULY, 4, 1900.

Teaching a Horse Tricks.

You can, with patience, teach your horse politeness—to bow to an audience, to say "No" with more or less decision, to kiss you or even laugh. The animal may be taught to bow by tapping him on the back with a whip. He bends his head in trying to avoid the annoyance. The trainer ceases the tapping, caresses him, then resumes it till he repeats the bow. He is again caressed and presented with a carrot or something of which he is particularly fond. At last it comes about that he "bows" upon any movement of the whip toward his back.

To teach a horse to say "No" a pin is fastened to the butt of the whip. A slight scratch is given to the horse's withers, about where the collar would be. At this he shakes his head and soon learns to shake it whenever he sees the butt of the whip coming near his withers.

The trainer teaches the animal "to kiss" by feeding him with apples from his mouth, gradually lessening the size of the apples till the horse does the trick without any, or he puts salt, of which horses are very fond, on his cheek, and the animal naturally licks it off.

He is taught to laugh by gently forcing the butt of the whip in at the side of his mouth, then prying his mouth open with it. Caresses and carrots follow, till at last the slightest motion of the butt toward his mouth makes him open it. He does not really laugh; he grins.—Good Words.

A Chicago Street Car Episode.

Passengers on an east bound Archer avenue car were thrown into a panic one night by the prospect of a holdup. At the sight of a wild eyed man jerking the bell rope and flourishing a huge revolver timid women sought shelter behind brave men.

Quiet was restored when the real cause of the disturbance was learned. Car 1811 had been about to cross the switch tracks at Ashland avenue when the conductor asked the man for his fare. He took a $5 bill and was about to make change when he saw the warning lights ahead.

"Wait a moment," he said and darted ahead with his lantern.

"Stop the car!" roared the excitable passenger, who saw the conductor and his $5 disappearing down the track. "He's got my money!"

The would be "holdup" man had reached the front door when the car flashed past the conductor, who was waiting for the rear platform. The passenger tried to jump from the car, but found it impossible because of the Archer avenue bridge structure. Then he made a mad dash for the rear door, where the conductor met him with a polite "Don't forget your change, sir."—Chicago Record.

The Nature of Ether.

If any reader is disposed to object to the assumption of a medium behaving in such very different ways with regard to motions of different speeds, it may assist in convincing him that the objection is not a valid one to direct his attention to the similar behavior of such a familiar substance as pitch. In moderately cold weather this material has all the appearance of a solid and will resist a blow or momentary heavy pressure. If, however, a denser body than the pitch, such as a bullet, for example, be laid upon its surface, it will gradually sink until it rests upon whatever is supporting the pitch. If, on the other hand, the pitch is placed upon a less dense body, such as cork, the latter will float up through it in the course of time. The pitch, therefore, exposes great resistance to rapid motion, but the smallest pressure causes it to give way if sufficient time is allowed.—Knowledge.

Mr. Bickerley's Method.

"I have here a complete and concise history of our war in the"—

"Exactly, exactly," hurriedly interrupted Mr. Bickerley. "Just what I have been looking for. What a beautiful edition! By the way, don't forget to go around and see my wife. She wishes one, you know. Never mind the price. Here's $10, and you can keep the change."

The book agent had fallen helpless against the desk. The surprise was too much.

"Here, boy!" called Mr. Bickerley. "Help me carry this fellow out. That's the way to fix 'em."—Indianapolis Sun.

The Polite Professor.

The palm for absentmindedness should be accorded to a learned German professor. One day he noticed his wife placing a bunch of flowers on his desk. "What do they mean?" he asked.

"Why," she exclaimed, "don't you know that this is the anniversary of your marriage?"

"Ah, indeed, is it?" said the professor politely. "Kindly let me know when yours comes around, and I will return your attention in kind."—Collier's Weekly.

Upsetting Arithmetical Tradition.

Jack—How did you come out on that bulldog pup you bought?

Dick—Lost over 100 per cent on the transaction.

Jack—Oh, I guess not! A hundred per cent is all you can possibly lose.

Dick—Think so, do you? Well, I paid $10 for the pup, and then I had to give a boy $1 to take him out and drown him. If that isn't 110 per cent loss, I'd like to know what you call it.—New York Sun.

The Best and Most Honey.

The finest honey in this country is gathered from hives where white clover and basswood are accessible. In quantity, however, it falls behind that made from the goldenrod and buckwheat blossom. From New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont comes the most of the comb honey and from Arizona and California the largest amount of extracted or liquid honey.

ZEB WHITE IN A CAVE

THE POSSUM HUNTER OF TENNESSEE TELLS OF A VISION.

It Was About Coons and Possums by the Hundreds In His Dream, Which, as Events Proved, Was All a Monstrous, Tarnashun Lie.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

"The roof of our cabin had bin leakin fur half a y'ar, I reckon," began old Zeb White as I asked him fur a story, "but as it didn't rain more'n once a week and as the leak didn't do any great hurt I wasn't breakin my back to fix it. The old woman didn't say nuthin till one mawnin she got up with a headache and was techy. Seein how it was, I didn't say nuthin to provoke her, but she burned her hand ag'in the stove, stubbed her toe and finally busted out on me with:

"'Zeb White, of all the shackelty critters on this yere Cumberland mounting nobody kin hold a candle to yo'!'

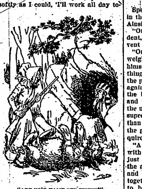
"'What's wrong with me?' says I.

"'Heaps and heaps of things. This old cabin is reg'larly fallin to pieces fur the want of a day's work, but yo' ain't man 'nuff to take hold and fix things.'

"'I'll fix that leak tomorrer.'

"'That's the old song. Yo'll go right at it this minit or thar'll be a row.'

"'Look here, now,' says I, speakin as softly as I could, 'I'll work all day tomorrer, but today I've got to go up to them limestone caves. I had a powerful vishun last night. In my vishun I saw a cave, and that cave was chuck full of coons and possums. I can't say what brung the varmints together, but thar they was, and thar was 500 of 'em.'



"ARE YO'R NAME ZEB WHITE?"

"'I don't believe nuthin of the sort!' says the old woman. 'Yo' are allus hevin vishuns 'bout b'ars and coons and possums, but nobody ever knowed yo' to hev a vishun 'bout choppin wood or hoein corn.'

"She was right 'bout that," said Zeb, with a smile, "but it riled me up jest the same. I answered back purty briskly, and she got mo' sassy, and so we had a row. I got up from the table and took my gun and whistled to the dawg and started off, and the old woman called out to me that she hoped I'd be clawed by wildcats. I wasn't yarnin 'bout that vishun. I was lyin on my back in bed, eyes wide open, when that vishun riz up befo' me, and I seen things so clear that I fell into a tremble. Thar was a cave full of coons and possums, and I went in and slayed 'em by the hundreds and got 'nuff money out of their skins to buy me a mewl. I wanted to fix that leak, of co'se, but it seemed a powerful sin to let that vishun go by. I hadn't got more'n half a mile from the house when the dawg begun to hang back. The critter allus 'peared to take the old woman's side whenever we had a row. When I noticed him hangin back, I yelled out at him and grabbed up a club, but he went out of sight like a rabbit. I wanted that dawg to hold the mouth of the cave while I went in and slaughtered the varmints, and I jest made up my mind to kill him when I got home. Thar was three caves, and it was a six mile trip. The middle cave was the biggest, and when I reached it I looked all around fur tracks. Not one was to be found, but that didn't discourage me. I peered around fur a spell and then went in. It was a narrer openin, and the cave was dark, but I had brung along a taller candle. I lighted the candle and begun to look about me.

"Dod rot it, but what a fule a man kin make of himself when he tries!" exclaimed the old man after a pause. "Anybody of sense knows that coons and possums don't go hangin around caves. That vishun was a tarnashun lie. That cave was as big as half an acre, and I walked all over it and found nuthin. I was mad and kickin myself when I started to go out, but I hadn't gone fur when the roof of the cave 'peared to fall down upon me. Mebbe it was half an hour later when I opened my eyes and found myself on my back, and it seemed as if one side of my head had bin caved in. I found my rifle with the stock broken, and I could smell b'ar all around. It didn't take me long to figger out that a b'ar had follered me into the cave and fetched me a whack 'longside the head. In a minit I heard him sniffin and movin around outside the cave, and as I crawled along I found him on guard. He was lyin down fair in the way, and I was his prisoner. If my rifle had bin all right, I could hev got rid of him in short order, but it couldn't be fired.

"As the b'ar heard me movin up he showed his teeth and growled in a way to make my h'ar stand up. He didn't come in after me, but it was plain 'nuff that he wasn't goin to let me out. I thought it was best to keep still fur awhile and see if he wouldn't go away, and, d'yo' know, suh, to the best of my belief that critter went right to sleep. I couldn't git out without steppin over him, and it was too risky to try that

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

A Painter in a Swamp.

Wishing to make a study of a portion of the swamp near El Akewa, in Egypt, I set up my easel on the edge of a pool where the ground seemed a little firmer than the rest. Quickly becoming engrossed in my work, I did not notice that I was slowly sinking until I found that my sketching stool had nearly disappeared and my legs were imbedded in the mud almost up to my knees. With the breaking of the surface crust the black slime gave out most horrible odors, and small stinging flies, liberated from the earth, quickly covered me, crawling up my legs and arms, while the mosquitoes, combining in the attack, eventually drove me from my half finished work.

Though really quite clear, the water was so alive with mosquito grubs as to appear almost opaque. By thousands every moment the grubs would come to the surface, either crawling up the rushes or floating, and the outer shells soon cracking in the sun left the little insects at liberty. A few seconds sufficed to dry their wings and give them life and strength, and then with hum and buzz they joined their brothers in the air, hovering in thousands like a cloud of black smoke over the stagnant pond from which they sprang. Then I was discovered—a rare bonne bouche for those parts—and a rapid retreat became imperative.—R. Talbot Kelly in Century.

The Irony of Fate.

Speaking of the queer flukes of luck in the goldfields of Alaska, a writer in Ainslee's Magazine says:

"Often after the 'pile' is made accident, disease or death steps in to prevent its legitimate enjoyment.

"One man dropped dead when at the weighing of the first clean up he found himself a rich man. There was something wrong with his heart. He had the physical strength to make the fight against bad food and water, to endure the back breaking toil of developing and working out and all the strain of the uncertainty that went before. The supreme moment of success was more than he could stand, and the use of the gold passed from him with its acquirement.

"A certain James Meade lay down with typhoid fever in an outlying camp just as he was starting for home with the accumulations of the year, and he and his bag of dust entered Dawson together on a litter. It took six men to bring him in—alternating four to carry and two to rest—and he paid each man $15 a day. Once in Dawson Meade seemed to grow better, and when his sailing day came he walked to the boat. He reached the wharf and fell dead as he was about to go aboard."

Sarcasm From the Pulpit.

"Bruddren and sistahs," sternly said good old Parson Woollmon after the collection had been taken up upon a recent Sabbath morning, "before the hat was done parsed I expounded the request dat de congregation contribute accawdin to deir means, and I sho expectorated dat yo' all would chip in magnanimously. But now, upon examinin de collection, I finds that de concocted amount contributed by de whole posso ob yo' am only the significant and pusillanimous sum of sixty-free cents. And at dis junction dar ain't no 'casion for yo' all to look at Brudder Slewfoot, what done circumambulated de hat around, in no such auspicious manner, for, in de fust place, Brudder Slewfoot ain't dat kind of a man, and, in the second place, I done watched him like a hawk all de time muhself. No, sixty-free cents was all dat was flung in, and I dess wants to say dat, in my humble opinion, instead ob contributin accawdin to yo' means, yo' all contributed accawdin to yo' meanness. De choir will now favor us wid deir reg'lar melodiousness."—Harper's Bazar.

A Twelve Hour Dinner.

They dined well, if not wisely, in the old days described by Sir Algernon West in his "Recollections." He says:

"Thanks to the introduction of smoking after dinner, wine drinking is now over. What it was in old days appears most incredible. The late Lord Clanwilliam told me of one occasion when he had dined at a friend's villa near Putney. The dinner was extraordinarily late for those days—at 8 o'clock.

"When they at last rose from the table and went up to their rooms, Lord Clanwilliam flung open his window and saw the haymakers coming into the field.

"'I wonder,' he thought, 'what hour they begin work.' And on consulting his watch he found it was 8:30—the haymakers were returning to work from their breakfast."—New York World.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota:

The undersigned, J. B. Senate, hereby make application for a license to be granted to him to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot fourteen (14) of block thirty-nine (39) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having three outside entrances, one in front one in side and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 26th day of June 1900.
J. B. SENATE.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Monday the 16th day of July 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

NOTICE.

Department of the Interior,
United States Land Office,
Crookston, Minnesota.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office under authority in him vested by section 2455 U. S. R. S., as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895 (28 Stat., 687), we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 20th day of July 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., the following tract of land, to-wit:

SE¼ NW¼ Sec. 1, T. 151 N., R. 43 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated June 5th 1900.
SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.
Mscl. App. 298—3161
46-51

UNCLE SAM Is not In the Shoe Business, And Neither Am I, But I can Interest You in CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

J. B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG, Manufacturer.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

FARMS 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS First Mortgage Farm Loans ☞ A Specialty. ☜

ABSTRACTS furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON, Official Abstracter.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

Barber Shop

—AND—

BATH ROOMS.

—0—

Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Razors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

Uncle Sam's Monogram Whiskey

STANDS GUARD against attacks upon health. It is used in leading hospitals and recommended by doctors everywhere as a pure, worthy stimulant.

Druggists and Dealers Sell it.

Sold by GEO. BENZ & SONS, ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

UNCLE SAM'S MONOGRAM WHISKEY
GEO. BENZ & SONS

Order For Hearing Proof of Will.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Red Lake. } ss. In Probate Court. Special Term, June 5th A. D. 1900.

In the matter of the estate of John Sorsoleil, deceased.

Whereas an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last Will and Testament of John Sorsoleil, deceased, late of said county has been delivered to this court; and

Whereas, Mary Sorsoleil has filed therewith her petition, representing among other things that said John Sorsoleil died in said county, on the 12th day of January A. D., 1900, testate, and that said petitioner is the sole Executrix named in said last Will and Testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to her issued thereon;

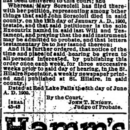
And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the St. Hilaire Spectator, a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire, in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 5th day of June A. D. 1900.

By the Court,
[SEAL] JOHN T. KNIGHT,
45-48 Judge of Probate.

Hamm's St. Paul Beer

There's Honest Blood, Bone and Sinew in this Strength-ening brew!



Agents every-where

Theo. Hamm Brewing Company. Tel. 972 St. Paul, Minn.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

For Fine Goods
Good Goods
New Goods
Up to Date Goods

Visit Us as we are the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents Furnishing House in the City.

GREAT WESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed. Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE MINNESOTA.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route

Best Line to Chicago and St. Louis

"The Limited," the finest train in the world, leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m., St. Paul 8:05 p. m., every day. Electric lighted, steam heated, has compartment and standard sleepers, reclining chair cars, coaches, and dining car on the cafe plan. "The Scenic Express" leaves Minneapolis 7:10 a. m. St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday. Ask your home agent for tickets via this line.

P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. Agent, CHICAGO, ILL.

GEO. P. LYMAM, Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent ST. PAUL, MINN.

TIME AND SPACE

are practically annihilated by the ocean cables and land telegraph systems which now belt the circumference of Old Earth in so many different directions. "Foreign parts" are no longer foreign in the old meaning of the term. Europe, Africa, Asia, are "next door" to us. What happens there to-day we know to-morrow—if we read THE CHICAGO RECORD, whose Special Cable Correspondents are located in every important city in the world outside of the United States. No other American newspaper ever attempted so extensive a service; and it is supplemented by the regular foreign news service of The Associated Press. For accurate intelligence of the stirring events which are shaking the nations—of wars and rumors of wars—of the threatening dissolution of old governments and the establishment of new—of the onward sweep of the race in all parts of the world—the one medium of the most satisfactory information is the enterprising, "up-to-date" American newspaper, THE CHICAGO RECORD.

FREE A large map of the world on Mercator's Projection, about 22x16 inches in size, beautifully printed in colors, with a large-scale map of Europe on the reverse side, will be mailed to any address free of charge on receipt of request accompanied by two 2-cent stamps to cover postage and wrapping. The maps illustrate clearly how comprehensively the special cable service of THE CHICAGO RECORD covers the entire civilized world. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.

Cigars.

BRINK BROTHERS

DEALERS IN

Wines & Liquors

Minneapolis Beer.

Corner Broadway and 3rd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES!

Repairing a Specialty.

ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

NEW MEAT MARKET.

L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

It's Time

Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. ST. HILAIRE LODGE No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
J. B. O'BRIEN, N. G.
A. F. LANG, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. JACKSON, V. C.
JAS. M. HALL, Clerk.

R. N. G.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
MRS. W. A. ARTHUR, Oracle.
MRS. L. LACOURSIERE, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant
T. J. Thorkelson
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M.D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Ferusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

The Ideal Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS.
PROMPT SERVICE.
OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd STORE
(SECOND HAND STORE.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA

New Restaurant
[Brink Bros. Corner Building.]
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.

If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
C. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the SPECTATOR. Official county and village paper.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	67½	Oats	30
Wheat No. 2	65½	Barley	26
Wheat No. 3	61½	Flax	156
Eggs (per doz)	8	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

Pay your dog tax.

The weeds stand the drouth well.

O. W. Brink commenced haying last week.

Monday was license day—from liquor to dog.

E. M. Hoff made a trip to Crookston Friday.

Last winter was a hard one on the clover.

A heavy shower of rain fell Saturday night.

Andy Larson will celebrate the 4th in Crookston.

From day to day the crop prospects look brighter.

Dr. Francis was down from Thief River Friday last.

Geo. Murch spent Sunday with his family at Crookston.

H. Dickenson and wife will spend the 4th at Crookston.

Joe. Maxfield received his new chainless bicycle last week.

E. J. Brink has been initiated into the order of Sons of Rest.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

K. O. Gigstad made a business trip to the county seat Monday.

A. H. Weagant made a business trip to Thief River Falls Monday.

C. Breinmen went to Minneapolis to spend the 4th with his family.

The nickle-in-the-slot machines have seen their finish in St. Hilaire.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

E. J. Brink made a flying trip to Thief River the first of the week.

L. R. Bramsness has sold his prairie farm getting $1,600 for the same.

J. B. Senate and Chas. Hughes made a trip to the upper Falls Sunday.

John Cristie spent Sunday out on his farm in the town of Equality.

Erick Hanson took the initiatory degree in the I. O. O. F. last Thursday.

N. J. Nereson, the Garnes photographer was in the village last Saturday.

Mrs. W. Peterson returned Monday from a short visit with relatives near Wylie.

The woodcock and upland plover season opens to-day and closes the 31st day of October.

Be on your guard to-day for fires—a fire-cracker thrown here and there is liable to start one.

Marcus Johnson of St. Paul was here the first of the week looking over his business interests.

Fred Cummings drove to High Landing last week with a load of provisions for the driving crew.

If the celebration is a fizzle—blame no one but yourselves for waking up at the eleventh hour.

The Odd Fellows will install officers tomorrow evening. All members are requested to be present.

Show your appreciation to the cornet band by attending their dance at the Hotel Markham to-night.

Robert Fritz, the sawyer, left Saturday for Duluth to spend a few days with relatives and friends.

The Mission Friends sewing society will meet tomorrow, July 5th, at Rev. J. Olson's. All are welcome.

Master Elmer Dajnard arrived from Fargo, N. D., Monday on a visit to his grandmother, Mrs. P. S. Stranahan.

W. A. Case was one of the delegates from here that went to St. Paul last week to help nominate a state ticket.

Messrs. Meehan, Lee and Wilmes were a few of the democrats that were down from Thief River Falls Monday.

Mr. O. Clifgard who recently purchased lots on Water street has the material on the ground to erect a new residence.

Crops in this vicinity are looking a great deal better the past week and the chances of a half crop look promising.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

A cup of milk added to the water with which an oilcloth or oiled floor is to be washed gives them a luster like new.

The St. Hilaire Lumber Company will have their drive of fifteen million feet of logs as far as Thief River this week.

The mill company sent all their teams and men up river Monday for the purpose of clearing the river of "dead heads."

Some of the people woke up Saturday June 30th and decided that they would celebrate the Fourth at home—in St. Hilaire.

C. G. Rapp and D. Patterson returned Friday from St. Paul where they had been attending the republican state convention.

The application of a bit of soap on the point of a lead pencil to a creaky hinge will cure its stiffness and silence its complaints.

H. M. Olson left yesterday for his homestead near Elm Lake where he will remain the balance of the summer making improvements.

A dozen or more of the mill boys went to Thief River Falls Monday to inspect the mill at that place and greet old time acquaintances.

The chainless bicycle displayed in the show window of Weagant's hardware store is going to be given away Saturday night July 7th.

The mill has been shut down since Saturday in order that the boys be allowed to celebrate the Fourth. Some leaving for home Monday.

Ink spots can frequently be removed from white fabrice by rubbing common tallow on them, put aside for a day or two, and then wash as usual.

A piece of lemon bound on a corn, changes for a fresh piece every day for three days, is said to losen the corn so that it may easily be removed.

There will be a dance at Hotel Markham Wednesday evening July 4th under the auspices of the St. Hilaire Cornet Band. All are cordially invited to attend.

The lumber is on the ground for the new Catholic church and tomorrow a large force of men under the supervision of I. Dahleen will commence erecting the same.

There are a few more dogs in town that should wear muzzels so as to deep them from barking the whole night long. Leave your order with A. H. Weagant for a muzzle.

The Michigan City (N. D.) Independent says it's so doggoned dry in the country that the snakes are coming to town for a friendly shade and something to moisten their parched tongues.

Don't Drink Ice-Cold Water.

Ice-cold water is not so good as iced water—that is, water cooled by ice without coming in contact with it. The less of either the better. It is an excellent practice to drink water—an abundance of it—just before retiring, also the first thing in the morning. It is a cleanser of the system, and is a good diuretic.

Will some who is qualified, stand up and tell the people why it is necessary to maintain 11,000 American soldiers in Cuba at the cost of over $16,000,000 per year? Governon General Wood has declared it to be unnesecsary. The island is pacified. Everything goes smoothly, much more so than it does in St. Louis or San Francisco.—Crookston Times.

Wylie correspondent in the Crookston Times:—The town had a narrow escape from fire Monday morning: some miscreant had ignited O. F. Romsos store, first saturating the wall with kerosene and then applied the torch just outside the oil magazine but as there was no wind flames confined themselver to a narrow strip up the wall and upper roof. By vigorous work of the bucket brigade the flames were soon extinguished. Loss about $200 partly covered by insurance.

Mrs. A. R. Jones and children came up from Crookston yesterday.

During the month of May 177 deaths of members were reported to the head clerk of the Modern Woodmen society, amounting in the aggregate to $335,000, or an average mortuary liability of $10,806.45 per day for the month. Not since the month of November, 1899, has the Woodmen society had such a light death rate. "So far during June the deaths reported would indicate that the mortality will be lighter than in May," says Head Clerk Hawes, "a fact which will doubtless please your many Woodmen readers."

The Crookston Times says: Records are continually being broken this year, and to-day marks the lowest stage of water in the Red Lake river ever seen by but few of the earliest comers to this county. Below the Sampson bridge dry land extended from the opposite bank to within 20 feet of the bank below Morrissey's foundry, and a ripple below that can be forded without going over the shoe top. The waste pipe from the reservoir in the new water works building, which is also used as an emergency suction pipe, has been once lowered since it was originally laid, and the end is now entirely out of water. If the water gets much lower the river bed will have to be soaked to keep from cracking.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, July 23rd and 24th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 23th and 24th.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

A New Swindle.

A new and novel way of swindling has recently come to light, and as the game is being worked in Minnesota it may be well to expose the matter here and place our readers on their guard. A handsomely dressed man calls on the farmer and in the course of conversation remarks what a nice farm he has and the convenience of the arrangement of the buildings. Before he leaves he offers a good price for the land and pays a good round sum down to bind the bargain, taking the farmers receipt therefore. Perhaps the sum down is $300. The farmer is elated over his bargain and begins to figure on an easy life. A few weeks later another stranger accompanied by his wife stops at the farm for dinner. The stranger's wife takes a great deal of interest in the place and before she leaves declares they must own the place. They offer them say $1,000 better than the other fellow offered and the farmer begins to think the matter over and at once proceeds to find the first buyer and offers to return his $300 bonds and in addition thereto to pay him $500 to be relieved from the bargain. The second buyer is then found and a deal made with a payment of $100 down. The party never returns to complete the bargain, and you can see that the farmer is out just $400.

—Screen doors and windows made to order at I. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

The Onion as a Medicine.

Onions are a kind of all-round good medicine. A whole onion eaten at bedtime, will by the next morning, break the severest cold. Onions make a good plaster to remove inflammation, and hoarseness. If an onion is mashed so as to secure all the juice in it it will produce a remarkable smelling substance that will quiet the most nervous person. The strength of it inhaled for a few moments will dull the sense of smell and weaken the nerves until sleep is produced from sheer exhaustion. It all comes from one property possessed by the onion, and that is a form of opium.—Tennessee Agricultural.

Two parties from Minto, N. Dak., were here yesterday looking over the country for hay lands.

Council Proceedings.

Special meeting of the village council Friday evening June 29th 1900 as per notice of village recorder.

Members present, Rapp, Thorkelson, Weagant and Johnson.

Meeting called to order by Pres Rapp.

On motion P. G. Paradis, M. E. Bjerk Markham Hotel Co., and Clara Peterson were each granted a license to sell intoxicating liquors in said village for a period of one year commencing on the 2nd day of July 1900, after each having paid the sum of $250.00 to School Dist. No. 102 and $250.00 to the village treasurer of the village of St. Hilaire and each giving a bond to be approved by the president of the village council of said village.

On motion meeting adjourned.

C. G. RAPP, Pres.
J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

Regular meeting of the village council Monday evening July 2nd 1900 at the village hall, members present Rapp, Patterson Thorkelson and Johnson. Meeting called to order by Pres. Rapp. On motion the minutes of the last regular and special meetings were read and accepted:

On motion Clara Peterson was granted a pool table license for one pool table for the ensuing year at $5.00.

On motion C. G. Johnson was granted a pool table license for three pool tables for the ensuing year at $5.00 for each table.

On motion D. Patterson was granted a dray license for one wagon at $10.00 for the ensuing year.

On motion A. C. Adams was granted a dray license for two wagons at $10.00 each for the ensuing year.

On motion the following bills were allowed:

J L Johnson recorder salary etc.	$29 50
D Patterson team work	138 95
John Carlson shoveling sand	1 12
A C Adams work as per bill	28 19
" "	16 80
C A Chelin "	2 12
H Johnson 1 mo marshal salary	40 00
K O Gigstad assessing village	45 00
" grading Wall street	15 00
St. Hilaire Spectator publishing	14 20
Clarence Ford work on grade	12 00
Joel Owens work as per bill	21 69
Mike Olson running grader	12 25
Selvan Hall shoveling sand	3 56
Jay Roush work on grader etc.	25 99
O H Peters cleaning well	75
Wm Eickhoff work on muskeg	6 37
Aimer & Heckman blacksmithing	5 90
C Heilberg work as per bill	14 62
S Harris street work	48 00
Standard Oil Co., gasoline	8 49
St. Hilaire Lumber Co., lumber	33 73

On motion the sidewalk petition of A. Hall et al was granted and the street commissioner was instructed to order the same built.

On motion the report of the village marshal was accepted as read.

On motion the report of the street commissioner was accepted as read.

On motion the street commissioner assisted by the village marshal was instructed to collect all outstanding poll tax during the ensuing month.

On motion meeting adjourned.

Attest:— C. G. RAPP, President.
J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

Do Not Sacrifice Your Live Stock Now.

Wm. M. Liggett, director of the agricultural experiment station sends out the following bulletin: "Many farmers, alarmed at the shortage of pasturage, as well as oat and hay crops, are already selling their cattle. The only purchasers at a low price for speculation, are dealers. In recent years much has been done to stimulate the growth of live stock in Minnesota, especially the cattle industry. These cattle, and particularly the females, are needed on the farm. If sold now, how are they to be replaced? Fat stock of all kinds is selling at good prices in the market. While the drouth in the northwest is serious, do not overlook the fact that Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and other states have an abundance of food of all kinds, and the farmers in these states will be willing to pay good prices for stockers in the autumn months. Keep your growing stock and do everything possible to provide food for it, which may be grown if rain comes soon. Plant fodder corn as bulletin No. 10 directs, also other pasturage and forage foods. Oats and barley mixed, or oats alone, sown as late as the first week in July, will furnish a large amount of pasture. Winter rye sown at any time between now and the first of September will also furnish much pasture. That sown in August may also be grazed the following spring. A full crop of rape may be grown sown as late as the middle of July. Rape well grown furnishes an enormous amount of pasture. Rape should be sown with a drill if one suitable can be had, but it may also be sown broadcast, using four or five pounds of seed per acre, and covered with a harrow. Use the Dwarf Essex variety. If no rain falls within a reasonable time and food cannot be grown and it becomes necessary to sell much of the stock, it should not be sold at a sacrifice, but there should be some intelligent effort made by the farmers to ship this stock to the best available market, keeping the choice females.

J. Q. Adams, the Red Lake Falls jeweler and optician came up Monday to repair a few time pieces.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, July 23rd and 24th.

"We have sold many different cough remedies, but none has given better satisfaction than Chamberlain's," says Mr. Charles Holzhauer, Druggist, Newark, N. J. "It is perfectly safe and can be relied upon in all cases of coughs, colds or hoarseness. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

The Twin-Cities Greatest Daily.

Among the exchanges which come to our editorial table none takes the place of The Minneapolis Tribune. It is without question the representative daily of the Northwest. Not alone is it the paper of largest known circulation west of Chicago, but its standing among the best class of readers—the actual leaders of thought and sentiment throughout the Northwest is absolutely unique.

The Tribune is, first of all, a republican newspaper. It is not a party organ or the instrument of any person or clique. There is no attempt to manufacture sentiment through its columns for one man or against another. At the same time its editorial page presents a character for strength and virility seldom found.

In so far as an outsider can judge, it seems to be the belief of the management of The Tribune that while the republican party, and republicans generally, may not always be right, they are so much more likely to be right than their Populistic and Democratic opponents that the rule may as well be made general and the Republican cause supported every time.

But The Tribune is valued for other reasons, even more than because it is practically the only consistent Republican daily in the Twin Cities. The Tribune is primarily a newspaper. It is this quality which gives it the large circulation and the influence among the newspaper readers. The foreign war service, including the summary from London cabled every day, has enabled Tribune readers to get the drift of the Boer-English war up to the very hour of going to press. So with the Philippine war news, general national politics from Washington and the news of the Northwest. All the news is well edited, making it easy to gather from a hasty glance at The Tribune the day's doings of the world.

The Sunday Tribune is a veritable library volume each week. It is a long Sunday's job to read it through, but its variety is so great and its interesting composition of such a character that every member of the family wants a turn at what is justly calls "The Twin City's Greatest Daily."

Spent a Good Farm Doctoring.

Mr. A. N. Noell of Asherville, Kansas says he spent a good farm doctoring himself for chronic diarrhoea but got no relief and was afraid that he must die. He chanced to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was permanently cured by it. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly
PROF. J. Q. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and Optician.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

Her Heart's Secret

Or Under a Spell.

By Jean Warner.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Herbert's Revenge.

Like one not yet awakened from a beauteous dream, Herbert watched the little boat floating back to the island villa, and then, slowly retracing his steps to the village inn, he strove to realize what had passed.

Sybil! Aye, it was no delusive vision, but Sybil's self who had spoken to him of love! And Sybil was Mademoiselle Laponte!

Ah, he had found the missing clue at last. The sick girl on board the Ocean Queen, the midnight songstress and the midnight vision, the dark-veiled nurse of Le Providence, and the water-nymph of the Parisian ball room, were all the same living, loving Sybil—no alluring phantom, but a sorrowing woman, whose web of fate, as she herself had said was too darkly and strangely woven for his eye to pierce.

And she loved him, suffered with him, mourned for him, even as he had mourned for her.

Ah, there was hope and happiness in the thought! This world cannot be utterly darkened, when Love beams upon it in his perfect light!

Her father—this dark-browed man, who had assaulted him on his own estate—it was her father who stood between them. It must be her father's shadow, then, that lay so mysteriously on her life. Some outlawed desperado, perhaps, whom she feared to name—some adventurer, who had made a fortune by lawless deeds and was compelled to fly his native land to enjoy his ill-gotten gold. Perhaps, even—and, though Herbert shrunk from the thought, it seemed to explain much of the mystery that enshrouded Sybil's life—perhaps some criminal, hiding from offended justice!

Was it strange that Sybil should deny his suit, was it strange that one so delicate and gentle shrank from unveiling, even to a lover's eye, the mystery of a father's crimes?

Ah, yes; as Herbert thought of the wild threats of the ruffian who had met him in Clive Woods ,and the fierce anger of the masked monk in Madam la Marquise's ball room, he became more and more satisfied that his surmises were correct—that Sybil Wraye was the daughter of one who had disgraced his children and dishonored his name—of one to whom she clung in pity and tenderness, but also in shame and sorrow; and never, until the shadow was removed from her path, could he hope to win her—never while that father lived, would she consent to link her fate with that of the proud and honored Clives.

And with the picture of his pure and beautiful Sybil floating before his eyes—with the echo of her tender though hopeless words still sounding in his ears—it was no wonder that Herbert felt a fierce indignation swelling in his breast against the man whose shadow lay across the sunshine of his love—against the father who had blighted the happiness of his child.

Absorbed in thoughts like these, Herbert walked on slowly, and it was long past midnight when he arrived at the little inn. Yet, late as was the hour, the place seemed astir with some unusual excitement.

Lights twinkled in all the windows; voices could be heard raised in loud discussion in the little bar room; and Dame Marguerite, whom he had left nodding sleepily over her knitting, was a very wide-awake and angry little woman, judging from the vituperative remarks that reached the ears of her guest.

"Coward, idiot ,knave and fool that thou art! to come back to St. Gothard with a story like that on your lying tongue—you, that I, too, recommended to monsieur as faithful and trustworthy! What will the mademoiselle say to me, in her anguish, in her despair? What will the world say of you, the guide, the traitor, who could leave his master and friend to perish?—knave, coward, villain that thou art!"

"Scold, then, if thou wilt, good dame," was the gruff rejoinder. "A guide's life is as dear to him as a gentleman's. Not that Jean Baptiste Fevre would turn his back on duty—none can say that of him Dame Marguerite, and he has been gide at Mount Gothard for well-nigh a score of years."

"I say nothing of the past!" exclaimed the dame, shrilly. "It has been good enough—too good for it made me trust your courage, your honor, your truth. I never thought Jean Baptiste Fevre would turn his cowardly back upon the master who had put his life in his hands, and leave him to perish in the mountain snows."

"Sacre blue! Have I not told you that he sent me for help?" answered the man, whose sluggish nature seemed to be at last stirred to impatience. "Have I not told you that his foot was crushed, and he could not walk? Have I not told you that, although I might lift weights against him in the canton, not even Jean Baptiste Fevre could carry like an infant a form such as Col. Laponte? I came for help—have I not told you—I came for help."

"Hark!" said the dame, in a thrilling whisper, as a dull, booming sound echoed in the distance. "You came for help, you say? Jean Baptiste, what man will take his life in his hands and brave the Pass, with that noise in his ears? No, no, it is too late—too late! Alas for poor monsieur—it is too late!"

"What is too late?" asked Herbert, entering. "What has happened, madam?"

"Ah, woe, misery, desolation, Monsieur Clive!" cried the good dame, wringing her hands. "This knave, this fool, this idiot here, who has been guide in St. Gothard for twenty years, has turned coward, traitor, Judas, at last! He has betrayed the master who trusted him; he has turned his back on brave Monsieur Colonel Laponte, and left him to perish in the snow!"

"If the gentleman will listen to me," continued Jean Baptiste, his swarthy cheek flushing, "I will prove to him that I am no coward. I will tell him how monsieur slipped and sprained his leg, so that he could no longer walk; I will tell him how the dark night was coming on, and there was no one near to aid, for there have been avalanches of late that have frightened the herdsmen from the mountains, and I came quickly back to St. Gothard for help."

"Help! help!" repeated the dame, who, with the unreasoning anger of a warm-hearted woman, could not be soothed. "What help will avail poor Monsieur Laponte now? What help will avail poor mademoiselle, who loved her father as the apple of her eye? Ah, they were everywhere together—at the church, and in the groves and on the lake—poor mademoiselle, who is even now, doubtless waiting and watching for the father who will never come!"

Her father—Sybil's father—in deadly peril? The father whose life was the one dark shadow on his pathway, alone and helpless in that vast wilderness of ice and snow?

A thousand conflicting emotions seemed surging like the waves of a tempestuous sea in Herbert's breast, as he turned to the guide and asked him:

"You came for help, you say; then why do you not procure it? Every moment must be precious."

"I can't find a man willing to cross the Pass to-night," was the gruff answer. "All the best men of St. Gothard's have gone down to the Christmas tide games. Only the old men and the cowards are left behind. They do not like the music of the snows."

As he spoke, the dull thunder of the avalanche seemed to give awful meaning to his words.

"Sybil's father—the father whom she loved!" the words kept echoing and re-echoing in Herbert's ears—"Sybil's father in danger of a frightful death!"

Ah, it needed not even this echo to arouse the generous soul of Herbert. A fellow-creature was in peril, and he must aid him—a helpless being needed the assistance that he could and must bestow.

"I will go with you," he said, turning to the guide. "I am young and strong, and do not fear the terrors of the mountain pass. Let us start at once, for every moment seems an hour to the wounded, helpless man."

In vain the dame wept and protested against the departure of her guest—in vain she warned him of the fearful avalanches that only a few weeks before had spread ruin and devastation over an entire hamlet. Herbert was not to be turned from his purpose now, and in less than an hour from his separation from Sybil, he was setting out, armed with a stout Alpenstock, and in company with the sturdy though much-abused Jean Baptiste, to save her father and his enemy from impending death.

"And there is no message the brave monsieur would leave?" said the tearful dame, following him to the door.

"None," replied Herbert, cheerfully. "Only—only," he hesitated, "if—if I should not return, let Mademoiselle Laponte know that I went as—her knight, to my death."

As they left the village, Jean Baptiste cast a practical eye around him. The night was still clear, but a faint haze was gathering around the moon. The guide's brow darkened at the sight.

"Monsieur should know what risk he runs," he said, gravely. "There is a storm coming with the coming day—a storm that will take brave hearts and strong limbs to meet."

"We have both," was the terse answer, "therefore, we should not fear. Let us make haste while we can."

They hurried on. Soon the little hamlet was far behind them—an oasis scarcely visible in the waste of ice and snow. All was white, bare, frowning and desolate.

Herbert seemed to have left the beautiful dreamland of hope and love forever, and to be climbing the rugged heights of the frowning future alone.

Then the tempest burst upon them—the white, driving snow, that blinded, dazzled and bewildered them—the tempest that grew fiercer and wilder, until the dull, leaden sky above them was totally obscured, and Herbert could only grasp the stick the guide held out to him, and grope through clouds of falling snow and cutting sleet, knowing not where he trod.

Still Jean Baptiste kept on, silently, sturdily led, it seemed, more by dumb instinct than human intelligence; picking his way along precipices, over chasms, sure-footed, patient and uncomplaining, as some strong, well-trained beast who follows the same track without a word or sign to guide.

Thrice the thunder of the avalanche, rolling from the neighboring peaks, had resounded with awful majesty through the silent wastes they trod. Thrice Jean Baptiste had paused, bent his head and crossed himself in devout thanksgiving as the danger passed.

At last the guide stopped and turned to Herbert.

"It was there I left him," he said, pointing to a huge black rock, that lifted itself from the snows around like some grim monster watching o'er the scene—"just there on the sheltered side. Ah, monsieur, our labor, perhaps our lives, have been given in vain—he is buried beneath the snows."

"Where?" said Herbert, eagerly. "Do not give up hope so soon, man. After what you have done to-day we, must make one more struggle for a human life. There may be hope yet—let us search."

"Help, help!" Was it a sigh of the wind or a human cry, that echoed through the snow? "Help, help! in God's name!"

"Hurrah, hurrah!" The glad cheer of that sound was never forgotten by the well-nigh despairing one it reached. The strong young voice seemed to shout the clear note of hope. "Hurrah, he lives! One more cry, my friend, and we'll find you. Help, and sturdy help, is at hand. Once more!"

"Here, here!" cried the faint voice at the right of the rock. "I am well-nigh perished. Who is it that has come to aid me? Who are the brave men who have dared a storm like this to save a friendless man?"

"'Tis I, monsieur," said the guide, as he and Herbert lifted the giant form of Col. Laponte from its recumbent position—"I, Jean Baptiste Fevre, your faithful servant, and this brave young monsieur, who so kindly gave me his."

"Herbert Clive!" As the helpless man was lifted in those strong young arms his dark eyes fell full upon his savior's face. "Herbert Clive!" he repeated, hoarsely. "You—you! What avenging fate has sent you here?"

"I came to save your life," was the quiet reply—"a life which is dear to one who is dearer than life to me."

"And you have periled your life for me—for me?" repeated the helpless man, in a husky whisper. "For me, the sworn and eternal enemy of you and yours?"

"Of my own will I have made no man my enemy," answered Herbert, gravely. "What I have done for you I would have done for any fellow creature in peril. This faithful fellow beside me has the only claim on your gratitude. He knew the dangers of the search; I did not."

"I told monsieur," said the honest Jean, who felt this an imputation on his fair dealing—"I told monsieur the risk, and he took it all. We cannot go back this evening, but there is a hut a mile away from here, to which we can carry Monsieur Laponte till the worst of the storm is passed."

"Oh, see, he has fainted! Thank the good God, we came not a moment too soon!"

Not a moment, for the powerful man lay in their strong, brave arms, passive and helpless as a child. Thus they carried him, painfully and perilously, through the driving snows, until the deserted hut was reached; and through the long, dreary hours of the stormy night that followed, while the winds roared wildly through the mountain pass, and the dull thunder of the avalanche resounded ominously around them, they watched beside the couch of straw where the dark-browed man lay motionless and silent—buried, so it seemed, in a heavy stupor from which he could not awake.

What he saw, what he heard, what he thought and felt, in that seeming trance, no mortal ever knew. Once only he started up wildly, and, as Herbert fancied, whispered hoarsely his father's name—the name of "Robert Clive!"

By the morning the storm was over; the sun rose in unclouded majesty over the snow-clad heights, and a party of stout young men from the neighboring valley came up to find the brave rescuers, whose story had reached fitting ears at last.

The still unconscious patient was borne home on a litter, and with the bright sunlight gilding the dazzling peaks around, and the blue of an Alpine sky above—with the Christmas carols of the gay young mountaineers echoing from the icy crags, and the sweet peace that follows a noble deed filling his breast, Herbert found no terrors in his second journey through the mountain pass.

There seemed a strange stillness in the little village as he reached it—a sort of Sabbath hush in the air. Good Dame Marguerite forgot her matronly propriety, and fairly hugged the returning wanderer as he crossed the threshold.

"Ah, Monsieur Clive, Monsieur Clive! to think my sharp tongue should have sent you and poor Jean Baptiste on such a search! Ah, mademoiselle heard of it, you may be sure! Poor mademoiselle, who is nearly wild with terror and grief. Ah, ah, I forgot the letter monsieur was waiting for is here. Ah, mon Dieu, how black and sad it looks!" And Dame Marguerite turned the black-sealed envelope over in her hand. "I trust it has no sad news from monsieur's home."

Herbert broke the seal with trembling hands; then sunk, with a low moan, into the seat behind him. His father was dead—the master of Clive Towers was peremptorily summoned home!

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Home Again.

On the wings of steam Herbert hurried homeward. Anguish at his loss was deepened by the sting of remorse at his long absence and seeming neglect.

It had been months since he had received tidings from home. The letter containing the sad news of his father's decease was already several weeks old.

Poor Fannie! Who had sustained her during this terrible bereavement? Who had taken a brother's place at her side?

For the moment, even Sybil's image faded from his mind before the picture his imagination drew of loving, sunny-hearted Fannie in her anguish and despair.

It was a dull evening in February when he jumped from the cars at the little station near Clive Towers, and, satchel in hand, ascended the steep acclivity that led from the river side to his home.

His home, indeed, though the reflection brought him no thrill of triumph. He was the master of Clive Towers now. The thought gave him only pain.

All nature seemed in accordance with his saddened mood. There was no life, no glow, no glitter, either on earth or sky. All was sere, brown and dead. Involuntarily, the poet's description of a similar scene recurred to him:

> "The day is ending,
> The night descending,
> The marsh is frozen—
> The river dead!
> Through clouds, like ashes,
> The red sun flashes
> On village windows,
> That glimmer red!"

The charm that had hung over hill, and vale, and river, in the sunny summer time, had gone. All was cold, and gray, and hopeless, as if there would be no more spring. He reached the house—the stately mansion his father had reared with so much pride, and whose massive grandeur seemed so characteristic of the stern, strong man. How dark and gloomy it looked now! The windows all were closed, the porches silent and deserted, the fountains silenced, the flowers dead!

The hall door swung open noiselessly to receive him a strange servant eyed him dubiously; he crossed the threshold of his home without a word of welcome, and found himself, like a stranger in his father's house, asking for Miss Clive.

Everything was in perfect order; no wheel of the well organized household system seemed disarranged by the stoppage of the master hand; yet there was a strange hush, an unnatural repression, over the whole house that oppressed Herbert like breathing a poisoned air.

He entered the drawing room, and, in his mother's ebony rocking chair, by the marble hearth, a woman sat busy with her knitting—a pale, slender woman, who rose to meet him with a certain still, crafty triumph in glance, and manner and tone.

"You are late, indeed," she said, with a sigh, and, lifting her black-bordered handkerchief to her eyes, "and you come to a sorrowing home, Herbert, poor boy!"

"My sister—where is my sister?" asked the young man, in a husky voice, while his spirit rose at the unusual familiarity of the housekeeper's address. "Where is Miss Fannie?"

"Dear Fannie is in her room," answered Mrs. Wyllis, in her lowest tone. "Indeed, she seldom leaves it. She is much broken—sadly broken! You would scarcely know her now. Your poor father—"

"Has her health failed?" interrupted Herbert, who felt an indescribable objection to hearing the details of his father's death from this woman's lips. "Where is she? I—I must see her at once!"

The white eyelashes were lifted for one moment, and the steel-gray eyes were fixed upon the speaker with a glance, half of pity, half of scorn, as he thus quietly assumed the master's tone.

"There were some matters of which I wished to speak—" she began.

"Which I can hear at some other time," interrupted Herbert, haughtily. "My present duty is first to my sister—my poor, broken-spirited darling. After that I am ready to discuss any household arrangements you desire to mention."

"He lords it grandly," murmured Mrs. Wyllis to herself, with her still smile, as Herbert left the room. "Ah, yes! very grandly, with his 'must' and 'shall.' But I will tame him, too—tame him, even as I tamed his proud, strong father. The honor of the Clives—the Clives!—ha, ha! it is my trump card—the honor of the Clives! I hold it in my grasp—aye, I hold them in my power. Their dead father's name must be kept sacred—their dead father's honor unstained! Even as that dead father sinned and suffered for them, so must they sin and suffer for him. Ah, yes, yes! it is a double game, that works charmingly. And I—I, Rebecca Wyllis, the charity child, whom they all thought too stupid to notice, too blind to see—I sit in the mistress' velvet chair and hold the stakes!"

She tapped her breast, while a triumphant light glittered in her white eyes, and then, folding her mittened hands, she bent her head and gazed steadfastly into the fire.

Up stairs in Fannie's little boudoir, brother and sister sat, clasped heart to heart.

The first few moments of that meeting were too full of emotion for words. With one glad cry of mingled joy and sorrow, Fannie sprang into her brother's arms, and sobbed out her pent-up anguish on his breast. For one moment Herbert held her pressed to his heart, well-nigh bursting with its weight of grief.

Ah, she was changed—sadly changed. Even in the uncertain light he could see how delicate was the face, erst round and rosy as a laughing Hebe's—how hollow the once sunny, laughing eyes—how frail the graceful form!

"Fannie, Fannie, my poor little sister! you have suffered much, and alone—all alone!"

"All alone!" she repeated, sadly. Oh, Herbert, you know not how much alone! If you had not come soon, dear, I would have died—died broken-hearted! Alas, alas! the prophecy was true—the old woman's prophecy was true! The very day she spoke, sorrow came upon me—sorrow and"—she bowed her head on Herbert's breast, and whispered the word—"disgrace!"

"What do you mean?" he exclaimed, starting. "Fannie—sister, what word is that to come from lips like yours?"

"Have you not heard?" she murmured, casting an affrighted glance around her. "Oh, brother, brother, such cruel whispers, such cruel rumors! I could bear all, all," she sobbed out, "if they would let poor papa rest in his grave but evil tongues have followed him even there!"

"What do they say?" asked Herbert, fiercely. "I am here now to defend my father's memory, and, by Heaven, I will do it! Who dares to cast a slur upon the name of Robert Clive?"

"Hush, hush!" Fannie whispered. "Do not speak so. I—I cannot tell you how or whence the rumors came, but, they say papa had no right to Clive Towers; that he held it only by—by—oh, how can I speak the word of my own papa?—by fraud! And she"—Fannie shuddered as she spoke—"she seems to know. She has hinted that she knew what, for our sakes, she would not reveal!"

"She?" repeated Herbert, angrily. "Who—that old cat dozing by the fire—old Wyllis, whom I have always despised? Has she had her claws upon you, my poor little pet? Has she dared to torture you by her lying whispers? By heaven, I will wring her secret, if she have any, from her slavering lips!"

"Do not speak quite so loudly, if you please, Mr. Clive," said a soft voice behind them.

Fannie started with a cry of terror that showed in what dread she held the quiet sneaker.

"There are servants in the house on whom I cannot entirely depend. I intruded, perhaps, too soon; but it is well to learn in time what reward I am to expect for twenty years of faithful and untiring devotion to you and yours. It is well to know in time exactly how I stand with"—oh, the biting scorn of her words!—"the new master of Clive Towers."

"I spoke hastily and angrily," said Herbert, who was too chivalrous to wittingly use rude words to any woman. "We have never been very good friends, Mrs. Wyllis—that you know; still you have, as you say, done your duty faithfully, and, to my certain knowledge, you have always received a fitting recompense. I believe," he added, with cold hauteur, "that there our mutual obligations end."

"Herbert! Herbert!" interposed Fannie, nervously.

"Let him go on, my dear—let him go on," said Mrs. Wyllis, with malicious triumph. "As I stated before, it is well to know exactly how we stand. I have done my duty faithfully, as you say, Mr. Clive—very faithfully. I did it five-and-twenty years ago, when I was an humble charity child, set to wait upon a miserly, tyrannical old man. I was too low, and too ignorant, and too stupid to see or hear, and so, I suppose, they paid no attention to my presence. I was too low and too mean to have a presumptuous thought toward the fine young gentleman, Mr. Robert, who sent me on messages and gave me sixpences, and told me I ought to go to school and learn how to rise in life. I did go to school, and I did rise in life; and, humble as I was, I did dare to dream a woman's dream—a dream that had Robert Clive for its central figure. He was poor, then, as well as I, and he was the only one who had ever given me a kindly word. Aye, at seventeen, Mr. Clive, I did dare to think and dream—aye, and pray for your father's love—"

"You?" interrupted Herbert, in scornful amazement. "You dreamed of my father—of Robert Clive?"

"Five-and-twenty years ago, what was Robert Clive?" was the low whisper. "What is Robert Clive, now? Is he any better than the pauper who rots in six feet of earth beside him? Where is his strength, his pride, his grandeur now? Where? where?"

"Be silent, woman!" thundered Herbert, in her ear. "Do you forget that you speak to his children?"

"I forget nothing," she said, calming down to her usual feline manner. "He never knew my one dream, and I never told him. Only once, five-and-twenty years ago, some one laughed at him about pretty 'Becky Nobody,' and I heard the proud, scornful words with which he flung back the taunt. Aye, I heard, and I never forgot! Since then I have lived with but one purpose in my mind—either to raise myself, to Robert Clive's level, or drag him down to mine. I succeeded; your proud father, Herbert Clive, died in my power, even as you now hold your own to my mercy. I have succeeded. The humble charity child is willing to treat with the master of Clive Towers, and to yield him quite as generous terms as he was willing to accord her."

(To Be Continued.)

Your living speaks louder than your logic.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

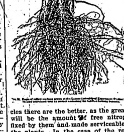
Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Our Meat in Germany.

The question of American meats in Germany is coming to be almost an international one. Not only are the meat producers of the United States directly affected, but the producers of meat in the other countries in Europe see in the German legislation a menace to their own interests. At present the Americans are sending to Germany large quantities of meat in various forms. The Austrians are also sending to the same country considerable supplies of meat. The Austrians argue that the law that is to prohibit American meats will also prohibit Austrian meats. In addition, they say, the Americans will throw their supplies of meat into the Austrian market and compete with the Austrian producers on their own ground. The result will be that prices for meat in Austria must fall. This alarms the producers of meat animals in Austria, who believe they are now producing meat at as low a price as they can afford. To the stockmen of the United States the question comes home with a good deal of force. If we cannot sell a good part of our meat supply in Europe it must be consumed in this country. This surplus thrown on our own markets must result for a time in low prices for meat. This might not be an unmixed blessing, as a lowering of the price would stimulate consumption. But it would probably mean a lessened profit to the growers of meat.

Tuberculosis on Soy Bean Roots.

On this page we illustrate a clump of soy-bean roots, showing tubercles. These tubercles are similar to those on clover roots, though they may not be identical. The more of these tubercles there are the better, as the greater will be the amount of free nitrogen fixed by them and made serviceable to the plants. In the case of the roots shown in the illustration, the ground had been inoculated with germs of the tubercles. Where none of these germs exist the plants lack vigor of growth and size of leaf. Generally, however, there is no lack of tubercles in the soil, especially where other legumes have been grown.



[illegible]

Wormy Apples.

There is nothing new about wormy apples except the way to avoid having them. There are several species of grubs or worms which work in apples, but the one which does nearly all the damage is the core worm. The core worm is the offspring of the codlin moth, and this is the insect which a man wants to fight in his apple trees. The best general remedy for the core worm, or codlin moth, according to information furnished by the Vermont experiment station, is paris green. Some apple growers use London purple; others use white arsenic; but they amount to the same thing. They all poison the core worms. Other insecticides like hellebore, kerosene, or sulphur, are not effective in this case.

In the hands of the average man paris green is the best medicine for the codlin moth. The poison should be thoroughly mixed with water at the rate of a quarter of a pound to the barrel—that is about one pound of paris green to 160-200 gallons of water. About a pound of lime ought to be added to each barrel of water, which will prevent scalding of the foliage. It should be applied with a spray pump and fine nozzle. In case bordeaux mixture is used on the trees the paris green may be added directly to that solution at the rate already recommended. The first spraying for the codlin moth should be made as soon as the blossoms fall, or within a week afterward. It is very important to do this before the little apples begin to hang down their heads, as after that time they do not catch and hold the poison.

Root Aphis of Asters.

Another summer's use has still further demonstrated the value of kerosene emulsion for the root aphis of asters, says I. McRoss in Vick's. This year the bed prepared for the asters was thoroughly soaked with diluted emulsion; it was then left to dry out sufficiently to allow the ground to be worked over, then the asters were transplanted. As soon as they were growing well, another application was made, and another when they commenced to bud. These applications, it must be noted, were thorough, the ground was soaked until the roots of the plants were reached.

It would, perhaps, seem a great deal of trouble to make and apply the emulsion so many times, but the result has more than paid for the trouble, which in reality has been slight.

Many speak of the emulsion as troublesome to make; I find it very easy by the following method: A bar of common washing soap is dissolved in a quart of water and allowed to boil, then two quarts of kerosene are added to the boiling soap. This is churned, while hot, with a revolving egg-beater; a force pump would be better but I do not own one, and a beater answers very well. When the emulsion is properly made it will come like butter, so thick that the beater will not work. A pint of the thick emulsion is diluted with eight quarts of water, making a liquid resembling skim milk in color, but closely related to kerosene in odor.

A neighbor has used a strong decoction of tobacco with good results. It would seem that whatever will kill the plant aphis, will also conquer the root aphis. From complaints made in different parts of the country, however, I think that some leaf blight or rust is troubling the asters, but in this section aphis seems to be the only trouble.

Teaching Meat Inspection.

We are glad to note that some of veterinary colleges are teaching meat inspection as a part of their regular courses. This kind of service for the public is as yet in its infancy, at least in this country. Hitherto most of the men that have graduated from all of our colleges have been poorly fitted or not fitted at all to determine the healthfulness of meat. The education of students in such branches is sure to have a good effect on the public appreciation of such work. All great reforms and great movements must be established in the favorable opinions of the people before being really effective. The effect of thousands of young men going out into the midst of the people will be to create opinions favorable to proper inspection. At the present time people know little as to how meat from diseased animals should look. They are utterly unable to tell when there is trichina in pork. Many a trichina-infested hog has been butchered, and the meat used in a neighborhood, the using being followed by disease and death. It was only a few years ago that several deaths occurred in a family near Milwaukee, Wis., caused by trichina in pork from a hog that had been raised on the place. We need more education along such lines, and the veterinary colleges are in the best position to give it.

Treatment for San Jose Scale.

Summer treatment for the San Jose scale should begin as early as the 15th of June and be continued until September 15 at least, with intervals of not more than ten days between sprayings. This will destroy a very large percentage of the young and thus prevent its spreading. Two different mixtures can be used, viz.: 1. Whale oil soap, used at the rate of one-fourth pound to one gallon of water. This mixture will not injure the foliage of tree fruits. 2. A mechanical mixture of kerosene and water, in the proportion of one gallon of kerosene to ten of water, or what is called a 10 per cent solution. It can be used with safety on all tree fruits except the peach.

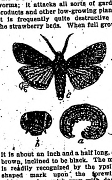
For winter treatment, which means while the leaves are off, a stronger solution of whale oil soap and water can be used—two pounds of the former to one gallon of the latter. Kerosene from 20 to 100 per cent has been used with widely different results. The why has not been determined as yet. Consensus of opinion is that it should be used on a sunshiny day—the higher the temperature the better.

Morning Glory as a Weed.

A correspondent of the Farmers' Review is having trouble with the morning glory in his corn field. As his corn is drilled he cannot work the field both ways. The corn at time of report was some five or six inches high, but doing well and promising a good stand. Some have suggested that the owner of the field plow it up and put it into millet. It would seem that the pest must be unusually bad to even cause the suggestion of plowing up the field. It appears to the writer that the ordinary cultivation that the corn should receive would keep down the weeds sufficiently to enable the corn to get the upper hand. But we would be pleased to hear from our readers that have had experience with this particular weed.

The Greasy Cut-Worm.

The Latin name is agrotis ypsilon. This is one of our most abundant cut-worms; it attacks all sorts of garden products and other low-growing plants. It is frequently quite destructive to the strawberry beds. When full grown it is about an inch and a half long, dull brown, inclined to be black. The moth is readily recognized by the ypsilon-shaped mark upon the forewings, which are brownish-gray with darker markings; the hind wings are almost white and semi-transparent, and possess a pearly luster.



Hog Lice.

H. V. Tellor, in his "Diseases of Live Stock," says: These disgusting parasites abound on ill-fed and half-sick hogs. Indeed, their presence may almost be said to be a sign that the animal is out of condition. It is not sufficient therefore to destroy the lice with an insecticide; if the cure is expected to be permanent, the animal must be kept clean, well-fed, and supported with tonics, such as sulphate of iron, if occasion demand it. As a safe and efficient ointment to kill lice we may use scotch snuff, rubbed up with lard, or the following: Stavesacre seeds 4 oz., white hellebore 1 oz., water 1 gallon. Boil to two quarts, and apply with a brush where lice are seen.

Weighing Corn for Moisture.

The Iowa Experiment Station has been conducting a most interesting experiment to determine the amount of moisture in corn and its gradual disappearance. A corn crib was built on a wagon-scale and the weighing of the corn in the crib, which amounted to about 8,000 pounds, was constant. The trial was continued for a year, in which time the amount of corn in the crib lost more than a ton of moisture. Sometimes the weight increased temporarily owing to a moist condition of the weather at that particular time. Other tests are to follow it and it is hoped that much valuable data will be obtained.

Trichinosis.

The parasite that causes this disease is called trichina spiralis. It infests the flesh of several animals, especially the hog. From the hog it is sometimes transferred to man, causing severe sickness and not infrequently death. Trichina is found in pork both in America and Europe, and its presence has been made a pretext by which some foreign nations keep out American pork. Most of the pork inspection at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, is due to the prominence of this question in the European mind. However, German pork is as much infested with trichina as our own, and it is believed a little more so.

Trichina inhabits the bodies of animals at all stages of its existence, and where swine are entirely unable to get anything but vegetable diet the danger that they will become infested with trichina is small. For this reason it is not safe to permit swine to feed on the offal of slaughter houses, carrion, rats, mice and the like. Hogs so fed become a menace to the health of the eaters of the pork they produce. The trichina is very small, and lives in minute crysts in the muscles. When these cysts are eaten by hogs the juices of the stomach set loose the imprisoned trichinae which escape into the intestines where they pair and the females bring forth a numerous brood of larvae, which find their way to the muscles, where they in turn become encysted. The hog himself does not appear to suffer from the presence of these parasites, and they can therefore be discovered only by a microscopic examination of the pork. It is said that no remedy has been discovered that will destroy the trichinae after they have become encysted in the muscles. When pork infested with trichinae is eaten by man the thousands of cysts are operated on by the juices of his stomach. The parasites are let loose and proceed to his intestines where they pair and breed. Their progeny begin a march through the walls of his intestines to his muscles, and induce symptoms similar to typhoid fever. If the man can endure the horrible pain of the migration of the parasites from his intestines to his muscles he will live. The trichinae will form cysts there and give no further trouble, but will remain with him through the rest of his life.

Why Are Not More Sheep Raised?

It really looks as if many of our farmers are unmindful of the benefits of sheep raising, on account of the small amount of capital represented in each animal; just as most of them ignore poultry for a like reason. We are certain that there are many farms with brush land and small growth that would be benefited by a flock of sheep. As we have traveled over the states we have noticed the numerous places where the land seemed to be given up to brush, briars, weeds and undergrowth. Ask the owners of these farms why they do not keep a few sheep and you are likely to get the answer that it would probably be a good thing to do so, but that they had been busy looking after other things and had not given sheep any attention. For the public good a few sheep should be kept on every farm. The average number of sheep on Illinois farms is today only a little over two. Think of it: two sheep to a farm. There are in the state about 252,000 farms and the number of sheep on the first day of January, 1897, was 601,000. On the first day of January, 1898, the number was 613,000. If American farmers would pay a little more attention to this question it would soon be unnecessary to import large quantities of wool and other products of the sheep, and instead the money would go into the pockets of sheep raisers and remain in circulation in their neighborhoods.

Kind of Horses Wanted in England.

The United States government has been trying to find out the kind of horses the English desire, with the following results:

In London the tramways, bus companies, jobmasters and owners of light delivery wagons are large purchasers of American horses. Horses for their use must be from 15 1-3 to 16 hands high, weigh from 1,200 to 1,350 pounds, be compactly built, with plenty of bone and muscle and good action, and average from 5 to 7 years of age. They should measure from 76 to 73 inches in girth, and from 8½ to 9½ inches around the leg just below the knee. Such horses will sell from $170 to $185, and sometimes as high as $200. Large bus horses for suburban work, 5 to 8 years old, 16 hands high, weighing 1,600 to 1,700 pounds, with a girth of 88 inches, bring from $185 to $225, and exceptional native horses sell as high as $400. The "trotting vanner," a synonym for useful light delivery wagon horse, 16 to 16½ hands, 78-inch at girth and 7½ inches around the leg just below the knee, sells for $125 to $150. Carriage horses, 90 inches at girth and 9½ inches around the leg just below the knee, with good knee action and well bred, will, if well matched, bring from $750 to $1,500 per pair. For heavy draft horses the demand is always brisk, and Clydesdale and Shire horses are reported in demand. Solid, stocky, 16½-hand, 1,750-pound horses, free from blemish, 5 to 7 years old, 10 to 10½ inches around the leg just below the knee, and 98 to 100 inches girth, bring from $250 to $375. Misfits, scrubs and badly broken horses will not do; but a young, good, sound, well-broken horse with plenty of bone and muscle, compactly built, of almost any recognized class or type will sell well in the London market.

Retain the Sows.

It is never a good practice to breed from immature sows year after year. The practice of keeping brood sows till several years old should be commended and followed. The continued breeding from immature animals is believed to have much to do with weakening the stamina of our hogs. It is even contended by some that we would have much less hog cholera were we to follow breeding only from mature animals. This is not always practicable, for sows must have their first litters at a young age, but it is entirely practicable to use the same sows for several years.

Pleasant Duck and Blush Pigg are two Missouri gentlemen.

TO SWEEP THE SEAS.

The navy is to build warships aggregating over $100,000,000 in cost as soon as builders are prepared to undertake this great program, which calls for eleven armored ships, practically doubling the present American sea power in this class, and for three highly improved Olympia type of cruisers.

The five battleships for whose hulls and machinery congress has appropriated $18,000,000 are ready for the builders to bid upon. Plans for the six great armored cruisers, more powerful than any ship at present in service, and to cost for hulls and machinery alone over $25,000,000, are well advanced and should be finally approved next month. The general features of the enlarged Olympia type were determined last fall before congress appropriated $2,800,000 for the hull and machinery of each of them, and there is no reason why their keels should not be laid this summer.

The navy department is also preparing the specifications and advertisements for $5,000 tons of the highest quality Kruppized armor, which is expected to cost between $17,000,000 and $19,000,000. The complete construction program authorizes contracts for hulls and machinery alone amounting to $51,900,000, which includes five battleships at $3,600,000 each, six cruisers at $4,250,000 each, and three improved Olympias at $2,800,000 each.

The battleships, known as the Pennsylvania class, are to be nearly 16,000 tons displacement, or over 5,000 tons heavier than the Oregon, more than 100 feet longer than that famous vessel and with at least three knots higher speed.

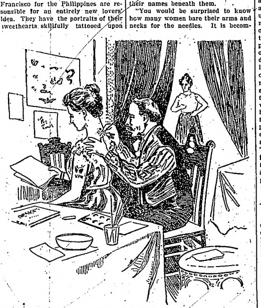
The six cruisers of the California class of 14,000 tons, 23 knot speed and 8,000 knots steaming radius, will be unmatched in the world. They will be 5,000 tons larger than the Brooklyn, and at least three times as powerful for fighting uses.

All these vessels will be armorcoated from the extreme bow to stern, and will be the most formidable ships yet laid down in any dockyards. The three protected cruisers of about 10,000 tons displacement will be just about twice the Olympia's size, but will preserve the excellent characteristics of that vessel, which have proved her to be about the most useful type of cruiser now in the service. These three new vessels, which are to be named for cities, will have coal capacity for steaming three times across the Atlantic, and their maintained speed will be 23 knots.

The secretary of the navy has also been directed by the last naval appropriation act to contract for five Holland submarine boats, to cost $175,000 each, and to be built within a year.

TATTOOED WITH PORTRAITS

The American soldiers leaving San Francisco for the Philippines are responsible for an entirely new lovers' idea. They have the portraits of their sweethearts skillfully tattooed upon their backs. "Professor" Jake Londella is the man who makes a living by tattooing the faces of infatuated folks upon each other's backs. Londella's business brings him into contact with men, women and children. Women are his best customers. Says he, regarding his particular mission: "During the war I tattooed many a soldier's photo upon his sweetheart's arm, and the soldier often had her picture or name written by herself reproduced upon his breast. Many British soldiers have had the portraits of their wives or sweethearts tattooed on the back before going to South Africa. It is a fad with the officers especially. I know one who has the portraits of two girls tattooed upon his breast with their names beneath them.



ILLUSTRATING THE BODY.

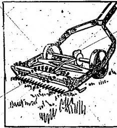
"You would be surprised to know how many women bare their arms and necks for the needles. It is becoming a fad here just as it did in London years ago.

"Yes, a woman is usually scared when she sees the instrument and ink, but she gives me less trouble than a man when she discovers that tattooing doesn't hurt much after all. Last week I spent a half day working on the arm of a bride-to-be. Years ago she had a man's name placed there. I had to obliterate it by filling in with a flower design. She said it would never do for the groom to know about the other man.

"Here is a list of the designs I tattooed upon the limbs not long ago of Mrs. Frank Caldwell, the actress: Snake, horses, peacock, butterflies."

New Lawn Mowing Device

With an ordinary lawn mower it is impossible to cut the grass close to a tree or bush without injury to the bark, but the machine shown herewith has the cutting apparatus projecting in front of the wheels, and supports, thus allowing it to be pushed close to the shrub without harming the latter. The cutting apparatus is arranged somewhat similar to that of a mowing machine, there being two sets of knives, which are reciprocated in opposite directions, motion being imparted by a cam-plate mounted on the shaft, which connects the supporting wheels. A glance at the picture will show how the knives are reciprocated by the levers pivoted on the crossbar, and it is easy to see that the power required to run the machine is very much less than that necessary to operate the old pattern, while there is no complicated machinery to get out of order or require oiling. A small brush is suspended over the knives to push the grass back of the cutters, being revolved by a sprocket chain connected to the drive wheel.



Russia's Polar Expedition.

A Russian polar expedition is to leave St. Petersburg this week under command of Baron Toll, who will be accompanied by three naval officers, an astronomer, a geologist and a doctor. The crew of his vessel, which is named Daria, and is of the type of a Norwegian whaler, will consist of twelve bluejackets and a Yakutsk Cossack as interpreter. The Daria will spend the winter of 1900-1901 on the northeast side of the Taimyr peninsula. In 1901 she will pass the mouth of the Lena and the New Siberian islands, and will then head north and northeast to the unknown region lying between the routes followed by the Jeannette (which was lost in 1881) and the Fram. She will winter in this region, and in 1902 will endeavor to pass north of Greenland and North America, and to reach Vladivostok by way of Behring straits. Three depots of provisions have already been established by Baron Toll in the New Siberian islands. The expedition will take sixty dogs and provisions for 1,200 days.

Some people sharpen their wits in the nick of time.

Infantile Mental Pabulum.

"I desire to purchase some standard work of juvenile fiction," said Ibsen Beaconhill, aged 8, as he entered a Hub bookshop and regarded the clerk somewhat patronizingly, over the tops of his glasses, "something suited to the puerile tastes of a youth of 4. There is comprehended in that class of literature, I believe, a work which has to do with the mythical adventures of one John the Giganticide." Whereupon the clerk explained that owing to the conservative methods pursued by publishers the book in question still retained the title of "Jack the Giant Killer," and Ibsen compromised on "The Over-Soul—Adapted for Little Spectacles."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

German Student Wanderers.

German students are returning to the medieval notion of wandering about the world. The modern Golliards, however, are personally conducted and know beforehand precisely what their journeys will cost them. Last year they visited Italy; this year 1,500 of them will go to Constantinople and to Asia Minor.

LOST: AN ATHLETE.

College Graduate Not Always a Hothouse Product.

It lacked only an hour of closing time in the great steel-working plant at Joliet, Langford, the big superintendent, stood watching the powerful rolls as they seized the white-hot bars of metal and flattened them like dough beneath a rolling-pin. The rush and roar and excitement of the scene appealed to his athletic spirit, and gave him a constant joy in his work. All through his college course he had been stroke of the Yale 'Varsity crew, and at Henley was pronounced the king of American college oarsmen. The men in the mill knew this, but it was Langford's personal kindness and unselfishness, rather than his athletic record, which had made him their idol. The machinery was new and not well adjusted. Accidents had been so frequent that Langford no longer called upon his men for any especially hazardous repairs. He preferred to take the risk himself. As he watched, the superintendent noticed that the gear wheels of the big roll were not working properly. Instead of sending a workman, he crawled into the maze of glowing iron himself. All about him the air quivered with the heat, and lines of fervid ingots streamed by, so near that a false movement on either side would have seared him to death. Before the refractory machine he arose and stood watching the cogs. He had not finished when the water was turned on, creating, as it struck the glowing metal, great clouds of blinding steam, which wrapped the superintendent as in a garment and shut him from the sight of his fellowworkmen. In a few moments they saw him creep out, rise and walk away. At the threshold he fell exhausted. Blood was streaming from his left hand, and the arm itself had been crushed to a shapeless mass and hung limp and useless. Still he retained consciousness and his courage. He quietly gave orders for binding up the arm to stop the bleeding, and walked to the hospital. He had sought to grope his way out of the dangerous position by the defective roll, and he had brought his left hand too near the cogs. It was only the strength and presence of mind of the trained athlete which had saved his life. That night members of the corporation and men from the mill waited in the corridors of the hospital, hat in hand, until they learned that the amputation had been successfully performed, and day after day they called to inquire for their wounded friend and to cheer him by their presence. The incident is deeply pathetic, but it is also inspiring. The workingman too often regards the college graduate as a hothouse product.—Youths' Companion.

HARMLESS GERMS.

A Little Knowledge Is a Dangerous Thing.

In the abundant talk about bacteria, during these later years, there is cause for alarm to those in whom "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing." If the air is swarming with bacilli, say they, where is safety? How shall the human organism protect itself? At first the wind of science swept us into mad generalization. Germs were everywhere, and all germs were harmful; therefore, the more food, clothing and coins were sterilized, the better for us. Then, when it was discovered that not only the food we eat, the air we breathe, but the surface and cavities of our bodies, swarmed with bacteria, while we might be enjoying robust health, it was decided that only certain forms of germ growth were harmful. These were labeled with great care and ingenuity, until it seemed as if every disease was at last provided with a specific cause; and as soon as that was done, a farther advance in science made us aware that even a specific disease germ has no power except under favorable conditions, where the body is disposed to that disease. Ferdinand Hueppe, the German professor of hygiene, has recently declared that the causes of illness can no longer be regarded as if they were as simple as a problem in botany. No germ, however deadly, can be the sole cause of disease, nor can it produce poisonous effects in more than one body in four, even though it enter them. The conditions prevailing in the cells and fluids of a given body may change the deadly germs of tuberculosis or cholera to harmless products. "When no susceptibility to disease exists, we may harbor the bacillus with impunity." Therefore, while no care should be omitted to bring about the best sanitary conditions, we need not give way to hysterical horror over germs. By keeping the body in a condition of good general health, we are doing all in our power to thwart the criminal class of bacilli and to give the policeman germ a chance.—Youths' Companion.

Strange Duel.

Three of Col. Pilcher's men were unable to hear the signal to retire when Col. Pilcher withdrew from Ladybrand and were taken prisoners by the Boers. Subsequently a duel was fought between one of these men armed with a sword and a Boer armed with a rifle. The latter shot the soldier through the hand, but was immediately run through the body by his adversary.

Tommy's Little Joke.

"Tommy," said a father to his precocious 5-year-old son and heir, "your mother tells me she gives you pennies to be good. Do you think that is right?" "Of course it is," replied Tommy, "you certainly don't want me to grow up and be good for nothing, do you?"

Lived Among Lepers.

The Rev. L. L. Conrardy, M. D., who lived for eight years among the lepers of the Hawaiian islands, has sailed for Rome. He has been visiting in Philadelphia. Dr. Conrardy served with Father Damien, and took up his work when he died.

Chinese Headsmen on Strike.

Canton's executioners have gone on strike. They receive 25 cents a head for their work, but they say that on less than 50 cents they will starve.

THE REPORT OF A MAN OF EXPERIENCE.

What He Found in Western Canada to Induce Him to Settle There.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 20th, 1900.

To Whom it May Concern:—Especially to those who are desirous of obtaining health and wealth for themselves and families, I wish to state a few facts in regard to the Canadian North-west, where I went, leaving Sault Ste. Marie on May 2nd, 1899, for the purpose of seeking a better home for my family in the future. I got a special rate ticket for Ft. McLeod, Alberta. Through Manitoba and part of Assiniboia the farmers were busy employed ploughing and seeding. I found the farmers very kind and friendly, willing to talk and assist in giving me the particulars of the country. At McLeod I spent a few days looking over some ranchers' stock, which I was surprised to see looking so well; they were in better condition than any stock I ever saw in Michigan, even those that had been stabled, and most of these had never seen the inside of a shed or received any feed from the hands of man. But as I was also looking for mixed farm land I found McLeod no place for me, it is only fit for ranching purposes.

Retracing my way back to Winnipeg, I stopped off at Lethbridge, where I found some of the greatest horse ranches I ever had the pleasure of looking at. It is a fine level country, and lots of water and good grazing. At Medicine Hat, which is located in a valley, there were lots of sheep, cattle and horses in the surrounding country and all looking well.

On July 14th I went to Regina, there I began to see mixed farming lands in abundance, and the crops looking remarkably well, and as long as daylight lasted I saw the same all along the line and on the 15th day of July I arrived in Winnipeg, just in time for the exhibition. There I met with one of the most beautiful pictures of the world's records, for as soon as I entered the grounds my eyes met with all kinds of machinery, all in motion, and the cattle, grain and produce of the country was far beyond my expectation, in fact it was beyond any industrial exhibition or agricultural fair I ever visited and I have seen a good many.

From Regina to Prince Albert, a distance of 250 miles, it is all good for mixed farming, and well settled, with some thriving little towns. In some places the grain, just coming into head, would take a man to the waist, and the wild fruit along the line was good, rich and in great quantities, from Saskatoon on the south branch of the Saskatchewan river, to Prince Albert on the north branch of the same river, is one of the best farming districts without any doubt that ever laid face to the sun, and everything to be found there, that is necessary to make life comfortable, all that is required is labor. There is lots of wood, good water, and abundant hay land, and the climate is excellent.

Prince Albert is a flourishing little place, situated on the north Saskatchewan river, having a population of about 1,600, with good street and sidewalks and churches of nearly every denomination, three school houses, and another one to be built at once, also a brewery and a creamery. Here I stayed for about four months, working at my trade of bricklaying, and met with farmers and ranchers with whom I made it my special business to talk in regard to the prospects. I also visited several farmers for some distance out in the country while crops were in full bloom, and I may say that I never saw better crops in all my travels than I saw along the valley towards Stoney Creek and Carrot River. In the market garden there is grown currants, both red and black, and as fine a sample of roots and vegetables as ever went on a market. The soil in and around this district cannot be beaten for anything you may wish to grow, and besides the season is long, giving time for everything to mature. The cattle were looking as good as I saw anywhere, good pasture and hay land, and plenty of water wherever you go. The country is dotted all around like islands with timber fit for fuel and building purposes and within a day's walk of lumbering woods, where lumbering and tie making is carried on in winter. Both large and small game is plentiful. There are two good saw mills in this district; with a good supply of all grades of lumber all the year round and also two good brickyards with an excellent quality of brick. There is no scarcity of building material and at a reasonable price. Clothing and living are no higher than I find in Michigan, and furthermore I wish to say that there is a great demand for laboring men all the year round and good wages ranging from $1.75 to $2.00 per day, and from $25.00 to $35.00 per month with board.

I wish to say that I am perfectly satisfied with the country and I intend to return to Prince Albert early in the spring of 1900. Any reasonable man can go there and in from five to ten years make a good and comfortable home for himself and family, and if any person into whose hand this letter should fall, desires more information, please write to me and I will freely give them my best opinion. I am writing this for the benefit of those who may want to make a better home for themselves and families or friends.

Trusting that this statement may be useful to you in the publication of your next pamphlet and be the means of guiding at least some of those who are in search of a home, I remain

Your humble servant,

(Signed) WILLIAM PAYNE.

The above letter was written to Mr. J. Grieve, Canadian Government Agent at Saginaw, Michigan. Information as to lands, etc., can be had from him or Mr. M. V. McInnes, No. 2 Merrill Block, Detroit, Michigan.

A Feminine Butter.

"And now, children," said the teacher, who had been talking about military fortifications, "can any of you tell me what is a buttress?"

"Please, ma'am," cried little Willie, snapping his fingers, "it's a nanny goat!"—Philadelphia Press.

MEDICAL BOOK FREE.

"Know Thyself," a Book For Men Only, sent Free, postpaid, sealed, to any male reader mentioning this paper; 6c for postage. The Science of Life, or Self-Preservation, the Gold Medal Prize Treatise, the best Medical Book of this or any age. 370 pp., with engravings and prescriptions. Only 25c paper covers. Library Edition, full gilt, $1.00. Address The Peabody Medical Institute, No. 4 Bulfinch St., Boston, Mass., the oldest and best in this country. Write today for these books; keys to health and vigor.

Tenant's Temper.

"What soured Juddock so on Haddock? He used to think there was no one like him, and now he can't call him names enough."

"He rented one of Haddock's houses this year."—Harper's Bazar.

Mrs. Pinkham

The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience — experience creates knowledge.

No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as Mrs. Pinkham has had.

Over a hundred thousand cases come before her each year. Some personally, others by mail. And this has been going on for 20 years, day after day and day after day.

Twenty years of constant success — think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman with such an experience, especially when it is free.

If you are ill get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once—then write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Luck for a Leading Lady.

Helen Merrill, leading lady of the Tivoli opera company, now singing here in "The Wizard of the Nile," has just received word from Australia that she has $15,000 in dividends from a mine in the Coolgardie district, for which she paid $500. When singing in Australia last year with the Hoyt & McKee company, she nursed some sick miners at Coolgardie. In return, the miners gave her a share in the mine, but she insisted on paying for it, and invested $500. The letter says she has the dividends named, and another letter offers her $10,000 for her interest.—New York Sun.

Are You Using Allen's Foot-Ease?

It is the only cure for Swollen, Smarting, Burning, Sweating Feet, Corns and Bunions. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Jones Is Up a Peg.

The society reporter of a daily paper had been detailed to secure the names of prominent persons in attendance at a performance of grand opera.

"I beg pardon, madam," she said, approaching one of the occupants of a private box, "but will you oblige me by giving me your name?"

"Mrs. Archibald Jo Neeze," replied the lady.

"Pardon me," replied the reporter, "I did not quite catch the last name."

"Jo Neeze."

"May I ask how you spell it?"

"Certainly. J-o-n-e-s, Jo Neeze," haughtily answered the occupant of the box, and the reporter retired to the foyer to fan herself.—New York Times.

HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS

Via Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad.

On the first and third Tuesdays of July and August the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad will place on sale Homeseekers' Excursion tickets to various points in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Texas.

One fare plus $2.00 for the round trip.

Tickets are limited on going trip fifteen days from date of sale with stop over privileges in Homeseekers' territory. Returning tickets are limited twenty-one days from date of sale. Remember that we now have in service a new wide vestibuled train between Chicago & Waco & Ft. Worth, Texas, leaving Chicago daily at 1:50 p. m. Through Pullman sleeping cars and free reclining chair cars. For further particulars call on or address any agent Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad or C. L. Stone, G. P. & T. A., Chicago.

An editor doesn't object to the captions for his articles making the paper appear head strong.

Prince Frederick's Distinction.

The German Crown Prince, Frederick William, who has just attained his majority, was the first prince of the house of the Hohenzollerns to be born in the imperial purple. When his father, William II., was born, nobody dreamed that the young crown prince, destined to reign over a kingdom of the second grade, would one day be the head of a powerful German empire.

World to End This Year.

This is the recent decision of one of the societies of the world, and while there are few people who believe this prediction, there are thousands of others who not only believe, but know that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation or liver and kidney troubles. A trial will certainly convince.

Left Him Temporarily.

"Say," remarked Wragson Tatters, looking up from the old newspaper which he had been reading, "did yer ever lose yer appetite?"

"Well," replied Eton Wrun, I did just onct. One day in '97 I got wot I calls a square meal, an' fur fifteen minutes after it I didn't have no appetite at all."—Philadelphia Press.

Why He Didn't Call.

A gay and festive youth, who is employed as a clerk in the Pennsylvania railroad office had occasion to go down to Wilmington one evening last week, and while there he met a girl who impressed him as being worthy of cultivation. He asked if he might call, and was assured that he would be welcome.

"I live in Newcastle," she said.

"But where is Newcastle?" he insisted.

"Oh, anybody can direct you," she replied. We live in a great big stone house, the largest house in town."

He was forced to be satisfied with that.

On Sunday he took a run down to Newcastle, and when he inquired where the young woman lived the big jail was pointed out to him.

"That's where she lives," said one of the town boys. "Her father's one of the jailers."

The young man took the next train back.—Philadelphia Record.

Hereditary.

"Thar's Johnny straddle o' the fence ag'in, mammy."

"Takes after his daddy," was her comment. "The ol' man's been in the same fix ever since election broke out."—Atlanta Constitution.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Peter Gilley, West Duluth, Minn., self-heating sad iron; Meyer Harzberg, St. Paul, button-displaying device; G. L. Houghton, Woodstock, Minn., globe and fixture therefor; Roland W. Knapp, Minneapolis, Minn., water tube boiler; Louis C. Lorin, St. Paul, Minn., jarless hub; George W. Murphy, Northfield, Minn., fuel press; Anton A. Peterson, Sundahl, Minn., device for transmitting power; Katie Ryan, St. Paul, Minn., bicycle skirt; John H. Simpson, Helena, Mont., land record book; Cyrus C. Webster, Minneapolis, casting machine.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul

Read the Advertisements.

You will enjoy this publication much better if you will get into the habit of reading the advertisements; they will afford a most amusing story, and will help you in the way of getting some excellent bargains. Our advertisers are reliable; they send what they advertise.

Agreed Cheerfully.

The Mistress—Bridget, you must remain until I get another girl.

Bridget—That was my intenshun, anyway. I want her to know the kind of a woman ye are.—Harper's Bazar.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes.

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N.Y.

"Faint Heart," Etc.

Briggs—What is the use of proposing to the girl when I know she doesn't love me?

Griggs—Try it, old man. She didn't love me when she accepted me.—Detroit Free Press.

Faded hair recovers its youthful color and softness by the use of PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM. HINDERCORNS, the best cure for corns. 15cts.

Unaccountable.

May—How many times did he kiss you in the railroad tunnel?

Fay—I didn't count, and he says it is a dark secret.

Uncle Sam uses the best of everything. Uncle Sam uses Carter's Ink. He knows.

Quite Proper.

"That girl accepts rings from men she doesn't know."

"How can she?"

"Has to. She's a telephone girl."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Things are seldom what they seem" does not apply with the dressmaker, who is a good judge of clothes.

A Book of Choice Recipes

Sent free by Walter Baker & Co. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass. Mention this paper.

"A barking dog never bites," it is said but we cannot be sure that he won't stop barking long enough to bite.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The only letters in "pie" are p, i and e, but there's a presidential bee in the political pie at present.

I am sure Piso's Cure for Consumption saved my life three years ago.—Mrs. Thos. Robbins, Maple Street, Norwich, N. Y., Feb. 17, 1900.

The man in the moon may bring the most ferocious dog to bay.

When farmers raise cabbages it isn't egotism that develops their big heads.

Some people consider a circus bad, and still we say "as good as a circus."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The hall of fame does not always open into the parlor of happiness.

The theaters are beginning to fold their wings and rest.

Ayer's Pills

Dizzy? Then your liver isn't acting well. You suffer from biliousness, constipation. Ayer's Pills act directly on the liver. For 60 years the Standard Family Pill. Small doses cure. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers

50 cts. of Druggists, or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

One Thing Was Certain.

"Ofter all, there is no certainty in politics," consolingly remarked the casual caller.

"Oh, yes, there is," returned the man who had just been defeated for office. "There is an absolute certainty of being called upon for a contribution to the campaign fund if you have anything to do with politics."—Chicago Post.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

An "Adver."

"Thank you, sir. I think that is all, sir," said the census-taker.

"Hold on!" said Mr. Alkalye, slipping him a V, "just keep that for your trouble. By the way, if you could print my name in big type, and say 'proprietor of the famous Smellgood soaps,' or something like that, ye'd oblige me."—Philadelphia Press.

Don't Get Bald.

Use Coke Dandruff Cure regularly and your hair will not fall out. All druggists.

This Queer World.

Isabel—I hate to give cook my old frocks.

Clara—Why?

Isabel—Oh, it's exasperating to see how much better they look on her than they did on me.—Indianapolis Journal.

So to Speak.

"With your strong arm around me," said the blushing girl, "I fear nothing."

"That's right," said the youth, with a thrill of pride. "You can consider yourself a protected monopoly."—Puck.

Some articles must be described. White's Yucatan needs no description; it's the real thing.

A young man who can't treat the girls to cool things must expect them to treat him coolly.

Cannibals at times might be classified as aunt eaters.

Easy Monthly Payments

We sell Regina Music Boxes for public places with money slot attachments, and for home use without attachments, on easy Monthly Payments. With money attachments they are and soon pay for themselves. They can be placed in all klass of business houses.

A Constant Source of Revenue

We Repair Music Boxes.

Correspondence invited.

NATIONAL NOVELTY CO.,

519 First Ave So., - - - Minneapolis, Minn.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY.

Genuine

Carter's

Little Liver Pills.

Must Bear Signature of

Brent Good

See Fac-Simile Wrapper Below.

Very small and as easy to take as sugar.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

FOR HEADACHE.
FOR DIZZINESS.
FOR BILIOUSNESS.
FOR TORPID LIVER.
FOR CONSTIPATION.
FOR SALLOW SKIN.
FOR THE COMPLEXION

GENUINE MUST HAVE SIGNATURE.

Price 25 Cents | Purely Vegetable. Brent Good

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO SUDDENLY

It injures nervous system to do so. BACO-CURO is the only cure that REALLY CURES and notifies you when to stop. Sold with a guarantee that three boxes will cure any case. BACO-CURO is vegetable and harmless. It has cured thousands. It will cure you. At all druggists or by mail prepaid $1 a box; 3 boxes $2.50. Booklet free. Write EUREKA CHEMICAL Co., La Crosse, Wis.

No Fire, Smoke, Heat. Absolutely Safe. Send 5 stamps for Catalogue. TRUSCOTT BOAT MFG. CO., ST. JOSEPH, MICH.

N. W. N. U. —No. 20.— 1900.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

PISO'S CURE FOR

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

CONSUMPTION

25 CTS. 25 CTS.

$15.77 ONLY 97 CENTS DOWN. Cut this ad. out and send to us with 97 cents, state whether ladies' or gents' bicycle is wanted, size of frame, and we will send you this High Grade 1900 Model $50.00 World Winner BICYCLE by freight C. O. D. subject to examination. Examine it at your freight office and if you find it a genuine 1900 model high grade $50.00 World Winner, the grandest bargain you ever saw or heard of and you are convinced it is worth $10.00 to $15.00 more than any wheel advertised by other houses up to $25.00, pay your freight agent or banker the balance, $14.80. The World Winner is covered by a BINDING GUARANTEE. Frame is 22 or 24 inch, made from best seamless tubing, finest one-piece hanger, finest full ball bearings, Mason arch crown, enameled black or maroon, highly nickel finished, Delhi padded saddle, adjustable handle bars, best Doyle pedals, high grade guaranteed pneumatic tires, fine leather bag, complete with tools and repair outfit. Order today. Bicycle catalogue free. $15.77 freight paid to ANY POINT EAST OF ROCKY MOUNTAINS. T. M. Roberts' Supply House, Minneapolis, Minn.

SEND NO MONEY. We ask no money until you have examined the machine and convinced yourself it is such a machine as was never before offered at anything like the price. OUR OFFER. Mention No. 92 if you have any use for a sewing machine. Don't send one cent of money, but write your name plainly and in full, name of postoffice and nearest railroad station, and we will send this drop head 5-drawer Cabinet Blue Ribbon Sewing Machine to your railroad station, PREPAYING ALL FREIGHT CHARGES ourselves; go there and examine it, call in any expert to examine it, compare it with machines that others sell at $40 to $60, and if every one pronounces it in every way the equal of such machines, the most wonderful bargain you ever heard of, pay freight agent our special introductory price, $16.27. If it is not perfectly satisfactory in every way, you will be under no obligations to take it. $16.27, freight and collection charges paid by us to any town east of Rocky Mountains for the No. 92 machine in our new Grand Five Drawer, Drop Head Cabinet Blue Ribbon; it eclipses all previous attempts at Sewing Machine values. Guaranteed 20 Years. $16.27 T. M. ROBERTS' SUPPLY HOUSE, Minneapolis, Minn.

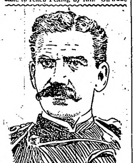
AS TOLD BY SEYMOUR

STORY OF THE ATTEMPT TO REACH PEKING.

Adventures and Hard Fighting of the Allies—They Arrived Within Twelve Miles of Peking but Extensive Destruction of the Railroad Necessitated Retreat—No Authentic Word as to the Whereabouts of the Foreign Ministers—The President Thinks the Situation Has Improved.

London, July 1, 3 a. m. — The adventures and hard fighting of the allies under Admiral Seymour, their reaching Anting, twelve miles from Peking, the decision to retreat, the capture of rice and immense stores of modern arms and ammunition, affording material for a strenuous defense until relieved, all this is told in a dispatch from Admiral Seymour, received by the admiralty at midnight, which runs as follows:

"Tien-tsin, June 27, via Chefu, June 29, 10:50 p. m.—Have returned to Tien-tsin with the forces, having been unable to reach Peking by rail. On June 13 two attacks on the advanced guard were made by the Boxers, who were repulsed with considerable loss to them and none on our side. On June 14



Maj. Gen. A. R. Chaffee,
Ordered to Take Command of American Land Forces in China.

The Boxers Attacked

the train at Lang Yang with modern arms and with great determination. We repulsed them with a loss of about 100 killed. Our loss was 5 Italians. The same afternoon the Boxers attacked the British guard left to protect Lofa station. Reinforcements were sent back and the enemy was driven off with a hundred killed. Two of our men were wounded. We pushed forward to Anting and engaged the enemy on June 15 and 16, inflicting a loss of 775. There were no losses on our side. Extensive destruction of the railway in our front had made further advance by railway impossible. I decided on June 18 to return to Tien-tsin, where it was proposed to Organize an Advance

by the river for Peking. After my departure from Lang Yang two trains that had been left to follow were attacked by the Boxers and imperial troops from Peking, who lost 400 to 500 killed. Our casualties were 6 killed and 48 wounded. These troops joined me at Yang-tsun the same evening. The railway to Yang-tsun was found entirely demolished and the trains could not be moved. Being in want of provisions and hampered with wounded compelled us to withdraw on Tien-tsin, with which we had not been in communication for six days, and our supplies cut off. On June 19 the wounded, with necessary supplies, started by boat, the forces marching alongside the river. Opposition was encountered along the whole course of the river from nearly every village, the

Boxers When Defeated

in one village, retiring to the next and skillfully retarding our progress by a series of intrenchments, from which they had to be forced often at the point of the bayonet and in face of a galling fire difficult to locate. On June 23 we made a night march, arriving at daybreak opposite the imperial armory above Tien-tsin, where, after friendly advances, a treacherous and heavy fire was opened while our men were exposed on the opposite side of the river bank. The enemy were kept in check by rifle fire in front, while their position was turned skillfully by a company under Maj. Johnson, who succeeded in turning their guns. The remaining

Guns Were Silenced

and we crossed the river. Determined attempts to retake the armory were made on the following day, but unsuccessfully. I found immense stores of stores, arms and ammunition of the latest pattern. Several of the guns were mounted and shelled the Chinese forts lower down. Having found ammunition and food we could have held out for some days, but being hampered with large numbers of wounded, I sent to Tien-tsin for which arrived on the morning of June 25. The armory was evacuated and the forces arrived at Tien-tsin on June 26. We burned the armory. Casualties to date: British, killed 27, wounded 71; Americans, killed 4; wounded 25; French, killed 1, wounded 10; Germans, killed 12, wounded 62; Italian, killed 5, wounded 3; Japanese, killed 2, wounded 3; Austrian, killed 1, wounded 1; Russian, killed 10, wounded 27."

A Relieving Force,

There is absolutely no authentic word as to the whereabouts of the members of the legations, although abundant reports from Chinese sources say that they were safe a few days ago.

President Sees Improvement.

Washington, July 1.—The president left Washington for his Canton home last night full of confidence that the situation in China has improved, although it is fair to say that all the members of his official family do not agree with him in that conclusion. Indeed, the day's news, limited though it was to a single cablegram from Admiral Kempff, and the preparation of instructions to Gen. Chaffee, set out nothing calculated to strengthen the hopes of the friends of the foreign ministers and the missionaries who have now been silent for fully two weeks. Kempff's cablegram was a disappointment in his confession that he knew nothing of the whereabouts of the

The Missing People,

and there are many expressions of wonder that neither that officer nor any of the foreign naval commanders at Taku have been ingenious enough to establish some system of spying so as to learn within two weeks what has taken place at Peking. Relative to the interesting story that an international accord has been arrived at as to the pro-tempore settlement of the Chinese trouble, state department officials say that while the United States is not a party to such an agreement, if the European powers and Japan have come to an understanding on the basis set out the results should be welcomed by all who have no selfish designs to satisfy.

BOERS HARD AT IT.

Guerrilla Operations Reported From Several Places.

London, July 1.—Active Boer guerrilla operations are reported from half a dozen places in Orange River Colony. The war office has received the following from Lord Roberts:

"Pretoria, June 29.—Paget reports from Lindley that he was engaged on June 26 with a body of the enemy who were strongly reinforced during the day. A convoy of stores for the Lindley garrison was also attacked on June 26, but after a heavy rear guard action the convoy reached Lindley in safety. Our casualties were 10 killed and 4 officers and about 40 men wounded. The yesterday was under Lieut. Col. Grenfell, not Dreiper. Brabant came up during the engagement. Total casualties of the two columns, 3 killed and 23 wounded. On the previous day, near Ficksburg, Boyes' brigade was in action with a body of the enemy. Our casualties were 2 officers killed, 4 men wounded and 1 man missing. Methuen found yesterday that the Boer laager near Vachkop and Spitzkop had been hastily removed in the direction of Lindley. He followed the enemy twelve miles and captured 800 sheep and 500 head of cattle which the enemy had seized in that neighborhood. Our casualties were 4 men wounded.

Fight Reported

Farmers Surrender.

"Hunter continued his march yesterday toward the Vaal river unopposed. Many farmers along the route have surrendered. Springs, the terminus of the railway from Johannesburg, due east, was attacked early yesterday morning. The Canadian regiment, which garrisons the place, beat off the enemy. No casualties are reported. Lieut. North, reported missing after the attack on the construction train, is a prisoner of the Boers."

Boer official reports from Machadodorp aver that a party of British

Convoy Was Captured

on June 24 near Winburg. The Lourenzo Marques correspondent of the Times says: "Both burghers and the foreigners who are are arriving here, profess a strong belief that it will take from three to six months to subdue the Boers." Another dispatch from the same place says:

"A consignment of a foreign firm marked 'Dutch cheese, damaged,' proved, on landing, to contain army boots for the Boers. It passed the customs, nevertheless, with unusual dispatch, and the British consul is making representations to the Portuguese government."

OREGON IS ASHORE.

The Big Battleship Meets With an Accident.

Shanghai, July 1. — It is reported here that the United States battleship Oregon is ashore on the island of Hoo-kie, in the Miao-tai group, fifty miles north of Chefu, and that a steamer of the Indo-China Steam Novigation company has gone to her assistance.

-o-

London, July 1.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Times, telegraphing yesterday, says: The United States battleship Oregon went ashore in a fog off Hoo-kie island, thirty-five miles north of Chefu. Messrs. Jardine, Mathieson & Co. are sending her assistance.

-o-

Washington, July 1. — Up to midnight last night no official news had been received in Washington bearing on the report that the battleship Oregon had gone ashore near Chefu. Early last week Admiral Remey was directed to send this vessel from Hongkonk to Taku. Capt. Wilde is her commander. She left Hongkong last Saturday night, two days ahead of her expected departure, and had on board in addition to her regular crew, 164 sailors and marines brought to Hongkong from Manila by the Zafiro. The distance she had to travel was about 1,500 miles, and the calculation of the naval officials here was that if the vessel made record time she would be at Taku in six days. Yesterday was the sixth the Oregon has been on her voyage, so that in all probability she must be in the vicinity of Chefu if she maintained her reputation as a fast battleship.

Big Plant Destroyed.

Solomonville, July 1. — At noon yesterday the reduction works of the Detroit Copper company at Mono caught fire and the entire plant was consumed. The works consisted of a 150-ton concentrator, smelter, furnaces and converters. The fire will throw a large number of men temporarily out of employment.

Praises Strathcona's Horse.

London, July 1. — Gen. Buller has telegraphed to Lord Strathcona, saying: "Your fine regiment joined my forces during the march here. I am glad to have it, for it is like being with old friends. They are very useful."

After Goebel Suspect.

Frankfort, Ky., July 1. — Robert Noakes, a railroad man now at Bristol, Tenn., is the name of the Goebel suspect for whom a warrant was issued yesterday. The requisition was made on the governor of Tennessee.

Will Give Two Popular Fetes.

Paris—Two popular fetes will be given at the exposition on July 7 and July 22. The first is in honor of the foreign commissioners and the second to the workmen of the exposition.

Names for New Warships.

Washington—Secretary Long has announced the names for the new naval ships as selected by the president. The two battleships will be called the Virginia and the Rhode Island, the armored cruisers will be the Maryland, Colorado and South Dakota, and the protected cruisers the St. Louis, Milwaukee and Charleston.

Dies While Offering Prayer.

Watertown, Wis.—Frank Kasten, a laborer, while in the midst of a prayer at the German Methodist camp meeting, dropped dead. He became very much excited over the services.

For Goethe's Mother.

Berlin—The citizens of Frankfort-on-the-Main are raising funds for a monument to Goethe's mother.

Holland's Oldest Actor.

Amsterdam—Holland has lost its oldest actor, Edward Bamberg, who first appeared upon the stage in 1823, at the age of eleven.

News of the Northwest

SEVERE TORNADO.

Three Men Injured by Falling Wall and May Die.

Black River Falls, Wis., June 29.—People who have lived here thirty-five years say they never saw or heard such a tornado here as came about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Shade trees, telephone and electric light poles and wires are a tangled mass and fill the streets and block the sidewalks. The belfry of the Universalist church was blown from the roof and demolished. Outhouses and hay barns suffered severely. A thousand shade trees are broken off or uprooted. D. J. Spaulding's brick warehouse and root cellar was demolished. Three young men cleaning brick at the old iron furnace took shelter behind a brick wall, which blew over onto them. They are all badly hurt and may die. The injured are Conrad Olson, Edward Linnell and Herbert Adams. The damage to growing crops is very severe, and reports from the line of the Green Bay road indicate that the storm was much more severe further north. The main storm did not last over three minutes.

GOV. LIND AT LAKEVIEW.

He Reviews the Militiamen, Who Make a Fine Appearance.

Lake City, Minn., June 29.—Though yesterday's weather at Camp Lakeview consisted of a high wind, a liberal amount of dust and sun, at "100 above," the guardsmen of the Second regiment, M. N. G., are making splendid progress in drills and things and Col. Bobleter has reason to be proud of the fact that the soldiers are showing such excellent efficiency in the "manipulation of arms." Notwithstanding the almost intense heat none of the drills mentioned in the daily routine were omitted, and every movement was accomplished in a manner that was highly gratifying to the commanding officer. The most inspiring event of the encampment occurred last evening when the regiment passed in review before Gov. Lind and the members of his staff. The review was a pretty sight and attracted a large concourse of citizens to the grounds.

MILWAUKEE'S CARNIVAL.

Flower Parade the Chief Attraction of the Day.

Milwaukee, June 29.—Large crowds poured into the city to enjoy the carnival festivities. The weather continues good and everything is going according to programme. The most beautiful attraction thus far was the floral parade, which moved over a five-mile course in the afternoon. Ex-Gov. Peck was again chief marshal of the pageant. While similar attractions of former festivals were looked upon as being perfect, this one far outshone all previous efforts, the success being largely due to the supervision of Mrs. George W. Peck, Jr.

VENDETTA IN WISCONSIN.

Man Accused of Murder Is Shot While Out on Bail.

Stevens Point, Wis., June 29.—Gabriel Green, who shot and killed Louis Wiesner in January last, was himself shot and fatally wounded yesterday. He was out on bail. Leo Wiesner, a brother of the murdered man, and Frank Gilsczinski, Wiesner's employe, were arrested charged with the shooting. Great excitement prevails.

RECKLESS SHOOTING.

Boy With Rifle Fires Upon Three Anoka Young Ladies.

Anoka, Minn., June 29.—The Misses Bruns, Reynolds and Carroll of this place while wheeling last evening near the Elm creek bridge in Hennepin county, were fired upon four times by a boy armed with a rifle. None of the shots took effect. The boy is known and will probably be prosecuted.

Destroyed by Forest Fires.

West Superior, Wis., June 29.—Forest fires are burning again in many parts of the county, and yesterday the trestle, half a mile in length, on the South Shore road at Rockmont was entirely burned. Debris fell on the Omaha tracks and delayed the train a few hours. It will probably take several days to rebuild the trestle.

Guthrie Acquitted.

Owatonna, Minn., June 29. — The case against Michael Guthrie of Blooming Prairie, terminated last night by the jury bringing in a verdict of not guilty. The defendant was charged with abetting an election fraud in the recent municipal election at Blooming Prairie. The other cases were dismissed.

Old Settlers' Reunion.

Spring Valley, Minn., June 29.—The old settlers of Fillmore county held their annual meeting here yesterday and though the Winona county association failed to arrive by reason of a wash-out on the railroad, which was a great disappointment, there was a large crowd in attendance.

Laying New Track.

Faribault, Minn., June 30. — John Grant, the well known railroad contractor, left with his outfit and a number of teams and men for Casselton, N. D., where he begins work on a contract for laying and surfacing sixty-four miles of new track for the Great Northern railway.

Damage Not Heavy.

Winona, Minn., June 29.—The damage done by the cloudburst here Tuesday evening was not so heavy as at first supposed. Four thousand dollars will cover the loss.

Boys Killed by Lightning.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, June 29.—William and Ross Busby, aged 22 and 19, were killed by lightning while in a hay barn near here. The bodies were partly cremated.

Serious Accident.

Mantorville, Minn., June 29.—While assisting the county surveyor yesterday afternoon D. C. Gardner, a farmer living seven miles northwest of here, had his [illegible] in two places and his collar bone dislocated by being thrown from his buggy.

Crops Were Damaged.

Lincoln, Neb., June 30.—Journal specials from Bancroft, Homer and Norfolk tell of a disastrous wind storm which swept over Northwestern Nebraska yesterday. Small grain in a limited district was blown flat, and corn damaged. Many trees and small houses were blown down.

Appointed to a Cadetship.

Madelia, Minn., June 30.—Congressman McCleary appointed Segurd Hage to a cadetship at Annapolis. Hage is eighteen years old.

ST. PAUL BROKERS CAUGHT.

Firm of James Doran & Co. Fails for $300,000.

St. Paul, June 30.—James Doran & Co., brokers, did not open for business this morning. The firm was on the wrong side of the market in the recent bulge in the price of wheat. James Doran said:

"I went wrong on wheat at 78 cents. The slump yesterday was too late to do me any good. I shall fail for about $300,000. I have not had time yet to figure up the exact amount, so say it is somewhere between $300,000 and $400,000."

Mr. Doran, like the majority of the Northwestern operators, felt that wheat was too low in the 60's, but, after the phenomenally rapid rise from about 67 cents to 78 cents, he thought a reaction was due. In backing his judgment he has met the misfortune that overtakes many able operators on the board of trade. He has a host of friends who have every confidence in his ability and integrity and feel sure that he will retrieve himself.

FARMER'S WIFE ELOPES.

Took Her Children and Went Away With a Neighbor.

Huron, S. D., June 30.—The wife of Gus Schultz, a well-to-do farmer of this county, mysteriously disappeared a week or more ago, as dis also three of her four children. About the same time a man named Alex Radisty, who had been living in the neighborhood of the Schultz farm, was no longer to be seen. Search for the missing woman and children was instituted by the husband and investigation developed a full grown elopement. The trail of the offending parties lead westward, and a day or two since they were located at a point in the Black Hills, and later a telegram from Rapid City told of their arrest at that place. Sheriff Medbery has gone to Rapid City to bring them to this city.

FIRST RAIN FOR WEEKS.

Came Just in Time to Prevent a Complete Failure of Crops.

Hammond, Wis., June 30.—At noon yesterday the first rain which this section has had in many weeks fell. For several weeks past every one around here has been worrying about the drouth, which has caused a total loss of the hay crop and greatly damaged everything. Pastures are gone. The rain was accompanied by quite a fall of hail, which did little damage to the crops. The rain continued about an hour, and then a little later we got a good solid rainstorm, lasting about another hour. The oldest settlers cannot remember the time when it was as dry as the past few weeks have been, but all have taken heart again. The rain came just in time to save a complete failure of the crops.

FORMER HUSBAND RETURNS.

He Finds His Wife Has Married—She Obtains a Divorce.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 30.—Several years ago a man named Smith disappeared from Roberts county and was afterward reported to have died in California. His widow, believing there was no question of his death, married Robert Kennedy and lived with him until a couple of weeks ago, when Smith unexpectedly appeared on the scene. His former wife applied for a divorce from him, which was granted, and she has now been remarried to Kennedy.

GRAIN TOTALLY DESTROYED.

Heavy Wind and Hail Storm Passes Over a Section of Wisconsin.

Merrillan, Wis., June 30.—One of the most heavy wind and hail storms that has visited this county for years passed over this place. Hail fell the size of walnuts, and for half an hour the storm continued. West of here grain was leveled to the ground; shade trees were uprooted and delayed traffic, several large barns were blown flat and in one of these three persons are supposed to be. Grain in some places is supposed to be totally destroyed.

FAIR GROUNDS DAMAGED.

Biggest Item of Loss in Black River Falls' Tornado.

Black River Falls, Wis., June 30.—The most serious financial damage by the tornado here Wednesday was at the fair grounds, where twenty-five rods of stables, the fine arts building and band stand are entirely demolished. Shade trees and fences suffered badly. The three young men hurt are improving.

Good Templars Elect Officers.

Watertown, S. D., June 30.—The session of the grand lodge of the Independent order of Good Templars has closed after electing the following officers: Grand templar, G. W. Carpenter, Watertown; grand counsellor, Mrs. Steele, Goodwin; grand secretary, Miss Eva Williams, Watertown; treasurer, W. W. Harper, Milbank; vice templar, Florence Alquire, Sioux Falls. The grand lodge is now out of debt.

Girl Suicides in River.

Neche, N. D., June 30.—Lettie Brock, an eighteen-year-old domestic of Haverlock, Ont., and for the past six months employed at the United States hotel at this place, suicided by drowning in the Pembina river. The body was recovered. Despondency occasioned by the loss of her situation is believed to have been the motive for the deed.

Sympathy for Boers.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 30.—The Christian Reformed Church Synod of America adopted resolutions of sympathy for the Boers in their conflict with Great Britain. A copy will be sent to President Kruger.

Killed by Lightning.

Hamilton, Ohio, June 30.—A terrific thunder storm swept over this city just before noon. Frank Leugers, a molder, was killed by lightning on the street while going to dinner. Four companions were shocked but will survive.

Deaths From Yellow Fever.

Oaxaca, Mex., June 30.—A number of prominent people have died of yellow fever here. They contracted the fever at Tehuantepec. Among them is district Judge Ortega. The fever is of a virulent type.

Burlington, Iowa, June 30. — F. B. Pugh, ex-city clerk, was found dead, hanging in an apple orchard on his father's farm in Illinois. He had been in poor health for some time, which affected his reason. On this account he resigned the city clerkship about a month ago. His aged parents and one brother survive him.

INDIAN OUTBREAK

Is Feared at Rainy River, Minn.—Settlers Are Leaving.

Winnipeg, July 1. — A Rat Portage special says that the steamer Keenora has just arrived there with 100 women and children, refugees from Rainy River, Minn., who are leaving the district owing to expected Indian troubles. The residents of Koochoching, Minn., are deserting everything and moving across the river to Fort Francis, Ont., for protection. The Indians of the district, numbering 1,000, have divided into two hostile bands. The captain of the Keenora says that all the remaining women and children of the district are to be down on the next steamer, and arms are urgently besought by the settlers. The excitement is intense.

FROST IN RED RIVER VALLEY.

Flax Slightly Damaged but Wheat Could Not Be Hurt.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 1. — The temperature drooped below freezing point in many places in the valley and tender vegetables in exposed places were injured and some grain fields show signs of frost. The evidences of injury are confined in the case of wheat to the edges of the leaves and the outer layer of chaff, and even this is not general. The frost is generally viewed with indifference, as little hope is now entertained for the wheat crop. Flax is said to have been somewhat damaged, but farmers who have reported say that the damage has not reached the main stalk of the plant. A light shower Thursday morning is the only rain which has fallen in this section since the hot winds of last week, and the situation in the Northwest looks desperate except in a few favorite localities.

TIMBER VALUATIONS.

They Have Been More Than Doubled by St. Louis County Authorities.

Duluth, Minn., July 1.—The county authorities have made a raise of over 100 per cent in valuations of standing timber in this county. The valuations of this property have not been adjusted in many years, though values have tripled in the past two years. The only reports in so far are from unorganized towns, where the increase is from $4,500,000 to $9,400,000. As cut-over lands have been reduced considerably, this means that valuations on standing timber have been more than doubled.

FATAL ACCIDENTS.

Two Runaways Resulting in Two Deaths.

Spring Valley, Wis., July 1. — Mrs. Peter Smith was killed in a runaway yesterday, being thrown out of a wagon onto a sharp stump, which completely disemboweled her. She leaves two small children.

Dexter, Minn., June 30.—Nels Olson, a farmer living near Elkton, was instantly killed by being thrown from a wagon. He was fifty-five years old and leaves a small family.

CLOSE SEVENTY ELEVATORS.

Cargill Company Will Call in Its Buyers for the Season.

La Crosse, Wis., July 1. — The W. W. Cargill Elevator company, which runs an extensive line of elevators through the wheat region, announces that, owing to the prospective wheat crop shortage all of their elevators north of the Litchfield line will not be opened this year. This affects seventy of this company's elevators. They will retain all persons employed by them at these elevators, at an expense of nearly $50,000.

A SMALL CYCLONE.

Cuts a Path Thirty Rods Wide and Causes Considerable Damage.

Plainfield, Wis., July 1.—A cyclone passed over a small strip of country in Pine Grove, seven miles north of here. The path of the storm was only about thirty rods wide, but fences were leveled, trees broken down and uprooted, and a large hay barracks on the farm of Charles Ellis was completely demolished. It is the first "twister" in many years in this vicinity.

It Is Not Leprosy.

Cumberland, Wis., July 1. — Health Officer Garrett, who has been investigating the leprosy scare near this city, has submitted the case to the state board of health, who has decided that it is not a case of leprosy. The patient is Mrs. John Lindstrom, who has submitted cheerfully to all investigation in order that the truth might be known. It has proved simply a case of scrofula.

W. C. T. U. Election of Officers.

Hastings, Minn., July 1. — At yesterday's session of the twelfth annual convention of the Seventh District Woman's Christian Temperance union the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. J. A. Clifford, Northfield; vice president, Mrs. M. J. Rust, Hastings; secretary, Miss Ethel F. Taylor, Cannon Falls; treasurer, Mrs. S. D. Conley, Cannon Falls.

Feed Store Burned.

St. Paul, July 1. — For the third time within the past year the feed store of Jameson & Hevener, 181 East Sixth street, was damaged by fire yesterday afternoon. The loss on stock and building will be $20,000, covered by insurance. It was undoubtedly of incendiary origin.

Sudden Death.

New Hampton, Iowa, July 1. — News comes that I. M. Weed, a prominent attorney of West Union, Iowa, died suddenly from hemorrhage of the stomach. For twenty-five years he had been in business in West Union.

Button Cutters Strike.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., July 1. — A strike occurred at the Prairie du Chien Button company's plant owing to a refusal of one-half cent per gross to button cutters. Thirty-eight cutters are now on strike.

Creamery Burned.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, July 1. — The Rockwell City creamery, the largest creamery in this part of Iowa, was burned. Some of the valuable equipment was saved, but the greater part of it was destroyed with the building. The creamery belonged to Andrew Wood & Co.

Instructed for La Follette.

West Superior, Wis., July 1. — Two conventions, giving seventeen votes for La Follette, were unanimous in instructing for him yesterday. Kerby Thomas and A. G. Titus head the delegations.

In Minnesota.

State News of the Week Briefly Told.

S. Winn was killed by an ore train near Cloquet.

J. C. Pratt of Stillwater was drowned at Carnelian lake.

A cloudburst at Sugar Loaf, near Winona, caused a damage of $3,000.

Peter McNally, a Great Northern brakeman, was killed at St. Cloud.

Census returns will show that Winona has a population slightly in excess of 25,000.

Reports from Rice county indicate that scarcely a third of a crop will be realized.

Henry Finehout, the oldest railway conductor in the world, died of heart failure at St. Cloud.

People of Northern counties are agitating the matter of a new water route from Bemidji to Leech lake.

Leo Rupp and Charles Thienes of St. Cloud were drowned while bathing. They were about ten years old.

The two-year-old son of Samuel Wheeler of Sleepy Eye was burned to death while playing with gasoline.

Anthony Case, a marine engineer, has disappeared from Duluth and no trace has been seen of him for several days.

Herbert Wigdall, aged twelve, and Floryan Lorsinski, aged six, were drowned while bathing in the river at Winona.

The Minnesota Norwegian synod held its sixteenth annual meeting at Willmar. About 600 ministers and laymen were present.

St. Martin, Stearns county, experienced a $5,000 fire recently. The hotel, Catholic church and house of M. Weier were destroyed.

P. J. Regan, a Great Northern employe, was seriously injured near Willmar by being struck on the head with a cable-stretcher.

The semi-centennial of the entrance of Episcopal missionaries into Minnesota was celebrated at Christ church, St. Paul, last week.

O. Christianson of Preston, went insane and cut his hand off with an axe. He has been taken to Rochester. He was eighty years old.

The year-old child of George Chuba of Two Rivers tipped a pan of hot water over and was so badly scalded that it died in a few hours.

W. W. Wilkin, a highly-respected citizen of Steele county, died at Owatonna recently. At one time he was a member of the legislature.

While James Ballard, an oiler at the Glenmont mill at Cass Lake, was oiling some cups on a carriage, the band saw broke and cut the thumb off his hand.

The barn and machine shed of Jesse Hanner, a farmer living northwest of Northfield, were burned to the ground. All harness and farm machinery were burned.

The summer school for the counties of Stearns, Benton, Sherburne and Morrison will be held in the normal school building, St. Cloud. The school begins July 9 and lasts four weeks.

The foundations for the normal school building at Duluth are completed and work on the superstructure is beginning. This will be red stone and buff brick. It is intended to have the building under roof by the coming autumn.

Eugene Meade, a young man living a few miles west of Little Falls, was arrested at St. Cloud and taken to Little Falls Saturday. Meade was in possession of a bicycle which he had stolen from Nathe Bros. of Little Falls, and his attempt to dispose of it at St. Cloud led to his arrest. He admits his guilt.

The Dairymen and Buttermakers' association of Faribault county met in Blue Earth recently for the purpose of adopting a constitution and by-laws.

The Wells creamery company organized recently with thirty stockholders. G. M. Graham is president; M. Olson, treasurer. They will build a creamery costing about $5,000.

The rest of the people are having a quiet laugh at the republicans who met in county convention at Duluth last week. Among the officers nominated was M. Douglas, an attorney, for the office of court commissioner. It so happens that this office does not become vacant for two years, and no election can be held for it now.

Daniel Alguire was brought from Ogilvie, being found in the woods near that place, in a terrible condition. His eyesight was totally gone, and when discovered he was crawling on his hands and knees, imagining he was in the house, and was practically insane. He was in a starved condition, and had evidently been without food for several days.

John Mitchell, head of the large contracting firm of Powers & Mitchell of Marquette, died at Two Harbors in a very peculiar manner. On his way to the breakwater contract over which he had charge, he grew weary and sat down against some timbers, in plain sight of the men at work. An investigation proved that he died almost instantly upon sitting down.

John Mertes, an aged farmer of St. Joseph township, near St. Cloud, was severely injured in a runaway. He had been delivering milk to the creamery, and as he was leaving for home, the team became frightened as he was unhitching them, and he was knocked down by the buggy pole, stepped on by one of the horses, and the buggy wheels passed over him, cutting his head badly and bruising and cutting one leg severely.

An executive committee of seven prominent citizens of Glenwood, assisted by a number of special subcommittees, is making preparations for the reception and entertainment of the big crowd which will visit Glenwood on July 17. That day will mark the arrival of M. A. W. excursionists from Morrison county and points between Little Falls and Glenwood. This excursion will start on the Soo as far west as Harvey, N. D. Glenwood is preparing to entertain fully 5,000 visitors on that day.

M. McCarthy, a saloonkeeper of Detroit, was shot by E. G. Holmes, the banker and merchant. After a heated altercation over electric light matters, Holmes was passing down Washington avenue in his family carriage, when McCarthy approached him. He was warned to keep away by Holmes, who told the driver to go ahead, but McCarthy sprang into the carriage, and Holmes drew a revolver and fired, the ball striking McCarthy's head, but glanced off, and the wound will not prove serious.

Mrs. Willey McLean, sister-in-law of John R. McLean, died at the Hotel Victory, Put-in-Bay, Ohio.

ADVICE TO THE FARMERS.

Prof. Liggett Issues a Bulletin on the Fodder Question.

Information has been received that leads to the suspicion that an effort is being made by unscrupulous individuals, at least in certain sections of the state, to stampede the farmers into turning off their stock for fear of inability to provide fodder for them. Secretary Randall, of the state agricultural society, is advised of an instance where two men, evidently working in concert, went through a certain locality a day or two apart. The first one made it his business to talk to the farmers along the road almost pessimistically about the situation. He represented the drouth and scarcity of pasturage as general, and expressed the opinion that in a short time stock wouldn't be worth anything at all. After the farmer had had a day or two to think this over, along came the second man, prepared to buy stock, provided he could get it cheap enough. And in a number of cases he was able to make deals to his satisfaction.

The general situation has been made the subject of a bulletin by Director W. M. Liggett, of the agricultural station, and it will be scattered broadcast over the state. The point is that, in the first place, it is too early to sell stock, for the fodder question is not altogether hopeless; and, in the second place, there is no reason why any farmer, selling now or in the near future, should not get a good price. The bulletin is as follows:

"Many farmers, alarmed at the shortage of pasturage, as well as oats and hay crops, are already selling their cattle. The only purchasers, at a low price, for speculation, are dealers. In recent years much has been done to stimulate the growth of live stock in Minnesota, especially the cattle industry. These cattle, and particularly the females, are needed on the farm. If sold now, how are they to be replaced? Fat stock of all kinds is selling at good prices in the market. While the drouth in the Northwest is serious, do not overlook the fact that Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and other states have an abundance of food of all kinds, and the farmers in these states will be willing to pay good prices for stockers in the autumn months. Keep your growing stock, and do everything possible to provide food for it, which may be grown if rain comes soon. Plant fodder corn as Bulletin No. 10 directs; also, other pasturage and forage foods. Oats and barley mixed, or oats alone, sown as late as the first week in July, will furnish a large amount of pasture. Winter rye sown at any time between now, and the 1st of September, will also furnish much pasture. That sown in August may also be grazed the following spring. A full crop of rape may be grown sown as late as the middle of July. Rape, well grown, furnishes an enormous amount of pasturage. Rape should be sown with a drill, if one suitable can be had, but may also be sown broadcast, using four to five pounds of sed per acre, and covered with a harrow. Use the Dwarf Essex variety. If no rain falls within a reasonable time, and food cannot be grown and it becomes necessary to sell much of the stock, it should not be sold at a sacrifice, but there should be some intelligent effort made made by the farmers to ship the stock to the best available market; keeping the choice females."

HAS RIGHT TO ORDER FORMS.

Attorney General Sustains Public Examiner's Circular.

Some of the county auditors of the state do not take kindly to Public Examiner Pope's innovations in the manner of bookkeeping, and particularly to his requirements as to the forms to be observed in paying out public funds and the record thereof. The attorney general is receiving, almost daily, inquiries as to the authority of the public examiner in the premises.

The question is a somewhat delicate one, inasmuch as the attorney general is the legal adviser of the public examiner, although the attorney general was not consulted in advance of the issue of the public examiner's circulars of instructions. Two separate legal provisions are involved, the public examiner getting his authority to advise and enforce a uniform system of bookkeeping from one section, while the form of payments of public money is covered by another section of the statutes.

In answering the inquiries from county officials, the attorney general's office is advising them that the statute seems to give the public examiner absolute power to make and enforce requirements as to county bookkeeping. As to the matter of paying out public funds, it is suggested that the proper authority to advise them is their own county attorney.

MINNESOTA CROPS.

The weekly report of the federal officer for Minnesota, covering crop conditions, states:

"The latter part of the week was very warm, with the maximum temperature ranging from 90 to 95 degrees. Local and generally very light showers early in the week relieved the extremely dry conditions hardly more than a momentary freshening of the verdure. From the middle Minnesota valley southward, and in southeastern counties lying along the Iowa line, owing to rains of previous weeks, the drouth is not felt so severely; but even in those sections the crops are not nearly so good as usual. Spring wheat seems to be standing the dry conditions better than oats and barley, but on sandy soil the crops are said to be so dried up as to not worth cutting. On heavier soils all the same grains may yield some grain; but the straw is short, the stand irregular and thin, and the heads small. Grain is heading in all parts of the state.

BRITISH LAWYER BANKRUPT.

His Liabilities Placed at Over a Million Dollars.

London, June 29.—In the bankruptcy court a receiving order was made against Benjamin Greenlake, a lawyer, with liabilities of between £200,000 and £300,000.

Store and Dwelling Burned.

Madelia, Minn., June 29. — John Dodge's store and a dwelling at Grogan, near here, were burned last night. Loss, $5,000.

Drouth in Arizona.

Phoenix, Ariz., June 30. — The prolonged drouth in Salt river valley has done many thousand dollars worth of damage and threatens the grain and fruit crops not harvested. Cattle are in bad condition and many ranchers are disposing of their stock as quickly as possible.

Gold Standard in Haiti.

Washington, June 30. — The department of state is advised by Minister Powell, at Port au Prince, that he had been informed that the government of Haiti had adopted the gold standard, and that the unit of value is the American gold dollar.

Minnesota Historical Society
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XIX ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 11, 1900. NUMBER 51.

A WEEK OF GREAT EVENTS

THE KANSAS CITY CONVENTION THE GREATEST IN THE PARTY'S HISTORY.

Governor Lind's Determination to Compel the Standard Oil Company to Pay Its Share of Taxes in This State—The Railroad Commission Declares the Sale of the St. Paul and Duluth Void—More Involved of a Public Nature Than the Railroads Care to Have the Public Know—Miscellaneous Political Comment Covering the Events of an Interesting Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, July 9, 1900.

It is impossible to give anything like a reliable forecast of the work of the Kansas City convention. Suffice it to say that the convention was the largest and most enthusiastic of any ever held under the auspices of the Democratic party. This augurs immensely for success, not only in the nation but in Minnesota all along the line.

With a united party, with Bryan as the matchless standard bearer, with issues that stir men's hearts and with a cause that is righteous and just, how can we fail!

When Governor Lind, some weeks ago, reminded the Republican secretary of state that by doing his full duty in the enforcement of the Somerville law the state treasury would be enriched many thousands of dollars he did that which cannot fail to redound to his material advantage when he comes to seek the suffrages of the people at the polls this fall. To be sure the secretary winced and said he could not see wherein it was any of the governor's business to be pointing out his plain duty and bidding him perform it, but what of that! The governor saw that the law wasn't being enforced, that the state was being deprived of money that was justly its due, and as long as the secretary didn't know enough to act for himself, the people are not going to blame Governor Lind for coming to his rescue, even if it did involve an exercise of authority not strictly within his province. On the contrary, they will reward him as a servant, who, like the man who carried the message to Garcia, doesn't need to be told what to do, but goes ahead and does it.

Now comes another matter in which Governor Lind does credit to himself by performing an act, not necessarily within his province, but nevertheless of great importance to the state.

The Standard Oil company is a corporation, incorporated under the laws of this state, and having general offices in the city of Minneapolis. In a communication addressed to the Hennepin county assessor Governor Lind points out that this corporation has a stated capital of $500,000 and is as clearly subject to taxation as any other corporation in Hennepin county, notwithstanding the fact that it has escaped such taxation during all the years in which it has been reaping profits from a monopoly of the business of this state. To assist the assessor in reaching a proper valuation the governor says: "Under the provisions of the Standard Oil trust it appears that one of the terms of the agreement was that corporations, to be called the Standard Oil company of the state in which they incorporated, should be incorporated from time to time in the several states of the Union as the trustees might direct and as the business interests of the trust might suggest; that the capitalization of the state corporation should be the equivalent of its property and instrumentalities for carrying on business in the state; and that so soon as the new corporation was incorporated, pursuant to this agreement, the stock of the corporation in excess of the number of shares equal to the number of directors of the corporation should be transferred to the trustees of the Standard Oil trust who would issue in lieu thereof trust certificates for the face value of the shares so deposited. These trust certificates, it appears, are now quoted at from three to five times their face value."

Now, if the Hennepin assessor will only follow the governor's suggestion and enter up for taxation, at a fair valuation, the property of this grasping institution the gain to the state will simply be enormous, for under a recent ruling of the United States supreme court the assessor can and should enter up the property for at least six years of the time during which it has been delinquent.

In this connection it might be interesting to note that Governor Lind addressed his letter to the Hennepin assessor on the very day that the Republican convention nominated for the important office of railroad commissioner one of the Standard Oil company's hired men at Two Harbors.

Some statesmen there are, some politicians, whose influence ceases the moment they retire from active public service. Not so with Tom Reed. From his lawyer's office in New York he continues to express himself on all public questions, and it is remarkable to observe with what consideration his words are received. For example, the brainy ex-speaker is known to have absolutely no sympathy with the expansionist policy of the McKinley administration, and it is due chiefly to his caustic criticism of the Philadelphia nominations that many have been turned against the ticket who otherwise might have been enthusiastic in its support. In one instance, at least, a man who gave $10,000 to the Republican campaign fund four years ago has told his friends that he will give nothing this year and he attributes his change of heart solely to the reasoning and position of Mr. Reed.

It is good news that Editor Hearst of the New York Journal and San Francisco Examiner gives to the Democracy of the country and especially of the West this week. It is the announcement of a new journal in Chicago, to be inaugurated at once, to be known as the "Chicago American," and to be devoted, under Mr. Hearst's management, to the furtherance of American ideas and principles and the support, as the best representative of these ideas and principles of the Democratic party and the Democratic candidate, William Jennings Bryan. It is needless to say that the courageous and energetic Mr. Hearst will make of his new venture a complete success and that the Chicago American will during the coming campaign be of incalculable assistance to the supporters of Mr. Bryan.

The railroad and warehouse commission, nothing daunted by the ridicule of railway attorneys and railway interests, has come to the definite conclusion that the St. Paul and Duluth and Northern Pacific are competing lines of railway for the transportation of freight, merchandise and passengers from the city of Duluth to the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and that therefore the sale of the St. Paul and Duluth to the Northern Pacific Railroad company is in all respects in violation of the laws of the state and void. That a great legal battle will follow as a result of this conclusion is already apparent and upon the issue more depends than the railroads would have the public believe. In fact, the contest will be one in which not only the country tributary to the two roads, but the entire state will be vitally interested. The St. Paul and Duluth, it must be remembered, is the only road doing business in Minnesota that lies wholly within the state. It is the only one, therefore, of all the roads operating between the Twin Cities and the head of the lakes that is amenable solely and exclusively to the laws of this state and to the control of the railroad commission. All others originate without or extend beyond the borders of the state and can to a great extent make themselves secure in their schedules of charges and prevent the wholesome interference of our state railway commission by alleging the carrying on of an interstate business. It is plain, therefore, that the absorption of the St. Paul and Duluth by the Northern Pacific would be a public misfortune. It was through the independent character of the St. Paul and Duluth that the decision in the New Ulm coal rate case, affecting the whole southwestern portion of the state, was made possible. With the St. Paul and Duluth merged in the Northern Pacific this eminently fair and timely decision would be void and of no effect, the Northern Pacific as an interstate line being in a position to ignore the commission's ruling by setting up the plea of interstate business over which the commission could exercise no control.

Viewed in this light the question becomes a public one, and the people of the state ought to appreciate the excellent judgment of Governor Lind in giving them a commission that is ever alert to the public interests and doesn't wait for proceedings to be instituted by private citizens, but takes up matters of this vital character on its own motion. We predict that when all of the commission's grounds for action are made known there will be as pronounced a kick throughout the state against the consolidation of these two roads as there was against the proposed consolidation of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern some years ago.

The Republicans in their platform say they favor a gross earnings tax on railroads. So do the Democrats. The only difference is this: The Republicans are satisfied with a tax of 3 per cent; the Democrats insist that it shall be raised to 4 per cent. The people are with the Democrats; the railroads with the Republicans.

General Moses E. Clapp: "The Republicans would rather nominate Van Sant than elect me."

The Sauk Center Avalanche sees in the new men at the helm in state Republican politics great concern for certain classes. Thus, all country merchants will be specially benefitted by the prominence given General S. E. Olsen, the department store prince, labor will "rejoice" over the honors conferred on Magnate Tom Lowry, and every user of a shingle, a lath or a piece of board will be tickled to death that Tom Shevlin, head of the Minneapolis lumber trust, is to be national committeeman.

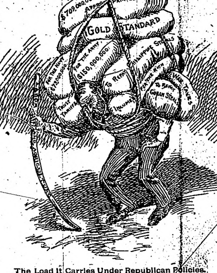
Sept. 6 is the date set for the allied forces to make up the ticket which will do the sweeping in November.

The Windom Press, Republican, frankly admits that Lind has made so good a governor that he is entitled to another term if he wants it.

The Litchfield Independent contends that the Republican state convention made a horrible mess of its work from the standpoint of geographical considerations. For example it points out that the nominees for governor and chief justice hail from the adjoining counties of Winona and Olmstead. The candidate for attorney general and one of the nominees for railroad commissioner both come from the single county of Clay in the Red River valley. Meeker county gets the nomination for secretary of state, but is not entitled to it, having furnished the state treasurer for six years past. Lake county, which hasn't a single inhabitant outside of two townships, secures a place on the railroad commission. But then if the only mistakes made by the convention had been geographical ones, it wouldn't have been so bad.

G. S. O.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY.



The Load It Carries Under Republican Policies.
—National Watchman.

CORPORATE INFLUENCE

Its Grip on the Republican Party of the State is Very Plainly Indicated.

Miller, Who Seeks to Be Railroad Commissioner, a Steel Trust Employee.

Other Candidates Are Named Solely Because Corporations Wanted Them.

The Republican state convention, which, among other things, nominated that indefatigable office-seeker, Samuel R. Van Sant, to lead the forlorn hope against the great commoner, John Lind, was remarkable at least for two things:

First, the hippodrome character, trotting out and naming the candidates for all of the leading positions with all the clock-work nicety of a circus that does exactly as advertised.

Second, its complete submission to machine and corporate interests whenever those interests chose to show their hand.

Other Republican conventions have now and then on particular offices bowed the knee to machine dictation, but in this instance the knee was crooked all along the line.

Consider in the first place with what meekness of spirit that great gathering of delegates yielded to the selection of Senator Ed. Young as permanent presiding officer. Personally Mr. Young is a very agreeable fellow, a capable lawyer and withal a good speaker but is it not strange that the Republicans in convention assembled should have altogether forgotten the record which he carved out for himself and his party associates in the Senate. When, as chairman of the judiciary committee, he led the fight on, and killed, the most popular and meritorious bill introduced in either house during the last session—the bill to increase the gross earnings tax on railroads from three to four per cent? Are not the people justified in considering Mr. Young's selection as chairman as an evidence of approval of his senatorial action? Could the corporate interests, which conspired to defeat the increased gross earnings tax in the Senate, have shown their absolute control over the Republican convention in any manner more emphatic than by the magnificent endorsement which they secured for Senator Young?

Again, compare the treatment accorded Mr. Merrill, of Minneapolis, with that given to Peter E. Hanson, of Litchfield. Hanson, notwithstanding the fact that as a senator some years ago he voted against the passage of that excellent law, known as the Anderson tax law, is given the nomination for secretary of state. Merrill, on the other hand, is hardly mentioned for the place to which he aspired, notwithstanding he was the author of this same law and would without doubt have made an excellent member of the railroad commission.

Then, too, the selections made for places on the railroad commission showed beyond any question the high-handed manipulation of machine and corporate influences. To be sure, sop was thrown to the people in the nomination of Mr. Staples, but there the concession ended. Miller, a young and inexperienced clerk in one of the Rockefeller offices at Two Harbors, was put forward for one of the four-year terms, and Ira B. Mills, a member of the former Republican commission and a man of conceded railroad leanings, was cleverly worked into the other. Against this arrangement the well-minded portion of the convention was absolutely helpless. Old-time leaders were actually hissed and silenced when they tried to counsel reason and fair dealing. The slate was fixed and it had to be forced through by fair means or foul. Think of it! The great Republican party of Minnesota nominating a boy for railroad commissioner because the Federal Steel Trust and Rockefeller wanted him! Think of it once more honoring the member of a commission that the people of the state had less than two years ago repudiated! Is it not about time that the honest rank and file of the party opened their eyes?

Mills' election would mean a commission to which the people would look in vain for energetic treatment of the questions coming before it. Miller's election would mean a commission that, as far as he was concerded, would do the Rockefeller bidding. If such were not the case he would not be on the ticket to-day.

Will the people of the state stand for it?

Speaking of the nomination of Mills that staunch Republican organ, the Minneapolis Journal, has this to say:

The nomination of Mr. Mills the Journal cannot regard as other than a political mistake. In our judgment it was unfortunate to take any one from the old commission, and, also, bad politics to offer to the people of this state for their support at the polls a man who, according to his own admission, furnished to both the house and senate a copy of a bill which came to be known as the Miller bill, which passed both houses but was vetoed by the governor because it at least made doubtful against public interest a law which before was free from doubt in favor of the public interest. That the enactment of the law would have had that effect The Journal has the best obtainable legal advice and fully believes. There was plenty of good material at hand out of which to complete a good ticket without placing upon it the name of a man who, however honorable his intentions may have been, will be compelled to defend this unfortunate official act from now until election day.

Says the Globe of St. Paul: It will not be surprising if the people at the polls repudiate the Republican state convention and all its works. It now rests with the Democratic party of Minnesota to give the people a set of candidates they can vote for without feeling that they are handing the state's affairs over to the control of some employe of a grabbing corporation.

In this connection, while talk is rife all over the state concerning the Republican nominees for railroad commissioners, it might not be out of place to quote what Senator Miller, a Republican, has to say of the reduction in grain rates, brought about by the present commission, appointed by Gov. Lind. Here it is:

"The result, with its consequent great benefits to the farmers of this section, is a triumph of public interests over the greed of railroad corporations, which is very gratifying and encouraging. For the good work accomplished by the railroad commission the Herald freely gives to those officials unqualified credit. By comparison of the new rates with the rates in effect before the first reduction was secured, it will appear that the total reduction from Rock county markets and from most other points in southwestern Minnesota to the Twin Cities amounts to four cents per 100 on flax and three cents per 100 on wheat. On other grains the new rates give a reduction of about one cent per 100. This means an increase of over 2 cents per bushel for flax, nearly two cents per bushel for wheat, and in the neighborhood of one cent per bushel for other grain. Applied to the total products of the county it means an enormous increase in the profits of our farmers, and gives an indication of what may be accomplished for the benefit of the public by earnest and faithful effort on the part of our representatives in positions of public trust."

In an editorial reviewing the administration of Governor Lind, the Faribault Pilot says:

"The opponents of Governor Lind will have to assail his politics in the pending campaign, as his official record is invulnerable.

None can question or doubt the statement of the Pilot. If Lind has been a disappointment to any, it is to the 'old gang' that was not permitted to dictate the policy of his administration. The confidence expressed for him two years ago will be renewed when the time comes for action.—Morton Enterprise.

Republicans are a part of the people in Minnesota, and when a man performs "every act" of the duties of a high office like that of governor "after careful consideration of its effect on the people," he is just the kind of man the people want. For forty years the Israelites wandered in the wilderness. For forty years Republicans in Minnesota allowed themselves to be led or driven to continuing in office the Republican administration of affairs believing that the state would be dishonored by the election of any other. But nearly two years ago John Lind was elected and now even rabid Republicans are forced to "point with pride" to his administration, and Republicans, true Republicans are a proud people, and they like something like that to be proud of.—Delano Gazette. Republican.

CORPORATION CANDIDATES AND STARS.

St. Paul Globe:

The great blunder, if it was a blunder and not the result of deliberate purpose made by the Republican state convention was in the selection of candidates for railroad commissioners. The Hon. A. N. Dare, of Elk River, the speaker of the last House of Representatives, and one of the most prominent and respected citizens of the Sixth congressional district, was badly defeated in the convention by one Joseph G. Miller, an individual who until a few days ago was absolutely unknown outside of the circumscribed, scantily populated areas of Lake county, and who resides at the town of Two Harbors, on the north shore of Lake Superior. Mr. Miller was nominated for railroad commissioner over Mr. Dare.

This Joseph G. Miller is employed as a minor clerk in the master mechanic's office of one of the iron range railroads. His sponsor was the claim agent of one of those railroads which is controlled by the Rockefellers. He was put forth by this claim agent as the representative of organized labor and a large amount of money must have been spent to secure his nomination, judging by the crowds of strikers engaged in booming his candidacy. Such is the individual who defeated Mr. Dare and whose candidacy forced Charles F. Staples, of Dakota county, another of the Republican nominees, to fill the humiliating position of the short term candidate.

Judge Ira B. Mills, of Moorhead the third nominee, is a former member of the commission and owes his nomination to the indefatigable efforts of the former chief grain inspector, Mr. A. C. Clausen, whose cohorts did not scruple to enter into a combination with the supporters of the Rockefeller protege to defeat Dare and other candidates.

The most brilliant star in the crown of the Republican state convention, however, was the election of Hon. E. T. Young, of Appleton, as permanent chairman. Mr. Young is a young lawyer of much ability, and a member of the state senate, who won renown in certain quarters, during the last session of the state legislature, by defeating the bill to increase the gross earnings tax on railroad earnings to 4 per cent.

Rev. S. W. Sample in People's Paper: The allied forces which are today rallying under the leadership of Bryan are the party of affirmation and progress. They affirm the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, the rights of the Filipinos, the Cubans and the Boers to liberty and independence, the rights of the common people of this country as against the trusts, the privileged classes, the plutocracy. They are moving towards the perfect realization of these rights.

The Imperialist party (for it is the Republican party no longer, save only in name) is most glaringly the party of negation.

It denies the fundamental principles upon which this government was founded.

It denies that either Congress or the president, in dealing with the Filipinos or the Puerto Ricans, must or should obey the Constitution.

It denies the equal rights of all to freedom, because it sanctions and supports slavery in the Zulu archipelago.

It denies the right of the South African republics to existence, because, its throat choked with Filipino blood, it utters no protest while Great Britain is destroying those republics.

It denies the grand doctrine of our revolutionary forefathers, that taxation without representation is tyranny.

It denies the rights of the people as against the trusts, because it has fostered the tariffs and other special privileges under which the trusts have grown and multiplied; and because, when one of its former officials, Attorney General Monette, of Ohio, endeavered to enforce the law against trusts and bring the Standard Oil Company to justice, the Imperialist (so-called Republican) party of Ohio refused to endorse his endeavor or to nominate him for re-election.

It denies the application of the Golden Rule to nations, because it is certainly not treating either the Filipinos, the Cubans or the Boers as it would want to be treated.

It denies the supreme authority of Almighty God, for it says the American people should stand by the administration in its present war," right or wrong," whereas Right is always and everywhere the voice and will of God.

To a degree never before true of any party in this country, the Imperialist (pseudo-Republican) party of to-day is the party of negation and denial.

The Delano Gazette gives a hint of what is coming in this campaign when Republican inconsistency and boss subserviency will be emphasized on the stump. Thus what will the people think when our five congressmen stand up for the Porto Rico iniquity, which half of the Republican papers of the state condemned, on the one hand, while Senators Davis and Nelson and the other two congressmen take the other side? The people will be sure to ask nasty questions this year, and what will the Republicans answer?

WERE SAFE JULY 4

LATEST REPORT REGARDING THE LEGATIONS.

Having Fought to a Standstill the First Fanatical Outbursts, It Is Believed That Something May Intervene to Save Them — Doubt Thrown Upon the Shanghai Consuls' Information—Tien-tsin Still Hard Pressed—Disorders Increasing in Violence—Report a Big Battle Near Tien-tsin.

London, July 10.—The foreign consuls at Shanghai met on July 7 and officially announced that the legations at Peking were safe on July 4. The foregoing statement, read with Consul Warren's dispatch to the foreign office on Saturday, makes it possible to believe that the legations will hold out for a number of days yet. Having fought to a standstill the first outbursts of fanatical fury, it is believable that something may intervene to save them. The news after the sinister rumors of the last ten days is enough upon which to build up hopes.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Express, telegraphing on Sunday at 5:10 p. m., however, throws doubt upon Consul Warren's information. He says Tao Tai Sheng now admits that there was an error in his communication to Consul Warren. The date of the courier's arrival at Chiefu was July 3, which does not apply to his Departure From Peking.

The journey from Peking to Chiefu occupies five days. The courier, therefore, could not have left Peking later than June 28. The date of the massacre there, as given by Chinese reports, was June 30 or July 1. Tien-tsin is still hard pressed. A Chinese force numbering from 80,000 to 100,000 men, as estimated by inconclusive reconnaissance, floods the country round about Tien-tsin, communication between that place and Taku being apparently possible by river only. A Chefu dispatch to the Express says the Russians have landed 8,000 men at Taku and the Japanese have discharged several transports. The Japanese pushed on to Tien-tsin, leading in the subsequent assault upon the native city, in which their commander was killed. Ten more transports are engaged at Japanese ports. With the 10,000 British India and fresh Japanese contingents it is quite probable that the allies will have 50,000 men ashore. The disorders in the provinces appear to be increasing in violence. A Chinese army is within forty miles of New Chwang and the foreigners are preparing to abandon their homes. The southern part of the province is swept by raiders, destroying all works of the white men except in spots garrisoned by Russians. Proclamations have been posted in all villages near Chefu calling upon the loyal Chinese to rise and expel the foreigners for introducing among the pious Chinese an immoral religion. The Christian settlement at Chefu is at the mercy of the two Chinese forts, equipped with Krupp guns, which command the sides of the city. Six warships, including the United States gunboat Nashville, are constantly Cleared for Action.

Troops Afloat

The provisional government at Peking appears to have designs upon the southern provinces. Besides having ordered Kwan Shikai to advance upon Nankin, which Kwan Shikai says he will not do, Prince Tuan has sent an army along the route of the grand canal.

Refugees from Tien-tsin arriving at Shanghai say that only five civilian foreigners were killed during the long Chinese bombardment. The foreign women became so indifferent that they walked through the streets, not heeding the shells. Most of the civilians were deported to Taku, thence to be conveyed to Shanghai. Gen. Kwan Kan Sui, governor of Shan Tung, a correspondent of the Daily Mail avers, predicts that by July 14 the and negotiations will begin for peace. Circumstantial rumors of dark things to come are in circulation. The correspondents at Shanghai, which is still the clearing house of all China news, say that a combined force of Russians and Japanese have left Tien-tsin, following the line as far as Li Fang, and have thence swept swiftly westward, attacking the Chinese eighteen miles north of Tien-tsin, killing 1,000 of them. The Shanghai correspondent of the Standard says reports from Tien-tsin, from Chinese sources, say a great battle has taken place in which the Chinese lost heavily. The allies at Tien-tsin are short of provisions and suffer considerably from "sniping."

Boxers Will Disband

Li Hung Chang's Scheme.

The Times says: "We learn from a private message from Canton that Li Hung Chang has telegraphed direct to the Chinese minister in London urging him to request the British government to approach the United States government with a view to a joint invitation to Japan to co-operate in the maintenance of the Chinese empire and the establishment of a strong government on a solid basis, the three then uniting in an appeal for the support of all the other powers."

MORE HOPEFUL FEELING

Entertained for the Safety of the Legations.

Washington, July 10. — A slightly more hopeful feeling for the safety of the legationers in Peking is apparent in official circles. The hope is not founded on any official dispatches which have reached the state department, as nothing was received during the day from the consular representatives of the United States in China. The cumulative statements, however, which are daily printed from various portions of the empire reporting the diplomatic corps, with the exception of the German minister, as safe up to within certain specified time, together with the absence of any corroborative proof of their murder, is practically responsible for the slight hope which prevails that they, the ministers, are yet alive. The statements purporting to come from Sir Robert Hart, the English Chinese inspector of customs, are regarded as the best information which has been received. While showing that conditions were desperate the dispatches have not been entirely without hope. Mr. Wu, the Chinese minister, continues optimistic in spite of the alarming reports. Such recent communications as he had with the officials of the Southern provinces leads him to believe that up to a very recent date the legationers were still safe.

BULLER IN A FIGHT.

His Escort is Ineffectually Attacked.

London, July 10.—Late news from South Africa indicate that the Boers ineffectually attacked Gen. Buller's escort between Standerton and Heidelberg on Saturday as he was returning from a visit to Lord Roberts. The Boers attacked Ficksburg garrison at midnight on Tuesday, but were driven off after forty-five minutes' fighting. Gen. Brabant on July 5 occupied Dernberg, between Senakal and Winburg, which served as a base for bands assailing convoys. Col. Mahon, of Gen. Hutton's mounted troops, on July 6 and 7, engaged 3,000 Boers east of Brouker spruit and drove them off. The British casualties numbered thirty-three. Commandant Limmer tried to recapture Rustenburg on July 6 but was driven back. Thirty-four of Strathcona's horse, under Lieut. Anderson, were attacked by 200 Boers east of Standerton on July 6. The British soon took possession of a kopje, upon which they successfully withstood the attacks of the enemy.

Movement of Boer Settlers.

The Times' Lourenzo Marques correspondent says, under date of July 7: A general movement of Boer settlers into Gazaland, Portuguese territory, seems to be contemplated. Already large herds have been driven across the border. The Portuguese welcome the movement.

SCOUTING IN LUZON.

Results in the Death of Eleven Americans.

Manila, July 10. — The past week's scouting in Luzon resulted in eleven Americans being killed and sixteen wounded. One hundred and sixty Filipinos were killed during the week, and eight Americans who had been prisoners in the hands of the rebels, were surrendered and a hundred rifles were turned over to the United States officials. The enemy ambushed a wagon train between Indang and Nacui. The Third infantry lost nine men while on an expedition to punish the Ladrones in the delta of the Rio Grande. In the Antigue province of Panay a running fight of three hours' duration resulted in the killing or wounding of seventy of the enemy. There were no casualties among the Americans. The insurgents are slowly accepting the amnesty provisions. In some instances the Americans are suspending operations in order to give the rebels an opportunity to take advantage of the decree.

MADE FACES, IS COMMITTED.

Boy's Liberty the Price of His Making Grimaces in the Courtroom.

Chicago, July 10.—Harry Klein, aged nine years, earned a commitment to the John Worthy school by his actions while on the witness stand in Judge Tuthill's court. The boy made faces at his mother and sister, who were on the stand with him, telling the court of the conduct that had caused his arrest. Judge Tuthill had indicated by his remarks that he would release the lad, and was preparing to arrange for his parole. Harry thought the judge was not looking his way, and grimaced at his relatives. The judge saw the act and at once sent the boy to the John Worthy school.

ROTTERDAM STRIKE IS GROWING.

Car Men Join the Dock Laborers and Pickets Bar Out the Non-Union Men.

Rotterdam, July 10.—The dock laborers' strike is assuming threatening proportions. The car men have now joined in the strike and the police and marines are guarding the streets in order to check disturbances. The strikers have picketed all the approaches to town so as to prevent nonunionists from entering. The laborers of Rotterdam will hold a mass meeting to discuss the best means of aiding the strikers.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

Two People Killed Outright and One Seriously Injured.

Pittsburg, July 10—Two people were killed outright and a third seriously hurt last night in a most peculiar railroad accident. The victims were on their way home from church and were standing on South Twenty-seventh street, South side, at the end of a blind switch on the Pittsburg, Virginia & Charleston railway, waiting for a freight train to pass. The switch, which is on a grade, was filled with cabooses. The freight broke in two at the switch. The portion which turned into the switch jammed the line of cabooses through the buffer into the party of church people.

FAST TEAMS.

Americans Easily Defeat the Britons in Athletic Meet.

London, July 10.—American athletes won eight out of thirteen of the amateur events of the championship of Great Britain. The amateur athletic association championship games were held at Stamford Bridge, and as the Americans competed in only twelve of the events they won all but four of the contests in which they took part. Such a clean sweep is without parallel. More especially is it noticeable when it is remembered that they opposed the best amateurs not only from England, Ireland and Scotland, but the colonies as well.

FEUD ARISES FROM DUEL.

Principals in a Gun Fight in Arizona Both Killed.

Tucson, Ariz., July 10—Antonio Soso and Jose Vasquez, two prominent Mexican cattlemen, quarreled over a cattle brand in San Pedro valley and both men were killed in a fight with guns. A feud between cowboys employed by the two men killed has arisen and serious trouble is feared.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

Of the entire street railway track mileage in Great Britain over one-third is owned by the public.

There is no canning industry among the Chinese. All of their sauces and compotes are preserved in earthenware jars, or in old wine and beer bottles.

Orphanages and destitute orphans are alike non-existent in Australia. There every waif is taken to a receiving house and kept until a country home is found for it.

The next generation will see the Gould fortune pretty well cut up, there being so many heirs. The richest of these will be Kingdon, George Gould's eldest child. His father is rated at $70,000,000.

The postal money order service with the principality of Montenegro has been discontinued by a number of European countries because of the Montenegrin exchequer's flat refusal to settle their account with the foreign postal creditors. The Prince of Montenegro took all the money for his family expenses, and now calmly refuses to disgorge.

In excavating the old Roman camp of Carnuhtum, near Haimburg, on the Danube, between Vienna and Pressburg, the explorers have come upon an armory and provision house containing 1,037 weapons and pieces of armour and stores of barley, peas, etc. A great many inscriptions were found as well.

The pretentious or unmusical names which many American towns bear invite amusement, sometimes derision. If it were not for the flavor of antiquity which clings to them some English place-names might be criticised. Thus in a recent brief list of ecclesiastical preferments and appointments appeared such names as Tolpuddle, Shincliffe, and Fugglestone. Better, perhaps, Babylon Lower Mills, or Northeast Jefferson Hollow.

If Richard Yates, the Republican candidate for governor of Illinois, is elected, he will be governor of his state before he is 40 years old. But he will not be as young as some others of Illinois' governors, for Ninian Edwards, the first governor, when Illinois was a territory was only 34 when appointed; Gov. Coles was only 36 at his inauguration. Gov. French was 38 and Gov. Hamilton was 36.

In California a new business has been discovered. It takes the form of drilling oil wells in the sea, and is the latest and most remarkable, as well as the most picturesque, feature of the great crude oil industry. This new and radical departure, a difficult and expensive undertaking, to say the least, has been successfully carried out at Summerland, the only place where it ever has been attempted, and there the precious brown fluid is now pumped from beneath the Pacific ocean.

The mud volcanoes situated in the vicinity of Laytonville, Cal., have burst into alarming activity. The first intimation the inhabitants had of the phenomenon was when an immense cloud of vapor issued from the mouth of the craters, accompanied by a sound like faraway thunder. The disturbance is so violent that great redwood trees are swayed when the mud and vapor shoots high over the rims of the crater and flows down the hillside like a lava stream into one of the tributaries of the Eel River. The murky craters are filled with a bluish mud of about the consistency of boiling tar, but the mud is icy cold. The roar of the volcanoes can be heard for miles around.

Iowa county, Wis., lays claim to having the lowest salaried official in the employ of the United States government. The government hires Frank Lynch for one cent a year to carry the mail between Dodgeville, the county seat of Iowa county, and Mineral Point, nine miles distant. Every four years the postoffice department contracts to lowest bidders for transfer of mail sacks. Last year there was the liveliest competition ever known for the Dodgeville-Mineral Point contract. Several different men signified their intention of going into the contest, and the "talk" was kept up until each bidder knew that he would have to go pretty low to get the prize. The man who then held the contract had been receiving about $40 per year for carrying the mail. It is said that when the bids for the new contract were opened in Washington it was found that the three lowest offers for carrying the mail per year were 1 cent, 39 cents and $1.50. Frank Lynch, being the one-cent bidder, was awarded the contract for four years.

Bishop Nelson of Georgia has drawn up a bill which is now before congress and which provides for the establishment of an industrial school for negroes wherever ten thousand dollars can be raised for a nucleus. In this event, seven trustees, residents of the south, may obtain from congress $150,000, one-third for building, equipment, and preliminary expenses, and the remainder for a permanent endowment. The number of these schools is to be lilted to one for each hundred thousand of the negro population of the state.

The climax of imperial patriotism has surely been reached by a Victorian named Melville. He was an applicant for admission to the Bushmen's Corps from that colony for South Africa, but, failing to pass the prescribed tests was rejected. He then proceeded to a lofty bridge and jumped into the river. He was rescued with considerable difficulty, owing to his violent resistance. When brought to land he said he did not want to live any longer, as he was not allowed to fight for the empire.

M'KINLEY'S FIRST LAW CASE.

Young Attorney Lost His Initial Suit, but Won a Bride.

President McKinley, as a young attorney, lost his first case in the common pleas court of Stark county, Ohio, as shown by the records, but he won a bride. He also was elected prosecuting attorney during the trial. This case was first heard before Justice Philip Loew of Navarre, Stark county, in 1869. Loew is a rock-ribbed democrat, but has much love for McKinley. Loew, strange as it may seem, is still a justice of the peace in the village of Navarre, and has held the office in an unbroken line all these years.

John Rostetter, a farmer of Bethlehem township, Stark county, brought action against Philip Sheets, his tenant, to recover damages of $213.20. The farmers had a quarrel over some horses breaking into a wheat field. The plaintiff caused an attachment to be issued to satisfy his claim, should he win the suit.

Summons was served on Sheets March 18, 1869. He demanded a jury trial. This was granted, and April 8 was fixed as the time to hear the case. The parties were not ready and the case did not come to trial until May 8. It took three days to hear the evidence and the arguments. The jury finally gave judgment for the defendant, Sheets, amounting to $136.85. McKinley's client was not satisfied with the issue of the case and took an appeal.

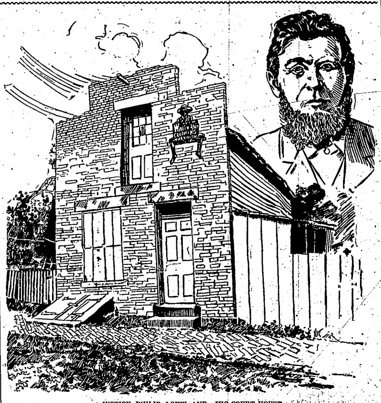
During the trial of the case McKinley had become engaged to marry Ida Saxton, the belle of the town of Canton, and while the case was pending between Rostetter and Sheets, McKinley was getting ready for the wedding tour. He was married January, 1871. His interest in this important event of his life is shown in a letter written a short time before his marriage to Judge Ambler of Salem, Ohio, then congressman from the Canton district. The young Canton attorney sent a letter of inquiry to Congressman Ambler of Washington, asking about the hotels of Washington, and informing Mr. Ambler of his approaching marriage. This letter is now in the possession of Attorney Ralph Ambler of this city, son of the former congressman. Ralph Ambler, curiously enough, is now a republican candidate for common pleas judge in that county.

The visit of William McKinley and his bride to the national capital was an eventful occurrence in the young bridegroom's life. It is said that the bride was so pleased with the trip that she then declared her husband would some day be president of the United States. It is certain that such a statement was made by Mrs. McKinley early in her married life, and that she always clung to this belief and repeatedly declared it to friends.

Another important event in the life of McKinley that caused him to delay the case of Rostetter and Sheets was his canvass for prosecuting attorney of Stark county. He was nominated, as well known, partly as a joke, for the county had been strongly democratic. The opposing candidate was William A. Lynch. McKinley, probably inspired with the idea of distinguishing himself in the eyes of his prospective bride, turned out and made such a vigorous campaign that he won, and when the ballots were counted in the fall of 1869 he was elected prosecuting attorney.

Here is another strange thing clustering about this period of McKinley's experience. The opposing counsel in the Rostetter-Sheets case was also this same William A. Lynch. McKinley won the election and his bride; Lynch won the law case. Two years later McKinley and Lynch were again opposing candidates for prosecuting attorney. This was Lynch's turn and he easily defeated McKinley. Mr. Lynch is now a prominent business man and lawyer at Canton, and one of McKinley's strongest friends. He is a gold democrat and in 1896 worked for McKinley.

The presiding judge in the case, the parties to the suit, and most of the jurors are dead. The little house used as a court by Justice Loew still stands near his grocery store and serves as a small storeroom.



JUSTICE PHILIP LOEW AND HIS COURT HOUSE.

Wallace's "Ben Hur" Royalties.

New York Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch: General Lew Wallace made an independent fortune out of the novel of "Ben Hur," and it appears likely that he will acquire another by the stage version of his book. Klaw & Erlanger have just paid him $30,000 in royalties for the six months the play has been running at the Broadway theater, the gross receipts for that period being $450,000. General Wallace was not required to write anything for this money. All that he did for it was to sign a contract giving William Young permission to dramatize it for the use of Klaw & Erlanger. It looks as if the play would last for several seasons, and it is possible that General Wallace will receive at least ten times $30,000 before "Ben Hur" is laid on the shelf.

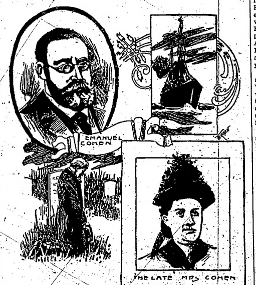
Plants Boarded in the Summer.

A Philadelphia woman makes a comfortable living each summer by taking plants to "board." When the wealthy residents of the city close their homes, preparatory to spending the season at the seaside, the woman calls and gets their plants and takes them to her own conservatory. She makes a nominal charge for caring for the plants, and those who have rare flowers find that it is much more satisfactory to send the valuable specimens out to board than to leave them to the care of servants.

Milan Riots Expensive.

What from the falling off in customs receipts and the increase in military and other expenditures, it is figured out that the May riots at Milan in 1898 have cost the Italian government $13,000,000 so far.

Travels 8,000 Miles to Visit Wife's Grave.



Emanuel Cohen travels 8,000 miles a year to visit his wife's grave. His wife is buried in Woodmere cemetery in Detroit, according to her last expressed wish. Cohen's health compels him to live six months of the year in Germany drinking the waters of the Carlsbad springs. In December of every year, however, he boards a trans-Atlantic steamer, and, coming to America, visits the grave in the quiet little Detroit cemetery.

Cohen is an American by birth and lived in Detroit when he was married. He was the founder of one of the largest business houses in the town, and was very successful from the start. He made a very large fortune and was preparing to retire when he met Miss Anna Freud, the daughter of a wealthy Hebrew family. He paid her assiduous attention and was married to her a year later.

Cohen gave up his business after his marriage and traveled for a year. While abroad his wife was taken ill with pneumonia. Her eagerness to return home led them to attempt the trip against the advice of physicians, and she died in London, unable to proceed further.

It was here that the promise that she should be buried in the cemetery in her native town was made. Cohen brought the body of his wife across the water and it was interred in the family lot in the Woodmere cemetery.

Cohen was broken-hearted at his loss. He began again to travel, but on the anniversary of her death he came again to Detroit to pay his respects to her memory. Shortly thereafter his health began to fail and he found it impossible to continue his travels. He went to Germany, and by the advice of his physicians spent six months each year at Carlsbad. When the anniversary of his wife's death came, however, he was insistent upon visiting her grave.

He made the trip and went back to Germany. Each year since he has regularly crossed the water and traveled the total distance of 8,000 miles for the purpose of seeing the grave and decorating it. Fifteen such trips he has made, making a total distance traveled of over 100,000 miles.

FUN IN A NUTSHELL.

And Here Is the Way to Get It Out and Astonish Your Friends.

Do you want to astonish your scientific friends? Here is a way in which you can do so. You have discovered a remarkable electric property in an English walnut, so you tell them. Rub it with a flannel cloth, and, holding it between your thumb and fingers, it will cling to your forefinger, so that some slight force is required to pull it away. The fact is that electricity has nothing to do with the trick. After rubbing the nut to generate the supposed electric force, you really press upon the nut in such a way with the thumb and finger that it opens a little at the top, and, catching the skin of the forefinger, clings to it. The elasticity of the nut is the actual force which is employed in the trick; but it will astonish your friends who do not understand it, for they may rub the nut ever so hard with the flannel and it will not cling to their fingers. Here is fun in a nutshell. It is best to try the trick privately first, and if you find that the nut does not open easily enough, or your thumb is not strong enough, press it with the whole hand on the table, to open it; but do not press too hard, or you will open it too far and it will not close again.

ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

Congress Acting to Suppress Their Sale.

The report of the Senate Committee on Manufactures upon the subject of food adulterations and food frauds has created a sensation in Congress and awakened great interest throughout the country.

If there could be published a list of the names of all articles of food found by the Committee to be adulterated or made from poisonous ingredients, it would be of inestimable value to the public.

The recommendations of the Committee that the sale of alum baking powders be prohibited by law, will make of special interest the following list of names of baking powders containing alum sold in this vicinity:

Baking Powders Containing Alum:

I. C. } ....Contain Alum.
K. C }
Manf. by Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago.
CALUMET............Contains Alum.
Manf. by Calumet Baking Powder Co., Chicago.
PALACE..............Contains Alum.
Manf. by Palace Baking Powder Co., St. Paul.
CAMEO..............Contains Alum.
Manf. by Cameo Baking Powder Co., Chicago.
BON BON } ....Contain Alum.
HOTEL }
Manf. by Grant Chemical Co., Chicago.
BENGAL..............Contains Alum.
Manf. by Griggs, Cooper & Co., St. Paul.
ATLAS...............Contains Alum.
Manf. by Reid, Murdock & Co., Chicago.
CHAPMAN'S } ..Contain Alum.
CHICAGO YEAST }
Manf. by Chapman & Smith Co., Chicago.
EDDY'S...............Contains Alum.
Manf. by Eddy & Eddy, St. Louis.
SUPERIOR..........Contains Alum.
Manf. by Superior Baking Powder Co., St. Paul.
UNRIVALED.........Contains Alum.
Manf. by Sprague, Warner & Co., Chicago.
PUHL'S SWEET BISCUIT....
.....................Contains Alum.

It is unfortunate that many manufacturers of alum baking powders falsely state that their powders do not contain alum. It is only right that consumers should have correct information as to the character of every article of food offered to them.

AN INCIDENT OF THE WAR.

The Query From the Gallery Was Embarrassing Under the Circumstances.

It is rather a good joke on one of our Omaha boys when he was in the South a couple of years ago.

Frank, he's the one, was in Atlanta with Company L, and his brother Harry was very ill in Omaha.

Frank was an awfully good fellow and tremendously jolly. The fellows called him a hot air dispenser. He was quite a lady's man and had "won a home" with some girl in a neighboring town.

"I tell you, Lightly, she's a wizard." Lightly was a telegraph operator and a great friend of Frank's.

"And you're going to take her to the show to-morrow night, are you?"

"You bet your life. Say, she's a queen! Pretty? Well, I should say she was! But look here, Lightly, you know Harry is to undergo an operation to-day and if anything happens mother will wire me. You send it to me at once."

"All right, old man, I will, and you may go and see your fairy."

Frank and his girl were enjoying the performance immensely when, at the end of the first act, some one stepped from behind the curtain with a telegram in his hand. The house was still and every one listened.

"Is there such a man as Frank F—— from Omaha in the house?" asked the man.

Frank, white, trembling and expecting the worst, stepped to the front, took the envelope, read the message and burst out laughing. This is what he read: "If she's such a wizard love her twice for me. Lightly."

On his way back to his seat some one from the gallery hollered: "Is it a boy or a girl?" Poor Frank! He felt like 2 cents.

Harry, by the way of explanation, recovered and is now telegraph editor of an Omaha paper.—Omaha News.

Sure He Couldn't Talk.

Twickenham—I saw Rambler today and he was telling me about his baby.

Mrs. Twickenham—Can the baby talk?

Twickenham—No.

Mrs. Twickenham—Did you ask him?

Twickenham—No; but he didn't repeat anything the baby said.—Harlem Life.

How to Keep Young.

During the banquet given to Julia Ward Howe, on her eighty-first birthday by the New England Woman's club, that poet, philanthropist and philosopher remarked that when she was a child an old friend used to say to her: "Julia, never give in to growing old." "That advice," continued Mrs. Howe, "made a deep impression on me, and that is why I am here today."

There is a bit of philosophy which every woman might adopt as her own and profit by it.—Philadelphia Press.

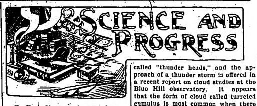
A French Bull.

A newly-appointed French mayor inaugurated his regime by a notice to the following effect:

"On the feast of our patron, saint the fire brigade will be reviewed in the afternoon if it rains in the morning and in the morning if it rains in the afternoon."—Tit-Bits.

Teacher—What happens when a man's temperature goes down as far as it can go?

Smart Scholar—He has cold feet, ma'am.—Christian Register.



SCIENCE AND PROGRESS

To Clean Old Grates and Fenders.

The open grates and fenders and stove fronts that have seen hard service during the winter prove especially distressing to the careful housewife when thoughts of the coming spring renovation seem to impart an extra shabbiness. The old methods of "shining" with various preparations in the form of stove polish have very little effect on the reddened and roughened surfaces; how to give them a good shining black polish that will last is the question.

Every housewife should know that one pint of asphaltum, thoroughly mixed with a gill of turpentine, and applied with a paintbrush to these grates, fronts, fenders, or any similar iron substance, will give the shining appearance that they wore when new. This amount of the mixture will paint five grates and belongings, also the kitchen stove. It will last just as long, and will give exactly the appearance that each had when new. It is secured at a trifling cost, and is so easily applied that this work will prove one of the most satisfactory duties of the spring renovating.

Wonders of the Digger Bee.

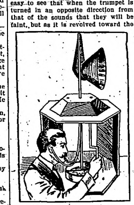
Dr. John B. Smith, writing in Popular Science, gives the name of "digger bee" to a blue-green bee having a metallic sheen, which may be seen flitting about sandy places during the first heats of May. With the aid of liquid plaster of Paris poured into the holes that it makes in the ground, he has followed the bee through a wonderful course of digging. The work is all done by females, and its primary object is to provide protected cells in which the young are bred. The bee makes a tunnel a quarter of an inch in diameter, which, after starting for a few inches on a slope, runs straight down into the ground. At the depth of a foot or more short lateral tunnels are driven, and at the ends of these are formed the breeding cells. Having provided for her young, the bee "continues to dig, down and yet farther down, until she is four feet or even more beneath the surface, dying from sheer exhaustion about the time her first progeny begin to make their way to the surface."

An Automobile Trolley.

A French inventor has avoided one of the chief difficulties in the use of the trolley system for the propulsion of carriages not running on rails by making an automobile trolley which, while serving to connect the carriage with the overhead wires, is itself propelled by the electric current, under control of the driver of the carriage, so that it keeps step with the carriage and no strain is exerted upon the connecting wire. When connected with wires in the ordinary way, a carriage that is free to move from side to side of the road drags its trolley after it, and in consequence, the connection is frequently broken.

Device to Locate Sounds.

In heavy and foggy weather it is very difficult for the captains and pilots of ships to ascertain the direction from which the sounds of fog whistles, bells and other signals come unless there is some special device for aiding in this work. Marie Joseph Schmitt of Canada has invented the apparatus here illustrated, as an aid in the collection of the sound and locating the point of the compass from which the sounds emanate. Journaled in a suitable bearing on the top of the casing is a conical sound receiver which can be turned to all points of the compass by a crank within reach of the operator. The sound waves are transmitted through the connecting pipe to the pair of ear tubes. It is easy to see that when the trumpet is turned in an opposite direction from that of the sounds that they will be faint, but as it is revolved toward the signal the instrument collects more waves and the sound increases, and with a little practice the location can be fixed accurately.



Gas-Pipe Lines to Distribute Power.

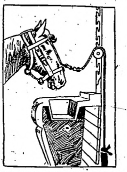
The attention of electrical engineers has been attracted to the prospective use of the gas engine on a vast scale for the generation and transmission of power. Mr. George Westinghouse believes that a great saving of expense as compared with present methods would result from the distribution of gas generated at central points and conveyed in pipes along the lines of railways for the operation of gas engines and electric generators. He suggests the installation of such a system in connection with the electrical equipment of railways, especially metropolitan and suburban lines; and also the use of fuel gas and gas engines to supply light and power for the whole of Manhattan island.

Cloud Turrets and Thunder-Storms.

A scientific explanation of the connection between imposing masses of cumulus clouds, piled up in aspiring white turrets, which are popularly called "thunder heads," and the approach of a thunder storm is offered in a recent report on cloud studies at the Blue Hill observatory. It appears that the form of cloud called turreted cumulus is most common when there is a rapid vertical decrease of temperature in the upper air, combined with heating at the ground, which favors the ascent of columns of air to great heights, and this is, at the same time, a condition favorable to thunder storms.

HORSE TIE FOR STABLES.

Horsemen will appreciate the device pictured in the accompanying cut, the object of the invention being to reduce to a minimum the liability of getting the animal's feet tangled up in the tethering rope, and also to keep the rope out of the way while the animal is eating. By means of a specially constructed halter the connection is made on the upper instead of the under side of the nose strap, and the tie extends to a point level or above the animal's head. The invention also includes an arrangement for taking up the slack in the rope, without in any way pulling on the halter sufficiently to annoy the animal. The rope is passed through the front of the manger, resting on a pulley, which may be adjusted to any desired height, and a small weight is attached to the outer end, which is sufficient to hold the rope taut, no matter in what position the animal puts his head. A patent on the device has been granted to William H. Bartrum of England.



Purification by Bacteria.

At the latest meeting of the Society of American Bacteriologists Prof. Kinnicut gave an account of the change of opinion now occurring in England in favor of the purification of the sewage of cities by means of bacterial growth, disseminated through it, rather than by chemical treatment, as heretofore employed. The bacterial system, he thought, offered the cheapest and most effective method of purifying the sewage so that it may be discharged into rivers without polluting them.

Recent Inventions.

For use in painting signs a lettering guide has been patented, comprising a pair of rulers joined by adjustable clamps, which allow one ruler, thus indicating the slant of the edges of each letter.

In an improved washing machine two independent arms are pivoted at the center of the cover, with perforated beaters secured to the inner ends of the arms, the later being grasped one in each hands and operated independently to beat the clothes.

Tailors can utilize an improved measuring device, patented by a German, a tape being placed across the shoulders to pass under the arms and join at the back, with tapes suspended at either side to support a belt, which is adjusted at the waist or chest line for taking measurements.

An Ohio man has patented an improved trousers guard which will not fall off from the ankle, having a locking device attached to the ends to lock the guard in place, a slotted head being formed on one end, with a spring catch which engages a T head on the other end of the guard.

A Maryland man has designed an improvement in hair curlers, by which the heating apparatus is contained in the handle, the latter being hollow and provided at the inner end with a wick, the flame passing up through the hollow tube which forms the body of the curler; to heat it from the interior.

Water pipes can be scoured and cleaned by a new German apparatus, which is composed of two globular floats to fit the interior of the pipe, carrying between them a toothed scraper which engages the sides as the floats are forced through by the action of the water.

By the use of a new door-holding device the knob is prevented from turning until released on the inside and the door can be held in any position, a rod being secured to the upper edge of the door and connected at one end with a crank arm on the knob spindle, the other end operating a clutch on the door casing.

All That Was Necessary.

"Pa, I made a nice speech when I gave m' teacher those flowers."

"What did you say, Tommy?"

"Well, pa, when I handed 'em to her I made a bow an' then, pa, I said: 'Mrs. Jones, I'm me' t' you'"—Indianapolis Journal.

Not the Worst Combination.

She—Do you mean to tell me that a man could expect to be happy with a conceited wife?

He—Of course; a conceited wife wouldn't put in all her time bothering about him.—Indianapolis Journal.

A Family Provided For.

"John, we ought to be keeping hotel now; there's big money in it."

"Well, you take the boys an' open one in Kansas City, an' I'll take the girls an' run one in Philadelphia."—Indianapolis Journal.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Dairy Notes.

All wooden vessels that hold butter should be carefully washed in brine and all parchment paper used around butter should be soaked in brine. Commission men claim that much of the mouldy butter in the market is due to the fact that tubs and pails are not soaked enough before being used and that parchment paper is sometimes not soaked at all. It is the little things that count immensely in the butter market.

* * *

Friends of honest butter regret that the Grout bill failed to pass at the session of congress just closed. Every obstacle was put in the way of its consideration by its opponents, who boasted that if it got through the house at all it would be so late that it could not pass the senate. They delayed its consideration in committee by every known trick. The friends of the bill found it impossible to get it acted on, but did get through a motion to make it a special order for the third day of the next session of congress. The butter men have made a good fight, and it is probable that this bill, or some modification of it, will ultimately be passed.

* * *

Every farmer that makes butter for market should arrange to have a supply of ice for use each summer. There are few farms in the north where a supply of ice is not obtainable. It will coat little to construct a house that will hold ice and keep it well. Sawdust is quite plentiful and may be used for more than one year. This supply of ice will prove financially valuable, as it will enable the maker of the butter to reduce the cream to a temperature at churning time where it will make a butter of good grain. After the butter is made it can be kept perfect till sold. Where it is desired to build up a private trade ice will prove a very great help.

Poultry Notes.

There are constantly going the rounds of the papers most astonishing estimates as to the volume of the poultry industry in this country. We hear speakers at farmers' institutes glibly reel off the statistics as to our poultry products, and an unsophisticated listener would suppose the statistics to be worth something. But they are not. Poultry estimates are the wildest kind of guesses taking the country as a whole. In some of our large produce centers it is not difficult to approximate the number of birds and eggs received and sold; but those reports are of little consequence compared to the 50,000 small markets of which there are no reports. The number of birds and eggs that are used on the farms cannot be known, for no record is kept of them. When we consider that there are over 4,000,000 farms we see how inestimable must be the poultry produce disposed of on those farms. But to illustrate the way in which statistics are made: One writer says: "When we compare the most careful statistics that can be compiled, we are astonished at the magnitude of the figures, for we find that the combined product of eggs and poultry as an article of food, from a commercial standpoint, alone, amounts to the enormous sum of $700,000,000. Now, when we add to this the number of live fowls in this country, about 150,000,000, at an average value of $2 each, which is a fair valuation of the whole; that is, placing all of the standard varieties of fancy-bred poultry with the common grade laying stock of the whole country; thus, the live fowls plus the commercial poultry and eggs, amounts to 1,000,000,000." We can but regard such figures as most extravagant. Instead of $2 per fowl the estimate should be 25 cents per fowl; for the proportion of high-priced fowls in the country, compared to the whole number is insignificant. The estimate of 150,000,000 live fowls is entirely guesswork. We have at the present time no poultry statistics that are worth anything.

* * *

We sometimes hear about a hen laying two eggs in a day, and it seems quite an incredible story. But it may easily happen and doubtless does. But it does not indicate any great laying power, but rather a derangement of the laying organs. We have seen a hen egg-bound and on examination found the production of the egg so delayed that another full-sized one was pushing up behind it. The two eggs would naturally be dropped within a few hours of each other.

* * *

Without doubt hens are helped by exercise, such as scratching in cut straw for their grain, yet we feel that the idea is overdone. The value of this exercise must depend to a very great extent on the food that is fed. Where a fowl is fed corn, and corn only she needs the exercise to help her to digest more of the corn so as to get from it enough protein to serve her purposes, without at the same time becoming too fat. The exercise causes rapidity of breathing and that means the burning up of more fat through the agency of the lungs. But the first outlook should be to feed a fowl a ration so constituted that no necessity will exist for burning up a part of the feed through the lungs.

The Shorthorn the Great Improver.

Under the above title S. C. Hanna of Howard, Kan., ably set forth the special points of superiority claimed for the Shorthorn breed, at the meeting of Shorthorn breeders held in Kansas City, Feb. 6th and 7th. Superiority in size over all other beef breeds is one of the peculiar merits of the Shorthorns. One of the main purposes for which pure beef herds of beef cattle are maintained is to improve the size and feeding quality of the common cattle of the country. The average native scrub is fine enough in bone and body to satisfy the most fastidious packer, but he is a most unprofitable beast for the raiser or the feeder. No breed will improve the size and feeding quality of the millions of native scrubs so quickly as the Shorthorn. And while improving size and feeding quality he will improve the milking quality of the scrub in an equal degree.

From my earliest experience when I held a grade Shorthorn heifer calf for my father at a local fair in Western Indiana forty years ago, to the present time, I have been a close observer under widely different conditions of the effect of the improved breeds upon the native cattle. During a considerable portion of this time I have been an extensive feeder of beef cattle, handling all kinds impartially under the same conditions, and without prejudice, except as created by my experience in the feed lot. I was old enough to observe the rapid improvement of our cattle in Western Indiana by the use of registered and grade Shorthorns. That improvement continued until we were sending steers of the highest class to Eastern markets. That era of improvement reached its maximum nearly twenty years ago. During the same time I had an opportunity to observe the same process in Central Illinois.

No experienced range man, however, can doubt that the Shorthorn made far greater improvement on the native Texas and Mexican cattle than could have been made by any other improved breed. Those qualities in which they were most deficient were the ones in which the Shorthorn particularly excelled all other breeds, superior size, width of back, depth of rib, fulness of ham and natural docility, and the power to transmit them in a marked degree. Those desirable qualities were all implanted to some extent in our western herds before the other beef breeds were introduced. The Shorthorn has been the pioneer and the great improver. There has been a marked deterioration in the cattle of all sections in proportion as the Shorthorns have been supplantd by other breeds. There is scarcely a cattle raising section in the agricultural states where the cattle are as good as they were fifteen years ago. The inferior quality of the cattle that go to our public markets is a matter of common observation. They show a motley mingling of all strains. Who can doubt that if the raisers of cattle had faithfully adhered to the Shorthorns, continuing to use the best sires they were able to procure, the results would have been far better.

But the farmer as well as the range man began to imagine he wanted a "rustler," an animal that could survive the most possible hardship and neglect. He did not then realize, as he does now, that what he really needed was an animal that would give the most liberal response in beef and milk to the most liberal treatment, and that the breeder was the one who should do the "rustling" if he was to expect the best results. Tried by the rigid law of "the survival of the fittest," under range conditions, the pure bred Texas longhorn was immensely superior to any breed ever imported. It must be apparent to every close observer that the ability to withstand neglect and adverse conditions is to some extent impaired as we increase the size of our live stock. Extreme size, whether in horses, hogs, or cattle, requires better feed and attention to preserve the growth and thrift of the animal, in order that it may reach the limit of its development.

Beef production, in the natural evolution of the business, must come more and more under farm conditions, where the farmer and feeder, and not the animal, must do the rustling. As population increases, milk must play a more and more important part in the economics of beef production. It does not require the gift of prophesy to see that the time is approaching when the invaluable qualities combined in the Shorthorn as in no other breed will, from force of necessity, be more and more in demand. Then will the noble Shorthorn come to its own and take its rightful place far in advance of all breeds—incomparably the Great Improver.

One or Many Breeds.

The amateur poultry raiser frequently makes the mistake of trying to keep a good many breeds of fowls. He thinks how nice it will be to have a dozen different breeds in as many yards, where he can watch them from day to day. He does not suspect that an increase in the number of flocks will enormously increase the labor of caring for them. But he finds that out in time. He gets his pens and yards built and secures his birds. Then the trouble begins. He is generally a business man and can devote only a small amount of time mornings and nights to the care of the fowls. He will be astonished how busy he will be kept looking after half a dozen flocks if he feeds them as is necessary to keep them in health. In a short time he will find the work so burdensome that he will stop feeding cooked mash and will cut them down to the grain ration because that is easy to feed. The after results will be bowel troubles. The many pens are all right for the man that wants to make a business of raising poultry or, for the man that is able to hire the work done, but the amateur will find it pays him best to stick to a single breed.

Oats for Poultry Food.

We doubt if there is a better single grain feed for poultry than oats. We see that in one of the poultry journals a writer is advocating it as a brand new idea, and is advising others to try it. His articles seem to have met with some criticism, the critics declaring that oats are very dangerous, as the sharp hulls will penetrate the thin membrane of the crop. It is very strange that such opinions are held by poultry raisers anywhere. We can conceive of such an accident if the oats are fed when the fowls are very hungry and water given afterwards. But if fed in any reasonable circumstances the oats can do only good. The writer has fed oats for years and to all ages of fowls and never had a mishap. Oats are as valuable for chicks as for colts.

Irrigation in Persia.

Irrigation is of the utmost importance in Persia, as cultivation depends upon it, and water is extremely dear. It has been suggested that artesian well manufacturers might find an excellent opening once that the success of these wells was assured.

SHIPBUILDING IN OLDEN DAYS.

Magnificent Ships Once Built by the Man With The Ax.

At the present time, when so much interest is centered on the ways and means for restoring the American mercantile marine to its former position as a great ocean carrier, it is well to take a brief retrospect of the innumerable natural resources of the country, combined with the talent, energy and enterprise of its people, which led to the great ship building era from '45 to '60, when the stars and bars were seen waving over magnificent specimens of American naval architecture in all parts of the world.

It is easy to imagine the profound astonishment of the first settlers of New England when they beheld the boundless parks of spreading oaks, birch and maple, and the sweet-scented groves of pines, spruce and fir of which the primeval forests of that period were composed. Solitary members of those vast wildwoods dot the landscape at the present day, and their huge trunks, gnarled roots and twisted limbs testify to their multi-centennial endurance. For example, there are the Waverly oaks, aged over 400 years, according to the late Prof. Agassiz, and the Deadham giant, for which $500 was offered, and which was intended to assist in the construction of the Constitution, and there are many other trees in New England of historic reputation. These remnants of the past give some idea of what the wild old woods were like when the red man reigned supreme.

The first to take advantage of these splendid chances for shipbuilding were the members of the Popham colony, at the mouth of the Kennebec. The man with the broad ax first made his debut and constructed "a faire pinnace of 10 tons" in 1607. It is said she crossed the Atlantic.

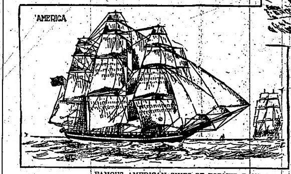
He next put in an appearance thirty years later at Ten Hill farm, on the Medford river, where the Blessing of the Bay, a ship of thirty tons, was built.

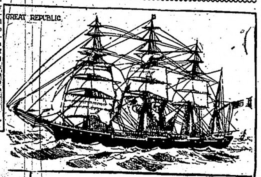
In 1670 the colonists had produced a musquito fleet of faire proportions. The Massachusetts shipyards at this date had produced 30 vessels of 100 to 250 tons, 200 of 50 to 100 tons, 200 from 30 to 50 tons, and 300 from 6 to 10 tons. For a long period in the annals of ship building merchant vessels did not exceed 400 tons.

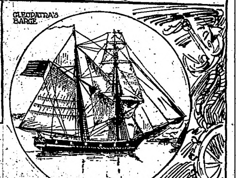
The accompanying illustration represents the America, of 320 tons, built at Salem in 1804 for G. Crowninshield for East India voyages. She was 120 feet over all, with great beam. Her masts and spars and canvas area would exceed in shape that of a 1,000-ton ship of today, and she carried 14 guns. In 1812 she was converted into a privateer and was the terror of the seas, her enormous spread of canvas enabling her in light winds to make fast time. She was considered the swiftest vessel that sailed out of any American port. Her crew consisted of 150 men all told. The drawing of her hull is carefully copied from a painting by Roux of Marseilles; the rigging is scaled from the original sail plan. During her career as a privateer she netted her owner over $3,000,000, having captured several valuable prizes. She was a typical model of the period.

In 1816, after Napoleon was safely lodged in St. Helena, and the world ceased to be scared by "war's alarms," the owner of the America and other gentlemen of Salem planned a round trip to Europe, for which purpose a very handsome armed yacht was built and aptly christened Cleopatra's barge. Her outside ornamentation was very striking, separate designs being made for the port and starboard sides, and the carved work on her stern was very elaborate. She was the first yacht to make the tour of Europe from this side of the Atlantic. The illustration was copied from an old foreign painting.

The success attending many of the marine business ventures in foreign lands about this time caused a very rapid growth in the shipping of the United States, and hundreds of tons were annually added, but vessels of 1,000 tons were very scarce until 1840. From 1840 to 1850 the ship owning interests were up with leaps and bounds, and the emigrant passenger traffic began to assume immense proportions. The Swallow Tail and Black Ball line of packets were established to meet the requirements, and likewise the Train line from Boston. On the top of this boom came the discovery of gold in California, and, a little later, in Australia, with a demand for tonnage that was difficult to supply. Suitable vessels fetched high prices, and, as the laws of Great Britain favored the purchase of foreign bottoms for registration, some of the most celebrated American clippers found purchasers in Liverpool and London.







FAMOUS AMERICAN SHIPS OF FORMER DAYS.

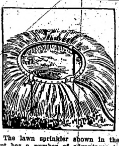
The man with the broad ax was now at his zenith of prosperity; he could be found on every harbor, creek and river on the New England coast where a ship could be safely floated. If one followed the coast from Eastport to Quebec, the same hard working genius of the ship yard would confront him at every turn, slashing away at a foothook or carefully shaping the stem of a vessel, varying in size from a schooner to a clipper ship of 2,000 tons. With his great broad ax he would follow a chalk line on a huge log and finish up his piece with a quickness, accuracy and smoothness that was quite marvelous, and in due time from his chip, chip, chip, a noble ship would gracefully dip into the water, and from $100 to $150,000 would be added to the wealth of the country.

Among the shipbuilders who did much to bring this country into notice by their pronounced skill was Donald McKay of East Boston. His clipper ships were models of beauty and strength. Discarding all old precedents he boldly took up the canoe and constructed his great ship on the primitive Indian idea of a vessel. The White Squall, Flying Cloud, Sovereign of the Seas and the Great Republic were all ocean grayhounds of the period, and built by him, the last named, the largest of the vessels, being 325 feet over all. She was subsequently chartered by the French government as a troop ship, lasted 25 years, and finally disappeared with a load of coal on her way to Singapore.

The man with the broad ax is gradually disappearing. He is very hard to find in Canada, but a few of his tribe are still scattered along the New England coast, mainly on the Kennebec. It is probable the tribe will die out on the spot where the first blow of the broad ax was struck. The man with the rivet is the next step in marine evolution. He is a noisy fellow, just a part of a machine, and he can never replace the quiet, contemplative philosopher in the red shirt and overalls who stood in the American shipyard in days that are past.

EDWARD J. RUSSELL.

AN IMPROVED LAWN SPRINKLER



The lawn sprinkler shown in the cut has a number of advantages to recommend it, and the arrangement is so simple and convenient that it speaks for itself. The sprinkling pipe may be of any desired shape, and is adapted to be supported on a pair of small sharpened rods, which can be readily inserted in the lawn without marring the surface. The rods are attached to the ring by adjustable clamps, which are folded against the ring when not in use, and the connection between the rod and clamp is formed by a ball-and-socket joint, which allows the sprinkler to be tilted into any desired position. This arrangement will be found advantageous when the sprinkler is in operation on a terrace, where the ordinary sprinkler would throw all the water down the incline. In another model the perforated pipes are detachably joined, and the sprinkler can be set up around a tree or shrub, thus combining the foliage with the spray of the fountain.

A Forgotten Heroine.

Worthily worn, the gaudy trappings of war have ever won feminine hearts. In recording the great services to our country of an almost forgotten revolutionary heroine, a writer has brought to light some remarkable romances. The heroine, tall, cultured, high-born, joined the Continental army in the uniform of a man and served three years with conspicuous bravery. Her heroism brought her preferment and into contact with the best people of the colonies, and at all the balls and other social gatherings she was the lion (or lioness). The girls adored the brave soldier, confessed their love, and showered her with presents. "The Girl Who Fought in the Revolution" will be a feature of the July Ladies' Home Journal. It is a record of facts far stranger than fiction.

PROTECTING SONG BIRDS.

Measures Adopted by the Swiss Government for That Purpose.

"Switzerland has not many feathered songsters," says James T. Dubois, United States consult at St. Gall, "but those that do exist are carefully protected, not only by law, but by fostering care of the people, particularly the German-speaking people of Switzerland. In 1875 a law was enacted prohibiting the trapping or killing of song birds or the robbing or molesting of their nests, in any part of the Alpine republic. But in northern Italy bird murder is epidemic, and this spirit has spread over the Swiss-Italian canton of Tessin, where the willow wren, hedge sparrow, blackcap, swallow, nightingale, and little singers of all kinds are victims of the trap, the net and the gun. As the seasons come and go the Swiss birds make their pilgrimage south, and in going and returning across the land of northern Italy and the Swiss Canton of Tessin, they are mercilessly pursued by hunters of all ages and classes. On the Lago Maggiore it is estimated that at least sixty thousand of the feathered songsters are trapped or killed every year, and in the region around Bergamo, Verona, Chiavena and Brescia many millions are indiscriminately slaughtered to satisfy the demands of the tables and of millinery establishments of the world. One of the schemes is to cover the limbs of trees and rocks and even the telegraph wires, along the line of the bird migration with a certain paste of such adhesive qualities that whenever the birds stop in their flight for rest or food they are held helpless captives. Hundreds are often captured in a very small space by this simple means. During the last year the border police of Tessin captured and destroyed thirteen thousand traps sent to imprison these weary flyers. Authorities are being urged to take the most rigorous measures to suppress the evil. The criminal courts are having many more bird law violation cases than formerly, and bird catching and killing crimes which in former years were either overlooked or punished only slightly are now dealt with seriously. The excellent laws are being enforced, and the song birds of Switzerland may yet survive the attempt to exterminate them."

LONG COACH TRIP.

Man and His Wife Will Travel 2,000 Miles.

Hackensack (N. J.) Cor. New York Sun: Four years ago Mr. John J. Phelps of "Red Towers," on the Hackensack, made the longest coaching trip on record with one team of four horses, covering a fraction more than 800 miles in New Jersey, New York and Connecticut. He is now preparing to at least double that distance, and he may make it 2,000 miles. For this purpose he recently purchased four fine sorrels, well matched, even-gaited trotters, rather light in weight, but said to be of good blood and endurance. These he is now training for the long trip, which he expects to begin about the first week in June. Mr. Phelps has mapped out an itinerary of about three months, carrying him through northern New Jersey, across New York from Greenwood Lake to Middletown, Liberty, Hancock, Owego, Binghamton, Ithaca, the lake region to Niagara Falls. Crossing to Canada he will visit Toronto, following the lake and St. Lawrence river to Montreal. Here he will recross to the United States and take in important points in Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut, returning by way of New York city. Mrs. Phelps expects to accompany her husband throughout the long drive, and friends from Hackensack, New York city and elsewhere will be guests during various stages. The vehicle used will be a strong break specially arranged with a view to comfort.

Horses Couldn't Be Given Away.

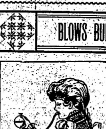
"Horses were cheap in the west; in fact, you could hardly give them away," writes Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady in the June Ladies' Home Journal. "I remember a stockman came to a friend of mine speaking in this wise: "I've got six young and middling horses well broke, and considering the hard times, in pretty fair condition. What'll you give me for them?" "I'll give you ten just like them," said my friend, "and think myself lucky to save the feed and care of four of them." The offer was not accepted.

Jordan Field at Bloomington.

The trustees of Indiana State University have acceded to the unanimous request of the students and faculty of that institution that the new athletic field be called Jordan Field. The name is given in honor of President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, who, before going to the California institution, was for twelve years professor and president at Indiana University. For several years the creek that separates the new field from the main campus has been known as the River Jordan.

Of the 21,000,000 letters sent out of Holland last year, 9,000,000 went to Germany, 3,100,000 to England, 2,900,000 to Belgium, 1,400,000 to France, etc.

BLOWS BUBBLES IN COLORS



Children will enjoy the new soap bubble blower shown in the cut, as it makes several bubbles at once, and dyestuffs can be used to color them without danger of poisoning. The bulb is made of soft rubber and filled with the liquid, being squeezed to force a small quantity into the neck. The tube is then blown in, which closes a diaphragm in the neck and prevents the liquid returning into the reservoir, forcing it out between the two top disks. As the bubble increases in size it falls on to the next disk and a new one is formed inside the first. This operation is repeated until the full number is blown, the expansion of the inside bubble increasing the size of the outer ones and keeping them out of contact with each other.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Adairsville, Ky., will build an electric-light plant.

Carlisle, Ky., is considering the construction of waterworks.

Franklin, Tenn., is thinking of spending $25,000 for waterworks.

Waynesville, N. C., will have a city waterworks and electric-light plant.

An ordinance has been introduced in the Kansas City council for the expenditure of $125,000 in the building or purchase of an electric light plant.

In buying the water plant from a private company the first thing Talladega, Ala., will do is to spend $15,000 in overhauling it and installing an electric-light plant. This through the incentive of public ownership! Do you see it, Mr. Privateincentive?

France has municipal savings banks in 458 towns and cities. They have 6,000,000 depositors and over $960,000,000 on deposit. Besides offering the depositors an absolutely safe bank they effect a great saving to the cities, which are thus better able to borrow money for municipal improvements.

A London cablegram to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch says: "A movement has been started by the London municipalities to follow the example of Glasgow and Nottingham to insure themselves municipally. Fifty-five out of seventy-six local authorities in London pay $58,000 annually to fire insurance premiums on municipal property, while the total losses by fire in five years have only been $30,000. The scheme is to pay the amount of the last five years' premiums into a common fund, thereafter an infinitesimal annual contribution being sufficient to provide against loss.

The net income of the Toledo, Ohio, waterworks department during the last fiscal year, recently closed, was $7,680.85 over any previous year. The net total profit of operation was $32,243.71, not counting $33,145.71 turned over to the sinking fund trustees for interest. All this is public money still in the public hands, not in the private pockets of some capitalists. In addition—which you can wager would have mostly been in subtraction under private ownership—over 154 miles of new pipe were laid and thirty-six new hydrants were put in to each four miles of pipe laid the previous year—as a Toledo paper says, "every department of expense shows that the waterworks people have been very busy in making necessary improvements for the city."

The bureau maintained by the holders of public franchises for the purpose of discouraging municipal ownership in this country has been talking about the "antiquated" street railway system owned by Nottingham, England. The bureau has been extremely careful not to tell the whole truth. The system is fearfully antiquated because it was lately owned by a private company. As soon as the municipality assumed control a large number of new employes were given work and new cars and horses were purchased. These improvements were pending a change to a modern system of electricity which will give Nottingham heavenly service compared to the old private regime. To quote the words of the U. S. consul at Nottingham (June Consular Reports, page 184): "No expense will eventually be spared in creating a modern street railway system, with a central depot and adequate suburban service."

Nicaragua must be the richest country on earth. Dispatches tell how the people down there have put a tariff on American goods that will make them all very wealthy. The duty on whisky is $16 a gallon; on a $16 enameled bedstead it is $150; on a $7 ice box it is $48; on butter, 40 cents. As the foreigners pay the tariff in this country, so the foreigners must pay the Nicaraguan tariff, and such a tariff will soon make all the people down there rich if they are wise enough to import enough goods! That is what the Republicans taught me when I was one of that party—that tariff was paid by the foreigners and protected the American laborers. It certainly must work the same way in Nicaragua. Or else the Republicans lied to me.

PARKHURST ON EXPANSION.

One hardly knows what to say of the earnestness with which, in certain Christian journals, expansion is put forward as a means of extending the kingdom of Christ. It is a novel idea that the reign of Jesus is to be widened in the world under the protection of shells and dynamite. The first missionaries never went out among the heathen under cover of guns or swords. Peter, the queer semi-regenerate expansionist that he was, supposed that the way of the Lord was to be cut for him by the instrumentality of sharp iron, and the Lord then and there settled the fact for all time that gospel is strong when it stands in its own might, and is weak when it works in alliance with powder and shot. Christians who dare to be missionaries because their field of labor is under the cover of a friendly camp or a friendly gunboat will do more to convince the heathen of the weakness of missionaries than of the power of God. To advocate the presence in the Philippines of a military and naval power in the interests of evangelization is to be guilty of having so little confidence in the sufficiency of the spirit as to want to have it supplemented by the support of the carnal. There is nothing in the teachings, either of our Lord or of His apostles, that gives any suggestion of warrant to a mixed policy of guns and Holy Ghost. —Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst.

Enemies of Free Speech.

Most of the people in this country are opposed to free speech. They are like the king—they are in favor of free speech so long as the speech favors their ideas, but when it opposes their opinions they are quite sure that the doctrine is dangerous, and ought to be suppressed.

Will Be President.

We may be sure that when Mr. Bryan is elected president that he will be a real president and that the government will not have to maintain some one to change his mind for him in order to meet political emergencies.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"
Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured.
Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE
TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated Journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE
INSURANCE
DO
YOU
NEED
SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound.........5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.........15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.........20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS,
LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JULY, 11, 1900.

Played His Client False.

"I shall have to make a lawyer out of that boy of mine. I don't see any other way out of it," declared the well known attorney, with a laugh. "He came into my office the other day on his way home from school and laid a nickel down on the desk before me.

"'What is this for, son?' I asked.

"'Retainer,' he answered soberly.

"'Very well,' said I, entering into the joke. 'What have I been retained upon?'

"My boy dug down into his pocket and produced a note from his teacher and placed it before me without comment. It was to the effect that he had been 'cutting up' and advised a whipping.

"'Now, what would you advise?' asked he in a businesslike voice after I had read the note and saw the trap that young rascal led me into.

"'I think that out first move should be to apply for a change of venue,' said I.

"'Very well,' he answered. 'You're handling the case.'

"'Then we will turn the note over to your mother,' said I.

"I saw the young imp's face fall at this, but he braced up and said:

"'See here, pop, you're bound to see me through on this, 'cause you've accepted my retainer, you know!'

"'I'll argue your case before the court,' I answered, 'but you will have to accept the decision. I would not dare to attempt to influence the court.'

"Well, I pleaded the boy's case, promptly had it thrown out of court, and the boy got what he deserved—a good whipping.

"It was the first time I ever played false to a client."—Detroit Free Press.

Horses Wounded In Battle.

Horses wounded on the battlefield are duly attended to when no danger to human life is involved. The veterinary officer in charge is expected to follow close on the fighting line and, together with a number of aids, to inspect properly wounded animals and give instructions for their removal or slaughter, as the case may be. The veterinary surgeon is naturally exposed to considerable danger, but if his work is not carried out during the progress of hostilities in all probability it cannot be accomplished afterward, for, although the royal army medical corps is allowed to proceed to the rescue of the wounded men under the Red Cross, the members of the army veterinary department are not permitted to attend to the injured horses, because they are not under the protection of the Geneva convention, which makes no provision whatsoever for wounded animals.

At the conclusion of the battle, if it has been decisive and one or other of the combatant armies has been driven from the field, a party of veterinary surgeons, with their assistants, is sent out to examine every animal that has fallen and to shoot such as are badly wounded. Those suffering from only slight injuries are collected and taken to the veterinary hospital lines, formed as fixed camps and established on a similar basis to those of the royal army medical corps.—Pearson's Magazine.

A Dry Smoke.

If you see a man with an unlighted cigar between his lips, it is not because he is looking for a light, but because he is indulging in the pleasure of a "dry smoke." How there can be any enjoyment in this to a smoker is not readily apparent, but the fact remains that there is much satisfaction in the habit, and, besides, there are no baneful effects.

For inveterate smokers the dry smoke is a good habit to cultivate. It enables many slaves of the weed to decrease the number of cigars actually smoked in a day without causing much inconvenience. Of course an inveterate smoker would find no pleasure in the habit at the start, but perseverance is necessary, and after awhile he will enjoy his dry smoke almost as much as the real one. It is a good way to begin if you desire to stop smoking. Try it and see.—New York Herald.

He Grabbed the Offer.

Ex-Governor George W. Peck of Wisconsin, author of "Peck's Bad Boy," was running a little country weekly in the pineries in the early sixties. It was an unimportant sheet save for one column of jokes which Peck wrote each week. This department caught the eye of "Brick" Pomeroy, who was then printing his Democrat in Lacrosse, Wis., and one day he wrote to Peck asking him whether he would be willing to go down to Lacrosse and work for The Democrat at $25 a week.

Three days later Mr. Pomeroy got this telegram: "I accept your offer quicker than instantly. For heaven's sake don't withdraw it!"

He Explained.

At a school one day a teacher, having asked most of his pupils the difference between an island and a peninsula without receiving a satisfactory answer, came to the last boy.

"I can explain it, sir," said the bright youth. "First get two glasses. Fill one with water and the other with milk. Then catch a fly and place it in the glass of water. That fly is an island, because it is entirely surrounded by water. But now place the fly in the glass of milk, and it will be a peninsula, because it is nearly surrounded by water."

The boy went to the top of the class.

There are many people who make it a point when they receive a goldpiece to withdraw it from circulation by hiding it in some secret place, and the amount of gold thus hoarded is probably very large.

In Portugal married women retain their maiden names.

Was In the Business.

It was on a Seventh street car that a well dressed man carried his hand to his jaw now and then and uttered a stifled groan. After a bit a fellow passenger had his curiosity aroused and brusquely queried:

"Toothache?"

"Yes."

"I've been there and know all about it. If she's holler and has the jumps, it ain't no use fooling around. What you want to do is to go to a dentist."

"Um! Jerusha, but how it aches!"

"Go right to the dentist and have it yanked out. Man with the toothache always feels a little scared about having it yanked, but that's all imagination, you know."

"I'd rather be shot!" groaned the sufferer.

"Oh, pshaw! Go to some dentist who gives laughing gas. He'll give you gas and take the tooth out without your knowing it. I pledge you my word that it won't hurt any more than paring off a finger nail."

"Um! What a liar! G'way from me!"

"Why, man, I pledge you my word that you'll never"—

"Don't talk to me! I know all about it! I've been a dentist myself for the last 15 years!"

"Oh, you have!" growled the other as he backed away. "Well, that's different. It will not only seem to you as if your blamed old head was being pulled off your shoulders, but your jaw will ache two weeks after, and I'm durned glad of it too!"—Washington Post.

Sorrows of the Millionaire.

Look at the ways of the millionaire. Given his million, he gives up his house and builds himself a small, first class hotel in some big city, which for the greater part of the year is occupied by servants. He next erects a country palace at Lenox or at Newport. This he calls a cottage, though it usually looks more like a public library or a hospital or a clubhouse.

Then he builds himself a camp, with stained glass windows, in the Adirondacks and has to float a small railroad in order to get himself and his wife's trunks into camp. Shortly after these follows a bungalow modeled after a French chateau, somewhere in the south, and then a yacht warranted to cross the ocean in ten days and to produce seasickness 12 hours sooner than the regular ocean steamer becomes one of the necessities of life.

Result, he never lives anywhere. To occupy all his residences, camps and bungalows he has to keep eternally on the move, and when he thinks he needs a trip to Europe he has his yacht got ready and sends it over, going himself on a fast steamer. Oh, it's a terrible thing to be a millionaire and have nowhere to lay one's head, with every poorer man envying him, many hating him and hands raised against him everywhere!—Woman's Home Companion.

Fiddled Into Office.

If history be true, Governor Taylor of Tennessee is not the only man who fiddled himself into office. Lossing relates that in 1848 he met at Oswego, N. Y., Major Cochran, then nearly 80 years old, a son-in-law of General Philip Schuyler, who told the story of his election to congress during the administration of the elder Adams. A vessel was to be launched on one of the lakes in interior New York, and people came from afar to see it. The young folks gathered there, determined to have a dance at night. There was a fiddle, but no fiddler. Young Cochran was an amateur performer, and his services were demanded. He gratified the joyous company, and at the supper table one of the gentlemen remarked, in commendation of his talents, that he was "fit for congress." The matter was talked up, and he was nominated and elected a representative in congress for the district then comprising the whole of New York west of Schenectady. He always claimed to have "fiddled himself into congress." It seems that history repeats itself, according to the proverb.—Washington Star.

Preferred to Have Her Talk.

They were exchanging reminiscences of a pleasant evening.

"And what did your wife say when you got home?" asked one.

"Nothing," answered the other.

"Nothing? Well, you were in luck."

"Oh, I don't know. I'd rather dodge words than some other things."—New York Mail and Express.

Practical Application.

A certain minister during his discourse one Sabbath morning said, "In each blade of grass there is a sermon."

The following day one of his flock discovered the good man pushing a lawnmower about his yard and paused to say, "Well, parson, I'm glad to see you engaged in cutting your sermons short!"—Chicago News.

Possible Explanation of It.

"I wonder what's the matter with Willie Jenkins? He's been getting into all sorts of mischief of late, especially Thursday afternoons."

"Oh, that's easily explained. That's the afternoon Mrs. Jenkins goes to a mothers' meeting to discuss the proper method of child education and discipline."—Chicago Post.

To Swallow His Own Advice.

"I had a horrible dream last night," said Huddleston when he came down to breakfast the other morning.

"What was it?" asked his wife.

"I dreamed that I was in purgatory and was made to do all the things I had told my friends I would do if I were in their places."—Brooklyn Life.

For some reason the man who has no money to buy food is never seized with a desire to acquire fame by breaking all records for fasting.—Atchison Globe.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the [illegible]

Webster and the Plow.

"Daniel Webster, when at his home at Marshfield, would never speak on politics when here, but he would talk to the assembled neighbors and guests on matters pertaining to farming. On one occasion some Boston friends presented him with an enormous plow to use on his farm. Webster gave out word that on a certain day it would be christened. The day arrived, and the surrounding farmers for miles came to witness the event. A dozen teams with aristocratic occupants came down from Boston. It was expected by every one that Webster would make a great speech on the occasion, reviewing the history of farming back to the time when Cincinnatus abdicated the most mighty throne in the world to cultivate cabbages in his Roman garden.

"The plow was brought out, and ten yoke of splendid oxen were hitched in front. More than two hundred people stood around on the tiptoe of expectation. Webster soon made his appearance. He had been calling spirits from the vasty deep, and his gait was somewhat uncertain. Seizing the plow handles and spreading his feet, he yelled to me in his deep bass voice:

"'Are you ready, Wright?'

"'All ready, Mr. Webster,' was the reply, meaning, of course, for the speech.

"Webster straightened himself up by a mighty effort and shouted:

"'Then let her rip!'

"The whole crowd dropped to the ground and roared with laughter, while Webster, with his big plow, proceeded to rip up the soil. The same plow can now be seen on top of the Faneuil Hall market in Boston and is a conspicuous object for miles around."—Lewiston Journal.

The Belief In Charms.

A belief in charms has existed in all ages and has been shared by all peoples. It is a natural result of superstition. The phylacteries worn by Mohammedan and Jewish women on the forehead form but one phase of this universal belief. Faith, however, is deemed essential and is true of all talismans that are copied from old patterns and not constructed according to the rules of the cabalistic art.

Talismans to be efficacious must be constructed when the planets are in benefic configuration. It is then that the magic geometrical words and figures inscribed thereon are more potent in their results for good. The date of birth of the person for whom the talisman is made must also be considered, so that his particular lucky star is taken into consideration.

Many great men were believers in talismans and wore them constantly. Napoleon especially was very superstitious and carried on his person a charm given to him by an Egyptian priest, which he regarded as being responsible for his great success in battle. The Rothschild family, it is said, also has a talisman, which is an heirloom. It is in the shape of a snuffbox and is said to have brought the family the great wealth for which it is celebrated.—New York Herald.

Settled Out of Court.

A barrister riding his bicycle on a path was caught by a policeman. The gentleman at once came off the path and tried to reason with the policeman.

"You aren't really going to run me in for this?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. I can't help it."

"Well, come in here (a public house close by), and we will talk about it."

The policeman followed the gentleman, who ordered two glasses of beer, one for himself, the other for the policeman, both of which were finished before he again remarked:

"Surely you are not really going to make a fuss about this?"

"I must, sir. It's my business."

"Ah! Then at the same time it will be my business to report you for drinking beer while on duty."

The policeman's expression suddenly changed.

"You're a lawyer, I suppose, sir?"

"Yes."

"And a sharp one, too," he said as he went out and left the gentleman to continue his ride.—London Answers.

One Thing Needful.

Irate Father (of pretty girl)—What! Is it possible you are here again after the treatment you received last night?

Young Man—Yes, sir. When you kicked me down stairs and set the dog on me, the animal tore a large piece from my trousers.

Irate Father—Well, isn't that enough? What more do you want?

Young Man—If it isn't too much trouble, sir, I would like that piece of cloth.—Chicago News.

Liquor License Application.

To the Common Council of the village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

The undersigned, J. B. Senate, hereby make application for a license to be granted to him to sell intoxicating liquors for a period of twelve months from the second day of July 1900.

The place where said business is to be carried on is designated as follows: On the ground floor of the two story building situate on lot fourteen (14), of block thirty-nine (39) of the original townsite of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, said building having three outside entrances, one in front one in side and one in rear.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said village of St. Hilaire and the statute of said State of Minnesota in such case made and provided.

Dated at St. Hilaire, this 26th day of June 1900.

J. B. SENATE.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county, Minnesota, will meet at the council chamber in the village hall on Broadway in said village on Monday the 16th day of July 1900, at eight o'clock p. m. at which time objections to granting said license in accordance with the above application will be heard.

[SEAL] J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.

NOTICE.

Department of the Interior,
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office under authority in him vested by section 2455 U. S. R. S., as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895 (28 Stat., 687), we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 26th day of July 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., the following tract of land, to-wit:

SE¼ NW¼ Sec. 1, T. 151 N., R. 42 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated June 6th 1900. [illegible] Register.

UNCLE SAM Is not In the Shoe Business, And Neither Am I, But I can Interest You in CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

J. B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

FARMS 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.

ABSTRACTS furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.
—o—
Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.
Rasors honed and put in first-class order.
J. H. PENNO, Prop.
ST. HILAIRE MINNESOTA

UNCLE SAM'S MONOGRAM WHISKEY
Everybody Likes It
Sold by Druggists and Dealers.
Geo Benz & Sons, St. Paul.

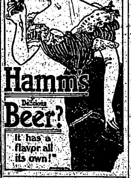
First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.



"Won't You Try
The Hamm Brewing Co. Telephone 972. St. Paul, Minn.
Hamm's Delicious Beer?
It has a flavor all its own!"

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo, with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

For Fine Goods
Good Goods
New Goods
Up to Date Goods

Visit Us as we are the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents Furnishing House in the City.

GREAT WESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storansli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route

Best Line to Chicago and St. Louis

"The Limited," the finest train in the world, leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m., St. Paul 8:05 p. m., every day. Electric lighted, steam heated, has compartment and standard sleepers, reclining chair cars, coaches, and dining car on the cafe plan. "The Scenic Express" leaves Minneapolis 7:10 a. m. St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday. Ask your home agent for tickets via this line.

P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. Agent, CHICAGO, ILL.
GEO. P. LYMAN, Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent ST. PAUL, MINN.

TIME AND SPACE are practically annihilated by the ocean cables and land telegraph systems which now belt the circumference of Old Earth in so many different directions. "Foreign parts" are no longer foreign in the old meaning of the term. Europe, Africa, Asia, are "next door" to us. What happens there to-day we know to-morrow—if we read THE CHICAGO RECORD, whose Special Cable Correspondents are located in every important city in the world outside of the United States. No other American newspaper ever attempted so extensive a service; and it is supplemented by the regular foreign news service of The Associated Press. For accurate intelligence of the stirring events which are shaking the nations—of wars and rumors of wars—of the threatening dissolution of old governments and the establishment of new—of the onward sweep of the race in all parts of the world—the one medium of the most satisfactory information is the enterprising, "up-to-date" American newspaper, THE CHICAGO RECORD.

FREE A large map of the world on Mercator's Projection, about 22½x16 inches in size, beautifully printed in colors, with a large-scale map of Europe on the reverse side, will be mailed to any address free of charge on receipt of request accompanied by two 2-cent stamps to cover postage and wrapping. The maps illustrate clearly how comprehensively the special cable service of THE CHICAGO RECORD covers the entire civilized world. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.

Cigars.

J. B. SENATE
DEALER IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.
(Brink Bros. Old Stand) St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

NEW MEAT MARKET.
L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

It's Time

Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
O. F. Post, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. G.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Mrs. L. Lacoursiere, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant	Councilmen
T. J. Thorkelson	Councilmen
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario.
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes
Alex Patnode	Gervias	Red Lake Falls

The Ideal Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS.
PROMPT SERVICE.
OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd STORE
(Second Hand Store.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
St. Hilaire, Minnesota

New Restaurant
[Brink Bros. Corner Building.]
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.
If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
O. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the Spectator. Official county and village paper.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.69½	Oats	.22
Wheat No. 2	.67½	Barley	.25
Wheat No. 3	.63½	Flax	1.72
Eggs (per doz).	8	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

Circus in St. Hilaire next Monday.

H. E. Ives made a trip to the county seat yesterday.

Carpenters are busy erecting the new Catholic church.

Peter Hall was a Red Lake Falls visitor yesterday.

There will be no good haying until after harvest this year.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

Supt. Chapin of the Crookston Lumber Company was here yesterday.

Born: To Mr. and Mrs. D. Collins, Monday July 9th 1900, a daughter.

Miss LeLome of Crookston is here visiting with Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Post.

Robt. Fritz returned Thursday from a few days visit with friends at Duluth.

Roadmaster Daggett of the Great Northern spent Friday night in the village.

Sam Dainard was down from the upper Falls last Friday looking for river drivers.

No feed will be ground this week at the feed mill on account of making repairs.

Forepaugh & Sell's Bros. circus will exhibit at Grand Forks next Saturday July 14th.

Skerbeck & Co., will be here with their one ring circus next Monday July 16th.

The Spectator will go back to its old form of issuing a folio commencing next week.

M. Lewis and A. Randall of Vesta, Minn., were here Monday on a land hunting tour.

Alex. Barnes, Martin McAndress and Barney Fuzee left last Thursday for Missoula, Mont.

Knut Jorstad, taylor of Thief River Falls was here yesterday consulting Dr. Blomburgh.

The populist county convention will be held at Red Lake Falls on Wednesday, August 1st.

Manager Chapin of the Crookston Lumber Company was here between trains last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dahl, and daughter Carrie, spent Sunday with relatives and friends at Crookston.

Red Lake Falls had a rousing July Fourth celebration, so they all say that were there on that day.

County Commissioner Johnson was in the village the first of the week enroute to the county seat.

Surveyor Hagglund was down to Wylie last week surveying a new townsite for P. E. Smidesang.

—If you want to make a loan or sell your farm call on or address Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

The foundation of the large government school building at the Red Lake Agency is about completed.

President Shevlin of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company is with us to-day looking over his large interests.

The Thief River club did up the Crookston nine to the tune of 13 to 1 at the former town on July 4th.

A large shaft in the mill broke last Thursday morning necessitating a shut down for the balance of the day.

A new eight foot sidewalk is being put down on the west side of Broadway between 2nd and 3rd streets.

Attorney Wilkinson of the Great Northern was here between trains Monday enroute to the county seat.

Jake Einerson left this morning for his homestead north-east of German town to put up his winters supply of hay.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. Post on Thursday afternoon. All ladies and cordially invited.

Those who have not taken out their second citizen papers should see to it this month if they intend to vote in November.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation, sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

G. N. Evenson returned from N. D., yesterday and will commence putting up hay. He says there is none in N. D., this year.

Everybody are invited to a sociable at the M. E. church Wednesday evening July 11th. Refreshments for both young and old 15 cents.

Miss Bertha Loughridge left last Friday for her home at Warren after spending two weeks here visiting with her sister, Mrs. Fred Case.

Two extra coaches were hooked onto the regular train to accommodate the crowd that went to Thief River Falls last Wednesday to spend the day.

J. B. Senate carries an advertisement in this paper. He carries nothing but the very best of goods and if you need anything in his line give him a call.

People from Beltrami and Norman counties Minn., and N. D., are coming in here and buying hay stumpage and all the hay is now nearly picked up.

Swan Olson of Oakland, Neb., was here a short time last Saturday looking up a location for a farm. He will come back the last part of August to stay.

The state summer training school for Red Lake county will be held at Red Lake Falls beginning Monday July 16th and closing Friday August 10th.

The team belonging to Mr. Hedeen, a farmer living east of here, became frightened Monday and nearly succeeded in getting into Joe Roleau's fruit store.

Prosperity? Well, as Mr. Bryan suggests, all those who feel prosperous vote for McKinley; all others vote against him. The result will not be in doubt.

The barley harvest has begun in the southern part of the state and oats are ripening. The chinch bugs are numerous down there and are attacking the corn.

C. C. Bergan of Fargo, N. D., was here last week and bought the Lunbeck farm three miles west of town. Consideration $800. Mr. B. will move on the land at once.

The St. Hilaire gun club got out to practice for the first time on July 4th. Most of the membere never shot over a trap, hence we leave out the score as it would not look well in print.

Rev. Mr. Myers and wife arrived from Chicago Saturday and have commenced house keeping in the parsonage. The Spectator joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Myers a long and happy life.

The Hallock News gives it out cold that it has positive information that the Great Northern officials have concluded to extend their road from Thief River Falls north into Roseau county without delay.

Forty hours rain in one stretch is what they had up at Red Lake last week and the logging contractors are correspondingly happy—so much so that one company alone wanted 150 drivers last Friday.

Surveyor Ralph of Crookston was here last Friday, being called up to pass judgment on the new bridge that spans County Ditch No. 1 at the muskeg. It did not stand the inspection, hence it will have to be re-built.

Charles Kratka of Lansing, Iowa, son of Capt. W. A. Kratka, who owns a large farm three miles northeast of here, has a record that is hard to beat. The local paper of that town says he has neither been absent nor tardy from school in the past seven years.

Thos. J. Hurley, vice-president of the Exploration Company of New York arrived yesterday to look over his interests in this county. Mr. Hurley has about two thousand acres of unimproved land a few miles east of town which he will turn into a stock ranch.

Jas. Meehan of the upper Falls made a trip to the county seat last week and while there closed a deal for the Hotel Wilmes. It is said the place will be conducted by Mrs. Farnsworth, a sister of Mrs. Meehan, who has been in the hotel business for many years.

Estray Notice.

Came to my premises on July 2nd, 1900, a yearling mulley heifer, white, with red spots on neck and side. Owner can have same by proving ownership and paying expenses.

Ed. Aubol,
Sec. 29 Town of Rocksbury.

The wife of a Methodist minister in an Iowa town has been married three times. Her maiden name was Partridge, her first husband was named Robbins, the second Sparrow, and the present one Quales. There are two young Robbins, one Sparrow and two little Quales, and the family live on Jay street. One almost might be forgiven for suggesting that the lady was a "bird."—Ex.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scott wish to express their thanks to the people of St. Hilaire for the kindness shown to their daughter, Mrs. Vernon, in her recent trouble. Also to the worthy society, the Modern Woodmen of America, with which Mr. Vernon was connected, for their sympathy and help and for the promptness in the payment of insurance carried by Mr. Vernon.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, July 23rd and 24th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 23th and 24th.

—To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Belgian Hare Industry.

Thousands of dollars is at the present time being spent in Minnesota to advertise the "Belgian Hares." From the following "remarkable figures of what has been accomplished" we would say it would be a mighty good thing to keep out of this or any other country. "They say they are "prolific" and from the following figures we should say they were. Below is part of one advertisement:

THEY ARE PROLIFIC.

Take two well bred does costing, say, $10 to $15 each. They will produce from 5 to 12 young each time, and six litters a year. The average size of a litter is eight, and the young breeding at the age of five months produce three litters before the end of the year. Allowing one-half of the first three litters to be does, you will get a total production from your two of over 200 in one year. The young will sell readily at the age of two months, at $3 each, while if care is used in getting the best breeding for original stock, $10 may be confidently expected for a large number at the age of five months. Allowing 25 per cent for death rate which would be very large we still have 150. The following conservative estimate may therefore be given:

80 at $3 each	$240
40 at $5 each	200
30 at $10 each	300
Total	$740

An exchange says: "Did you ever stop to think that at ordinary deck of playing cards is a perfect calendar? There are fifty two cards, representing the number of weeks in a year; 365 spots, corresponding to the days in a year; twelve faced cards representing the twelve months; four suits, clubs, spades, hearts and diamonds, representing the four seasons; thirteen cards in each suit, representing the thirteen moons in each year; and the joker make up for the extra day in the year.

The Fourth passed off very quietly, there being no celebration here to speak of. The small boy and the fire-cracker was of course in evidence. Most of our people took advantage of the excursion and spent the day at Thief River Falls. Those who stayed at home amused themselves in various ways, some picniced and others spent the afternoon and evening at the bowery. The band boys gave a dance at the Hotel Markham in the evening which was largely attended and all report a good time. Next year St. Hilaire will celebrate in the good old fashioned way.

—The Himle Land and Loan Co., will loan money on farm lands at legal rate, no commission, call on or address, Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

Yes, Tell Us.

In answer to a point blank inquiry, the Minneapolis Tribune admits that 1878, McKinley voted in congress for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. If there is any guestion of importance upon which Mr. Hanna's man has not been on both sides we would like someone to tell us what it is.—Martin County Sentinel.

Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota for the moving of the Steel Sells from Old Polk County Jail to Red Lake Falls. Sells to be set up complete at place designated by county board. Bids to be presented to county auditor on or before July 21st 1900. Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Adam Zeh,
County Auditor.

There will be a big republican blowout in St. Paul the middle of this month. All the railroads have made a rate of one fare for the round trip and nothing is said about the number of tickets that must be sold in order to procure the reduction. The traveling public will please note that republican gatherings are the only ones for which half fare rates are granted. The very best that is given to other organizations including old soldiers and firemen is a fare and a third, with a whole lot of squabbling to get that. As for Democrats and Populists they may walk or pay full fare. Oh! Golden King thou art a power.

—For screen doors and windows go to I. Dahleen's.

Belgian Hare Advertising.

Farm, Stock and Home has refused a tempting offer to advertise Belgian hares, and this is the dull season for advertising, too; but it would as soon advertise quack grass and Canada thistle seed under new and enticing names; it would as quickly advertise and encourage the distribution of smallpox or consumption germs as to advertise and encourage the production of a worthless, ravenous, burrowing beast, the awful fecundity of which will make it so numerous and destructive that, if its promoters have their way, in less than five years the state will be implored to pay huge bounties for its extermination!

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, July 23rd and 24th.

"We have sold many different cough remedies, but none has given better satisfaction than Chamberlain's," says Mr. Charles Holzhauer, Druggist, Newark, N. J. "It is perfectly safe and can be relied upon in all cases of coughs, colds or hoarseness. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

—To cure a cough in one day take the [illegible]

Notice to Teachers.

The teachers training school in and for Red Lake county will be held in the high school building in the city of Red Lake Falls beginning Monday, July 16th. Persons expecting to teach in this county the coming year will please attend this school or furnish a valid excuse for not doing so. The school will be under the efficient management of Prof. McArthur, a member of the faculty of the St. Cloud Normal and the work will be alone a line which will be of the most service to the rural school teacher. Certificates will be issued to those attending the full term, and due consideration will be given these certificates in my recommendation of teachers for the different schools throughout the county.

The fall examinations will be held at the close of the summer school and a month's work here will strengthen your work in the examination.

Those attending will bring what text books they have and if more are needed they will be furnished by the undersigned.

Those desiring a boarding place will please notify me at once so that proper arrangements may be made.

Frank Jeffers,
Co. Supt. of Schools.

SIDEWALK NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota have ordered the construction of a sidewalk on the west side of Minnesota avenue fron Pine street to Second street in said village to be six feet in width, constructed of dressed and sized two (2) inch pine planks six (6) inches wide, placed flatwise and firmly spiked upon four (4) sleepers or stringers of Norway pine two (2) inches thick and (6) inches wide placed edgewise at equal distance from one another and those next to the edges of the walk to be four (4) inches from their respective edges and all to be placed upon a firm foundation; and the material in said sidewalk to be of a quality acceptable to the street commissioner of said village and the work upon the same to be done to his satisfaction.

The side of the walk towards the center of the street to be six (6) feet from the front line of the lots upon the side of the street upon which it may be built, and said sidewalk to be constructed to a grade line established by said village council.

That for the purpose of building said sidewalk the said village council have levied and assessed a tax of thirty-five (35) cents per front foot upon all the lands hereinafter described and the owners thereof, and delivered to the undersigned a warrant for the collection of said tax. That the description of the lands in said village fronting upon said sidewalk, and the names of the owners thereof, which are known as well as the lands whose owners are not known are as follows:

Names	Lot	Blk	St. Hilaire
St. Hilaire Townsite Co.	1	23	"
	2	"	"
B. Bjorge	3	"	"
John Collser	4	"	"
C. J. Carlson	5	"	"
	6	"	"
Carl Johnson	7	"	"
	8	"	"
St. Hilaire Townsite Co	9	"	"
Christ Larson	10	"	"
St. Hilaire Townsite Co	11	"	"
" "	12	"	"
" "	1	30	"
" "	2	"	"
" "	3	"	"
"	4	"	"
James Deach	5	"	"
H. E. Adams	6	"	"
	7	"	"
Andrew Hall	8	"	"
"	9	"	"
"	10	"	"
St Hilaire Townsite Co	11	"	"
"	12	"	"
L. Stranahan	1	35	"
"	2	"	"
St. Hilaire Townsite Co	3	"	"
"	4	"	"
Unknown	5	"	"
"	6	"	"
F. O. Ashall	7	"	"
St. Hilaire Townsite Co	8	"	"
"	9	"	"
"	10	"	"
Scand. Ev. Luth. church	11	"	"
" "	12	"	"

Now, therefore, the owners of the aforesaid lands are hereby notified and required to pay the said taxes in labor, material or money on or before the 30th day of July 1900, and that the labor and material offered in payment of such taxes are to be such as may be required by the street commissioner of said village, and done and furnished to his satisfaction.

Dated this 6th day of July 1900.

S. Harris,
Street Commissioner.

—Go to Rapp & Post for harness and harness supplies.

—Screen doors and windows made to order at I. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

Spent a Good Farm Doctoring.

Mr. A. N. Noell of Asherville, Kansas says he spent a good farm doctoring himself for chronic diarrhoea but got no relief and was afraid that he must die. He chanced to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was permanently cured by it. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th, 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewelry Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly,
Prof. J. Q. Adams,
Watchmaker and Optician.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing [illegible]

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of
Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

Her Heart's Secret

Or Under a Spell.

By Jean Warner.

CHAPTER XXVI—(Continued.)

"What do you mean?" asked the young man, haughtily. "I neither understand you nor your story, woman. What power could you have over Robert Clive?"

"The power of one who held his honor in her hands—the power of one who, by a word, could disgrace his name—the name that he would have left a proud legacy to his children—the power of one who could at this moment cast these children, dishonored and penniless, upon a cruel world. My power, you ask? Ha, ha! Mr. Clive, it is too great for even the haughty master of Clive Towers to defy, for it reaches to his father's grave. Now,—what are your terms? How will you treat with me?"

"As the traitress, the hypocrite, the would-be despot that you are!" exclaimed Herbert, fiercely. "Leave the room, woman—leave my presence!—I defy you to do your worst!"

The slender form of the housekeeper trembled with passion.

"Your father's name, your father's grave, aye, your father's children, all shall feel, know my power, before another sun has set! Scorned and dishonored, who will look upon the once haughty Clives? Once more, think—think of your father's honor!—your father, who guarded his secret for your sake, for five-and-twenty-years—think of him!"

"I can think of nothing!" exclaimed Herbert—"nothing but the silent devil you have harbored in your breast for twenty years! Begone, I say, woman, and do your worst! Spit out what venom you please upon the grave of your benefactor, who fed and sheltered you—on the children of the sainted woman who befriended you! I ask nothing from—I will hear nothing from you!"

"This very night—aye, this very night"—she panted like some furious animal—"I will go to the lawyer's! I will put my information in his hands. I will ruin you, shame you, dishonor you and yours forever. Already the whisper has gone forth, and I will give it a thousand tongues! The story shall be in every mouth, on every lip, before every eye! You defy me? Ah, Mr. Clive, you defy one whom even your haughty father dare not defy!"

"Aye, I defy you!" answered Herbert flinging his arm about the waist of his trembling sister, and motioning the enraged woman to the door. "If my father feared you, I do not! Go, I say! Leave this house, never to return. Do your worst. Any compromise with such as you would be the basest dishonor! I have done no wrong, I fear no evil, and, for the rest, I scorn to parley with you. Go, I say! You have done harm enough, already, in blighting, by your mysterious threats, the tender flower at my side. Go! This night, at least, I am master of Clive Towers and if it be my last command under this roof, I tell you to leave it forever!"

"I go," she said, trembling with passion—"I go, and woe unto Clive Towers, and all within its walls when Rebecca Wyllis leaves it in wrath! Woe, woe—a hundred times woe!"

CHAPTER XXXVII.

True Steel.

Late that same evening Dr. Bond sat alone in his cosy study. He was glancing at a letter he had received that day—a letter written in a dainty, feminine hand, and bearing the postmark of a far-off Swiss town.

"Poor little girl!" murmured the doctor, to himself. "She never forgets a promise. She writes to the old man, as she said she would, though I can see the heartbreak in every line. Ah, well, well, I feel as if it will all come right, though human passion is an awful thing to pit against human happiness! The dark demon generally carries the day. Hark! what is that?"—a fearful shriek rang out into the air, that made the cool doctor spring from his chair—"in the name of heaven, what is that?"

"Doctor, doctor—oh, doctor! There's a sick woman out here on the road," said the little mulatto, entering, with his big black eyes open to their fullest capacity. "She's got some dreadful sort of fit on her, an' she's a-callin for you."

"Can I come in?" said a sepulchral voice at the door, and the tall form of Rizpah, looking like some ghastly, ashen corpse, appeared on the threshold. "Let me come in and—and die—die in peace! I have it—I have it!" and she waved a paper package above her head with a wild triumph. "Look to it, Harry Bond; you were her friend, her lover! Look to it, that I may die in peace! I throttled her as she stole out in the darkness! I tore it from her bosom! Ha, ha, ha! Rizpah has not been watching all these weeks in vain! I would have clawed him from the earth if he had carried it to the grave with him; but she had it—the wild-cat, the panthress! She would have kept her nest warm with the rotten secret! but I have it. Oh, my boy, my boy, the wild wolf that reared you was true—true to the last!"

"Rizpah, Rizpah!" the doctor caught the tottering woman in his arms, "what have you done? What is this you have done? Good God, there is blood on your clothes!"

"Aye, aye!" was the feeble, though still fierce answer: "blood, blood—her blood! We fought each other for our own! I met her in the darkness—she, the false servant, of whom the stars told—the woman that Robert Clive feared! I met her, and I dragged it from her breast! Look to it, I say—look to it, Harry Bond, that I may die in peace!"

The doctor picked up the paper that had fallen from the dying woman's grasp. For weeks and weeks Rizpah had been dying.

It was worn and time-stained, torn and blurred; but it was the paper that had laid on Robert Clive's breast, cankering and poisoning life for five-and-twenty years—it was the secret that Wyllis had torn from his dying hold—it was the marriage certificate of Basil Clive and Sybil Lee.

"Is it right—is it right?" asked the quivering, ashen lips of the woman before him—"is it right? Tell me, quick! If I could live—oh, God, if I could only live!"

"It is all right," said the doctor, soothingly. "Poor Rizpah! may heaven judge you more mercifully than earth. You have, mad and bloody though the deed may have been, restored your boy to his rights. This paper makes the son of Basil Clive and Sybil Lee the heir of Clive Towers."

"My boy, my boy!" murmured poor Rizpah. "Tell him that I did it. Tell him that I waited, I watched, I never wearied—that in the dead of night I crept around Clive Towers, like—like a vengeful ghost, till I knew that she—she, the false, silent woman—had the secret of Robert Clive; and then—then the blood-red star was shining—the star of fate, of doom—and I—I felt my blood warm and my hand strong, and I—I throttled her as she walked in the darkness! I—I Come nearer, Harry Bond—come nearer. I—I cannot see you. Tell him, my boy, my nursling—that I was true—true to the last. When he is great, and rich, and honored, let him think of— O, Lord, I suff r! I—I. Her eyes are on me, but I—I do not fear. Let the boy think of the wild wolf that nursed him, that reared him, that lived for him, and—and died for—for him—died for him alone!"

She fell back, 'mid the lounge pillows, writhing in the death agony, her livid lips still striving to articulate the loved one's name, her hands motioning wildly towards the paper the doctor held in his hand.

"It is all right," he whispered. "Poor, deluded Rizpah! May God judge you more mercifully than man. It is all right."

"Right! right!"—she sprang up with a dying effort while her sunken eyes seemed to glitter with supernatural fire. "Aye, it is right! Have not the stars told me of this hour for five-and-twenty years—the blood-red star, the star of triumph, of justice, of death! Aye, aye! I have lived to see it. And I charge you, Harry Bond, in the name of Sybil Lee, to see that my boy—that her boy—has his own. I charge you with my—my dying breath!"

The doctor caught the tottering form in his arms. It lay there, stiff, and gaunt, and helpless. Rizpah's hour of triumph had been her last.

That same night, a hideous, livid corpse was found on the forest path, leading by the haunted hollow—a slender, black-robed woman, whose light-grey eyes were protruding horribly from their bloody sockets—whose every feature was distorted by the agonies of a terrible death.

There were dark purple marks around the throat that seemed almost like the prints of a wild beast's talons, and the white, slender hands still clutched in their stiff fingers shreds of gray hair, that told of a fearful struggle between the mad woman and her victim.

But the purpose that had lived in Rizpah's breast for five-and-twenty years had nerved her murderous hand with fearful power, and Mrs. Wyllis had fallen a victim to her own vengeful purpose, even as she was bending her steps toward Lawyer Grey's to tell him all.

Before the inquest was held at Clive Towers, Dr. Bond sought an interview with Herbert Clive.

He found the young man in his father's study, pale, stern, yet composed.

He had never looked so manly, so handsome, so fitting a "master" in the home of his birth. All his boyish lightness—the impulsive eagerness of other days—seemed gone.

Care and sorrow, doubt and danger, had come to the glad child of fortune, and moulded him into a man, whose sterling metal needed even further proof.

After the first greetings, cordial, although grave, as befitted the occasion, were over, Herbert himself began the conversation.

"I am glad you have come, doctor. There is an old standing pledge of friendship between us, and that I now call upon you to redeem. I have come home to find a shadow resting upon me and mine—a cloud upon my father's memory—a suspicion resting upon his grave. This unfortunate woman who has just met so terrible a death, taunted me last evening with words that my blood would boil to repeat. She dared to propose to me—to the son of Robert Clive—a compromise, a disgraceful compromise, that alone could shield my dead father's name from obloquy!"

"You refused, then?" said the doctor, eyeing the young man keenly.

"I ordered her from the door," answered Herbert, haughtily. "Whatever may come upon me, I make no terms with dishonor. I scorn any safety that must be purchased by aught so debasing as a bribe."

"Bravely said!" exclaimed the doctor, grasping the young man's hand cordially. "You ring out true to any blow, my friend, and I'd give everything I am worth, to shield you from the heavy one that awaits you. But you are no weak woman, to need an anodyne, and I speak to you as a man to a man. Here is the secret of which this wretched woman gained possession—the secret which your father guarded for five-and-twenty years, the secret that destroyed his happiness, that caused him to die at last wretched and conscience-stricken. Here it is. I give it to you, Herbert Clive, to do with it what you will."

The doctor handed Herbert the torn, soiled paper—Rizpah's dying charge—the marriage certificate of Basil Clive and Sybil Lee.

He saw the young man's face pale, even to the lips, as he looked upon it; but there was no faltering in the voice, no shrinking in the dark, clear eye.

"This means that the man of whom I have once or twice heard my father speak is the rightful heir?"

"The rightful heir," repeated Dr. Bond, gravely. "Basil Clive, the elder, left no will, and his entire property descended to the heir-at-law. This certificate was committed to your father by his uncle on his death-bed, with the charge that he should do justice to his unknown son. But"—

The doctor paused. It was hard to condemn the dead father to the living son. It was hard to say to Herbert Clive that the strong, stern being who had given him life had darkened that life with the stain of dishonor.

"I see, I see!" replied the young man, in a tone that grew hoarse, despite his efforts to master it. "I see now the hold this woman had on my father. My father! Oh, God, my poor, poor father!"

No anger, no reproach, no condemnation—only infinite pity, tenderness, sorrow for the dead.

Dr. Bond felt like clasping the young hero to his heart, and holding him there like a son.

For a moment there was silence, then Herbert spoke again, clearly and calmly:

"There is, of course, sir, but one thing to be done, and that is justice—complete and immediate justice."

"It was your father's dying word," said the doctor, softly—"justice!"

"I am glad of it," continued Herbert, "though I would not have needed this solemn mandate to shape my course. I will see Lawyer Grey and relinquish all my claim to Clive Towers at once, in favor of the lawful heir. Do you know aught of this—this Basil Clive? He is a stranger to me."

"Have you never seen him?" asked the doctor, evasively.

"Never to my knowledge," answered Herbert, simply. "I have heard my father speak of him as a wild, reckless man."

"He felt himself to be a wronged man," said the doctor. "I have met him, and know Basil Clive to have a noble generous heart, that will respond at once to sentiments such as you have manifested. For this reason, and because I have your interest truly at heart, I would act as a mediator between you. Let there be no formal interposition of the iron hand of the law. As friends and kinsmen, let this matter be amicably arranged between you. It will be better for the living, and"—the doctor laid his hand in a friendly manner on Herbert's shoulder, while his voice softened into tenderness—"and far better for the dead!"

"As you please, sir," answered Herbert, simply. "I—I will shrink from no pain or mortification that awaits me; but—but," the clear voice shook slightly, "my dead father's memory is sacred to me. I—I would shield it if possible at any cost—save that of justice. I leave you to make what arrangements your generous and disinterested friendship may suggest—I leave you to make what terms you please with Basis Clive. From this moment I relinquish all claim to Clive Towers; and, with my broken-hearted sister, I will seek another and humbler home. Thank heaven, I have youth, health, energy, and, I trust, talents enough to gain an honest livelihood, wherever my fortune may be cast!"

"Nobly spoken, my friend—nobly spoken! Let me help you," said the doctor, clasping the young man's hand with an emotion he could not repress. "I am an old man, with none to care for—with none to aid. If God had blessed my barren life with a son like you, I would feel that, come fortune or misfortune, riches or poverty, sickness or health, life would not have been lived in vain. Leave Clive Towers if you will, in my hands, and be sure that your trust will not be abused. But do nothing in haste. Take your time. Youth is always headlong. At sixty-five, we learn the wisest and hardest lesson is to wait."

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

False Friends and True.

It was about two weeks after the events narrated in our last chapter that a young officer, dressed in a handsome uniform, rode up the avenue leading to Greylawns, and, dismounting at the door, was warmly welcomed by Miss Marian.

"This is indeed, an unexpected pleasure," she said, leading him into the parlor. "I thought you were exiled for six months, at least, Lieutenant. Do sit down here by the fire and explain your appearance."

"I received the most singular note from Fannie," Fenton Forest replied, in an amazed tone, "and I came on at once to ask for an explanation. Is anything wrong at Clive Towers?"

"Dear me, wrong?" repeated Miss Marian, meaningly. "Have you not heard? But I forget—you have been away so long, and everything has been kept as quiet as possible. You know Mr. Robert Clive is dead?"

"I heard that," answered Fenton, quickly; "but he left Fannie—that is, he left a handsome estate to his children. She writes me all sorts of sentimental nonsense about poverty and disgrace."

"Poor girl!" murmured Miss Marian, softly; "it is very hard for her to bear. But pride must have a fall. I always felt the grandeur of the Clives was built on a very shaky foundation. There have been all sorts of rumors floating about for the last three months, but no one could say anything was positively wrong until Mr. Clive's death. He took to opium-eating, you know, and, oh, died most wretchedly! Then the housekeeper, Mrs. Wyllis, who was always in his confidence, was found strangled in the woods, and though it was all laid to some wild gipsy or mulatto woman's door, there are whispers about that Herbert Clive knows more about it than he chooses to tell. There were family secrets in the woman's possession that it would not do to let loose. And Dr. Bond is at the Towers now, though he will give no explanation of his presence there. And Herbert and Fannie went off this morning, goodness knows where, and they say there is another heir coming from Europe, and that these Clives never had any right to the place at all. Oh, dear! they have been the talk of the country for miles around, and they will never be able to hold up their heads again."

"This is what her note means, then," said Fenton, rising and pacing the room, excitedly. "Poverty and disgrace! Why couldn't they keep the matter hushed up? What is the use of blowing the affair all over the country? A pretty mess for a man of honor to be mixed up in?"

"I do hope, for your sake, Fenton, that there was nothing serious between you and Miss Fannie!" said Marian, kindly. "Of course, she is a dear, sweet, lovely girl; but, as things are now, she couldn't expect—"

Miss Marian paused. It was rather a difficult sentence for her to conclude.

"Oh, she doesn't," said Fenton, hastily, tearing the little note he held into minute fragments. "She doesn't expect, of course, that—in fact, she knows I'm a poor devil of a fellow, and—well, in short, it was only a pleasant flirtation; nothing serious at all—nothing serious. But I did think, though," and a malicious gleam shot into the dark-brown eyes that poor Fannie had thought wells of truth—"I really did think that you and Herbert were going to make a match of it, till that golden-haired houri came on and bewitched him. As it turns out, you had a lucky escape. What will become of the poor fellow, anyhow? Friends and fortune gone at one swoop!"

"I never would have thought of Herbert Clive under any circumstances," said Miss Marian, scornfully. "Fannie was a dear little creature, but there was always something about her that I couldn't exactly trust. You may depend upon it, they would have hushed up this matter if they could. It had to break out, and I, for one, am surprised that they kept it dark so long. I've had my suspicions—and well founded ones they were—for months"—Miss Marian pursed up her mouth and shook her head sagely, as she repeated—"for months and months."

(To Be Continued.)

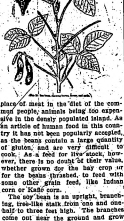
FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

The Soy Bean.

The soy bean is a native of Japan, taking its name from a sauce manufactured from it. The bean is boiled and mixed with certain proportions of rice and salt, and the compound allowed to undergo a certain process of fermentation, which results in a delicate brown sauce. The beans also take the place of meat in the diet of the common people, animals being too expensive in the densely populated island. As an article of human food in this country it has not been popularly accepted, as the beans contain a large quantity of gluten, and are very difficult to cook. As a feed for live stock, however, there is no doubt of their value, whether grown for the hay crop or for the beans thrashed, to feed with some other grain feed, like Indian corn or Kafir corn.



[illegible]

The soy bean is an upright, branching, tree-like stalk from one and one-half to three feet high. The branches come out near the ground and grow upward near the main stem; the number of branches depends upon how closely the plants are grown. The pods when ripe are short, flat, brown and fuzzy, containing from one to four beans, usually three. The pods grow very close to the stems, from the surface of the ground to the tops, there being at times as many as 200 pods on a single plant. The flowers are not prominent and vary from a pale white to a violet blue. The leaves are large, irregular in shape, borne on a long stem and drop off as the beans ripen.

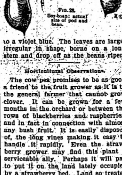


Fig. 28.
Soy-bean: actual size of pod and bean.

Horticultural Observations.

The cow pea promises to be as good a friend to the fruit grower as it is to the general farmer that cannot grow clover. It can be grown for a few months in the orchard or between the rows of blackberries and raspberries, and in fact in connection with almost any bush fruit. It is easily disposed of, the long vines making it easy to handle it rapidly. Even the strawberry grower may find this plant a serviceable ally. Perhaps it will pay to put it on the land lately occupied by a strawberry bed. Land so treated should soon be serviceable for another bed.

* * *

The strawberry root louse has been recognized as a strawberry pest since 1882, in which year it was described by Prof. Forbes. Prof. Weed took up the study of the insect and named it Aphis Forbesi, in honor of Prof. Forbes. It is now quite generally known as far east as the Atlantic coast. In New Jersey and Maryland this year it is reported to be doing a good deal of damage. Fortunately the insect is wingless and can spread but slowly. It is, however, believed that the ants help it to spread, by carrying lice to new beds. The ants also do some damage to the plants by tunneling around the strawberry roots so that the lice can find good feeding ground, the pay the ant receives being the honey-dew the lice exude. It is a difficult insect to fight when it has once obtained a foothold, as its work is largely under ground. The best way to do when the insect has appeared in a neighborhood is to put out new beds on absolutely clean ground and see that no colonies of ants are near enough to assist the plant lice to new pasturage.

Water Lilies in Pots.

A few years since, the water lily was cultivated only in a few botanical gardens, and was universally supposed to be manageable only by the specialist. But year by year it has outgrown these quarters and proves itself to be a plant for the million, says Vick's Magazine. Any person possessing water and a two-gallon pail may have aquatic plants and flowers. Water hyacinths, water poppies, parrot's feather and even the miniature nymphaeas may be grown in a vessel (wooden preferred) having a superficial area of one square foot. Tubs the size of oil or whisky barrels, sawed in two, make suitable vessels for a variety of nymphaeas and lotuses. A most pleasant addition to a lawn, noticed lately, was a group of four tubs—three of them placed in a triangle, their inner edges supporting the fourth—maying a pyramid. In the upper or central tub was a lotus, its flowers and umbrella-like leaves towering up several feet high, while parrot's feather was trailing down over the sides almost completely hiding the tub. In the lower tubs were red, white and blue nymphaeas with some other aquatics, while around the margins a few rocks were placed, and interspersed with moisture-loving plants—the whole making a mound of fresh, bright green foliage and brilliant colored flowers, all summer. Tubs, bails or casks for water lilies should be filled two thirds full of good, rich loam, the roots planted two inches deep, then be given a warm, sunny place, and kept full of pure water. At frost the water may be poured off, and the tubs carried over winter in a warm cellar or under the benches of a greenhouse.

Sheep in the Forest Reserve.

Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, has received a communication from Secretary Hitchcock, of the Department of the Interior, asking his aid in solving the problem of grazing in the western forest reservees. The Division of Forestry will commence immediately an investigation which will last several months. The controversy over the alleged evil effects of sheep grazing has involved western cattlemen, woolgrowers, and farmers in a bitter war for many years, and the recent increase of irrigation has added to the bitterness. Government action in the matter has been hastened by the establishment of forest reserves. In view of the injury to the forests in many sections from overgrazing, all reserves except those in Washington and Oregon, and the Black Mesa Reserve, in Arizona, which is to be opened to 300,000 sheep at 3 cents a head, are closed to sheep by an order issued last May. This step has raised a storm of protest from woolgrowers, who insist that no harm is done by grazing under proper restrictions. Many are reported to have driven their herds into the mountains last summer in defiance of the law.

Against the sheep owners are arrayed the cattlemen and farmers, and especially the irrigators, who claim the practice means disaster to agriculture in the lowlands. These argue that sheep destroy the forest cover in the mountains and thus diminish the water supply. They are said not only to eat the young growth which is to perpetuate the forest, but to tramp down innumerable seedlings and destroy the layers of leaves necessary to keep the soil in good condition. Sheep herders are accused of burning large areas in order to secure a growth of grass. While the government will decide the matter only in the case of the forest reserves, these include a large part of all the summer ranges of the western sheep raising states, and the results will be of great importance to the American wool-growing industry.

As no general rule can be applied, each reserve will be studied separately. The first step of the Division of Forestry will be to collect impartially the testimony of both sides. Lists of questions will be sent to thousands of sheep men and their opponents. About July 1 an examination of the reserves will begin. A number of botanists, irrigation experts, and similar scientific men will be secured from all parts of the United States, and they will spend several months in the field. In addition, all field parties of the Division of Forestry engaged in other work in the interested regions will be required to give to the sheep question also. Secretary Hitchcock has asked the Department of Agriculture to give special attention to the following phases: Relation of grazing to taxation and the general prosperity of specified localities. Relation of grazing to forest fires. Relation of grazing to the preservation and reproduction of forest. Relation of grazing to irrigation and water supply. Effects of grazing by different kinds of stock. Moderate grazing and overgrazing.

Beet Army Worm.

Every kind of worm is called army worm when it appears in sufficient numbers. A worm that has long been known to injure the beet last year appeared sufficiently numerous to be called the beet army worm. It was officially noticed by the entomologist of the Colorado Experiment Station. Last year a first brood of caterpillars appeared at about the time for thinning the beets and destroyed most of the plants after thinning. One method of destroying the early brood is to mix one part by weight of Paris green or London purple with twenty parts of common flour, and then dust the mixture over the plants before sunrise in the morning. In this strength a light dusting will be sufficient. In the early morning the leaves have on them enough moisture to hold the flour and poison. It may also be applied after the leaves have been moistened by a shower. To apply the poison, make a small cheesecloth sack about five inches in diameter and ten inches deep. Fill it with the mixture of poison and flour and walk along a row of plants shaking the sack over them. This can be done quite rapidly when one has learned how and is economical of poison, and does not require wheelbarrow or wagon to carry pump and tank. When the plants become large, as in case of treatment for the second brood, it will probably be better to use a barrel or tank and spray pump.

Mulching and Watering Sweet Peas.

In light sandy or gravel soils, and in stiff, heavy soils, during very hot weather, a mulch of fresh grass, hay or straw, two inches thick and extending for two feet on each side of the row, will be of the greatest service in keeping the soil about the roots cool and moist. It should be put on when the vines are one foot or more in height, and will do away with the necessity of any further cultivation, as it will prevent the further growth of weeds and also prevent the surface of the soil from being rapidly dried out by sun or wind. The mulch will also be of great service when watering the row during a dry period, as there will be no danger of the surface becoming hard and baked, and the moisture will be retained in the soil much longer, than it would without the mulch. Where it is not practicable to give a mulch as above described, the same effect may be obtained, to some degree, by keeping a shallow layer of the surface soil loose and fine by frequent workings with a sharp steel rake or shallow hoeings; this fine, loose soil acting as a mulch and preventing the moisture in the soil from being rapidly evaporated by sun and wind. These workings should be frequent to be of value, working the soil up fine as soon as possible after each rain, or after watering with the hose, or by other methods.

HUMOROUS

Works.

In the meantime another patient had died in the barricaded home of the "healer."

The law thought it was time to interfere, and sent a policeman.

The healer sought to temporize.

"You are attacking my faith," he protested, thrusting his head out of an upper window.

"I know nothing about your faith," replied the policeman, "but I am going to capture your works."

And the peeler presently pinched the healer.—Chicago Tribune.

Moving Away from It.

The decayed old colonel had twice packed his traps and calamities and indignantly trekked frontierward to escape the encroachments of advancing civilization.

To him the old friend:

"Well, colonel, still trying to keep the wolf from the door?"

Howled the colonel:

"Wolf? No, begad! Golf!"—Chicago Tribune.

MODERN MOTHER GOOSE.

I had a little auto,
'Twas in the latest style;
I lent it to a lady
To ride a little while.
She bumped it,
She jarred it,
She rode it in the mire;
I wouldn't lend my auto now
For twenty ladies' hire!
—New York World.

Convention.

"I reckons we'd better get up some agitation on de subjeck?" said Mr. Erastus Pinkley.

"What's de subjeck?" inquired Mr. Aluminum Thompson.

"Dese yere eclipses. Whenever dar's an eclipse dey tells me all de chickens goes to roos', right in de middle er de day. An' if dat's de case les' hab mo' eclipses. I's tired o' dis waitin roun' till 1 an' 2 o'clock in de mawnin'."—Washington Star.

Glad of His Crime.

Dear me! she said, I wonder what has become of that household journal.

He didn't say a word.

There was another recipe in it that I wanted to try.

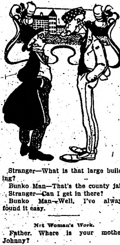
He smiled, for now he was assured that he had done wisely when he burned it up.—Bloomington Pantagraph.

Doing Finely.

"How's yer daughter gettin' along in the high school, Rafferty?" asked Mr. Dolan.

"Foine. She kin tell the names iv as many as a hundred words iv folve syllables; she knows the manin' iv at laste fifty and a few iv them she kin even shpell."—Washington Star.

EASY PLACE TO VISI.



Stranger—What is that large building?

Bunko Man—That's the county jail.

Stranger—Can I get in there?

Bunko Man—Well, I've always found it easy.

Not Woman's Work.

Father. Where is your mother, Johnny?

Johnny. She's out in the back yard whittling.

Father. Are you sure she is whittling?

Johnny. Yes, sir; she's trying to sharpen a lead pencil.—Bloomington Pantagraph.

From Head to Foot.

Mrs. Noozy—"She has a full-length mirror in her boudoir. What do you think of that?"

Mr. Noozy—"Oh, woman-like, I suppose she wants to see everything that's going on."—Philadelphia Press.

Not Exactly Alike.

"There's another difference between a genius and a lunatic."

"What's that?"

"A crazy person never wonders where he's going to get his next meal."—Indianapolis Journal.

It Impressed Her.

Bob—Nan, what first attracted your attention to me?

Nan—Well, Robert, if you must know, it was your pale, silly-looking little mustache.—Indianapolis Journal.

Valuable for Resemblance.

"You have a fine collection of literary portraits, Miss Myrtilla."

"Yes, aren't they lovely? Every last one of them looks like somebody I know."—Indianapolis Journal.

Fractions Reduced.

Old Gentleman—And have you any brothers or sisters, my little man?

Bobby—Yes, sir. I got one sister an' one-an'-a-half brothers.

Old Gentleman—What?

Bobby—Yes, sir. Two half-sisters and three half-brothers.—Philadelphia Press.

What Will Become of China?

None can foresee the outcome of the quarrel betwen foreign powers over the division of China. It is interesting to watch the going to pieces of this race. Many people are also gong to pieces because of dyspepsia, constipation and stomach diseases. Good health can be retained if we use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

Mixed.

"You're a horse thief, sir!"

"Excuse me, but are you not mistaking my brother for me?"

"Your brother? Your brother is a scholar and a gentleman."

"Now you are mistaking me for my brother."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ayers Pills

Look at yourself! Is your face covered with pimples? Your skin rough and blotchy? It's your liver! Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation, biliousness, and dyspepsia. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers
50 cts. of Druggists, or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

Just Like Milk.

"Mamma," exclaimed the little fish, "that worm I just sneaked off the hook seemed to be to be quite sour."

"Well, my dear," replied the mamma fish, "the weather's quite warm, and 'the worm will turn,' you know."—Philadelphia Press.

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

One Beside Her.

"Is this hammock strong?" asked the summer girl.

"Oh, yes," said the clerk; "that is, medium strong. Is anybody else to use it beside you?"

"Yes, indeed. There will be several in it beside me. That is," she added, "one at a time." For she looked forward to a busy and not monotonous summer, as usual.—Philadelphia Press.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes.

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N.Y.

Physician, Cure Thyself.

McJigger—Your medical friend has started to practice, eh?

Thingumbob—Well, he's got his sign out. His first week he had one case, and he has it yet.

McJigger—That's not so bad.

Thingumbob—Huh! I can't imagine anything worse than a case of the blues lasting that long.—Philadelphia Press.

When cycling, take a bar of White's Yucatan. You can ride further and easier.

At the Expo.

Finally the Americans entered one of the French buildings, in which was displayed a huge glass case, filled with finger-marked documents.

"And pray, what is this?" inquired the woman.

"Zat, madam," replied the French guide, bowing low, "is ze Dreyfus case."—Indianapolis Sun.

A Book of Choice Recipes
Sent free by Walter Baker & Co. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass. Mention this paper.

Bixey's Cordial Way.

"Bixey was a hospitable fellow."

"Yes; I have never called on him without his inviting me to call again."

"Did you have business relations with him?"

"Yes; I was a collector."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Read the Advertisements.

You will enjoy this publication much better if you will get into the habit of reading the advertisements; they will afford a most amusing story, and will help you in the way of getting some excellent bargains. Our advertisers are reliable; they send what they advertise.

The best physician and the most skillful nurse is Time, who heals all wounds.

As a rule, when a man is no longer single he also needs to double his income.

"The glass of fashion" would at present seem to be a glass of soda-water.

The harm of a creed is in converting it from a staff into a club.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO SUDDENLY

It injures nervous system to do so. BACO-CURO is the only cure that REALLY CURES and notifies you when to stop. Sold with a guarantee that three boxes will cure any case. BACO-CURO is vegetable and harmless. It has cured thousands. It will cure you. At all druggists or by mail prepaid $1 a box; 3 boxes $2.50. Booklet free. Write EUREKA CHEMICAL CO., La Crosse, Wis.

No Fire, Smoke, Heat. Absolutely Safe. Send 5 stamps for Catalog. TRUSCOTT BOAT MFG. CO., ST. JOSEPH, MICH.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D.C.
Successfully Prosecutes Claims.
Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in civil war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

Gen. Otis on the Filipinos

Says They Are an Intelligent Race.

Gen. Otis makes one statement in particular which comes as a distinct surprise, in view of the fact that he spent a year and a half in fighting the Filipinos; for he declares that these same Filipinos were without question the very best of any of the Asiatic races living on the Pacific coast and the islands.

He paid a high tribute to their acquisitiveness, saying that the young and old were alike anxious to learn from the Americans and quick to do so if given an opportunity. The demand for schools on the American plan was insatiable. It has not been possible to secure a sufficient supply of Spanish-American text books, the market having been denuded of such.

When the book-hungry Filipinos were told this, they begged for American school books, and declared that their children could learn from them even without the Spanish text and translations. Gen. Otis found to his astonishment that such was the case, and says that in the course of a very few months the Filipino children pick up a fair knowledge of English.

Even the old natives con the text books in the effort to fix English phrases in their minds. There was a dearth of teachers, too. Gen. Otis often had recourse to the soldiers in his ranks who knew a little Spanish, and so were suitable for detail as teachers. General Otis said he looked upon this educational movement as the only solution of the Philippine problem, and was confident that the spread of American ideas through the Filipino schools would in the end make good citizens of the Filipinos. Gen. Otis was positively of the opinion that the American forces in the Philippines at present were sufficient for all needs.

Of course, he said, Gen. MacArthur's present army could not furnish a guard to protect every Filipino household from the Ladrones; to do that would require a force of no less than 200,000 troops, and even then the task would occupy many years. As a matter of fact, he said, Spain had spent several centuries in the effort to stamp out the Ladrones in the Philippine group, and there was reason to believe that these brigands are scarcely more numerous now than they were during the Spanish occupation, when the islands were nominally at peace with Spain. Gen. Otis was confident, however, that conditions would steadily improve, and that little by little these robber bands would be driven away. Meanwhile he admitted that it was often dangerous for Filipinos of the better class, whose interests naturally lay in American sovereignty, to admit their preferences, for they were subject in that case to assassination; to the loss of property, and to persecution, instigated by various elements in the population to whom American occupation was obnoxious.

....Wholesome Disillusionment....

An Englishman who was recently showing to a friend from this country the historical sights of London, strolled with him through Green Park. "Charles I. is said to have walked down this path from St. James' Palace on the morning of his execution," he said. "Here is the door by which he entered Whitehall, and here is the place where the scaffold stood. Why do you look so perplexed?" "It is so small," said the American. "I can hardly understand that a kingdom changed into a republic in a space no bigger than a corn-field on my farm at home. St. James' Palace, too, where the queen's receptions are held, are not so large or so fine as the residences of many a rich American." It is natural for us all to imagine that great historical events have magnificent settings, and that the leaders of the world were larger and more imposing in bodily presence than other men. Almost every tourist is disappointed to find that the rooms in Versailles, in which Marie Antoinette spent her splendid, miserable years are little closets, and that the house in which Carlyle penned his great prophetic messages to mankind is a cheap little tenement in a squalid neighborhood. One of Mr. Lincoln's favorite anecdotes was of an old farmer's wife, who, with other women, during the Civil War, was busy knitting socks for the men in the field. "But, mother," cried some one, "the foot of your sock is twenty inches long! No man could ever wear that!" The old woman smiled serenely. "It isn't for a man," she said. "It's for one of the soldiers fighting for his country!" It is only inexperience that imagines that the warrior must have the proportions of Goliah. When we grow wiser we learn that the soul of the hero is as often found in the small, commonplace life and insignificant body. We learn, too, with reverence, that our own place cannot be so petty or our tasks so humble that the King of kings will refuse to enter them and dwell with us as in a temple.—Youths' Companion.

Mineral Resources

Wonderful Display Made at the Paris Exposition

One of the ways which the Paris exposition will bring the United States prominently to the attention of the civilized world and emphasize its greatness above all other countries will be by making conspicuous its natural resources from the standpoint of mining. Among the exhibits in the American department of the exposition, occupying a place of importance, is a series of charts prepared for the express purpose of illustrating the inexhaustible richness of this country in mineral deposits and the stage of development at which each of these has now arrived. These charts cannot be scorned as specimens of American boastfulness or as evidence of the tendency toward exaggeration, which is popularly regarded on the other side of the Atlantic as one of our national characteristics. They are all stamped with the approval of the American government and have their correctness attested by one of its departments. Their preparation has been the careful work of the geological survey. These diagrams will appeal forcibly to the Frenchmen because the facts they are intended to make clear have been illustrated by a comparison with that piece of architecture of which French people are so proud—the Eiffel tower. The annual production of our various mines are massed together in their respective groups and the proportions of each group are arranged on a scale which can be compared with the measurements of the tower. Prominent among those thus considered are coal, iron, gold, silver, copper and petroleum.

Georgia's Convict Leases.

Georgia has had the first year of experience with its new convict lease system. It has proved not only vastly more economical to the state than the old, but has been a success in its more humane care of the convicts. Under it the actual control of the convicts is taken out of the hands of the lessees, the state employing guards, clothing and feeding the men, the lessees having only the right to direct the work. Formerly when the state practically sold the convicts' labor and all to the lessee the annual profits seldom exceeded $12,000. This year the total profits were more than $200,000, of which $120,000 was used to meet the expenses of the department, although all of this was not needed, leaving to the state a clear profit at the lowest figure of $80,000, as against $12,000 by the former system.—Indianapolis Press.

Social "Longitude."

One of Miss Mary E. Wilkins' delightful heroines remarks, in speaking of certain would-be leaders of social reform in her village: "I don't know that I think they are so much above us as too far to one side. Sometimes it is longitude and sometimes it is latitude that separates people." "This is true," says Gov. Roosevelt in the June Century, "and the philosophy it teaches applies quite as much to those who would reform the politics of a large city, or, for that matter, of the whole country, as to those who would reform the society of a hamlet."

Becoming so Common.

Complaint is made that Grosvenor square, London, is losing its aristocratic tenants, whose houses are falling one by one into the hands of African and Australian millionaires.

Was This Swearing?

In clerical circles a good story is being told of the archbishop of Canterbury, whose impatience of bores and gift of sarcastic epigram have sometimes caused friends as well as opponents to wince. One of the clergy of his diocese who had pestered him a good deal recently wrote an inordinately long letter, describing a picture which he proposed to put up in the chancel of the church, and asking permission to do so. By the time his grace reached the end of the epistle his patience was exhausted, and he replied on a postcard: "Dear Blank: Hang the picture!" The clergyman is still wondering how he ought to regard the reply.

Foreigners in Slavery.

Immigration officials say that many foreigners in this country are living in a condition of abject slavery. At Avon, N. Y., there is a colony of 270 Italians who are under the direct control of one man, who hires them out to farmers and fruit growers and takes most of their earnings, while those who perform the labor get little more than enough to eat, and are housed in buildings little better than cattle sheds.

Turkish Fatalism.

The Turk is a fatalist of the most pronounced type. "Kismet—it is fate"—is his watchword. He may lose the most cherished object that his life holds, but it will not move him to tears or supplications or to rage. If he believes it was to have been.

A Coquette Defined.

"What is a coquette, papa?" the asked as she looked up from her book. "A coquette," replied the old gentleman, "is a girl who gets lots of admiration and nary a husband."—Chicago Evening Post.

Chinese Pirates

Still Ply Their Trade in China Seas...

The present unsettled state of affairs in China has given a fresh impetus to the ancient Chinese diversion of piracy, and only the other day an American vessel was attacked by pirates in the Yang-tse-Kiang river. Piracy has never been fully suppressed in the Chinese seas. The hotbeds of this species of crime are at Amoy and Macao. Here the pirates lie in wait until their many spies, who are scattered about all the principal ports, bring them word of the sailing of a richly laden boat. Immediately they sail out to sea in their shallow-draught junks with the intention of intercepting the vessel near some shoal water, over which it would be impossible for the sailing schooner to follow them in case of detection. A favorite device is to ship several of their fellow cutthroats in the guise of seamen. These gentry pose as harmless, hard working coolies, until their comrades' junks are in sight. Then, all in a moment, they show themselves up in their true colors. All opposition speedily is stunned or knifed, and the few remaining Europeans or loyal natives are only too glad to hold up their hands in token of surrender rather than incur the fate of their slaughtered bretheren.

Within Sight of a Gunboat.

Last January a British launch was captured by pirates in the Chek-Hueng-Shan district, almost within sight of a British gunboat. The gunboat—the Sandpiper—had stuck on a bar, and the pirates saw their oportunity. They swarmed aboard the launch, killed the pilot, made a prisoner of the supercargo, and looted both the launch and the lighter which she had in tow. Then they took to their junks and disappeared. This sort of thing frequently has taken place almost within pistol shot of British gunboats in the Hong Kong dock yards. A well-known case of the capture of a merchant steamer by Chinese pirates was that of the Namoa, which occurred in November, 1890. This vessel was a good-sized liner and carried five European and 250 Chinese passengers. Among the latter were several rich merchants who were returning to their homes from the Straits Settlements with their carefully hoarded savings. This fact becoming known to the pirates, fifty of them took passage in the vessel. She had barely been five hours at sea, and the majority of her peaceably disposed inmates were comfortably settled at their evening meal, when fifty yelling savages, armed with revolvers and cutlasses, suddenly appeared on deck. Carefully covering the officers' quarters, the villains started to fire upon the passengers below. In so doing they killed the captain, wounded the first officer and made the second officer a prisoner. Then they looted every possible article of value in the ship. They shut the surviving Europeans in a tiny cabin and navigated the vessel back to Pinghoi. Here they were met by a fleet of pirate junks, into which they speedily transferred their plunder. They abandoned the vessel after damaging every bit of her machinery which they could readily reach. Eventually the imprisoned Europeans burst open their prison house, repaired the damaged engines and made the best of their way back to Hong Kong. Recently a launch belonging to a British naval officer was approached by pirates while she was lying peacefully at her mooring in Canton harbor, right under the guns of the responsible port officials. The pirates took the launch up the river and held up every promising looking merchant vessel they met. When they had filled the launch with booty until she could hold no more they ran her ashore, landed their spoils and made off. The natives of Archin, on the northwest coast of Sumatra, are as notorious pirates as the Chinese.

A Woman's Armament.

In July, 1898, the steamer Pegu stopped at the East Indian port of Erid, one of the places where pepper is taken on. At that port the steamer was boarded by 11 Achinese men and one woman. Capt. Ross, who commanded the steamer, searched the men for weapons, as is customary when taking natives on board a merchantman. The men were found to be unarmed, but the woman, as afterwards was learned, had concealed about her clothing a fine assortment of Malay knives. When the captain and the chief engineer, Cragie, were at dinner, six armed Achinese burst into the cabin and attacked them with great fury. The officers defended themselves with chairs, and although badly slashed, managed to reach the deck. Cragie ran to the engine room and locked himself in, but the captain was cut to pieces as soon as he reached the deck. Meantime the other Achinese had killed the mate and the man at the wheel, cutting them down on the bridge. Two more of the crew were killed on deck. There were several Chinese passengers on board, five of whom were killed outright, and five driven overboard, where they drowned. The Achinese ran among the passengers and crew, cutting right and left, and wounding 14 of them. Having terrorized everyone left alive on board, they broke open the ship's strong box and looted it of $15,000. Then they lowered away one of the steamer's boats, placed their booty in it, got in themselves and escaped.

Boston and Baltimore Hospitals.

The principal hospitals in Boston are: Boston City Hospital, Harrison avenue; Boston Lying-in Hospital, 24 McLean street; Carney Hospital, old Harbour street; South Boston; Children's Hospital, Huntingdon avenue; Infant's Hospital, 37 Blossom street; Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, 176 Charles street; Massachusetts General Hospital, Blossom street; Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital, East Concord street; New England Hospital for Women and Children, Dimock street; St. Elizabeth Hospital, 61 West Brookline street. The principal hospitals in Baltimore are: John Hopkins Hospital, North Broadway; Maryland General Hospital, Linden avenue; Maryland University Hospital, Lombard and Greene streets; St. Agnes Hospital, Carroll Station; Union Protestant Infirmary, 1514 Division street.

Southern Editorial on Negroes.

Augusta, Ga., Chronicle: The people of this community are thoroughly aroused on the question of seperate accommodations in the street cars for whites and negroes. In many instances where no lawlessness results there are collisions and incidents of an unpleasant nature that would be avoided by the observance of the rule requiring white passengers to be seated on the front seats and negro passengers on the back seats and as the number increases for the intervening seats to be filled until there is no more room for passengers of either race without encroaching upon the seats occupied by the other. When this occurs, the conductor and motorman are prohibited from taking on any other passengers.

Fenian Raid Medals.

Medals are being issued by the Dominion government, under instructions from the Imperial government, to Canadian volunteers who took part in the Fenian raids of 1866 and 1870.

Mines Operated by Women

Recently a number of mines in Colorado have passed into the hands of women operators and are being worked at a profit. Other women have made a study of mining, have invested their money in prospects, or leased locations and are reaping rich financial rewards in consequence of their shrewdness and judgment. The success of the pioneers in this new field has inspired others with a desire to take part in the hunt for gold which is going on in Colorado. Not all of the women who have taken up mining engage in the actual work which goes on in shaft or tunnel. In fact, very few of them have the strength for this employment, but they are even more profitably employed in figuring on the purchase of supplies, marketing the ores and looking after the finances of every department. There is one woman in the San Juan mining district who goes even farther than the most of her sex. She puts on overalls and "jumper" and when occasion requires goes into the workings of her extensive mine and "bosses" the men who are working with pick, shovel and tram car and who are employed in the concentrating mill. Her mine, which is near the celebrated Camp Bird, owned by Millionaire Thomas F. Walsh, is one of the greatest producing gold mines in the state and has been made so largely through her enterprise. Empire, a little mining town in Clear Creek county, is the headquarters of three progressive women miners. Two of these are from Boston—Misses Mary and Edith Tracy. They were formerly stenographers and came to Colorado two seasons ago on a pleasure trip. They took the famous excursion trip over the Georgetown loop, which is the heart of the Clear creek mining country, and became interested in the subject of mining. Instead of returning to Denver with the rest of the excursionists, they remained for some time at Empire and made a thorough study of the district. They knew nothing of actual mining, but they learned readily and concluded that a little capital might be invested in some of the properties that were lying idle. They went back to Boston and secured some funds with which to re-enforce their own savings. They decided not to intrust the money to a manager, but had a little cabin erected on a claim which they secured.—Chicago Chronicle.

Population of United States.

The governors of the various states were requested to make estimates of the present population of their respective states and territories for the World Almanac for 1900. With a few exceptions, all the states responded. Where the executives failed to respond in time for the printing of the Almanac, the estimates were made by other state officials, the grand total of the population of the United States on January 1, 1900, being estimated at 79,393,444. The New York Tribune Almanac estimates the total population at 75,000,000.

Grain Productions.

The chief wheat producing country of the British empire is British India, whose product in the year 1899 amounted to 232,585,000 bushels. During the past year, the wheat production of the various continents was as follows: North America, 622,264,000 bushels; South America, 112,831,000 bushels; Europe, 1,499,604,000 bushels; Asia, 399,196,000 bushels; Africa, 35,800,000 bushels; Australasia, 56,212,000 bushels. There is no danger of the food supply of Great Britain running short so long as [illegible] the various colonies of the empire [illegible]

Evidently Meant for Her.

She held a letter from her husband's lodge in her hand.

"I wonder if I am justified in opening it," she mused. "I think I am. True, the letter is addressed to John, but after the name it has 'Supreme Potentate,' and there's only one 'supreme potentate' in this family."

Reasoning thus logically, she naturally had no hesitation in breaking the seal.—Chicago Post.

MEDICAL BOOK FREE.

"Know Thyself," a Book For Men Only, sent Free, postpaid, sealed, to any male reader mentioning this paper; 6c for postage. The Science of Life, or Self-Preservation, the Gold Medal Prize Treatise, the best Medical Book of this or any age, 370 pp., with engravings and prescriptions. Only 25c paper covers. Library Edition, full gilt, $1.00. Address The Peabody Medical Institute, No. 4 Bulfinch St., Boston, Mass., the oldest and best in this country. Write today for these books; keys to health and vigor.

Not Merely a Matter of Choice.

"No, sir, you can't convince me that he is a real poet. His attempt to look like the traditional bard is too obvious. If he was not masquerading, he would not feel called upon to let his hair hang down over his shoulders and wear a soft shirt thrown at the front. He would let his work, instead of his make-up, speak for him."

"But you must remember, my dear fellow, that his long hair and open shirt obviate the necessity of wearing clean collars."—Chicago Times-Herald.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

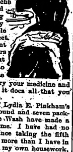
Charles P. Babcock, Minneapolis, Minn., machine for casting printers' leads; Charles W. Brown, Mitchell, S. D., broom holder; Charles W. Christman, Waterville, Minn., photographic vignetter; John E. Erickson, St. Paul, Minn., dovetailing machine; John Gilbert, Fisher, Minn., land roller; Eugene Jacquemin, Minneapolis, Minn., car axle brass; William T. Rolph, Minneapolis, Minn., sofa-bed (reissue); John W. Stevens, St. Paul, Minn., railway rail joint.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul

The Difference.

Askitt—What's the difference between a poet and a verse writer?

Tellit—The verse writer gets paid.—Baltimore American.



TO WOMEN WHO DOUBT.

Every Suffering Woman Should Read this Letter and be Convinced that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Does Cure Female Weakness.

"I have been troubled with female weakness in its worst form for about ten years. I had leucorrhœa and was so weak that I could not do my housework. I also had falling of the womb and inflammation of the womb and ovaries and at menstrual periods I suffered terribly. At times my back would ache very hard; I could not lift anything or do any heavy work; was not able to stand on my feet. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for doctors but they did me no good. After a time I concluded to try your medicine and I can truly say it does all that you claim for it to do.

Ten bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and seven packages of Sanative Wash have made a new woman of me. I have had no womb trouble since taking the fifth bottle. I weigh more than I have in years; can do all my own housework, sleep well, have a good appetite and now feel that life is worth living. I owe all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel that it has saved my life and would not be without it for anything. I am always glad to recommend your medicine to all my sex, for I know if they follow your directions, they will be cured."—Mrs. Annie Thompson, South Hot Springs, Ark.

Reporter Sent in the Wrong Card.

An official of the supreme court was puzzled by a card sent in to him by a desperate newspaper man Monday, April 30, when the arguments on the Kentucky government case began. The court room was full of sightseers, and the overflow extended in a long line down the corridor. The reporter tried to get in ahead of the line, and was stopped. He protested.

"Shall these rubbernecks be let in to monopolize the supreme court room when I—I, a newspaper man, ordered to report the case, am kept out?" he exclaimed.

"Them's orders," said the ancient colored man at the door.

Off rushed the reporter to the court marshal's office. He yanked out his wallet, and, seeing a card in it, wrote on the back:

"My editor orders me to report the Kentucky case to-day. Must be admitted: can't wait for the crowd."

In a moment the answer came back, and his card with it: "No room."

The reporter looked at the card he had sent in and blushed. He had by mistake, given the attendant not his own, but the card of a manager of a troupe of ballet and variety performers.—Washington Letter.

Are You Using Allen's Foot-Ease?

It is the only cure for Swollen, Smarting, Burning, Sweating Feet, Corns and Bunions. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Many a man fights for his creed who never thinks of carrying an umbrella for his wife.

No Man Likes to Be Bald.

The best way to prevent it is to use Coke Dandruff Cure. All druggists at $1.00.

A match-making mamma's schemes may be upset by a papa who flares up and fires.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Just now most men who talk through their hats give it to you through a straw.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is a constitutional cure. Price, 75c.

The cream of society is now mixing with the common lot—sugar and strawberries.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. Samuel, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

A short prayer will get to heaven quicker than a long one.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

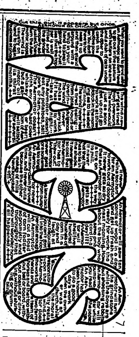
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Conscience is the better man within the best of men.

A vigorous growth and the original color given to the hair by Parker's Hair Balsam.

Hindercorns, the best cure for corns. 15cts.

We are punished by our sins rather than for them.



Cut this out, it appears but once.
Aermotor Co., Chicago.

Easy Monthly Payments

We sell Regina Music Boxes for public places with money slot attachments, and for home use without attachments, on easy Monthly Payments. With money attachments they are

A Constant Source of Revenue

and soon pay for themselves. They can be placed in all kinds of business houses.

We Repair Music Boxes.

Correspondence invited.

NATIONAL NOVELTY CO.,

510 First Ave So., - - - Minneapolis, Minn

A Swallow

is one of the earliest harbingers of spring—an equally sure indication is that feeling of languid depression. Many swallows of

HIRES Rootbeer

are best for a spring tonic—and for a summer beverage. 5 gallons for 25 cents. Write for list of premiums offered free for labels.

Charles E. Hires Co.
Malvern, Pa.

N. W. N. U. —No. 27.— 1900.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

$10,000

PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $100

IN THE WHEAT MARKET.

was made by one of our customers, who, on our advice, bought wheat at 61 cents, and by judiciously increasing his purchases, as his profits accrued, was able to close out the whole deal on Monday, June 15th, with the above result.

Our Customers All Got in on the Ground Floor.

Millions of dollars will be made by investors in WHEAT, CORN AND OATS during the next three months. Send for our booklet, "How to Sell a Crop and Have It," and daily market letter, which we mail free.

Get on the Right Side and Make Money.

Bank References
Phone. 1608 Main.

W. H. HAMMOND & CO.,
612 Corn Exchange,
Minneapolis, Minn.

DOL-LAR WHEAT

IS PREDICTED FOR 1900! This is uncertain. We supposed when we advertised twine bought by us to sell for less than market value that twine had struck bottom, but our purchase finished June 21st, enables us to sell New Standard Twine at 8¼c. New Manilla Mixed at 10¾c. This twine will be put on sale June 25th. There are seventeen cars of it, and will be sold at 8¼ cents for Standard and 10¾ cents for Manilla Mixed. This price is 1¼c a pound on binder twine less than was paid to the penitentiary early in the season. Our twine is made by one of the best factories in the United States and satisfaction is guaranteed. Order at once. We will ship twine the day order is received. T. M. ROBERTS' SUPPLY HOUSE, Minneapolis Minn. 717-719-721 Nicollet Avenue. 718-720-722 First Avenue South.

RICH, BUT WRETCHED

Fight on for wealth, old "Money-Bags," your liver is drying up and bowels wearing out, some day you will cry aloud for health, offering all your wealth, but you will not get it because you neglected Nature in your mad rush to get gold. No matter what you do, or what ails you, to-day is the day—every day is the day—to keep watch of Nature's wants—and help your bowels act regularly—CASCARETS will help Nature help you. Neglect means bile in the blood, foul breath, and awful pains in the back of the head with a loathing and bad feeling for all that is good in life. Don't care how rich or poor you are, you can't be well if you have bowel trouble, you will be regular if you take CASCARETS—get them to-day—CASCARETS—in metal box; cost 10 cents; take one, eat it like candy and it will work gently while you sleep. It cures; that means it strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels and gives them new life; then they act regularly and naturally; that is what you want—it is guaranteed to be found in—

THE IDEAL LAXATIVE

Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

10c. 25c. 50c.

ALL DRUGGISTS

To any needy mortal suffering from bowel troubles and too poor to buy CASCARETS we will send a box free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York, mentioning advertisement and paper.

BRYAN AND STEVENSON

TICKET PRESENTED BY THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Bryan Was Nominated Unanimously to Again Lead the Democratic Forces—The Platform Makes Imperialism the Paramount Issue and Declares for Free Silver at 16 to 1—Stevenson's Nomination Made on First Ballot—Hill Withdrew His Name and the Delegates Flocked to the Illinois Man in Swarms.

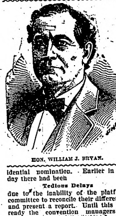
President.............W. J. BRYAN.
Vice President.... A. E. STEVENSON.

This is the ticket presented by the National Democratic convention after a three-days' session marked by great enthusiasm and many exciting scenes. The story of the convention's proceedings day by day follows:

Kansas City, July 5.—Amid scenes of tumultuous enthusiasm befitting such an event and such a day the Democratic national convention began its session yesterday. But after sitting until a late hour last night the expected climax of the day, the nomination of William J. Bryan as the Democratic candidate for president, failed of realization, and all of the larger business of the convention awaits the completion of the platform. As a spectacular event, however, the convention has fulfilled the hopes of the most fervid party man, for the vast assemblage of delegates and speakers has twice been swept with whirlwind demonstrations, first for the leader who is about to be placed in nomination, and then for the other champion of Democracy, David B. Hill. But in actual accomplishment the day's work was confined to organization with the speeches of the temporary chairman, Gov Thomas of Colorado, and Permanent Chairman James D. Richardson, the appointment of the various committees and detailed preparations for the more serious work yet in store.

Bryan Unanimously Nominated.

Kansas City, July 6.—William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska was last night placed in nomination for the presidency on the Democratic ticket on a platform opposing imperialism, militarism and trusts and a specific declaration for silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. The nomination came as the culmination of a frenzied demonstration in honor of the party leaders lasting twenty-seven minutes and giving utterance to all the pent up emotions of the vast multitude. It followed also a fierce struggle throughout the last thirty-six hours concerning the platform declaration on silver and on the relative position which the silver question is to maintain to the other great issues of the day. It was late yesterday afternoon when the convention was at last face to face with the presidential nomination. Earlier in the day there had been



HON. WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

Tedious Delays

due to the inability of the platform committee to reconcile their differences and present a report. Until this was ready the convention managers beguiled the time by putting forward speakers of more or less prominence to keep the vast audience from becoming too restless. The first session, beginning at 10 o'clock, was entirely fruitless of results, and it was not until late in the afternoon, when the second session had begun, that the platform committee was at last able to reach an agreement. Already its main features, embodying the 16 to 1 principle, had become known to the delegates, and there was little delay in giving it unanimous approval. This ended the last chance for an open rupture on the question of principles and left the way clear for the culminating business of the day—the nomination of a candidate. The vast auditorium was filled to its utmost capacity when

The Moment Arrived

for the nomination to be made. Not only were the usual facilities afforded by tickets taxed to their utmost, but doorkeepers were given liberal instructions under which the aisles and areas and all available spaces were packed to their fullest limit. When the call of states began for the purpose of placing candidates in nomination, Alabama yielded its place at the head of the list to Nebraska, and Oldham of that state made his way to the platform for the initial speech placing Mr. Bryan in nomination for the presidency. The orator was strongly voiced and entertaining, and yet to the waiting delegates and spectators there was but one point to his speech, and that was the stirring peroration which closed with the name of William J. Bryan. This was the signal for the demonstration of the day, and in a common purpose the great concourse joined in a great tribute of

Enthusiastic Devotion to the party leader. A huge oil portrait of Bryan, measuring fifteen feet across, was brought down the main aisle before the delegates. At the same time the standards of the state delegations were torn from their sockets and waved on high, while umbrellas of red, white and blue, silk banners of the several states and many handsome and unique transparencies were borne about the building amid the deafening clamor of 20,000 yelling, gesticulating men and women. All of the intensity of former demonstrations and much more was added to this final tribute to the leader. When the demonstration had spent itself the speeches seconding the nomination of Mr. Bryan were in order. Senator White spoke for California, giving the tribute of the Pacific coast to the Nebraska candidate. When Colorado was reached that state yielded to Senator Hill of New York. The audience had the appearance of the distinguished New Yorker. He was accorded a splendid reception, the entire audience rising and cheering wildly with the single exception of the little group of Tammany leaders, who sat silent throughout the cheers for their New York associate. Mr. Hill was in fine voice, and his tribute to the Nebraskan touched a sympathetic chord in the hearts of the audience. He pictured Bryan as the champion of the plain people and of the workingman, strong with the masses, with the farmer and with the artisan. When Hill declared with dramatic intensity that the candidate would have the support of his party — a united party—there was tremendous applause at the suggestion of Democratic unity. Aside from the brilliant eulogy of Bryan the speech of the New York leader was significant and attractive in its strong plea for unity. "It is a time for unity, not for division," he exclaimed to the

Anxiously Awaited

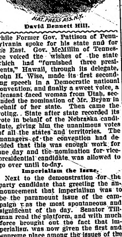
Rapturous Approval

of the great multitude facing him. The eloquent Daniel of Virginia added his glowing tribute to the candidate,



NAT. PRESS ASS. N.Y.

David Bennett Hill.

while Former Gov. Pattison of Pennsylvania spoke for his state and for the East. Gov. McMillin of Tennessee voiced the wishes of the state which had "furnished three presidents," Hawaii, through its delegate, John H. Wise, made its first seconding speech in a Democratic national convention, and finally a sweet voice, a pleasant-faced woman from Utah, seconded the nomination of Mr. Bryan in behalf of her state. Then came the voting. State after state recorded its vote in behalf of the Nebraska candidate, giving him the unanimous votes of all the states and territories. The managers of the convention had decided that this was enough work for one day and the nomination for vice-presidential candidate was allowed to go over until to-day.

Imperialism the Issue.

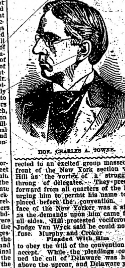
Next to the demonstration for the party candidate that greeting the announcement that imperialism was to be the paramount issue of the campaign was the most spontaneous and significant of the day. Senator Tillman read the platform, and with much force brought out the fact that imperialism was now given the first and supreme place among the issues of the party. That the delegates and audience were in complete accord with the programme was shown by the long and continued applause, lasting over twenty-two minutes. Following this the announcement that the 16 to 1 idea was retained received only faint and short demonstration, the applause being only continued a few minutes. It was regarded as significant of the spirit of the delegates. The most stirring incident of the day's proceedings was the appearance of Webster Davis, formerly assistant secretary of the interior in McKinley's administration, in a speech severely arraigning the Republican party for its lack of sympathy for the Boers, and formally announcing his allegiance to the Democratic party.

Stevenson for Vice President.

Kansas City, July 7. — The Democratic national ticket was completed yesterday by the nomination of Adlai E. Stevenson for vice president. The nomination was made on the first ballot, state after state joining in the wild scramble to record their support of the winning candidate. A distinct triumph of the day in the way of popular ovation was that accorded to Senator Hill, and in its spontaneity and enthusiasm was one of the most notable features the convention has produced. It was accompanied, too, by a remarkable scene when Hill earnestly appealed to his friends against being placed in nomination, and then finding his protest in vain, he strode to the platform, and in tones which left no doubt of their sincerity, earnestly besought the convention not to make him the nominee.

Towne's Name Presented.

On the call for nominations Alabama yielded to Minnesota and the latter state, through L. A. Rosing, presented its young champion of silver Republicanism and Democracy — Charles A. Towne. The mention of his name was the signal for a flattering demonstration in his honor, men and women joining in the outburst. For ten minutes the demonstration over Towne lasted with varying degrees of intensity. Meantime attention was being directed to an excited group massed in front of the New York section with Hill as the vortex of a struggling throng of delegates. They pressed forward from all quarters of the hall, urging him to permit his name to be placed before the convention. The face of the New Yorker was a study as the demands upon him came from all sides. Hill protested vociferously. Judge Van Wyck said he could not refuse. Murphy and Croker



HON. CHARLES A. TOWNE.

Pleaded With Him

to obey the will of the convention and accept. While the pleadings continued the call of Delaware was heard above the uproar, and Delaware yielded her place to New York. At this the portly form of Senator Grady, the silver-tongued orator of New York, pushed through the densely packed aisles up to the platform. There was a hush through the hall to hear what word New York had to offer.

"In behalf of the united Democracy of New York," shouted Grady, "I present as a candidate for vice president the name of David Bennett Hill."

The effect was electrical and a tidal wave of enthusiasm swept over the convention. Grady stood there, proudly waiting for the storm to subside. But as he waited the audience observed a strange pantomime. They saw Hill leave the New York delegation and push through the throng up to the platform. They heard him to withdraw, while Grady's answer was apparent from the shake of his head and his advance to the front of the platform to conclude his nominating speech. When the demonstration had subsided Grady completed his speech placing Hill before the convention. But as he stepped from the platform the man who had just been placed in nomination took his place. The senator looked out sternly, even savagely on the shouting thousands. When he could be heard he made due acknowledgment of the honor done him. "But, I cannot, I must not, be the nominee of this convention," he declared with explosive emphasis. He was frequently interrupted with enthusiastic shouts of approval, but when he left the platform the delegates were firmly convinced from his words and manner that he was sincerely desirous of having his name withheld. It was soon apparent that with Hill out Stevenson was a strong favorite. State after state seconded his nomination; Georgia, Indiana, Virginia, Iowa, Kentucky, Illinois. Some of the devoted still maintained their allegiance to him, and the delegations of New Jersey, Louisiana and some others seconded his nomination. A number of favorite sons also were placed in nomination, Maryland bringing forward Gov. John Walter Smith, Washington naming James Hamilton Lewis, North Carolina nominating Col. Julian Carr and Ohio presenting the name of A. W. Patrick. It was after 2 o'clock when the seconding speeches were concluded and the balloting began. As the roll was called Mr. Hill appeared on the platform, and in a few well chosen words withdrew from the contest. The vote was followed with intense interest, for when Alabama announced 3 for Stevenson and 19 for Hill it looked as though a close and exciting contest was to occur. But it was soon evident that Stevenson

Appeal to Grady

Friends of Hill

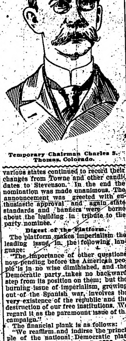
Had a Strong Lead.

At the close of the call he had 559 1-2 votes, which, however, was not enough to nominate, the requisite two-thirds being 624. Hill had received 200 votes and Towne, 89 1-2. But before the announcement of the result a strong lunged delegate from Tennessee stood on his chair and announced:

"Tennessee changes her 24 votes from Hill to Stevenson."

That started the tide irresistibly toward Stevenson. From every quarter of the hall came cries for recognition. North Carolina changed from Carr to Stevenson. Even New York finally, but reluctantly, announced its change from Hill to Stevenson. That ended it. Stevenson's nomination was assured, although for some time longer the various states continued to record their changes from Towne and other candidates to Stevenson. In the end the nomination was made unanimous. The announcement was greeted with enthusiastic approval and again state standards and banners were borne about the building in tribute to the party nominee.



Temporary Chairman Charles S. Thomas, Colorado.

Digest of the Platform.

The platform makes imperialism the leading issue, in the following language:

"The importance of other questions now pending before the American people is in no wise diminished, and the Democratic party takes no backward step from its position on them; but the burning issue of imperialism, growing out of the Spanish war, involves the very existence of the republic and the destruction of our free institutions. We regard it as the paramount issue of the campaign."

The financial plank is as follows:

"We reaffirm and indorse the principle of the national Democratic platform adopted at Chicago in 1896, and we reiterate the demand of that platform for an American financial system made by the American people for themselves, which shall restore and maintain a bimetallic price level, and, as part of such system, the immediate restoration of free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid and consent of any other nation."

The Porto Rican law is denounced; also the administration's Philippine policy. The fulfillment of Cuban pledges is demanded. Stable government, independence and protection for Filipinos is favored.

The platform does not oppose expansion to desirable territory. Strict maintenance of the Monroe doctrine is demanded. Pledges increasing warfare against private monopolies in every form. Demands that products of trusts be put upon the free list. Denounces Republicans for failing to enact anti-trust laws. The Dingley tariff law is condemned. Enlargement of the scope of the interstate commerce law is favored. The currency bill is denounced. Favors direct election of United States senators. Government by injunction and blacklisting is denounced and arbitration favored. A cabinet department of labor is favored. Favors liberal pensions. Favors Nicaraguan canal. Condemns Hay-Pauncefote treaty. Favors Chinese exclusion act. English alliance is condemned. Repeal of war tax favored. Sympathy for the Boers is declared.

SILVER REPUBLICANS

Unanimously Nominate Bryan and Leave Vice-Presidency to the Committee.

Kansas City, July 8.—After a long and exciting debate, during which it looked several times as if Charles A. Towne would be nominated for vice president in spite of his protest against such action, the national convention of the Silver Republican party adjourned sine die without making a nomination, the whole matter being passed to the national committee with power to act. W. J. Bryan was made the unanimous choice of the convention for president at the morning session, and it was the intention to complete the ticket in the afternoon by the nomination of Former Congressman Towne. The action of the Democratic convention, however, in placing Adlai E. Stevenson in nomination, took the delegates off their feet, but most of them asserted their intention to nominate Mr. Towne notwithstanding. For two hours Senator Teller, Former Congressman Shaforth of Colorado and Cheadle of Indiana and others made speeches in favor of indorsing the Democratic ticket, but it was not until Towne himself appeared and appealed to the convention not to nominate him, but to concentrate their forces, that the delegates calmed down and the vice presidential nomination was referred to the national committee.

Late last night the national committee of the Silver Republicans decided to indorse Stevenson.

WHY WOMEN HOVE NO WINGS.

Rude Criticism of a Woman Lecturer by a Mean Man Out in the Audience.

I remember once, in a society to which I belonged, a lady lecturer of the gushing order read a paper in which she was very averse to the theory of a beneficent Providence. "Why," she asked, "are we without wings, if all this omnipotent love directs the course of the universe? Why have I not been furnished with wings wherewith I might fly to the ends of the earth to my loved ones?" There was a discussion after the paper, when a dry old one-eyed philosopher made this pithy speech: "Mr. Chairman, our lecturer this evening complains because Providence has given her no wings. I think she has a cause of complaint, but she's got hold of the wrong one. Her true complaint is because she's got no brains." The hit, though rude, went home with uproarous effect. It was, in a measure, deserved; and yet I saw, with regret, how ready is the average audience to jeer at woman's capacity. To me it seems a sorry sort of gallantry which, at the opera door, waits as squire of dames with cloak and wrap, and then, in some smoking room, raises a sardonic laugh by suggesting that idiots are fewer among women because so little noticeable; yet that is a tone of conversation which, in a greater or less degree, the bulk of men very often allow themselves, partly no doubt, in jest, yet with meaning in it, none the less.—Nineteenth Century.

BABY FOX.

Raised by a Sheep When Its Own Mother Was Killed.

Mr. Nye of Hoybottom, Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania, has a domesticated fox. Last spring he discovered that something was carrying off his poultry. He suspected a wildcat, and he set a trap to catch the marauder. Instead of the wildcat, the trap caught the fox, and the farmer promptly dispatched it, says the New York Press.

Hardly had he done so when a little baby fox came out from the brush and moaned piteously around its dead mother. The farmer took it home. Refusing the food offered it, the little fox was in a fair way to starve to death, when Mrs. Nye had a bright idea.

One of the ewes had been robbed of her young by the wildcats, and the little fox was carried up to the bereaved ewe to receive nourishment. The fox throve amazingly on sheep's milk, and the strange foster-mother formed a strong attachment for the little fellow. Before other animals, and to all human beings except Mr. Nye, the fox is extremely shy, but it sleeps side by side with the ewe, and the farmer can handle it like a house dog.

Equally Horseless.

"Ha!" jeered the bystanders. "The automobile has come to stay. See it stay!"

"That's all right," responded the man on the seat, calmly lighting a cigar. "But why should a machine that merely displaces the horse excite the ill-will of asses?"

Then, having found out what was the matter with the machinery, he moved off, just in time.—Chicago Tribune.

Deserved Snubbing.

"George Dingle was awfully snubbed by Lizzie Dell last night. It was all because of one of his unfortunate speeches."

"What did he say?"

"Why, Lizzie jestingly remarked that her face was quite too expressive. 'It's like an open book,' she said. 'Yes,' remarked George, 'it's plain to be seen.' And she hasn't spoken to him since.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

One Method of Saving Trees.

The most novel street sight ever witnessed in Saratoga ended at 9 o'clock last night, when the forestry committee closed a five hours' period of worm-buying.

Several sugar barrels of the squirming forest tent caterpillars were purchased at 20 cents a quart, and $250 was paid out to several worm pickers. This method was adopted as the most effective way of protecting the beautiful foliage of Saratoga against the ravages of the pests.—Rochester Post-Express.

Another Man With a Hoe.

"Pshaw!" exclaimed papa, throwing aside his paper; "the poetry they print nowadays is distressing."

"Yes, isn't it?" mamma agreed. "I read a poem yesterday by what's-his-name. Don't you know? Who was the man-with-the-hoe—?"

"I know!" cried little Tommy. "Old Uncle Ned!"—Philadelphia Press.

No Time to Be Sick.

"You got well of the grip in a hurry, Mrs. Wiggs."

"Yes; I had to; Mr. Wiggs got it."

"I don't believe in working by a system."

"Why not?"

"Why, if you work by a system, that system is only one thing more you will have to keep your mind on."—Indianapolis Journal.

Mamma's Mistake.

Visiting Clergyman—Well, Johnny, what did you learn at school to-day?

Johnny—Oh, we learned all about the eclipse, and the perihelion, and the penumbra, and—

Mrs. Gump—Johnny! You go right straight to bed! The idea of your using such language before the minister!—Baltimore American.

The Stimulus of Years.

"This is a sad world; people lose all their stimulus after fifty."

"That's not so; look at Cousin Georgiana."

"What is she enthusiastic about?"

"Why, [illegible] keeping everybody from knowing she is fifty."—Indianapolis Journal.

News of the Northwest

IMPROVEMENT IN GRAIN CROP.

Rain Has Had a Stimulating Effect in the Wheat District.

St. Paul, July 7. — After nearly a week of rain in the Northwest the crop prospects begin to brighten, and much of the grain that was thought worthless will turn out good enough to pay to harvest, while that wheat that was in fairly good condition has an excellent prospect for a good yield, considering the adverse conditions under which it has grown. One thing appears to be assured. Flax will be a good crop and a great deal of it will be harvested if frost does not injure it. Both wheat and flax have natural conditions to contend with for a few weeks, but on the whole the outlook is better now than the most sanguine prophet would have predicted ten days ago.

The Northwestern Miller estimates an average for the three states of half a crop of wheat, while some authorities go so far as to predict half a crop of wheat for North Dakota. Under favorable conditions hay will produce a second crop and farmers will not be obliged to sell their stock. Rye and barley is being cut and makes an average showing. The Northern Pacific has the most encouraging reports from its agents of the benefits derived from the rain.

SLUGGED AND SHOT.

Albert Lea Citizen Attacked by Some of the Toughs Who Infest the City.

Albert Lea, Minn., July 7.—When going home from his place of business F. Walker, a well known and wealthy saloonkeeper, was held up, but, fortunately, he had no money with him. The robbers sandbagged their victim and shot him, the bullet entering the left cheek and passing out at the ear. He is now at the hospital and is expected to recover, but the wound is an ugly one. The city is infested with a tremendous gang of toughs, brought here no doubt by the railroad grading that is being done around and in the town.

SPOONER WILL RETIRE.

Decides Not to Become a Candidate for Re-election to the Senate.

Milwaukee, July 7.—Senator John C. Spooner, who is serving his second term as United States senator, announces in the Sentinel his decision not to be a candidate for re-election. His reason for retiring from public life are purely personal to himself and his family, and these, it is known, relate to Mrs. Spooner's ill health, which makes a residence in Washington undesirable.

GIVES HOPE TO FRIENDS.

Letter From a Volunteer Who Was Reported Dead.

Winona, Minn., July 7.—A letter was received here from Clarence Miller, sergeant Company B, Forty-fifth volunteer infantry. The latter is dated at Dart, May 22, four days after the date of his death, recently reported by Gen. MacArthur. This leads to the hope that he may still be alive. He was well when writing.

Charged With Shoplifting.

Hudson, Wis., July 7.—A woman giving the name of May Johnson had a preliminary hearing before Judge Disney yesterday afternoon on the charge of stealing silks and other goods from the store of Birkmose, Wiberg & Co., Sam Fontie and other merchants. She was bound over to the circuit court in default of $1,000 bonds. She will be sent to the Dunn county jail to await trial this fall. She is a non-resident.

Shot an Intruder.

Duluth, Minn., July 7.—At New St. Louis, a few miles up the river from Duluth, Ada Arlington shot and killed a man named John Reesberg. According to the story told by the woman Reesberg was trying to break into her house and was threatening to assault her. The woman is under arrest at Superior.

Coad Held for Trial.

Jamestown, N. D., July 7.—The preliminary hearing of James C. Coad, an attendant at the asylum for the insane, was held yesterday. Coad was charged with killing a patient named Mike Gleason and was held for trial in the district court. Coad is from Mount Pleasant, Iowa.

Killed by Lightning.

Atwater, Minn., July 7.—An old lady, Mrs. Holmgren, was killed by lightning six miles southeast of here. The barn of Peter Grottern, three miles east, was struck by lightning and burned, together with six head of cattle.

Barn Burned.

Downing, Wis., July 7. — During a terrific storm lightning struck a barn of Charles Barber near town, causing total destruction of the building, with forty tons of hay; also hogs, cattle, harness, etc. No insurance.

Lost His Own Life.

Dubuque, Iowa, July 7. — Richard Heinz, a young man, jumped out of a boat into the Mississippi to save his brother from drowning and was himself drowned. The brother escaped.

One of the Many.

Baraboo, Wis., July 7.—The youngest son of August Barenoque, at Reedsburg, was critically injured by the explosion of a gas pipe filled with powder for patriotic purposes.

Fire at Hager.

Red Wing, Minn., July 7.—The residence owned by John H. Boustead, at Hager, burned. Loss about $1,000; partly insured. Lightning or firecrackers was the probable cause.

Indians Held for Trial.

Brainerd, Minn., July 7.—The three Indians who broke into Mayor Kinkele's warehouse at Walker and stole a quantity of liquors were arrested and examined, with the result that two were held to the next term of the district court.

Run Over and Killed.

Hastings, Minn., July 7.—A five-year-old son of Michael Kerst of Vermillion was killed by being run over by a threshing machine engine, one of the wheels passing over his head.

$1,000 Fire at Gaylord.

Gaylord, Minn., July 7.—A fire was discovered in the Schultz & Haug meat market. A loss of about $1,000 was caused to the building and contents.

PROHIBITION IN MANITOBA.

Winnipeg, July 7. — The Manitoba legislature adjourned yesterday afternoon. The prohibition bill passed during the sessions by the house, was approved by the governor in his closing message, and it is expected to become a law in June next. It prohibits the retail sale of liquor in the Province of Manitoba.

FURY OF THE STORM.

Did Great Damage to Property in Wisconsin.

Waukako, Wis., July 8.—The southwestern part of Winnebago county, particularly the township of Nepeuskun and also Utica, was visited yesterday by a tornado more destructive in the history of this locality. The storm broke with fearful fury, lasting thirty minutes. The large new barn of Morrissey Brothers was leveled to the ground. Lawrence and Pierce Morrissey, the owners, had sought refuge in the barn. Lawrence was hurled through the air a distance of 100 feet. His head was badly cut and serious internal injuries were sustained.

Barns Wrecked.

The barns of Henry Henshaw, W. K. Scribner and J. L. Flannigan, in the same locality, were completely wrecked. Reports of loss of stock are coming in fast and the damage is estimated at many thousand dollars. Large crews of men haying on Rush lake marsh report thrilling experiences. One crew was buried under a haystack and extricated with difficulty. Two brothers, John and Joseph Deyoe, are missing, their team being found some distance from the hay fields where they were working. Robert Craig, a farmer living on the Berlin road, had an almost Miraculous Escape.

He was between his horses quieting them when a bolt struck one of them, killing it instantly. Craig was knocked insensible, but revived later. Excitement runs high and stories of the wind's havoc are many and constant. Undoubtedly it was a severe blow to the farming interests of the county. A special from Kilbourne reports a heavy wind, rain and hail storm which unroofed several buildings and uprooted trees. Plymouth also experienced a destructive storm.

Many Buildings Unroofed.

Berlin, Wis., July 8. — About the worst rain and wind storm Berlin ever had passed over the city yesterday afternoon. Many roofs were blown off, including Wright's mill, Truesdell's tannery and the grand stand at the fair grounds. Several blocks on Huron and Broadway streets also lost roofs. The entire front of the Owen livery was blown out and many streets about the city are blocked with broken trees. Jim Quaddy, who was taking shelter under the grand stand at the fair grounds, was seriously injured, and a lad he had with him had an eye put out. The telephone and electric light system are entirely demoralized. Mike Decker of Fargoville was struck by lightning and killed. Manitowoc also reports a terrific storm.

Oshkosh Suffers Severely.

Oshkosh, Wis., July 8.—A rain, hail and wind storm that caused a drop of 22 degrees in a few minutes and caused thousands of dollars worth of damage to crops and property occurred here yesterday afternoon. Smoke stacks were blown down at the factory of the Morgan company, the Conglee company, the Wakefield mills and the Oshkosh Furniture company. A. Strech & Crothers' factory was unroofed. A portion of the city hall cupola was blown away and a circus tent blown down and one man seriously hurt. Hundreds of trees were blown down and several barns demolished.

Village Destroyed.

Marshalltown, Iowa, July 8.—A report has reached here that a tornado and cloudburst occurred at Steamboat Rock late yesterday afternoon, destroying that village. The report is partly verified by the fact that the Iowa river has risen five feet here within an hour. A cloudburst between St. Anthony and Zaringa, twenty-two miles west of this city, washed out nearly a mile of track on the Story City branch of the Iowa Central railroad and caused great damage to crops. The heaviest storm of the season prevailed here last night.

KILLED BY MINE EXPLOSION.

Accident in the Pioneer Mine at Ely, Minn.

Ely, Minn., July 8. — An explosion took place in the new shaft which is being sunk by the Pioneer mine at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, killing one man and badly injuring another. Both men were Finlanders and believed to be single. The explosion took place at a depth of 200 feet, and was caused by the victims drilling into a rock which had been prepared by the day shift for blasting, and then thoughtlessly left without discharging. There were at the time four men at work in the shaft, and it is a miracle that they were not instantly killed. The injured man may lose his eye.

DEATH IN A WELL.

One of Two Overcome by Gas at Big Stone Expires.

Big Stone, S. D., July 8.—A sad accident occurred here in which W. W. Hart lost his life and George Whipple narrowly escaped death. They were engaged in digging a well for Gold & Co., and were being lowered to the bottom when both were overcome by gas, which had formed during their absence. Hart fell from the basket and death was immediate. Whipple was drawn out half-dead, his clothing having caught to the basket.

Maimed by a Mower.

Kenyon, Minn., July 8.—S. O. Skyberg, a farmer living near Skyberg, north of here, lost his left foot and ankle while mowing hay. He was picking a stick from in front of the sickle when the team started to run. The bar caught his left foot and dragged him for a distance, terribly mangling the member besides bruising him in many places. He will probably survive.

Railroad Robbers Escape.

Clinton, Iowa, July 8.—Three men arrested about two weeks ago at Dubuque, charged with holding up a Milwaukee train near Bellevue, escaped from the jail at Maquoketa. They had been indicted by the grand jury.

Negro Given Life Sentence.

Park Rapids, Minn., July 8.—Doc Atwater, the negro who shot and killed J. Harvey last December, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

Unknown Man Thought Murdered.

Clinton, Iowa, July 8.—The section men on the Northwestern found the remains of an unknown man near Comanche yesterday afternoon lying in the high grass. As several murders have been committed in this vicinity, foul play is suspected. The man was evidently killed in some manner as he was badly cut and bruised. He had been dead for three days.

Several Severely Injured.

Cincinnati, July 8.—A lighted candle caused an explosion in a tunnel here yesterday, doing considerable damage and seriously injuring nine persons.

CROW INDIANS HAVE A DANCE.

Two Thousand Gather in War Paint at Pryor Gap and Indulge in Their Tribal Custom.

Billings, Mont., July 10.—For two or three days past Crow Indians to the number of 2,000 have been dancing at Pryor Gap. They prepared a large covered bower, where they congregated for the dance. Nearly 100 white people went out on the Fourth to witness the dancing. The Indians were painted and dressed as in their former war times. The Pryor Indians gave away nearly $6,000 worth of horses, wagons, blankets and everything imaginable to their brother redskins from the Big Horn and Little Big Horn rivers. The dance will probably continue for several days or until the Indian police go there and order them to desist.

TO MEET NEXT AT SIOUX FALLS.

Northwestern Scandinavian Singers' Association Ends Its St. Paul Session.

St. Paul, July 10.—Sioux Falls, S. D., was selected by the Northwestern Scandinavian Singers' association for its next musical festival to be held two years from now. The following officers were elected: President, Wollert Hildahl, Sioux Falls; general musical director, Jens. H. Flaate, Duluth; corresponding secretary, F. H. Hammanan, Minneapolis; treasurer, O. M. Olson Fort Dodge, Iowa; recording secretary, Carl Hansen, Minneapolis; vice presidents, O. W. Hohn, Decorah, Iowa; L. H. Larson, Canton, S. D.; L. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D.; P. A. Bjorn, La Crosse, Wis.; Dr. Johnson, St. Paul.

GRAIN DEALERS ARE PUNISHED.

Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce Disciplines Men Charged With Manipulating Railroads Rates.

Minneapolis, July 10.—The board of directors of the chamber of commerce has voted to suspend the members of the firm of Gregory, Jennison & Co., managers of the Midway Elevator company, indefinitely, and to expel F. A. Bean, president of the New Prague (Minneapolis) Milling company. Their offense, it is said, consisted in manipulating the millings-in-transit rates granted to the Minneapolis & St. Louis railway in such a manner as to obtain an unfair advantage.

LIGHTNING RODS FOR COWS.

How South Dakota Farmers Keep Bossy From Being Killed.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 10.—A good plan is being adopted by a number of farmers in the state for the protection of their stock against lightning. A ground wire is placed every fifteen rods along the pasture fences. The wires are run into the ground about three or four feet, connected with all the fence wires, and stapled to the posts. Where this plan has been followed only a few animals have been killed, while in pastures which are not thus protected individual farmers have this summer lost considerable stock by lightning.

SAILORS GO UP A NOTCH.

President Makes Glad the Hearts of Naval Officers.

Washington, July 10.—The president has made the following promotions in the navy: Commander M. R. R. MacKenzie to be a captain, Lieutenant Commander George P. Colvocoresses to be a commander, Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Colahan to be a commander, Lieut. James P. Parker to be a lieutenant commander, Lieut. Ben W. Hodges to be a lieutenant commander, Ernest V. Sandstroum to be a boatswain in the navy.

TWO KILLED IN WISCONSIN.

Storm Which Sweeps Over the State Destroys Life and Much Property.

Milwaukee, July 10. — The heavy storm which passed over the state did a great amount of damage. At Fargoville Michael Decker was killed by lightning, and at Greenbush Otto Siebe, a boy, was killed by a falling tree. At Waukau Lawrence Morrissey was hurled a hundred feet and injured severely.

Sentenced to Life Imprisonment.

Park Rapids, Minn., July 9.—Doc Atwater, a negro who was indicted for the murder of Jonas Harvey, killed on the night of Dec. 26 on his claim in Latonce township, this county. He pleaded guilty before the district court Friday night to murder in the second degree. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Killed by a Marshal.

Antigo, Wis., July 10.—Deputy Marshal John McArthur shot William Welch, the victim dying a few hours later. Welch, with others, had burglarized a store, and the shooting occurred during an attempt to capture the thieves. Before dying Welch gave his name and said his parents lived at 118 summit street, Akron, Ohio.

Killed by Lightning.

Cannon Falls, Minn., July 10.—John Stein, who lived four miles north of this place, while out harvesting, was instantly killed by lightning. He had three horses on the binder, and the two outside ones were also killed, while the center horse was not injured.

Dynamited Himself.

Helena, Mont., July 10—Peter Betts, forty-four years old and part owner in a gold mine operated by himself and partner near Montana City, east of here, blew his head off with giant powder. He had been sick and despondent. He left no relatives in Montana.

Killed in the Yards.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, July 10. — L. G. Ripley was instantly killed at Ackley while making a coupling on a freight in the yards at that place. He leaves a widow. The remains were brought here for interment.

Two Men Killed.

St. Louis, July 10.—George Schoening and William Grab were killed and Fred Frige was probably fatally injured at Columbia, Ill., near here. The men were in a buggy and were run into by a Baltimore & Ohio train.

Fireman Fatally Injured.

Worcester, Mass., July 10.—Fire yesterday destroyed the property of the E. B. Crane Lumber company and the Daniels-Cornell company, wholesale grocers. Fireman Luby was probably fatally injured. Loss, $100,000.

Demolished by Tornado.

Effingham, Ill., July 10.—The tornado prevailing here Saturday night did much damage to the Illinois College of Photography property. The northwestern portion of the main building was demolished. The building will be at once rebuilt.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOLUME XIX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 18, 1900. NUMBER 52.

News of the Week

Washington Notes.

The tests of the plates of the battleship Illinois show it to be perfectly sound.

Washington decides to dispatch 6,000 regulars to Manila, to be sent to China if necessary.

The reciprocity arrangement between the United States and Germany has been affected.

Admiral Pacha, of the Turkish navy, has secured plans from the United States for a warship.

The treasury statement at Washington shows a cash balance of $134,243,003; gold, $7,340,482. This is exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve.

The government crop report places the average condition of wheat in Minnesota at 48; at 44 for South Dakota, and 30 for North Dakota.

The army transports plying between San Francisco and the East have again been placed on a war basis, with the result that no more passengers not attached to the military establishment will be carried on transport vessels.

Recent orders of the war department involve the sending of about 4,000 horses and mules from this country to the Philippines. Most of these are cavalry horses, forming an important part of the equipment of the squadrons of the First, Third and Ninth regiments of cavalry.

The negotiations between the state department and the Japanese authorities relative to the alleged quarantine discrimination against the Japanese in California and Colorado are coming to a close, as the fears of bubonic plague in the West have largely died out and the necessity for rigid quarantine has disappeared.

According to a statement issued by the bureau of construction and repair, navy department, the new battleships Alabama, building at the Cramps yards, and Wisconsin, at the Union Iron works, San Francisco, are 97 per cent and 93 per cent completed, respectively. The Illinois is 84 per cent completed and the Maine 30 per cent, the Ohio 20 per cent and the Missouri but 6 per cent.

Personal Mention.

Capt. Peter Conrad, a pioneer on the Mississippi river, is dead at St. Louis.

Rear Admiral Cotton has been designated as commandant of the Norfolk navy yard, vice Rear Admiral Barker.

Cazaway Hartridge, for many years a prominent newspaper man of Georgia, died in New York of pneumonia.

Hon. Clark Howell of Atlanta, Ga., editor of the Constitution, was married to Miss Annie Comer, daughter of the late Hugh M. Comer, president of the Central Georgia railway.

Capt. Tom J. Ballard is dead at Livingston, Ky., in his sixty-second yeear. Capt. Ballard was related to prominent Kentucky families and was a cousin of ex-Gov. Francis of Missouri.

Judge Rudolph Hirsel, of the Twelfth judicial district of Missouri, one of the best known judges in the state, died suddenly at his home at Clayton. Death results from a stroke of paralysis.

The death is announced at Hamilton, Ont., of Dr. Charles F. McDonald, aged seventy-one years. While connected with the postoffice department in Washington the postal money order system was organized through his efforts, and also the exchange of money orders between the United States and other countries.

Jeremiah Fisher of Jamestown, N. Y., circuit judge of Pataqua county, was elected grand exalted ruler of the grand lodge of Elks over William J. O'Brien of Baltimore, by a vote of 338 to 209. J. O. Reese was elected esteemed leading knight without opposition.

From Other Shores.

Kubelik, the boy violinist, refused $525 for a single performance.

British soldiers will be permitted to serve as harvest hands in Dorsit.

Boer soldiers are incensed at Kruger. He is holding back their wages.

Lord Methuen will return from South Africa because of differences with officers.

W. Swift Wright of Logansport, Ind., has been appointed prime minister of San Domingo.

Russia has demanded that the sultan permit 3,000 Armenian refugees to return to Turkey.

Lady Randolph Churchill, after her marriage, will make a tour of the world with her husband.

During the last week of June, 6,013,000 persons received relief in India, and the deaths in Bombay numbered 16,882.

The sultan will form a commission to study agricultural and economic conditions in Turkey and suggest reforms.

A Swiss newspaper suggests that Switzerland be annexed to the United States, in order to gain trade advantages.

Rather than face the social storm in store for him, owing to his treatment of Capt. Milne, Willy Wally Astor left London for Bohemia, where he will remain until the close of the London season.

Unfortunate Happenings.

Charles T. Marshall of Prairie Home, Ill., died from the kick of a horse.

A large amount of damage was done by storms in Iowa and Nebraska.

James Work, a farmer near Roanoke, Ind., fell from a mowing machine and broke his neck.

The elevator of P. P. Bush & Co. at Newman, Ill., was destroyed by fire. Loss, $10,000.

Willie Freeman, twelve years old, in trying to shoot a dog at Albia, Iowa, shot and killed himself.

Fire losses in the United States and Canada for the first six months of 1900 amount to over $100,000,000.

The box factory of Thomas B. Rice & Son, at Mifflin street wharf, Philadelphia, was almost destroyed by fire. Loss, $50,000.

Fire destroyed the property of the E. B. Crane Lumber company and the Daniels-Cornell company, wholesale grocers, Worcester, Mass. Fireman Luby was probably fatally injured. Loss, $160,000.

James Heraniere, M. W. Voss and Ernest Selling of Rock Island, Ill., and Roger Price of Davenport were buried by the caving-in of a tunnel at Rock Island arsenal, in which they were working. Heraniere and Price were seriously injured.

The mill, warehouse and hydraulic power house of the Cumberland Cement Company of Cumberland, Md., was destroyed by fire. Loss, $150,000.

Herr Bosch Bann of Hamburg, well known in musical circles, was frozen to death while climbing the Schnesberg.

Sins and Sinners.

Charles H. Leroy of Fullerton, Cal., suicided on account of the heat.

Mrs. James Henry shot and killed Lee Watson at Fallon, Ark.

The seizure of a large stock of liquors at Swaledale, Iowa, amazed the temperance people.

Six masked men held up an Illinois Central train at Mayfield, Ky., and got over $5,000.

John Milberg of Galesburg, Ill., eloped with another man's wife, and left his family penniless.

Rivals in business are accused of poisoning horses of the New York Fruit Dealers' association.

The crew of the steamer Dolphin mutinied during the passage from New York to San Francisco.

Katie Agnes Sheehan committed suicide on her mother's grave in Indianapolis, after her sister's funeral.

John W. Morrison, accused of setting his hotel, at South Bend, Ind., on fire, has been held in $5,000 bail for trial.

James Frank Negreen, a stamp dealer of Omaha, was arrested in New York, charged with having used cancelled stamps.

Otherwise.

Gov. Roosevelt visited President McKinley at Canton last week.

The report of the deep waterway commission has been made public.

A Chicago man went safely through the whirlpool rapids at Niagara in a boat.

The National Educational association held its annual convention at Charleston, S. C.

The National Red Cross association has been reorganized under the recent act of congress.

All of the Rainy River Indians have returned to their reservations, and the scare is ended.

W. J. Travis defeated Findlay Douglas, the x-champion, for the amateur golf championship.

Ex-Senator Corbett of Oregon has been sued on the charge of alienating the affections of a Montana man's wife.

Towne practically announces to Silver Republicans of Nebraska that he will withdraw.

Miss Mamie Dilon, a school teacher living near Joslyn, Ill., has mysteriously disappeared.

The sheet scale for iron and steel workers has been signed, and the mills have resumed operations.

It is reported that the Chicago & Alton, Kansas City Southern and Union Pacific will be consolidated.

Judge Kohlsat declares that a duty must be paid on goods brought to this country from our new possessions.

Several cotton mills in Fall River, Mass., have shut down for four weeks. Twenty thousand employes are affected.

The harvest is well under way in La Crosse county, Wisconsin. Crops have greatly improved during the last few days.

Leander Van Hike of Portage, Wis., filed petitions in bankruptcy to be relieved of debts amounting to $40,000. No assets.

Wheat is below the average in Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota. Of these three, Minnesota has the best crop.

Herman Ladwig of Manitowoc, Wis., had several teeth pulled by a local dentist. Lockjaw set in, and he died in great agony.

Congressman Dolliver of Iowa will stump the state of North Dakota next fall in the interests of the Republican party.

Julius Andrea & Sons of Milwaukee have placed their business in the hands of their creditors. Liabilities, $106,000; assets, $125,000.

Patrick B. Flood has sued the school district of West Des Moines, Iowa, for $15,000. His little daughter fell off a seat in the school room and fractured her skull.

The steamer Rosalie has arrived at Seattle, Wash., from Lynn Canal with $600,000 in Klondike gold, consigned to the Seattle assay office by a Dawson bank.

Samuel T. Paisley, the former superintendent of the bureau of highways and sewers of Pittsburg, against whom there was a charge of embezzlement of over $50,000, is dead at Newport News, Va.

President Harper, in an address at the National Educational association, opposed a national college, and said that many small colleges should be strengthened and others reduced to academies.

With a view to placing the signal corps in an efficient condition in the Philippines and China, Gen. Gridley, the chief signal officer, is making special efforts to enlist competent telegraph operators for service in the East.

Inventory of the personal estate of the late Vice President Garret A. Hobart was filed with the surrogate at Paterson, N. J. It appraises the late vice president's wealth at $2,608,441. Mr. Hobart held bonds in twenty-six corporations and stock in over 100.

A receiver has been appointed for the Massachusetts Real Estate company.

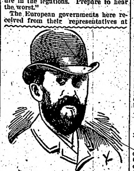
NO DOUBT REMAINS

LAMENTABLE FATE OF FOREIGNERS AT PEKING.

Chinese Bombarded Legations With Heavy Cannon and After Making a Breach All the Foreigners Were Killed — Europeans Make a Desperate Sortie and Then Bravely Met Their Fate — Operations at Tien-tsin Were a Brilliant Success—Americans Issue an Appeal.

London, July 17.—It seems impossible to entertain any longer the least doubt as to the fate of the Europeans in Peking. The Associated Press learns that Lady Hart, wife of Sir Robert Hart, director of Chinese imperial maritime customs, on July 5 received the following telegram from her husband:

"Our people, including the women, are in the legations. Prepare to hear the worst."



Sir Robert Hart.

The European governments here received from their representatives at Shanghai a dispatch from the governor of Shangtung, dated July 7, reporting that the European troops made a sortie from Peking and killed 200 of Gen. Lung Fuh Siang's forces, and that the Boxers were mounting guns to make a Breach in the Defenses.

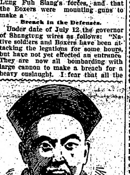
Under date of July 12 the governor of Shangtung wires as follows: "Native soldiers and Boxers have been attacking the legations for some hours, but have not yet effected an entrance. They are now all bombarding with large cannon to make a breach for a heavy onslaught. I fear that all the ministers, and the government as well, are in great danger. The government is intensely anxious."



Change-Yen-Hoon.

Finally came the news from Shanghai that a breach had been made and the foreigners killed. All the dates probably refer to a much earlier period, but the presumption is that the successive dispatches give an outline of what has happened. The Europeans having reached the end of their resources made a desperate sortie and then bravely

Met Their Fate.

The details of the horrible story will probably never be known.

Admiral Seymour's dispatch gives the latest news regarding the situation at Tien-tsin. Telegrams to the Associated Press show that the operations on July 7 were a brilliant success. The Japanese cavalry and a mobile mounted battery did splendid work. It was unfortunate that the allies did not have more cavalry to pursue the flying enemy. Four hundred Chinese were killed and six guns captured. At noon the settlements were again viciously shelled from the native city and the hospitals and other buildings were repeatedly hit. The moral effect of the successes of the allied forces upon the Chinese is believed to be very great.

Appeal of Americans.

Following is the text of an appeal of Americans in China assembled in mass meeting at Shanghai to their fellow citizens at Home: "Urge the government to send adequate forces to act at once in concert with the other powers. At present the American forces are quite disproportionate to the interests involved. Our commercial interests in the northern provinces are prominent, and we consider it a humiliating policy to entrust to other powers the chief task that of protecting Americans. Anti-foreign outrages are multiplying daily. Officials and Missionaries Are Massacred.

The fate of the ministers and their families in Peking is not known, but a general massacre is apprehended. Wholesale massacres of native Christians continue. The whole country is terrorized. Trade is paralyzed. The speedy restoration of order and retribution are duties pressing upon all civilized powers. The consequences of delay will be disastrous. Not only are foreign lives and property placed in jeopardy, but the loss of influence will be incalculable. Give no credence to statements of the situation sent by the Chinese government to its ministers abroad. The present outrages are the result of the weak and vacillating policy of the powers in the past. We urge immediate, energetic and concerted action."

Are Leaving Tien-tsin.

Chefu, July 10, via Shanghai, July 17.—Several hundred refugees, most of them women and children, have left Tien-tsin in accordance with Admiral Seymour's orders to all non-combatants to depart. Many women have remained behind, however, refusing to leave their husbands whose business detains them. The refugees were sent down the river on board lighters and tugs, and were then transferred to merchant ships in the harbor. The American, Japanese and German warships received their people, the officers of the United States gunboat Yorktown generously entertaining 200, most of them missionaries and their families.

FIGHTING AT TIEN-TSIN.

Admiral Seymour Reports Recent Engagements.

London, July 17.—The following dispatch from Admiral Seymour was published last evening, dated Tien-tsin, July 9: "The enemy's position southwest of the settlement was attacked at 4 this morning. The Japanese, by a flank movement, drove the enemy out and captured four guns. Cavalry pursued and completed the rout of the enemy, killing large numbers of soldiers and Boxers. The allied forces shelled and occupied the western arsenal, capturing two guns. The arsenal was burned as the allies were unable to hold it. The enemy's loss was 350 killed. The loss of the allied force was small."

Another dispatch, dated July 12, says: "The Chinese at 3 a. m. yesterday made a determined attack upon the railway station in great force. Finally they were driven off at 6 a. m., but the allies lost 150 killed and wounded. The Chinese loss is unknown, but it is believed to have been heavy. The forts were bombarded at noon by British and French guns. A fort and a pagoda used as a signal tower were demolished. The allied forces have been increased by the arrival of 1,500 Americans.

VERY BAD NEWS.

Minister Wu Receives a Message From Shanghai.

Washington, July 17.—Such news as came to Washington yesterday from China was distinctly bad. It consisted of a cablegram to Minister Wu from Sheng, the imperial director of posts and telegraphs at Shanghai, and, according to the minister, was in reply to the urgent message he himself had sent yesterday to that official, asking him to try and secure some news from the Chinese capital. This cablegram Minister Wu regarded as of sufficient importance to carry in person directly to Secretary Hay, who was waiting at his home for news. The message as received from the cipher was as follows: "Peking news of July 7 says that Gen. Tuan Fuh Sien, in disobedience of imperial orders, was about to use guns. Legations and the government

CHANG CHITUNG

PRINCE KUNG.

Will Be in Peril."

This news is corroborative of that contained in a recent cablegram from Consul General Goodnow at Shanghai although the consul general's dispatch gave his Peking news the date of the 6th, saying that the final attack upon the legations with guns was about to begin on the 7th of July. It is surmised here that Mr. Goodnow got his news from Sheng, who is certainly in position to secure the first news from Peking. Aside from the gloomy forecast given of the end of the terrible struggle of the legationers against the inevitable, the significant features of the message is the coupling of the fate of the imperial government with that of the foreign ministers. Officials here get some satisfaction from this portion of the dispatch, as it sustains them in the position they have held from the first that the Chinese government is not at war with Christendom, but is confronting a formidable insurrection.

Troops Leave Manila for China.

Manila, July 17.—Two battalions of the Fourteenth infantry and Daggett's battery of the Fifth artillery will leave for China to-day by the transports Indiana, Flintshire and Wyfield. The expedition, which will join the Ninth infantry, will carry 500 pounds of ammunition to a man and a reserve of a million rounds, together with medical subsistence stores and clothing for 5,000 men, for three months. It will take also two 7-inch mortars and two 6-inch Howitzers with ammunition. The hospital ship Relief is going to China.

Fifth Infantry Ordered to China.

Chicago, July 17.—The depot battalion of the Fifth United States infantry stationed at Fort Sheridan, has received orders to go to China. Within two weeks the other battalions of the regiment are expected from Cuba. A week's rest will be allowed them and then the entire regiment will start for China.

LARGE BUILDING WRECKED.

Freight Train Pushed Off the Track and Through the Building.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 17.—A Rock Island passenger train yesterday pushed a freight train off the track and through a building seventy feet square owned by the St. Joseph Plow company, completely destroying the structure. J. M. Ford, president of the plow company, and also president of the First National bank; Secretary McPowell and Supt. O. J. Borden, who were holding a conference in the building, narrowly escaped death, Ford being injured slightly.

Capt. Healy Is Insane.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 17.—Upon complaint of Dr. Gardner, in charge of the United States marine hospital, Capt. M. A. Healy of the United States revenue cutter McCulloch, was examined by the county board of physicians, who pronounced him insane, and a commitment to an asylum was issued. The examination developed that during four years while on waiting orders he was subject to [illegible]

AMERICANISM RAMPANT

CHARACTERIZES THE ATTITUDE OF THE NATIONAL DEMOCRACY AND ITS ALLIES.

Brief Aftermath of the Great Convention. Uncle Samuel Versus Hanna as Campaign Manager This Year—The Minnesota Field—Signs of Success Everywhere—The Roosevelt "Bloody Bridles" Aggregation Gives Minneapolis the Go-by—That Globe "Bolt"—The Coming State Conventions—The Week's Round-up of National and State Comment.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, July 16, 1900.

Asked to put into briefest words his impressions of the distinctive characteristics of the Kansas City convention, one of our ablest state leaders said: "Patriotism, enthusiasm, earnestness, Americanism—Americanism rampant." From the moment of reading of the Declaration of Independence to the closing cheers at adjournment, closing a convention of great labors and tremendous interest, Americanism was the dominant sentiment. In the speeches, in platform declaration specifically, in candidates offered and not chosen, in the wild scenes of the convention when the national emblems were universally used, patriotic sentiments, at times almost a frenzy of such fervor, predominated. The national airs brought the thousands to their feet invariably, as references to the Lincolns, Jacksons, Jeffersons and Washingtons in ideals, brought cheers and redoubled enthusiasm. And over and above all was the convention American, in the ticket made, placing the greatest of living Americans first, as he is in the hearts of his countrymen, and in choosing as Bryan's companion on the ticket that noble American, the tried and true son of Illinois, ex-Vice President Stevenson.

The country over has caught the sentiment at Kansas City, and Americanism promises an overwhelming victory. The wisdom of the platform in all its parts is now conceded, attesting anew the judgment and wisdom of our great leader. With few and rare exceptions, such as the St. Paul Globe, the Democratic party is reunited. Its allies, Populists and Silver Republicans, have fallen into line. For the first time in a generation the lines of battle are solidly drawn for the contest as to whether the people shall run their own government. Who will doubt the result in such an alignment?

It is this sentiment inspiring the cartoon this week, of Uncle Sam presenting Bryan to the people at his immense meetings. What a contrast with the meetings that the Hannaites will run. Democracy led by Uncle Sam, Republicanism by Boss Hanna.

And along with Americanism Democracy takes possession of the flag this year. Democracy will wave the flag against the Teddy hat.

For Minnesota the outlook is inspiring in a great degree. All reform elements accept the Kansas City action as wise and worthy of approval, and for the first time in many years will all such forces be found supporting a single electoral ticket, nationally, as they will doubtless be found doing as to state officers after the state conventions called for Sept. 6.

Was there disappointment as to Mr. Towne? Possibly with a few, until they realized what he had gained personally from his candidacy; that from a representative of a state, as a mere candidate, coming from one of the allies, he has risen to a position of actual leadership of the great Democratic party, destined to a great future, how great no man can foretell. Charles A. Towne a week ago hailed from Duluth and Minnesota. Now he lives here but hails from the nation at large.

At this writing the sounds of the "rough riders" can almost be heard coming up from Chicago for the St. Paul blow-out—the snort of the war horse (or steam bullgine), the sharp crack of the champagne bottle. In the distance can almost be seen Teddy's dental exposure, overspread by the halo from National Committeeman Shevlin's lambrequins. But what a disappointment there will be if Teddy has not recovered from the sprain of his voice that he got out in Oklahoma.

Speaking of Governor Roosevelt having sprained his voice, Dairy Commissioner Bowler says he is reminded of the accident to one of Colonel Liggett's famous cows. The animal slipped and strained her milk.

Speaking of Governor Roosevelt's presence here, perhaps he may drop some information as to what he has done about the Democratic mayor of New York for owning ice trust stock, along with what he knows of the 13 out of 15 Republican members of the board of directors of the trust, as well as the president and vice president of the trust who are also prominent Republicans of New York. Still, Governor Teddy may omit mention.

Since Roosevelt's nomination the Chicago Times-Herald is more and more dubious of the Republicans being able to carry New York.

Not content with snubbing Hennepin county Republicans in the state [illegible] nepin deems herself better than a mere snubbing post will be shown in November.

St. Paul is tickled that Hanna vetoed the idea of a big parade for Roosevelt. Was Hanna afraid it would be a fizzle, or that St. Paul people would get a penny or so from the large crowds that might come?

The fact that Wall street prices rose by Bryan's nomination was a stunner, but now the goppites say it was because of the weakness of the ticket. Selah.

This Bureau is deluged with letters concerning The Globe's "bolt," generally reporting the stopping of subscriptions and dissolution of Globe clubs. This is increased since, to The Globe's mere declaration of determination not to support candidate and money plank, it has seen fit to add vituperation, as when it refers to the patriotic Democracy as "Bryan Boxers." Democracy being the people, can probably stand it as long as The Globe can. In which connection assurance can be given that ere long the people will have newspaper service in their interest abundantly acceptable.

Speaking of the press, the great Democratic papers which went to McKinley in 1896, have almost invariably returned to the fold, such as the Louisville Courier-Journal, New York World, Chicago Chronicle, etc., etc., while the great independent papers are many of them supporting the Democracy. Likewise "Gold Democrats" have been eliminated. Democrats are with the Democratic party. "Gold" Democrats are simply Republicans.

The wholesale price of sugar, recently raised by the trust to 6 cents per pound, makes it the highest for years, a boost from 3¾ cents. The raise represents millions of profits. Thus do the McKinley trusts go on fattening themselves and making hay while the Hanna sun shines.

Since March 14, the date of passage of the gold standard law, there have been more and larger failures than for any like period of which there is a record, just as there were more and larger failures following the inauguration of McKinley, than in the worst days of the Cleveland panic.

And speaking of Cleveland panic days, Senator Frank A. Day of Fairmont was telling us down at Kansas City of a Republican farmer in his county who would give $100 now to have Cleveland conditions back again, as to farm prices and cost of articles he must buy. The farmer showed that average prices for products are no higher, if as high, while those that he must purchase are many per cent higher. Thus he could give $100 for Cleveland over McKinley times and make money by it.

And here come goppite papers kicking because Governor Lind is planting beaver up North. The complaint is far fetched.

And speaking of like criticism, complaint from Washington is made that Governor Lind did not wait for action from Washington before sending troops to the Indian country. Seven brave and good men lost at Leech Lake attest to the wisdom of Governor Lind's prompt action. To wait for Washington, as was done before, might have been to invite wholesale slaughter.

In discussing the Republican platform let our press not fail to note how the Hannaites have left it open as to the Nicaraguan canal, so that the big shipping concerns, such as had the cream of transportation grabs in the Cuban war, shall carry on the business of the canal, rather than Uncle Samuel. Thus the language is that the government shall have "construction, ownership, control and protection of the canal," but the word "operation" that is in all bills for the canal is carefully omitted. Hanna will carefully provide for the "operation" of the canal by his subsidy pets, if the Republicans retain control of legislation.

This point is emphasized by the Duluth Labor World, which well understands its significance, when contemplating the grip that monopoly has taken upon lake traffic.

And kind friend and reader note that when the "gold" man kicks on the "money plank," he is not kicking against the free coinage of 1890, but against replacing national bank "rag money," which is corporation money redeemable in nothing and not even a legal tender, with government money redeemable in gold and silver. Read the platform and see if this is not true. We stand for "sound" money.

Of course our Republican friends do not like any references to the prospective hard times that come from loss of crops. They do not like to be held responsible. But when the good God in his providence gives us the prosperity of bountiful crops, the goppites are the first to run in and take the credit for it.

The Duluth Herald points out where practical imperialism comes in, from the fact that principal henchmen of the administration have now gobbled the chief franchises in Hawaii, as they will proceed to do in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

Several of the Republican papers are quite on to the Republican game in Hennepin and Ramsey, which, as the Caledonia Journal says, is to rule or ruin. Certain it is, that Republican prospects were never so poor as now in both the Twin City counties.

And speaking of goppite blushes, they do say that Candidate Van Sant is very blue over the situation, and is going to have his steamboats all newly [illegible]

CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE.

Republican Executive Committee Organizes at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 15. — An important political conference, attended by a number of prominent Republican leaders, was held at Senator Hanna's office here. The meeting was called by Mr. Hanna to discuss and decide upon the personnel of the new executive committee and to name a successor to Charles F. Dick. Before the conference closes it is also probable that a member of the national committee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George B. Cox of Ohio, will be chosen. The executive committee was selected as follows: Senator M. A. Hanna of Cleveland, chairman; Henry C. Payne, Milwaukee, Wis., vice chairman; Perry S. Heath, Muncie, Ind., secretary; Cornelius N. Bliss, New York, treasurer; Braeme Stewart, Chicago; Richard C. Kearns, St. Louis; Joseph H. Manley, Augusta, Me.; N. B. Scott, Wheeling, W. Va.; Frederick S. Gibbs, New York; Franklin Murphy, Elberon, N. J.; Harry S. New, Indianapolis, Ind.

With the exception of Joseph H. Manley and Franklin Murphy all the members of the committee were at the meeting yesterday morning. The two sessions were devoted entirely to mapping out a plan of campaign. The selection of an advisory committee, such as aided the executive committee in 1896, was thoroughly considered. Senator Hanna stated that an advisory committee would be composed of about twelve members selected from quarters where there are likely to be close contests between the Republicans and Democrats. The campaign work, as in 1896, will be carried on from the headquarters in New York and Chicago.

TRIAL OF POWERS NOW ON.

First Evidence Taken in the First of the Goebel Murder Cases.

Georgetown, Ky., July 15.—The jury was completed yesterday morning in the case of Caleb Powers, former secretary of state, charged with complicity in the Goebel shooting. The first evidence was heard in the afternoon. Col. Campbell, in stating the case for the prosecution, reviewed the political events of last fall, especially the events following the election and the instituting of contests by the Democratic candidates for sate offices. Caleb Powers, he declared, was the most aggressive among those who sought to settle the contest by violence, and that to him largely was due the importation of mountain "feudists" to Frankfort, of the band of mountain men, 175 of whom were retained in Frankfort regularly. He charged that a majority of them had killed from one to seven men each. He declared that evidence would be produced that on Jan. 28 Powers said that "Goebel has not as many days to live as I have fingers on my hands." D. Mead Woodson, ex-city engineer of Frankfort, who made the measurements by which the prosecution will attempt to prove that the shot was fired from Powers' office, was the first witness placed on the stand.

NO NEWS FROM PEARY.

Vessel Arrives From Greenland but Has No Tidings of the Explorer.

Philadelphia, July 14. — The bark Calcium, Capt. Smith, from Ivigtu, Greenland, arrived here yesterday with a cargo of corolite. The bark was expected to bring tidings from Lieut. Peary, who is in the Arctic regions in quest of the North Pole, but there was much disappointment felt by the crowd which was waiting for the bark at the wharf when Capt. Smith announced that he had no news from the explorer. Capt. Smith said the past winter in Greenland was one of the worst in years, and it was his belief that Lieut. Peary and his party must have suffered considerable hardships from the severe weather. The natives in that locality, Capt. Smith said, suffered severely, and were generally in poor condition. The bark was ice-bound for over a month off Greenland, and the ice peak reached from 100 to 150 miles off the shore.

BUSINESS LOOKS UP.

Due to the Encouraging Features of the Western Crop Situation.

New York, July 15. — Bradstreets' says: While trade is still of only midsummer volume the beginnings of improvement in demand are apparently becoming visible. The improvement is still one of tone rather than of actual demand, but with, as seems probable, a yield of 540,000,000 bushels of wheat, a next to record-breaking yield of corn, and a very large production of oats, the Western crop situation contains many encouraging features. The Southern cotton crop has undoubtedly suffered and its condition is unprecedentedly low for this season of the year, but the acreage planted is a large one and prices are so much higher that a satisfactory financial return is confidently looked for. In addition railroad earnings point to a maintenance of the business of the country at a volume in excess of last year.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL ROBBERY.

One of the Thieves Confesses to the St. Louis Police.

St. Louis, July 15.—Shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Charles W. Barnes confessed to Chief of Detectives Desmond and Chief of Police Campbell that he, together with John Nelson and a man named Dyer, alias Conley, committed the robbery of the Illinois Central railroad train near Wickliffe, Ky. Barnes stated that Dyer came from San Francisco four months ago, and that the plot was all arranged in this city. Barnes said he went to the scene of the robbery on an Illinois Central train and was joined there by Nelson and Dyer. When the train which they had decided to rob approached they flagged it. Barnes covered the fireman with a revolver while Nelson and Dyer went through the express cars.

Differences Adjusted.

Chicago, July 15.—After a series of conferences the differences between the telegraph operators and the management of the Santa Fe Railway company have been adjusted to the satisfaction of both sides. A new schedule will become effective at once. The principal requests of the operators were granted.

It is announced that the queen has approved the selection of the Earl of [illegible]

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

Good intentions may receive some notice, but only accomplishment gains applause.

In China, twelve miles from Lion Chek, there is a mountain of alum which yields 100 tons yearly.

The Methodists have 142 missionaries in China, the Presbyterians 209, and the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions 110.

From the way some people act, one would think it wouldn't be safe for them to go to sleep for fear they would attempt to turn over and would roll off the earth.

Recent floods in upper, central, and southern Italy, which threatened the lines of railway, have brought to the attention of the government the necessity of replanting forests on the hillsides.

The largest sturgeon was caught recently in the North Sea. It weighed 525 pounds, but the delight of the fishermen was tempered by the fact that it did $750 worth of damage to the nets before it was killed.

In New South Wales a new use for the phonograph has been found. A candidate who found it impossible to visit all parts of the sparsely settled region he wished to represent in the legislature dictated his speech into an instrument and sent a number of copies about for his constituents to hear, a large picture of himself helping the voters to know whom they were voting for.

Citizens of Escanabd, Mich., are now all agog over the doings of a Chicago man who fought a huge bear the other day, repulsed the onslaughts of the animal, outwrestled the creature in the clinches and drove it off defeated. This feat may have seemed remarkable for Escanaba, but no Chicagoan who has battled for a place upon the cable cars of that city for the last few years would think it even more than ordinary.

Russia is considering a new mode for leasing the oil lands owned by the crown in the district of Baku, in order to reduce the price of coal oil, which within the last few years has been raised exorbitantly. It is proposed that after 1900 the lessees shall pay to the government 40 per cent of the oil produced "in natura," so that the government can become a competitor in the sale of the article. Heretofore the lessees paid a certain tax in cash.

The reunion of the North and South will be commemorated in a novel way by the state of New Hampshire, through the presentation of appropriately inscribed bronze tablets to the two most recent additions to the navy—the battleships Alabama and Kearsarge. A commission appointed to recommend a suitable gift from New Hampshire to the Kearsarge reported in favor of a tablet and added the suggestion that, as the old Kearsarge once fought and sunk the old Alabama, it would be a pleasing pledge to the reunion if a replica of the tablet for the new Keafsarge were placed on the new Alabama.

According to a report of Maj.-Gen. Otis to the war department from Feb. 10 to April 29 of this year, there were received at the port of Manila 330,000 bales of Manila hemp. Additional quantities of that fiber were coming in at the latter date as rapidly as coasting vessels could be secured to transport the same. The receipts this year promise to be as large as those of any preceding year. The report characterizes the statement that the insurgent authorities threaten to kill any of the natives found cleaning hemp as being circulated for the purpose of keeping up the prevailing high prices.

That part of the Congressional Record Index which gives the history of all the bills and joint resolutions presented becomes, upon the adjournment of congress, interesting as a basis of review. The references given in this history show the successive stages of legislation. For example, here is the history of Senate bill No. 268: To amend the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the northern district of New York. Introduced by Mr. Platt of New York and referred to Committee on Judiciary. Reported back with amendments. Amended and passed senate. Referred to House committee on Judiciary. Reported back with amendments. Consideration objected to in House. Debated and passed House. Senate disagrees to House amendments. House insists on its amendments. Conference appointed. Conference report made and agreed to. Examined and signed. Approved by president.

Vienna's Academy of Sciences has decided to collect phonographic records and store them in one of the Vienna libraries. The collection will include, first, specimens of every European language and dialect, to which will be added later on non-European languages; second, the finest contemporary musical performances, with the national airs and tunes of all races, and, third, speeches or phrases uttered by celebrated men. The academy is trying to find some more durable material than is now employed to take the impression of the sounds.

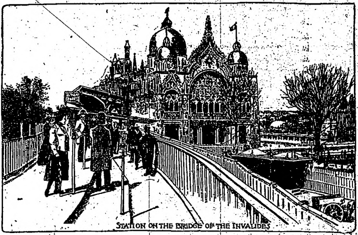
The Scotchman who invented the Mafeking blend of porridge received a bonus of £5 from the government, so invaluable was it to the garrison's rations supply, it being equal to six weeks' additional provisions. The natives prefer it to any other food.

Notwithstanding the difficulties and dangers attending a trip of from 1,200 to 1,400 miles over snow and ice in the most inclement season of the year, no less than 700 people left Dawson for Nome between Dec. 4, 1899, and March 1, 1900.

MOVING SIDEWALK THE THING AT PARIS FAIR.

Every One Likes to Toy With It—One Can Even Take Lessons in French on the Traveling Strips.

Just as at the exhibition of 1889 the great thing was to mount the Eiffel tower, so now the universal movement is to roll around the circle of the Trottoir roulant. They waited hours in those old times for their turn at the tower's lift, but there is no waiting for the Trottoir roulant, or the plateform mobile, or the moving sidewalk, as it indifferently is termed. Imagine exactly what it is—a sidewalk built twenty feet above the ground, protected on each side by railings, with steps to climb up to it at short intervals. From below it looks like an elevated railroad. And this elevated sidewalk continually is moving in an endless circuit round its course, which takes up the center of the grounds. There are no stops, no starts. As fast as the crowds pile in it receives them. It has not yet found its limit—the packed standing room around its entire surface.



STATION ON THE BRIDGE OF THE INVALIDES

The length of the sidewalk is 3,370 meters (one meter equaling 3.3 feet), and its total moving width is 2.8 meters, which makes a total surface of 9,436 square meters. As four adults to the square meter is considered a liberal non-crowding average, 37,744 persons might move around with the trottoir at the same time.

The company that operates it has put a notice up: "The payment of one fare of 50 centimes entitles visitors to one trip only round the sidewalk." It is a dead letter. Old ladies even bring their folding camp stools and sit calmly taking in the panorama. Indeed, there is no better way to get a quick view of the fair. Here we pass the Rue des Nations. Walking with the platform one seems to stride past the national pavilions in seven-leagued boots. The effect is curious. Then if you walk against it, you stand still with respect to the outside world. As everybody must have read by this time, the moving sidewalk moves with two different speeds. The right-hand strip goes at the rate of a stroll. The left-hand strip goes at the rate of something more than a brisk walk. If you have walked ahead of your party you have only to step on to the slow strip and they will soon roll up and overtake you. Or you may step on to the stationary strip, when they will seem to come rolling twice as fast. Some people like to ride standing still. The nervous man who likes to walk a little now and then has only to step on the slow strip to stroll on beside his standing friends. Few people can resist the temptation thus to play with the sidewalk. The little children jump from combination to combination, squaling ecstatically. The girls—great big girls—are almost as bad. Hopping from strip to strip, preserving their center of gravity by candid clutches at utter strangers, skipping back and forth with engaging abandon, these lively ones realize much of the tourist's preconceived ideal of the Parisienne, frolicsome and coquettish. We saw a fine case of this natural mistake come rolling down from the Esplanade des Invalides. They were two American girls in spite of their disguise, a dab of Paris rouge and hats and gowns that might be thought too gladsome at home. The men were obviously duffers of the better sort, and their small knowledge of the language did not warn them that the "Parisiennes" were also crippling it. "Et vous amiez notre beau Paris—we caught the question and the answer—"Et vous amiez les Parisians?"—"Tres beaucoup!" And we could see the fraudulent little Parisiennes turn their heads to smile at the deception. Why is it every American girl in Paris wishes to pose, for a little while, as a Parisienne? Our men never do it. When they give false nationalities they choose by preference the English or the Scandinavian. One of my young friends from Pittsburg—not unknown in the coal business—has the mania of making acquaintances and dates off-hand. This afternoon, on the moving sidewalk, he was posing as a Swedish count, and worthily. He says it is to practice his French conversation. He finds the moving sidewalk a great convenience.

Australian Constituencies Large.

Australian constituencies are large, but sparsely populated. Wilcannia, the one that the youngest son of Charles Dickens represented in Sydney for six years, is half the size of England. At a recent by-election in Victoria a candidate found it impossible to visit all parts of the extensive electorate within the appointed time. He therefore delivered a speech into a phonograph, and this being taken round rapidly, a number of scattered voters were able to hear his voice and his views, though deprived of his bodily presence.

ENJOYED PRISON LIFE.

One of Dickens' Martyrs Returns to His Old Home.

"Dickens, in his "American Notes," described one Charles Langheimer delving in his little garden outside his eastern penitentiary cell and the thought coming to him that the man was digging his own grave, says the Philadelphia Times. He further wrote of him: "A more dejected, heart-broken, wretched creature it would be difficult to imagine. I never saw such a picture of forlorn affliction and distress of mind. I never saw or heard of any kind of misery that impressed me more than the wretchedness of this man." That was in 1841. In 1870 Dickens died. In 1885 Langheimer was still alive. But that is not all of the tale. When the novelist saw the German thief he was serving his second term of imprisonment in the penitentiary. After that he served twelve more, fourteen in all, in the same institution. The narrator once saw him in the quarter sessions after he had been sentenced to a brief imprisonment in the county prison. With tears pouring down his cheeks he begged to be sent back to the penitentiary, even though his time had to be doubled. His request was granted. When Langheimer was 80 years of age and free of prison and without a penny in his pocket and almost too feeble to steal, he either reached the conclusion or was advised that he had better end his days peacefully in the almshouse, where he would be taken good care of. He was given an order of entrance to that institution and went there and was treated with extra consideration. He remained there but two days, when he walked out, traveled to the Eastern penitentiary, called upon Warden Cassidy and with a broken voice and with tears in his eyes begged that kindly official to let him die in his old cell. His wish was granted and there a few days later he breathed his last, but not as a convict. Solitary confinement that permits people to die of old age cannot be such a dreadful thing.

Frozen Butterflies Can Live.

It is a common experience among mountain climbers to find butterflies lying frozen on the snow, and so brittle that they break unless they are very carefully handled. Such frozen butterflies on being taken to a warmer climate recover themselves and fly away. Some insects which habitually hibernate, as larvae or pupae, do not suffer from being frozen, even for a lengthened period; but what is known as an open winter, with its alternations of wet, warmth and cold, is far more fatal to them. Six species of butterflies have been found within a few hundred miles of the north pole.

VANDERBILT TO W D.

His Bride-to-Be Is Wealthy and of an Ancient Family.

An important society event at some still undeterminate date will be the marriage of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, head of the Vanderbilt millions, and Miss Elsie French, whose engagement was recently announced. Young Vanderbilt was born in 1877, and graduated from Yale in 1899. He was making a tour of the world, and had reached Japan when his father died. Returning home, he found that his father had passed by his eldest son, Cornelius J., and had left the entire fortune of $100,000,000 to himself. Very generously, however, Alfred Gwynne disregarded this arrangement, and turned over some $7,000,000 to his brother. This action was a noble one. A family feud over the distribution of the Vanderbilt interests would inevitably have affected many innocent persons, who were interested in Vanderbilt properties. It seemed proper and correct enough to settle all dispute by giving away a king's ransom, but how many young men are there just out of college who could have done it so quickly and so gracefully. Alfred Gwynne is a modest young man, and is said to have inherited the Vanderbilt genius for finance. Young Vanderbilt inherited the Vanderbilt millions in accordance with the traditions of the family. At the death of old Commodore Vanderbilt, the founder of the family, the bulk of his fortune passed to his son, William H. Vanderbilt, who was said to have inherited about $70,000,000 at the age of 56. When William H. Vanderbilt died he left the bulk of his fortune to his eldest son, Cornelius, who inherited about $80,000,000 at the age of 42. And now Alfred Gwynne has inherited $100,000,000 from his father, the latter cutting off the elder son because of his marriage, which displeased his father. His bride-to-be is a daughter of the late Ormond French who was tenth in descent from Edward French, one of the founders of Ipswich, Mass., in 1636. She is an heiress in her own right, and is an athletic young woman, with a fondness for sailing, riding, swimming and tennis. She was a playmate of her future husband in her childhood, and is 21 years old.

TREES CONTAIN WATER.

Hunters in Arid Regions Obtain Their Drink by Tapping Them.

In many sections of the forest lands of the south during the dry seasons a man may walk for miles without finding a stream of water, or a spring by which to quench his thirst, says the Memphis Scimitar. If, however, he is an experienced hunter and woodsman he will not have to drink water from the stagnant pools in order to keep life in his body. An experienced man can hunt for days through such dry tracts and yet experience no inconvenience on account of the lack of water. Nature has provided a means which is only known to the initiated. Every old huntsman carries with him when going on a long hunt, a small augur, by which he can secure a refreshing drink and water to cook with at any moment. A cottonwood tree or a willow is the well which the wily huntsman taps. He examines each tree until he finds one that has what a woodsman calls a "vein." It is simply an attenuated protuberance. By boring into this "vein" a stream of clear water will flow out. It is not sap, but clear, pure water. The huntsmen say that the water is better than the average to be had from ordinary wells. There is no sweetish taste about it, but it has a strong flavor of sulphur and is slightly carbonated. The reason for this phenomenon cannot easily be explained, but that a supply of water can be contained in a tree is not so surprising. The fact of its flowing is the wonderful feature, showing that it must be under pressure, or, in other words, that there is more pressure at the source of the supply. When it is considered that the trees furnish the water in the dry season and that the ground is literally baked, it is the more remarkable, especially when the roots of the trees do not extend to any great depth into the ground.

Friend of George Eliot.

A friend and correspondent of "George Eliot" has just died in Australia at the age of 82. She was Mrs. E. F. Hughes, the wife of a pioneer colonial journalist and poet. In early life she and George Eliot were close friends and frequent visitors at each others' houses. In Australia she received many letters from the famous novelist, and she was fond of narrating the incidents of their English companionship.

A good man finds self-reproach sharper than reproof.

ON THE GOLF LINKS.

Snatching Empires

Trifles frequently change the course of history. Many of the outlying possessions of the British Empire were acquired by chance; almost, certainly by taking advantage of trivial things. Three hundred years ago the Dutch held the monopoly of all trade to Asia and India. Suddenly, in 1599, they raised the price of pepper from three to six shillings a pound. This was more than Englishmen could stand. The worthy merchants of London met together to protest against the "un-Christian price of pepper." They did more than protest, for they determined to get their own pepper from India rather than yield to the Dutchman's demands. They formed a company called "The Governor and Company of the Merchants of London Trading to the East Indies," and subscribed a capital of $350,000. On the last day of 1600—nearly three centuries ago—Queen Elizabeth granted them a royal charter. They opened a trade with India and got their pepper at a "Christian price." And they got more than pepper, for it was this company that gained a footing for the English in India, drove out the French and established British rule over that vast peninsula and one-fifth of the human race. It was only after the mutiny, in 1858, that the company ceased to rule India, and the Queen assumed the reins of government. Thus, for an extra twopence an ounce on pepper, a handful of merchants laid the foundation for the British Indian Empire. More than one bit of the British Empire has been secured to Britons by the closest of shaves.

The British flag was hoisted in Australia—then a barren continent, inhabited by the most degraded of mankind—only three weeks before a French vessel arrived to make it a possession of France. By a narrow squeak New England was secured to the Anglo-Saxon race. Seventy years ago English missionaries and a few settlers went to New Zealand. The French began to look enviously on the two fertile islands. The British government was begged to annex them. They took no steps whatever to forestall the French and to protect the English already there. Private enterprise stepped in. A New Zealand company was formed by the Earl of Durham and Edward Gibbon Wakefield. The company shipped off a cargo of settlers to New Zealand. The voyage took nine months then, and, seeing the people were in earnest, the government tardily decided to annex the land. In May, 1840, a party landed from a man-of-war and hoisted the Union Jack, proclaiming the islands British territory. They were just in time. Three days later a French ship dropped anchor in one of the natural harbors. Great was their rage on seeing the English flag flying, for they had come to hoist the tricolor. The French missionaries, in full canonicals, protested to the British officers, but they were forestalled. It was to that lucky chance the New Zealand of today, with its 750,000 white settlers, forming the most advanced and ideal community in the world, owes its existence.

THE TRADE WIND.

The southeast trades are almost as sure in their operation as is the recurrence of day and night, says the Spectator. The homeward bound sailing ship, once having been swept round the Cape of Good Hope in spite of adverse winds by the irresistible Agulhas current, usually finds awaiting her a southerly wind. Sailors refuse to call it the first of the trades, considering that any wind blowing without the tropics has no claim to be called a "trade." This fancy matters little. The great thing is that these helpful breezes await the homeward bounder close down to the southern limit of his passage, await him with arms outspread in welcome, and coincidently with the pleasant turning of his ship's head homeward, permit the yards to be squared, and the course to be set as desired. And the ship—like a docile horse who, after a long day's journey, finds his head pointing stableward and settles down to a clinking pace—gathers way in stately fashion, and glides northward, at a uniform rate without any further need of interference from her crew.

Throughout the long bright days, with the sea wearing one vast many-dimpled smile, and the stainless blue above quivering in light uninterrupted by the passage of a single cloud, the white-winged ship sweeps serenely on. All around in the paling blue of the sky near the horizon float the sleepy, fleecy cumuli peculiar to the "trades," without perceptible motion or change of form. When day steps abruptly into night, and the myriad glories of the sunless hours reveal themselves shyly to an unheeding ocean, the silent ship still passes ghostlike upon her placid way, the steadfast wind rounding her canvas into the softest of curves, without a wrinkle or a shake.

GALLEY-SLAVES.

They Were Obliged to Do Rowing Entirely Naked.

During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the galleys of France, Spain and the Italian republics were used as the means of punishment for all criminals, even those who had committed capital crimes. Galley slaves were subjected to the greatest indignities and cruelties. Their heads and faces were shaved, they were always chained to their benches, and they rowed entirely naked, being only allowed to wear clothing when in port. They were seldom released, even when their time of service was accomplished. Henry IV., of France, ordered the captains of all galleys to retain prisoners of six years, even though condemned for a shorter time, and under Louis XIV., galley slaves sentenced for only two or three years were often retained for fifteen years and more. In the most ancient times, to row in the galleys was considered honorable; but as the work was very laborious, and it was difficult to procure voluntary recruits for it, prisoners of war were put to this service. Then it became customary to condemn criminals to the work. The galley was a long, low, narrow vessel of war, having sails, but chiefly propelled by oars on each side. It drew but little water and was especially convenient for coast service. They were abolished in France in 1748, having been gradually going out of use in that and other countries for a number of years.

Indian Repartee.

From "The Reminiscences of the Bishop of Minnesota": An Indian agent, who was a militia colonel, desired to impress the Indians with the magnitude of his dignity. He dressed himself in full uniform, with his sword by his side, and rising in the council told them that one reason why the Great Father had had so much trouble with his red children was that he had sent civilians to them. "You are warriors," he said, "and when the Great Father saw me and said: 'I will send this man, who is a great warrior, to my red children, who are warriors, and they will hear his words.'" An old chief arose, and, surveying the speaker from head to foot, said calmly: "Since I was a small boy I have heard that white men have great warriors. I have always wanted to see one. I have looked upon one, and now I am ready to die."

Side Shows at Paris.

A careful estimate reveals the fact that enormous sums have been invested by private speculators in the side shows organized for the double purpose of enriching their promotors, and furnishing endless diversion to the countless throngs of amusement seekers who will go to the Paris exposition. Just how many of these enterprises will be in operation during the summer, it is impossible to say, but facts and figures have been obtainable to fifty-three of them, which show that the total capitalization amounted to $10,865,600, and that the total stock value of the same is quoted today at $13,192,600.

A GLOVE MARRIAGE.

Couple 6,000 Miles Apart United by Cable.

An extraordinary ceremony recently took place in Amsterdam, with a counterpart in Africa. It appears that a young man left Holland some time ago to serve in the telegraph department of the Transvaal. It had been his ambition to make a certain young lady in Amsterdam his wife if he ever attained to prosperity. But when success was achieved he was unable to leave his work to make a journey to Holland. In this difficulty a marriage by proxy—known in Holland as a glove marriage—was suggested. The details were all carefully arranged, the differences of time carefully calculated and continuous cable connections between Pretoria and Amsterdam were secured. The bridegroom and his friends assembled at the Hotel Kruger. An operator, using a wire from the cable, notified the lady's family in Holland that all was in readiness, and the reply came that the ceremony would then begin. In the Amsterdam mansion a friend of the bridegroom made the responses, and when the time came to clasp hands he produced a glove belonging to the bridegroom which he had worn. The proxy holding one end of the glove and the bride the other, the promises were exchanged and the ceremony was completed. A cablegram from the bride to her husband, 6,000 miles away, gave him her wifely greeting, to which he responded. There was a wedding feast in Pretoria and another in Amsterdam, and the cable was kept busy with congratulations. Then the bride said farewell to her family and stepped on board the steamer to begin her voyage to her new home. The custom of the glove marriage dates back to the old colonial days, when they were more common than in these times of cheap journeys.

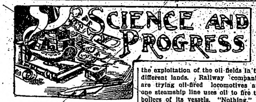
Outwitted by White Men

"Fifteen years ago two negroes were elected to office in my district," said G. B. Mopley, of Eutaw, Ala. "They were never permitted to assume their office, and none has ever been elected since. At the time of their election the law required them to qualify within ten days by taking the oath. Neither was acquainted with this fact, although both presented themselves to qualify. They were advised that there was plenty of time, and were instructed to qualify later. At the expiration of the ten days, not having qualified, a vacancy was declared, and white men were appointed in their stead."—Washington Times.

Pilgrims Visit Holy Places.

A band of pilgrims left Scotland a few days ago for Rome. At London they were met by Bishop Chisholm of Aberdeen, who used to be their leader, in the absence of Archbishop Eyre of Glasgow and Archbishop Macdonald of Edinburgh, who are both in ill health. The pilgrimage is in accordance with a decree of the pope to the effect that the holy year should be celebrated by the visit of pilgrims to various holy places.

Food for reflection is frequently hard to digest, but if used properly will not produce mental nightmare.



SCIENCE AND PROGRESS

Lilies.

Bright as a dream are the beautiful lilies
That so daintily lift their trumpets of snow
Among the dark palms of the Suwanee Valley—
Symbols of purity wherever they grow—
I find them abloom in sunshine and shadow;
In dense, tangled hummock, in grove, and in glen;
And down by the stream that flows thro' the meadow,
They lift their white trumpets again and again.

Recalling the fanciful Indian tradition:
"The Great Spirit came to this Seminole land,
And gave at creation a mighty magician,
That stretched o'er the waters his magical wand.
And up from the wavelets, adrip and aquiver,
Sprang passionless spirits in garments of snow:
They danced on the brink of the mystical river,
And from their faint footsteps the lilies still grow."

I love them! O yes, I fondly adore them!
Not for their fragrance that burdens the air;
Not for the halo of mystery cast o'er them
When sculptur'd with angels and cherubs at prayer;
Not for their thrilling my pulses with rapture
Like quaffs from a goblet of tropical wine;
But for the words of the Wonderful Teacher
Who ponder'd them well in his own Palestine.

And now when I see them abloom in the valleys,
The words of my Savior comes sweetly to me,
That He utters so gently: "Consider the lilies,
How lovely they blossom all over the lea."
Enraptur'd, adoring, I list to the story
That comes from afar on the wings of the breeze;
"They toil not, they spin not; yet Solomon's glory
And splendor were never so perfect as these."

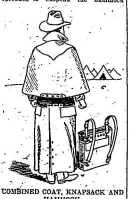
—Hallie C. Young.

The Forms of Prehistoric Animals.

Visitors to museums of science are always interested in the mounted skeletons of gigantic extinct animals, but they seldom appreciate the amount of study and skill required to properly match the fossil bones together. Even at the best it seems probable that many mistakes are made, and extinct monsters may sometimes be caused to assume forms and attitudes unknown to them in life. This is indicated, not only by the differences between the restorations made by various naturalists, but by a recent remark of Prof. H. C. Osborn, an expert in the mounting of fossil skeletons, that if we had had nothing but the skeleton of the elephant to work upon, we should probably have obtained a very faulty conception of the animal.

EQUIPMENT FOR SOLDIERS.

The illustration shows a combination knapsack, hammock and stormcoat for the use of soldiers, the inventor being Joseph Conley of Mound City, Mo. The coat proper may be of the usual pattern, with eyelets around the lower edge, through which a cord is threaded to attach the skirt portion when needed. This skirt is so made that it can be folded up to form the knapsack, with straps to attach it to the shoulders in the ordinary manner. When it is desired to utilize the device for a hammock the skirt is laced to the coat, and to each end of the long garment is attached a V-shaped section of cloth, having an eyelet in the point, through which a cord is threaded to suspend the hammock from its supports. These end pieces when not in use can be folded up and placed in one of the pockets, with which the garment is provided.



COMBINED COAT, KNAPSACK AND HAMMOCK.

Oil Instead of Coal.

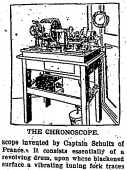
Scarcity and high price of coal in Europe is causing a great deal of attention to be given to the use of petroleum as fuel. Richard Guenther, consul-general of the United States at Frankfort, Germany, sends to Washington an interesting report on this subject, says the Argonaut.

After stating the advantages in the use of petroleum over coal as fuel, Mr. Guenther says it is claimed that petroleum and its manufactures will soon supersede to a great extent the use of coal for manufacturing purposes and therefore the supply of the oil becomes of much importance. The United States and Russia produce between them 120,000,000 barrels a year and other contributions swell the total annual output to about 150,000,000 barrels. The production of Russia is much less now than it might be, owing to lack of enterprise on the part of the people and inadequate transportation facilities.

These cause the price of its oil to be higher in Germany, which adjoins Russia, than that of the American product, which has to travel thousands of miles. Mr. Guenther declares that the increased demand will stimulate the exploitation of the oil fields in the different lands. Railway companies are trying oil-fired locomotives and one steamship line uses oil to fire the boilers of its vessels. "Nothing," he says, "seems to stand in the way of a more extensive use of oil for fuel except price."

APPARATUS' GREAT ACCURACY

This apparatus, which has just been completed for the ordinance department of the United States navy, determines intervals of time to 100,000th part of one second, and is used in timing the progress of a projectile along the bore of the gun before leaving the muzzle. The chronoscope shown here is the first of the kind made in this country, being a modification of the chronoscope invented by Captain Schultz of France. It consists essentially of a revolving drum, upon whose blackened surface a vibrating tuning fork traces a curve, which curve is divided into time intervals by an electric spark, which is produced by breaking contact as the projectile passes along the bore of the gun.



THE CHRONOSCOPE.

Pertaining to Health.

In England a useful addition to the dietary of invalids has been made in the shape of Siberian partridges, which are killed when in prime condition and conveyed frozen by sleigh, rail and boat to London. They are said to be remarkably tender and delicate eating.

There is perhaps no more frequent cause of trouble among workers than that of eating when over-tired. They return in the evening from their labors exhausted, and flatter themselves that a good meal will set them up again. Their hopes are seldom realized, for their stomachs, like the rest of their bodies, being thoroughly tired, cannot do their work effectually, and the result is an attack of indigestion.

Of course when one comes in from the day's work a meal is necessary; the only thing to guard against is taking it when one is too fatigued to digest it. If, instead of sitting down as soon as possible after entering the house to dinner or supper, the weary worker were first to take a cup of beef tea, or even of weak tea, with a little piece of bread and butter, which would act as a stimulant, she would, by the time she had made her toilet for the evening, be sufficiently rested and refreshed to eat a hearty meal with benefit.

And right here comes a word as to the importance of dressing for the evening. It is not merely a habit of refinement, but it helps one to overcome fatigue, to get rid of the dust of the day, and to put on fresh, cool garments, instead of those one has worn since morning. The donning of some sort of evening dress—be it only a well-worn silk blouse—has a tonic effect on both mind and body, and should by no means be omitted, even by the weary business woman living alone in a boarding house.

Swept Off by a Hurricane.

A remarkable effect of the great hurricane of 1898 in the West India islands was the complete disappearance from the island of St. Vincent of a species of humming-bird, which, previous to the storm, had been one of the commonest and tamest birds that inhabited the island. Other species of humming-birds, of a larger size, survived the tempest, and are yet to be seen in St. Vincent, but the little bronze-green birds with erected crests, which formerly attracted much admiration, are all gone.

Electrical Music.

In the German Annalen der Physik, an interesting experiment with a vacuum tube is described by J. Stark. When a continuous electric current is sent through such a tube, matters being so adjusted that the current is only just able to pass, the current becomes periodic, and the cathode, being set into vibration, gives forth a musical note. The vibrations are ascribed to the periodical attractions exercised by the electric charges on the walls of the tube.

Temperature of Incandescent Lamps.

Recent experiments by Monsieur Janet show that the temperature of the carbon filament in an electric lamp is between 2,900 and 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Beyond Her Comprehension, Anyhow.

"Josiah," said Mrs. Chugwater, who was looking at the headlines in the morning paper, "what is this Chinese problem they are all talking about?"

"You wouldn't be able to understand it if I should show it to you," replied Mr. Chugwater. "It's written in tea chest characters and lots of the Chinese themselves can't work it."—Chicago Tribune.

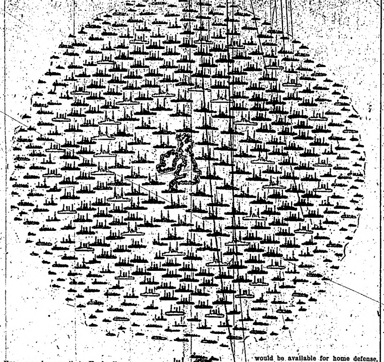
The Welcome Guest.

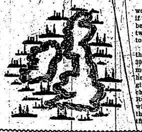
The guest was at the summer hotel for his health, but he kicked just the same on the bill.

"Here, by Jove," he said, angrily, to the landlord, "your bill is simply outrageous."

"Hold on, hold on," protested the landlord, "you forget I am not at this hotel for the same reason you are."—Detroit Free Press.

BRITAIN'S NAVY IS WEAK IN WAR TIME.





Every one knows that England's navy is the biggest and most powerful in the world, but not every one realizes intuitively why it has need to be so. The larger of the two diagrams shows how the British fleet could protect Great Britain and Ireland, if the British isles were all there is to the empire. But when it is realized that the British colonies and dependencies girdle the globe—that, as the old saying is, "The sun never sets on the British flag"—a glance at the other diagram will convey to the mind how little of the vast British fleet would be available for home defense, if the coast line of the empire had to be protected at the same time. Only twenty-four warships could be spared to defend the British isles.

There is another comparison, too, that makes the British navy look like 30 cents. England's mercantile commerce is so vast that, numerous as are her warships, they would scarcely begin to go around if the British merchant marine needed to be protected. Russia, France, Italy and Germany, with their smaller navies, can protect their smaller merchant marine better than England can look out for hers.

HENRY DID NOT VOTE.

Mississippi Congressman Failed to Register His Opinion.

Representative Patrick Henry of Mississippi, the tall and hoary descendant of the famous Virginian, had to edit the Congressional Record a bit recently regarding his failure to participate in a roll call, says the Washington Post. It was during consideration of a district measure, when Representative Bailey of Texas was filibustering. Mr. Henry believes in following democratic leaders religiously, and, whatever the emergency, his vote can be counted on, if it is possible to get it recorded. On the afternoon in question Mr. Henry was enjoying himself at lunch in the house restaurant, when word was brought down to him that a vote was in progress. He finished his repast hastily and rushed upstairs. "Mr. Speaker, I did not hear my name called, and I wish to vote," he called out breathlessly, but at a stage of the proceedings when both calls had been concluded. Speaker Henderson shook his head, having seen the tall top of the Mississippian hastening along behind the brass railing. "Well, why not, if your honor please," Mr. Henry protested, inadvertently falling into the habit of a lawyer addressing a court. "Was the gentleman in his seat and watching when his name was called?" asked Gen. Henderson, making the customary inquiry. "I was in the hall," answered Mr. Henry, still very much out of breath. "Was the gentleman listening?" "I was trying to listen," said Mr. Henry, with some hesitation, adding: "I had just returned from lunch. I wanted to vote 'no.'" Speaker Henderson informed him of the rule which forbids even the submission of a unanimous request for a member to vote after he has not been recorded on either the first or second call, if he was not in the room and listening, and Mr. Henry reluctantly went back into the democratic cloakroom. His formal language of addressing the court, however, was stricken out of the Record.

A Child Who Became Great.

Every precocious boy does not become a brilliant man, but some brilliant men have been precocious in childhood. John Ruskin, the great English essayist and critic on art, was such a child. At the age of 7 he wrote verses in rhyme and kept a journal, or diary. This journal was really a record of trips through England that he took with his father. His interest in the old cathedrals and in the bits of scenery that he saw during these journeys betrayed the tastes that in later years decided his career.

Not Homer, After All.

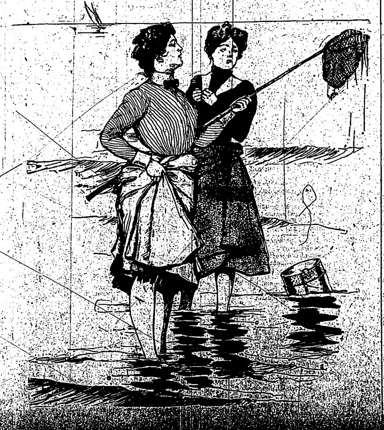
The rising poet had recited several of his efforts to the fair young girl, and as rising poets usually do he paused for comment. "Truly," said the maiden, "you are the best specimen of Homarus Americanus I have ever seen." The rising poet was even more visibly proud than usual until he looked in the back of the dictionary and learned that "Homarus Americanus" was the scientific name for "lobster." This is the result of allowing our daughters to read the classics, and talk slang, too.—Baltimore American.

Pastoral Tribes.

Lake Kivu, which is some 150 miles west of Victoria Nyanza, is very deep, and contains neither crocodile nor hippos, but there are enormous numbers of large otters, and the typical bird is the demoiselle crane. The whole surrounding country is packed with small hills, which appear to have been sprinkled out with a pepper pot till not a single one more could find room. The hills are covered with magnificent pasture, which affords grazing for the lage herds of cattle owned by the Watsui. The people are known collectively as the Wakuanda, and socieyt is divided into two classes, the Watsui being the aristocrats. They are presumably the descendants of the great wave of Gallas, that penertated in remote ages as far as Tanganyika; they are a purely pastoral folk breeding a long-horned cattle, with which they live, preferring even slavery to separation from their beloved beasts.

There are race horses, horse races and owners.

CRABBING



FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

The Nine Little Goblins.

They all climbed up on a high board fence—
Nine little goblins with green-glass eyes—
Nine little goblins that had no sense,
And couldn't tell coppers from cold mince pies;
And they all climbed up on the fence and sat,
And I asked them what they were staring at.

The first one said, as he scratched his head
With a queer little arm that reached out of his ear,
And rasped its claws in his hair so red,
"This is what this little arm is for!"
And he scratched and stared, and the next one said:
"How on earth do you scratch your head?"

And he laughed like the screech of a rusty hinge—
Laughed and laughed until his face grew black;
And when he choked with a final twinge
Of his stifling laughter, he thumped his back
With a fist that grew on the end of his tail
Till the breath came back to his lips so pale.

And the third little goblin leered round at me—
And there were no lids on his eyes at all;
And he clucked one eye, and he says, says he:
"What is the style of your socks this fall?"
And he clapped his heels and I sighed to see
That he had hands where his feet should be.

Then a bold-faced goblin, gray and grim,
Bowed his head, and I saw him slip
His eyebrows off as I looked at him,
And paste them over his upper lip;
And he moaned in remorseful pain;
"Would, ah! would I'd my brows again!"

And then the whole of the goblin band
Rocked on the fence top to and fro,
And clung in a long row, hand in hand
Singing the songs that they used to know—
Singing the songs that their grandsires sung
In the gro-gro days of the goblin tongue.

And then they kept their green-glass eyes
Fixed on me with a stony stare,
Till my own grew glazed with a dread surmise,
And my hat whooped up on my lifted hair,
And I felt the heart in my breast snap, too,
As you've heard the lid of a snuff box do.

And they sang "You're asleep! There is no board fence,
And never a goblin with green-glass eyes!
'Tis only a vision the mind invents
After a supper of cold mince pies;
And you're doomed to dream this way," they said,
"And you shan't wake up till you're clean plum dead!"

—James Whitcomb Riley.

Jules Verne at Home.

What boy is there—or what girl, for that matter—who has not sat entranced over the wonderful adventure books of Jules Verne? They have been translated into every language and devoured by several generations of young people all over the world.

Yet the veteran author is alive to enjoy his wide fame, and to compose new books for the children of all lands. He is now 75 years of age, but he is vigorous and upright still and has all the heart of youth.

"I can't climb trees myself any more," he said the other day, "but I can enjoy seeing my grandchildren climb them. And they are all glad to play with the old man on the level ground, where he is still good for something."

But the interviewer was able to judge of that for himself. For at that moment a small crowd of boys and girls rushed out of the house into the garden where the old man was talking to his visitor. They poured down on the veteran writer like an avalanche, stumbling over each other in their eagerness to be first into his outstretched hands. They were grandchildren and nephews and nieces and grandnephews and grandnieces all mixed up together, a dozen or so of them, pouring out of the classroom to play with the smiling patriarch.

Jules Verne is a very busy man. He gets up every day with the sun, and after a light breakfast works steadily at his stories till 11 o'clock. That is a very common lunch hour in France, and it is then that the children get the first glimpse of "Papa Jules." He gathers round the table all the boys and girls that he can get hold of; the little ones of the quiet, old-fashioned town have all at one time or another had their place at his table and enjoyed his funny sayings and his little bits of queer, suggestive information.

He is not easily satisfied with his work. Every book of his has been rewritten several times before it has finally reached the public. And he never begins a book without studying thoroughly and very deeply everything that can make the subject familiar to him. From about 12:30 to 5 every day he spends in this kind of reading, keeping himself thoroughly posted in all sorts of new scientific discoveries and expeditions and in the latest information about newly explored and strange lands. He reads, too, for purposes of comparison, stories of adventure in several languages. He is especially fond of the books of this kind in which the English language is rich. M. Verne has read "Robinson Crusoe" five or six times, and can recite by heart whole pages of "Treasure Island." He thinks "The Swiss Family Robinson" one of the best boys' books ever written; and loves Fennimore Cooper. Walter Scott's works are always within reach of his hand in his study, and Captain Marryat's breezy sea stories are almost worn away by long handling.

Jules Verne is naturally very fond of the immense success his works have had. He delights in the fact that he possesses more than 600 letters written to him at various times by boys and girls to express the pleasure they have had in reading his books. These letters, which are all docketed and classed by the author himself according to the age of the writers and their nationality, make a very curious and interesting collection. There are letters in French, in Russian, in Italian, in Spanish and in English. There is one in Polish. The letters in English come mostly from English colonies and from the United States. One of the American letters is from a little girl in Baltimore, who writes to say that she wishes she were a boy, so that she might go under the sea in the Nautilus. And if she could, she adds, her first voyage would be to Mr. Verne's home, if he would like her to come. Mr. Verne tells with a chuckle that he wrote to his little correspondent, assuring her that nothing would give him more pleasure than to receive her at his home, whether she came in the Nautilus or down the chimney. But he advised her to stay in Baltimore and learn to be a good American little girl, for she could not be anything better, however hard she tried.

The Famous Geese.

Quack, quack, quack! What's all this commotion? Just a silly flock of geese, and yet that foolish noise saved a city.

There had been a great battle between the Gauls and the Romans, and the latter had suffered defeat. That was nearly 2,300 years ago. That battle took place on the banks of the River Allia, eleven miles from the city of Rome. A portion of the defeated army took refuge in a little city called Veii. The rest of the army fled to Rome and took refuge in the capitol, which was situated upon a hill, one side of which was a precipice.

When the conquering Gauls entered the city they found them safely fortified upon this hill. Being unable to force them from their position, they determined to starve them into capitulation, and began a siege.

The soldiers who fled to Veii wished to communicate with their besieged friends and offer them encouragement. Pontius Cominius, a brave soldier, volunteered to carry the message.

Selecting a dark night, he swam down the River Tiber, and climbing up the almost inaccessible Capitoline Hill, he delivered his message of cheer, and, taking back assurances of their determination to hold out, he departed the way he came.

His visit, however, came near proving disastrous to his besieged brethren. The Gauls saw the prints of his feet on the hillside, and this set them to thinking. If one man could climb up that way why not a regiment?

That night they tried it. The place was considered so secure that no sentinels were posted. Up, up, crept the soldiers—it was slow and weary climbing—till at last the foremost man put his foot upon the top of the hill.

The Romans had devoured nearly everything eatable in the citadel, except a flock of sacred geese, dedicated to Juno. These fowls were housed in the temple devoted to that deity, and they set up a great quacking when the enemy began to approach. The reverence and piety of the Romans were rewarded. The geese, by their cries, awakened Marcus Manlius, who, sounding the alarm, rushed to the spot where the foe was approaching over the sharp brow of the hill, and, with the assistance of his comrades, dashed the Gauls down the precipice, killing all who had undertaken the surprise.

Shortly after this episode the Roman soldiers who had taken refuge in Veii came to the assistance of their brethren in Rome, and a desperate battle was fought, in which the Romans were victorious, and the Gauls were driven from the city. Truly a great result to come from so trifling a thing as the outcry of a silly flock of geese.

A Fretter.

A little girl who was a fretter had been visiting me. She fretted when it rained, and she fretted when the sun shone; she fretted when little girls came to see her, and she fretted when they did not. It is dreadful to be a fretter. I have lately come across a short rule for fretters: Never fret about what you cannot help, because it will not do you any good; never fret about what you can help, because if you can help it, do it.—Our Little Ones.

Fishing with Dogs.

Henry Thomas of Cross Roads, formed one of a fishing party, last Tuesday, at the banks of the famous Leaf river, where they caught over 100 fine catfish, some of them weighing six to eight pounds each. In fact, Henry says the fish were so numerous they finally had to discard hooks and lines altogether, and run 'em out with dogs.—Mount Morris (Ill.) News.

Bound to Have It.

A year-old Margaret wanted more cake, but she was told that it would make her ill.

"Well," said she, desperately, "give me anusser piece and send for the doctor."

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. ☞ Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE
TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE INSURANCE

DO YOU NEED SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound	5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound	15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound	20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.
LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn, as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JULY, 18, 1900.

Cooling Water in Nicaragua.

"They have," said a railroad man, "a primitive method of cooling water in Mexico and Central America. The principal is perfectly simple, but there is a certain knack about the thing that I have never known a white man to fully acquire.

"When a native in one of the broiling hot little villages of interior Nicaragua wants to cool some water, she fills a half gallon earthenware jar about two-thirds full. Parenthetically I say 'she,' because this is a task that requires more energy than any male Nicaraguan was ever known to possess. The jar is made of baked clay, and, not being glazed, is partially porous and soon becomes moist on the outside. Two leather straps are firmly attached to the neck, and, seizing these in her hands, she begins to rotate the jar swiftly in the air. The mouth is wide open, but centrifugal action keeps the liquid from flying out.

"The average native woman is frail and listless in appearance, but the endurance which they exhibit at this sort of calisthenics is marvelous. It is about the same as swinging Indian clubs, and I am afraid to say how long I have seen them keep it up, lest you might set me down as a prize liar. Generally the lord and master lies in one corner of their 'jacal,' or hut, smoking a cigarette and watching the operation languidly. When the woman thinks the water is sufficiently cool, she stops with a dexterous twist of the wrist and hands him the jar.

"Usually he takes a gulp, growls out, 'Moocha calora!' which is native patois for 'blamed hot,' and she begins again, patiently describing pinwheels. I have never made a test with a thermometer, but I assure you they can reduce tepid water to the temperature of a very cool mountain spring."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An Ocean Hotel.

Some idea of what a big hotel a transatlantic liner is may be gained from the following from Ainslie's Magazine: "Everything about the kitchen of a great steamship is on a most elaborate scale. The range weighs many tons; the various soup caldrons are constructed to hold 20 gallons; loaves are baked by the hundred, joints roasted by the dozen, each in a separate and specially constructed compartment. To serve the meals thousands of plates, pieces of silver, cups and saucers and napkins are required; and the average breakage in the galley of a big ship amounts to a barrel of china every day.

"The amount of stores required for a single voyage by a great liner is comparable only to the commissariat of an army. Here are a few figures furnished by the chief steward of one of the big German ships from the order sheet for a recent trip: Sixteen tons of fresh beef, five tons of lamb and veal, 3,500 head of chickens, ducks, geese and game, four tons of salted meats, 1,000 dozens eggs, three tons of sugar, 100 barrels of flour, 700 bushels of potatoes, 2½ tons of butter, 2,000 quarts of milk and 500 gallons of ice cream. Of course this is not an exhaustive list, but it will serve to give an idea of the enormous appetite which the storerooms of the ocean liner must satisfy."

"Fricasseed Nightmare."

God has given us a capacity to enjoy food. That is not the principal object in eating. One goes to a dinner and after eating all that he really desires and more than is beneficial thinks he will add a little of the compounds they call dessert—the invention of the devil—and becomes uncomfortable and wretched. Most of the desserts we have might be called "fricasseed nightmare" or "escaloped indigestion." Eating becomes idolatry if it becomes unfitting for higher service. It is a crime to gorge and be uncomfortable or to induce a headache. I once attended a dinner at the invitation of a parishioner and was asked to accompany a lady to the table. I did not need to eat, but I offered to help her to whatever she desired, and she asked for chicken salad, remarking, "It always gives me a wretched headache, but I am going to have some," and I replied, "Then you may help yourself, for I will not."—Address by Dr. Pierson.

When Poor Writing Is Best.

A popular author whose handwriting was none of the best used to maintain that it was a matter of principle with him not to write too well. He declared that for the use of printers, good handwriting was only a snare and a delusion, tending to encourage carelessness and mistakes on their part. The compositors, he asserted, were compelled to devote their very best care and attention to bad handwriting, with the result that, when it was deciphered, it was so fixed in their minds that it was impossible for them to set it up incorrectly. He therefore declared that the worst handwriting was the best for the printers.—Truth.

Puzzled.

A Bangor shipmaster wrote home to the vessel's owner telling of the condition of the freight market where he was—out in the Windward islands. Business was dull, and the vessel had been in the same port for some time, and the captain wrote, "We are in statu quo." The owner for the next week was engaged in searching the atlas of the West Indies trying to find out, as he put it, "where in thunder this 'ere statu quo is!"

His Strategy.

"I am going to sea," the young man said and paused.

The young girl gasped, "O Harry—er—Mr. Timid!" She could not conceal the tears in her voice.

Then he knew what he had feared to ask in so many words.

"I am going to see," he repeated, "your father tonight, if you will give me permission." Then she fell upon his bosom.—Philadelphia [illegible]

William M. Evarts as a Wit.

William M. Evarts dearly loved a joke—so dearly, indeed, that once, when secretary of state, he came nigh upon being the death of one of his subordinates. A consul in the West Indies wrote home stating that his health in that climate was bad and asking for a transfer. At that time there happened to be a vacancy in northern Sweden, and to it the astonished and dismayed consul was transferred instanter by Mr. Evarts. It was not what he had bargained for, and, as an icebound winter was a change that would have meant translation for him to another sphere, the secretary finally relented and gave him a berth elsewhere.

At one time in the department of state a new elevator man had been employed who did not know Mr. Evarts by sight. In his car was a conspicuous sign to the effect that by order of the secretary of state smoking was prohibited. Late in the day the secretary boarded the car in company with a famous senator, the latter smoking a cigar. The new man promptly touched the smoker on the elbow and said, pointing at the notice, "Can't you read that sign?" Mr. Evarts promptly tore down the offending notice and, turning to the elevator man, said: "What sign? I don't see any." The attendant, suspecting something, wisely held his peace, but he followed the pair out and asked the guard at the door who the little chap with the large head was. The guard told him.—New York Tribune.

Swallowed His Destination.

A Clevelander who made a trip to Washington says that, much as he was impressed by the beauty and grandeur of the national capital and its surroundings, the thing he will remember longest was a remark he heard made by a colored deckhand on one of the handsome boats that take daily trips up and down the Potomac.

These boats stop at many of the picturesque little Virginia and Maryland river towns that dot the banks of the historic river and take freight shipments to and from Washington. One of the things shipped from one of the down river towns on the boat the Clevelander rode on was a goat of the sort that delights the average small boy. The Clevelander was wandering about the boat, interested in the differences between the Potomac river boat and the Lake Erie craft with which he was familiar, when he noticed the colored deckhand standing almost motionless before the goat, which was tied to one of the supports of the upper deck. He was scratching his head and apparently very much puzzled.

"What's the matter?" the Clevelander asked the deckhand.

"Why," answered the colored man, "de goat done eat up whar he gwine to."

The goat had simply chewed up and swallowed the tag on which was the address to which he was being shipped.—Cleveland Leader.

The Biters Bit.

"See that party with the jag sitting in the corner of the car?" said a conductor who was riding to the car barns in a Zoo and Eden park car to the conductor in charge of the car.

"Yep. He's got a heavy bundle," was the answer.

"Well, take this counterfeit half dollar with you when you collect his fare. A passenger passed it on me a month ago. If he gives you a dollar, you can shove it on him."

The conductor of the car took the lead half dollar, entered the car, and the man with the jag held out a silver dollar and received the counterfeit half and 45 cents in change.

"Worked like a charm," said the conductor as he reached the platform. "Here he comes now. He wants to get off."

The drunken man wabbled to the door and unsteadily descended from the car.

"Now we'll split up," remarked the conductor of the car as he drew the dollar from his pocket. And as both of the conductors gazed at the silver dollar they gasped in unison: "We're up ag'in it! It's a counterfeit dollar."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Balegga Eating Elephant.

Stark naked savages, with long, greased plaits of hair hanging down to their shoulders, were perched on every available inch of the carcass, hacking away with knives and spears, yelling, cursing and munching, covered with blood and entrails; old men, young men, prehistoric hags, babies, one and all gorged or gorging, smearing themselves with blood, laughing and fighting. Pools of blood, strips of hide, vast bones, blocks of meat, individuals who had dined not wisely but too well lay round in bewildering confusion, and in two short hours all was finished. Nothing remained but the great gaunt ribs, like the skeleton of a ship's wreck, and a few disconsolate vultures perched thereon.—E. S. Grogan Before the Royal Geographical Society.

Priority.

"Always try to keep yourself well to the front," said Senator Sorghum to the young man who is studying politics.

"You mean I must be among the first to advance new ideas and promote reforms."

"Not exactly, but you must be among the first to claim credit when the trick is done and everybody is applauding."—Washington Star.

If eggs would only grow on eggplants, the incubator would do the rest—and the poor old hen would have to retire from business.—Sioux Falls Argus-Leader.

The parson adds one to one and the sum is one; the divorce judge subtracts one from one and two remain.—Chicago News.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper. [illegible]

SIDEWALK NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the village council of the village of St. Hilaire in the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota have ordered the construction of a sidewalk on the west side of Minnesota avenue from Pine street to Second street in said village to be six feet in width, constructed of dressed and sized two (2) inch pine planks six (6) inches wide, placed flatwise and firmly spiked upon four (4) sleepers or stringers of Norway pine two (2) inches thick and (6) inches wide placed edgewise at equal distance from one another and those next to the edges of the walk to be four (4) inches from their respective edges and all to be placed upon a firm foundation; and the material in said sidewalk to be of a quality acceptable to the street commissioner of said village and the work upon the same to be done to his satisfaction.

The side of the walk towards the center of the street to be six (6) feet from the front line of the lots upon the side of the street upon which it may be built, and said sidewalk to be constructed to a grade line established by said village council.

That for the purpose of building said sidewalk the said village council have levied and assessed a tax of thirty-five (35) cents per front foot upon all the lands hereinafter described and the owners thereof, and delivered to the undersigned a warrant for the collection of said tax. That the description of the lands in said village fronting upon said sidewalk, and the names of the owners thereof, which are known as well as the lands whose owners are not known are as follows:

Names	Lot	Blk	St. Hilaire
St. Hilaire Townsite Co.	1	23	"
"	2	"	"
B. Bjorge	3	"	"
John Collser	4	"	"
C. J. Carlson	5	"	"
"	6	"	"
Carl Johnson	7	"	"
"	8	"	"
St. Hilaire Townsite Co	9	"	"
Christ Larson	10	"	"
St. Hilaire Townsite Co	11	"	"
"	12	"	"
"	1	30	"
"	2	"	"
"	3	"	"
"	4	"	"
James Deach	5	"	"
H. E. Adams	6	"	"
"	7	"	"
Andrew Hall	8	"	"
"	9	"	"
"	10	"	"
St Hilaire Townsite Co	11	"	"
"	12	"	"
L. Stranahan	1	35	"
"	2	"	"
St. Hilaire Townsite Co	3	"	"
"	4	"	"
Unknown	5	"	"
"	6	"	"
F. O. Ashall	7	"	"
St. Hilaire Townsite Co	8	"	"
"	9	"	"
"	10	"	"
Scand. Ev. Luth. church	11	"	"
"	12	"	"

Now, therefore, the owners of the aforesaid lands are hereby notified and required to pay the said taxes in labor, material or money on or before the 30th day of July 1900, and, that the labor and material offered in payment of such taxes are to be such as may be required by the street commissioner of said village, and done and furnished to his satisfaction.

Dated this 6th day of July 1900.

S. HARRIS,
Street Commissioner.

20,000 Acres

Of Wild and Improved Lands for sale in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

Prairie Lands,
Speculators Lands,
Timber Lands.

HIMLE LAND & LOAN COMPANY
Purchasers of N. P. Ry. Co. lands in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

☞ Call on or address

FRED G. WELLS, Local Mgr.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

$150,000 to Loan on Farm Lands.

—Screen doors and windows made to order at I. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota, for the moving of the Steel Sells from Old Polk County Jail to Red Lake Falls. Sells to be set up complete at place designated by county board. Bids to be presented to county auditor on or before July 21st 1900. Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

ADAM ZEH,
County Auditor.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

NOTICE

Department of the Interior,
United States Land Office,
Crookston, Minnesota.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office under authority in him vested by section 2455 U. S. R. S. as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895 (28 Stat., 687), we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 30th day of July, 1900, at ten o'clock A. M., the following tract of land, to-wit:

SE¼ NW¼ Sec. 1, T. [illegible] N., R. 43 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated June [illegible]

[illegible] Register.

UNCLE SAM
Is not
In the Shoe
Business,
And Neither
Am I,
But I can
Interest
You in
CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

J. B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans ☞ A Specialty. ☜

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.
—0—
Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.
Razors honed and put in first-class order.
J. H. PENNO, Prop.
ST. HILAIRE MINNESOTA

The Standard

UNCLE SAM'S MONOGRAM WHISKEY
Pure, Palatable, Old.

For Medicinal and General Use.

Sold by Druggists, Dealers and
GEO. BENZ & SONS.
SAINT PAUL MINNEAPOLIS

First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.

Hamm's
ST. PAUL
BEER
THEO. HAMM BREWING
ST. PAUL MINN.

Buy a case of nearest agent or write to the brewery.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

For Fine Goods
Good Goods
New Goods
Up to Date Goods

Visit Us as we are the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents Furnishing House in the City.

GREAT WESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to THE SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route

Best Line to Chicago and St. Louis

"The Limited," the finest train in the world, leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m., St. Paul 8:05 p. m., every day. Electric lighted, steam heated, has compartment and standard sleepers, reclining chair cars, coaches, and dining car on the cafe plan. "The Scenic Express" leaves Minneapolis 7:10 a. m. St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday. Ask your home agent for tickets via this line.

P. S. EUSTIS,
Gen'l Pass. Agent,
CHICAGO, ILL.

GEO. P. LYMAM,
Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent
ST. PAUL, MINN.

TIME AND SPACE are practically annihilated by the ocean cables and land telegraph systems which now belt the circumference of Old Earth in so many different directions. "Foreign parts" are no longer foreign in the old meaning of the term. Europe, Africa, Asia, are "next door" to us. What happens there to-day we know to-morrow—if we read THE CHICAGO RECORD, whose Special Cable Correspondents are located in every important city in the world outside of the United States. No other American newspaper ever attempted so extensive a service; and it is supplemented by the regular foreign news service of The Associated Press. For accurate intelligence of the stirring events which are shaking the nations—of wars and rumors of wars—of the threatening dissolution of old governments and the establishment of new—of the onward sweep of the race in all parts of the world—the one medium of the most satisfactory information is the enterprising, "up-to-date" American newspaper, THE CHICAGO RECORD.

FREE A large map of the world on Mercator's Projection, about 23½x16 inches in size, beautifully printed in colors, with a large-scale map of Europe on the reverse side, will be mailed to any address free of charge on receipt of request accompanied by two 2-cent stamps to cover postage and wrapping. The maps illustrate clearly how comprehensively the special cable service of THE CHICAGO RECORD covers the entire civilized world. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.

Cigars.

J. B. SENATE
DEALER IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.

(Brink Bros. Old Stand) St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

NEW MEAT MARKET.
L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

It's Time

Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
O. F. Post, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. G.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Mrs. L. Lacoursiere, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant	Councilmen
T. J. Thorkelson	Councilmen
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
☞ Calls attended day or night. ☜
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildnige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes
Alex Patnode	Gervias	Red Lake Falls

The Ideal
Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS.
PROMPT SERVICE.
☞ OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd ☞ STORE
(Second Hand Store.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
St. Hilaire, - - Minnesota

New Restaurant
[Brink Bros. Corner Building.]
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
☞ Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.
If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
C. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the Spectator. Official county and village paper. ☜

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.65½	Oats	.19
Wheat No. 2	.63½	Barley	.28
Wheat No. 3	.59½	Flax	.129
Eggs (per doz).	8	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

—Go to Rapp & Post for harness and harness supplies.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

The cotton yield in the state of Texas is the lowest in thirty-four years.

Services in the Norwegian Synod church next Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wheeler of Crookston came up yesterday on a short visit.

Cut worms have done considerable damage on the farm of W. A. Sorsoleil.

C. G. Rapp and M. McAndress made a business trip to Lambert last Friday.

Fred Miller and H. E. Ives made a business trip to the county seat Monday.

W. A. Tyler was lodged in jail at Bemidji last week for attempted murder.

Sam Dainard left yesterday for the coast to accept the foremanship of a saw mill.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stranahan of Crookston were here Monday visiting relatives.

Quite a number of St. Hilaire people will take in the excursion at Winnepeg next week.

N. J. Nereson, the Garnes photographer was an over Sunday visitor in our village.

The county commissioners have been in session since Monday as a board of equalization.

Mrs. H. Tway returned Monday from a three weeks visit with friends at Detroit, Minn.

J. G. Ballard of the Thief River Falls Lumber Company was in the village the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Powers of Wylie were here visiting with Mr. and Mrs. D. Collins last Thursday.

G. H. Frick the Minneapolis Journal collector was looking after that paper's interests here Monday.

—If you want to make a loan or sell your farm call on or address Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

A necktie party will be given at the Hotel St. Hilaire Saturday July 28th. Everybody are invited to attend.

Ed. Hamery was up from Red Lake Falls last Saturday. He is out for the nomination of Register of Deeds.

Miss Ellen Brady of Red Lake Falls was a visitor in our village between trains Monday enroute from Crookston.

Christ Moe who bought the Cliffgard farm moved up with his family last Saturday and is now busy putting up hay.

County Commissioners Hansen and Johnson were in the village Monday a short time while enroute to the county seat.

Otto Olson has accepted the position of night clerk at the Hotel Markham and entered upon his duties the first of the week.

It is rumored that Joe Markman, formerly of this place, but now at Bemidji lost heavily in the bank failure of his town.

The semi-annual Indian scare takes up considerable space in papers of the northwest part of the state just at the present time.

The village was almost deserted last Sunday—the ball game at Thief River Falls and the picnic west of town was the cause of it.

The Himle Land Company of Thief River Falls have something to say in another column. Look it over as it may interest you.

Northeastern Norman county suffered a severe loss from hail last week. Over 5,000 acres of small grain was pounded into the ground.

Land hunters on every corner now days and quite a number of farms are sold in this vicinity. The real estate agent is too busy to report.

The first horseless carriage was seen upon our streets Monday and attracted a great deal attention from those who never seen any of this kind.

It is claimed by a well known Philadelphia artist that women's necks are growing longer. He attributes the fact to the high collars worn by them.

John Cristie made a trip to his homestead in the town of Equality last Saturday returning Sunday evening. He was accompanied by Horace Richards.

The base ball game at Thief River Falls Sunday between the home team and Red Lake Falls club ended with a score of 5 to 14 in favor of Thief River.

Some of the farmers in the town of Rocksbury are registering a good sized kick—little prairie chickens—look out for game warden—$10.00 each—nuff said.

The surprise party on the Adam's boys took place in the dining room of the Hotel St. Hilaire last Thursday evening. Everybody present report of having the best kind of a time.

The Great Northern work train and crew came up early Monday morning for the purpose of putting in two bridges over the county ditch and to do some excavating near the Y.

Selvan Hall is now clerking at the Imperial Drug Store, assisting T. J. Thorkelson, while J. Nelson of the firm is spending his well earned vacation at his old home at Evansville.

The annual school meeting of Dist. No. 102 will be held in the village hall Saturday evening at 7:30 p. m. All persons interested in the welfare of the school should turn out and attend the meeting.

J. G. Brady, the Wylie beam balancer for the Red Lake Falls Milling Co., visited with his cousin J. B. O'Brien Saturday evening and witnessed the defeat of the Selects at Thief River Falls Sunday.

Skerbeck & Co. circus showed here Monday afternoon and evening and all attending got the worth of their money. The tent was packed full at the evening performance and where they came from is what puzzles everybody.

Gunder Torgeson, formerly of the town of Rocksbury, but now a resident of Nicollet county, was up here last week and made a deal for a farm on the Clearwater river. Mr. Torgeson and family will move up this fall.

R. Weagant of Grafton, N. D., father of A. H. Weagant of this place, spent a few days here last week visiting with his son and family. This was Mr. Weagant's first visit and he was well pleased with the town and surroundings.

The German voters are all against imperialism and militarism, and any policy which involves the expenditure of nearly half a billion dollars within two years upon the army. Most of them have had too much of this sort of thing at home.

The kid at school who wrote down under a picture of something. "This is an elephant," is the prototype of the St. Paul Globe. If it did not print the legend "This is a Democratic paper" nobody would suspect it was one.—St. Vincent New Era.

Bargains.

The remainder of our wash goods consisting of dimities, lawns, silk stripe zephyr, ponge zephyr, etc., will be closed out regardless of cost to make room for our fall and winter goods. Come and secure some real bargains.

E. M. Hoff.

Praise for the manner in which the democratic platform is written is very frequently heard, sometimes even from republicans. Ex-Senator Faulkner of W. Va., said of it: "I have never read a better national platform than that adopted at Kansas City. It is written in plain language, says exactly what it means and without indirection."

Milton, the six-year-old son of Sam Dainard, was hooked in the face by a vicious cow, July 12. A deep gash was cut, and it required twelve stitches to sew it up. The little fellow stood the task bravely and did not take any opiates while Dr. Francis performed his work. He is now getting along nicely.—Thief River Falls News.

Rev. I. T. Aastad of Thief River Falls was surprised last Sunday afternoon by his congregation here who went up there and took possession of the house and a very sociable time was had for two or three hours when supper was served. The Rev. gentleman was presented with an A No. 1 buggy which the surprisers brought with them.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

If your dogs disturb the neighbors by howling in the night, it is your fault not theirs. You have no more right to let them disturb neighbors by howling in the night that you have to go out in your back yards and howl yourselves; and if by reason of your neglect they are poisoned or otherwise killed, it is your fault. The safest way is to muzzle a barking dog at night.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that all Red Lake County warrants and orders registered on or before July 1st are payable.

O. T. Tandberg,
County Treasurer.

W. A. Case, arrived home on Saturday from a ten days trip through the southern part of the state, and reports that the crops and gardens in Red Lake county are far superior to any he saw while away. He instituted a camp of Woodmen at Baker, in Clay county, with 19 members. He will attend the Woodmen picnic to be held at Maple Bay on Friday the 20th.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, July 23rd and 24th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 23th and 24th.

—To cure a cough in one day, take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the New Drug Store.

Young Cassimer Gready Smiles for This Pay Day.

Young Cassimer Gready has been trying to get a pension on account of military service rendered by his father during the civil war. The matter has been slumbering in the pension office for many years and would probably exceed the celebrated sleep of Rip Van Winkle if J. K. Hannay had not written to Congressman Eddy about the matter and the latter stirred the officials and now Gready has notice that his pension is allowed and he will get about $600.00 for what his pa did for Uncle Sam.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

For the week ending July 16, 1900.

There were scattered showers in the northern part of the state early in the week and rains began in the southern half on the 14th. In the southern tier of counties the rains were heavy, ranging from 3.21 inches at Worthington to 5.14 inches at La Crosse, in about 48 hours. Hail caused damage, it is said, to thousands of acres of spring wheat in Kittson, Polk, Norman and Red Lake counties, and it caused damage in Rice county also. There were very high and southerly winds on the 12th and 13th, but during the rest of the week the temperature were particularly favorable for the crops, and following the splendid rains of the first week in the month, the conditions have been excellent for the filling of the heads of the spring wheat still standing, though there are some fields so poor in nothern counties that they are being plowed under. In southeastern counties the weather was very dry till the 14th and in fields where the spring wheat was weakened by the drought, the chinch bugs have been destructive; these fields have ripened rapidly, and some of them are being mown for hay. The spring wheat harvest will begin from the 20th to the 25th of July, and with favorable conditions continuing, there will be a much better yield on the area remaining to be harvested than was looked for on July 1st. Barley harvest is well advanced in all the southern half of the state, and some oats are being cut. Rye and winter wheat are generally in shock or stack. Much of the flax is improved. The hay crop now being secured in good condition is very light, except in a few places in southern counties. The high winds shelled some standing barley, and also blew off many apples from the loaded trees. Pastures are better.

—The Himle Land and Loan Co., will loan money on farm lands at legal rate, no commission, call on or address, Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

The Minneapolis Times has figured it out that there are ten presidential tickets in the field with a good prospect of an eleventh if the gold democrats repeat the Palmer experiment of 1896. The tickets are, Republican, McKinley and Roosevelt—Democratic, Bryan and Stevenson—Silver Republican, Bryan and some one to be named—Populist, Bryan and Towne—Mid-Road Populist, Barker and Donnelly—Prohibitionists, Woolley and Metcalf—Socialist Labor, Harriman and Hayes—Socialist Democrat, Debs and Harriman—De Leon Socialists, Maloney and Remmill—United Christians, Swallow and Woolly.

Never get it into your head, says an exchange, that you are too good to mingle with "common" people. Nice clothes and a four inch collar do not necessarily make you too good to be civil to those who wear blue overalls and a blouse. In young men this feeling of loftiness is called "swell head" and in old men aristocracy. Whatever it may be, it is not gentlemanliness.—New London Times.

Estray Notice.

Came to my premises on July 2nd, 1900, a yearling mulley heifer, white, with red spots on neck and side. Owner can have same by proving ownership and paying expenses.

Ed. Aubol.
Sec. 29 Town of Rocksbury.

Arrow Shots.

Less than half of the people bathe enough.

There seems to us to be an epidemic of liars just now.

Nobody likes limburger cheese. They only think they do.

A man never gets so bald headed that he does not try to brush his hair.

A very handsome gold fob may have a cheap silver watch at the other end.

Where the magazine covers are all torn up there must be a baby in the house.

If you see a mans vest spliced out to make it big enough, you may know he has a wife.

If you were to start out gunning for trifling people, what excellent shooting you'd have.

Every once in a while you see some fool who cannot attract any attention except by letting his hair grow long.

Nobody notices it as quick as married folks when a man is not as attentive to his wife after marriage as before.

Boys will carry the girls light spring wraps, but when they get married they will let their wives carry the baby.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates July 23rd and 24th.

"We have sold many different cough remedies, but none has given better satisfaction than Chamberlain's," says Mr. Charles Holzhauer, Druggist, Newark, N. J. "It is perfectly safe and can be relied upon in all cases of coughs, colds or hoarseness." For sale by The Imperial drug store. [illegible]

Insist upon Having Royal.

Royal Baking Powder is in the stock of probably every dealer of groceries in the state. If not, the grocer will add to the reputation of his stock by keeping it.

Royal Baking Powder itself, and the packages which contain it, comply with all the food laws and every other law of the state, any if any dealer attempts to hinder its sale he does so for the purpose of palming off upon the customer a cheap and inferior substitute.

Consumers requiring pure and healthful baking powder, free from alum, should call for Royal. The authorities certify this brand of greatest value, highest in strength, pure and wholesome.

H. Torstweit of Rocksbury is the proud possessor of a little baby boy who came to stay with him Thursday last week.

People's Party County Convention.

A people's party county convention for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota will be held at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county on Wednesday the 1st day of August 1900, for the purpose of placing in nomination the candidates of said party for the following county officers: Auditor, Treasurer, Superintendent of Schools, Register of Deeds, Sheriff, County Attorney, Judge of Probate, Surveyor, Coroner, commissioner for the 2nd district, and commissioner for the 4th district of the said Red Lake county.

Also for the purpose of electing the necessary number of delegates to attend the legislative convention for the 61st legislative district to be held later.

The basis of representation as determined by the county central committee shall be one delegate at large for each voting precinct, and one delegate for every fifty voters or majority part thereof, cast for P. M. Ringdal for member of congress at the general election in 1898.

In conformity with the foregoing apportionment the voting precincts of Red Lake county will be entitled to delegates in said convention as follows:

Black River	2	Bray	1
Emardville	1	Equality	1
Garnes	1	Gervais	1
Lake Pleasant	2	Lambert	2
Louisville	1	Norden	1
North	1	Numedal	1
Polk Centre	1	Poplar River	2
R L Falls 1st ward	2	T R Falls 1st ward	2
" 2nd ward	2	" 2nd ward	1
" 3rd ward	2	" 3rd ward	1
R L Falls twp	2	River Falls	2
Rocksbury	2	Sanders	1
St Hilaire village	2	Terrebonne	2
Wyandotte	1

The primaries for the election of delegates to attend said convention will be held in each of the above precincts on the 28th day of July, 1900. The polls of said primaries shall be open at 7:30 o'clock p. m., and shall be closed at 8:30 o'clock p. m. of said day.

By order of the People's Party County Central Committee of Red Lake county, Minnesota.

H. E. Ives,
Chairman.
Frank Jeffers,
Secretary.

Smallpox Coming.

The state board of health fears that unless preventive measures are taken at once Minnesota will have a smallpox epidemic on its hands next winter. At present the malady exists in three times as many places as at this time last year. Almost daily new cases are reported to the department of health, chiefly from the smaller towns or in the rural districts, and its subsequent spread evidences a lack of disposition or facilities for effectively dealing with it. The trouble seems to lie chiefly with the people, because of their disregard of quarantine regulations. In many cases the disease reappears where it existed last year, showing that proper sanitary measures had not been enforced.

The state board has no doubt that the prevailing disease is the genuine smallpox, and fears that it will demonstrate, to a disastrous extent, its genuineness next winter, if the people do not take adequate measures for its suppression before cold weather comes. Smallpox is not a cold weather disease further than that in winter it finds better environment for development.

Water Hemlock.

The season has been so unusually dry that stock are grazing the sloughs much closer than usual, and already we have reports of cases of poisoning, probably in many instances due to eating water hemlock, one of the most poisonous plants found in this country. Water hemlock is found growing in the sloughs and wet lands of the state. Meadows will be cut for hay closer than ever this summer, and many animals will, judging from past experiences, be poisoned from eating the hay containing this plant. Horses, cattle and sheep alike may be poisoned by eating the hay, the green plant or by drinking the water where the roots are being tramped upon.

It resembles in general appearance the wild parsnip, but grows in wet land, and not in high dry lands as does the wild parsnip.

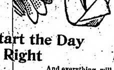
—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

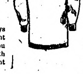
Spent a Good Farm Doctoring.

Mr. A. N. Noell of Asherville, Kansas says he spent a good farm doctoring himself for chronic diarrhoea but got no relief and was afraid that he must die. He chanced to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was permanently cured by it. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewelry Store your headquarters. [illegible] I am yours truly, [illegible]





We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of
Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO Buy
Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

Her Heart's Secret

Or Under a Spell.

By Jean Warner.

CHAPTER XXXVIII. (Continued.)

"Have you seen her lately"—Fenton was biting his tawny mustache, reflectively—"Fannie—Miss Clive, I mean? Have you seen her?"

"Oh, dear, no!" answered Miss Marian, quickly. "I couldn't call, under the circumstances; it would be so embarrassing. What could one say?"

"Very true," said Fenton, throwing the fragments of Fannie's little note, one by one, into the fire. "What could one say? It would be embarrassing. And—and you say they have left the Towers? I would not have time to call; but there is a little packet I would like to—ahem!—to send to Fannie—to Miss Clive, I mean—if you would take charge of it."

And Lieut. Fenton Forest, as he spoke, stammered and hesitated in a way very foreign to his usual brazen self-possession, and looked as a man might look who felt himself a cur of the lowest degree.

"Indeed, you will have to excuse me, Lieutenant!" said Miss Marian, with a malicious little laugh. "It wouldn't do at all for me to interfere in such a delicate matter. Send the packet to Dr. Bond; he appears to have constituted himself a champion of these unhappy Clives. For my part, I think the greatest kindness we can do them is to let them drop entirely. Laurence has some quixotic views upon holding on to friends in distress; but, as I told him last night, distress and disgrace are vastly different in their meaning."

Perhaps the unhappy Clives felt the truth of their words, as, that same evening, they turned away from the proud home that had sheltered their childhood, and journeyed to the humble little cottage that Herbert had procured in a thriving little village a few miles to the north.

Dr. Bond had encouraged the young man in his proud determination to accept nothing from the wealthy kinsman who was coming now as master of the Towers; and through this same true friend's influence Herbert had obtained a position in a large manufacturing house in the village of P——.

He seemed to have but one thought. Self was lost sight of completely in his careful solicitude for the gentle sister now dependent upon his exertions—the sister whose tender heart was bleeding from so many wounds, and who, like some tenderly-nourished plant suddenly bereft of every other prop, clung to him for support and protection.

But there was one other watching over her pathway—plucking from it each thorn that he could reach, smoothing it as far as was in his power, brightening it by friendly words and cheering smiles—another, whose kindly interest in her welfare Fannie had learned to look upon as almost a right, so unceasing had been Laurence Grey's efforts to aid his friends in their hour of adversity.

He it was who had sought out and selected their future home; had beautified it with a thousand little trifles of which Herbert, absorbed in care and sorrow, would have never dreamed; had twined the ivy over the little window; chosen the pretty pictures to hang on the whitewashed walls; brought Fannie's pet bird from the deserted conservatory at Clive Towers, and Herbert's cherished books from his own corner in the library. It was Laurence who had been here, there and everywhere—the patient, cheerful, never-tiring, faithful friend, always tender with a word of hope, a deed of help or a smile of cheer.

It was Laurence who, in his favorite sailor costume (he had come up the river in his yacht), met the brother and sister at the door of the quaint little one-storied cottage, and was the first to welcome them to their humble home.

No one could tell how his strong, brave heart was aching with tenderness and sympathy for the graceful girl, who, pale and sorrowful in her deep mourning robes, had never to his eyes looked so beautiful and womanly.

"It is very poor, darling," said Herbert, leading her into the little parlor, where the bright sunlight streamed through curtains of Laurence's choosing upon a dainty supper table that Laurence himself had spread; "but Laurence and I have done our best. Won't you try to be happy even here? We have only each other to live for now—only each other and the kind friends whose fidelity adversity could not shake. Let us be happy in each other."

Fannie looked around her at the snowy walls hung with her favorite pictures; at the little book case filled with her favorite books; at her bird singing in its gilded cage; on the ivy-veiled windows and the flower stand, glowing with the beautiful blossoms that erst had been her especial pride.

Then her eyes filled with tears, not of sorrow, but of gladness, and, hiding her face on Herbert's breast, she held out her hand to the faithful friend at his side.

"You have been so kind, so good to me," she whispered, "dear brother and—dear friend! I feel as if I could be happy here."

That evening, when Laurence had left them, and the brother and sister stood together by their cheerful little fireside, Herbert handed her the packet that Fenton had sent.

Her face flushed as she broke the seal, then suddenly grew hard and scornful as she saw the contents. Her own letters, full of girlhood's trembling hopes and fears, bright with the play of happy fancy, tender with the half-awakened sentiments of the woman heart—her own letters, written to Fenton Forest in her hours of joy and sorrow, gladness and grief; a long, silky lock of brown hair, and a golden locket, framing a merry, girlish, flower-wreathed face—that of the roguish Fanny of old—that was all the packet held—the packet sent back to her without word or sign, by the man who, with ardent vows and passionate entreaties, had won her warm, young heart.

Had he, indeed, won it? For a moment the girl looked at the fragments of her first love-dream with glittering eyes and heaving breast; then, with a proud gesture, she swept all into the flames leaping and crackling on the hearth before her.

"It is what I might have known—what I might have expected," she said, in a hard, dry voice. "Thank God—aye, thank God—who has saved me from my own foolish heart!"

"The scoundrel—the villain!" uttered Herbert, between his clenched teeth. "By heaven, he shall answer to me for this! Does he think my arm is palsied—my hand is tied?"

But the young man's passionate outburst was stopped by a kiss—a kiss, aye, and from rosy, smiling lips, that had no quiver of pain.

"He is not worth an angry word, dear brother—he is not worth a regretful thought. I was too foolish then to know the gold from the gilding. Dear brother, you and—and Laurence have taught me wisdom since. Why should I mourn for that which fire can destroy? The pure gold, triply proved in the crucible, is still mine own."

She pointed to the glowing hearth before her. The letters, tress, miniature, all were ashes; but in the flames the little locket showed itself—a mass of pure, molten gold, shaped like a rugged heart.

And Fannie smiled. A memory stirred within her breast that made her heart a prophesy—the true gold was all her own.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

At Last.

"Well, they've come," said Dr. Bond, alighting at the door of Ivy Cottage, and grasping Herbert's hand warmly. "Mr. and Miss Clive arrived at the Towers last night."

"Miss Clive?" repeated Herbert, in some surprise.

"Yes. I didn't mention that Basil Clive had a daughter," said the doctor, dryly. "He has, though, and a very charming young lady she is. I've been acting as mediator, my boy," he continued, clapping Herbert's shoulder, heartily; "and I think I've succeeded admirably. I found Mr. Basil Clive disposed to be very liberal—very liberal, indeed. He don't care to live at the Towers—in fact, he don't care to live in America at all, and we came to a conclusion last night, that will save your father's credit, leave his name untarnished, and put you in lawful possession of your old home again. You must marry that pretty cousin of yours, my boy. She's young, lovely, rich and the legal heiress of Clive Towers, and she has heard enough of you to dispose her very favorably to your suit. You must marry Miss Clive."

"Impossible, sir!" said Herbert, his face flushing indignantly. "Surely it is not Dr. Bond who advises me to sell heart and soul?"

"God bless my soul!" exclaimed the doctor. "you don't mean to say, my dear fellow, that you would be fool enough to refuse? Why, it's the only way to settle matters. Don't stand in your own light, my boy—don't let any foolish, romantic ideas weigh against the substantial realities of fortune and fame. Think of your father's honor redeemed, your own name saved from disgrace, your sister's future secured! Don't be a fool, my boy. Marry the girl, and hush up everything!"

"Never!" said Herbert, firmly. "I will marry none but the woman of my heart—the wife of my choice! No worldly advantage could make me false to the sweet memory I cherish in my heart of hearts—no fame or fortune could make me forget Sybil Wraye. Let my kinsman keep what is rightfuly his; I ask nothing from him. Fannie and I are willing to brave whatever Fate may have in store for us, secure to our honest purpose to do justice and right. We ask no favor, no compromise—"

"You're a fool, sir!" interrupted the doctor, testily, rubbing his nose—"a big fool, and your sister is another! I've done my best for you, and now I wash my hands of the whole business. I thought you'd be sensible enough to see the advantage of this connection, and I told Mr. Clive so. They've lived in foreign countries long enough to have no squeamish scruples on the subject of matrimonial arrangements, and we talked the matter over like sensible people. But I've done with the business; you'll have to go and see him yourself, and tell him you'll have nothing from him—neither his friendship nor his fortune. Go, fling his kindness back in his teeth, and turn your back on your own good luck—go, for I won't do it for you! He expects you and your sister at the Towers this evening, and, in common civility, you'll have to go."

"My dear doctor," said Herbert, much grieved at the seeming resentment of his tried friend, "I cannot tell you how I regret displeasing you, but—"

"Don't say anything more about it," answered the doctor, gruffly. "You've got your ideas, and I've got mine. I can't knock against a stone wall and not feel it. Let Fannie come down with me, and you can take your own time. I want her pretty face to keep me in temper. Get your bonnet, my dear, and come and ride home with the old man. You're not stubborn enough to refuse to know a pretty cousin. Come along, I've got a pleasant surprise for you. As for that brother of yours," the doctor got into his buggy with a queer smile hovering around his lips and a twinkle in his eye, "I've done with him. He can manage his own affairs with Mr. and Miss Clive—manage them alone."

It was late that afternoon before Herbert found time to comply with his new kinsman's request, and visit him at Clive Towers.

A bitter and painful visit it must prove, our hero thought, as he alighted at the little station and proceeded slowly along the path through the stately groves he once had thought his own.

It was a beautiful evening. Winter was already beginning to yield before the approaching spring. The river, shimmering with a thousand opal hues, flung back the glory of the sunset; the western hills were tipped with rose and gold; the evening air had lost its piercing chill, and seemed balmy with the breath of unseen flowers; all nature was suggestive of the beautiful season that was stealing, blossom-crowned, over the silent, sleeping earth—the season of hope and promise—the virgin spring.

But Herbert walked on slowly and sadly; the sweet influences around him brought no gladness to his heart. He came, a stranger to the roof of his fathers, an exile to the home of his birth, a penniless, disgraced man to the presence of his kinsman whom his father had wronged and defrauded—the kinsman whose liberality he was too proud to accept.

How the doctor's words stung him! He sue for the haughty heiress of Clive Towers! He purchase fame and fortune at the price of honor and heart! He redeem his father's name by a base, mercenary, loveless marriage! He, with Sybil Wraye's sweet image still enshrined in his heart of hearts, to woo, win and wed another.

Sybil—his own Sybil! Ah, she need not fear disgracing his proud name now! It was humbled already in the dust. Would Sybil pity him now? would she love him still? He paused for a moment at the thought. He was at Sunset Hill, the spot endeared to him by the memory of that first interview, when love, bursting all bonds, had leaped to his lips—when his heart had first spoken, and Sybil had heard and wept.

He climbed to the summit of the hill to look around him; to imprint the beautiful landscape forever in his heart; to carry away with him that memory as the last and sweetest of his broken home, his blighted youth!

Did he dream? A form stood upon Sunset Rock—a woman's form, robed in misty gray, and illumined with the last rosy hues of the sunset; a form veiled with floating clouds of golden hair; a graceful, lovely form, that turned at his approach, and revealed to him the beautiful features of his dream-love—Sybil Wraye!

"Sybil, Sybil! My darling, my darling!" he cried, forgetting poverty, disgrace, all things save the rapture of this meeting, "you here? Surely, this is only some vision sent to mock my despair!"

"No vision, my beloved," she said, holding out her hands to him with a beautiful smile. "Visions are done with now, dear Herbert, for the shadows have fled, the night is passed—it is day, sunshiny day. At last—at last, Herbert," she looked up into his face with beaming eyes—"at last we meet beyond the shadow—at last we can speak of hope and—and" she blushed at the whisper—"love!"

"My own love!" he murmured, in a moved voice, "I understand you. Alas—alas!—I can offer you nothing now but a blighted life, a tarnished name, poverty and disgrace. I have nothing left, Sybil—not even honor!"

"You have your own true heart. Ah! I have heard all!" she said, simply. "Dear Herbert, let me come to you in your sorrow, let me share your poverty, if need be, your disgrace. I would love you as you have loved me, through all, in spite of all! The barrier between us is broken now—I am all your own!"

"Sybil, beloved one, is this true, or only a dream, a beautiful dream? Darling, darling! will you be the star of my darkness? Will you come to me—poor, disgraced and wretched as I am—will you be the wife of one whose only wealth is love for you? Oh, my love, it will only be for your sake, then, that I can regret the past! I could almost welcome the shadow that draws you to my heart—my own, my own!"

"Hello, young man!" said a cheery voice behind them, and Dr. Bond, with a tall, dark-browed man at his side, suddenly appeared on the scene. "You appear to have changed you mind on the subject we were discussing a few hours since. I thought you would bring him to reason, my dear, though it was only this morning he was ready to knock me down for proposing he should even look at you. You look bewildered, my dear boy," continued the good doctor, whose old face was fairly beaming with happiness. "Let me introduce you to your new relatives. Mr. Basil Clive, this is the young gentleman who is fool enough in these latter days to hold honesty above honor, who knows only one road, and that goes straight ahead, whether it be down a precipice."

"Or up an Alpine peak," said Col. Laponte of St. Gothard, grasping his young rescuer's hand warmly. "I need no introduction to Mr. Herbert Clive. Our acquaintance was made on the borders of a valley whose darkness makes even one as reckless as I have been look up for light. I have more than life to thank you for," he continued, in a moved tone. "A fire that burned with unchanging heat for five-and-twenty years was quenched forever beneath those Alpine snows. In your father's name, my young kinsman, let us forget and forgive the past, and let this"—and he took Sybil's snowy hand in his and laid it gently within Herbert's—"let this, the most precious gift that Basil Clive can bestow, be the pledge of forgiveness and the seal of peace."

"Is another introduction necessary?" asked the doctor, surveying the young pair with whimsical gravity.

"No," said Herbert, drawing the weeping, trembling, yet radiant, Sybil to his heart. "Under all shapes, and forms, and names, love is still the same. I take your gift, sir, proudly and gratefully, as the woman of my love, the wife of my heart, the one being on earth who could hold me bound by chains that all the strength of my manhood could not break."

"The spell is broken, Herbert," whispered Sybil, archly. "My power is gone, now the 'magic dower' is all your own."

"Not a bit of it," said the doctor, shaking his hand. "Don't lay that flattering unction to your soul, my boy. She is just beginning her rule. You have been a married man, Mr. Clive, and can tell these young people that a woman never fairly begins to govern until she has promised to obey. You have got him, my dear, and hold him until death, as every true wife holds her husband to the last—'under a spell!'"

It was a happy evening that followed at Clive Towers—happy for Basil Clive, whose triumph was poisoned by no drop of bitterness, for he had gained the greater triumph over self—happy for the good old doctor, who, with the picture of his lost love resting on his still warm heart, went about from one to the other, rubbing his hands at the joyful reunion of his friends and her children.

Happy! Aye, with a new, shy, wondrous happiness for Fannie, who had disappeared in the conservatory, early in the evening with Laurence Grey, and had emerged with such glowing cheeks and sparkling eyes that Sybil had kissed her, and whispered, out of her own full heart, a glad congratulation.

Happy! Ah, happiest of all for Herbert, as, with the one love of his life clinging to his arm, with her sweet face upturned to his, and her beautiful eyes fearlessly revealing her pure soul, she removed the veil from the past, and showed him all the sorrow, the heart-break, the despair that had stood like a grim barrier between her and the sunshine.

"Yet you loved me through all?" he whispered. "Tell me once more, darling, you loved me through all."

"From the moment you spoke to me at Sunset Hill," she murmured. "Darling, I could not have lived through the dark night that followed but for the memory of those words of yours, that have echoed in my heart ever since—'The star of hope and love shines above us, and will light our pathway yet.' See, dear Herbert, it beams above us now [illegible]"

They looked above, and, in the dark blue heaven, its pale, pure radiance seemed to light love onward to its true and fitting home beyond the stars!

The End.

CARRYING THEIR CARTRIDGES.

For This Purpose the Boers Use a Receptacle Called a Bandolier in Their Native Tongue.

The ordinary Boer method of carrying cartridges, as is well known, is in a bandolier, either fitted for single cartridges or, in the case of the Mauser, to hold clips of five. The former system has been widely adopted already by our troops. But the plan for quick-loading and the perfection of a cartridge-carrier must be awarded to the waistcoats which were in use by the better class of Boers. These are made of khaki and supplied with twenty-four pockets in several rows closely touching one another, and each containing a clip full of five Mauser cartridges. This waistcoat has only to be seen for its advantages to be instantly appreciated. The weight is evenly distributed, the cartridges are easily got at and not liable to be lost and, lastly, the whole surface of the closely-packed cartridges forms a protective shield over the heart and lungs by no means to be despised, for, although not proof against a direct hit, it would probably turn many a bullet striking at an angle.—Saturday Review.

Sentiment Not Appreciated.

The Prince of Wales can be cutting as well as courteous, and when he is not in the mood for feminine pleasantries he will not take them, even from society's beauties. Recently, at a large bazar, the prince, being tired, entered the refreshment roof and asked a certain well known society beauty, who was performing the role of waitress, for a cup of tea. This was soon brought to his royal highness, who, smilingly, asked her how much he owed her for it.

"The price of the cup of tea, your royal highness, is half a crown, ordinarily, but (taking a sip from the teacup) when I drink from it, the price is one guinea."

"I see," replied the prince, quietly placing a guinea on the table. Then, placing half a crown beside it, he said:

"The guinea liquidates my first debt, and now might I trouble you to bring me an ordinary cup of tea, as I am thirsty?"

The society beauty was too crushed to bring his royal highness the second cup.—New York Press.

Judge Kept His Word.

The prisoner was making his appearance before the magistrate for the hundredth time.

"Well," said the magistrate, "here you are again?"

"Yes, your honor," replied the prisoner.

"What's the charge?"

"Vagrancy—the same as before, your honor."

"It seems to me you are here about half your time."

"Yes, about that, your honor."

"Well, what do you do it for? Why don't you work?"

"I do, your honor, more than half the time."

"Ah, now," said the magistrate, surprised, "if you can tell me where you have ever worked I'll let you off."

"In prison, your honor," answered the prisoner, brazenly, and the judge kept his word.—Collier's Weekly.

Crossing the Famous Bowery.

People seldom walk across the Bowery nowadays. As a general thing, they put aside their dignity and run from curb to curb in zig-zag fashion, dodging under the nose of a horse, darting across the bows of a car, making a flying leap across the gutter and landing on the opposite sidewalk breathless but safe. As the middle of the street is taken up by four trolley tracks, the trucks and wagons are crowded toward either curb, and it takes a pedestrian with good nerves to make his way across without being forced into a run.

A reporter riding down the Bowery in a car the other morning saw ninety persons cross the thoroughfare in six blocks. Of these ninety, seventy ran fair speed, while the remaining twenty walked as fast as their dignity would permit.—New York Mail and Express.

Long-Range Duel.

Gen. Botha, the famous Boer commander, once fought something like a duel with Wools Sampson, who will be remembered as a reform prisoner. In the Boer war of 1881, Mr. Sampson, on the British side, and Botha, on the Dutch, during an outpost skirmish, potted at each other from behind the rocks. Sampson thought he hit Botha, and raised his head above his stone, only to find himself hit in the neck. That was one to Botha, who jumped up elated. Sampson at once dropped him. "Got him!" said Sampson, and raised himself to look. "Got him!" said Botha, as he put a bullet into his adversary's side; but he showed himself too soon, for Sampson brought the score to evens. In later years they yarned about the occurrence over drinks at Johannesburg.—Collier's Weekly.

Girl's Essay on Boys.

At a recent school examination for girls, this composition was handed in by a girl of twelve:

"The boy is not an animal, yet they can be heard to a considerable distance. When a boy hollers he opens his big mouth like frogs, but girls hold their tongue till they are spoken to; and then they answer respectable and tell just how it was. A boy thinks himself clever because he can wade where the water is deep. When the boy grows up he is called a husband, and then he stops wading and stays out nights, but the grown-up girl is a widow and keeps house."—New York Ledger.

Marks of Honor.

The major had rolled up his sleeves to bowl.

"Major," inquired one of the players, "how did you get all those little scars on your arms?"

"Duels!" responded the major, "duels I fought in France."

"And I suppose that large scar was acquired in some particularly fierce combat?"

"No, sir, that is where I was vaccinated when a boy."—Chicago News.

Ruling Spirit.

Road Agent—Your money or your life!

Goldstein (from interior of coach)—How much off for cash?—Life.

A Cold and Selfish Nature.

Office Boy—Please, sir, can I get off? My gramma's awful sick.

Employer—No, Jerry; I'm going to the game myself.—Chicago Record.

Her Natural Lights.

Mamma—I don't see where you get your red hair; you don't get it from papa, and you certainly don't get it from me. [illegible]

Little Dorothy—Well, mamma, can't I have something [illegible]

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Destroying Our Market Abroad.

The secretary of agriculture of Missouri, in his last report, says:

Adulterated Cheese.—One of the worst features of this business is that imitation butter compounds and adulterated cheese are destroying the market for United States dairy products abroad. To illustrate, in 1880, the United States sold in Great Britain one hundred and twenty-eight million pounds of cheese, while Canada only sold forty million pounds or less than one-third what the United States did. In 1898 this condition of the trade was reversed, the United States selling to Great Britain only forty-six million pounds, while Canada sold one hundred and fifty million pounds, or more than three times the amount sold by the United States, a condition that may be attributed almost solely to the fact that in this country the laws permitted manufacturers to brand skim milk and filled cheese as full cream articles, and as such it was exported and sold.

Adulterated Butter.—The same increase in the sales of Canadian butter and decrease in the sales of butter from the United States may be noted since butterine has been manufactured and placed upon the market in imitation of and sold as creamery butter, indicating this decrease in 1898, New York exported to Great Britain only sixty-five thousand packages, while Montreal exported two hundred and twenty-seven thousand packages, and in 1899, with Secretary Wilson, of the United States department of agriculture, making every possible effort to extend the sale of dairy products in Europe, New York exported one hundred and three thousand packages, while Montreal exported four hundred and twenty-five thousand packages, or more than four times as much as this great country with its largely extended area, its abundance of all kinds of stock, food and grasses and its superior climatic conditions. The pure food products of this country are equal in character to those of Canada. The demand should be as good and the supply far in excess. The unfavorable condition of our butter trade with Europe may be attributed to the fact that we have offered for sale in that country fraudulent imitation articles, that we have lost the confidence of consumers and brought into question the purity of our product.

Making a Natural Starter.

The method of making this natural starter is simple. There may be various plans, but one which is satisfactory enough is as follows: A perfectly healthy cow from a cleanly, well kept dairy is selected. After the under parts of the body are carefully brushed, and the udder moistened with a damp cloth, the first few jets of milk from the teats are rejected, and the rest is drawn into a sterilized vessel. This is then covered at once and taken to the dairy, heated to a proper temperature and passed through a separator. The skim milk thus obtained is again collected in a sterilized vessel, carefully covered and set aside to sour. After it has become properly soured it serves as a starter for the cream ripening process. Of course there are many other methods of obtaining a natural starter, for a natural starter is nothing more than a lot of skim milk or whole milk obtained under specially cleanly conditions from an exceptionally good dairy and allowed to sour naturally.

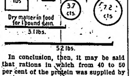
Of course it is impossible for the dairyman to be sure that such a natural starter contains the species of bacteria that is wanted for ripening. Sometimes it may contain proper species and at other times an unfavorable species. Logically then the use of a natural starter is very unsatisfactory. But our dairymen are not so much interested in the logic of the method as they are in practical results, and care not whether the process they use is theoretically the best, provided it gives them a good quality of butter. There can be no question that the use of natural starters thus made has been a very decided advantage to the butter maker as it has been adopted in the last ten years.

Clean and Unclean Dairies.

A California milk inspector has this to say: Unclean dairies have been so widely advertised in official reports and newspaper articles that many citizens think well-conducted dairies do not exist, or, if they do, no way is known by which one can be assured of getting their milk. And many persons will go without milk whenever possible rather than run the risk of getting the dangerously impure article which they are convinced is very common. Thus the scarce articles have the effect of reducing the production and use of impure milk; but they have the same effect also on the use of pure milk. It is unfortunate that the excellent features of the best dairies are not given as much prominence as are the defective features of the worst, so as to show those interested that good milk is on the market as well as bad. A practicable plan by which this could be accomplished could easily be followed, greatly to the benefit of all concerned. Although only a few dairies were visited, it was readily seen that at least a part of the milk going into Sacramento and San Francisco is produced with great care and can be relied upon as a safe and wholesome food. As already suggested, if these first-class dairies and others like them could be brought to the attention of the public as forcibly as the worst types, a decided step would be taken toward the improvement of the general city supply.

Fowls With or Without Meat Foods.

The Geneva experiment station has, as previously mentioned in the Farmers' Review, been making trials in feeding fowls with and without meat in their food. A part of the report says: The results were convincing, almost startling, in the case of ducklings fed the contrasted rations. The first lot of [illegible] animal meal and a little skimmilk and dried blood. The second lot was fed on wheat bran, corn meal, ground oats and skimmilk or curd. Both lots were fed green alfalfa; and sand and coarse grit were freely supplied. Before the experiment had been long under way it was not unusual to notice scrawny, grain-fed birds, with troughs full of good, apparently wholesome food before them, standing on the alert and scrambling in hot haste after the unlucky grasshopper or fly which ventured into their pen; while the contented-looking meat-fed ducks lay lazily in the sun and paid no attention to buzzing bee or crawling beetle. The 32 meat-fed birds lived and thrived; but the vegetable food birds dropped off one by one, starved to death through lack of animal food, so that only 20 of the 33 were alive at the close of the fifteenth week of contrasted feeding. They were then fed for four weeks on the meat meal ration, and made nearly as rapid gains as the other lot at the same size, two months before; but they never quite overcame the disadvantage of their bad start on grains alone. Some of the comparative averages for ten weeks from birth, the period of profitable growth for the larger ducks, are shown graphically below, the first figure or upper line representing the meat fed birds in each instance:



In conclusion, then, it may be said that rations in which from 40 to 50 per cent of the protein was supplied by animal food gave more economical results than rations drawing most of their protein from vegetable sources. The chief advantage was in the production of rapid growth, although the cost of production is also in its favor. While inferior palatibility may have had something to do with the marked results, especially with the ducks, the whole bearing of these experiments and others not yet reported seems to indicate that the superiority of the one ration is due to the presence in it of animal food.

Health and Condition of Horses.

A recent government report treats of the health and condition of horses for the year ending March 31. It summarizes as follows:

Losses.—Of the 10 states each estimated to contain 500,000 horses or upward, all except Missouri report losses from disease somewhat less than those of the preceding year. The year 1898-99, however, was characterized by a rate of mortality slightly higher than that of any previous year for which figures are available, and accordingly a comparison of the year now under discussion with the ten-year average is less satisfactory, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, and Texas report a rate of mortality below their respective ten-year averages; in the case of Pennsylvania and Missouri the percentages of loss agree exactly with the ten-year averages, while in New York and Illinois they are slightly above such averages.

Condition.—The condition of healthfulness and flesh on April 1 was very high, being only 3 per cent below the normal, as compared with 5.6 per cent below the normal on April 1 of the preceding year.

Chicks on Free Range.

We notice that one poultry writer is advocating giving the old hen full liberty to drag her chicks anywhere. He says that if this be done the chicks will be hardier, more fully developed and in every way better birds when mature than those reared to the weaning age with the hen confined to a coop and a few square rods of ground. But we would suggest that the trouble comes in the fact that there are likely to be very few birds to mature. By the time the old hen has dragged the lives out of some of them, and cats and rats have had their pick, to say nothing of the bout with the gape worm, the number will be few. Nor are we convinced that it is healthful for a chick to be over exercised or that it is rendered hardy by being soaked with the dew or chilled by cold winds. When a hen drags her chicks to a remote corner of the farm the mink or cat finds it a good chance to gather in one of the stragglers now and then.

New Orchards in Iowa.

To the Farmers Review: A local nurseryman informed me that he never before had so good a trade. He had some twelve acres of a nursery and he sold about all that was fit to go out, and all that he received from wholesale nurseries. This is certainly good news. Many of the old orchards are about dead. They were never cared for as they should have been, never manured, simply starved to death. This was the result of ignorance. They never dreamed that a tree needs food. They expected a tree to go on bearing indefinitely without a pound of manure. They are about dead now and men are in haste to set out new orchards. These will be cared for. There is no better apple country in the states than southern Iowa. All that is necessary to raise Eden apples is to exercise the same care with the trees that we do with our breeds of fine horses, cattle and swine.—E. B. Heaton.

Variation of Temperature.

Probably the greatest diurnal temperature range on record is that reported by M. Zichy, a late traveler in Mongolia. The temperature at Urga was 20.2 degrees at 5 a. m., and at noon it had risen to 105.8 degrees.

Firm Fences.—There is nothing in relation to poultry keeping that gives more satisfaction than a well-built poultry fence of wire on posts that are so deeply set they will never incline in any direction. It pays to have a firm fence. It will save a great deal of vexation. The posts should be so deeply set that they will stand wind and rain, frost and soil moisture. This can be obtained only by having the holes dug so deep that the bottoms of the posts will be below the region subject to heaving in the spring, which does not necessarily mean below the region of frost.

IRISH IN AMERICA.

They May Be Said to Have a Genius for Politics.

Industrially the foreign element in America has been very important, says Ainslee's Magazine. More than ninety per cent of the immigrants who have come and are coming to this country are industrious and sober. They come to better their fortunes, and they set about doing it with great energy. The railroads and great public works in this country used to be built by Irish laborers. I am speaking in general terms. Without them we would not have been able to make the great progress which justifies us in believing that our growth in wealth during the past thirty years is more marvelous than anything the world has previously seen. But the Irish have found other occupations, in which they can gratify their gregarious instincts, develop their wonderful talent for political organization, and in large and small ways enjoy the independence to spend and to accumulate which was denied to them for so long at home. They have therefore settled in great measure in the cities and taken up the occupations that in such places are open to them. These occupations range all the way from street sweeping to millionaire financiering, and include cab driving, car driving, being porters, barkeepers, clerks, merchants, doctors, lawyers and editors. As professional politicians they have had no peers in the history of the world. They may be said to have a genius for politics. And the Irish who had not flocked to the cities are doing remarkably well. They are farmers all over the country, and their success in the North Atlantic division of the country, on farms that were no longer profitable under native management, has been most notable. As husbandmen they are frugal without being niggardly. Their remarkable political strength is due to the fact that they have kept together when it came to voting more consistently than any other people. Thackeray says somewhere, his observation being of the Irish in London, that there never was an Irishman so poor that he did not have another Irishman who looked to him for enjoyment and support. This was a tribute to their loyalty, their friendliness and generosity.

Japanese Family Dwelling.

Tokio Cor. Chicago Record: There is a home here where five generations live under the same roof in perfect harmony. The family is that of Mr. Kinyemon Arai of Matsunoki, Unememura, Gumma prefecture, who has just entered on his 93d year and is still hale and hearty. So is his wife Naka, who is of the same venerable age. Equally healthy and prosperous are their eldest son, Kakunosuke, and his spouse, who are respectively 68 and 67. Then comes their grandson, Kennosuke, 46 years old, and his wife, Asa, younger by two years. Twenty-six and 24 are the ages of their great-grandson, Isematsu, and his life's partner, Toki, respectively, from whose union have sprung a healthy, growing boy of 4 and a baby girl. The villagers say that the atmosphere of love, affection and veneration which envelopes this happy family is idyllic.

How They Joke in Paris.

"A dense ignorance of the French language," said a gentleman who knows his Paris well, "is one of the most valuable things in the world for the average American visitor to take with him to the exposition. It will save him a great deal of humiliation, and probably keep him out of serious trouble. Of course, ninety-nine Americans out of a hundred are crazy to see the night side of Parisian life and to visit certain show places, variety theaters and cabarets. The people who run these charming establishments invariably assume that no American understands French, and their comments upon visitors from this side of the pond are exceedingly vivacious and outspoken."—New York Telegram.

Shirking a Disagreeable Job.

The last time Quanah Parker, the ruler of the Comanches, was in Washington the commissioner of Indian affairs tried to teach him that the thing to do was to discard six of his wives and cleave to the seventh, registering her as his permanent spouse. Quanah listened solemnly to the lecture and then began to ask questions through the interpreter. He does not often admit that he can talk English. He asked if it was intended that he should tell the discarded squaws that they must go. The commissioner said that was the intention. Quanah pondered a few moments and then, turning to the commissioner, blurted forth: "You tell um!"

Ghetto Pet Is Killed.

Dick, the prize donkey of the ghetto, is dead, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. He had courted death for years past on the railroad tracks at the Sixteenth street crossing and had many escapes. Yesterday the prediction of many came true. Dick was struck by a Calumet and Chicago Terminal train and killed instantly. The donkey was a general pet in the ghetto, and for years had been owned by Mrs. Mary Toomey, a widow of No. 108 West Fifteenth street. The long-eared animal was known to the residents for miles around, and it became noted long ago for its hatred for policemen or anybody wearing brass buttons and a club.

Arrests Avalanches.

Thickly planted trees are the best protection against avalanches. The snow which has fallen in the woods cannot well shift its place, and when the masses of snow from the slopes above dash against the timber they are unable to break through so strong a barrier, and after overturning some of the first trees their progress is arrested.—Forest Leaves.

Hourly Incomes.

Russia's Czar has an income of £200 per hour, the Sultan £170, the Emperor of Austria £100, the Kaiser £90, the king of Italy £66, Queen Victoria the same, the French president £50, and the king of the Belgians £17.

Beautify the Spot

Where Nancy Hanks Is Buried.

Indianapolis telegram: The arrangements which are now being perfected by the Nancy Hanks Lincoln Monument Association for clearing away the undergrowth and beautifying the site of the grave of the mother of Abraham Lincoln has awakened interest in a romantic spot in Indiana, and led to some pleasant as well as some sorrowful recollections in connection with the residence of the Lincoln family in Indiana. The site of Mrs. Lincoln's grave is the top of a steep hill a short distance from Lincoln City, Spencer county, and a few hundred feet from the spot where once stood the Lincoln cabin, a rude log structure which Thomas Lincoln and his son Abraham assisted by earlier emigrants, erected in 1816. The association which has undertaken the work of redeeming the site of the grave and converting the 16-acre tract which surrounds it into a sightly park is composed of members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Sons of Veterans, the Loyal Legion and the Lincoln League, while Gov. Mount is president.

Thomas Lincoln, his wife, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, and his son, Abraham found Indiana a veritable wilderness when they came here from Kentucky. The father was a carpenter by trade and the rude domicile was soon completed. The family was even poorer than was usual in those days, and tradition says that they brought with them practically nothing from their home in Kentucky, and that their neighbors supplied them at first with some things that were absolutely necessary to bodily comfort. They had been in their new home only a short time when the wife and mother fell sick, and after lingering a while died. Her disease was probably malarial fever. The father and son rived the boards out of which the rude coffin was made, and less than a half dozen persons attended the burial. There was no one present who was qualified to deliver a funeral discourse, and that ceremony was dispensed with, but several months later, when an itinerant minister came along, the father and son attended him to the grave, where a short prayer was offered for the repose of the dead and a homely lesson drawn from the life she had lived.

Thomas Lincoln went back to Kentucky some 18 months later and soon returned with another wife, "the angel mother," as the martyred president was wont to call her in after years. He had not prospered well here, and in a few years sold his small possessions and went to Illinois. The site of the grave was neglected. The bramble and the brier grew over it and hid it from view, but more than 40 years after, when the eyes of the nation were turned upon the son, some one remembered that his mother was buried on top of the hill a short distance from the old Lincoln cabin. Then some one cleared away the bushes and let the sun shine on the neglected grave. The war came, and then the tragedy in Ford's theater, but the bushes had grown over the grave again, and years went by before any one thought to redeem the spot from the wilderness of undergrowth which covered it. "Clem" Studebaker, the wagon manufacturer of South Bend, visited the spot one day and blushed that it should have been neglected so many years. He caused the briars and brambles to be cleared away, and then ordered a stone to be placed at the head of the grave, and a neat iron fence was erected around it.

Mr. Studebaker paid an occasional visit to the grave and made provision for keeping the immediate site in order, but the surroundings were unsightly, and nearly two years ago someone wrote to President McKinley calling attention to the neglected spot and suggesting that the grave of a martyred president's mother should have better care. The letter was forwarded to Gov. Mount by the president, and steps were at once taken to form a monument association.

Capt. John Lamar of Spencer county is the only person now living who is known to have been associated with the Lincolns during their residence in Indiana. The captain was five years younger than Abraham, but he has a distinct recollection of how the future president whittled off the surfaces of boards that he might have something to figure on, and how he sat up at night and strained his eyes before the old fireplace in the log cabin reading from the few books that the settlement afforded, and which the young Lincoln had borrowed. When asked about his reading by young Lamar the future president said, "I wouldn't give a cent for a boy who didn't know more today than he did yesterday." The Lamars and the Lincolns lived near each other, and the captain recalls that he and Abraham often played together and had often slept in the same bed.

Thermometer a Nursery Requisite.

A thermometer is almost indispensable in the nursery. It should, if possible, hang in the middle of the room, away from the door, window, wall and fireplace, where the mercury may be affected by the draught. If the room where the baby is obliged to sleep is very hot in the middle of the day, or at night, hang a wet sheet over the window and leave the door open. Sprinkle the sheet as it dies with a whisk broom that has been dipped in cold water.—June Ladies' Home Journal.

PRINCESS' BIRTHDAY.

Recently in Paris the birthday celebration of her imperial highness Princess Mathilde was held. The first cousin of the king of Rome—of l'Aiglon—daughter of King Jerome, and niece of the great Napoleon, has just entered into her eighty-first year. This remarkable woman of eighty may be seen almost every day at the exposition, where she walks about for several hours, purchasing innumerable beautiful things—which she rarely keeps for herself, by the way. She may also be seen by her privileged friends in her own salon—that celebrated salon which for almost half a century has been the rendezvous of the most brilliant members of Parisian society, as well as the princes of literature and art.

Formerly it was Duke d'Aumale, Flaubert, Dumas, Rousseau, Emilie Augier, Meissonnier; today it is Sardou, Bourget, Jose Maria de Heredia, Gerome, Jules Lefebvre, Viscount de Vogue—in a word, all the men of genius whom nature, in addition, has endowed with a social temperament.

What might be called the material part of the princess' salon consists of a suite of three rooms full of admirable works of art, some priceless canvases of Reynolds among others. The princess occupies a divan in the first salon. She rises as her guests come in and extends to them the proverbially handsome hand upon which age has traced neither a wrinkle nor a crease. Around her is a compact little circle, constantly renewed, in which all subjects are touched upon with competence, wit, but above all naturalness and tolerance, the two characteristic traits of the charming hostess. She is spoken of in her immediate surroundings as la bonne princesse, for she is a great benefactress in a quiet, unostentatious way.

Few people know that there exists in Paris an important hospital bearing her name. It is this Hospital Mathilde which was to have inherited all that was left by Edmond de Goncourt in case the great novelist's dreamed-of academy could not be organized. It was interesting during the recent debates on the subject to benefit by the failure of the academy, and who, nevertheless, respected the testator's last wishes and that of the relatives of Goncourt, who carried before two courts their determination to frustrate the great man's long-cherished plan. The birthday reception of the princess was not a fete properly speaking; it was simply a passing through her salons of ambassadors, academicians, great authors, great artists and charming people of the various smart sets of Parisian society.

AN OUTLAW GANG.

Growing Bolder and Easily Get Away From Pursuers.

Phoenix (Ariz.) special Denver News: Juan Chacon, commonly known as "Pelelo," which in Mexican palaver indicates a thing to be despised, and his sanguinary gang of three, who murdered T. W. Stewart and Anton Olsen, invalid storekeepers at New River Wells two weeks ago, and committed other outrages, are still at large, with daily a smaller chance of being captured. In each instance the gang is described as having one member unusually short, whose sinister face bears a sturdy growth of black whiskers. That man is thought to be "Pelelo." He, with his original gang of eight Mexicans, came to Arizona from Chihuahua ten years ago. "Pelelo" has a record of killing 23 persons, three of whom were women. Francisco Bluman and Pedro Lucero, two Mexicans roaming about with him, are also responsible for many crimes, the most recent of which was the killing of John Stanton, near the Weaver District, a lawless section which has been infested by a gang for some time. The depredations of "Pelelo" and his outfit have not been confined to Arizona. During the eight or nine years that they made a place of refuge of the mountain ranges surrounding Morenci, Ariz., they made frequent excursions to New Mexico, and four of the number were killed in a fight with officers near Silver City, and later another was killed. Two years ago "Pelelo" was captured and put in the county jail at Morenci. He was sentenced to be hanged for murder, and the day before the time assigned for his execution, which was to be a public affair and a signal for much rejoicing, he overpowered the death watch and broke jail. This is one instance of the phenomenal luck which has followed him throughout his career, and which has led Mexicans to regard him almost with superstition. Only a few weeks after escaping public execution for a horde of crimes he reunited the remnants of his following, and the outfit has grown even more bold and lawless, if possible, than ever before.

LAND OF THE SPHINX

EGYPT, A COUNTRY OF STRANGE CONTRASTS.

Where the Implements of Pharaoh's Time May Be Seen from a Modern Train's Window—The Cradle of Civilization.

Probably the average American looks upon Africa as a dark continent in everything—even in railways, says a returned westerner. Yet the fact is that the Egyptian railways are better run than many American ones. The railway that runs from Alexandria to upper Egypt is one after which many American railways might pattern. It is a double-track road. It has heavy steel rails. The track is well ballasted. It has an elaborate system of signal towers and pneumatic switches. Much of its roadway is lined with heavy cut stone masonry parapets. Its station platforms are also built of cut stone masonry. Its station buildings are of stone. Its bridges and other viaducts are of steel. Its trains run smoothly and swiftly, averaging 35 miles an hour. There are many crossings in which the railway is carried over the roadway on steel viaducts; the few grade crossings are guarded by gates, with gatekeepers. Signal men with flags stand at all switches, stations and crossings. Altogether the equipment and operation of the road are admirable. For hundreds of miles this modern railway goes through the fertile fields of Egypt—most incongruous amid the primitive methods of husbandry to be noted there.

For as the express trains whirl and shriek past the toiling fellaheen in the fields you see that they are using the same primitive implements that their forefathers used when Pharaoh reigned. They still plow with a simple wooden implement, hauled by patient buffalo oxen. They still laboriously lift water with a sweep to the head level of irrigating ditches. They still use the sickle, as they did in the days when Ruth followed the reapers of Boaz. And they still carry their bundles of fodder upon the backs of patient asses, or, in default of asses' backs, upon their own.

Of course, all agriculture in Egypt is not on such rudimentary lines. Rich men and corporations own land as well as fellaheen peasants, and many tall chimneys testify to the existence of pumping works. Then, too, the Egyptian government has dammed the Nile at an enormous cost and is engaged in other water storage schemes that will enlarge the narrow strip of irrigated land on either bank of the great river and thereby enlarge the resources of this wonderful country.

To talk of its temples, its pyramids, its ruins and its dead cities would be telling twice-told tales. But no man can gaze on this flat and fertile river valley without being amazed at its productiveness. I have been shown in Virginia worthless lands which the wasteful Anglo-Saxon had exhausted by two centuries of tobacco-raising. But here in Egypt I see fields still as fertile as when the first dynasty began, although they have been tilled for 4,000 years.

Some historians believe that Egypt was the cradle of our Aryan civilization. Here, they say, nomadic man paused at the great river when wandering from Arabia-Felix into Africa. Gradually those tired of wandering settled upon the fat and juicy banks of the Nile river and began a fitful husbandry of the soil. Gradually villages grew up and thrift brought peace and prosperity. The rich lands were divided among the villagers. This was the beginning of real property. The property boundaries were annually obliterated by the rise of the Nile; regulations were made to settle disputes concerning them; this was the beginning of law. Wise men among the villagers observed that the sun, moon and stars had much to do with the volume of the Nile flood; this was the beginning of astronomy. The simpler villagers looked with awe upon these wise men who spent their time communing with the stars; this was the beginning of the priesthood.

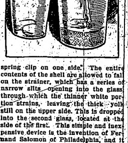
The priests soon claimed supernatural knowledge of the celestial bodies and imposed rules regarding the manners and conduct of men and ordered the villagers to follow them and to erect temples wherein these rules should be expounded; this was the beginning of religion. But the fierce nomads of the desert found profit in harrying and plundering the weaker villagers by the riverside. Therefore the priests chose from among the villagers those who were not only brave but crafty, cunning and leaders of men. These bold and cunning villagers succeeded in defeating the fiercer nomads by ambuscade and stratagem; this was the beginning of the science of war. To protect their cities they erected mighty walls and fortresses; thus grew up engineering and architecture. And at last a bolder leader among the bold parleyed with the priesthood, terrified the mass of common men and made himself lord over all, priests and commons. And thus grew up monarchy and thus there resulted church state and king.

These long-forgotten scraps of reading came to my mind as from a luxurious compartment in an express train between Alexandria and Cairo I looked out upon the valley of the Nile.

It was toward evening and the peasants were returning from the fields to their homes. Picturesquely clad, they reminded one irresistibly of old Bible pictures. You would see what was evidently a family—father, mother, grown children and little ones, some mounted, some on foot, and with most nondescript collections of animals—all burden-bearing. In one group I noted a camel, several asses, a buffalo bull and a flock of sheep, all placidly pursuing their homeward way, carrying their fodder for their supper on their backs—except the sheep. And the mild-eyed fellaheen looked up with much the same gaze as did their animals as the express train whirled by. For the express train was 1,900 years after Christ and they were 1,900 before.

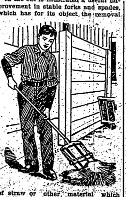
NEW KITCHEN UTENSIL

By the use of the utensil illustrated in the accompanying cut it is possible to rapidly separate the whites and yolks of eggs as they are broken, without particular attention being paid to where each portion falls. The device can be used with an ordinary tumbler, to which it is easily attached by the spring clip on one side. The entire contents of the shell are allowed to fall on the strainer, which has a series of narrow slits opening into the glass through which the thinner white portion strains, leaving the thick yolk still on the upper side. This is dropped into the second glass, located at the side of the first. This simple and inexpensive device is the invention of Fernand Salomon of Philadelphia, and it is obvious that, while the separator shown is intended to receive a single egg, the size can be increased for use on a bowl or larger vessel, the utensil being always maintained at an angle which will cause the yolk to roll toward the projecting lip and allow the white to pass through.



Self-Cleaning Stable Fork

In the cut is illustrated a useful improvement in stable forks and spades, which has for its object the removal of straw or other material which would otherwise clog up the tines and decrease the utility of the fork. A clearing block or strip of wood is perforated in line with the tines, with coiled springs on the end tines, which contract and allow the bar to slide to the rear end of the tines when the fork is inserted in a pile of straw or hay. As soon as the load leaves the fork the bar slides forward and removes whatever clings to the tines. In order that the fork may be used as an ordinary fork, if occasion should require, a catch is provided on the yoke which carries the tines to secure the sliding bar in a contracted position and leaves the tines free.



Catches a Wild Turkey.

Cherokee (Ga.) Advance: One afternoon last week Mrs. Ripley Moore, who lives on Shoal creek, saw her gang of turkeys coming up late in the afternoon from the woods where they always spent the day and she got some food and went out to feed them. She noticed an extra fine gobler standing on the fence and knew he did not belong to her gang. While her turkeys were eating, she sliped around on the far side of the fence and while the turkey was not looking, grabbed him by the leg. It developed that it was one of the finest wild turkeys, and he is now in Mrs. Moore's coop and at the proper time an ax will come down on his neck.

Skipping the Rope as a Cure.

Skipping rope exercises for middle-aged gentlemen affected with "liver" or indigestion is the latest alleged medical fad to which the humorists of the press have directed their attention. The London correspondent of the Gazette asserts that this novel form of adult exercise is being used on rainy mornings as a substitute for the mile and a half run before breakfast, which has been prescribed by a west end physician as a remedy for that condition of the liver which in London is due to want of outdoor exercise and late hours, hard work and bad air. There are professional men and others who take their run in the park before breakfast every fine morning and who bless the good physician who discovered this simple way of restoring health. Its effects in some cases have been marvelous. By "run" is not meant a sharp walk, but actual running.—Birmingham Gazette.

The true art of life is to select wisely. In its largest meaning a sense of fitness is the supreme grace. The survival of the fattest is marked by their choice of the fittest.—Ram's Horn.

Men, like bullets, need to be aimed right to hit the mar[illegible]

Openings for Veterinarians.

The Ohio State University at Columbus, in its report of the department of veterinary medicine, says: There is a growing demand for men who are skilled veterinarians. The close relationship between veterinary medicine and general medicine—so-called "human" medicine, especially along sanitary lines, has opened to the veterinary profession a large, new field. At present a well qualified veterinarian has his choice of the following fields of labor.

1. As an inspector and assistant in the Bureau of Animal Industry. The lowest salary paid to an assistant inspector, is $900 to $1,200 per annum.

2. As an instructor at an agricultural or veterinary college. These positions require the best trained men available, and pay good salaries.

3. As an investigator of infectious and contagious diseases at state agricultural experiment stations. These positions are especially fitted to one who has the scientific ability and taste for original research. There is a great lack of men trained for such scientific work in this country, our veterinary schools formerly teaching little or nothing of the sciences (botany, physics, bacteriology, pathological anatomy, etc.) which form the foundation of a veterinarian's equipment.

4. As a veterinary surgeon in the cavalry service of the United States. The position now pays $900 to $1,200 yearly, with perquisites.

5. As a state veterinarian. Many of the states now have state veterinarians, and the time is not far distant when every state in the union will have such an official.

6. As a veterinarian to municipal health boards. Already several of our larger cities employ veterinarians as inspectors of abattoirs, butcher shops; of milk and dairy products, and to assist in sanitary work generally.

7. As a stock farm manager. A number of veterinarians are employed on stock farms in breeding districts as managers.

8. Practice. For those wishing to enter upon a regular veterinary practice, desirable locations are still plentiful in many parts of the United States.

There are three times as many animals as there are human beings in the United States. There are ten times as many doctors of medicine as there are veterinarians. It must seem, then, that as the country grows older, which means that the veterinarian will become more often employed than at present, and as the value of our live stock increases, the future must have in store for the skilled veterinarian an opportunity to succeed in his chosen vocation far more favorable than his professional brother, the practitioner of general medicine.

Uniform Prices for Mixed Wool.

Prof. H. W. Mumford of the Michigan agricultural station says: An important factor in the marketing of wool by growers is that many insist on getting a uniform price for their wool even though they may produce several grades of wool differing much in their value to the manufacturer. Suppose the local dealer tries to purchase this wool upon a basis of its value, he must then pay different prices per pound after he has made an approximate estimate of the amount of the different grades of wool in the lot. If the producer insists on getting a uniform price for the entire clip, the dealer must determine what a safe average price would be. You may think that this makes little or no difference to the producer. We believe it makes a very material difference; first, because the dealer is pretty sure to strike under rather than over the exact average price he could afford to pay to be sure to save himself; second, since this is a general practice in Michigan, the grower seldom has an opportunity to learn which are the most valuable fleeces and why. There is, consequently, little chance or hope for improvement so long as this state of affairs continues. Local dealers have more opportunity for learning the details of the wool business and we think would be willing to impart information to producers of wool if said producers would manifest a desire to learn and improve their methods in growing and handling their wools. Your local dealer, if he buys wool on its merits and pays what your wool is worth, should have the privilege of handling your wool. "Commission buyers" are always ready to pay a uniform price for your wool because they are paid so much per pound for buying wool, but rest assured when they pay a uniform price they are keeping within a safe average price limit.

Inspections for Tuberculosis.

In the Elgin district, Illinois, the state inspectors of cattle are having a hard time enforcing the law requiring all cattle brought in from other states to be inspected and to be declared free from the disease. Recently a number of stockmen in the section mentioned combined to resist the law. The result was that one of the state inspectors was ejected from the premises of a man whose cattle he went to inspect. The matter was taken up by the grand jury and indictments were returned against five of the stockmen for importing cattle from other states without the customary and required inspection. It is certainly to be hoped that it will be made as hard as possible for stock owners in other states to palm off on Illinois farmers their diseased stock. Illinois is making an attempt to find out the tuberculous cows, and prevent their milk and meat being used for human food. This inspection will be of little value if the state is to be made the dumping ground for every herd outside of the state that is found to be infected. The danger is greater in the Elgin district than perhaps any other in Illinois, for the reason that most of the dairymen there buy a good many cows to take the places of the ones they are constantly sending to the butcher.

Breakfast Puffs.—On baking day roll out the dough to about the thickness of doughnuts, cut in two-inch squares and fry like doughnuts in fresh lard. Eat with butter the same as biscuit.

The somnambulist who tumbles from a roof is an illustration of one way to fall asleep.

Too Much for the Professor's Nerves.

"What made Prof. Pounder ring the bell and dash off the car in such haste?"

"Oh, he told me that he couldn't stand it to see those three women chewing gum and not keeping time."—Indianapolis Journal.

Japan Anxious.

Japan is alarmed over the emigration of many of her residents to this country who are lured here by misrepresentation. This is like the misrepresentation which delude people into believing that any other medicine is equal to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for stomach disorders. It will cure indigestion, constipation and dyspepsia.

A Little Advice.

"Brothers," remarked Rev. Mr. Goodsby, "there was a large decrease in contributions to-day. Perhaps you are saving your change to buy fireworks on the Fourth of July. A very commendable spirit, I assure you, but if a change does not manifest itself in the lives of which some you are leading you will see plenty of pyrotechnic displays later on, and you will be very foolish to spend a cent on fireworks now—very foolish."—Indianapolis Sun.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Thomas Forstner, New Ulm, Minn., vehicle pole attachment; Hans L. Hegland, Cyrus, Minn., pneumatic straw stacker; Pierpont T. Langdon, Audubon, Minn., automatic car axle lubricator; Anton T. Peffer, St. Cloud, Minn., merchandise exhibitor.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul

Taking in Boarders.

Mrs. Smythe—What is poor Mrs. Perkins going to do, now that her husband is dead?

Smythe—Take in boarders.

Mrs. Smythe—No? Why, she can't cook!"

Smythe—Precisely. Didn't I say that she was going to take them in?—Harlem Life.

The Parson's Revenge.

It had been the custom of an Atchison man all his life to time his preacher at church, and when the preacher had talked thirty minutes the Atchison man thought it long enough, and got up and walked out. He died recently, and the preacher took advantage of the fact that the knocker on long sermons couldn't get away, and preached a funeral sermon lasting an hour and fifteen minutes.—Atchison Globe.

Read the Advertisements.

You will enjoy this publication much better if you will get into the habit of reading the advertisements; they will afford a most amusing story, and will help you in the way of getting some excellent bargains. Our advertisers are reliable; they send what they advertise.

Artistic Athletics.

"That man you sent up to clean house is awfully stylish, Harry."

"Does he wear a silk hat?"

"No but he beats the carpets with a golf stick."—Indianapolis Journal.

Soldiers' Homestead Claims.

The friends of the veterans of the Civil War are complaining of the unfortunate delay of the General Land Office in acting on the applications for soldiers' additional homestead rights. Senators and Representatives in Congress who are friendly to the old soldiers should inquire into this matter.

Home Models for Office Use.

"Henrietta," said Mr. Meekton, as he paused on the front step, "could you remember what it was you said yesterda, when you so properly reproved me for leaving the door open?"

"I think I can; but I hope I shall not have occasion to use it again."

"Could you give me the exact tones and gestures?"

"Yes."

"Well, I wish you would. I have an office boy who leaves the door open continually, and if you teach me to make that speech it would certainly be a great help to me in my business."—Washington Star.

Wild Man Nearer Home.

"What a heathenish lot these Chinese boxers are."

"Oh, I don't know; there's that St. Louis mob."—New York Sun.

Are You Using Allen's Foot-Ease?

It is the only cure for Swollen, Smarting, Burning, Sweating Feet, Corns and Bunions. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Better the pessimism that persists against odds, than the optimism that makes no effort at all.—The Ram's Horn.

If a man is made of dust that may explain why so many men are always dry.

Spanish girls who make the famous fans of Valencia are paid about 25 cents per day.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

Many a man's vices have at first been nothing worse than good qualities run wild.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of the throat and lungs.—Wm. O. Endsley, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

Surely, half the world must be blind; they can see nothing unless it glitters.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Human nature sets a man up as a judge of his neighbors.

Carter's Ink is Used by the greatest railway systems of the United States. They would not use it if it wasn't the best.

Washing a pig will not make it stop liking mud.

Cure that Dandruff by using Coke Dandruff Cure. We guarantee it to cure or refund the money.

Nothing in the world is lawless except a slave.

The favorite for restoring life and color to the hair is Parker's Hair Balsam. Hindercorns, the best cure for corns.

Truth, when witty, is the wittiest of all things.

Baseball players, Golf players; all players chew White's Yucatan whilst playing.

Science sees signs; poetry the thing signified.

SHE WORE A BLACK GIRDLE.

Though She Was Dressed in White, But the Papers Said Otherwise.

It was the morning after one of the "most delightful dances of the season given by the younger set," that a crowd of chattering girls were gathered together discussing what a good time they had enjoyed, when one of them picked up the evening paper and began to read an account of the affair.

Finally, she exclaimed: "Why, Grace Darling, I thought you wore pure white last night!"

"I did," replied Grace.

"Why, the paper has it that you wore a white dress with a black girdle!" said the first girl.

"I told Charley that somebody would see him if he didn't take his arm away," indignantly replied Grace. And then she blushed and became con-

Ladies Can Wear Shoes.

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N.Y.

On a Level With the Pekin Joke.

"Were you down South during the recent solar eclipse?"

"Yes; and I saw something funny."

"What was that?"

"Why, men who had been smoking tobacco all their lives were smoking glass."—Chicago News.

Always an Attraction.

"Well, our window exhibit is arranged so that all the women will crowd up and look at it."

"How have you fixed it?"

"I've put out a placard, 'fresh paint.'"—Indianapolis Journal.

One Woman's Letter SAYS

"I doctored with two of the best doctors in the city for two years and had no relief until I used the Pinkham remedies.

"My trouble was ulceration of the uterus. I suffered terribly, could not sleep nights and thought sometimes that death would be such a relief.

"To-day I am a well woman, able to do my own work, and have not a pain.

"I used four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three packages of Sanative Wash and cannot praise the medicines enough."—MRS. ELIZA THOMAS, 634 Pine St., Easton, Pa.

Mrs. Pinkham advises suffering women without charge.

Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

Easy Monthly Payments

We sell Regina Music Boxes for public places with money slot attachments, and for home use without attachments, on easy Monthly Payments. With money attachments they are

A Constant Source of Revenue

and soon pay for themselves. They can be placed in all kinds of business houses.

We Repair Music Boxes.

Correspondence invited.

NATIONAL NOVELTY CO.,

510 First Ave So., - - - Minneapolis, Minn

ABSOLUTE SECURITY.

Genuine

Carter's Little Liver Pills.

Must Bear Signature of

Brent Good

See Fac-Simile Wrapper Below.

Very small and as easy to take as sugar.

CARTER'S LITTLE IVER PILLS.

FOR HEADACHE.
FOR DIZZINESS.
FOR BILIOUSNESS.
FOR TORPID LIVER.
FOR CONSTIPATION.
FOR SALLOW SKIN.
FOR THE COMPLEXION

25 Cents | Purely Vegetable.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

MONEY FOR SOLDIERS' HEIRS

Heirs of Union Soldiers who made homesteads of less than 160 acres before June 22, 1874 (no matter if abandoned), if the additional homestead right was not sold or used, should address, with full particulars, HENRY N. COPP, Washington, D. C.

W. N. U. —No. 28— 1900.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

25 CENTS

BUY WHEAT UNDER 80 CENTS

We believe there is Ten Cents a bushel in it. Send for our Free Book, "SUCCESSFUL SPECULATION"

COMSTOCK & CO., Traders Building, CHICAGO

MESSAGE TO CONGER

CHINESE MINISTER UNDERTAKES TO GET IT THROUGH.

Promises to Have It Delivered to Mr. Conger, If Alive, and an Answer Returned—The Scanty Dispatches Add Nothing to the Knowledge of the Situation—Li Hung Chang Will Remain in Canton Until Tuan's Forces Are Defeated—Chinese Daily Driving in Allies at Tien-tsin.

Washington, July 15.—The Chinese minister, Mr. Wu, has undertaken to get through a cipher cable message from Secretary Hay to United States Minister Conger at Peking, and to deliver back the reply of Minister Conger if he is alive. Mr. Wu forwarded the cipher dispatch, together with an extended explanatory message of his own on Wednesday, and the results are now being eagerly awaited both by Secretary Hay and the Chinese minister, although it is appreciated that some days must elapse before runners can carry out the present plan of opening up communication between the American government at Washington and the American minister at Peking. It was soon after Mr. Wu presented the text of the edict issued by the Chinese imperial government that Mr. Hay requested him a message to Minister Conger. Since the Chinese government has succeeded in getting through its own communication from Peking, Mr. Hay felt that it was quite reasonable to ask that like communication be opened between our minister and the government here. Mr. Wu readily assented to this proposition and evinced an earnest desire to use all his personal and official influence in getting through the messages. He suggested, however, that Mr. Hay himself should write the message in cipher, as this would be proof positive to Mr. Conger of its genuineness, whereas any open message to the minister might be under the suspicion of having emanated from the Boxers.

To Get Through

Li Hung Chang's Plans.

London, July 15. — The scanty dispatches received yesterday add nothing to the knowledge in London of the Chinese situation. It is stated positively from Canton that Li Hung Chang will remain there until the allied troops have defeated Prince Tuan's forces and will then go north to lend his powerful aid in arranging terms of peace, co-operating with Prince Ching, Yung Lou and the other pro-foreign viceroys. For the present Li Hung Chang considers that he can best control and direct the viceroys from Canton and also keep in check the turbulent province of Kwang Tung. All the foreigners and missionaries have evacuated Wen Chau and have arrived at Ning Po. Large bodies of Boxers appeared at Wen Chau and threatened to and Christians. They also distributed banners, badges and inflammatory anti-foreign appeals.

Exterminate the Foreigners

The Tien-tsin correspondent of the Express, telegraphing under date of July 9, asserts that the Chinese are daily driving in the allies. They have mounted, says the correspondent, twelve fresh guns in advantageous positions with which they are sweeping the streets of the foreign settlement, the incessant fire rendering position after position quite untenable.

The Daily Mail's St. Petersburg correspondent says that in the last six hours' battle outside of Tien-tsin the Cossacks captured six Krupp guns and killed numbers of fleeing Boxers. The Chinese lost 3,000 killed, including Gen. Kek.

No News From Remey.

Washington, July 15.—Secretary Long stated at a late hour yesterday that he had not received a word during the day or evening from Admiral Remey, in command of the Asiatic station, and now in Chinese waters. The fact that the admiral has not made any report of the conditions said to exist in Peking and the reported murder of the ministers, the secretary regards as a hopeful sign, as he inclines to the opinion that had any finality occurred in the capital some word or rumor of it might have found its way to Tien-tsin or Taku.

Rebels Defeated at Peking.

Brussels, July 15.—M. de Fabereau, minister of foreign affairs, has received a telegram from M. de Cartier de Marchienne, secretary of the Belgian legation at Peking, dated at Shanghai, stating, on the authority of a Chinese source, that troops faithful to Gen. Nieh Sing, had defeated the rebels near Peking, and that the recognized the authority of Prince Chiang and Gen. Yung Lu, who strived to defend the Europeans.

ANARCHISTIC PLOT.

An Attempt to Destroy the Grand Palace of the Champs Elysees in Paris.

Paris, July 15.—Inquiries are being made into what may possibly turn out to be a serious attempt to destroy the grand palace of the Champs Elysees Wednesday night. A watchman of cellars, which was filled with packing cases and a large quantity of other inflammable material, overheard a conversation between two men leading him to believe that a plot was on foot to set fire to the building. The miscreants fled upon his approach. A search the next morning resulted in the discovery of two hermetrically sealed boxes filled with black powder. The chemical properties of this powder have not yet been disclosed by the authorities.

IBSEN IS SICK.

Author Has a Serious Attack of Erysipelas.

New York, July 15.—A dispatch from Christiana announces the serious illness of Henrik Ibsen with erysipelas.

Disorder at St. Louis.

St. Louis, July 15.—Two bricks were thrown through the side transome of a car on the Sixth street line yesterday as the car was between Seventh and Eighth streets on Hickory street. Pieces of glass injured two passengers.

Father of the Senate.

Washington—Although Senator Morgan of Alabama and both the Connecticut senators are older in years than Senator Allison, the last-named holds the record for thirty-six years of service, and may be called the father of the senate.

Turns Down American Institute.

Paris—M. Bussat, in a report asks the city council to refuse the gift of a site for the proposed American institute on the grounds that it is not a national, but a purely private and commercial enterprise.

FIRE FIEND'S WORK.

Business Portion of Prescott, Ariz., Wiped Out.

Prescott, Ariz., July 17. — Tottering walls and piles of charred and burning debris are all that remain of the principal business portion of Prescott. The fire, which started at 10:40 o'clock Saturday night, burned fiercely until 3 o'clock yesterday morning, when the fire fighters went some distance in advance of the flames and blew up the buildings on the south side of Goodwin street, preventing the flames from crossing that street. The most conservative estimate of the total losses are from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. The burned district embraces five blocks in which were located the city's principal mercantile houses, both banks, both telegraph offices, the three newspapers, four hotels, every saloon and every restaurant except one in the town, besides a score of private residences. To add to a high wind prevailed all day yesterday, sending smoke, dust and burning embers in every direction, requiring the greatest vigilance to prevent another outbreak of the flames. At daylight yesterday morning teams were at work hauling lumber to the public plaza and covered it with tents and temporary frame buildings. The occupants will be ready for business today. Hon. W. A. Clark, of the United Verde Copper company, has wired a draft for $500. All the sufferers from the fire are provided with food, shelter and clothing, and it is not thought any outside aid will be requested. The only business houses remaining in the town are three dry goods stores, three grocery stores and two drug stores. The express and postoffices were both outside of the fire limit.

The Prevailing Gloom

FIGHTING IN LUZON.

Three Americans Killed While Scouting.

Manila, July 17.—During last week's scouting three Americans were killed and two wounded and thirty-five rebels were killed. Fifty rebels were captured and twenty-five rifles and 140 tons of powder and ammunition were taken. It will become necessary under the new code of procedure, which the commission expects to adopt to secure the services for the higher courts in Manila and the provinces of American judges knowing Spanish.

Capt. Steever, who has been pursuing Tinio, Natividad, Aglipay and Alejandrino in the Ilcos district, has scattered the forces of Tinio and pushed on to Adra.

It is reported from Balti that the Americans have captured some insurgents who assert they witnessed the burial alive of a number of the party of Lieut. J. C Gillmore, of the Yorktown, captured there by the Filipinos in the spring of last year. Capt. Charles D. Roberts, of the Thirty-fifth volunteer infantry, who was captured by the Filipinos last May, has been paroled and is expected to arrive here any day. Mr. Ferguson has been appointed chief secretary to the commission.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, July 17. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 80 1-4@80 3-4c; No. 2 Northern, 78 1-2@79 1-4c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 43@43 1-2c; No. 3, 42 1-2@43c. Oats—No. 3 white, 29 1-2 @ 29 3-4c; No. 3, 29 1-4@29 1-2c.

Minneapolis, July 17. — Wheat — September opened at 79 3-4c and closed at 78 5-8@78 3-4c. On track—No. 1 hard, 81 1-2c; No. 1 Northern, 79 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 78c; corn, 42 1-4c; oats, 26 1-4c; flax, $1.70.

Duluth, July 17.—Wheat—September closed at 80 3-8c; No. 1 hard, 78 7-8c bid; No. 1 Northern, 80 7-8c bid; No. 2 Northern, 79 1-8c bid; No. 3 Northern, 75 7-8c; No. 1 hard, to arrive, 82 7-8c bid; No. 1 Northern, to arrive, 80 7-8c bid; corn, 43 3-8c; oats, 27c; flax, $1.43 1-2.

Chicago, July 17.—Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 80 1-2c; No. 3 red, 78@80c; No. 2 hard winter, 75 1-2@76c; No. 3 hard winter, 73 1-2@74 1-2c; No. 1 Northern spring, 78 1-2c; No. 2 Northern spring, 77@77 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 74@77c. Corn—No. 2, 42 3-4c; No. 3, 43 3-4c. Oats—No. 2, 25c; No. 3, 24 1-2c.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 17. — Flour is lower. Wheat lower; No. 1 Northern, 80c; No. 2 Northern, 78 1-2@79c. Rye lower; No. 1, 60 1-2@61c. Barley dull; No. 2, 47 1-2c; sample, 40@45 1-2c. Oats lower; No. 2 white, 28c.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 17.—Cattle—Beeves, $4.50 @ 5; cows, bulls and mixed, $2@3.75; stockers and feeders, $3.50@4; calves and yearlings, $3.50@4.25. Hogs, $5.12 1-2@5.20; bulk, $5.15 @5.17 1-2.

Chicago, July 17.—Cattle — Good to prime steers, $5.10@5.70; poor to medium, $4.00 @ 5; stockers and feeders, $2.65@4.60; cows and heifers, $3@5.10; Texas-fed steers, $4.15@5. Hogs — Mixed and butchers, $5.15 @ 5.45; good to choice heavy, $5.25@5.45; rough heavy, $5.10@5.20; light, $5.25@5.45; bulk of sales, $5.35@5.40. Sheep, $3.10 @4.60; lambs, $4.25@6.00.

South St. Paul, July 17. — Cattle — Choice butcher cows and heifers, $3.75 @4.25; fair to good, $2.75@3.60; thin cows and canners, $2@2.65; choice butcher steers, $4.50@5; fair to good, $4@4.50; fat bulls, $3.25@3.75; bologna bulls, $2.75@3.10; veal calves, $3.50@4; good to choice stock cows and heifers, $2.75@3; fair to good, $2.50@2.75; common and tailings, $2 @ 2.50; heifer calves, $2.75@3; good to choice stockers and feeders, $3.25@3.75; fair to good, $3@3.25; common and tailings, $2.50@2.90; steer calves, $3.25@3.75; stock and feeding bulls, $2.75@3; feed cows, $2.50@2.75; stags and oxen, $3@4; milkers and springers, $25@37.50. Hogs — Mixed and butchers, $5.20 @ 5.22 1-2; good to prime heavy, $5.15@5.22 1-2; rough heavy, $4.90@4.95; stags and boars, $2@4.00; pigs and skips, $4@4.50. Sheep — Fat sheep, $3.25 @ 3.50; stock sheep, $2.50@2.75; feeders, $2.75@3; fat lambs, $4.25@4.75; yearlings, $4.50@4.75; stock and feeding lambs, $3.25@3.50; spring lambs, $4.75 @5.25. Above quotations are on shorn sheep and lambs.

Strikers Use Dynamite.

St. Louis, July 17.—Dynamite was exploded under a transit car in North St. Louis yesterday and four passengers were injured. A Suburban street car, the only union line in the city, accidentally ran into a strikers' bus wagon last night and injured twelve occupants, two seriously.

Driving Out French Fruit.

London—California pears of excellent quality have arrived in London for the first time this season. The Daily Mail says the French fruit will be driven out of the market, as the pears of California are of better quality.

Young Women in a Duel.

Paris—Two young women, in love with the same young man, fought a duel with pistols in a vacant lot. Hearing the shots the guardian of the property rushed forward to prevent further firing. [illegible]

News of the Northwest

FUSION IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Democrats and Populists Agree Upon a Ticket.

Yankton, S. D., July 14.—After forty-eight hours of consultation the committees on conference from the Populist and Democratic conventions at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon submitted a report to their respective conventions which was accepted. By the condition of the fusion the Democrats were allowed the secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, superintendents of schools and public lands and two of the four national electors. The Populists are to have the governor, both congressmen and the balance of the state ticket. The Democratic convention nominated their share of the state ticket as follows: F. J. Tracy, of Edmunds, state auditor; Fred B. Smith of Brown, secretary of state; Charles D. Tiedrick of Chamberlain, treasurer, and Edward Cook of Roberts, superintendent of schools and public lands; John McElroy of Rapid City, and J. W. Martin of Watertown for presidential electors.

The Populists nominated B. H. Lien, ex-mayor of Sioux Falls, for governor; Gov. Lee and Judge Moore of Black Hills for congress; Fred H. Bacon of Lincoln and J. W. King of Hand, presidential electors; Abe Van Osdel of Yankton, lieutenant governor; A. E. Hitchcock of Davidson, attorney general; Miss Lena Assvad of Day, superintendent of public instruction, and W. T. La Follette of Brule, railroad commissioner.

WIFE MURDER CHARGED.

Frank A. Hunt Given a Preliminary Hearing.

Chaska, Minn., July 14. — The preliminary examination of Frank A. Hunt, the Minneapolis wheat operator charged with wife murder, began here yesterday. Mrs. Hunt was said to have been drowned June 23 by falling accidentally from a rowboat in which she and her husband were fishing on Lake Clanhassen, this county. Hunt's unwillingness promptly to recover the body or notify the coroner, the report that his clothes were dry when he returned to shore, the alleged results of the autopsy performed on Mrs. Hunt's disinterred body last Monday, the rumor that Hunt and his wife quarreled frequently because of his alleged devotion to another woman, the further allegation that he inherited $8,000 from his wife and was much in need of money—all combined to bring about yesterday's examination. Some twenty witnesses were examined. They were principally persons that had seen Mr. and Mrs. Hunt the day the couple visited Lake Clanhassen. No testimony specifically significant was heard. The hearing was continued until to-day. Medical experts from the Twin Cities will testify.

POLITICAL COMPLICATIONS.

Labor Union to Have a Ticket—Populists to Join Clark Democrats.

Helena, Mont., July 14.—The political situation in Montana is further complicated by the announcement made yesterday that a union labor ticket will be put in the field next month. The executive board of the state trades and labor council, in accordance with a resolution passed at its Missoula meeting two years ago, and reaffirmed by the council in Helena last September, announced that a state convention will be held Aug. 14 at a place not yet determined upon, to nominate a state ticket.

The Democratic and Populist state convention will be held in Helena Sept. 19. The Populist state central committee has already taken a stand with a view of fusing with the Clark wing of the Democratic party. There are 185,-500 men in the labor unions of Montana, and the new party may materially affect the political situation in this state.

DEPOT ROBBERY.

Agent Bound and Gagged and the Money Drawer Looted.

Madison, Wis., July 14—Two masked men entered the St. Paul depot at Lone Rock, forty-five miles west of this city, bound the agent, T. H. Hartwick, and looted the money drawer of cash amounting to $37.27. They then went through the agent's pockets and secured $3 more. After this they took Hartwick to a refrigerator car standing on a side track, shut him in and fastened the door. He spent an hour and a half there before he was released by the crew of a train which stopped at the station. The robbers escaped.

CLAIRVOYANT SUES FOR WAGER.

Man Laid a Bet of $1,300 That He Would Not Die Before Jan. 1.

Springfield, Mass., July 14. — Mrs. Josephine L. Moore, a clairvoyant, predicted on Jan. 11, 1898, that Willard E. Elmer, and old, wealthy and eccentric resident of this city, would be dead before Jan. 1 of this year. Mr. Elmer doubted the accuracy of the prophecy, and it is asserted that he wagered $1,300 that he would see the year 1900 before he died. His faith was misplaced and death won. He died on Sept. 5, 1899, and Mrs. Moore filed a bill in equity against the administrators of his estate to recover the amount of the wager.

Bad Man Gets Life Sentence.

Pierre, S. D., July 14.—Van Moore, the half-breed desperado who murdered Tin Cup, an old Indian woman, about a month ago, entered a plea of guilty and was given a life sentence. Moore has a bad record and had attempted murder several times before.

Ely's Population 4,800.

Ely, Minn., July 14.—The enumerators of Ely have just completed their census reports, which give to this city a population of 4,800 people. Of this number about 85 per cent are foreign-born.

Suicide at Le Roy.

Le Roy, Minn., July 13.—D. B. Coleman, an old resident of this village, committed suicide by shooting himself in the right temple. He leaves a wife and daughter in comfortable circumstances.

Wheatland, N. D., July 14.—Fire destroyed all the farm buildings of M. Morris, two miles west of town yesterday afternoon. Loss, $3,000; partial insurance.

Helena, Mont., July 13.—Louis Davis, an old-time Northern Pacific conductor, fell from a moving train at Logan and was instantly killed. He leaves a wife and two children who live in Livingston.

[illegible] Special service from Armour to Wheeler, S. D., will be extended to [illegible]

PREPARING FOR CAMPAIGN.

Minnesota Republican Committee Meets at St. Paul.

St. Paul, July 15.—The Republican state central committee met here yesterday. The general committee held two sessions and adjourned to meet again Aug. 10. The executive committee got together after the adjournment of the general committee and after a protracted sitting adjourned to meet Aug. 1. The forenoon session of the general committee was devoted to the ratification of the suggestions of the candidates as to the organization of the committee. These included the election of Senator W. O. Masterman of Stillwater, chairman of the general committee, and Capt. C. C. Whitney, secretary, and the selection of the seven members at large as the executive committee, as follows: First congressional district, C. A. Morey, Winona; Second, C. C. Whitney, Marshall; Third, Tams Bixby, chairman, Red Wing; Fourth, Eli S. Warner, St. Paul; Fifth, Robert Jamison, Minneapolis; Sixth, A. F. Ferris, Brainerd; Seventh, Senator O. H. Myran, Ada. The selection of a treasurer was referred to the executive committee, as was also the question of headquarters. An afternoon session was given over to the discussion of general campaign plans.

SHINGLES AND SHOPS BURN.

Fire Causes a Loss of $200,000 at South Park.

St. Paul, July 15.—The old shops of the Chicago Great Western railway at South Park, recently used as storehouses for lumber and shingles belonging to coast shippers, were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, causing a loss of nearly $200,000. The principal losers are the railway company, the Coast Lumber company and the Weyerhauser Lumber company. The loss is covered by insurance. The buildings of the railway company covered an area of over five acres and were erected in 1887. There were ten separate structures, one story high and built of brick. A year ago the railway company moved its shops to Oelwein, Iowa, and since that time the buildings at South Park have been used as storage houses.

DAMAGE TO CROPS.

Caused by Grasshoppers and Hail Storms.

Kimball, S. D., July 15. — Reports continue to come in of much damage being done to the growing crops in Charles Mix county, south of here, by the grasshoppers. Near the new town of Platte, on the C., M. & St. P. extension in this county, on the Fourth, a disastrous hail storm completely desolated a strip about a mile wide and several miles long. The recent rains have benefited the crops in the vicinity beyond measure. Of course the wheat crop will be light, as the rains came too late to save a good many fields, but on an average corn has never looked better. Grass is growing rapidly, and increased milk receipts are noticed at the creamery.

A PLUCKY CHILD.

Presence of Mind Saves His Life in a Perilous Situation.

North Branch, Minn., July 15.—Daniel Martin has a son four years old. As the mother opened the door she saw the little fellow fall over the curbing into the well. The father, who was forty rods away, heard his wife scream. He ran to the well, which contained ten feet of water, and found the child resting his hand on a small board that had fallen into the well, holding his head up. He had grabbed the board when he came to the top. His father reached him a long pole, which the little fellow clung to till he was brought to the ground.

HUNT DISCHARGED.

Minneapolis Man Declared Not Guilty of Wife Murder.

Chaska, Minn., July 15.—Frank A. Hunt of Minneapolis was relieved from all suspicion in connection with the drowning of his wife at Chanhassan, Carver county, on June 23. After yesterday morning's evidence had been taken County Attorney Morrison informed the court that the state had not sufficient evidence to hold Hunt and that there was no cause to carry the prosecution further.

South Dakota Sheriffs.

Yankton, S. D., July 15.—The second annual convention of the South Dakota Sheriffs' association met here last night. Officers were elected as follows: President, H. A. Hildebrand of Codington; secretary and treasurer, Henry Swindler of Davison; vice president, Den Donahue of Minnehaha. The officers constitute a committee to secure favorable legislation for sheriffs at the next session of the legislature.

Rafting Works Reopened.

Winona, Minn., July 15.—Lumbermen in Winona and at points lower down the river are glad to learn of the reopening of the West Newton rafting works. This took place on Thursday. The recent rains have brought down a supply of logs and still more are on the way, so that they will be able to operate for some time.

Fraternal Order Carnival.

Faribault, Minn., July 15.—The various fraternal orders of this city, of which there are a large number, are contemplating the holding of a carnival here this fall. It will be given so as to interest all of Southern Minnesota, and the duration will probably be one week.

Fire on a Farm.

Hastings, Minn., July 15.—The stock barn, granary and several outbuildings of Mrs. Paul Kingston, in Marshan, were burned, with farming implements, 2,000 bushels of oats, 200 bushels of corn, 20 tons of hay, a horse and 3 calves. The loss is in the neighborhood of $5,000; insured for $2,500.

Fell to His Death.

Sioux Rapids, Iowa, July 15.—Andy Brandvold of this city, while returning from Sutherland on the "flyer," fell from the train west of Linn Grove and was fatally injured.

Destroyed by Lightning.

Osceola, Wis., July 15.—During the electric storm the barn of H. J. Francis was struck by lightning, killing three horses, one colt and two cows, and consuming the barn and several tons of hay. Loss $1,000; no insurance.

Shoots His Wife.

St. Paul, July 13.—Fred W. Lilly of Minneapolis is under arrest for trying to kill his wife and a young lady friend. [illegible]

SENATOR GEAR DEAD.

Iowa Statesman Passes Away Suddenly From Heart Failure.

Washington, July 17.—Official society in Washington was shocked Saturday by the sudden death by heart failure of Senator John Henry Gear, of Iowa, which took place at daylight Saturday morning. Senator Gear had intended to leave yesterday afternoon for his home in Iowa. By a strange fatality the casket containing his body was carried on the same train on which he had engaged passage for himself and family. Senator Gear had been aging visibly during the last year, and frequently spoke in a doubtful way regarding the future, although he was only seventy-five years old, and several of his friends have passed the four-score mark. Senator Gear was, however, the only one who seemed to take a gloomy view of the situation, and his friends expected him to live for many years.

CLOUDBURST AT LA CROSSE.

Considerable Damage in the City and Vicinity.

La Crosse, Wis., July 17.—A cloudburst struck La Crosse and the immediate vicinity, doing heavy damage to city property. Crops are reported to have suffered severely. Railway traffic is badly impeded.

Blueberry Crop Poor.

West Superior, Wis., July 17. — Indians in this county are now picking the blueberry crop, and it will pan out the poorest in years. As a consequence there will be many poor Indians in this vicinity this fall. The dry weather has had a disastrous effect upon the berries. While they have gone up from about $1.50 to about $3 per bushel, the supply is so low that the advance in price will not be of very much benefit. The raspberry crop outlook is also poor.

An Incendiary Fire.

Dwight, N. D., July 17.—The following property belonging to Ole Rigstad, a well-to-do farmer located three miles west of Dwight, N. D., was destroyed by fire: Barn, granary, machine shed, machinery, harnesses, thirteen head of horses, 700 bushels of oats and 150 bushels of wheat. Loss about $2,500; insurance, $200. The fire was undoubtedly started by an incendiary.

Cooked to Death.

Deadwood, S. D., July 17. — L. M. Lee met a horrible death at the Homestake mill in Lead. While dumping a small car of hot ashes from the boiler of the Star mill over an embankment he fell headlong fifty feet into a pile of red-hot ashes. Before assistance came Lee was cooked to death. He was unmarried and had no relatives in America.

Boy Accidentally Killed.

Renville, Minn., July 17.—A case of "didn't know it was loaded" cost the life of one boy and caused the wounding of two others here yesterday forenoon. The boy who was killed was the son of Gus Schmidt. The boy who shot the gun is a son of the Widow Kotke. Another son of Schmidt and one of Mrs. Kotke were wounded seriously.

Alleged Burglar Captured.

Jackson, Minn., July 17. — Sheriff Dunn caught a burglar giving the name of Frank Williams who, with a skeleton key, had gained entrance to P. Andrewsen's store and stole seven pairs of shoes, of which five pairs have been recovered. A set of burglars' tools were found in his possession.

Two in the Toils.

Aberdeen, S. D., July 17. — Arthur Shea, Sisseton, has been bound over to the federal court for bootlegging whisky to Indians, and is in jail to await trial. Will Holslander was arrested north of here and has been taken to Pierre to stand trial for horse stealing.

Drayman Loses His Team.

Sturgis, S. D., July 17—Horse thieves got away with a heavy work team belonging to Frank Barker, a drayman of this city, and there is no clue. The thieves went to another barn and secured a buckboard and made their escape. The team is valued at $300.

Murder Suspected.

Long Prairie, Minn., July 17.—A murder is reported near the village of Clarissa. The ten-year-old son of Frank Seigle was found dead and in a badly mutilated condition. The Seigles have served a term at Stillwater for cruelty to their children.

Drouth Is Broken.

Tucson, Ariz., July 17.—Mining and cattle interests, which have suffered untold loss from lack of water, were relieved yesterday by heavy rain. The drouth had almost destroyed vegetation in the southern part of territory.

Kicked by a Horse.

Northfield, Minn., July 17.—The eleven-year-old son of Fred Bugge was kicked in the face by a stallion. Four teeth were driven through the roof of the boy's mouth and his jawbone was broken.

Blaze at Lake Crystal.

Lake Crystal, Minn., July 17.—Fire starting in the basement of Wagner & Welmouth's general merchandise store caused a damage of about $10,000; partly covered by insurance.

Conductor Killed.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, July 17.—A rear-end collision occurred one mile west of Tara, on the Illinois Central, in which Conductor Melville of Cherokee was instantly killed.

Cyclone in Texas.

Austin, Tex., July 17.—News reached here last night that a cyclone struck Llano, Tex., a town of about 2,000 inhabitants. The freight depot was demolished and several houses unroofed. Several were injured.

Double Murder and Suicide.

Baltimore, July 17. — Poverty, ill health and a weak minded wife impelled Louis Eisen, a shoemaker, to kill himself, his wife and babe with a razor, and to wound his three-and-a-half-year-old son.

Burglar Shot.

Albert Lea, Minn., July 13.—A burglar was shot while robbing the store of W. G. Kearns of Oakland, this county, but the wound was not severe enough to prevent the villain making his escape. No arrests have been made.

Set on Fire by Lightning.

Remus, Mich., July 17.—Wiedeman's lumber yard containing 9,000,000 feet [illegible]

M'KINLEY NOTIFIED

OFFICIALLY INFORMED OF HIS NOMINATION.

Senator Lodge Acts as Spokesman of the Committee — President McKinley in His Response Touches on the Attitude of the Government on the Chinese Question and Refers Also to the Leading Issues of the Campaign—Gov. Roosevelt Also Finds Out That He Has Been Nominated for Office.

Canton, Ohio, July 14.—William McKinley was yesterday officially notified of his second nomination by the Republican party for the highest office in the gift of the republic. Important features of the speech of notification by Senator Lodge and the response by President McKinley were the references to the Chinese situation. This caused a great deal of discussion during the conference following the formal speechmaking, and the impression created was that these utterances were a notification to the world that the United States intended to preserve all

Its Rights in China.

The president's references to the maintenance of the gold standard and the financial public faith, the preservation of a protective tariff, the enlargement of our market, and especially the phrase "prosperity at home and prestige abroad," elicited applause. When he asked "Shall we go back to the tariff of four years ago?" there were shouts of "No, no" from every part of the audience. Another prolonged cheer greeted his words relative to the maintenance of our authority in the Philippines. With the keenest interest everybody followed the portion of the speech relating to the

New Possessions,

and there was a most impressive shout when he declared that there should be continued executive control over the territory possessed by the United States, and another outburst when he said such authority would be coupled with "liberty and humanity." The president declared that the United States had reclaimed "10,000,000 human beings from imperialism." The president seemed at his best. He was in good voice and good spirits. His appearance indicated the best of health, and his voice rang out loud and clear, reaching the outskirts of which surrounded the house and extended over the lawn and across the street, speaking from the same place where he received the formal notification four years ago. While the speech of the president closed the formal notification, other speakers were called for. Senator Fairbanks of Indiana, Senator Hanna, chairman of the national committee; Charles Emory Smith, postmaster general; Col. Samuel Parker of Hawaii, and senator Lodge were heard. These speakers, with the exception of Col. Parker, who was called out of compliment to the Pacific islands, took occasion to refer to the recent action of the Democratic national convention in Kansas City.

The Vast Throng

Senator Fairbanks Speaks.

It was evident that Senator Fairbanks intended to make the money question a dominant issue of the campaign, denying that with 16 to 1 in their platform the Democrats could make "imperialism" the leading issue. Senator Hanna adjured the Republican voters to remember the importance of the campaign. Postmaster General Smith warned his hearers that Democratic success would disarrange the business interests of the country. The features of the second speech of Senator Lodge was his resentment of criticism of President McKinley by his opponents, and his pointing out the difficulty Mr. Bryan would have in selecting a cabinet from the men prominent in the conventions at Kansas City and Sioux Falls.

ROOSEVELT NOTIFIED.

Simple and Informal Ceremony at the Home of the Governor.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 14.—On the breeze-swept veranda of Sagamore, his country home, Gov. Theodore Roosevelt yesterday was officially notified of his nomination for vice president on the Republican ticket. The ceremony was so simple as to be almost informal. Surrounded by the members of the committee on notification, a little party of invited guests, Mrs. Roosevelt and the rest of the governor's family, Gov. Roosevelt listened to the address of notification by Senator Wolcott of Colorado, chairman of the committee. There was no attempt at ceremony. The party simply ranged themselves about the wide verandas which command a magnificent view of Long Island sound, and Senator Wolcott, practically without preliminaries of any kind, delivered a short address. To this the governor responded briefly and then luncheon was served. An hour was spent in general conversation on the cool porches, and then the party returned to Oyster Bay, where a special train was waiting to convey them back to New York.

PACIFIC CABLE.

The British Government Now About to Invite Tenders.

London, July 14. — In the house of commons the secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, announced that tenders for laying the Pacific cable will be invited, the government of Canada and the various colonial governments interested having accepted the recommendations of the committee.

EAGLE SCREAMED IN HAWAII.

Islanders Celebrate Independence Day in True American Style.

Honolulu, July 4, via Victoria.—Hawaii celebrated the Fourth as American territory with oratory, athletic sports and fireworks and with much enthusiasm.

Negro Lynched.

Cresswell, Ala., July 14.—John Jennings, colored, was lynched here for the murder of L. Martin, a railroad employe.

Queen Buys Old Manuscript.

London—Queen Victoria has bought, for $125, a manuscript over 300 years old, which gives a history of Windsor Castle and the neighborhood.

Flax and Hemp Combine.

London—A combination with a share capital approximating $5,000,000 for the manufacture of flax, hemp, jute machinery was announced at Leeds recently. It will consist of several leading old-established firms.

[illegible] Eugene Clark and Andrew Kokott [illegible]

FOREIGNERS ARE ALL DEAD.

Chinese Official Sources Tell of Peking Tragedy.

London, July 14.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail says the following story regarding the position in Peking emanates from Chinese official sources:

"The two remaining legations, the British and Russian were attacked in force on the evening of July 6, Prince Tuan being in command. The attackers were divided. Prince Tuan commanded the center, the right wing was led by Prince Tsayin and the left by Prince Yin Lin. The reserves were under Prince Tsin Yu. The attack commenced with artillery fighting, which was severe and lasted until 7 o'clock in the morning, by which time both and all the foreigners were dead, while the streets around the legations were full of dead bodies of both foreigners and Chinese. Upon hearing of the attack Prince Ching and Gen. Wang Wen Shao went with troops to the assistance of the foreigners, but they were outnumbered and defeated. Both Prince Ching and Gen. Wang Wen Shao were killed. Two foreigners are said to have escaped through the gates, one with a heavy sword wound in his head. Prince Tuan, in celebration of the victory, distributed 100,000 taels and huge quantities of rice to the Boxers."

Legations Were Destroyed

Worst Has Happened.

A terrible veil of silence enshrouds Peking and there is nobody but who believes the worst has happened. It is taken for granted that all the powers have exhausted every means to get direct news from their legations, and the fact that their efforts have been vain leads to but one interpretation. The Chinese representative in Berlin denies the statement that Li Hung Chang had sent him a hopeful telegram. He says, on the contrary, that no direct telegram has been received by him from Li Hung Chang for some time past. The day's news is again restricted to the usual correspondence of untrustworthy Chinese rumors, the most important of which is reported by the correspondent of the Express, and is to the effect that Europeans are directing the Chinese military operations.

Directed by Europeans.

The correspondent says that Capt. Bailey, of H. M. S. Aurora, distinctly saw a man in European garb directing the Chinese artillery operations outside of Tien-tsin. Foreign refugees from Tien-tsin openly accuse a European official, whose name the Express correspondent suppresses, and Col. von Hahnken, who was formerly employed to drill the Chinese troops, of being parties to a plot to procure the escape of Gen. Chang and themselves from Tien-tsin before the bombardment, leaving the other foreigners

To Their Fate.

Statements are in circulation in Shanghai accusing the Russians of indiscriminate slaughter of friendly Chinese non-combatants without regard to age or sex. The manager of a Chinese steamship company who has arrived in Shanghai, asserts that he only escaped from Tien-tsin by cutting off his queqe and donning European clothes. It is asserted that the tao-tai of Shanghai protested to the powers against these Russian slaughters. It is asserted that the Buddhist priests throughout the empire are propagating Prince Tuan's anti-foreign gospel.

Crushing Defeat at Tien-tsin.

News is circulating throughout the Yang-tse valley that Gen. Ma has inflicted a crushing defeat upon the allies at Tien-tsin and that the foreign army has been cut to pieces east of Peking. The actual importance for the moment of the allied forces nearly gives color to these stories with the worst results. The Shanghai correspondent of the Express gives Tien-tsin advices to July 8, when the superior range of the Japanese artillery enabled them to relieve the Russians who were hard pressed at the railway station.

"ON TO PEKING."

American Troops Will Be Hurried to the Chinese Capital.

Washington, July 14. — "On to Peking" is the policy adopted by our government. It is said that regardless of the issues to be raised as to the authenticity of the last Chinese note, or the accuracy of its statement of facts, or the question raised as to the responsibility for the present situation, our government at least is determined not to relax its efforts to reach Peking, and to get in touch with Mr. Conger, if he is alive, then take the necessary steps for the protection of American interests, and, in fact, to do all the things set out in Secretary Hay's note to the powers, including a reckoning with the person or persons responsible for the outrageous events of the past six weeks.

CITY TO OWN TRACKS.

Chicago Plan of Limited Municipal Ownership.

Chicago, July 14.—The railway commission of the city council has declared in favor of a limited municipal ownership of street railway properties and in favor of a form of compulsory arbitration in labor disputes which would make street railway strikes impossible. All franchises should have a clause providing for compulsory arbitration. The commission committed itself to municipal ownership, so far as the trackage and other parts of a street railway plant actually in and a part of the street is concerned. It did not decide in favor of municipal ownership of rolling stock, powerhouses and other parts of the plants, and municipal operation did not come up at all.

MARVELOUS ESCAPE.

Gov. Hodgson Bears Signs of Hardship and Privation.

Accra, Gold Coast Colony, July 14.—Sir Frederick Mitchell Hodgson, governor of the colony, who recently arrived here after having been besieged at Kumussi by rebellious tribesmen, and who bears signs of the hardships and privations to which he had been subjected, in the course of an interview, said he considered his escape the most marvelous on record. He attributed its success to the secrecy maintained concerning the route chosen. The carriers who accompanied him became so weakened by starvation that everything was abandoned and the party subsisted upon plantains. Lady Hodgson pluckily shared all the dangers and privations.

West Virginia Republicans.

Charleston, W. Va., July 14.—The Republican state convention named the following ticket: Governor, A. B. White; auditor, Arnold C. Scherr; treasurer, Peter Silliman; attorney general, Romeo H. Freer; superintendent of schools, Thomas C. Miller; supreme judges, Henry Brannon and George Poffenbarger; electors at large, [illegible]

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.
Minnesota Historical Society

VOLUME XX ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 25, 1900. NUMBER 1.

FROST OF FROSTS

IS THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CAMPAIGN OPENING.

Under Republican League Auspices—A Record Breaker of Absolutely Barren Results — Other State and National Points—The Railway Corporation Press Show Their Hands—They Relieve the Courts of Arduous Labors by Their Wise and Unprejudiced Decisions—"On to Indianapolis" for the Democratic Campaign Opening—Governor Lind and the Indian Scare—Numerous Omens of State and National Success—The Week's Roundup.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, July 23, 1900.

Of all spiritless, uninteresting, tame and unprofitable affairs of national proportions, the State and National Republican League convention holds the record. The most striking comparison to it was the grand fizzle ratification meeting at the Minneapolis Exposition building, following the McKinley nomination in 1896, which was presided over by Pine Lumber Magnate T. B. Walker, and which, held in the heat of July, was so chilly that Mr. Walker has never presided over another such meeting, and in fact has been in California almost ever since.

The State League convention was an absolute fizzle, with the slimmest of audiences in attendance. This might have been laid to the weather, but not so the slim attendance of national delegates to Tuesday and Wednesday's convention, for that had been advertised throughout the country for the past year as the great refreshing time, when the good weather of the Northwest invited the outing. The delegates came not, and all the hotels, which for weeks had made ready for immense delegations, had their trouble and empty rooms for their plans. Indeed, the convention wound up Wednesday, cutting off a whole day.

The sessions were tame and featureless, not even relieved by Senator Nelson's voluminous address, read in his schoolboy style (to use the expression of one of the Republican editors of the state who fidgetted through the senator's platitudes), and only momentarily relieved by the brief presence of the expected great star of the occasion, Governor Roosevelt. He spoke but a moment to the convention, in a gingerly, crabbed way, as if fearing to give away the points he had prepared for his main speech, the campaign "opener." The "Rough Rider's" impression upon the convention was plainly of little effect. Delegates openly expressed their disappointment.

The evening Auditorium meeting was a success, both in attendance and enthusiasm from the portion of the audience in full sympathy (for there was a large portion of it that did not "touch off" at each suggestion of the management composed of people there to listen and to judge for themselves). The meeting was as large as the building could hold, just about the equal of, and no greater than the recent pro-Boer reception. But there were no outside thousands, no impassable streets as on Bryan occasions, and the overflow meetings announced for each inviting corner, did not occur. In fact the coming of something like 1,000 from Minneapolis saved the meeting from the chill of unoccupied seats. A few were shut out by closing the doors, mostly swearing Republicans who had been excluded because not having secured tickets, apropos of which the fact that Leaguers were obliged to pay 50 cents before they could have the necessary pasteboards made much bad feeling. There is scandal about the ticket management, Republicans themselves making very unsavory charges.

Some Republicans explain the tameness of the event by the bad odor that has ever surrounded the league in this state, which goes back to the Goodnow regime, when scandals regarding the finances of the league were frequent from the time that Goodnow got control down to the time he got his reward from the McKinley administration for the dirty work done by him in the campaign in the name of the league. The talk that league officials sold tickets to the Roosevelt affair, and put the money in their pockets, is quite like the previous scandals of the league. Other talk is that the affair would have been of greater interest had different men locally handled it and had charge of the person of Roosevelt. That he was dined by that great warrior of The Pioneer Press, who served in New Brunswick during the Civil war, dampened the military spirit. Others kicked because Lumber Truster Tom Shevlin, as national committeeman, was high push to go and bring the star here.

The whole affair, judged from the standpoint of a national event, fully justifies the view presented by our cartoonist, that Roosevelt contended with a Minnesota blizzard in starting the McKinley campaign. Says The Globe: "In point of numbers the convention was a frost. Not more than 400 delegates from a distance were in attendance, when it was expected that the convention would bring several thousand people to the city."

The most doleful reports were circulated among leaguers about the prospect of having much of a campaign fund this year. That Hanna was falling down with the corporations that he milked four years ago was conceded, and that the gigantic trusts organized since '96 must be relied on was admitted. And that was given as one of the reasons why Hanna had McKinley omit all mention of the trusts in his letter speech of acceptance. "You will have to raise your own funds in Minnesota," was what an Eastern delegate told a prominent Minnesotan. The latter confessed that the outlook was poor for cash for the campaign. Another said that the bad thing about it was that whatever the Bixby machine could get together it would spend in the interest of the Bixbyites. Bixby as the candidate two years from now appears to be the slate, and everything would be managed to bring about that result.

For the Democratic campaign is now to come the formal notification of Bryan and Stevenson, which will occur at Indianapolis Aug. 8, and which will probably be the grandest demonstration ever known in this country. Also at the same place on Aug. 16 will be held the national meeting of the Anti-Imperialists, the indications being that they will endorse the Democratic platform and candidates for the liberty campaign which they will conduct. A national meeting of the anti-trust organizations may also be held about the same time, with like action more than probable.

Concerning remaining events, before the campaign can be said to be actually opened, there are first in interest the two state conventions to make up the fusion ticket on state officers, which will be held Sept. 6, the Democratic at St. Paul and the Populist at Minneapolis. They were not called both in the same place for lack of hall room for both on the same day. But the different locations should not make any difference in harmony of action. The state ticket made, the state campaign will have a formal opening with events big enough to suit all.

What do the people of the state think of the situation regarding the labors of their railroad commission to protect the people against railroad combinations for exorbitant rates, and, as to the Northern Pacific-St. Paul and Duluth consolidation case, when the corporation daily papers rush in and in advance decide the law and the facts to the prejudice of the commission's efforts? The Times follows The Globe in deciding absolutely the great questions which the commission is bringing before the courts, to wit, that the roads have not violated the law, and the roads are not competing lines, and that no questions of public policy, or of the people's rights and interests are at stake. If we are not mistaken there will be a protest from the people of the state that will be unmistakeable. Meanwhile the people can rely on it that the commission and Governor Lind will not be disturbed nor swerved from their discharge of sworn duty to the people and the state.

Apropos, one of those papers quotes a railway official as saying, "Now is the time for the roads to fight the railway commission if they ever hope to win a victory over that body."

In this connection it may be stated that the commission will within a few days be ready to promulgate the new general schedule of rates which they have been considering for some time past. That it will be acceptable to everybody, except possibly the roads, goes without saying.

The week has seen wheat fall again to within a few cents of the low ruling price of the last year, standing at between 50 cents and 60 cents at interior Minnesota shipping points, the home market. This, with loss of crops, small yields, trust prices about as high as ever, will make the McKinley prosperity look like 30 cents to a great many farmers.

And of trade in general the situation is in many respects serious. Mills are closed, men out, trade small, jobbers selling little, strikes continue, and labor in the large cities is in great distress, notably at Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia, etc., etc., where corporation oppression and war on labor organizations prevent settlements of the matters in dispute and where in instances the people have invited the aid of the courts in their futile efforts to compel corporate authority to cease its arbitrary and unreasonable attitudes toward labor. Gold also is commencing to go abroad again, for foreign war operations, and our $100,000,000 gold reserve is reduced to $60,000,000. Our own situation as to Asiatic affairs adds to the uneasiness.

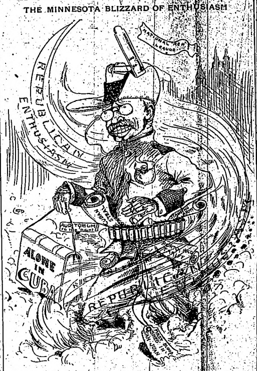
United States Marshal Grimshaw, though a political opponent of Governor Lind, does the latter the justice to commend his prompt action in sending troops into the Indian country in the late scare. Still the goppite press quotes the marshal to the contrary.

Apropos, there is indignation, especially in the northern part of the state, where Governor Lind's course was warmly commended, at the misrepresentation that has been made, especially by the St. Paul Dispatch. On file in the adjutant general's office were official dispatches, showing the promptitude with which Governor Lind acted and reported to Washington, and furthermore that he at the same time informed the department that if it had need for the soldiers at Fort Snelling, to use them, as he would be abundantly able to care for the Indians with the state forces.

All Minnesota is honored by the presence, taking needed rests at Minnetonka, of Hon. James K. Jones, our beloved head of the Democratic national committee, and Hon. Adlai Stevenson, ex-governor of Illinois, and ex-vice president, and our loved and trusted candidate for vice president. Against the time when they are given the expected formal reception, all wish for them that rest and comfort, with the members of their families, that will fit them for the arduous labors before them.

Minnesota Democracy warmly commends the stirring address to Democratic clubs issued by National President W. R. Hearst. It has the true ring.

G. S. C.



In Which Teddy Roosevelt Opened the Republican National Campaign.

IN MINNESOTA BLIZZARD

As Results for the Republican Party Are to Be Guaged,

Did Roosevelt Open the Republican National Campaign at St. Paul.

Calm, Fair and Dispassionate Review—Comment on the Occasion.

The following calm and dispassionate review of Governor Roosevelt's opening of the Republican national campaign, is presented for reform press readers, and that it is such a fair and candid review, all fair-minded persons who were present on the occasion, are called to witness. The same is also intended to be the spirit in which the accompanying note and comment is made.

Theodore Roosevelt has opened the presidential campaign of 1900. He has sounded the key-note. He has outlined the policy of the Republican party, and there is no mistaking its meaning. If there was any doubt before, it has been swept away by this example of "courage and honesty." In a word it is "Imperialism." There is no other word in the English vocabulary that adequately expresses it. The country is at last boldly asked to forget the warnings of Washington and the teachings of Jefferson and Monroe. The United States government is a world power and as such it must do as Russia, France, England and Germany do.

In reviewing Governor Roosevelt's opening speech in the campaign we are not moved by any mean motive of attempting to depreciate his achievements, smirch his personal character, belittle his qualifications, or to deny his popularity, but we are animated more especially in a desire to analyze the causes which make him popular with a section of the American people, and to submit to the candid opinion of American citizenship whether there does not lie in those causes and their manifestation manifold dangers to this Republic. Governor Roosevelt emphasized the virtue of decency, efficiency, courage and honesty in public life, rightly holding that these qualities are as essential in public life as in civil employments to the welfare of the country. But in making his argument he clearly claimed that the Republican party has monopolized all these virtues. Men who possess a clear judgment, thinking men, those acquainted with the political history of this country, know how fallacious such an argument is, and all allegations of this kind go in at one ear and out of the other, leaving no lasting impression. They know that they are used in a partisan sense, and are the words of an advocate, rather than the deliberate judgment of the court. But there is infinite mischief in this sort of campaigning. Necessarily there are many people who have not the opportunity for reading and keeping in touch with events or of separating the chaff from the wheat—the sincere from the cant—the truth from falsehood. And so the inevitable effect of such teaching from a man in Roosevelt's exalted position, is calculated to engender hatred among the people, arraying one class against another, arousing enmity and suspicion among neighbors, breaking friendships and stirring up strife and animosity, and thus making of the campaign for the election of the chief magistrate a veritable civil war, where it ought to be a calm and dispassionate consideration of policies advanced by the respective parties contesting for the supremacy, each side honestly and sincerely believing that its platform would be the best for the general welfare, and its leaders and advocates laying these policies clearly before the people for their choice and decision. How utterly absurd it is to charge that the six and one-half million of men who voted for Bryan in 1896 lack decency, efficiency, courage and honesty, that they are all knaves and plunderers, repudiationists and cowards.

Again the distinguished rough rider appropriated all patriotism to the Republicans. All opposed were, in effect, traitors. They would dishonor the flag, sell out their country and bring on anarchy and chaos. It needs no argument to prove that there is no ground for the charge, and it is hardly worth while to name the illustrious examples of patriotic action of Democrats in every war that this nation has waged. They will be recalled to the mind of every intelligent person. Can any intelligent person harbor the thought for even a moment that because a man is not a Republican he does not love his country and would not fight for it in any just cause? If he does not, what is he looking for? What does he expect? Certainly it cannot be alleged that he wants a king or an emperor instead of a president—a kingdom or an empire instead of a republic. No, if any party is suspected of holding such a thought or entertaining such a hope, it is certainly not the Populist-Democratic party, as Governor Roosevelt so disdainfully designates it. The members of those parties desire the perpetuity of the republic and all its hallowed and dearly bought rights, liberties and institutions. They fear that these will be put in jeopardy if the United States adopts as its permanent policy the conquest of all those nations and tribes and races of men that Governor Roosevelt does not embrace among "the great civilized nations." The distinguished cowboy and rough rider, the quintessence of honesty, courage and decency, the governor of the great state of New York, who seems maddened with imperialism and whose ambition is as measureless and almost as bloodthirsty as that which burned within the breast of Alexander and of Napoleon, spoke in glowing terms and praised the patriotism of the German people for upholding the German emperor's policy of building a great navy so that its citizens shall be protected and their trade rights maintained throughout the world. His penetrative seems inadequate to foresee the possible results of the operations of that navy, or else he and his co-patriots have abandoned the Monroe doctrine. He loses sight of, or else welcomes, the colonization by Germany of the Argentines, where the German emperor is even now perfecting measures to give his subjects in South America a colonial government under his suzerainty. And now that we have reached this part of Governor Roosevelt's speech in advance of the order that we had in mind when beginning this review, let us consider briefly other parts which pertain to his expansion or imperialistic utterances, and we are authorized now to assume and believe that they are part and parcel of the McKinley program. He says expansion brings peace. There will be at the outset of course some difficulties, some war and sacrifices, but a timid man may be ever so benevolent and philanthropic and amount to nothing because he is afraid to act, to avail himself of the opportunities that are opened to him; and so with nations, they must be bold, aggressive and warlike, and go after the things they want, through fire, water, blood and human slaughter. In support of his proposition that expansion brings peace, he cited the Algerine pirates of the Mediterranean, to whom as late as in 1830 we paid tribute for the protection of our ships and commerce, but then France expanded over that territory and we have had peace there ever since. And so, as if intoxicated with his theme, he instanced Russia, that great autocratic monster of the north, whose subjects are ruled with a despotic hand that admits of no protest or redress, in her conquest of Turkestan, of England in her aggrandisements and subjection of the Soudan, and he might have gone further and listed India, Egypt, Abyssinia, and the South African republics. And he said in Turkestan and the Soudan where in times past a white man could not penetrate, was now as safe as in New York or Minnesota, or something to that effect. "The great civilized nations," he said, "have learned to work hand to hand together," in carrying out this policy of despoiling the ancient peoples of the earth, taking possession of their territory and revenues and subjecting their people to foreign control. He dwelt at length upon the acquisition of Louisiana, Florida and New Mexico, citing the example of Jefferson and Jackson; that we had to war against the inhabitants of those territories (meaning the Indians) as we have in the Philippines, and essayed to be very funny in quoting Josiah Quincy in opposition to the annexation of the territory west of the Mississippi river, likening the opponents of the present day expansion to Quincy. With all due respect to Roosevelt and his admirers we refuse to see any relevancy in the two cases. Annexing contiguous territory, practically uninhabited, but affording the best opportunities for immigration of our own people and those from foreign lands capable of assimilation with us, territory that by growth of population and settlement would, in a natural way, develop into states, bears no resemblance whatever to the annexation of islands in the China sea, which are densely populated with mixed races of men incapable of appreciating or of administering our form of government and admission as citizens in states of the Union. He charged that the rebellion of the Tagals was prolonged by the aid and comfort of the antis in this country and that the blood of our soldiers was upon their heads. If so we point to the fact that the most conspicuous of these antis are distinguished members of Roosevelt's own party. He said that the Tagals were incited by these traitorous Americans to hold out until after the election and said that they believed if they were able to do so and Bryan was elected "they would be free." This was a bad break, as it puts the Republican party in the position of opposing, with arms, the aspirations of a people who know despotism, to be free. A republic opposing freedom!

And the excuse for all this is that they are not civilized. Think of it! Egypt, the cradle of civilization so far as history has any record, and whose achievements in the arts and sciences and civil politics were transcendent in the world two or three thousand years ago, and other countries in the East where civilization flourished many centuries before the discovery of America or of Great Britain for that matter, not civilized! Well, we cannot dwell longer upon this branch of Governor Roosevelt's speech. To sum up he revealed himself as the arch-imperialist of the Western continent. His courage in this respect reached the confines of recklessness. The great civilized nations were moving over the face of the earth, carrying their power and their customs with them, destroying the ancient peoples, inhabiting them or reducing them to subjection, parceling out the lands to their retainers, seizing their revenues and building up great empires. They made a good thing of it and so [illegible] follow their example [illegible] America has discarded [illegible] and put on the shining garments, with their gilt and tassels, of imperialism, with the sword in the right hand and the torch in the left, and it will not be long before orders of nobility, rule by heredity and birth will follow in the wake of the great, once free and liberty loving American republic, dedicated to the proposition that all men are created free and equal. The declarations of the speaker on this subject were so bold and positive that they fairly took the breath of the audience, and a daze, as of a sudden fear, seized them. A chill came over the audience. Breathless silence prevailed, and at the conclusion of the exordium there were only a few feeble, timid, scattered demonstrations of applause.

The speech being as it was the authorized promulgation of the Republican policy, shows a defiance of past beliefs and traditions that is simply benumbing. There were absolutely but two points in the policy of the party that were announced, namely the gold standard and "expansion," as it was called; but in reality imperialism. The only other references to subjects or issues was by way of criticism of the Kansas City platform. On the subject of trusts Governor Roosevelt tried to make the point that Richard Croker and Augustus Van Wyck, a member of the platform committee, were stockholders in the Ice Trust of New York, when as a matter of fact it is the other Van Wyck that holds the stock. He neglected to state that of the fifteen members of the board of directors of the Ice Trust thirteen are Republicans. He failed to denounce trusts, failed to advocate any remedy, and although the Pioneer Press, in its published report of the speech, makes him say that the Sherman anti-trust law, passed by Republicans, is valid and in force, he did not mention the subject in his address. If the law is valid and in force it ought to be called the Sherman pro-trust law, instead of anti, as trusts flourish under it like a green bay tree, or the cedars of Lebanon.

He tried to make a point against the sincerity of the Democratic platform for putting the silver plank down towards the bottom of the document, and said they were forty-eight hours agreeing to it, which shows that there were only 52 per cent. of the convention in its favor, while the Republicans believed in the gold dollar one hundred per cent. He is welcome to all the fun he can extract here, as it was not a question whether the party was in favor of free silver, but as to making it the paramount question in the campaign. The speech of Roosevelt demonstrates the wisdom of the framers of the Democratic platform in declaring imperialism to be the chief question. The nation might live on the gold standard, or without a money standard at all possibly, but the republic cannot long survive the policy of imperialism.

Governor Roosevelt made a dramatic, frenzied appeal for the people to stand by McKinley. He said he MUST be elected. There was a covered threat in that "must." Does it mean that the army will be used to intimidate voters? He exhausted the dictionary with words picturing the frightful consequences of the election of Bryan. The financial convulsions would be something awful, like the crack of doom. The industries of the people would be swept as by a great maelstrom of liquid fire pouring down from the mountains and covering the valleys with desolation and death. The credit of the nation would be swallowed up and the shame of repudiation would blanch the faces of men. In brief humanity, one would think, would be changed in a twinkling, from its high aspirations of truth, benevolence, righteousness and brotherhood, to something more terrible than Dante's Inferno. And yet he proffered not a fact to support his allegations of woe. We have heard such drivel before, and we have heard it in this state. In 1896 the same fate was predicted for Minnesota if John Lind, that fanatic of free silver and all the heresies of Populistic Democracy should be elected. What has happened? We have heard Republicans say that once only in the history of the state has a man sat in the gubernatorial chair, whose broad statesmanship and ability has equalled Governor Lind's, and that was C. K. Davis. And here we have a safe, economical, clean, decent, efficient government, with peace and prosperity, no diminution of credit, no calamity, no regrets. And so if Bryan should be elected there would be no convulsion, no want of faith, no doubt of his honesty or patriotism, no repudiation, no national dishonor, all peace and security, but we would as soon as possible withdraw our soldiers from foreign territories, attend to our destiny as the upholder of freedom, equal rights and self-government on the Western continent and the viceroy of the angels who sang "On earth peace, good will to men."

NOTE AND COMMENT ON ROOSEVELT'S CAMPAIGN OPENING.

Now what's the use of lying, even about the size of a political gathering? The Republican Twin City papers did it without stint, and without consistency. Thus we have the Tribune editorially speaking of the grand outpouring of Republicans, when there were not 2,000 in St. Paul, all told, from the state outside and distant parts of the country. And the same paper's reports gave 10,000 as the auditorium attendance in one place, and reduced it to 6,000 in another.

Getting down to actual facts as to league delegations, that from the great state of Ohio numbered four men, quartered comfortably in one of the Merchant's ordinary rooms, while New York's delegation of several hundred as expected, was accommodated in two rooms by the aid of a cot or two. And so on through the whole list. Iowa was probably one of the largest, perhaps a dozen corn-fed citizens of that state being here, while Missouri consisted of six men carrying two banners made in St. Paul. Selah. But Missouri made up in noise what it lacked in size, for it promised the state to McKinley, when everybody knows it will give Bryan 60,000 majority.

Speaking of the Twin City press, the Pioneer outdid itself in praise on Roosevelt. It slobbered. Columns on columns were poured out, editorially, wise and otherwise, mostly otherwise. All because a "rough rider" breakfasted with a smooth rider who served in New Brunswick.

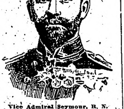
When one of the Twin City papers had put into cold type the cords of manuscript which Senator Knute Nelson read to the leaguers, it was found to be quite as dreary as those who listened to it declared it to be. Only misstatement of facts relieved the monotony, as when he repeated the falsehood against Aguinaldo, first uttered in the Northwest by President McKinley at Fargo, when he declared that Aguinaldo was a bribe taker—that we could have had his peace for gold. Nelson put it that Aguinaldo and his chiefs, when Dewey arrived at Manilla, "were living on and quarrelling over the money Spain had given them." Nelson knows that Senate Document 62 shows officially that Aguinaldo, breaking the contract with Spain because Spain had not given the promised reforms, had in bank all the money he had received, $400,000, and that he paid it out for arms for the troops he raised under the understanding with Dewey to fight against the Spanish. Nelson says that there was no Filipino government or even insurrection at that time, when history is unquestioned that the Filipino insurgent government and soldiers had at that time driven Spain out of the islands except a small territory around Manila [illegible]

APPEAL FROM CHINA

PRESIDENT ASKED TO MEDIATE IN THE PRESENT DIFFICULTY.

Asked to Use His Good Offices to Extricate Chinese Government From the Difficulty in Which It Is Placed by the Boxer Uprising and the Consequent Hostile Attitude of the Powers—Chinese Legation in London Announces That Communication With Peking Will Soon Be Reopened.

Washington, July 23. — President McKinley has received what purports to be a direct appeal from the Chinese imperial government to use his good offices to extricate the government from the difficulty and dangerous position in which it has been placed as a result of the Boxer uprising and the ensuing hostile attitude of the great powers. Although the exact text of the appeal made by the emperor of China to France, as outlined in the cable dispatches of yesterday, has not been made known here, it is believed that the address to the president is similar in terms to that communication. In our case



Vice Admiral Seymour, R. N.
British commander-in-chief on the China naval station, who, with Vice Admiral Alexieff, commander of the Russian squadron, may fight the greatest naval battle of the century with the Chinese fleet.

The Communication

was made through Minister Wu to the state department. Thus far a final answer has not been returned. The French government answered at once, but that answer will not serve us. The United States government is conscientiously proceeding upon an entirely different line of policy in the treatment of the case. Unfortunately the state department finds itself alone in this, but, nevertheless, it is convinced that its plan is the best, and it has behind it the consoling assurance that at present all of the European powers have tacitly admitted that an error was made in the beginning in not following the common sense advice of the United States naval commander at Taku. The Vice Admiral Alexieff.

Commander of the Russian Squadron at Takú.

Point of Difference between the state department and the European governments is that the latter are proceeding upon the belief that all the foreign ministers and missionaries and guards at Peking have been killed and insist upon dealing with the Chinese government upon that basis, thereby assuming a hostile attitude that tends to destroy the last chance of availing of whatever friendly sentiment may exist among the powerful Chinese viceroys and the imperial government itself. Thus the French reply sets an impossible task for the imperial government in its present straits, and tends to drive it at once with the Boxers and Prince Tuan's party. On the other hand our government, while not guaranteeing the truth of the advices from the Chinese government as to the safety of the foreign ministers, is willing to accept the statements temporarily, in the meantime remitting none of its efforts to get access to Mr. Conger through the use of military force if need be. It is the intention of the administration to withdraw our forces, military and naval, after the Americans in Peking have been relieved, and wash its hands of Chinese affairs, looking only to the preservation of such privileges as it has a right to retain for Americans.

To Make Terms

Message From Kempff.

A brief cablegram was received by Secretary Long yesterday from Rear Admiral Kempff, at Taku. He announced that the Newark was going over to Nagasaki to be docked and cleaned. Although he did not say so, it is assumed that he is going with her, as she is his flagship.

Five hundred United States marines started from this city yesterday direct for China. They were placed on a special train bound for San Francisco, where they will cros sthe Pacific on an army transport. This is the largest body of marines that has yet been dispatched to the East, and the departure was made conspicuous by the presence of Gen. Heywood, the commandant of marines, and the full marine band. Maj. Dickens commands the detachment.

EXPECTED ANY MINUTE.

Reopening of Communication With Peking.

London, July 23.—Cheh Lo-fang, the Chinese minister in England, took the unusual step yesterday of paying a Sunday call at the foreign office. As Lord Salisbury was absent the visit was without special result, but its importance may be gathered from an interview with the secretary of the Chinese legation, Sir Halliday MacCartney, in which the legation officials seem to have assumed to some respect personal responsibility. Sir Halliday said that communication would soon be reopened with Peking and that the messages from Sir Claude MacDonald and the other ministers might be expected at any time. He hoped the trouble would soon be over, as the Chinese government was doing its utmost to Overcome the Difficulty and control the lawless element. In his opinion the Americans had taken the most common sense view of the situation, and he insisted that China ought not to be misjudged. Against the supposition that Li Hung Chang had anything but a sincere pacific object in view he protested warmly, asserting that all stories about the perfidy and treachery of Earl Li were absolutely baseless. Thus, according to the secretary of the Chinese legation, a few days more should bring a solution of the great mystery. Nevertheless no one in England believes that the alleged dispatches and edicts are to hide the real situation as long as possible and to avert retribution by sowing discord among the powers. From Shanghai comes a report that the empress dowager and the court are moving to Hsianfu, in the province of Shang-si, to which large stores of rice are being sent, and that, when these arrangements are completed, the remaining viceroys will declare against foreigners. According to the Chefu correspondent of the Daily Mail the fall of Tien-tsin has so disheartened the Chinese that they are seeking terms of peace. Li Hung Chang's visit to Shanghai seems to be a complete failure. Except the customs officials no one has visited him.

Anything but Subterfuges

Maj. Gen. Sir Francis Grenfel.
Will command the British forces in China.

Emperor Was Alive July 9.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times says: The United States government has communicated to the Russian government for its information that Emperor Kwang Hsu was living and in full possession of his imperial functions on July 9. As soon as the Russian general, Linevitch, (reported from Vladivostock to be marching to the scene of hostilities with an army corps and a complete artillery brigade) arrives at Tien-tsin, the advance on Peking will begin.

Korea Moving Troops.

Yokohama, July 23. — The Korean government continues to send troops to the front, a collision with intruding Chinese having already occurred. The Japanese papers express sympathy with the unfortunate emperor of China, but are unanimous and emphatic in declaring that an alliance between China and Japan is quite impossible.

MAY HAVE BEEN PUSHED IN.

Skull and a Pair of Shoes Found in a Tank at Stockyards.

Chicago, July 23.—The police officials are investigating a mystery at the stock yards, which they think is another Luetgert case. A human skull and a pair of shoes have been found in a rendering tank owned by one of the packing house firms at the yards. Several men recently in the employ of the company have disappeared, and the police are searching for them to see if any light can be spread upon the mystery in the case. It is the theory of the police that the victim was pushed into the tank.

DISORDER IN ST. LOUIS.

Two Dynamite Explosions and a Shoting Affray.

St. Louis, July 23.—Two explosions which damaged Transit company cars and one disturbance in which a woman was wounded by a stray bullet occurred Saturday night. A car of the Southwestern division was blown up on South Seventh sreet. Another car on the Broadway line was blown up on South Broadway and the front trucks were demolished. Mrs. Annie Kollmeter was struck by a bullet in a bombardment of the Choutau avenue car, suffering a slight flesh wound.

Eighth Returns From Cuba.

New York, July 23. — Companies H and I, of the Eighth United States infantry, moved off the transport McClellan yesterday morning and started for Fort Snelling, Minn., over the New York Central road. The members will wait for the men of the regiment who are coming North on another transport, and after the recruiting of the organization to its full number, a start will be made for China.

Ordered to the Orient.

Fort Riley, Kan., July 23.—Orders have been received for the Seventh United States battery of heavy artillery at Fort Riley to proceed with all haste to the Orient, stopping at Nagasaki for orders. The battery consists of 200 men and ten officers, and was organized during the Spanish war.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.

Chattel Loans.

Foreign & Domestic Xchange

INSURANCE.

Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured.
Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY

D. COLLINS

THE

Photograper.

ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED

FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE INSURANCE

DO YOU NEED SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound.........5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.........15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.........20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.

LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year: four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

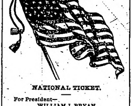
SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

ADVERTISING rates will be made known on application and are very reasonable.

REMITTANCES should be made on postal notes postoffice or express orders. Short time subscriptions in two cent stamps.

CORRESPONDENCE from all points in the vicinity of St. Hilaire desired. Make communications concise, writing upon only one side of the paper.

WEDNESDAY, JULY, 25, 1900.



NATIONAL TICKET.

For President—
WILLIAM J. BRYAN,
of Nebraska.
For Vice-President—
ADLAI E. STEVENSON,
of Illinois.

For Congressman 7th District—
M. J. DALY.

The Head Waiter's Tips.

One of the most expensive restaurants in New York is conducted, so far as its observing patrons can tell, on a unique system of tips. The head waiter of the room devoted to the use of the men guests makes it a point to become acquainted with them, find out their names and becomes genial in the half respectful, half presuming way that so frequently passes for good nature among employees of the kind in this country. Naturally he receives liberal fees from his clientele, which is made up of rich men able to pay high prices for the extra service they receive.

When there is no financial response of this kind to the waiter's advances, his cordiality diminishes. The waiters under him do, with unusual willingness, the head waiter's bidding. They are evidently indifferent as to their own success in the matter of fees. It is only the good will of the head waiter that appears to be the goal of all their efforts.

Such unselfishness astonishes regular patrons of the restaurant, and one in particular undertook to discover the reason of this attitude of the waiters toward their chief. He learned after awhile that the tips the head waiter received were large enough to enable him to give the waiters a part of his earnings for attending with particular care to his patrons, who, as a rule, confine their contributions to the head waiter. The guests who fail to take advantage of the head waiter's overtures to friendliness are not likely to fare well in that restaurant, where the waiters, certain of a fee from the man over them, are indifferent to the guests not included among the list of his patrons.—New York Sun.

A Son of a Sea Cook.

The information concerning the expression "a son of a sea cook," says the Philadelphia Times, has not been found in any reference dictionary. It comes from a prominent citizen, a man of affairs and a man of intelligence. In 1862 he was for a period the campaign companion of Leonard Swett, who at that time was a candidate for congress in Illinois. Mr. Swett was the bosom friend of Abraham Lincoln—his alter ego. In 1888 he was the advocate in Chicago of the presidential aspirations of Walter Q. Gresham.

At the time referred to Mr. Swett had an engagement to address voters in Fremont and Pekin, in Tazewell county, and by the informant referred to was driven from Fremont to Pekin. Swett had few equals as a conversationalist, and the talk was brisk and naturally never to be forgotten by the man who had proffered his services as a driver.

The latter, speaking of a well known lawyer of Pekin, remarked, "He is a son of a sea cook." Mr. Swett turned abruptly about and said: "That expression is not correct. You mean the son of a sekawk, which is a perversion of the Indian name segonk, which means a skunk and is usually pronounced sekawk. Few people ever use the term correctly or comprehend its meaning."

One Old Horse Guards Another.

Two beautiful chestnut horses, Jack and Sam, were among my early friends. They were clean built, high stepping trotters of a speed which might have distinguished them on the track, but they led a happier life, being favorite carriage horses in a region of beautiful country roads or sometimes, under the saddle, threading lovely forest paths.

Rarely used in single harness, they had been as rarely separated, and when in their old age Sam became blind it was a touching thing to see Jack's constant watchfulness over him. Their pasturage was in fields broken by rocky ledges and where more than one steep ravine suddenly descended from the smooth sward. Jack never left his friend. Constantly beside him, if Sam went too near a perilous edge, the stream, a rock or fence, he would go between him and the danger, pushing him aside or, if that could not be done, he would take him by the mane and gently lead him to a place of safety. No allurements in lumps of sugar, apples or the salt basket ever drew Jack from his dependent friend.—Our Animal Friends.

Repeated.

"Ah; that was a rare one!" he exclaimed, after snatching a kiss.

"Yes," she said, somewhat disappointed that he had missed her lips in his haste and merely kissed her upon the chin; "it was under done."

Then he proceeded to overdo it.—Troy Times.

WHY SHE DIDN'T SING.

Superstition Kept Her From Becoming a Prima Donna.

"I have come across a great deal of foolishness of varying degrees and kinds in my life," said the man who teaches singing, "but in all my born days I never before met anybody as hopelessly feeble minded as a young woman I have been taking an interest in lately. She is a stenographer by occupation, and I happened to hear her hum a popular song one day when I was in her employer's office. Of course the production of her tones was all wrong, but her voice was as soft as velvet and big and deep and clear as a cathedral bell. It was a voice such as a teacher doesn't get a chance to work on twice in a lifetime.

"I went to her and asked her to let me try her voice. It proved to be better than I had hoped. It was magnificent. I wanted her to begin studying at once. She had no money, but I didn't want money for bringing out a voice like that. She hadn't much time either, and she told me she was too tired to sing in the evenings after working all day. I told her to get up early and practice an hour or two before breakfast. I thought she looked odd when I told her to do it, but she didn't say she wouldn't.

"Weeks passed, and her method continued as bad as ever. I couldn't understand it. Each lesson found her just where the preceding one left her. At last one day I asked her if she were she wouldn't practice before breakfast flushed and then broke down. She said she hadn't dared to sing before breakfast because it is bad luck.

"'Sing before you eat, cry before you sleep,' is the saying, and that idiot of a girl believed it so implicitly that she wouldn't practice before breakfast even for the sake of that glorious voice of hers, and as before breakfast was the only time she had to practice the result was—well, I gave her up. She'll live and die a stenographer when she might be a prima donna, and it will serve her precisely right. She has sacrificed her future to an idiotic superstition."—Washington Post.

A SERENADE OF WOLVES.

How One Was Started In the National Zoo at Washington.

In The Century Ernest Seton-Thompson, who used to be known as "Wolf" Thompson from his familiarity with this particular form of wild animal, tells how he started a wolf serenade at the National zoo in Washington.

While making these notes among the animals of the Washington zoo I used to go at all hours to see them. Late one evening I sat down with some friends by the wolf cages in the light of a full moon. I said, "Let us see whether they have forgotten the music of the west." I put up my hands to my mouth and howled the hunting song of the pack. The first to respond was a coyote from the plains. He remembered the wild music that used to mean pickings for him. He put up his muzzle and "yap yapped" and howled. Next an old wolf from Colorado came running out, looked and listened earnestly, and, raising her snout to the proper angle, she took up the wild strain. Then all the others came running out and joined in, each according to his voice, but all singing that wild wolf hunting song, howling and yelling, rolling and swelling, high and low, in the cadence of the hills.

> They sang me their song of the west, the west;
> They set all my feelings aglow;
> They stirred up my heart with their artless art
> And their song of the long ago.

Again and again they raised the cry and sang in chorus till the whole moonlit wood around was ringing with the grim refrain—until the inhabitans in the near city must have thought all the beasts broken loose. But at length their clamor died away, and the wolves returned, slunk back to their dens, silently, sadly, I thought, as though they realized that they could indeed join in the hunting song as of old, but their hunting days were forever done.

He Was Admitted.

Fortunately when red tape comes in contact with common sense it is red tape which goes to the wall. A good story is told of a military official who devised a system which compelled every one who went on business to General Banks to procure a ticket from a member of the staff, the presentation of which at the door gained his admission. One day a burly colonel came to the door of the private office at headquarters and requested that his name be given to the general.

"Have you a ticket?" he was asked.

"A ticket!" echoed the colonel, with scorn. "No, sir, I haven't."

"You can't enter here without one," was the reply.

"Sir," said the colonel, "when General Banks becomes a puppet show, and I have 25 cents to spare, I'll buy a ticket to see him, not before." He was admitted.

The Sleepless Seven.

"There were seven of the 12," said one of the discharged jurors in speaking of the matter next morning, "who didn't want to sleep themselves and wouldn't let the rest of us sleep. Whenever we dropped into a doze, they came around and shook us till we were wide awake again."

"And you had to submit, I suppose, for they constituted the majority?"

"Yes, they were the rousing majority," said the hollow eyed juror, with a pensive attempt to be facetious.—Chicago Tribune.

Corroborative Evidence.

Miss Summit—What a lot of old china Miss Spindle has! And she says it was handed down in her family.

Miss Palisade—Then it is just as I expected.

Miss Summit—What is?

Miss Palisade—That her ancestors never kept servants.—Harper's Bazar.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

LOG JAMS.

The Force They Exert and How They Are Broken Up.

"A log jam is one of the most formidable problems we have to encounter in our line of business," said a Mississippi lumberman. "How they begin is difficult to explain. A few dozen logs will become wedged for an instant in a narrow part of a stream and in less time than it takes me to tell it hundreds of others will come swooping down and pack themselves in an intricate, close knit span, reaching from bank to bank, and almost as solid as a rock. The force they exert is something marvelous. During one jam in my section I saw a lot of logs plunge under the edge of the blockade, and a few seconds later they pushed their way up through the very middle of the pack, tossing timbers as big around as a man's waist into the air like so many toothpicks. The noise they made as they drove through the mass was simply deafening. It sounded as if the solid earth was being torn up by its foundations. When the logs passed under the jam, they were evidently caught in such a way as to still further obstruct the imprisoned stream and were hurled upward with all the irresistible energy of millions of gallons of rushing water.

"The breaking of a jam is a very ticklish operation and seems to be largely a matter of instinct with old rivermen. The lines and angles of strain in such a blockade are so complicated that the best engineer in the world is apt to go wrong in indicating the proper point of attack. A veteran lumberman, on the contrary, will often take a long look at the mass and then point out the 'key log.' The key log is the timber on which the strain centers, and when it is blown out or pried out, the pack, in almost every instance, will break up of itself. I had an old fellow in my employ a few years ago who could locate a key log nine times out of ten. He couldn't read or write, knew nothing about engineering and was unable to explain how he arrived at his conclusions. He said it 'came kinder nach'ral.'"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

SHAKESPEAREAN PARTS.

The Melancholy Dane Is the Longest of Them All.

The longest part in any Shakespearean play is Hamlet, who is before the audience almost constantly. Hamlet is a constant talker, and it is surprising that in the circumstances he says so many wise things. He has to his share 1,569 lines. Richard III is another long part, as the character speaks 1,161 lines, and next comes Iago, with 1,117 lines. Henry V has 1,063 lines.

One would suppose from seeing the representation or from looking over the play that Othello had more lines than Iago, but it is not the case, for the valiant Moor has only 888 lines. Coriolanus has 886, the Duke in "Measure For Measure" 880 and Timon 883. Antony in "Antony and Cleopatra" does not seem a very long part judging by the appearance of the prompt book, but in reality he has 830 lines.

Brutus in "Julius Cæsar" has 727, Falstaff in "Henry V" 719. Macbeth appears a long part judging from how much he is on the stage in the representation, but in fact he has only 705 lines. Romeo has 618, which is only a few more than the King in "Hamlet," who has 551. Cassius in "Julius Cæsar," although a first class part, has but 507 lines.

The female parts in Shakespeare's plays are not very long. The actress who plays Portia has 580 lines to study. Rosalind has 749. Cleopatra has 670 and Juliet 541. Desdemona has only 389. Beatrice has 309. Only 20 of Shakespeare's women have more than 300 lines each, and some of the most famous of the great bard's feminine creations have comparatively little to say. Cordelia in "King Lear" has only 115 lines. Kate in "Taming of the Shrew," although so conspicuous and voluble, has but 229, while Lady Macbeth has but 211.—Baltimore American.

Moon Views From the Grant Tomb.

Persons of romantic temperament have discovered that the best place in New York from which to watch the moon rising in the east is the porch of General Grant's tomb. Standing, as it does, away from all other buildings, at the highest part of the Riverside drive, with the beautiful Hudson river flowing softly along a hundred feet below, the noble edifice in which lies the hero is as full of poetical charm as the Alhambra itself. As the moon rises one can see the rays touching column after column of the mausoleum, throwing into deeper shadow the recesses and giving the whole building an ethereal aspect which is strikingly beautiful. Young couples who are strolling along the drive make it a point to go up to the tomb to watch the moon rise, and the idea is becoming so popular that the charm of solitude at least has certainly departed.—New York Letter in Pittsburg Dispatch.

His Supposition.

A philanthropic lady of Pacific Heights, one of the sort of superior slum raisers shown up in "Fables In Slang," met on one of her tours a little boy who was swearing roundly. She seized him at once and gave him a good shaking, adding: "You ought to be ashamed of yourself! I never heard such language since the day I was born!" The boy into whose desolate home she had just been bringing light pulled himself loose. "Yes'm," he said, "I s'pose dere was a good deal o' cussin de day you was born."—San Francisco Wave.

He Took the Hint.

"It is my aim in life," he said, "to make men happier."

"Why not women?" she asked.—Chicago Post.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 21, 1900.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on September 18th 1900, viz: Levant G. Rice, H. E. 19780, for the se¼ nw¼ and ne¼ sw¼ sec. 22, twp. 153 N. range 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:—Hulva Hulvason, Hans Frederickson, George W. German, of Thief River Falls, Minn., and Louis Hendrickson of St. Hilaire, Minn. [illegible]

52-58 SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are able to give FARM STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.35.

NOTICE.

Department of the Interior.
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota.

PUBLIC SALE.—ISOLATED TRACT.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, under authority in him vested by section 2455 U. S. R. S., as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895 (28 Stat., 687) we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 1st day of September 1900, at ten o'clock a. m., the following tract of land to-wit:

SE¼ NE¼ Sec. 1, T. 151 N., R. 43 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversly the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the said sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated July 20th, 1900.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.
Mscl. App. No. 296—3151.
52-5

—Screen doors and windows made to order at I. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

The Standard
Uncle Sam's Monogram Whiskey
makes new friends, old friends and all friends true friends.
ST. PAUL BENZ MINNEAPOLIS.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.
—0—
Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Razors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

Hamm's
BEER
THEO. HAMM BREWING CO.
ST. PAUL, MINN.

Buy a case of nearest agent or write to the brewery.

NORTHERN PACIFIC

RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

TO HELENA
BUTTE
SPOKAND
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND

PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo, with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

20,000 Acres

Of Wild and Improved Lands for sale in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

Prairie Lands,
Speculators Lands,
Timber Lands.

HIMLE LAND & LOAN COMPANY,
Purchasers of N. P. Ry. Co. lands in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

Call on or address
FRED G. WELLS, Local Mgr.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

$150,000 to Loan on Farm Lands.

First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.

UNCLE SAM
Is not
In the Shoe
Business,
And Neither
Am I,
But I can
Interest
You in
CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

J. B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WE[illegible] CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of [illegible]ter Guaranteed.
Repairing [illegible] Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

For Fine Goods
Good Goods
New Goods
Up to Date Goods

Visit Us as we are the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents Furnishing House in the City.

GREAT WESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route

Best Line to Chicago and St. Louis

"The Limited," the finest train in the world, leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m., St. Paul 8:05 p. m., every day. Electric lighted, steam heated, has compartment and standard sleepers, reclining chair cars, coaches, and dining car on the cafe plan. "The Scenic Express" leaves Minneapolis 7:40 a. m. St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday. Ask your home agent for tickets via this line.

P. S. EUSTIS,
Gen'l Pass. Agent,
CHICAGO, ILL.

GEO. P. LYMAM,
Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent
ST. PAUL, MINN.

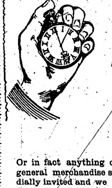
Cigars.

J. B. SENATE
DEALER IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.

(Brink Bros. Old Stand) St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

NEW MEAT MARKET.
L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.



It's Time

Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
O. F. Post, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. G.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Mrs. L. Lacoursiere, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant	Councilmen
T. J. Thorkelson	Councilmen
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario.
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes
Alex Patnode	Gervias	Red Lake Falls

The Ideal Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS.
PROMPT SERVICE.
OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd STORE
(Second Hand Store.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
St. Hilaire, Minnesota

New Restaurant
[Brink Bros. Corner Building.]
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.
If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
C. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the Spectator, Official county and village paper.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.64½	Oats	.19
Wheat No. 2	.62½	Barley	.28
Wheat No. 3	.58½	Flax	.122
Eggs (per doz).	8	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

—For screen doors and windows go to I. Dahleen's.

Work on the Catholic church is progressing slowly.

Choke cherries are ripe and very plentiful this year.

The Boers are credited with winning a few victories lately.

E. J. Brink spent the fore part of the week at the upper Falls.

The republican county convention will be held August 25th.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

C. G. Rapp made a business trip to the county seat yesterday.

Messrs. Kelly and Ruck were down from the upper Falls Sunday.

Martin Hall is confined to his bed with an attack of typhoid fever.

Justice of the Peace Gigstad has been busy in the hay field the past week.

J. E. Morrissy, the Crookston foundry man is in the village on business to-day.

No particular damage was done by the hail falling last Saturday afternoon.

Editor Smiley of the Thief River Falls Press spent Sunday in our village.

Pickerel in large quantities have recently been taken out of Wicker's lake.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

Candidates for the various county offices are hustling to get the nomination.

Get out your final citizens papers before August 8th if you wish to vote this fall.

Ira C. Richardson, postmaster-attorney was down from Thief River Falls yesterday.

Oscar Brink now holds down the position of day clerk at the Hotel Markham.

J. L. Johnson made a business trip to the county seat Friday returning Saturday.

Miss Mary Quande of Thief River Falls was visiting friends in the village last week.

A social dance was given in the dining room of the Hotel St. Hilaire Saturday evening.

Chas. Brink was down from Thief River Falls last Thursday renewing acquaintances.

President Shevlin of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company was here between trains yesterday.

Wheat is commencing to turn in some sections and will be ready to cut in a week or ten days.

W. A. Sorsoleil was reelected treasurer of school district No. 102 at the annual meeting Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Taylor now occupy the Webb residence, the Webb family having moved to Thief River Falls.

We are informed by J. K. Hannay that young Quadey gets $1,100 instead of $700 as reported in our last issue.

Rev. Myers and wife were agreeably surprised last evening by a pound party that took possession of the parsonage.

Red Lake Falls had a red hot fight over their school election Saturday in which the McNally forces were turned down.

Dr. Thomas came up from Crookston Monday on his regular monthly visits and relieved a number of suffering patients.

The midsummer excursion to the Red Men's outing at Bemidji takes place next Sunday and tickets good for three days.

J. Nelson, our popular druggist returned home Monday from a pleasant two weeks vacation at his old home, Evansville.

Dr. Dunlop of Crookston was here Saturday for a few hours while enroute home from a professional trip to Thief River Falls.

To-day is "American Day" at the Winnipeg exhibition. Thousands of people from this side of the line are there taking in the sights.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

Hay is being cut between the two Wicker lakes where for the past ten years it was impossible to walk with hip boots without getting wet.

P. Lemay, the milk-man, does not find it profitable to sell and deliver milk and will go out of the business, making his last trip tomorrow.

Compare the platforms of the two great political parties and you will have no difficulty in deciding that one is an American platform and other is not.

Rev. J. Peterson from Clear Lake, Wis., will preach in the Methodist church next Sunday evening, July 29, at 8:00 o'clock. All are invited to come.

"Fake and robber outfit from start to finish" is what a Dakota paper says in regard to the circus that shows at the upper Falls tomorrow. This should be warning enough.

The market for ginseng is at a stand still on account of the disturbances in China. Ginseng is not used at all except by Chinese and if you have any on hand hold it for a rise in price.

The Crookston Lumber Company expect to start their mill sawing by the first of August. They expect the large drive of logs on the Clearwater to reach Red Lake Falls by the end of this week.

For Sale:—The following furniture belonging to A. R. Mattes: Two carpets, 2 lamps, 1 couch, 3 pair lace curtains and poles, 1 screen, 1 pair postiers and pole and 2 smyrna rugs. Call on P. G. Oyen.

The windstorm Saturday afternoon raised havoc at the lumber yard of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company near the planing mill. As high as twelve tiers on one pile was picked up and scattered broadcast throughout the yard.

Farmers southeast of St. Hilaire complain of Red Lake Falls hunters shooting half grown chickens in that vicinity. Shooting chickens the size of meadow larks in July is an outrage, and violators should serve a time sentence of ninety days.

Will Kratka, who has held down the position of "ad" man on the Crookston Times for the past three months was here a few minutes last Saturday while enroute to Thief River Falls where he goes to hold down the position of foreman of the Press.

The Moorehead News says the Forepaugh-Sells Bros. circus was the worst case of flim flam that has ever been worked on the people of that part of the country for many years and the people who were unfortunate enough to attend have been kicking themselves ever since for their foolishness.

The attorney general has recently rendered a decision to the effect that no relative of a member of a school board can be legally elected to the position of teacher by the board of which her relatives is a member. Among relatives are included those related by marriage as well as by blood.

The view taken of it by the McIntosh Times may be the correct one, Editor Lanman says: The Belgian hare craze may be all right for the breeders, but with our local merchants unable to more than half supply the demand for eggs and chickens, our advice to our readers is to stick to the old hen and give her just a little better care and more of it.

A traveling man: Coming down from St. Hilaire yesterday, I saw three buggies on the north side of the track, and the occupants were out shooting over dogs, and chickens were falling. I had no trouble in recognizing one of the rigs, and it was from Crookston. Notify the game warden, will you. I'm going out of town and will not be able to see him.—Crookston Times.

The national game was played here Sunday afternoon between the "kid" nine from Thief River Falls and the St. Hilaire "kids." It was a very interesting game considering the size of the little fellows, and up to the first half of the eight inning the visiting club had the best of the game by long odds. At the end of the game the score stood 18 to 20 in favor of the home nine.

About a dozen and a half of the nimrods of St. Hilaire have signed an agreement and will see that anyone violating the game laws are prosecuted to the limit—this means $25 for each and every chicken instead of $10. A fund for this purpose has been raised and someone may learn the full meaning of the game law in regard to prairie chicken or grouse to their sorrow.

The gigantic fraud traveling under the name of English-American Syndicate Shows is none other than the Lehmon Bros. outfit. It gave performances at Lakota Tuesday and every conceivable scheme was worked to draw the dollars from the unwary.—Michigan City (N. D.) Independent.

The above circus will show at Thief River Falls tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Two newspapers in the northern part of the state have changed ownership during the past week. H. E. Mussey of the Thief River Press has sold out to an association who will run it as a democratic paper, and J. C. Nordby of the Ada Herald has sold out to Jason Weatherhead who has been foreman of the same office for the past nine years. We wish both papers the best of success.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Aug. 27th and 28th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 27th and 28th.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

For the week ending July 23, 1900.

There were light and much scattered rains in the northern half of the state in the middle and latter part of the week; in the Minnesota valley and thence southward, the rains were moderately heavy, and in a few places very heavy, and they continued over from the last days of the preceding week till about the 19th, and in some places till a later date, with danger of loss to shocked grain by sprouting and discoloring, and delaying harvesting. The splendid filling of the heads of spring wheat with grain of good quality is reported in all sections, but the straw is very short exept in especially favored sections. A considerable acreage of wheat was plowed under or mown before the rains came, and plowing is still going on in Marshall county. Spring wheat harvest began in one of the south central counties on the 19th, and harvest will be general in all but the northern counties by the 25th. Many wheat fields are very irregular in condition, and occasionally there is to be seen in the same wheat field all stages of growth from the forming head to the fully ripened grain. Most of the barley is in shock. The oat crop is generally poor; much is nearly ready to cut, and a great deal is already cut. In many fields of oats, stooling began after the rains fell, and while the stools are green and forming heads, the parent plant is ripe. Early flax has improved considerably, and some is turning color. Haying is nearing completion; the crop is very light, and in southern counties some of the unsecured crop is spoiled by rain. Corn and potatoes are doing excellently. Apples continue to drop off, but generally the crop is a good one.

The Grand Opera House at Crookston offer some superior attractions for next week on Monday July 30th, the Boston Lyric Opera Company present the comic opera "The Idols Eye" and on Wednesday August 1st Rusco and Holland's Nashville Students of 30 people with their two bands and orchestra will present the best minstrel show seen for some time.

The policy holders in the old swindling Montevideo Farmers Insurance Co. and the Montevideo Hail Insurance Co., whose receiver has been trying for a couple of years past to bluff them into paying a big assessment, are likely to remember that this same receiver is now a candidate for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket. Some of them are already getting their pencils sharpened.—Northfield Independent.

—If you want to make a loan or sell your farm call on or address Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

The candidate—He rubbed the heads of Sam and Sue and swore the twins were beautiful and wished he had two—but that don't count. He asked about the corn bread which he vainly tried to chew, and forthwith begged for the receipt, of course, that tickled ma—but that don't count. But just before he left he stopped and winked, closed his jaw and slipped out behind the barn, he took a drink with pa—thats what counts.—Ex.

—The Himle Land and Loan Co., will loan money on farm lands at legal rate, no commission, call on or address, Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

Game Warden Shaw tells the Times that the fishway ordered by the state fish and game commissioner is now being constructed at the Crookston dam, and fish-ways will also be put in at the Gooding dam between Crookston and Red Lake Falls, and wherever artifical obstructions exist, thus ensuring a clear passage up stream through the whole Minnesota length of the river for fish during the spawning season and giving the up-river folks a chance at all food fish, which they have heretofore been deprived of by the dams.—Crookston Times.

Bargains.

The remainder of our wash goods consisting of dimities, lawns, silk stripe zephyr, ponge zephyr, etc., will be closed out regardless of cost to make room for our fall and winter goods. Come and secure some real bargains.

E. M. Hoff.

Arrow Shots.

A church is never too weak to quarrel.

Some days nearly every man is named John.

We wonder that some folks never get tired talking.

The most hopeless thing on earth is a boy who won't work.

We cannot see how any man enjoys carrying a big beard around.

Men who do not go to church like to find fault with those who do.

When a girl has nothing else to do, she puts up her hair a new way.

A man can take a map almost any time and find a better location.

Some people have clothes that they wear only when they go to funerals.

How much better looking some people would be if they never looked around.

If a man spills something on the floor, he sets something over it to hide it while a woman cleans it up.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Aug. 27th and 28th.

"We have sold many different cough remedies, but none has given better satisfaction than Chamberlain's," says Mr. Charles F. Holzhauer, Druggist, Newark, N. J. "It is perfectly safe and can be relied upon in all cases of coughs, colds or hoarseness." For sale by The Imperial Drug store.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

People's Party County Convention.

A peoples party county convention for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota will be held at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county on Wednesday the 1st day of August 1900, for the purpose of placing in nomination the candidates of said party for the following county officers: Auditor, Treasurer, Superintendent of Schools, Register of Deeds, Sheriff, County Attorney, Judge of Probate, Surveyor, Coroner, commissioner for the 2nd district, and commissioner for the 4th district of the said Red Lake county.

Also for the purpose of electing the necessary number of delegates to attend the legislative convention for the 61st legislative district to be held later.

The basis of representation as determined by the county central committee shall be one delegate at large for each voting precinct, and one delegate for every fifty voters or majority part thereof, cast for P. M. Ringdal for member of congress at the general election in 1898.

In conformity with the foregoing apportionment the voting precincts of Red Lake county will be entitled to delegates in said convention as follows:

Black River	2	Bray	1
Emardville	1	Equality	1
Garnes	1	Gervais	1
Lake Pleasant	2	Lambert	2
Louisville	1	Norden	1
North	1	Numedal	1
Polk Centre	1	Poplar River	2
R L Falls 1st ward	2	T R Falls 1st ward	2
2nd ward	3	2nd ward	1
3rd ward	2	3rd ward	1
R L Falls twp	2	River Falls	2
Rocksbury	1	Sanders	1
St Hilaire village	2	Terrebonne	2
Wyandotte	1

The primaries for the election of delegates to attend said convention will be held in each of the above precincts on the 28th day of July, 1900. The polls of said primaries shall be open at 7:30 o'clock p. m., and shall be closed at 8:30 o'clock p. m. of said day.

By order of the People's Party County Central Committee of Red Lake county, Minnesota.

H. E. Ives,
Chairman.

Frank Jeffers,
Secretary.

It has been agreed that newspaper subscriptions are an infallible test of a man's honesty. They will sooner or later discover the man. If he is dishonest he will cheat the printer some way—declare he has paid when he has not—sent money in the mails which was lost—will take the paper, and not pay for it on the ground that he never subscribed for it—or move off and leave it coming to the office he left. Thousands of alleged christains are dishonest in this particular, at least, and the printer's book will tell fearful tales at the final judgement.—Press & Printer.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

From Farm, Stock and Home.

Census enumerators puncture a lot of city population bubbles.

The fowl is a surface cultivator; the Belgian hare is a sub-soiler!

Sleep in none of the soiled, sweaty garments worn during the day.

Blessed are the animals whose owner owns pastures that owns plenty of shade!

When all farmer inflictions are put to the test, the Belgian hare will prove itself the vilest pest.

In the stacks of surplus hay will be found dollars that were not put into the stacks at haying time.

When a political party takes credit to itself for good crops how can it hope to escape responsibility for bad ones?

Cultivate the habit of thinking and speaking as kindly of your neighbor while he lives as you will when he is dead!

There are two light wheels in yonder rubbish pile, probably from a broken-down hay rake, that would make a useful hand cart easily possible.

Last winter when hay and other winter forage was abundant and cheap, F. S. & H. admonished farmers to waste none, for no man could tell how badly it might be needed later on. The soundness of that admonition is realized now.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

Sixteen to one as described by chairman James D. Richardson.

THE SIXTEEN:

1. Republic against Empire.—2. Trusts.—3. Currency Reform.—4. Bimetallism.—5. The Monroe Doctrine.—6. Inter-oceanic Canal.—7. Civil Service.—8. Admission of Territories—9. Plain duty in Porto Rico.—10. War of Conquest in the Philippines.—11. Government Favors to Banks. (The World's Exposure)—12. War Department Scandals.—13. Cuban Postal Scandals.—14. The Boers.—15. War Taxes.—16. Cost of Republicanism and "Its Twin Monster, Imperialism."—Not one Specific Word on Silver.

THE ONE:

The Man—"One who stands like a mighty rock in the desert; who, knowing the right, will dare to do right, the typical and true American, William J. Bryan, of Nebraska."

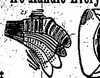
Spent a Good Farm Doctoring.

Mr. A. N. Noell of Asherville, Kansas says he spent a good farm doctoring himself for chronic diarrhoea but got no relief and was afraid that he must die. He chanced to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was permanently cured by it. For sale by The Imperial drug store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewelry Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly,
Prof. Jno. Adams,
Watchmaker and Optician.



We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right
And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries
Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware
We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of
Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—of—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

DISASTER IN A FOG

VESSEL CUT IN TWAIN BY THE CAMPANIA.

Eleven Members of the Crew, Including the Captain, Were Drowned — During a Dense Fog the Embleton Appears Suddenly, Without Warning, Across the Campania's Bows—Liner Crashes Through Her Like a Clean Cut of a Sword—Whole Occurrence Did Not Last Eighty Seconds.

London, July 23.—A dense fog hung over the Irish channel yesterday morning and the Cunard line steamer Campania, en route from New York to Liverpool, struck the Liverpool bark Embleton, bound for New Zealand, amidships, cutting her in twain.

The Embleton sank immediately. Seven of the crew were rescued, but it is believed the other eleven members of the ship's company, including the captain, were drowned.

The Campania was little injured, but had a narrow escape from a serious disaster. The fog had delayed her passage since Friday noon and a tender went out from Queenstown four miles, as Capt. Waller would not take the liner near shore.

At Tusker light the fog was becoming

Denser Every Moment.

When the Campania was about thirty miles northeast of the light a phantom ship rose suddenly, without warning, directly across her bows. Thirty seconds later the phantom had become a solid sailing vessel into which the liner crashed, her steel forefoot going through the Embleton like the clean cut of a sword and dividing her just abaft the main mast. The forward half sank instantly. The stern swung viciously round and the mast and yards for a moment tore at the Campania. A lump of wreckage came down on her decks. Then the stern of the bark also disappeared and the surface of the sea was littered with splintered timbers, boxes, barrels, the whole upper works and lighter cargo, the deck houses and such things.

From the instant when the

Phantom Came Into View

from the bridge of the Campania until the last vestige of the vessel vanished some sixty or eighty seconds elapsed.

According to the Embleton's survivors, for nearly half an hour before the collision the captain and the first officer were below at breakfast, and although the fog whistle of a large steamer could be heard every minute the bark never shifted her course, the helmsman receiving no order.

When, at 8:25 a. m., the second officer, to use his own phrase, "heard the rush of a steamer's bows," he shouted down to the captain, who rushed on deck, but he was too late to give an order.

The Campania was under one-third steam. The captain, first officer and pilot were on the bridge. The engines and the helm put hard down. No precaution was omitted. Some of her passengers had even grumbled at what they called superfluous precaution. After the crash and the sudden cries the boats were quickly got out. There was no sign of panic. The crew were everywhere at their stations, the best of discipline was maintained, the bulkheads were closed and everything possible was done to save life. Some of the Campania's plates were bent by the collision, her forepeak filled with water, her foretopmast was broken short off and her steel rigging torn and twisted. The passengers held a meeting, adopted resolutions of thanks to the captain and crew, and subscribed 700 pounds for the relief of the survivors and the families of the lost.

Were Instantly Reversed

FOUR MERGED INTO ONE.

Several Departments in Cuban Island Are Consolidated.

Washington, July 23.—Orders issued at the war department consolidate the departments of Havana, Pinar del Rio, Matanzas and Santa Clara into one department to be knowne as the Department of Western Cuba, with headquarters at Quemados, and designates the departments of Santiago and Porto Principe as the Departments of Eastern Cuba, with headquarters at Santiago. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee is assigned to command the former and Col. Whitside, Tenth cavalry, to the command of the latter.

HOLDING THEIR WOOL.

Texas Growers Refuse to Accept Present Prices.

Houston, Tex., July 23. — The Post prints reports from various points in Texas showing that 2,000,000 pounds of wool are being held in the state because the growers refuse to accept current prices, and that there is probably as much more held at uncounted points. The growers have held a conference at Lampassas and agreed to hold the entire clip indefinitely. They claim that there is a shortage of wool and that the manufacturers will come to their terms rather than import.

ASTONISHES PHYSICIANS.

Successful Test of the Yellow Fever Serum.

Vera Cruz, July 23.—The first patient treated with the yellow fever serum by the young Brazilian experimenter, Dr. Bellinzaghi, is now fully convalescent. Other patients treated are progressing favorably. There is intense interest in the experiments and every facility is afforded the doctor. Patients very low with black vomit have been treated and the effect of the serum is marvelous, astonishing old physicians here.

Gas Plant for Chamberlain.

Chamberlain, S. D., July 23. — The city council has granted a permit to Messrs Blodgett & Douthett of Mitchell to put in a gas plant in the city, and they are already engaged in making the initial preparations for getting the plant in working order.

Resident Since 1857.

Atwater, Minn., July 23.—Michael Wheeler, one of the earliest settlers, is dead. The Wheeler brothers settled here in 1857 and have lived here continuously ever since.

Paintings for Grandma's Yacht.

Berlin—The German emperor has expressed a desire to furnish three sea pieces, painted by himself, for the decoration of Queen Victoria's yacht, soon to be completed. The kaiser's own yacht is adorned by many of his own paintings.

Storing of Automobiles.

New York—In New York the storing of automobiles is becoming a problem. Some of the livery stables decline to accept them, on the ground that they are ruining the livery business.

COAT OF TAR AND FEATHERS.

Farmers in Minnehaha County, S. D., Get Rid of a Neighbor.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 23. — The farmers living in the southern portion of Wellington township, this (Minnehaha) county, adopted a summary method of ridding the community of an undesirable resident. The victim was Barney Fenstermann, who has lived in that locality for about ten years. For some time Fenstermann's neighbors have felt very bitter toward him, due, it is claimed by them, to the belief that he knew something concerning the systematic and regular disappearance of grain from the granaries of surrounding farmers. They organized a temporary White Cap society, proceeded in force to Fenstermann's domicile, applied a liberal coat of tar and feathers, after which they informed their victim that they would give him just twenty-four hours to disappear. He has not since been seen by any of his neighbors.

PREVENTED A WRECK.

Obstructions Removed From the Track Just in Time.

Three Lakes, Wis., July 23.—Some time during Saturday night eighteen ties were laid on the railway track five miles east of here. Eli Swan, a laborer at Ely & Cox's camp at Stella Junction, was coming to town early yesterday and removed the obstruction just in time to prevent passenger train No. 27 from striking it. Swan also removed a number of large rocks from a bridge a short distance north, his action probably saving the lives of the thirty members of the Three Lakes Rod and Gun club, who were on the train.

QUITE A SKIRMISH.

Suspected Thieves Rounded Up After a Lively Fusillade.

Heron Lake, Minn., July 23.—Yesterday afternoon the village marshal tried to arrest three men who had been hanging around the town, selling goods very cheaply. The men drew guns and stood the marshal off. He called for assistance and a posse was quickly formed, who took after the trio, and after a running fight and the exchange of about thirty shots the men surrendered. They were lodged in jail. Their stock of men's shoes, pants and cigars are held here for information as to where they were stolen. No one was injured, but there was some narrow escapes in the fusilade.

POSSIBLY A MURDER.

Serious Shooting Affray at Wilmont, Near Worthington.

Worthington, Minn., July 23.—Saturday night a shooting affair occurred in the house of a man named Miller at Wilmont, in this county. Miller, the owner of the house, found Haley upstairs. He called to his aid his assistant, a harnessmaker, and they undertook to put Haley out. In the melee, Haley was shot through the breast and is not expected to live. Miller and his assistant are now in jail here.

CURTIS DECLINES.

Iowa Man Will Not Succeed Perry Heath.

Clinton, Iowa, July 23. — Ex-Congressman George M. Curtis of this city will not accept the position of first assistant postmaster general which was tendered him, on account of business reasons. He has also declined to become a candidate for the nomination of congressman on the Republican ticket for the Second district, which office he held for four years.

Fight With Horse Thieves.

Sturgis, S. D., July 23. — The two men who stole a team of horses from H. D. Borgen, and a wagon from a meat market man, have been captured by the sheriff and a posse of three men. The thieves were overtaken five miles north of Slim Buttes, where they were found in possession of the stolen property. The men resisted arrest and the sheriff ordered the posse to fire. One of the robbers was shot in the thigh, making a dangerous wound. The men are strangers.

Opening a Rich Mine.

Deadwood, S. D., July 23.—Otto P. T. Grantz, owner of the rich Hidden Fortune mine north of Lead, has commenced stripping off his rich shoot of ore with steam and scraper. He expects to find more of the rich ore. Grantz intends to make a fight against the assessment by the assessor of his mine. It was first placed at $65,000, then reduced to $42,000, but this he considered too high.

Cardinal Gibbons Speaks.

Stillwater, Minn., July 23.—St. Michael's church was crowded yesterday with a fashionable congregation who heard Cardinal Gibbons preach a magnificent sermon on "Charity." A reception will be given in his honor on Wednesday night by Mr. and Mrs. John O'Brien. He will remain here until Friday.

Killed by Cars.

Barnesville, Minn., July 23.—Ed Nelson, formerly of Barnesville, Minn., a switchman on the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific railway, while at work fell between the cars and was instantly killed. Nine cars passed over his body. He was twenty-six years old and leaves a wife and three children. He will be brought here for burial.

Fattened on Russian Thistles.

Pierre, S. D., July 23.—Thomas Lytle of Sully county brought in nine hogs and sold them for $91. These hogs have been fattened entirely on a pasture of Russian thistles. With that way of fattening he calls the money received for them practically clear profit.

Lightning Fires the Prairie.

Sterling, N. D., July 23.—Lightning set the prairies on fire all over this section of the country. The fire was driven by high winds, destroying vast amounts of hay and pasturage. Some buildings were also burned.

An Incendiary Fire.

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 23.—A residence just vacated by William Carmel was burned. The building was empty; no insurance. This is the fourth incendiary fire within the last four weeks.

Just Like Milk.

"Mamma!" exclaimed the little fish, "that worm I just sneaked off the hook seemed to me to be quite sour."

"Well, my dear," replied the mamma fish, "the weather's quite warm, and the worm will turn," you know."—Philadelphia Press.

Hotel Attractions.

"Yes, he started a hotel, and he's made a hit, too. You know the old-established place across the street advertised itself as a hotel without the discomforts of a home."—Philadelphia Press.

FILIPINOS KILLED

MACARTHUR REPORTS RECENT ENGAGEMENTS.

Two Hundred Insurgents Were Killed and One Hundred and Thirty Surrendered or Captured—Americans Lost Twelve Killed and Eleven Wounded — Signal Corps Twice Ambushed—A Reply From Aguinaldo to the Amnesty Resolutions Is Expected Within a Month — Filipinos Celebrate McKinley's Order.

Manila, July 23.—It is officially stated that last week 200 insurgents were killed and 130 surrendered or were captured. One hundred rifles were taken.

Twelve Americans were killed and eleven were wounded. This includes the casualties of Col. William E. Birkheimer's engagement with a force of the Twenty-eighth volunteer infantry, who attacked 200 insurgent rifles intrenched two miles east of Tal, killing thirty-eight.

A detachment of the signal corps, while repairing wires, was twice ambushed.

Capt. Charles D. Roberts of the Thirty-fifth volunteer infantry, who was captured by the Filipinos last May, has arrived here on parole. He will not return to captivity.

Senor Buencanimo last Thursday sent to Aguinaldo, by means of Aguinaldo's mother, the amnesty resolutions adopted by the meeting of representative Filipinos here on June 21, together with Gen. MacArthur's answer to them, and other documents bearing upon the restoration of peace. It is understood that Aguinaldo will summon his advisers and that a reply may be expected within a month.

Filipinos here will give a banquet next Saturday in celebration of President McKinley's order of amnesty.

BOERS PRAISED.

United States Officer Has Good Word for Burghers.

London, July 23. — Bronzed to a Cuban brown after eight months of service in the field, Capt. Stephen L. H. Slocum, United States military attache with the British army, arrived in London from South Africa last night. In an interview he said:

"The war in South Africa is over. The Boer's resistance reached the guerrilla stage six weeks ago, and the bushwhacking campaign cannot last much longer. They have fought a good fight, but the odds against them were overwhelming. The sensational charges of mismanagement in the royal army hospital service have little foundation. Lord Roberts' medical service in the field is good—quite as good as soldiers could expect."

KRUGER DIRECTING DEFENSE.

Oom Paul Commanding Burghers Who Will Resist Attack on Middleburg.

Cape Town, July 23.—Lord Roberts has attacked Middleburg in force and a big battle is in progress. President Kruger is with the burghers, directing the defense.

CLOSE SHAVE.

Mob Nearly Succeeds in Tar and Feathering a Preacher of Zion Church.

Mansfield, Ohio, July 23.—Cyrus B. Fockler, a preacher of the Zion of Christian Catholic church, of which Alexander B. Dowie of Chicago, is the dean, was roughly handled by a mob here. Fockler had presided over a congregation here, but he left town some time ago in connection with charges with regard to his divine healing. When he returned a mob gathered about him at his hotel, and the police were called upon for protection. The mob took Fockler from the police, carried him to the city gas house, stripped him of his clothing, and were preparing to apply a coat of tar and feathers when a large force of police finally rescued the preacher. He was taken to the police station and was later spirited out of the city.

YAQUIS ARE SCATTERED.

Not Seriously Troublesome to Mexicans at Present.

City of Mexico, July 23.—Gen. Luis Torres, governor of Sonora and commander-in-chief of the forces against the Yaquis, has come to this city to make a detailed report of the progress of the campaign to President Diaz and Minister of War Rels. From an interview with him it is gathered that the Yaquis have been pretty well scattered and broken up into small bodies and are not seriously troublesome at present. Several batches of prisoners have been sent to Guadalajara, Irapuato and other places with the view of making useful citizens of them.

Steamers in Collision.

Belfast, July 23.—In a collision outside Belfast Lough between the local passenger steamers Dromedary and Alligator five passengers were killed and more than thirty more or less seriously injured, in many cases the amputation of legs being necessary. There were 600 passengers on board the two vessels and terrible scenes followed the collision. It is feared that some others have been drowned.

Killed at a Grade Crossing.

Mattoon, Ill., July 23.—The northbound passenger train on the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville yesterday evening struck a surrey occupied by Mrs. Mary Knott, her four children and her father. Cora Knott, aged twelve, was killed, and all the others were seriously injured. The accident occurred in a heavy rainstorm.

Sad Accident to a Boy.

Le Mars, Iowa, July 23. — Robert Plunkett, the thirteen-year-old son of a widow of this city, had his right arm cut off by a mowing machine. The horses became frightened by a passing locomotive and ran away.

A Farmer's Great Trouble.

Cresco, Iowa, July 23.—Mike Michael, a wealthy farmer who has shown signs of being demented, was given an examination before the proper authorities last night, adjudged insane and committed to the asylum.

Must Sever All Connections.

"My wife tells me that if the Uptowns don't have their telephone taken out we must have ours removed."

"Why is that?"

"Oh, she and Mrs. Uptown aren't on speaking terms at present."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Not Uncommon.

"Bredren," said Parson Black, earnestly, "dere are some folks in which de still small voice of conscience keeps a-gettin' stiller an' smaller until at las' it's a habitual, harmless an' dumb [illegible] [illegible] attentions."—[illegible]

Why He Read It.

"Have you read Borus' latest book, 'Boiled Brains'?"

"Yes."

"I thought you didn't like Borus' style."

"I don't."

"What did you read his book for?"

"Because I knew some blamed fool would be sure to ask me if I had read it."—Chicago Tribune.

Millions for Base Ball.

year for base ball, but large as this is, it cannot equal the amount spent in search of health. We urge those who have spent much and lost hope to try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It strengthens the stomach, makes digestion easy, and cures dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and weak kidneys.

TWAIN AT THE TELEPHONE.

The Humorist Used Shocking Language But Managed to Wriggle Out of the Trouble.

While living at his home, in Hartford, Conn., Mark Twain was one morning deep in the composition of some humorism from which he expected a good deal, when he was called to the telephone. He told the servant to receive the message and bring it to him, but in a few moments was informed that the party at the other end of the wire wanted him. Provoked at the interruption, Mark went to the telephone, and, after "helloing" for some time without an answer, he used some language not generally seen in print, but which was certainly picturesque. While thus engaged he heard an answer, in astonished tones, and recognized the voice of an eminent divine whom he knew very well.

"Is that you, doctor?" questioned Mr. Clemens. "I didn't hear what you said. My butler has been at the telephone, and he said he couldn't understand you."

The Dewey Parade.

The clerk of a down-town restaurant overheard a conversation between two guests of the place at supper one evening which greatly pleased him.

"What d'ye think of the street parade?" asked one of them.

"Purty good show," replied the other. "Looked like everybody dressed 'specially for the occasion."

"You bet. And, say, Bill, blamed if I ever knew before that thar was a shore 'nuff Uncle Sam."—Memphis Scimetar.

Best for the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Helen Gould's Handshake.

Miss Gould has an interesting little handshake. She has evidently learned that to protect and preserve her own hand when giving it to hundreds of others, she must do most of the "shaking" herself. She takes the proffered hand firmly in her own at about elbow level; holds it there for an instant, then raises it quickly in an almost exactly perpendicular line, then suddenly releases it. She looks directly into the eyes of the person she is meeting, and probably not one in a hundred passes on without carrying with him the conviction that the jolly-faced young woman he has just left sincerely enjoyed the meeting.—Boston Post.

HEALTHY WOMEN.

Mary J. Kennedy, manager of Armour & Co.'s Exhibit at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha, Neb., writes the following of Peruna, as a cure for that common phase of summer catarrh, known as indigestion. Miss Kennedy says:

"I found the continual change of diet incidental to eight years' traveling completely upset my digestive system. In consulting several physicians they decided I suffered with catarrh of the stomach.

"Their prescriptions did not seem to help me any, so, reading of the remarkable cures effected by the use of Peruna I decided to try it and soon found myself well repaid.

"I have now used Peruna for about three months and feel completely rejuvenated. I believe I am permanently cured, and do not hesitate to give unstinted praise to your great remedy, Peruna."

The causes of summer catarrh are first, chronic catarrh; second, derangements of the stomach and liver; third, impure blood.

Such being the case anyone who knows anything whatever about the operations of Peruna can understand why this remedy is a permanent cure for summer catarrh. It eradicates chronic catarrh from the system, invigorates the stomach and liver, cleanses the blood of all impurities, and therefore permanently cures by removing the cause—a host of maladies peculiar to hot weather. The cause being removed the symptoms disappear of themselves.

"Summer Catarrh" sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

DO NOT BUY
WELL DRILLING
MACHINERY until you see our new Catalogue No. 25. We will furnish it to you FREE. Write to our address, either Harvey, Ill., Chicago, Ill., or Dallas, Texas.
F. C. AUSTIN MFG. CO.
Factories at Harvey, Ill.

MONEY FOR SOLDIERS' HEIRS
Heirs of Union Soldiers who made homesteads of less than 160 acres before June 22, 1874 (no matter if abandoned), if the additional homestead right was not sold or used, should address, with full particulars, HENRY N. COPP, Washington, D. C.

Infantile Mental Pabulum.

"I desire to purchase some standard work of juvenile fiction," said Ibsen Beaconhill, aged eight, as he entered a Hub bookshop and regarded the clerk somewhat patronizingly over the tops of his glasses, "something suited to the puerile tastes of a youth of four. There is comprehended in that class of literature, I believe, a work which has to do with the mythical adventures of one John the Giantcide."

Whereupon the clerk explained that, owing to the conservative methods pursued by publishers of books, the book in question still retained the title of "Jack the Giant Killer," and Ibsen compromised on "The Over-Soul—Adapted for Little Spectacles."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME,

Notre Dame, Ind.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the president, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the university, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course, intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years according to the ability of the student. St. Edward's Hall, for boys under thirteen, is an unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

Fifty-six years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

A Gem of London Humor.

"Well, good-bye, Mr. Greene. It was so nice of you to come. It does father a lot of good to have some one to talk to."

"I was delighted to come, Miss Brown, but I'm afraid I'm not much of a conversationalist."

"My dear Mr. Greene, don't let that trouble you. Father's ideal listener is an obsolute idiot, with no conversation whatever, and I know he's enjoyed himself tremendously to-night!"—Punch.

SACRED HEART COLLEGE,

Watertown, Wis.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Sacred Heart College, Watertown, Wis., which appears in another column of this paper. This institution is a branch of the great University of Notre Dame, and aims to fit boys for entrance to the university courses as well as to give them a thorough training at moderate cost. For the parent of limited means Sacred Heart College fills a long felt want. Founded in 1873, it has gone on increasing from year to year until now it ranks as one of the foremost colleges of the middle west.

Cause of the Coldness.

Edith—So it's all over between you and Harold?

Ethel—Yes; I gave him $10 to bet for me on Pocahontas yesterday.

Edith—Well, Pocahontas lost.

Ethel—Yes; and the mean thing wouldn't go to the bookmaker and ask him to give me my money back.—Puck.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken internally. Price, 75c.

Information While You Wait.

Mr. I. N. Ventor of Waverly writes: "I have invented a folding bed. Please tell me how to get it in the paper."

I old bed. Unfold paper. Then wrap.—Baltimore American.

There Are Others.

Briggs—I see a Wisconsin court has granted an injunction against a young man whose friends didn't want him to get married.

Enspeck—I wish to heaven my friends had been so thoughtful!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

When cycling, take a bar of White's Yucatan. You can ride further and easier.

Her Specialty.

"The average woman knows how to say 'No.'"

"Oh, yes! She can make it express all possible shades of meaning."—Puck.

There are some men on earth to whom even hades would be a paradise—if you believe them.

To Cure Dandruff Quickly

use Coke Dandruff Cure. Money refunded if it fails, so why not try it?

There is only one box a man gets into that he does not ask his friends to help him out of, and he would then if he could.

As a man grows older he gets just as contradictory and obstinate as he was when he was young.

Did You Ever Run Across

an old letter—ink all faded out? Couldn't have been Carter's Ink for it doesn't fade.

There are three things that need to be well trimmed—a lamp, a lawn and a woman.

It's a long lane that has no turning, but some turn so much they waste space.

Many causes induce gray hair, but PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM brings back the youthful color. HINDERCORNS, the best cure for corns. 15cts.

Every cloud has a silver lining; the trick is to detach it.

Be a philosopher; but, amidst all your philosophy, be a man.—Hume.

There are race horses, horse races and owners.

LITTLE WAR WITH ABERGELE.

Lady Dundonald Has Been Having Trouble of Her Own in the Welsh Town.

While Lord Dundonald has been away in South Africa fighting the Boers his countess has been waging a little war of her own with the Welsh town of Abergele, near which her castle stands. It was all about the improvement of a highway. The countess got so angry that she cut down some beautiful trees which the townspeople wanted preserved. While the contending forces of the castle and the town were refusing stubbornly to retreat, there came the news of the relief of Ladysmith and the story of Dundonald's entrance into the beleaguered city. The town and the castle at once began to rejoice and to forgive each other. The town went wild with enthusiasm over Lord Dundonald, and the countess made a gift to the town of all the land the townspeople desired for the improvement of the highway. To Lord Dundonald was cabled the news of the ending of the Abergele war, and in return he requested that the improved highway be named Ladysmith avenue. This was done, and now the castle and the town, which have been saying all manner of hard things about each other for the last few months, have called off their lawyers and are complimenting each other at a great rate. Thus was the relief of aLdysmith and Abergle effected at one and the same time by the valor of Lord Dundonald.—New York Press.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Stewart Circross, Grafton, N. D., aerial wheel; Lorenzo J. Cody, Duluth, Minn., steam log holder; William Dougherty, Fountain, Minn., garin sleve; Catherine T Dukes, Huron, S. D.; Hugh G. Macwilliam, St. Paul, Minn., suspenders; James Martin, Howard Lake, Minn., device for overcoming dead-centers; Edwin H. Mc-A million of dollars are spent every Henry, St. Paul, Minn., track guage.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul

Anything Goes.

"What sort of a man is your ideal?" asked one summer girl of another.

"Oh, I like tall, fair, intellectual types," was the answer.

"Well, that is just my style, too," said the first speaker.

But when the short, dark and brainless youth arrived at the hotel, he appeared to fill the ideal all right.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-Mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes for tired, aching feet, now so largely advertised and sold all over the country. Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot-Ease," and he is the first individual who ever advertised a foot powder extensively over the country. He will send a sample Free to any one who writes him for it. The decision in this case upholds his trade-mark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising, in placing upon the market a spurious and similar appearing preparation, labeled and put up in envelopes and boxes like Foot-Ease. Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trade-mark and common law rights.

No Onion Needed in His Kerchief.

Undertaker (to bystander at funeral)—Are you one of the mourners?

Bystander—I am, sir.

Undertaker—What relation to the deceased?

Bystander—None at all—but he owed me $5.—Chicago News.

I do not believe Piso's Cure for Consumption has an equal for coughs and colds.—JOHN F BOYER, Trinity Springs, Ind., Feb. 15, 1900.

A Case in Point.

"What little things often turn the current of a man's life and save him from disaster!"

"Have you had such an experience?"

"Yes; once I was going to St. Louis to live, and I couldn't get a pass."—Chicago Record.

Farm Mortgage Loans.

In amounts ranging from $300.00 to $10,000.00 on choice, improved farms in the western part of North Dakota.

Write us if you have money to invest, and we will be pleased to send you description of loans, rates of interest, etc. Personal examination of all loans. We have invested nearly one million dollars in farm loans in North Dakota since 1881, without the loss of a dollar.

North Dakota Land and Loan Co.,
Rugby, N. D.

Up-to-Date Tactics.

Sergt. Finnegan (on the skirmish line)—Stiddy, me byes; sure, they be too far off yit, but when they git furninst the bushes there, thry a few blank cartridges at 'em until yees git the range.—Life.

Read the Advertisements.

You will enjoy this publication much better if you will get into the habit of reading the advertisements; they will afford a most amusing story, and will help you in the way of getting some excellent bargains. Our advertisers are reliable; they send what they advertise.

Un-American.

First Boston Boy—Yes; father punished me severely yesterday.

Second Boston Boy—Indeed! Some parents have such radical views about government without the consent of the governed.—Puck.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The Cornfed Philosopher.

"When a woman says she will marry a man if he will give up his cigars," says the Cornfed Philosopher, "that means she is going to marry him anyway—cigars or no cigars."—Indianapolis Press.

All play and no work makes Jack as dull a boy as all work and no play.

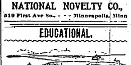
OVARIAN TROUBLES.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cures Them—Two Letters from Women.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write to tell you of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I was sick in bed about five weeks. The right side of my abdomen pained me and was so swollen and sore that I could not walk. The doctor told my husband I would have to undergo an operation. This I refused to do until I had given your medicine a trial. Before I had taken one bottle the swelling began to disappear. I continued to use your medicine until the swelling was entirely gone. When the doctor came he was very much surprised to see me, so much better."—MRS. MARY SMITH, Arlington, Iowa.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was sick for two years with falling of the womb and inflammation of the ovaries and bladder. I was bloated very badly. My left limb would swell so I could not step on my foot. I had such bearing down pains I could not straighten up or walk across the room and such shooting pains would go through me that I thought I could not stand it. My mother got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me to try it. I took six bottles and now, thanks to your wonderful medicine, I am a well woman."—MRS. ELSIE BRYAN, Otisville, Mich.

Easy Monthly Payments
We sell Regina Music Boxes for public places with money slot attachments, and for home use without attachments, on easy Monthly Payments. With money attachments they are
A Constant Source of Revenue
and soon pay for themselves. They can be placed in all kinds of business houses.
We Repair Music Boxes.
Correspondence invited.
NATIONAL NOVELTY CO.,
519 First Ave So., - - - Minneapolis, Minn

EDUCATIONAL.



THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME,
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.
Classics, Letters, Economics and History, Journalism, Art, Science, Pharmacy, Law, Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, Architecture.
Thorough Preparatory and Commercial Courses. Ecclesiastical students at special rates.
Rooms Free. Junior or Senior Year, Collegiate Courses. Rooms to Rent, moderate charges.
St. Edward's Hall, for boy's under 13.
The 57th Year will open September 4th, 1900
Catalogues Free. Address
REV. A. MORRISSEY, C. S. C., President.

SACRED HEART COLLEGE,
WATERTOWN, WISCONSIN.
Branch of Notre Dame University, Indiana.
Thorough Classical, English, Commercial and Preparatory Courses. Terms Moderate. Buildings heated by steam. Home comforts. For further information and catalogues, apply to
REV. J. O'ROURKE, C. S. C., President.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY.
Genuine
Carter's
Little Liver Pills.
Must Bear Signature of
See Fac-Simile Wrapper Below.
Very small and as easy to take as sugar.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
FOR HEADACHE.
FOR DIZZINESS.
FOR BILIOUSNESS.
FOR TORPID LIVER.
FOR CONSTIPATION.
FOR SALLOW SKIN.
FOR THE COMPLEXION
GENUINE MUST HAVE SIGNATURE.
25 Cents
Purely Vegetable.
CURE SICK HEADACHE.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

BOOKLETS FREE. SAMPLE BOTTLES BY MAIL 20c.
J. & C. MAGUIRE'S EXTRACT
BENNE PLANT
CURES Colic, Cholera Morbus, Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Bowel Complaints. NEVER FAILS. In the market since 1841. Recommended by leading Physicians. Used by our Army and Navy. Sold by all Druggists. J. & C. MAGUIRE MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

SEND 47cts.
SPECIAL OFFER: Cut this ad. out and send to us and we will send you this Violin Outfit by Express C. O. D., subject to examination. Examine it at your express office and if not exactly as represented, and the most wonderful bargain you ever saw or heard of, pay the express agent our SPECIAL OFFER PRICE, $2.87—less 47c. or $2.40—and express charges. This is a regular $8.00 Stradivarius model Violin—richly colored, highly polished, powerful and sweet in tone, complete with fine bow, one extra set of strings, violin case and one of the best instruction books [illegible]
T. M. ROBERTS [illegible]

BUY A DOUBLE BARREL BREECH LOADING $15 SHOT GUN for $7.77.
NEW WINCHESTER RIFLES, $3.07, NEW BREECH LOADING SHOT GUNS, $4.47, NEW WINCHESTER SHOT GUNS, $15.97, Winchester and U. M. C. Loaded Shells, $1.17 per 100, Nitro Powder Loaded Shells, $1.77 per 100.
GET SHOT, GUNS AND AMMUNITION at wholesale prices to everybody. Our large Gun Catalogue containing 96 pages, size 10x11½ inches, will be sent postage paid on receipt of three cents to any one returning this ad and mentioning this paper. We can save you big dollars per gun. Write at once. We sell more Sporting Goods than any OTHER HOUSE IN THE WORLD. Tents, Hunting Coats, Hats, Caps, Belts, Boots, Shell Boxes, Dog Whips, Collars, Balls, Base Ball Goods and Fishing Tackle—all in our 96-page FREE GUN CATALOGUE.
T. M. ROBERTS SUPPLY HOUSE, 717-721 Nicollet Avenue, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Minnesota Historical Society

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XX ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1900. NUMBER 2.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

"WAR IS HELL"

SAID, THE VETERAN GENERAL SHERMAN, A REAL HERO.

Give Us War and the "Strenuous Life" Says the G. O. P. Leader of 1900—Roosevelt Aftermath—The St. Paul Commercial Club a Victim of Misplaced Confidence—Echoes of the National and State Campaign—Continued Favorable Outlook—Reform Press Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, July 30, 1900.

Aftermath of the Roosevelt "opening" of the national campaign has but added to the dismal character of the event, from the standpoint of Republican benefit, proof of which is abundant in Republican authority. A surprising feature, however, is the discovery that, thanks to the Republican control of news sources and news circulation, such real character has been but slowly discovered throughout the country, and in many sections is doubtless not yet known. So much was this the fact that even the press bureau of the national committee did not have the information, having relied on the daily press, until the same was taken there by National Chairman Senator Jones, when he returned to Chicago from St. Paul. The press bureau chief, Mr. Abbot, then sought the facts, and they will be given the country as well as may be through friendly and truthful papers. Mr. Abbot learned, after the close concealment of the facts was less cautious, that the St. Paul committee on transportation, which certified the tickets of those from Minnesota and neighboring states, so as to secure them the reduced rates for the grand occasion, that actually 256 persons so attended. Also that national league delegates who were expected to be the same in number, having the same basis of representation as national party conventions, actually had a convention of 410, including proxies. Mr. Abbot also learned that the St. Paul Commercial club raised something like $2,500 to make it a local success, and that the club figures that it could better have paid men $5 each outright, to attend the Roosevelt affair, for twice as many could have been secured for the same money.

In addition to features mentioned a week ago the bad effect of the Roosevelt speech, as to the sentiments promulgated, is more and more marked. The "strenuous life," "knock-down-and-drag-out" and "I-kin-lick-you" argument and talk, is daily more and more distasteful, to say nothing of its undignified and unstatesman-like character. Never before was a supposed idol so quickly smashed as Roosevelt has been in the North Star state. If you don't believe it wait till he is billed here again for another "opener."

The fact that the Roosevelt "strenuous opener" has been followed by the killing of an anti-imperialist in Minneapolis, in a discussion of the "Rough Rider" sort, will have a tendency to set a good many people to thinking.

The most prevalent criticism of Roosevelt is that war and the spirit of war surrounds most of his utterances. War, war! How many people there are who fail to appreciate what war really is. The generation that saw a real war does, but too many see only the glitter and show, are stirred by the noise and enthusiasm, but know nothing of the horrors and waste of the reality. General Sherman, after four years of our bloody Civil war, in which he was one of the most brilliant and conspicuous characters—after the hardship and agony that he knew were but memories, and when he was in full glamour of popular adulation—calmly and soberly summed up the whole wretched business in the one heartrending sentence, "War is hell."

Theodore Roosevelt knows nothing of war in its reality. He was present in one little brush with hostile forces; a contest which in the experience of Sherman would have been lost sight of as a mere skirmish. He knows nothing of the awful havoc of real war. In his shallow-pated way he rides his hobby and flourishes his tin sword with all the mock-tragic earnestness peculiar to the Darktown fire brigade. And this is the pseudo hero whom the people of this country are asked to put on a pedestal—to fall down before and worship as the ideal of its national life! Shades of Abraham Lincoln pity us!

Apropos, what they do say in whispers about the "Rough Rider" record at San Juan is that colored troops are entitled to the credit which the "Rough Riders" got. They say that there is a lieutenant in the service who commanded the colored troops, who, when not officially in danger of being overheard, states that upon his honor when he and his troops reached the top of San Juan hill there were just seven of the "Rough Riders" there, and Roosevelt was NOT one of the seven.

Speaking of the administration, it certainly does seem as if the wily "heathen Chinee" got our American emperor in a tight place when he got him to rush in and accept the same invitation to "mediate" that the Chinaman had extended to the other emperors. Well, if William cannot mediate he can meditate.

And after November he can have as much time for meditation as his great (?) prototype at St. Helena.

Speaking of the state campaign, Bixby is back from the East, and the political gossips do say that the "wad" he brings from Hanna is not as big as a hogshead. In fact the gossip is that Hanna has only lent him a few thousand "plunks" which have to be returned before Minnesota gets any more. In very truth Tams gives it out cold that the goppite state campaign has got to run itself.

And speaking also of the goppite campaign, they do say that every day is State Printer Whitney's busiest, as the artist depicts.

"Might makes right," in the Roosevelt, G. O. P. doctrine, whether it be in conquering unwilling peoples, as in the Philippines, by bloody war, by overturning a state government by hired murderers, as in Kentucky, or by striking a neighbor down to death, in political discussion, by a blow of the fist, as in the Minneapolis case. "Might makes Right."

Speaking of prosperity, all the great railway companies of the Twin Cities have made greater or less reductions in the forces of their shops—especially the transcontinental lines, which have laid off thousands of mechanics.

It is said that no class of business has suffered more in McKinley "prosperity" than insurance, the shrinkage in all lines being enormous, and especially in the fire companies, big fire losses being always an indication of poor general business. The Insurance Budget of the Twin Cities gives the totals of such losses for the first six months of the year as $103,293,900, as against $65,699,750 for 1899. This corresponds with the big losses from commercial failures, recently shown to have been the largest in number and amounts of any six months of which there is a record. There have been, including the great St. Paul fire of last week, close to 20 fires in the country in six months, where losses exceeded $500,000.

Closing the first full fiscal year of the reform administration of Governor Lind, the Minnesota cash box has a clean balance of $15,000,000! Will some one please call this to the attention of our good friend Colonel Tom Lowry, who predicted that "grass would grow in streets of Minnesota cities" as well as financial ruin follow the election of Lind!

Of course the gentlemen who have had so much to say about never pulling down the flag, will make it perfectly clear what they would do in the China case. Or, have our brave boys been fighting at Tien Tsin without any flag?

The State Republican league is behind the uniforming of G. O. P. clubs in the khaki or Roosevelt suits and hat. Let the goppites have the foreign uniforms; the military feature is entirely appropriate. Plain old Uncle Sam insignia and sentiments are good enough for the Democracy.

Signs that old soldiers of the Twin Cities will be found in the Liberty party this year are too plain to be mistaken. It is so all over the country. In the recent Peoples Party-Democratic convention of South Dakota, 180 old soldiers were delegates, and celebrated approval of Bryan and the state action by seizing flags and marching around for minutes, singing the old patriotic songs of the Constitution and the flag, and of their battles for liberty a generation ago. The incident, however, has been very carefully suppressed by the goppite press.

The Globe tells still a new story on William Henry Eustis in the campaign of two years, that over in Willmar, when Eustis was addressing a large audience of farmers, he laid it down strong that it was not the cheating of the farmers by the elevator rings, through the state grain department, that was their trouble, but the trouble was that farmers did not use good judgment in marketing the grain. In fact, he said, the matter with them was "up here," pointing to his forehead. Pretty soon this spread around and when a Kandiyohi farmer was asked if he was going to vote for Eustis he simply remarked that Eustis was all right, "except up here," pointing to his forehead. Eustis will soon be out making speeches for Van Sant, and the farmers, remembering his remarks two years ago, will not take any more stock in them now.

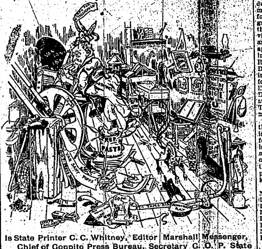
The red, white and blue will everywhere be the Democratic campaign insignia this year. The goppites are welcome to a foreign uniform (khaki) and somebody's old hat. The red, white and blue cap, and perhaps the red, white and blue umbrella, may be quite generally introduced as the marching emblem for Bryan and Stevenson. Pouring through the cities and towns in parades, or under streams of red fire, the solid phalanxes under the national colors will recall the days of the Lincoln Wideawakes, as well they may.

Is the fact that Hon. M. J. Dowling abruptly refused to act as a secretary of the late Republican league convention due to "light" he has seen on "imperialism?" One might think so to read the series of letters he is writing of what he saw in the Philippines and of the brave little people struggling there for liberty against American imperial soldiers.

McKinley's acceptance speech consisted of above 8,000 words, one-half of which was devoted to the money question. To imperialism he devoted 1800 words, to protection but 126, while the great Chinese disaster and danger received but 52 words, and he devoted less than that number to each of the subjects, Hague conference, the late Spanish war, Cuba and "plain duty" Porto Rico. And how many words do you suppose he devoted to the trust subject? Not a single one.

Next May is the time now set when the administration will withdraw the troops from Cuba. The promise in this case is certain of fulfillment, for there will be a man in the White House then who will see that there is no further monkeying with the imperialistic band wagon.

A TOLERABLY BUSY MAN



Is State Printer C. C. Whitney, Editor Marshall Messenger, Chief of Goppite Press Bureau, Secretary G. O. P. State Central Committee, Republican League Treasurer, etc., etc. And All on One State Salary!

SIGNIFICANT SIGNS

Anent the Discussion of Minnesota Railroad Consolidations.

While State Officials Prosecute Newspapers Decide Case in Advance.

The N. P.-St. Paul and Duluth Case—State and National Politics.

The most significant feature in connection with the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission's efforts to test the legality of the consolidation of the Northern Pacific and St. Paul & Duluth railways is the sudden appearance of leading Twin City papers in the role of judge and jury, deciding the case in advance. The articles are so alike in their strenuous advocacy of the legality of such consolidation and in the treatment of the case as to warrant the assumption that they are inspired from the same source.

The Minneapolis Times' article (editorial) in that paper of the 18th inst. serves as a fair sample of all the articles. Without taking up space by quoting the editorial verbatim it may be stated that the chief argument advanced—the one unaffected by time or changing conditions—is this: that, the Northern Pacific railroad being under the necessity of traversing two sides of a triangle while the St. Paul & Duluth only traverses one side the former cannot be regarded as paralleling the latter for business purposes and cannot be regarded as a competing line.

Now, however plausible this sort of a conclusion may be, when based upon pure theory, it falls to the ground with a dull thud if it can be shown that two other lines showing as great a disparity in the length of their hauls do actually engage in competitive business between two given points. Such a case is not far to seek.

The distance over the C., M. & St. P. railway from St. Paul to Winona is 102 miles. The distance between these two points over the lines of the Northwestern system—via Kasota—is 213 miles, being something more than twice as great as that over the Milwaukee road. These two lines do make exactly the same rates between these two points on all classes of goods governed by the Western classification and are in active competition and have been so for years. And, yet, the disparity between the distances in this case is much greater, proportionately than in the case of the Northern Pacific—St. Paul & Duluth. This ought to effectually dispose of the assertion made by the "Times" that the latter two roads are not competing. Should there still remain any doubt as to the fact however the declaration of the interstate commerce commission to the effect that they are such ought to have some weight. Should the scale still refuse to incline toward the conclusion that they are competing the fact that the Northern Pacific did have competitive rates in force between the Twin Cities and the head of Lake Superior until after the consolidation had been effected and that it then withdrew them—showing a change in conditions effected by the change of ownership—might be regarded as having some further tendency to balance up the mere assertion of the "Times."

But if all this evidence does not serve to convince the impartial judge (this is not an attempt to convince the "Times") that the two roads are competing lines the statement, in writing, over the signature of the third vice president of the Northern Pacific to the effect that they are such ought to compel the scale to come down against the "Times" assertion. When to this is added the statement in writing by the general counsel of the Northern Pacific solemnly backing up the statement of the first named officer and adding the weight of his great ability, eminent learning and high character thereto the scale ought to stay down where the facts above stated have brought it.

N. B.—In order that no mistake be made it might be well to emphasize the fact that this is not an attempt to convince the "Times" [illegible] above facts [illegible] tangibility which is expected to have "weight" with the Times.

G. O. P. RAILROAD COMMISSIONS.

The manner in which the railroad candidates for railroad and warehouse commissioners is received by the people is shown by the following: Says that tried and true Republican paper, the Anoka Union:

"HUNDREDS OF REPUBLICANS ALREADY DECLARE THEY WILL NEVER PUT A CROSS OPPOSITE THE NAME OF IRA B. MILLS FOR RAILROAD COMMISSIONER."

Anent which the Fairmont Sentinel well says:

And yet Mills is a bouquet of geraniums beside that of Miller for the same office. Miller is notoriously a cheap tool of one of the most iniquitous railway combinations in the country. He has not the first qualification in the world for the office, and his election, together with that of Mills, would completely turn over the grain and warehouse business of the state to a combine that would make ex-Inspector Clausen's record glorious by comparison.

"Mills and Miller were nominated as a sop to the elevator ring and the railroads. Their [illegible] ticket probably means a hundred thousand dollar contribution to defeat Governor Lind. Whether the people will ratify the corrupt deal remains to be seen."

But not only these two nominees are bitterly criticised, but even Candidate Staples, the third candidate, and that too by a home neighbor, the Northfield Independent, whose editor, Hon. C. W. Carpenter, formerly resided in the Staples bailiwick. As primal objections to Staples, the Independent gives, that he is "arrogant, dogmatic, egotistical, over-bearing, supremely selfish," in fact totally lacking in qualities for the discharge of the peculiar duties of the position. Staples' success in his home county, due to ability as a political manipulator, the Independent asserts, and that he is now scheming through Twin City Republican papers to secure Democratic endorsement. Accustomed to trading off a whole county ticket for himself, he would, says the Independent, trade off his whole state ticket to elect himself.

"On the whole," says the Independent, "the Republican candidates for railroad commissioners are three good men to leave at home, and perhaps Staples is a little the best of the three for that purpose."

DISMAL TEDDY.

Sioux Falls Press:

At St. Paul this prophet of evil broke out with a cry that if McKinley had not been elected it "would have meant fearful misery, fearful disaster at home," and if he is not elected again it would be still worse. What a petty appeal to ignorance!

Further on in his oration Teddy said the election of Bryan would cause "economic and financial chaos," such as to "reduce the whole country to a condition of fearful and acute distress." In the same paragraph he predicted that the men Bryan would appoint to cabinet positions would "inevitably bring the country to the brink of ruin." The most depraved anarchist would not go further in trying to arouse the passions of men by empty nothings.

And again, in Milwaukee, this dismal predictor of dire calamity, referring to the Democratic candidates, said that "if we should put them into power you would see such a chaos of black misery and distress in this country as a century and a quarter of life has never seen."

Words cannot express the utter contempt in which every true and patriotic American ought to hold one who dares go about the country uttering these calamitous prophesies without a shadow of foundation for them or any regard for truth or the interests of the people.

If they are intended to be a prophesy their author is a dangerous agitator; if they are a threat from the class Teddy represents they are criminal.

NORTHWESTERN GOLD DEMOCRATS.

The average sentiment of the Northwestern gold Democrats is well expressed by Mr. Robert B. Blackmore of Fargo, in a letter to the St. Paul Globe. Mr. Blackmore was chairman of the Northwestern delegation to the gold Democratic convention at Indianapolis in 1896 and he shows the Globe that it has no grounds to stand on from any point of view. [illegible] lation which their votes for McKinley helped to secure. They think they did right then, and while the experiment is being worked out they can afford to be magnanimous and take high grounds and recognize the fact that their old party has assumed, on other vitally important issues, a patriotic and American attitude which all can approve, the chief of which is that of imperialism and plutocracy which all Republican tendencies favor. Gold Democrats believing in plutocracy and imperialism, if there be any, will vote for McKinley, representing the Republican tendencies. Those believing in Democracy will vote for Bryan, who stands for the opposite tendencies. Tendencies are all at this time that men can vote for.

But Mr. Blackmore's "clincher" on the Globe is this: The gold standard issue which was the paramount one four years ago, is barricaded by legislation, and thus cannot be the paramount issue now. Hence the Globe's own words convict it when it says that "no sane man could endanger the paramount issue for a minor one, knowingly and in good faith."

"If that advice is good from you to Mr. Bryan," says Mr. Blackmore, "then I believe it equally good from the Democratic party to you." "GET INTO LINE. YOU CAN NEVER PUT INTO EXECUTION DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES BY LEADING A MINORITY, OR FOLLOWING A REPUBLICAN."

Exactly the same line is followed by the Chicago Chronicle in arguing against nomination of any more tickets, addressing and speaking for the gold Democrats. Such gold men, it shows, gave McKinley his majority in 1896, and have been rewarded therefor by higher tariff, the malign policy of foreign conquest and militarism, and government expenses raised to over $700,000,000 annually. Then the Chronicle says:

"There are but two real candidates for president, William J. Bryan and William McKinley, representing opposite opinions in regard to public policy. The paramount issue is imperialism and all which it implies.

"Imperialists will vote for McKinley as the striking representative of their belief. Anti-imperialists will vote for William J. Bryan, the representative candidate of the forces that oppose imperialism.

"There is nothing for which gold Democrats can honestly vote on a separate ticket. They are Democrats or they are Republicans. If they are Democrats they will vote for Bryan; if not, they will vote for McKinley. No honest end is gained by confusing the issue."

THE NEW DIXIE.

Freemen, hear your country calling;
Liberty is strangled, falling;
Come away, come away, come away
to Bryan!
Jefferson's and Lincoln's voices
Tell the people where their choice is!
Come away, come away, come away
to Bryan!

Wave no dollar-breech sebanner
Borne by order of Mark Hanna!
Come away, come away, come away
to Bryan!
Spotted o'er with Cuban booty,
Tagal loot, and lost "plain duty!"
Come away, come away, come away
to Bryan!

Come, join the people's army!
Hurrah! Hurrah!
By Bryan's side to stand with pride,
Americans and freemen!
Come away, come away to fight and
win with Bryan!
Come away, come away to fight and
win with Bryan!

GOLD MEN FOR BRYAN.

The course of W. B. Haldeman, Henri Waterson's associate in the Louisville Courier-Journal, in publicly withdrawing from the gold Democrats, and declaring for Bryan, is most gratifying to Minnesotans, and numerous letters of thanks and congratulations were sent Mr. Haldeman, and especially for his magnificent tribute to Mr. Bryan in which, giving his reasons for his act, he said:

"We cannot, we must not encourage a weak and corrupt administration to barter free institutions and civil liberty in a combination with the most autocratic, arrogant and selfish power in all Europe. I am compelled, with a sense of what is due to the free American that I love to earnestly and actively support an American whom I believe loves his country, and whom I believe to be the highest and best type of an American citizen, and thus believing, I shall vote for and support William Jennings Bryan."

Thus Mr. Haldeman stands with Carl Schurz and others of the anti-imperialists, who were in the gold movement of 1896, and are now for Bryan. Apropos, our advices are that the national imperialist organization will without doubt declare for Bryan at the coming Indianapolis convention.

A GREAT CAMPAIGN BOOK.

We are more than glad to receive from Hon. A. W. Thomas of the Chicago bar, who is by no means unknown to Minnesota readers, evidence of what he has recently been doing, in a book, "The Philippines and the Purpose," of some 250 pages, which is certainly the most complete and convincing publication yet made, showing our national policy of conquest and wrong against the Filipinos. It gives all the important official documents contained in "Document 62," and brings to light many official documents hitherto suppressed by the administration. The administration's hand in national legislation carrying out its clear purpose of conquest, and destruction of republican independence, is fully disclosed, as well as our truckling policy toward England, and able legal and constitutional exposition is made of the Democratic position, and the whole, a grand campaign book, is brought down to the Kansas City convention. It states the attitude of our great national leader and the party most clearly. In short, Mr. Thomas gives the country a great work, and his book should be in the hands of every campaigner. It is understood that the first edition has been taken by the National Committee [illegible]

FIGHT NEAR PEKING

LARGE SECTION OF BOXERS REVOLT AGAINST TUAN.

Battle Lasted Several Hours and Prince Tuan Was Defeated and Killed—Government Fast Losing Faith in the Truthfulness of Chinese Information—Chinese Minister Expects Good News Soon—British Government Receives One of Sheng's Fake Messages.

London, July 29.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express, wiring yesterday, says:

"It is reported here that a large section of the Boxers has revolted against Prince Tuan, alledging that he is making tools of them for his own ends. A desperate conflict took place outside of Peking Sunday. Prince Tuan personally led his followers, two of his generals having deserted him. The battle lasted several hours and Prince Tuan was defeated and killed."

Fast Losing Faith.

Washington, July 29.—Unless some authentic assurance as to the condition of the Americans in Peking reach the state department within a day or two the administration is likely to abandon whatever faith it has manifested thus far in the truthfulness of Chinese information. The Chinese minister is confident that within that time there will be news from Peking of a character to satisfy the most skeptical as to its accuracy, and he is also confident that this will be good news from the American point of view. The state department is still receptive, though looking

With Growing Coldness

upon the numerous edicts and telegrams which are coming from China, all without bringing any news. The contributions of the day were from Consul General Goodnow at Shanghai and Consul Fowler at Chefu. So much of their messages as was given out for publication related to the welfare of certain American missionaries who have been made the subject of inquiry by relatives in this country. The cables mangled these messages and there is reason to doubt the value of the information attempted to be conveyed through them. Ever since the receipt at Tien-tsin of the autograph message from Mr. Conger, dated Peking, July 4, state department officials

Have Had Grave Doubts

as to the authenticity of the cipher message attributed to him, dated Peking, July 18. There have been many little side lights on this message that afford ground for suspicion, and now the British authorities have added their quota to the growing distrust of things Chinese. It seems that a Mr. Warren, at present acting as British consul at Shanghai, has been told by Sheng, the famous Chinese director of posts and telegraphs, that Yuan, the governor of Shangtung, told him (Sheng) that a message had passed through to the United States from Mr. Conger on the 18th of July telling of the conditions at the British legation. This cipher

Dispatch Was "Faked"

by Chinese officials. It is pointed out at the state department, however, that there are plausible explanations of this curious fact which tend to show the authenticity of the cipher dispatch. Secretary Hay cabled Mr. Conger that he might have implicit faith in the person who brought the dispatch to him. Mr. Conger, therefore, had a right to trust the man and possibly told him in a general way the contents of the dispatch, in case the messenger should be obliged to destroy it to insure his own safety. However that may be, the British government has thought Mr. Warren's report worthy the attention of our own government.

Don't Like European Criticisms.

The state department officials do not like the European criticisms more or less directly attributing to our government a lack of wholeheartedness in the effort to get to Pekin. They point to what the American troops and marines have already done; to the loss of life and limbs suffered by them and to the repeated urgings of the American officials at every point looking to a forward movement on Peking. And in answer to the intimation that they are responsive to Chinese efforts to bribe us by the delivery of Mr. Conger at Tien-tsin and thus seduce us to abandon the Peking campaign, the department lost no time this morning in making known the fact that it had not and would not countenance any such proposition.

ANOTHER CHINESE MESSAGE.

Is Dated July 24 and Says Legations Are Safe.

London, July 29.—Lyman J. Gage's statement that there is still hope, but that it is constantly diminishing, is held here to define accurately the situation. The Chinese minister in London yesterday received a telegram from Sheng, director of posts and telegraphs, to the effect that the following from Peking was issued July 24:

"It is fortunate that all the foreign representatives, except Baron von Ketteler, are alive and in safety. Provisions, in the shape of breadstuffs and vegetables are being supplied to show our good will."

The Morning Post goes so far as to assert that there is no direct communication between London and Peking. However this may be the attempts of French and Italian consuls to have failed, and this, it is said, warrants the conclusion that Peking is in the hands of the Boxers. The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express states that three versions of Sir Claude MacDonald's letter of July 6 are current there, and it is believed all three originated from Chinese sources. He adds, however, that Li Hung Chang says the legation party ought to reach Tien-tsin on Sunday. The Morning Post correspondent at Chefu, wiring Wednesday, says there is a rumor that Prince Ching rescued the legations and conveyed them to a place of safety. Eighteen missionaries have been massacred at Tung-chau, where the churches have been burned. [illegible] authority that both Germany and Russia are determined to inflict exemplary punishment. The Berlin papers, however, adversely criticise President McKinley's conciliatory policy. The London Standard also complains that the official declarations of Washington have a "perceptibly uncertain sound," and says "Washington politicians use a great many words to say a simple thing, and this we know is one device of people who wish to slip out of an unwelcome obligation. It is probable, however, that when the time for action arrives, President McKinley will not refuse to co-operate."

Get Direct Replies

The Daily Chronicle says: "Secretary Hay shows at least some grasp of the situation."

Protected by Chinese.

Brussels, July 29.—The Belgian vice consul at Tien-tsin in a dispatch dated Chefu, July 26, says: "It is persistently reported here (Tien-tsin) that the legations are safe and sound and under the protection of the Chinese government. About 10,000 Chinese soldiers are intrenched at Pee-tsang, fourteen kilometers from Tien-tsin."

REINSTATEMENT IN ARMY.

Conciliatory Policy by the French Government.

New York, July 29.—A special to the Times from Paris says: It is highly probable that several generals who were put on the retired list by former Minister of War De Gallifet after the Dreyfus trial will shortly be reinstated in the army. Generals De Negrier and Zurlinden will both probably receive command of army corps. This further proof of the government's conciliatory policy will be favorably received by public opinion.

FATAL COLLISION.

Two Trainmen Killed in a Grand Trunk Wreck.

Belleville, Ont., July 29.—The Madoc passenger train on the Grand Trunk, bound north, and the Peterboro train, bound south, collided yesterday on a curve south of Madoc Junction. Two of the trainmen were killed and five persons injured.

OREGON NOT BADLY INJURED.

Commander Wilde Reports Her Structural Strength Intact.

Washington, July 29.—The navy department has received the following from Commander Wilde of the Oregon, dated Kure, Japan, yesterday: "Ship docked. Structural strength intact."

Improvements at Gettysburg.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 29.—An addition of two miles will shortly be made to the fine avenues on the Gettysburg battlefield. The new road will complete what is known as the Confederate avenue, and will start about 400 yards west of the theological seminary, at the end of the short strip built several years ago, and will run west of south, a distance of two miles along the top of the ridge to the other uncompleted end of the Confederate avenue.

Chinese Coming From Mexico.

Washington, July 29.—The treasury department has received information through the United States consulate at Sonora, Mex., that about 8,000 Chinamen from the interior of that country are now on the move northward with a view to crossing the border into the United States. The department is inclined to discredit the story as far at least as the number is concerned, and has asked for more detailed information.

Kaiser Appeals for Harmony.

Berlin, July 29.—It is reported that Emperor William has written letters to Queen Victoria, Emperor Nicholas, Emperor Franz Joseph and King Humbert, making a strong appeal on behalf of the maintenance of harmony among the powers against China, and dwelling strongly upon the identity of interest against the "yellow peril" by which all are threatened.

Street Fight With Robbers.

Richmond, Kan., July 29.—Citizens engaged in a street fight at midnight with a gang of robbers who attempted to rob the Bank of Richmond. Several shots were exchanged and it is thought one robber was wounded. The robbers had blown the safe door into the street and the noise of the explosion brought a crowd to the scene. No money was secured.

Took Carbolic Acid.

New York, July 29.—A woman about twenty-five years old walked into the Presbyterian hospital yesterday, and before the attendants could prevent it she swallowed four ounces of carbolic acid and died in forty-five minutes. The woman had a card containing the name and address of "Nellie Blair, 3550 Caroline street, St. Louis."

Movements of Warships.

Washington, July 29.—The training ship Buffalo arrived at Hongkong yesterday. The Caesar, carrying coal for our ships in China, has sailed from Gibraltar for Malta. Admiral Schley, on the Chicago, is at Ensenda. The Montgomery has left Montevideo for Bahia. The Lancaster arrived at Copenhagen yesterday.

Prefers Joint Notification.

Denver, Colo., July 29.—John Stephens, secretary of the National Monetary League, has received a letter from W. J. Bryan in which he says: "I think it will be best if your notification is given at the same time and place as that of the Democrats." It is understood that this arrangement will be made.

Loaded With Immigrants.

New York, July 29.—Four ships with a total of 3,155 emigrants kept the officials at the barge office busy yesterday and put a new record mark for a July day since the government took hold of the landing of immigrants at this port.

Named by Prohibitionists.

Hartford, Conn., July 29.—The state Prohibition convention nominated this ticket: Governor, Charles E. Steele; lieutenant governor, John J. Copp; secretary of state, R. M. Stanley; treasurer, O. G. Beard; controller, William Ingalls.

Killed by Lightning.

Berlin, July 29.—At Rastenberg yesterday after laying the foundation stone of the Roman museum lightning killed two persons. Two others were killed by lightning near Dantzig [illegible]

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. ☞ Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG -RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"
Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured.
Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D.C.

GET YOUR PICTURE
TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE
INSURANCE
DO
YOU
NEED
SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound........5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound........15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound........20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.
LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

ADVERTISING rates will be made known on application and are very reasonable.

REMITTANCES should be made on postal notes postoffice or express orders. Short time subscriptions in two cent stamps.

CORRESPONDENCE from all points in the vicinity of St. Hilaire desired. Make communications concise, writing upon only one side of the paper.

WEDNESDAY, AUG., 1, 1900.

NATIONAL TICKET.

For President—
WILLIAM J. BRYAN,
of Nebraska.
For Vice-President—
ADLAI E. STEVENSON,
of Illinois.

For Congressman, 7th District—
M. J. DALY.

THE DAMOSEL OF ONE DIMENSION.

Let others celebrate the charms
Of ladies fair, with figures ample,
Of whom the Medicean is
The Venus serving for example;
I string my lyre in praise of one
Who makes no vulgar, vain pretension
To fascination through the flesh,
The damosel of one dimension.

The plump, though pretty, now appear
But coarse beside her girlish slimness,
Whose rare attenuation shows
No trace of ghastliness or grimness;
Although 'tis true she'd ne'er suggest
The type you might call tutti frutti,
Her slender form today, meseems,
Describes the lauded line of beauty.

I, looking on her lovely length,
Abandon with amazing quickness
My orthodox old prejudice,
Revolting seem both breadth and thickness;
How Turks delight to feast their eyes
On fat doth pass my comprehension;
For me the fairest woman is
The damosel of one dimension.

Her one dimension is enough;
The line that emulates the willow's
Own supple grace is better worth
Than fattened flesh that rolls and billows.
But does my lady know her charm?
Alas, I'm filled with apprehension
Lest antilean transform and spoil
My damosel of one dimension.
—Mary Norton Bradford in Boston Globe.

A Real Mascot.

"What is an exit, pa?"

"Exit, Freddy? Well, it is a Latin placard hung around on the walls in theaters and opera houses to keep people from thinking they smell fire."—Indianapolis Journal.

Living Without Nourishment.

There seems to be no philosophical necessity for food. We can conceive of organized beings living without nourishment and deriving all the energy they need for the performance of their life functions from the ambient medium. In a crystal we have the clear evidence of the existence of a formative life principle, and, though we cannot understand the life of a crystal, it is none the less a living being. There may be, besides crystals, other such individualized, material systems of beings, perhaps of gaseous constitution or composed of substance still more tenuous. In view of this possibility—nay, probability—we cannot apodeictically deny the existence of organized beings on a planet merely because the conditions on the same are unsuitable for the existence of life as we conceive it. We cannot even with positive assurance assert that some of them might not be present here, in this our world, in the very midst of us, for their constitution and life manifestion may be such that we are unable to perceive them.—Nikola Tesla in Century Magazine.

Optician's Latin.

Hiram had returned home from college, where he had won high honors as a student of the ancient languages, but he "fell down" one day when his sister, a demure young girl in her teens, asked him to translate a sign she had seen in front of an optician's office which read thus:

CON SULTU SABO UTTO UREY ES.

Hiram struggled manfully with it for several minutes and gave it up.

"It isn't good Latin," he said. "There are some words in it that are Latin, but the others are either wrong in termination or are barbarisms from other languages, and, taken as a whole, it doesn't make sense."

"That is what I said," rejoined his sister, "but Keturah, out in the kitchen, translates it without any trouble. She says it means, 'Consult us about your eyes.'"

Whereupon Hiram collapsed.—Youth's Companion.

Saved by Presence of Mind.

At Sheffield, England, recently a curious accident occurred. A passenger was riding on a double deck electrical car, and a single deck car passed in the opposite direction. The rope of the trolley boom of the latter was flying in the wind, and it wound itself around the passenger's neck. Fortunately he had the presence of mind to seize the rope with both hands and release himself or he would probably have been pulled from the car.

Not All.

Teacher (suspiciously)—Who wrote your composition, Johnny?

Johnny—My father.

"What, all of it?"

"No'm. I helped him."—Truth.

A real scene of troops in action hardly exists. Pictures of them are taken at odd spells and out of danger's reach, guns and troops being used for the purpose.

Truth is as impossible to be soiled by any outward touch as the sunbeam.—Milton.

DUELING IN FRANCE.

THE CUSTOM HAS DEVELOPED A NATIONAL FIGHTING BLADE.

It Is a Long, Strong Sword, the Epee de Combat, and With It, Were the Combatants So Inclined, Serious Injuries Could Be Inflicted.

Persons other than French are wont to maintain in spite of the occasional pin pricks that the French duelists inflict on one another that French dueling is a French farce. But Frenchmen and sometimes other persons in sympathy with them insist upon being taken seriously. They insist that dueling with swords, which is the real thing in French duels, is not child's play and that compared with it the old fashioned Anglo-Saxon resort to a "pair of fives" is brutality not to be thought of by the scraping smirker of the boulevards.

The French habit of settling disputes by resort to duels with swords has developed a national dueling weapon, the epee de combat, a long and strong blade with three triangular grooves tapering to a keen point, with edges that never are used save for defense. The hand is protected with a broad, round guard shaped like the gong upon an alarm clock. The handle is straight, with no other incumbrance, and balanced by a heavy pommel which projects beyond the root of the thumb when the weapon is held ready for a thrust.

It is a modern development of the rapier with which Cyrano de Bergerac fought the bullies of Paris. It shows traces of its descent through the elegant court sword which was coming into being when D'Artagnan became a field marshal in the "Duc de Bragelonne." But its hilt makes it impossible for ordinary wear in its present shape, and the epee de combat is the weapon of the French duelist and of him alone.

In 1888 General Boulanger and M. Floquet found it necessary to settle their differences at the sword's point. The critics had not much difficulty in picking the winner between a civilian president of the chamber of deputies well advanced in years who had limited his practice to sparrow shooting with a pistol and a "brav' general" in the full ardor of his life whose sword was the symbol of his profession. Yet they were utterly mistaken.

If M. Floquet was no swordsman, he was full of quiet pluck and common sense, and he practiced one stroke only the night before the fight. A dozen times, though not too many to make his old limbs stiff the next day, he might have been seen in a well known salles d'armes straightening his arm and raising his wrist until he could only just see the point of his sword above and beyond the ball of his thumb. The next day Boulanger made a furious attack, with many stamps and flourishes. The little president stiffened his back, threw out his point, and the unlucky general impaled his neck upon the blade. Boulanger recovered, to die by his own hand after "Boulangism" had been discredited.

"Harry Alis" of the Debats suffered much more quickly from the effects of the epee. His real name was Hippolyte Percher, and in fighting a captain of infantry on the Ile de la Grande Jatte about certain scandals connected with the French Kongo he was hit in the right armpit and bled to death.

The duel fought by Catulle Mendes in May of 1899 was almost as serious, and it was caused while Bernhardt was playing "Hamlet" by some fatuous quarrel over the physical development of the prince of Denmark. M. Vanor, Mendes' opponent, was a fine swordsman and sportsmanlike enough to recognize the double advantages he enjoyed, contented himself with parrying correctly. Catulle Mendes threw himself on his adversary's point and was severely wounded in the stomach on almost the same ground where Percher had been killed several years before.

It often is urged outside of France that French dueling consists in merely pricking your man in the hand or forearm, as the least disablement is held to "satisfy the honor" of the combatants. But the hand and arm of an adversary are those parts of him which are nearest to you and which you can reach with the least exposure of your own person.

The wound that is produced by transfixing a hand, which may be protected only by the ordinary kid glove of social custom, is not only totally disabling, but also extremely painful. Soldiers who have been shot in the palm invariably collapse for a time with the acute agony produced by the rupture of so many delicate nerve centers. A thrust in the forearm is equally effective, for it disables all the muscles and ligaments that enable a man to hold and manipulate his sword.

But though a fine duelist is always capable of these particular thrusts—and they are far more various than would be imagined at first sight—he has by no means exhausted his strokes when these have all been parried. Attacks in what is called the "lower line" are frequently successful and invariably produce an awkward wound when they succeed. The throat is as vulnerable and as often attacked as is the chest, and it must be remembered that the entire body of each assailant is open to attack and obviously to injury.

Nothing In a Name.

"Where have you been until this shamefully unseasonable hour?"

"Been sitting in a 'quick repair' shop, my dear, waiting for my only pair of shoes."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Good chairs are the most difficult pieces of old furniture to find. They received harder use than other pieces of furniture and consequently wore out quicker.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

He Obeyed the Judge.

Over a score of years ago Judge Fitzgerald was appointed to the bench of the district that includes Pima and Cochise counties, in Arizona. He found on coming to Tucson that formality was almost unknown in the courtroom. If the days were warm, the attorneys and attendants dispensed with coats. This to him appeared particularly disrespectful. He announced that smoking in the courtroom would not be tolerated and that coats must be worn under pain of the court's displeasure. The grand jury was called. Among the jurors summoned was a brawny miner, who appeared in his usual costume, a dark blue shirt and overalls.

"What do you mean," thundered the magistrate, "by appearing in this courtroom in your shirt sleeves? Where is your coat?"

"At home, judge," mildly returned the juror.

"Then go and get it! No, not a word, sir!" glaring down upon the man as he attempted to speak. "Go home and get your coat, sir, or, I'll commit you for contempt!"

The miner went silently out. He didn't return that day nor the next, and the judge, after issuing a bench warrant for him, swore in another juror. About two weeks thereafter the original miner, dressed as the court demanded, again stepped within Judge Fitzgerald's range of vision. To the irate magistrate he tendered the explanation that his home and coat were both in Harshaw mountains, near the Mexican border, over 100 miles away, and that he had but obeyed the orders of his honor in going home after his coat.—Arizona Graphic.

A Qualified Decision.

"In the early days of Cœur d'Alene," said an old miner, "I was working with my partners on a claim when we were suddenly startled by pistol shots and, looking up, discovered a man lying prostrate on an adjoining claim, while his assailant was trying to escape by legging it to the best of his ability. Without stopping to pick up the injured man we gave hot chase to the one trying to escape, whom we finally overhauled, captured and haled before a justice of the peace at Mission, Ida., the nearby town.

"There, as I remember it, it developed that it was an attempt at claim jumping and that the man who had done the shooting was the would be jumper. The evidence was all against him, and word came that the man who had been shot lay, all but within the portals of death, the physician giving it as his opinion that he could last only a few hours longer, and thereupon the famed justice of the peace rendered his decision.

"'I find you guilty of murder in the first degree,' said he, severely, as he turned toward the prisoner at the bar—'that is, provided the victim dies,' and so that decision stands to this day."

A Newspaper Wonder.

When you open up your newspaper, it may cause you to feel some wonder if you know that in all probability yours are the first hands that have ever touched its inside pages. The reason for this is, that the paper is made from wood pulp. The woodman cuts down a spruce tree. It is hauled to the mill. There machinery strips off the bark, reduces the wood to pulp and makes it into paper.

At every turn cranes, derricks, chains, cogs, rollers, steel teeth and other mechanical contrivances keep the material out of human hands. The immense rolls are wound by machines, loaded into car and wagon by machinery, put into pressroom and on presses by other machinery and finally printed and folded without having been directly touched by any human hand.

This is a mechanical marvel of today which is no doubt duplicated in other branches of industry. It is very striking in the newspaper industry, which stands in the very front rank of mechanical perfection.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

No Use For Toes.

If shoes go on forever, why should not our toes grow together? We have no use for them. We can't manage them. About one man in 1,000 can pull on his interossei muscles and spread out his toes. In the remaining 999 these muscles are as dead as fiber. They haven't been used since the infant stuck his toes in his mouth and crooned a baby song without words. If we wore mittens all the time, the individual control of our fingers would be lost. We eat so much soft food that we have scarcely any need of teeth. Gums would answer every purpose, as mastication is performed by machinery before we begin a meal. There are over 200 distinct muscles in the human body, of which the best of us keep about 100 in prime condition by proper use.—New York Press.

Speeding the Parting Guest.

"Is that clock right?" he asked after it had struck 11.

"Why?" she answered.

"Because if it is I shall have plenty of time to catch the 11:30 car."

"I remember now," she said, "that the clock is about 20 minutes slow. If you hurry, you will just catch the car."

During the 20 minutes that he stood on the corner he arrived at the painful conclusion that she didn't really love him as he longed to be loved.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Hawaiian Pronunciations.

Hawaiians call their chief islands Hah-vwy-ee; we say Hah-wy-ee. Other proper ways of giving well known Hawaiian names are, O-ah-hu, Ho-no-lulu, Mow-ee (Maui), Kow-aye (Kauai), Ne-e-how (Niihau), Hee-lo (Hilo), Lah-by-na (Lahaina), Ko-hah-la (Kohala). Vowels are as in Italian and deserve much care. Hawaiians pay little attention to consonants.—Baltimore News.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 21, 1900.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on September 18th 1900, viz:

Devant G. Rice, H. E. 19769, for the se¼ nw¼ and ne¼ sw¼ sec. 22, twp. 153 N., range 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:—Hulva Hulvason, Hans Frederickson, George German, of Thief River Falls, Minn., and Louis Hendrickson of St. Hilaire, Minn. [illegible]

32-5 SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to give FARM STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.25.

NOTICE.

Department of the Interior.
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota.

PUBLIC SALE.—ISOLATED TRACT.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, under authority in him vested by section 2455, U. S. R. S., as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895 (28 Stat. 687) we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 1st day of September 1900, at ten o'clock a. m., the following tract of land to-wit:

SE¼ NE¼ Sec. 1, T. 151 N., R. 43 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the said sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated July 20th, 1900.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.
Misc. App. No. 290—8161.
32-5

—Screen doors and windows made to order at I. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

FARMS 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS First Mortgage Farm Loans ☞ A Specialty. ☜

ABSTRACTS furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

THE FAVORITE FOR MEDICINAL AND GENERAL USE.

UNCLE SAM'S MONOGRAM WHISKEY

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS.
ST. PAUL GEO. BENZ & SONS MINNEAPOLIS

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.
—o—
Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.
Razors honed and put in first-class order.
J. H. PENNO, Prop.
ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

Call for and get
HAMM'S
Celebrated
St. Paul
BEER
Order of Nearest agent.
Theo. Hamm Brewing Co.
St. Paul.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

TO HELENA
BUTTE
SPOKANE
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND

PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A Pamphlet, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address, [illegible]

C. A. SNOW & CO.
[illegible]

20,000 Acres

Of Wild and Improved Lands for sale in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

Prairie Lands,
Speculators Lands,
Timber Lands.

HIMLE LAND & LOAN COMPANY,
Purchasers of N. P. Ry. Co. lands in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

☞ Call on or address
FRED G. WELLS, Local Mgr.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

$150,000 to Loan on Farm Lands.

First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.

UNCLE SAM Is not In the Shoe Business, And Neither Am I, But I can Interest You in CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

J.B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

For Fine Goods
Good Goods
New Goods
Up to Date Goods

Visit Us as we are the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents Furnishing House in the City.

GREAT WESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route

Electric Light in Every Berth

A special feature of the Burglington's Chicago Limited. When you retire, turn on the light. After you are comfortably ensconced between the sheets, you can read by it. When you are sleepy, a twist of the wrist—and the light's out. Leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m., St. Paul 8:05 p. m., daily. Arrives Chicago 9:25 next morning. Scenic Day Express leaves Minneapolis 7:40 a. m., St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday, arriving Chicago same evening. Ask your home agent for tickets via this line.

P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. Agent, CHICAGO, ILL.
GEO. P. LYMAM, Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent ST. PAUL, MINN.

Cigars.

J. B. SENATE
DEALER IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.

(Brink Bros. Old Stand) St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

NEW MEAT MARKET.
L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

Supplement to
St. Hilaire Spectator.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN. AUGUST 1, 1900.

Commissioners' Proceedings.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., July 9th, 1900.
Regular meeting of board of county commissioners of Red Lake County, Minn.

Board met in regular session this day.

Members present. Johnson, Hansen, Hebert, Sutor, and Demann.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that the county auditor be instructed to draw his warrant in favor of the Great Northern Railway Co. in the sum of $400.00 out of the Sanders and Black River Ditch fund as payment for the award of damages allowed said Great Northern Railway Company by the viewers of said ditch for the construction of a certain railroad bridge across said ditch.

And it is hereby specially understood and agreed that the Great Northern Ry. Co., as soon as practicable, proceed to the construction of said bridge.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Hebert and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Petition of Alphonse LaCombe and others for bridge across Clearwater river in fractional township 152, range 41, was read.

Motion made by Hebert seconded by Hansen that county appropriate sufficient amount to pay for iron work and the construction of span.

Motion carried unanimously.

On motion carried unanimously a recess was taken to 8 o'clock p. m.

8 o'clock p. m.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Motion made by Sutor seconded by Johnson that board make lease with Ernest Buse for court room and second story of building situate on lot 9 block 3 at $15.00 per month, and auditor is hereby instructed to draw his warrant monthly in payment of same, from July 15th to January 8th 1901.

Motion carried unanimously.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 o'clock a. m. July 10, 1900.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Commissioner Johnson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

> Resolved that the necessary steps be taken to change the system of caring for the poor, from the county to the town system, and that the county auditor is hereby instructed to lay the question before the State board of Corrections and Charities.

Which resolution was seconded by Hebert.

Upon the question of the same the following was the vote:

Ayes.

Johnson, Hansen, Sutor, Hebert and Demann.

Nays.

None.

So the same was adopted.

Motion made by Sutor seconded by Johnson that board make list of 72 names from which to draw petit jury for October term of court.

Motion carried.

List was then made and filed with clerk of court.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 o'clock p. m.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Hearing was then had on school petition of Jos. Laurant.

Motion made by Sutor seconded by Hansen that the same be granted.

Johnson, Sutor and Hansen voting in the affirmative and Hebert and Demann voting in the negative.

Motion carried.

And the following order was made:

Order Setting off legal voter from one school district to another.

Whereas, the petition of Joseph Laurant a legal voter, free holder and resident of school district No. 81, in this county, with the approval of the county superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the lands hereinafter described which are situate in School district No. 79 and adjoin School district No. 81, and asking that said lands may be set off from said district No. 79 to said adjoining school district No. 81 for the following reasons:

That he lives in school district No. 81 and wants all his land in the same school district

Was presented to the board of County Commissioners of this county, at a session of said board held on the 11th day of June, A. D. 1900, for the action of said board thereon; and

Whereas, it was thereupon ordered by said board that a hearing should be had on said petition at a session of said board, commencing on the 10th day of July, A. D. 1900, at the county auditor's office in Red Lake Falls, in said county; and

Whereas, it was further ordered in and by said order that notice of the time and place of such hearing be given by posting a notice of said order in one public place in each of the school districts to be affected by said petition, and by handing to and leaving with the clerk of each of said school districts, personally, a copy of said notice, at least ten days before the time appointed for such hearing; and

Whereas, at the said session of the said Board of county commissioners, commencing on said 10th day of July, A. D. 1900, due proof of the posting and service of said order of hearing as therein directed and required, more than ten days prior to said last named date, having been made and filed, said petition was publicly read and considered by this board with everything which was said by said interested parties for or against granting the prayer of the petitioner and said board being of opinion that said petition should be granted, it is hereby ordered and determined that the said petitioner, and the following described lands owned by him, to-wit:

NW¼, section 3, twp 150, range 43.

Be and the same are hereby set off from said school district No. 79, to said adjoining school district No. 81, and said lands are hereby made a part of said last named school district for all purposes whatever.

By order of the board of county commissioners.

Dated the 10th day of July, A. D. 1900.

Wm. C. L. Demann,
Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, of Red Lake County, Minn.
Attest:

Adam Zeh,
County Auditor
and ex-officio Clerk of Board.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that the sum of $1100.00 be and the same is hereby transferred from the Road & Bridge Fund and credited to the county revenue fund.

Which resolution was seconded by Johnson and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

> Resolved that the sum of $900.00 be and is hereby transferred from the Poor fund and credited to the County revenue fund.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Johnson and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Commissioner Hebert offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

> Resolved that the sum of $150.00 be and is hereby appropriated out of the county revenue fund and credited to the Incidental Expense Fund.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Sutor and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption.

> Resolved that the following sums and taxes be levied as a basis of taxation for the year 1900 for the county of Red Lake viz:

County Revenue	$12000 00
" Road & Bridge	2000 00
" Poor	3000 00
" Bond & Interest	4000 00
" School	1 mill
" Interest on ditch bonds	1000 00

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Hebert and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Application of John Turnquist for correction of assessment and abatement of taxes was read and on motion duly carried the same was granted.

Motion made by Hansen seconded by Sutor that sheriff's list of uncollected Personal property tax be cancelled.

Motion carried unanimously.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 o'clock a. m. July 11th.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption.

> Resolved that the county auditor and treasurer are hereby authorized to make a partial distribution of the tax-collection funds at any time between the regular days of settlement, provided that no fund shall receive a greater sum than would accrue to it of the tax levy and collections which is at the time in the treasury undistributed.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Johnson and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

On motion carried unanimously bills were allowed as follows:

County Poor Fund.
Rapp & Post supplies for O.A. Nelson's child	$ 5 00
Ed Gareau board of Joe Doyen one month	10 00
Luc Dubuc board of A. Juneau 1 month	10 00
Ernest Buse house rent to Mrs Marchildon	6 00
Shagnan & Benoit mdse furnished Oliver Durand	10 10
Mrs A M Labonty board of Mrs Violette 1 mo	10 00
John Beaudry board of E Morrissette 4 mo	32 00
Dr N M Watson medical service rendered Oliver Durand	61 00
Dr Henry Francis medical service rendered Louis Olson	33 00
Dr A F Blomburgh medical service rendered Chas Nelson's boy	54 00
Dr A F Blomburgh medical service rendered Chas Nelson's boy	22 50
St. Gabriel's hospital board and care of Mary Domers 3 months	15 00
F X Lambert board and care of Theo Carle 1 mo	25 00
Theo LaBissoniere supplies furnished Mrs Breault	3 60
Theo LaBissoniere supplies furnished J. Farstad	5 00
County Revenue Fund.
St Hilaire Spectator to publishing school dist notice	1 50
St Hilaire Spectator to publishing commissioner's proceedings of June 11	45 00
Geo D Barnard & Co 1 book game license	3 20
Geo D Barnard & Co 1 gross Gillott's pens	1 16
Free Press Ptg Co rubber stamps	1 75
Pioneer Press Co blanks	2 50
Peter C Wold assessing fractional twp 153 42	5 00
O H Olson assessing fractional twp 152 41	5 00
Wm Zalser livery to Thief River Falls order of judge of probate	4 00
Joseph Belair coroners fees inquest on body of Wm Vorachek	14 90
Michael Nolan witness inquest on body of Barney Mousseau	1 12
Jas Ford witness inquest on body of Barney Mousseau	1 12
Dan Patterson witness inquest on body of Barney Mosseau	1 12
Wm Lounsdale witness inquest on body of Barney Mosseau	1 12
Jas O Burse witness inquest on body of Barney Mosseau	1 12
Dr A F Blomburgh medical witness inquest on body of Barney Mosseau	6 20
Thief River Falls Lumber Co lumber for court house	1 82
P O Hagglund 5¼ day with team assisting across sec Sanders B R ditch	37 10
G A Ralph cross sectioning Sanders B R ditch	34 70
Magnus Winberg posting fire notices	2 00
Adam Zeh services rendered in Sanders Black River ditch proceedings	75 00
K M Hansen 3 days attending commissioners' meeting and mileage and 2 days attending poor	19 00
O J Johnson attending July meeting and mileage and 1 day attending poor	16 00
J B Hebert attending July meeting and mileage	12 00
Jas Sutor attending July meeting and mileage and attending poor	16 00
Wm C L Demann attending July meeting and mileage	10 40

On motion duly carried meeting adjourned to July 21st at 9 o'clock a m.

Adam Zeh, County Auditor.

Proceedings of the Board of Equalization of Red Lake County.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., July 16, 1900.
Proceedings of the Board of Equalization, Red Lake county Minn.

Wm. C. L. Demann, James Sutor, J. B. Hebert, Ole J. Johnson, and K. M. Hansen, constituting the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, Minn., met at the auditor's office July 16th, 1900, and in conjunction with the county auditor took and subscribed the statutory oath and entered upon their duties as a Board of Equalization.

On motion duly carried K. M. Hansen was elected chairman.

On motion by Hebert, seconded by Johnson and carried unanimously, the following resolution was adopted:

> Resolved, that as a basis of equalization, the valuation of personal property be fixed as follows:

Horses, mules and asses 1 year old	$ 8 00
" " " 2 years old	15 00
" " " 3 years old and over	25 00
Cattle one year old	5 00
Cattle two years old	8 00
Cows	12 00
Work Oxen	18 00
Sheep, all ages	1 00
Hogs per cwt	1 00

Motion made by Demann, seconded by Sutor, that Board proceed to the equalization of personal property.

Motion carried unanimously.

On motion of Zeh, seconded by Hebert, that Item No. 17, of St. Hilaire Lumber Company, be raised $1000, and Thief River Falls Lumber Company's assessment stand as returned by town board.

Motion carried.

Motion made by Johnson, seconded by Sutor, that Red Lake Falls Lumber Company be raised $1000 on item 17.

Motion carried.

On motion duly carried, a recess was taken to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 o'clock A. M., July 17.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Numedal.

The following changes were made in the town of Numedal:

Horses, 3 years old and over, raised 10 per cent.

Cattle two years old and over, raised 12½ per cent.

Cows raised 5 per cent.

Wagons and carriages raised 50 per cent.

Melodeons and organs, raised 100 per cent.

Tools, implements and machinery, raised 50 per cent.

Norden.

The following changes were made in the town of Norden:

Horses, two years old, raised 25 per cent.

Cattle, two years old, raised 10 per cent.

The following changes were made in the town of North:

North.

Cattle two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 20 per cent.

Bray.

The following changes were made in the town of Bray:

Horses 3 years old and over, raised 10 per cent.

Cattle one year old, raised 10 per cent.

Cattle two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 50 per cent.

Melodeons and organs, raised 100 per cent.

Household furniture, raised 100 per cent.

Agricultural tools and machinery, raised 50 per cent.

Sanders.

The following changes were made in the town of Sanders:

Cattle two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 33⅓ per cent.

Household furniture, raised 100 per cent.

Rocksbury.

The following changes were made in the town of Rocksbury:

Cattle 2 years old raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 20 per cent.

Melodeons and organs, raised 50 per cent.

Polk Centre.

The following changes were made in the town of Polk Centre:

Cattle two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 20 per cent.

Household furniture, raised 50 per cent.

Agricultural tools and machinery, raised 50 per cent.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 o'clock p. m.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Black River.

The following changes were made in the town of Black River:

Cattle two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, etc., raised 150 per cent.

Melodeons and organs, raised 100 per cent.

Household furniture, raised 75 per cent.

Agricultural tools and machinery, raised 50 per cent.

River Falls.

The following changes were made in the town of River Falls:

Cattle two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 33⅓ per cent.

Household furniture, raised 50 per cent.

Agricultural tools and machinery, raised 50 per cent.

Wyandotte.

The following changes were made in the town of Wyandotte:

Cattle two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Cows, raised 20 per cent.

Wagons, carriages, etc., raised 33⅓ per cent.

Household furniture, raised 50 per cent.

Agricultural tools and machinery, raised 25 per cent.

Louisville.

The following changes were made in the town of Louisville:

Horses, 3 years old and over, raised 20 per cent.

Cattle, two years old and over, raised 15 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 100 per cent.

Household furniture, raised 50 per cent.

Melodeons and organs, raised 100.

Agricultural tools and machinery, 75 per cent.

Red Lake Falls.

The following changes were made in the town of Red Lake Falls.

Cattle two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Household furniture, raised 33⅓ per cent.

Gervais.

The following changes were made in the town of Gervais.

Cattle two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 10 per cent.

Household furniture, raised 50 per cent.

Emardville.

The following changes were in the town of Emardville:

Wagons and carriages, raised 75 per cent.

Odilon Gauthier, threshing rig, raised $100.

On motion duly carried, a recess was taken to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 o'clock a. m., July 18th.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Garnes.

The following changes were made in the town of Garnes:

Wagons and carriages, raised 33⅓ per cent.

Household furniture, raised 50 per cent.

Leroux Bros., threshing rig, raised $150.

Equality.

The following changes were made in the town of Equality:

Horses, three years old and over, raised 20 per cent.

The assessment of Aslack Tomason was stricken from the list, the same having been assessed in town of Knute, Polk Co.

The assessment of Abraham Paquin was stricken from the list, the same having been assessed in town of Lambert.

Lake Pleasant.

The following changes were made in the town of Lake Pleasant:

Horses, three years old and over, raised 10 per cent.

Cattle, two years old and over, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 33⅓ per cent.

Household furniture, raised 50 per cent.

Terrebonne.

The following changes were made in the town of Terrebonne:

Cattle, two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 25 per cent.

Household furniture, raised 33⅓ per cent.

Poplar River.

The following changes were made in the town of Poplar River:

Cattle 2 years old, raised 10 per cent.

Household furniture, raised 75 per cent.

Lambert.

The following changes were made in the town of Lambert:

Cattle, two years old, raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages, raised 75 per cent.

Melodeons and organs, raised 50 per cent.

Household furniture raised 50.

Goods and merchandise raised 33⅓ per cent.

Abraham Paquin raised on wagons $25, agricultural tools and machinery $25, manufacturers tools implements and machinery $100.

St. Hilaire.

The following changes were made in the village of St. Hilaire:

Cows raised 10 per cent.

P Paradis on saloon fixtures and stock, reduced $100.

Markam Hotel Co. on saloon fixtures and stock raised $150.

Ives & Soll raised $200.

Markham Hotel Co bldg on lots 20, 21 and 22 Block 39 raised $200.

Thief River Falls.

The following changes were made in the city of Thief River Falls:

Horses 3 years old and over raised 10 per cent.

H E Mussey on printing outfit raised $350.

J. W. Eastman, on printing outfit, raised $300.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 o'clock p. m.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

City of Red Lake Falls.

The following changes were made in the city of Red Lake Falls:

Horses three years old and over raised 15 per cent.

Cattle 2 years old raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages raised 25 per cent.

Jos Paradis saloon fixtures and stock raised $150.

J M Bray saloon fixtures and stock raised $200.

J E Bray saloon fixtures and stock raised $156.

Fred Borchers saloon fixtures and stock raised $150.

M Skala saloon fixtures and stock raised $50.

Shagnan & Benoit goods and merchandise reduced to $700.

Red Lake Falls Milling Co. manufactured materials and manufactured articles raised $350.

P A Kaufer printing outfit raised $300.

Jeffers & Boughton printing outfit raised $300.

Dist No. 1.

The following changes were made in assessment Dist No. 1.

Cattle 2 years old raised 10 per cent.

Wagons and carriages raised 25 per cent.

Dist No. 2.

The following changes were made in assessment dist No. 2:

Wagons and carriages raised 25 per cent.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 o'clock a. m. July 19.

Board reconvened.

All members present.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

The following changes were made in the city of Red Lake Falls:

Lots 13 to 24, Block 20, Champagne & Dow's addition raised $10 each.

Lots 9, 10, 11 and 12, block 3 reduced $25 each.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 o'clock p. m.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order.

All members present.

Lots No. 8, 9 and 12 of section 15, 151, 44, reduced to $140.

Lot 12 and 100 x 56 ft of lots 13, 14, 15 and 16, Block 51, Kretzschmar's addition reduced to $40 each.

80x28 ft of lots 13, 14, 15 and 16, block 51, Kretzschmar's add reduced $10.00.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 o'clock a. m., July 20.

Board reconvened.

All members present except Commissioner Hansen.

On motion duly carried Ole J. Johnson was elected chairman protem.

Lot B of block 2, Langevin's subdivision of church block was reduced $100.

Lots 1 to 12, blk 11, Buse & Bottineau's addition reduced $5 each.

Lots 1 to 12 blk 12 reduced $7 each.

Lots 1 to 12 blk 13 reduced $7 each.

All in Buse & Bottineau's addition.

Lots 1 to 11, blk 1; lots 1 to 12, blk 8; lots 1 to 12, blk 15; and lots 1 to 7, blk 18, Railroad addition raised $5 each.

N½ sec 16-151-44 reduced to $960.

NW¼ sec 15-151-44 reduced to $720.

2 acres out of nw corner of SW ¼ of sec 24-151-44 was stricken from list, the same being church property.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 o'clock p. m.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Block 13, Crocker, O & Nelson's add, St. Hilaire reduced to $20.

Block 15, Crocker O & Nelson's add, St. Hilaire reduced to $30.

Block 16, Crocker O & Nelson's add, St. Hilaire reduced to $30.

Motion made by Hebert seconded by Sutor that city and village lots and farm lands be raised 5 per cent.

Motion carried unanimously.

On motion duly carried meeting adjourned.

Attest:
Adam Zeh.
County Auditor.

THE VERY YOUNG MAN.

His Plaid Stockings and Big Money Make Him Conspicuous.

He boarded the Woodward avenue car at Graftoit avenue, where there was already a crowd of thirty or thirty-five inside. He squeezed into a seat and a woman holding a child partially oozed out at the end by the door. A dozen people glared at the very young man. He hitched up his trousers four inches above his shoe tops and regaled the other passengers with a sight of his plaid silk hose. Every one knew the very young man has received those "socks" for Christmas, but he wasn't aware that they knew it. Atop the very young man's head rested a stiff hat with a crown so low that the entire apparatus looked like a fried egg, done brown on one side.

The young man's clothes were cut very large. He wore no overcoat. There were creases in his sleeves and his necktie was plaid, like the hose. He wore besides these things a vacuous smile of imbecility, such as is often seen on the well-bred scion of a noble European home. Such was he in looks.

By and by the conductor opened the back door of the car and let in about a ton of winter weather and himself. He closed the door after him and the passengers shivered. The very young man smiled as vacuously as ever, and gave his trousers another hitch. Shortly the passengers felt they would be able to tell the color of the elastics holding those stockings up. "Fares," yelled the bold conductor, extending a grim paw here and there. The very young man reached into the lower right-hand pocket of a vocal waistcoat of stripes and checks and pulled out a rolled up bill. This he handed to the conductor, first unrolling it, so that the people alongside could see that it was a five.

"Smallest you got?" growled the conductor.

"Yes, smallest," smiled the very young man. The conductor knew he lied, but the very young man didn't know what the conductor knew. The latter rolled up the bill again and poked it into his pocket, then he reached into an inner compartment beneath his overcoat and pulled out a double handful of nickels and dimes. These he stacked like the dealer of a faro game. Unloading a pile on the youth he said, "That's one dollar." Before the very young man could count the coins another was dumped upon with he words, "There's another dollar." Somebody snickered. The vacuous smile left the countenance of the very young man and he reddened like unto a beet. "There's another dollar. That makes three."

The man opposite laughed outright. The red on the very young man's face deepened. He no longer counted. "That's four," and another dump came. "Then here's the rest," and still another handful of nickels and pennies was unloaded on the youth.

Laughter in the car was general. The youth, weighed down with wealth, made for the door and swung from the car at Edmund Place, even if he did live on Alexandrine.

And the only regret of the other passengers was that they had not seen the color of the elastics that held up the plaid hose.—Detroit Free Press.

BLUFF WON THE DAY.

A Yankee Tourist Didn't Propose to Be Left Out in the Cold.

"Here at home bluff doesn't count for much," said the globe trotter, "but I'm telling you that a good stiff bluff, with a cheeky American behind it, is worth a lot of money in Europe. When I got around to Nice last year the best hotels were crowded and I had to take up with a small room. On the same floor was a German who was occupying a suite, though not spending much money or putting on any style. One day there was a great row. The landlord had asked him as a particular favor to vacate for a newcomer, and, of course, the man didn't propose to be turned out. The landlord coaxed and argued, and the German growled and muttered, and I followed them down to the office to see how it would come out. At the desk was an American I had run across in Venice—a buyer for a Chicago dry goods house. When the landlord and German began to gabble in chorus the buyer pulled a bank check from his pocket and reached for a pen, and said:

"'All this talk is of no use. I want rooms here. I will buy the hotel and suite. Sir, what is your cash price for this hotel?'

"'You would buy this hotel!' exclaimed the landlord, as he threw up his hands in surprise.

"'Grounds and all, and I want it to-day. How much—a million—three or four? And what name shall I fill in on the check?'

"Say, now," laughed the tourist, "but you ought to have seen that thing work! The German had determined to be ugly about it, but when he bumped up against a man who had as soon pay four millions as one for what he fancied, he felt awed and humbled and ready to quit. The landlord figured that to turn away such a Croesus would ruin his house, and it wasn't half an hour before the bluffer was installed in the suite and the German was chucked away into a dog hole on the top floor; and that wasn't all, mind you. When they sent the buyer a bill based on his supposed millions he got up and threatened to buy up the town and start six soap factories to running, and they cut every item in two and begged his pardon to boot. I don't believe that chap had $1,000 to his name, but he just walked over everything and everybody for two weeks, and it was current gossip that he owned the whole of Chicago and a good share of St. Louis and Cincinnati. Nothing but a cold bluff, which wouldn't have taken him into an American dance hall as a deadhead, but it was equal to a letter of credit for $1,000,000 over there."—Seattle Times.

FOR BAIT IN A TIGER TRAP

At the Mercy of a Band of Semi Savages

FIERCE INDIAN NATIVES

Saved by a Little Girl—Shut Up in a Trap as Bait for the Fiercest and Strongest of All Wild Beasts—An English Officer's Story.

A tiger story is the unfailing resource of the officers of the British army on the long ocean voyage they must regularly make between London and Calcutta. It is a rare treat to be a listener with some grizzled veteran during the enforced leisure of this homeward journey, holding a smoking room audience spellbound with a tale of adventure.

Here is one told by Sir Arthur Hewitt not long ago before a party of interested listeners. A tall, thin, soldierly figure, with a face darkened by close application of the razor, he loomed the giant of the group:

"It happened in Birmania," he began, "between Prome, and Rangoon. The country was ravaged at that time by the depredatory bands of Nung Gung Gee, the fiercest native chief we ever had to contend with. I headed a scouting party, and, being overtaken by night at some distance from camp, we lighted fires and lay down to sleep. Some hours later I felt myself lifted bodily from the ground. I had been bound and gagged, and in a short time was a prisoner in the stronghold of Gung himself.

"The next morning they brought me before Gung. The moment he saw me he leered hideously.

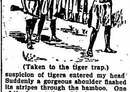
"'At last,' he said, 'here is one of those English who are invading our country and would reduce us to slavery.'

"Gung's followers now blindfolded me. I was thus forced some five miles through the jungle and beaten with sticks all the way. Finally they came to a halt. The bandage was removed from my eyes. Growing accustomed to the light I discovered a tiger trap ahead. I did not imediately comprehend the purpose of my captors. But my uncertainty did not last long.

"The tiger trap was constructed of bamboo. One section of it was cut off from the rest by a network of bamboo rods. This formed the receptacle for the bait. The bait was myself. They stripped me of my clothing, thrust me in and bound me with thongs. Then they made off.

"I did not feel very uneasy at first. For two hours I worked for freedom, but in the end I was forced to admit the hopelessness of the task. Insects alighted on my skin and bit the flesh raw. The sun beat down on my head and into my eyes. I grew faint. Suddenly it occurred to me that a tiger might appear at any moment. However, there was some hope, although the hope was slender. A little native girl had, at the risk of her life, given me a drink of water the day before. This was at a spot near Gung's camp. I bade her hurry off and apprise Captain D'Oyley of my peril. But as the hours wore on I grew despondent. Would the little girl have understood?

"My reflections were interrupted by a light footfall. It was for all the world like that of a timid child. When the sound first reached my ears no suspicion of tigers entered my head. Suddenly a gorgeous shoulder flashed its stripes through the bamboo. One of the largest tigers I had ever seen—and I had seen many—confronted me.



(Taken to the tiger trap.)

"It flashed across my mind that this might not be a man-eating tiger. In that event, it would sniff about the trap and do me no harm. One gigantic paw was raised against the outer door of the trap. The door lifted and fell. The tiger was caught. Only a bamboo paling separated us. The bulky mass advanced toward me. Then the animal stood perfectly motionless.

"My whole body had turned cold, except where the insects left their stings. These raw spots glowed like many tiny coals. I stared straight into the tiger's face, not daring to wink an eyelid. I felt that the first movement would come from the enemy. It did. With a roar, the tiger dashed her whole weight against the bamboo rods. The great claws were thrust through and barely reached me. The tips of them scratched three long streaks in my side. A red tongue was stretched greedily through the bars. There was no doubt now. This was a man-eating tiger.

"The peril gave me inconceivable strength. I tried to burst my bonds. But I suddenly recollected that bursting my bonds would do me little good. I was in a trap, like my enemy. In another moment my portion of the trap would be invaded.

"Suddenly I saw a glimmer of lights. A confused sound of voices reached me. They were coming nearer. I heard my name pronounced. They were calling me. My voice refused to issue from my throat. But I knew in that instant that the little girl had given he alarm. I am glad to recall that my first impulse was one of gratitude to her.

"My rescurers dared not shoot the tigress. Gung was in the neighborhood. His bands would have massacred our little company in a moment. It was necessary to attack the tigress with bayonets. It seemed every instant that the trap would give way under the strain of the leaps of the beast. It took almost an hour to effect my rescue. It is strange that the tigress harassed on all sides did not turn and kill me with a stroke of its paw. But the animal lost blood from a hundred wounds. It succumbed. They saved me."

YOUNG MASON'S AMBITION

His Stake for a Name and a Fortune.

A SELF IMPOSED TASK

The Matter of Honor and Love Are Both Involved—At Last Accounts the Young Man Was Not Discouraged—Taking Rash Chances.

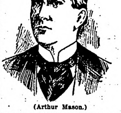
Arthur Mason is the son of Elias Mason, the head of a large shipping business on the great lakes. The elder Mason would gladly have his son join him in business, but the young man has determined that, alone and unaided, he will make his own fortune.

Mason's ambition and romance are the result of a five years' career as interesting as any young man ever had after leaving college. While Mason was at Princeton he met Horace L. Porter, a quiet, mild-mannered youth of rather retiring disposition. Porter was of the sort that is susceptible to a man of strong personality. So it was that, despite the extreme difference in their physical and mental compositions, a strong attachment sprang up between the two young men, which strenghened as ime wore on.

Shorly after leaving college Mason came to Chicago and began to speculate. Like many another man who has tried the same game, he lost, and lost again and again. His father refused to give him an additional allowance. At the very time of Mason's financial distress he received an invitation from his former college chum Horace L. Porter, to visit him at his home in Nevada. The invitation came as a piece of good fortune to Mason, who jumped at this temporary abatement of his troubles.

It was at Porter's Western home that Mason first met sweet-faced little Alva Porter. The girl, like her brother, became enraptured with the air of reckless bohemianism which Mason habitually assumed. In less than three months' time the girl, but nineteen years old, had given her promise to Mason that she would become his wife. In this alliance Mason saw a speedy termination of all his financial difficulties. But he was too much of a man to marry Miss Porter till he had made a start in life.

Mason went to San Francisco as the most convenient place for operating in stocks. He was soon joined by his friend, Horace Porter, who brought plenty of cash to do business with. As an evidence of his sincerity in his friendship, Porter suggested to his friend that they go into some business together. Porter had the capital and he was sure Mason had the brains. The offer was accepted, and under Mason's guidance Porter began speculating on the Stock Exchange.



(Arthur Mason.)

In less than a year Porter's inheritance of $250,000 had dwindled down to about $10,000. Mason would not ask his father for assistance and Porter refused to write to his mother for money, and thus it was that at the outbreak of the recent war with Spain Porter was working as clerk in a Boston dry goods store, while Mason earned a sort of livelihood as a board marker in a Boston bucketshop. When President McKinley issued his call for volunteers Arthur Mason and Horace Porter were among the first to present themselves for enrollment on the books of the Regiment of Massachusetts volunteers.

Mason went from choice; Porter because his friend enlisted. They went to Cuba and underwent all the hardships into which that gallant band of heroes was driven. Mason, strong of physique, withstood the awful ordeal, but Porter, always delicate in health, quickly began to feel the effects of the climate.

He became ill and was removed to the hospital. Mason begged to be allowed to go with his friend, and the request was granted. Porter was unable to resist the tropical fever and in a few days was dead. Mason cared for Porter as tenderly as a mother would a sick child, and as he held the fever-stricken hand of his comrade-friend, he made a vow that in life his only aim would be the redemption of the money he had lost.

On his return he set about fulfilling his promise and plunged at once into the vortex of speculation. Several times he had come within a few thousand dollars of winning the desired sum, but the next week he would make a loss, as so many have done before him.

Those interested have tried to dissuade him from his reckless though honorable efforts, and Miss Porter has joined with them in a desire that he relinquish hs purpose. But still the young man keeps on speculating. Will he win? Nobody knows.

Although the world has become somewhat hardened to the distress in India from hearing so often reports of want and misery in that unfortunate land, it is none the less horrifying to learn from Lord Curzon that at the present thousands are starving there.

Wives in Tanganyika are considered a luxury, and even in Zululand they cost from $150 to $800, but on the Tanganyika plateau one can be had for five or six goats. One goat equals 15 to 20 cents, therefore one wife equals $1.20.

BLANK PAGE

It's Time

Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
O. F. Post, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. A.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Mrs. L. Lacoursiere, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant	Councilmen
T. J. Thorkelson	Councilmen
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van B. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnson
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes
Alex Patnode	Gervias	Red Lake Falls

The Ideal Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS.
PROMPT SERVICE.
Open until one o'clock a. m.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd STORE
(Second Hand Store.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
St. Hilaire, - - Minnesota

New Restaurant
[Brink Bros. Corner Building.]
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.

If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
C. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the SPECTATOR. Official county and village paper.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.64½	Oats	19
Wheat No. 2	.62½	Barley	28
Wheat No. 3	.58½	Flax	122
Eggs (per doz).	9	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

Monday was a good day for politicians.

E. J. Brink spent Sunday at Detroit Lake.

—For screen doors and windows go to I. Dahleen's.

Jas. Kohmer made a business trip to Crookston last week.

E. M. Hoff and P. G. Paradis are at Red Lake Falls to-day.

County Supt. Jeffers was up from the county seat last Friday.

Ole Finberg shipped a car load of cattle to St. Paul Monday.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

W. A. Sorsoleil took in the Red Mens excursion to Bemidji Sunday.

Henry and Will Olson made a business trip to Crookston yesterday.

Take an hour off and cut down those unsightly weeds in your back yard.

County Commissioner Johnson was in the village the first of the week.

The binders will be getting in their work on the golden grain this week.

Arthur Lang made a bicycle trip to the county seat the first of the week.

Dr. Francis of Thief River Falls was here yesterday on professional business.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

Miss Selina Hoff left last Friday on a visit to relatives at Park River, North Dakota.

W. J. Gunness of Key West has been spending a few days with his sister, Mrs. Aimer.

S. A. Swanson of Red Lake Falls lingered in our village several hours last Thursday.

Thos. Sirrs, representing the Armor Packing Co., was here Saturday interviewing the trade.

Leonard Homes received a car load of binding twine and another of shelled corn last week.

Al. Gates, the Red Man organizer of Crookston was here yesterday in the interest of that order.

Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Richardson of Thief River Falls spent Sunday in the village visiting friends.

J. P. Foote, one of Crookstons attorneys was here Saturday attending to some business matters.

Miss Carrie Hoff departed Monday for Park River, N. Dak., where she goes on a visit to relatives.

C. G. Rapp belongs to Eddy's cabinet again this year. Eddy has one in every county in the 7th district.

Geo. Ossmann was up from St. Paul last Thursday and bought up all the wool and furs in St. Hilaire.

S. Harris returned yesterday from a two weeks absence at his old home in the southern part of the state.

M. Magnusen a farmer living a few miles east of here lost a valuable horse while in town yesterday morning.

L. T. Bergh, the McCormick collector returned home Monday from several weeks absence in North Dakota.

The Ladies Aid will meet with Mrs. Harris August 2nd. There is cordial invitation given to all the ladies.

A little stone breaking a street lamp was the cause of a kid boarder at the Hotel de Johnson Monday night.

Miss Ugstad and Miss Rood of Grand Forks spent a couple of weeks visiting friends and relatives in Rocksbury.

Harvest has commenced and the crops on the east side of the river will be as good as last year—if not better.

Red Lake county has what is known as the Mason-Dixon line. Some politician is responsible for drawing the line.

The Mission Friends sewing society will meet at Mrs. Andrew Hall, tomorrow Aug. 2nd. All are invited to come.

Eva Johnson who is attending the teachers training school in Red Lake Falls, was a home visitor over Sunday.

N. Pontous of northwestern Iowa was in the village over Sunday getting acquainted with the people and country.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

Rev. Dr. Forbes will preach in the M. E. church Friday evening August 3rd. All are invited to come.

Dr. Argue, the Red Lake Falls dentist will be at Hotel Markham Thursday and Friday prepared to do anything in the dental line.

Norman Beebe arrived to-day from the southern part of the state to look after his farming interests in this vicinity.

M. E. Todd of the upper Falls was here a short time yesterday while enroute to the county seat on business matters.

The Democratic state convention will be held at St. Paul on September 6th. Red Lake county is entitled to twelve delegates.

Just thirty days more and you can hunt chickens and ducks and at the same time comply with the Minnesota game laws.

Miss Lelome terminated a pleasant three weeks visit with Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Post and left Saturday for her home at Crookston.

Will Dupont was confined to his bed several days last week with a threatening attack of fever which he succeded in breaking up.

Ed. Moran came up from Red Lake Falls last Thursday to look over his political fences and found them in first-class shape.

H. Richard, shipping clerk for the St. Hilaire Lumber Company, returned Monday from a few days visit with relatives at Crookston.

Ike and Olé Halvorson came in yesterday from their pine claims which are located near the Black Duck country in Beltrami county.

D. J. Campbell, of Crookston, manager of the John Grove Land & Loan Co. of that place was up Saturday accompanied by several prospective buyers.

The Dakota paper that said the show traveling under the name of English-American Syndicate was a "fake and robber outfit" said it all in four words.

The dried up muskegs on the reservation east of here are burning and unless a good soaking rain comes there is no telling when the fire will be put out.

Messrs. Zeh, Armstrong, Lemieux and Kreuger of Red Lake Falls were up last Friday attending the funeral of their late brother Woodmen, Martin Hall.

H. H. Zaiser of Red Lake Falls was here a few minutes last Saturday with a delegation of his town boys who were enroute to Bemidji taking in the Red Men's excursion.

J. L. Johnson and H. E. Ives are at Red Lake Falls to-day assisting in naming the officers that will serve the interest of the people in this county for the next two years.

Marcus Johnson of St. Paul was here Saturddy looking after his business interests which he found in first-class shape under the able management of his agent, W. A. Sorsoleil.

W. C. Smiley, editor of the Thief River Press says the list of mourners who were taken in at the English-American circus which showed in his town last Thursday are too long to print.

M. J. Daly, the next congressman to represent the 7th district was here a few hours yesterday while enroute to Red Lake Falls to witness the doings of the county convention which takes place to-day.

A party of seven young people from Red Lake Falls visited the Hannay's last Friday night, coming up on bicycles. They stayed over night and started back in high spirit early Saturday morning.

For Sale:—The following furniture belonging to A. R. Mattes: Two carpets, 2 lamps, 1 couch, 3 pair lace curtains and poles, 1 screen, 1 pair postiers and pole and 2 smyrna rugs. Call on P. G. Oyen.

Died:—Myrtle, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Olson who reside on Wall street. The child died Monday evening after a short illness of only two days. The funeral takes place this afternoon.

The Mission Friends Sunday school will have a picnic next Sunday Aug. 5th out at Opperud's. Teams from the country will take out as many as possible. Meet at Rev. J. Olson's nine o'clock in the morning.

A nice crowd attended the picnic given by the Sunday school of the United Norwegian Lutheran church last Sunday at Aubol's grove north of town. Everybody who were present speak of having a splendid time.

Show no mercy to the pot hunter and less to one that will kick mother chicken off the nest and suck the eggs, also the ones that will shoot chickens the size of meadow larks. Go after these three styled "hunters" hard.

The Thief River Indians were paid off last week—got full of whiskey—whooped 'er up for a time and then burned up several hundred tons of hay which the white settlers cut on the reservation and forgot to pay for same.

Chas. Scrutchen, the colored lawyer from Bemidji was here last week in the interest of his getting the nomination for the legislature on the republican in this district, composed of Red Rake, Norman and Beltrami counties.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Aug. 27th and 28th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 27th and 28th.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Died.

At the home of his parents on Wednesday July 25th, occured the death of James Martin Hall of typhoid fever, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hall. The funeral was held Friday p. m. under the auspices of the Woodmen of which order the deceased was a charter member of our local camp and at the time of his death was filling the office of clerk. The members of the M. W. A. and the R. N. A. met at their hall and marched in line of procession to Holmes' undertaking rooms where the remains were conveyed into the hearse the following acting as pall bearers: W. McAndress, A. F. Lang, J. Nelson, Fred Cummings, Fred Lemay and H. C. Adams, thence to the M. E. church where the Rev. Myers preached a very able and interesting sermon. The church was beautifully decorated and the floral offerings were many. After the services the remains were viewed by the relatives and friends and many eyes were dimmed with tears as they rested for the last time on the face of the departed one. The line of prosession was again resumed and the remains laid away to rest in the Swedish Lutheran cemetary.

Deceased was born in Wabasha county, September 11, 1877, came to St. Hilaire with his parents in 1890 and has lived here ever since, attending the village school and clerking in his fathers store. Martin will be greatly missed as he had a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He was of a bright cheeful disposition and was loved by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintances. The bereaved family have sympathy of the entire comunity.

—If you want to make a loan or sell your farm call on or address Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

Homestead Ruling.

The Crookston United States land office is sending out circulars descriptive of the new ruling from the interior department regarding homestead entries. Before this law went into effect if a person made a homestead entry and lived upon the homestaid five years, or only fourteen months and paid so much an acre, he then lost his right of making homestead entries. By the new law such a person may again make a homestead entry. This is according to section 2. Section 3 provides that a person who has lost his first homestead may again make an entry, which was not allowed under the old law.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

Henry Norland returned home last Saturday from a two months absence at Crookston where he had been in the employ of the Waterworks, Power & Light Company of that place superintending the work of driving piles in the river.

Good shots up there at Thief River Falls—five of them were out in the town of Rocksbury last Sunday and it took twenty-two shots to kill a medium size covey of half grown chickens. The farmer informed us that they got the whole covey.

State certificates were received by the following pupils as a result of the spring examinations: Arne C. Skeie in senior arithmetic, geography and United States history; Eva L. Johnson in senior arithmetic and elementary algebra: Hulda Gigstad in arithmetic and Georgo S. Hall in arithmetic.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

The St. Hilaire Lumber Company will have about thirty men at work this week to begin the construction of a dam across the river five miles north of here. The dam is to be put in for the purpose of regulating the water in order to float logs over the several rapids that have caused so much trouble this year. Henry Norland will superintend the work of building the dam.

An exchange states that "the young man who lifts his hat to every young lady he meets on the street and then goes home and allows his aged mother to split the kindling and bring in coal, doesn't know the first principle of true politeness." And a little later on some young woman will find herself in the same boat that young man's mother is in—she will be splitting the kindling wood herself, says the Howard County Times.

—The Himle Land and Loan Co., will loan money on farm lands at legal rate, no commission, call on or address Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

Tom Lowry's street railway is compelled to pay about one hundred thousand dollars extra taxes by reason of the action of Gov. Lind in increasing the valuation of its property. The Standard Oil Company also evaded the tax law and Lind will see that they pay their tax or go out of the business. Lind's methods are opposite to the one that sends a man over the road for stealing a sack of flour while the one stealing one hundred thousand dollars goes scott free.

The soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and permanent cures, have made it a great favorite with the people everywhere. For sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

Bargains.

The remainder of our wash goods consisting of dimities, lawns silk stripe zephyr, ponge zephyr, etc., will be closed out regardless of cost to make room for our fall and winter goods. Come and secure some real bargains.

E. M. Hoff.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Aug. 27th and 28th.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup [illegible]

Some of the republican papers refuse to stomach the boodle dish that the corporations set before them. Listen to the Anoka Union:

"Hundreds of republicans already declare they will never put a cross opposite the name of Ira B. Mills for railroad commissioner."

And yet Mills is a boquet of geraniums beside that of Miller for the same office. Miller is notoriously a cheap tool of one of the most iniquitious railway combination in the country. He has not the first qualification in the world for the office, and his election, together with that of Mills, would completely turn over the grain and warehouse business of the state to a combine that would make ex-inspector Clausen's record glorious by comparison. Mills and Miller were nominated as a sop to the elevator ring and the railroads. Their names on the ticket probably means a hundred thousand dollar contribution to defeat Governor Lind. Whether the people will ratify the corrupt deal remains to be seen.—Martin County Sentinel.

With the establishing of the gold standard this government is now able to borrow all the money it wants at 2 per cent interest a rate lower than was ever known before and a rate lower than that secured by any other government on earth. Still there are those who call this a crime, and a conspiracy to help the money-leaders.—Council Bluffs Nonpareil, June 14.

The national banks borrow money from the government without any interest. Why should the government pay interest of even 2 per cent, and loan it to banks without interest? Bank notes are furnished free to the banks. The ¼ per cent charges do not pay the government the clerical and other expenses connected with the issuing of it. But this is not a crime and a conspiracy to help money-lenders. Of course not. The money-lenders themselves say it is not, and who should know better than they?—Appeal to Reason.

Four times has the occupant of the White House been a candidate for reelection against the man he defeated four years before. Never yet has the president been successful in the second contest. John Adams defeated Thos. Jefferson an even century ago. Four years later Jefferson won easily over Adams. John Quincy Adams made Andrew Jackson taste the bitters of defeat. Four years later "Old Hickory" larded the lean earth with Adams. Martin Van Buren defeated William Henry Harrison. Waiting his four yeard, Harrison defeated Van Buren and left him easily at the start. Benjamin Harrison defeated Grover Cleveland in 1888. In 1892 Cleveland beat Harrison. Four years ago Wm. Jennings Bryan was defeated by Wm. McKinley. This year they will face each other again.

Four short stories, the beginning of one serial, and the concluding chapters of another give the August Ladies' Home Journal claim to the title of Midsummer Story Number. There are besides upward of thirty other features: "College Girls' Larks and Pranks," "The Haunted Houses of New England," "My Summer with Some Chipmunks," "A Missionary in the Great West," by Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady "How a Girl Can Work Her Way through College," "Conversation and Good Form in Public Places," etc. Pictorially the August Journal is made unusually sumptuous by the work of nine illustrators and by innumerable photographs. "Through Picturesque America" will command particular attention, and Howard Chandler Christys "American Girl in Society" is another notable artistic feature. A waltz, "Golden Poppies," is attuned to the slumberous summer days and is exceedingly pretty. From cover to cover the August Journal is entertaining and attractive. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.

Teachers Examination.

Fall examination for the teachers of Red Lake County will be held at the high school building in the city of Qed Lake Falls, Monday and Tuesday Aug. 6th and 7th. This will be the only examination in the county this fall and those expecting to take the examination will please be present at 8 o'clock on the morning of the first day.

Frank Jeffers,
County Superintendent.

During the civil war, as well as in our late war with Spain, diarrhoea was one of the most troublesome diseases the army had to contend with. In many instances it became chronic and the old soldiers still suffer from it. Mr. David Taylor of Wind Ridge, Greene Co., Pa., is one of these. He uses Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and says he never found anything that would give him such relief. It is for sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly,
Prof. J. Q. Adams,
Watchmaker and Optician.

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,

RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—of—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture

Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

DESPERATE BATTLE

NEW ORLEANS THE SCENE OF A BLOODY CONFLICT.

After Killing Three Persons and Fatally Wounding Several Others the Negro Desperado, Robert Charles, Is Smoked Out of His Hiding Place and Literally Shot to Pieces—Twenty Thousand People, Soldiers, Policemen and Citizens, Gathered Around the Scene Where the Fight Occurred.

New Orleans, July 29.—After a desperate battle lasting for several hours in which he succeeded in killing Sergeant Gabriel Porteous, Andy Van Kurem, keeper of the police jail, and Alfred J. B. Bloomfield, a young boy, and fatally wounding Corporal John F. Lally, John Banville, ex-Policeman Frank H. Evans and A. S. Leclere, one of the leading confectioners of the city, and more or less seriously injuring several other persons, the negro desperado, Robert Charles, who killed Capt. Day and Patrolman Lamb and badly wounded Officer Mora, was smoked out of his hiding place in the heart of the residence section of the city yesterday afternoon and Literally Shot to Pieces.

The tragedy was one of the most remarkable in the history of the city, and 20,000 people, soldiers, policemen and citizens, were gathered around the square in which Charles was finally put to death. Tremendous excitement reigned in New Orleans as the battle went on between the police and citizens and the negro with his Winchester. Sergeant Gabe Porteous, one of the best known officers on the force, and Sergeant John E. Lally, who has a fine record for bravery, were informed during the day by a negro that Charles was in hiding in a house on Clio, near Saratoga street. Determining

To Take Him Alive

if possible the officers summoned a number of patrolmen to their assistance and went to the house. The negro informant of the policemen accompanied the officers. They entered the side alley of the house and were surprised in practically the same way as were Day and Lamb. Before the officers were aware of their danger Charles, who was hidden behind a screen on the second floor of the building, raised his Winchester and began a furious but accurate fire. Lally fell with a bullet in the right side of the abdomen. Porteous was shot through the head and dropped dead across the body of Lally. The other officers and the negro

Fled From the Scene.

Hurried calls were sent to the mayor, the chief of police and Col. Wood, in command of the special police, and as soon as possible armed help was rushed to the scene. In a little while there was an immense armed crowd circling the square in which Charles was located. In the meantime Father Fitzgerald of St. John's church was summoned to administer extreme unction to the police officers who were lying in the alley. The priest responded promptly and he was anointing the body of Porteous with Alfred G. B. Bloomfield, a young boy, standing by his side, when Charles again appeared at the window. The lad saw him at once and

Begged the Desperado

not to shoot him. Charles immediately fired his Winchester again and Bloomfield fell dead. In the meantime an immense crowd had gathered in the vicinity, and schemes were set on foot to get Charles out of the building. Charles, however, did not propose to be captured without selling his life dearly. Time after time he came to the window and as men, one by one, entered the alley, he blazed away at them. In this manner several men were wounded. Ultimately it was decided that the only way to get Charles was to burn the building in which he was intrenched. Some one went to a neighboring grocery, purchased a can of oil and, pouring it over the rear steps of the building, applied a match and soon had

The Building in Flames.

So fiercely did the fire burn that it became evident that no human being could live in the building. A member of the Thirteenth company of the state militia named Anderson was the first to see Charles as he ran to the second floor. Anderson shot the negro in the breast and he fell and died soon after. As soon as the negro fell a number of people armed with Winchesters rushed in and fired into the body. Charles was literary shot to pieces. The body was dragged into the street. There the police and mob emptied their revolvers into it, while a score of men rushed up and stamped the face beyond recognition. There were loud howls that the body should be taken to a vacant square in the vicinity and publicly burned. At this instant, however, a big squad of police dashed up in a patrol wagon. They pushed the crowd aside, picked up the body and threw it into the patrol wagon. The driver whipped up his horses and the wagon started off with 5,000 people running after it and of the body of the desperado. Just about the time that Charles' body reached the morgue the body of an unknown negro who had been shot and stabbed to death on Gallatin street, was carried in. Up to the time of the tragedy at Clio and Saratoga streets the city had been practically quiet. Disturbances had occurred only in isolated instances, and Mayor Capdeville was confident that the situation was so well in hand that he would be able to dispense with the special police this morning. The tragic scenes, however, here yesterday afternoon make it almost certain that both the 500 special officers and the 1,500 militia will be kept in service at lest until Monday.

Clamoring for the Cremation

Mob Burns a School.

After midnight a mob which had evaded the militia and the citizen police, attacked the Thony Lafon school, Sixth and Rampart streets, upon supposition that negroes had stored arms and ammunition in the building. Unopposed they had no difficulty in gaining possession and firing the structure, destroying it completely. No negroes were found in the school but a number who emerged from the house in the vicinity were pursued for quite a distance.

Annexation the Only Hope.

Frankfort-on-the-Main — A dispatch from Copenhagen says that fifty West Indian planters have petitioned the government to permit annexation to America as the sole means of avoiding ruin.

Papers in Russell Divorce.

London—The petition of Countess Russell for a divorce, on the ground of the earl's recent marriage in the United States with Mollie Somerville, has been served here.

The easiest [illegible] earth to do is someone else's

STANDSTILL IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Roberts Finds It Useless to Spend Energies Against a Retreating Foe.

London, July 20—Operations in South Africa have again arrived at a sort of standstill. Pretoria telegrams announce that Lord Roberts has returned there with his staff, apparently finding it useless to spend his energies against a constantly retreating foe. Commandant General Botha, with several thousand Boers, like Gen. Christian Dewet, has thus far eluded Lord Roberts' grasp. Gen. Delarey is besieging Gen. Baden-Powell at Rustenburg, in Western Transvaal. The relief force sent to Gen. Baden-Powell's assistance, under Col. Hickman, proved too weak to be effective and was obliged to fall back on Pretoria.

The operations have been hampered with bad weather, thunderstorms and delpges of arin, accompanied by intense cold. A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Lourenzo Marquez says that President Kruger is now at Watervalonder. He adds that a big fight is expected and that, if the Boers are beaten President Kruger will trek through Swaziland to Delagoa Bay and take a steamer for Europe.

A dispatch from Fouriesburg dated July 27, shows that the capture of Fouriesburg was preceded by heavy fighting to force a passage of the passes, which was stubbornly contested for two days. Gen. Hunter's forces had the hardest work in forcing Relief's Nek, his casualties amounting to about 100. Upward of 6,000 Boers, with a very large number of wagons, a large quantity of storees and many cattle have now been driven into the mountain passes, where they are watched by British troops. Their escape will be very difficult. Gen. French has occupied Middleburg, in the Transvaal, and Gen. Pole-Carew, with the Guards brigade, has arrived at Brugspruit, twenty miles west of Middleburg.

PROPOSITION TURNED DOWN.

Roberts Refuses to Accept Dewet's Offer and Insists on Surrender.

Cape Town, July 30.—Gen. Christian Dewet has offered to surrender on condition that his followers be permitted to return to their homes unmolested. Lord Roberts has refused everything except unconditional surrender. A dispatch from Lord Roberts to the British war office says: "Broadwood is still watching Christian Dewet, who has taken up a position on high hills near Reitzburg, about seven miles south of the Vaal. P. Dewet, a younger brother of Christian, surrendered at Kroonstad yesterday.

ARE JOINED IN MARRIAGE.

Lady Randolph Churchill and Lieut. West Are Wedded at Last.

London, July 30. — Lady Randolph Churchill, nee Jerome, was Saturda. married to Lieut. George Cornwallis West at St. Paul's church, Knight's bridge. The church was thronged with handsomely dressed women. There was no restriction upon the number admitted to the church to witness the ceremony except the capacity of the church, but only relatives and friends were bidden to the subsequent wedding breakfast, and no reception was held.

The duke of Marlborough gave the bride away. Winston Churchill was present but the Cornwallis West family was not represented except for the brother of the groom who acted as best man.

A great many Americans were present, among them Ambassador Choate and several attaches of the embassy. By the bride's special request there were no flowers. Lady Randolph's friends stood loyally but regretfully by her. The prince of Wales' remark was: "And I always considered you such a sensible woman."

PET CAT'S BITE IS FATAL.

Blood Poisoning Follows Wound Inflicted by Kitten.

New York, July 30. — Miss Rebecca Murphy, thirty-five years old, died in St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, from the effects of a cat bite. Two weeks ago Miss Murphy was stroking the fur of a pet kitten at her home on Park avenue, Hoboken, when the animal bit the end of one of her fingers. In a few days the wound began to hurt her, and her physician said blood poisoning might be expected. Miss Murphy was sent to St. Mary's hospital, where the disease developed rapidly. Despite the efforts of the physicians the bite proved fatal.

BLACK SOLDIERS HOSTILE.

Members of First West Indian Regiment Treat Inhabitants Roughly.

Hamilton, Bermuda Islands, July 20. —Much uneasiness is prevailing throughout the Bermuda islands owing to the hostility toward the inhabitants displayed by the black soldiers of the First West India regiment. The behavior of the regiment has been discreditable ever since their arrival here. The men have entered different shops and ordered and secured goods and refused to pay for them, and walked into private houses and intruded on social gatherings, using abusive language when remonstrated with.

GRASSHOPPERS ARE A PEST.

Insects Devastating Fields of Wheat in Nebraska.

Omaha, July 30. — Deputy United States Marshal James Walling, who has returned from a visit to Dawson county, reports that grasshoppers are devastating parts of that county. The pests have come in such numbers as to strip the growing corn of all blades, leaving the stalks standing as though swept by fire. They have commenced upon the wheat in the shock and are destroying hundreds of bushels a day. Mr. Walling estimates he will get less than ten bushels of corn from 100 acres of irrigated land.

Their Wages Increased.

Huntington, W. Va., July 30. — One thousand miners in the Davy Coal fields will be granted a 10 per cent increase in their wages. The mines throughout the state are running at their fullest capacity and unable to keep up with the orders.

Street Cars Dynamited.

St. Louis, July 30.—Five cars of the transit company were damaged during the night by dynamite placed on the tracks. Nobody was injured as far as can be learned.

Exempt.

Usher—Pardon me, ma'am, but the rules of this theater require that ladies shall remove their hats.

She (with head stiffly erect)—This is a toque, sir."—Chicago Tribune.

So Saving.

Mr. E. Conomy—What do you mean by buying all these things?

Mrs. E. Conomy—Don't get excited, dear. I didn't buy them. I had them charged.—Philadelphia Record.

A million dollars for strawberries is the record this season for Charlotte, N. C., shippers.

HUMBERT IS SHOT

ITALY'S MONARCH FOULLY ASSASSINATED.

An Anarchist Fires Three Shots, One of Which Pierces the King's Heart, Resulting in His Death In About an Hour — Cheers of the Multitude Were Ringing in King Humbert's Ears When He Was Foully Struck Down—Assassin Was With Great Difficulty Saved From the Fury of the Populace.

Monza, Italy, July 30—King Humbert was assassinated here yesterday. He was shot by an anarchist named Angelo Bressi at 10:45 and died at 11:30. The assassin was immediately arrested and cynically avowed his crime. He was with great difficulty saved from the fury of the populace which was wrought up to a terrible frenzy of excitement over the dastardly crime. The murderer gave his name as Angelo Bressi, describing himself as of Prato, in Tuscany.

Tre king had been attending a distribution of prizes in connection with a gymnastic competition. He had just entered his carriage with his aide-de-camp amid the cheers of the crowd when he was struck by three revolver shots fired in quick succession. He fell back and expired in a few minutes.

-o-

Rome, July 30.—The news of the terrible event did not arrive here until afteer midnight. Sig. Saracco, the premier, immediately summoned a meeting of the cabinet and the ministers will start at the earliest possible moment for Manza. The Prince and Princess of Naples are on board the Yela, yachting in the Levant.

RESULTED IN A FIASCO.

Amnesty Celebration at Manila Was Premature.

Manila, July 30.—Edited by the Censor.—The two days' fiesta in Manila, organized by Senor Paterno and his political followers to commemorate the amnesty, resulted in a fiasco. The people were passive and unenthusiastic. Failing to perceive any tangible, effective results of amnesty they say they can see no reasons for celebrating

Judge Taft and his colleagues of the commission felt constrained to decline to attend the banquet as they had been informed that the speeches would favor independence, under American protection, and they could not passively lend their acquiescence by being present. Senor Paterno, foreseeing the suspension of the banquet without the Americans, frantically appealed to them to attend, promising that there should be no speeches.

The provost precautions were extreme. The guards were doubled both days and the authorities forbade the display of Filipino flags and of pictures of President McKinley and Aguinaldo fraternally framed. The fiesta is generally considered to have been premature and unfortunate.

During last week's scouting ten Americans were killed and fourteen wounded. One hundred and eighty Filipinos were killed and sixty taken prisoners. Forty insurgent rifles were captured.

POOR GIRL GETS MILLIONS.

Australian Aunt of Miss Maggie Carmody of Toledo Gives Her Money, Stocks and Bonds.

Toledo, Ohio, July 30.—Miss Maggie Carmody, the Toledo heiress to a large fortune in Australia, is on her way to New York to meet her aunt, Mrs. C. B. F. Bradbury of Melbourne, Australia. The two will sail for Paris to remain a few weeks, after which they will go to Australia. Miss Carmody is a poor girl, and has lived alone for some time. Her aunt has made over to her $2,000,000 in money, stocks and bonds, and $8,000,000 more will go to Miss Carmody on her aunt's death.

EMPRESS FREDERICK IS ILL.

Mother of Emperor William of Germany Said to Be Near Death at Castle Near Hamburg.

London, July 30.—Empress Frederick of Germany is mortally ill with an internal complaint. She is at the castle in Cronberg, near Hamburg. The empress has arranged to pass the autumn at White Lodge, Richmond Park, London, which was given to her by Queen Victoria after the death of the duke of Teck. But it is feared there would be family dissensions if she came to England while ill. The duke of Saxe-Coburg is also seriously ill with Bright's disease.

ESTES G. RATHBONE ARRESTED.

Late Director General of Posts in Cuba Charged With Several Unlawful Acts.

Havana, July 30.—Estes G. Rathbone, recently director general of posts in Cuba, was arrested Saturday on four charges. These allege the unlawful drawing of two orders for $500 each, paying his private coachman and gardener from the postal funds, and drawing per diem allowance when not entitled to do so. Mr. Rathbone was held in bonds of $25,000.

WAR COUNCIL REORGANIZED.

President Loubet Signs Decrees Which Also Reform Certain Departments.

Paris, July 30.—President Loubet, on a proposition from the minister of war, has just signed a series of important decrees, reforming and reorganizing the superior council of war and certain departments of the war office.

Quiet in New Orleans.

New Orleans, July 30.—The city is very quiet and most of the precautionary measures have been dispensed with. Nearly all of the 1,500 militiamen have been relieved, a detachment of twenty men being left at the parish prison. Last evening the citizens' police disbanded, fifty being detained as an emergency squad.

Amenial Loyothets, a Greek, died at St. Mary's hospital, La Salle, Ill., of injuries received by being run over by the cars at Rutland.

Orange Crop's Damages.

Phoenix, Ariz.—Reports resulting from an investigation of the damage by the recent drouth, state that the orange crop has not been damaged so seriously as at first reported, and there will be a three-fourths crop.

Gold Reaches Highest Mark.

Washington, D. C.—The government's holdings of gold reached the highest point in its history on July 23, amounting to $427,498,482, including the legal reserve of $150,000,000.

Berlin—From Aug. 1 Berlin will have a special department of theater censorship [illegible]

When She Gets Home From the Club.

"You are not one of those men who find fault with the cooking at home?"

"No," answered Mr. Meekton, "I don't exactly find fault, but occasionally I do feel called upon to apologize for the way things taste when Henrietta gets home from the club. You see, I never could learn to make good coffee."—Washington Star.

World to End This Year.

This is the recent decision of one of the societies of the world, and while there are few people who believe this prediction, there are thousands of others who not only believe, but know that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation or liver and kidney troubles. A trial will certainly convince.

Too Sound.

"I see you're advertising for a boy. How'll I do?"

"You look all right. How are your teeth?"

"My teeth? They're perfectly sound. You can look at 'em."

"Yes, I see. Well, you won't do. I want a boy who will take part of his pay in dental work."—Chicago Tribune.

Best for the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

A Prodigy.

"My boy, Jimmie, aged nine, is a corker in psychology—and it's only his second term at it, too."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. The other day he said that he was certain the higher moral influence had nothing to do with my being a good citizen."

"How did he account for it?"

"He said I was afraid of the police."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

George E. Corey, Madison, Minn., check rein attachment; Leon D. Howard, Marston, S. D., sulky attachment for harrows; William L. Hull, Alpha, Minn., post extractor; Joseph D. Lewis, St. Paul, Minn., garment supporter; Irving E. Quist, Atwater, Minn., adjustable eccentric or gear; Daniel Swenson, Twin Valley, Minn., hog catcher.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul Uncertainty.

"No, he hasn't proposed yet," sighed Genevieve.

We suggested that the fellow doubtless knew when he was well off.

"No; I suspect the trouble is he doesn't know when I'm well off, the way papa is plunging in pork!" said the beautiful girl, with a sad smile.

Ah, love was indeed a great mystery.—Chicago Tribune.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes.

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N.Y.

Strange Liquor to Him.

At one of our commercial hotels, a stout, red-faced gentleman, in a white beaver, blue coat and buff vest, offered to wager a sovereign that he could close his eyes and, simply by taste, name any kind of liquor in the house. The bet was taken, and the process of winning or losing was commenced at once.

"That is genuine brandy," said the fat gentleman, tasting from a wine glass, "and this—this is whisky," and so on.

At this a wag poured out a glass of water, which he handed to the connoisseur.

"This is—ar—ah—this—is—?" said he, tasting it again; "by thunder! gentlemen. I've lost the bet! I never tasted this liquor before"—Spare Moments.

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

The Solemn Butler.

When my maid told me that she had seen the butler smiling behind the pantry door, I was aghast.

"It was brandy, I think," said the girl. But the reaction from the nervous tension left me very weak.

"Oh, Mary!" I sobbed, "how you frightened me! I thought that you meant that he smiled literally!"—Detroit Journal.

WANTED LADY CANVASSER to introduce new catchy article. Can make $3 a day. Write at once, don't miss it. Oscar Wilkinson, 30 E. 14th St., New York City

Half the misery in this world comes from having too little courage or too much.

Fifteen hundred dozen hats a day is the output of a Yonkers (N. Y.) factory.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is a constitutional cure. Price, 75c.

England sold to foreign countries 838 steamers and 260 sailing vessels in 1899.

To persevere in one's duty and be silent is the best answer to calumny.—George Washington.

I am sure Piso's Cure for Consumption saved my life three years ago.—Mrs. Thos. Robbins, Maple Street, Norwich, N. Y., Feb. 17, 1900.

People who want to be wept with ought to confide their troubles to the town crier.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Moonlight nights are too bright for burglars and for lovers.

Remove the causes that make your hair lifeless and gray with Parker's Hair Balsam.

Hindercorns, the best cure for corns. 15cts.

Not always a high-liver—the balloonist.

Aphorisms of W. J. Stillman.

I prefer a sailing ship to a steamer—one pleasant companion is worth a shipload of commonplace fellow voyagers.

It is not the form of the government but the character of the governed which makes the difference between governments.

It becomes incomprehensible to me, as my own life wanes, how I could ever have found pleasure in taking the lives of other creatures, filling their stations in the world better than I ever did.

The educated soul pays the penalty of ignorance but there is no consolation in repentance.—Atlantic Monthly.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,

Notre Dame, Ind.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of St. Mary's Academy which appears in another column of this paper. The 46th year opens Sept. 4th, 1900. We do not need to expatiate upon the scholastic advantages of St. Mary's, for the catalogue of the school shows the scope of work included in its curriculum, which is of the same high standard as that of Vassar and Bryn-Mawr, and is carried oupt faithfully in the class rooms. We simply emphasize the spirit of earnest devotion which makes every teacher at St. Mary's loyally strive to develop each young girl attendant there into the truest, noblest and most intelligent womanhood. Every advantage of equipment in the class rooms, laboratories and study rooms, every care in the matter of food and clothing, and exceptional excellence of climatic conditions —all of these features are found at St. Mary's, in the perfection of development only to be obtained by the consecration of devoted lives to educational Christian work, in a spot favored by the Lord.—The Fine Arts Journal.

Her Timely Suggestion.

"Little pitchers have large ears." Every father and mother has at some time or other had that fact impressed upon their minds. A North Omaha family contains a two-year-old girl who is exceedingly precocious, and picks up everything she hears. The mother drinks beer by direction of the physician, and every other evening her husband takes a little jug down to the corner and brings it back filled with an amber fluid that foams in the glass. The little girl has taken due note of all this, together with the words used by her mamma when she wants the jug filled.

A few evenings ago friends called, and it happens that these friends are very strict prohibitionists. As the guests sat talking with the father and mother, the little girl walked into the room with the jug hugged against her little breast. Walking up to her papa, she exclaimed:

"Oh, dear me, papa! It's drefful hot. I fink you'd better rush ze growler."—Omaha World-Herald.

Children's Games Going Out.

I wish some folk-lorist would tell me whether there is a real decadence of children's ceremonial games. It seems to me that, while I see as much of children as ever, I do not see so much of the old games as I once did. When, for instance, do the children play the old-fashioned "forfeits?" "Forfeits" with us, in the old days, was an accompaniment of other games, the forfeits or penalties being levied as the result of failures—or even in some instances of successes—in play. But that did no prevent it from being a most interesting, delightful and significant exercise in itself. The ritual that accompanies it is a beautiful and poetic thing.—Boston Transcript.

RECREATION AND HEALTH.

Both Can Be Secured at the Indiana Mineral Springs, Indiana.

Like the young man in springtime, whose fancy "lightly turns to thoughts of love," when summertime comes we all turn our thoughts to the consideration of the important question of where we shall go for rest, recreation and health.

There are all kinds of health and pleasure resorts throughout this broad land of ours, some of them, unfortunately, anything but what their names imply, and apparently operated for no other purpose than to relieve the invalid and pleasure seeker financially. So much so is this the case that it is indeed gratifying to the one seeking rest and recuperation from the cares of the business and social world, as well as the pain racked invalid, who is fortunate enough to discover a place where, to use a popular expression, he "gets his money's worth."

One of the most interesting, picturesque and delightful places in this country is unquestionably the resort known as the Magno Mud and Lithia Water Cure, located at Indiana Mineral Springs, Indiana. Here come the overworked business man, the worn out devotee of society and the professional man on the verge of nervous prostration as well as the sufferer from rheumatism, kidney and skin diseases for which the baths are especially beneficial. The place is also largely patronized by those who only seek pleasure and recreation, its location making it particularly adapted for this purpose. There are many romantic and beautiful spots and places of interest in the vicinity and it would be hard to find a section of country containing so many beautiful drives. The country is very hilly, but the roads are all graveled and kept in good condition. This is one of the things that makes the place especially attractive to those afflicted with rheumatism, as driving is about the only outdoor pleasure one crippled with rheumatism can indulge in. Some of the cures effected are really marvelous and many who have gone to the Magno Mud Cure as a last resort have returned home within a few weeks filled with renewed health and strength.

The accommodations, service, table and attendance is all that can be desired and the rates very reasonable indeed. The Springs is under the able management of Major H. L. Kramer and a postal card inquiry addressed to him will bring complete detailed information as well as a copy of the "Mudlavia Magazine," a unique and interesting publication.

Some people are devoured by envy, and others are eaten up with self-conceit.

FRUIT SAID TO CURE GOUT.

Uncooked Product of Tree and Shrub Finds a School of Adherents in London.

While the vegetarian regards meat as a poison, the fruitarian looks with no enthusiastic eye upon the Lenten fare of the vegetarian. To him, uncooked fruit is the only natural food, and, though but a small body, men do exist in this cold country who eat nothing but fruit. For a long time they have found their chief opponents in medical men, who affirm that, for gouty persons, fruit is dangerous, some even asserting that fruit may actually engender gout.

Now, however, a little ray of sunshine penetrates the gloom where they sit in glorious isolation, cracking nuts and chewing raisins in all the sylvan simplicity of monkeys. A medical man has arisen to declare that he has frequently cured gout with grapes and oranges. Further than this, he declares that his standing advice to gouty friends is: "Eat plenty of fresh, ripe, uncooked fruit." But, while the "tendency" of fruit is to get rid of gout altogether, it seems that severe gouty headaches and bilious attacks may be caused by eating it, particularly by people who have long ago shut the tempting apple and pear from their regimen. Therefore, though the fruitarians wax bolder for this medical testimony, the gouty would be wise to take their fruit sparingly at first, and not by any means make it their one and only form of sustenance. It is, at any rate, interesting to find that medical men are beginning to look with kindlier eyes on fruit, but at present it would probably be difficult to encounter two doctors agreeing over one suffering gouty person that his salvation lay in a fruit diet.—London Globe.

Knowing the merits of the preparations of the J. & C. Maguire Medicine company of St. Louis, Mo., we take pleasure in stating to the public that they have succeeded in furnishing the army and navy; established in 1841, they have steadily grown in favor with the public, not having one failure to report in fifty-nine years. Their Benne Plant, Cundurango, etc., have become a household word. They are now sold by all druggists. Ask for booklet free, and if you ever get the Diarrhoea, Dysentery, or Cholera-Morbus, give Benne Plant a trial, and you will be convinced. Every article made by the Maguire Medicine company is guaranteed to do what is claimed for it.

His Honor Fishes, Also.

Judge—The charge against you is drunk and disorderly. What have you to say?

Prisoner (eagerly)—I was fishing, and—

Judge (eagerly)—What luck?

(The prisoner talks volubly for five minutes, while the face of the judge gradually hardens.)

"Discharged on the charge of drunkenness and held for perjury."

Farm Mortgage Loans.

In amounts ranging from $300.00 to $10,000.00 on choice, improved farms in the western part of North Dakota.

Write us if you have money to invest, and we will be pleased to send you description of loans, rates of interest, etc. Personal examination of all loans. We have invested nearly one million dollars in farm loans in North Dakota since 1881; without the loss of a dollar.

North Dakota Land and Loan Co.

Rugby, N. D.

An Old Idea.

"Dese hoss'less kerridges ain't so touch," said Mr. Erastus Pinkly.

"Dey's all de talk," replied Miss Miami Brown.

"Co'se dey is. But it's a back-number scheme. What were de first steamship but a muleless canalboat?"—Washington Star.

Avoiding Risks.

Attendant—You have to pay for your soda water before you drink it.

Thirsty Patron—What's that for? You ain't making it any more poisonous than usual, are you?—Chicago Record.

Are You Using Allen's Foot-Ease?

It is the only cure for Swollen, Smarting, Burning, Sweating Feet, Corns and Bunions. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Not Funny to Plunksley.

First Politician—Old Plunksley wants the nomination, and he's ready to tap his barrel.

Second Politician—All right. We'll give him a run for his money.—Puck

Each package of PUTNAM FADELESS DYES colors either Silk, Wool or Cotton perfectly.

Quite Reasonable.

"Freddy, tell pa what you want for your birthday."

"Oh, pa, I want a tent in the back yard, an' a gun, an' a grea' big cigar store Injun."—Indianapolis Journal.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

To improve the golden moment of opportunity, and catch the good that is within our reach, is the great art of life.—Johnson.

Good humor and generosity carry the day with the popular heart all the world over.—Alexander Smith.

Baseball players! Golf players; all players chew White's Yucatan whilst playing.

There is no friendship, no love, like that of parent for child.—H. W. Beecher.

The man who never forgets that he is a gentleman also remembers that there are others.—Chicago News.

Stop Your Hair from Falling.

Coke Dandruff Cure will positively cure dandruff and keep hair from falling. $1.00.

Many a woman has secured a life-long job by marrying a man to reform him.

To quiet a crying infant, put it in a baby carriage and keep the bawl rolling.

Painful Periods

are overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fifty thousand happy women testify to this in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham.

Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. If it is painful something is wrong which will promptly set right; if excessive or irregular write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

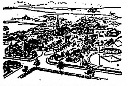
Evidence abounds that Mrs. Pinkham's advice and medicine have for many years been helping women to be strong. No other advice is so unvaryingly accurate, no other medicine has such a record of cure.

EDUCATIONAL.



THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME,

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.

Classics, Letters, Economics and History, Journalism, Art, Science, Pharmacy, Law, Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, Architecture.

Thorough Preparatory and Commercial Courses. Ecclesiastical students at special rates.

Rooms Free. Junior or Senior Year. Collegiate Courses. Rooms to Rent, moderate charges.

St. Edward's Hall, for boy's under 13.

The 57th Year will open September 4th, 1900

Catalogues Free. Address

REV. A. MORRISSEY, C. S. C., President.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Cross. Chartered 1855. Thorough English and Classical education. Regular Collegiate Degrees.

In Preparatory Department students carefully prepared for Collegiate course. Physical and Chemical Laboratories well equipped. Conservatory of Music and School of Art. Gymnasium under direction of graduate of Boston Normal School of Gymnastics. Catalogue free. The 46th year opens Sept. 4, 1900. Address,

DIRECTRESS OF THE ACADEMY,

St. Mary's Academy, - Notre Dame, Indiana.

SACRED HEART COLLEGE,

WATERTOWN, WISCONSIN.

Branch of Notre Dame University, Indiana.

Thorough Classical, English, Commercial and Preparatory Courses. Terms Moderate. Buildings heated by steam. Home comforts. For further information and catalogues, apply to

REV. J. O'ROURKE, C. S. C., President.

Easy Monthly Payments

We sell Regina Music Boxes for public places with money slot attachments, and for home use without attachments, on easy Monthly Payments. With money attachments they are

A Constant Source of Revenue

and soon pay for themselves. They can be placed in all kinds of business houses.

We Repair Music Boxes.

Correspondence invited.

NATIONAL NOVELTY CO.,

519 First Ave. So., - - - Minneapolis, Minn

$83.33 Monthly Salary payable weekly with expenses. Men or Women to represent us in their own state, to take charge of solicitors and attend to collections. NO INVESTMENT REQUIRED. This is a strictly bona fide salary proposition. IT INVOLVES NO CANVASSING whatever. Expenses remitted in advance and salary forwarded from headquarters. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY. Give references. Enclose stamp. Address, Mgr. CO-OPERATIVE CO., Star Bldg., CHICAGO

DO NOT BUY

WELL DRILLING

MACHINERY until you see our new Catalogue No. 25. We will furnish it to you FREE. Write to our address, either Harvey, Ill., Chicago, Ill., or Dallas, Texas.

F. C. AUSTIN MFG. CO.

Factories at Harvey, Ill.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D.C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in civil war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water.

N. W. N. U. —No. 31.— 1900.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

BOOKLETS FREE, SAMPLE BOTTLES, BY MAIL 3c. J. & C. MAGUIRE'S EXTRACT BENNE PLANT

17 CURES Colic, Cholera Morbus, Diarrhoea, Dysentery and Bowel Complaints. NEVER FAILS! In the market since 1841. Recommended by leading Physicians. Used by our Army and Navy. Sold by all Druggists. J. & C. MAGUIRE MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

BUY A DOUBLE BARREL BREECH LOADING $15 SHOT GUN for $7.77. NEW WINCHESTER RIFLES, $3.07. NEW BREECH LOADING SHOT GUNS, $4.47. NEW WINCHESTER SHOT GUNS, $15.57. Winchester and U. M. C. Loaded Shells, $1.17 per 100. Nitro Powder Loaded Shells, $1.77 per 100.

GET SHOT GUNS AND AMMUNITION at wholesale prices to everybody. Our large Gun Catalogue [illegible] We sell more Sporting Goods than any OTHER HOUSE IN THE [illegible] T. M. ROBERTS' SUPPLY HOUSE, 717-721 Nicollet Avenue, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

BINDING TWINE. Shipped on Telegraph Orders At 8¾c for NEW Standard and 10½c for Manila Mixed. Providing your banker or express agent telegraphs us that the amount has been deposited subject to our order. Our twine is guaranteed to give you satisfaction. Although our stock is getting low we expect to be able to have sufficient TO FILL ALL ORDERS. Telegraph or write at once T. M. Roberts' Supply House, Minneapolis, Minn.

Best Minnesota First Patent Flour

$1.85 FOR 98 lb. SACK.

18 lbs. of fine Old Rio Coffee for 97 cts. It will pay you to send to us for our thirty-two page GROCERY PRICE LIST, which will be mailed FREE on receipt of a postal card. We can save you big money on all kinds of groceries. All GOODS at Wholesale Prices to consumers.

T. M. ROBERTS' SUPPLY HOUSE MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Minnesota Historical Society
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1900. NUMBER 3.

FIGHT AT TIEN-TSIN

CHINESE MAKE AN ATTACK ON THE ALLIED FORCES.

By a Series of Brilliant Charges the Enemy Were Driven From Their Positions—Native City Still Defiant—Advance Upon Peking Began Last Thursday—Imperial Edict Ordering Gen. Lung Yu to Gather a Sufficient Number of Picked Troops to Escort Foreign Ministers to Tien-tsin.

London, Aug. 6.—The American and British forces began their advance upon Peking last Thursday, according to a dispatch dated Aug. 2 from Tien-tsin to the Daily Express. "The main bodies of the allies," continued the correspondent, "Marched July 30. Gen. Chaffee was delayed by difficulties of disembarkation. Gen. Dorward (the British commander) had no such obstacles, and his delay is inexplicable. The other foreign troops are now halfway to Lofa. The force includes 20,000 Japanese under Gen. Yamachuchi and 10,000 Russians. The British force totals 9,000 and the other foreign troops are 7,000. We are weak in artillery. On Aug. 1 a strong force of Chinese from the native city Attacked Tien-tsin.

By a series of brilliant charges our troops drove the enemy from their positions. The native city is still defiant and the allies are unwilling to march troops through its streets, as this would mean an immense slaughter. When the Chinese saw a large body of troops marching westward they apparently believed they would have an easy victory over those who were left."

A message to the same paper from a correspondent in Peking, dated July 22, says: "The women have borne all the horrors with marvelous fortitude, and even with cheerfulness. The Chinese wanted peace when the arsenals at Tien-tsin were captured and the negotiations bade fair

To Be Successful.

Unfortunately Li Ping Heng and Yu arrived here at the critical moment and overthrew the peace party. Food has become short, though not terribly so, [illegible] have to be careful."

A Shanghai dispatch, dated Aug. 4, says: "The first overt act upon foreigners occurred this evening. Three Chinese, supposed to be soldiers in disguise, fired at a well known English resident while he was lying asleep on the verandah of his house. He had a narrow escape. From various sources come statements that a large body of Boxers, some estimating the number at 3,000, is gathering south of Tien-tsin and threatening communication."

Safe Conduct for Ministers.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail announces the reception of an Imperial edict dated Aug. 2, ordering Gen. Yung Lu to select high military and civil dignitaries to gather up a sufficient number of picked troops to escort the foreign ministers to Tien-tsin as soon as they decided to leave Peking. By the terms of the edict Gen. Yung Lu will be held personally responsible for their safety, and he is given full authority to deal summarily with those opposing the peaceful passage of the escort. "By such acts," concludes the edict, "do we show our good intentions to people from afar, and open our bosoms to them."

Force Is Ample.

Yokohama advices say that Gen. Terauchi has reported to the Japanese government that it is not advisable to send more troops to China, declaring that the united force is now ample to relieve the legations in Peking. Japanese advices say that in addition to causing the execution of high functionaries of pro-foreign tendency, Li Ping Heng has impeached Li Hung Chang, Liu Kuan Yi, viceroy of Nanking, and others on a charge of maintaining relations with foreign powers. A Tien-tsin dispatch of Aug. 1 to Berlin gives detail of an imperial edict issued July 27, ordering the capture of Taku and Tien-tsin by troops from Shangtung and the south.

MESSAGE FROM CONGER.

Says No Fighting Since the Sixteenth by Agreement.

Washington, Aug. 6.—A belated message from Minister Conger was received yesterday at the state department. It came through Consul General Goodnow at Shanghai, who transmitted messages received by Mr. Ragsdale, United States consul at Tien-tsin, from Mr. Conger and Mr. Squires, secretary of the United States legation at Peking. In effect the advices are the same as those received a day or two ago by the state department from Consul Porter at Chefu. Mr. Goodnow's message was transmitted to President McKinley at Canton, and Mr. Adee, acting secretary of state, later in the day issued the following statement concerning its:

"Consul General Goodnow, in a cablegram, dated Shanghai, Aug. 5, which was received at the department of state at 4 o'clock Sunday morning,

Reports the Receipt

by Consul Ragsdale at Tien-tsin of messages from Minister Conger and the secretary of the legation, Mr. Squires, dated July 21, to the following effect: 'All well. No fighting since the 16th by agreement. Enough provisions. Hope for speedy relief.'

"Mr. Goodnow adds that the director of posts, Sheng, had on the 5th communicated to him an imperial edict, dated July 30, ordering Chung Li to provide an escort for the ministers to Tien-tsin when the ministers fixed a date. The edict says the ministers can receive messages not in cipher; but, notwithstanding this, plain messages were returned to some consuls on Aug. 4."

While the messages from Minister Conger and Secretary Squires bear date of July 21,

The Belief Founded

not only upon them, but also upon collateral and later information is that the legationers are yet safe from at least immediate harm. At present there is no means of knowing whether the ministers will accept the offer of the Chinese imperial government to provide an escort for them to Tien-tsin, but it is surmised they will prefer to remain the British legation at Peking until the arrival of the allied forces. Should they leave for Tien-tsin it would be because they regarded it the safer course to pursue. It is considered not unlikely that the Chinese government will be very insistent upon the departure of the ministers in the hope that if they can be gotten to Tien-tsin in safety

The Storming of Peking

may be avoided. That the advance upon Peking actually began no later than Friday is well assured now. Officials of the war department still decline to discuss the latest message of Gen. Chaffee, dated Friday, in which he announced that the American, British and Japanese forces were making the start without the remainder of the allies. While no reasons for the reticence of the department are given, it is well understood that Gen. Chaffee's dispatch at this time cannot be given to the public, as it contains information only for the guidance of officials here in the formation of a policy of campaign in China.

LI ONLY DESPONDENT.

Report That He Had Committed Suicide Unfounded.

Shanghai, Aug. 6.—The report that Li Hung Chang had committed suicide is without foundation. He is only in a very despondent state.

Communication Unrestricted.

Paris, Aug. 6.—Sheng, director general of railways and telegraphs, has just communicated to the consuls at Shanghai, according to a special to the Temps, dated Aug. 5, an imperial decree, dated Aug. 2, authorizing the foreign ministers in Peking to communicate without restriction with their governments and ordering their departure for Tien-tsin under a good escort.

Taken by Russians.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—The Russian war office has received a dispatch from Gen. Gredekoff, dated Khabarovsk, Aug. 5, announcing that Aigun had been taken by the Russians after a stubborn fight, and that the Chinese were being pursued in the direction of Tschikar.

GEORGIA TO FOLLOW SUIT.

Constitutional Amendment Proposed That Will Disfranchise the Negro.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 6.—Owing to the result of the recent election in North Carolina, in which white supremacy was engrafted on the state, Representative Hardwick will introduce in the next session of the Georgia legislature a bill providing for a constitutional amendment enforcing a property and educational qualification on suffrage, which practically disfranchises the negroes.

AN OFFICER IN DISGRACE.

Second Lieut. E. H. Martin Dismissed From the Army.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Second Lieut. E. H. Martin, Fifth artillery, has been dismissed from the army by direction of the president, in conformity with a sentence of a general court martial by which he was tried and convicted of making "false, fictitious and fraudulent statements of claims and receipts in the accounts of the post exchange at Fort Hancock, N. Y."

Work Was Satisfactory.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 6.—Members of the boundary delimination commission, which has been marking the provisional boundary on the Chilkoot, Chilkat and White passes, have arrived here by the steamer Queen. In interviews the commissioners, W. F. King for Great Britain and O. T. Tittman for America, said the work had been completed to the satisfaction of all. The last work was done on the summit of the Chilkoot, and Tittman said the towns of Dyea and Sheep Camp were deserted.

Mysterious Double Tragedy.

Philadelphia, Aug. 6.—Robert W. Sinclair, aged fifty-one years, a fruit commission merchant in this city, and his wife, aged forty-three, were both found dead last night with a bullet-hole in each of their heads in the garden in front of their summer home at Green Tree station, on the Pennsylvania railway, near this city. Whether it was a case of mutual suicide or murder and suicide will probably never be known. The couple had frequently quarreled and some time ago separated.

Wounded Were Not Shot.

San Francisco, Aug. 6.—Dr. G. P. Smith, who was in the allies hospital at Tien-tsin until July 5, has arrived here on the City of Pekin from China and absolutely denies the story of the shooting of wounded soldiers by Admiral Seymour on the retreat from Tien-tsin. The doctor states that he was present when Admiral Seymour's column arrived and that the wounded were with him.

Anarchists Arrested.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Lucy Parsons and five other anarchists were arrested here yesterday while attempting to hold a meeting. The police had been informed of the gathering in advance and arrested the principals as soon as they appeared on the platform. A considerable amount of incendiary literature was confiscated.

Old Title May Be Dropped.

New York, Aug. 6.—Some of the railroads are considering the advisability of abandoning the time-honored title of brakeman on passenger trains and calling him assistant conductor. The brakes on passenger trains are no longer worked by hand, but by air, and it is argued that the old title is a misnomer.

King Alexander Weds.

Belgrade, Aug. 6.—King Alexander yesterday wedded Mme. Draga Maschin, the ceremony being performed with great pomp. In honor of the event the king granted amnesty, together with numerous political pardons, including the former Radical premier, Tauschanovich.

Drowned While Fishing.

Dubuque, Iowa, Aug. 6.—Max Katz, eighteen years old, was drowned in the river while fishing. He was a graduate of the high school and was preparing to enter into business.

RIPPED OPEN

WIDE, IS THE STATE REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN,

And the "Rip" Extends From Some Place Up North, Down to the Eleventh Minneapolis Ward—J. Adam Bede and Steamboater Van Sant as Chief "Rippers"—The "Opening" Much Like Roosevelt's—A Hint of the Big Job Manager Bixby Has on His Hands—Other State and National Political Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Aug. 6, 1900.

The event of the week has been the "opening" of the Republican state campaign by the joint efforts of Candidate Van Sant and J. Adam Bede. The "rip" commenced at a place called Frazee City, in the northern part of the state, and extended in a more or less "gaping wound" down to the Eleventh ward in Minneapolis. The lynx-eyed press has failed to record only the briefest outline of the speeches made by Mr. Van Sant, and not a word, as yet, of the Bede accompaniment.

Captain Van Sant's "opening" commenced with a false quotation of sentiments imputed to Mr. Bryan in the '96 campaign, assuming which to be true the captain said was reason for opposing him. They being false, the inference must be that the captain may be for him. Again falsely quoting Mr. Bryan as saying that we would have "no exports," and still "no goods abroad" if McKinley was elected, the captain gave the figures of our constantly increasing trade—increasing year by year in the natural growth of the country—crediting McKinley with the total of such trade, some $2,224,000,000. By the same token Cleveland should be credited with our total foreign trade of his administration. Every one knows that the country's commerce increases year by year with increase of population and needs.

At this point the veteran steamboat man is said to have thrown down his written speech and gone into something of personal interest to himself, the chances of his defeat being the uppermost topic. His conclusion was that he would be elected if he got votes enough—if Republicans enough voted for him. The more he dwelt on this phase the more fixed seemed the impression that he would lose, whereupon he observed that if he was to be knifed, the rest of the ticket should be supported, for, he said, in his mind calling the administration of Governor Lind as proof, "We can keep house without a Republican governor." Still further contemplating this probability he urged that he should be elected, lest the appointment of a United States senator fall to the lot of the new governor. "Stranger things than this have happened," said the candidate. Then retrospectively, or as if reimpressed with the gloomy outlook, he repeated: "If I can have the united support of my party I shall win. If I am defeated it will be by Republican votes." And then he said in closing: "Let me say to my Republican friends, who for any reason might vote against me as the head of the ticket, that they should ponder well before doing so."

From all appearances the opening of the Republican state campaign has been as inauspicious as the national opening by Roosevelt has proven frosty and ineffectual.

Captain Van Sant says that when "they" proposed to dismember the Union he threw off his Lincoln campaign cap and put on the uniform of a soldier. "And there are others." And plenty of them voted with the G. O. P. as long as they could possibly do so without stultifying themselves. They belong to the Liberty party now.

And this is as good a place as any to remark that the quotations of Bryan in 1896, used by Republican speakers, among them Van Sant, that if McKinley was elected we would "export no goods, but would import from foreign lands all the goods we would use," are not only false but absolutely silly. In general the predictions made by Mr. Bryan of the results of continuation of the ruinous financial policy were fulfilled to the letter, as witness the greatest failures, and more business disasters for the first two years following McKinley's inauguration than marked the Cleveland panic times. And but for the adoption of the money policy Bryan advocates, of an adequate money supply, at least in part, by the providential increase of gold, and later by an immense inflation of bank paper, the wildest predictions of misery and woe, whether made by Mr. Bryan or others, would have been realized. And let us call a witness, as Candidate Van Sant says, and it will be Van Sant, where he says: "Our money, including paper currency, gold and silver, has become greatly increased since McKinley took the chair." And Van Sant quotes from McKinley's acceptance speech, where he refers to the fact that we now have "more money," than we have had before. "More money and fewer mortgages," McKinley said.

And this is a good place to emphasize that by the Kansas City platform the Democrats are not only pledged to the quantitative theory of free coinage, but to take from the banks the power of issuing their notes, which are not redeemable in anything, and which notes are printed for the banks by the government (thus the people furnishing the money that the banks turn around and loan them for interest) and to issue in place of such notes the money of the government redeemable in gold and silver. That's the point, Mr. Republican. We will give you actually "sound money," instead of this national bank corporation paper, that is not now redeemable in anything, and is not even a legal tender. This is the nub of the Democratic money plank, and one of the reasons for more than reaffirmation of the Chicago platform.

"And never pull down the flag," shouts Van Sant. Well, what would you do in China? Carry it to the heart of the Celestial empire, and create armies to keep it there, or simply let it flap, here and there, as over such roosters as John Goodnow?

Hanna denies that he jumped on Roosevelt about his speeches. Allee samee Rosey is laid off until September, until presumably he can revise and prune.

And speaking of Consul General Goodnow, someone asked the other day if there was really any danger of "General" Goodnow being killed, and a former Republican associate of John's cruelly replied, "Oh, no danger. You know the Chinese don't kill anybody but Christians." Now, wasn't that tough?

Speaking of the Roosevelt speech, we judge that the high pink of the Republican press bureau made a bad mess in sending it out to the state press. Leastwise we have reports from several of the Democratic papers that they received the supplements, which contained both the Roosevelt speech and the manuscript that Senator Nelson read to the listless leaguers. Our boys had no use for them unless for wrapping paper.

Washington Reader: No, when your papers speak of the Powers, they do not mean the Minnesotan in the Merriam census bureau, the dirty work man. They refer to the governments, including McKinley's, whom the heathen Chinee has been making asses of for several long and painful weeks. The Minnesota man is himself a sort of Chinaman, known for his "political ways that are dark, and tricks that are vain."

"D—— the Dutch," shouted an Illinois Republican in the state convention, when Boer resolutions were introduced. "Down with Catholic anti-imperialists and Protestant lovers of the Filipinos," says Paul Van Dervoort, one of the recent Hanna "converts." After all our own William Henry Eustis set the example for them all, when he spoke of Swedes and Norwegians as mere "voting cattle." The latter remembered our Minnesota G. O. P. "leader." What will the other do?

Speaking of Van Dervoort, who appears as a rival to Roosevelt for the place of "Burchard" in this campaign, he is the same Van Dervoort who once, when commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., was kicked out of the government service for cause. He then became a mid-Populist, and thoroughly discredited there, has at last joined Hanna. Good enough.

Speaking of Consul General Goodnow, that functionary is "pictured" by the Philadelphia Record, as a round, sleek, heavy-set man, with heavy, drooping moustache, who is shown to be writing away for dear life, under gas light, doing that important "diplomatic intercourse" that the administration is giving him so much praise for. A call bell is at hand for summoning the menials, and there is a big ink stand, presumably loaded to the brim with black, very black ink. selah!

Speaking of Roosevelt, the shiver he has caused may upset the plan of using rough rider emblems in the campaign. Still the speckled bandanna handkerchief is doing duty as hatband for the geppites, as an offset to which the Democrats will probably don the red, white and blue. Minnesota introduced such hatbands at Kansas City, and they were approved. Put on the colors.

Roosevelt on Democrats—all Democrats—"Dishonest at home and cowards abroad."

The race for the Burchardship in this campaign is a close one between Roosevelt and one Paul Van Dervoort of Nebraska. To date both are neck and neck in violent abuse of Democrats. Van Dervoort having recently professed to have been a Democrat, but Roosevelt is the more respectable virago. Van Dervoort is thoroughly despised by those who know him best, and especially by veterans of the Civil war who knew him as commander-in-chief of the G. A. R.

A noticeable feature of the "changes" that the Republicans have professed to find in the McKinley favor, have been of the same unsavory character as the Van Dervoort case, fitting companions for the Neelys, the Rathbones and Carters, and the canned beefers and the horde of department robbers that infest the administration.

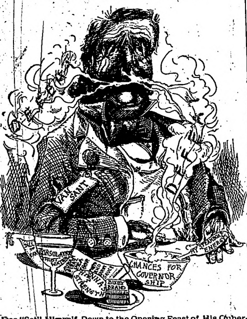
Already there is a demand that Van Sant say less of national and more of state issues. And there is no lack. There is Inspector Clausen, and there is Commissioner Mills, and there is railroad taxation. Up and at 'em, Van.

Sept. 6 is the date set for making the winning reform ticket for 1900 by the fusion forces. Remember both the date and prediction.

Let's see. Governor Lind was first elected in 1896, and counted out by the Bixby machine. He was again elected in 1898, and is closing his term as the best governor the state has ever had. In November he will receive his third election and round out a record of state service of which all may well be proud.

The Democratic state organization was perfected at the stated meeting called for Aug. 2, and under auspices most promising for success. The new plan of county representation proved all that has been expected. It was the largest state committee ever organized in the state by any party, and in ability and especially in enthusiasm, will challenge any like gathering. G. S. C.

BIXBY'S "OLD MAN OF THE SEA,"



Has "Set" Himself Down to the Opening Feast of His Gubernatorial Campaign.

"OLD MAN OF THE SEA"

As Manager Bixby Designated Van Sant in 1898,

Has Opened His Campaign For the Governorship.

Editor Bixby in '98, Versus Manager Bixby in 1900.

There is no idle speculation as to the cause of the lugubrious expression from the head of the Republican state ticket, and the general conclusion seems to be that it is due to the fact that Tams Bixby, who has been so bitter an enemy of Van Sant, has managed to get control of the state machine, supplanting the supposed head, Billy Masterman. These have for their justification the constant warfare made on Van Sant by Bixby during a considerable portion of these numerous years that the "Winona Raftsman," as Bixby dubbed his candidate, has been logging for the gubernatorial nomination. This was particularly the case during the canvass between Eustis and Van Sant, in 1898, when Bixby violently assailed Van Sant and the Clough administration. This was done in his paper, the Red Wing Republican, whose files furnish column after column of these vicious attacks. This is a good place to republish one of the many, which is entitled "Old Man of the Sea," from which it is seen that Chairman Bixby himself is the author of that expressive designation of the Winona man. The article appeared in the issue of May 21, 1898, as follows, the capitals being our own:

From Daily Republican (Mr. Bixby's paper), Red Wing, May 21, 1898.

"THE OLD MAN OF THE SEA."

"Of all the absurdities and bold assaults upon good judgment and common sense involved in the campaign of the Van Sant machine in Minnesota, none seems to us as striking in its originality or as daring in its demands upon common sense as the assertion which we understand is being circulated diligently in many quarters that Governor Clough is not really personally interested in the success or failure of the campaign made by the Winona candidate. It would appear as one of the mere humors of the campaign, unworthy to be dignified by serious notice, were it not being so generally made use of as to rise to the importance of a real factor in the campaign. It is, however, of the highest value in one respect. It shows that the Van Sant managers realize already how seriously they are handicapped by the support of Clough, AND ARE DETERMINED TO GET RID OF THEIR OLD MAN OF THE SEA IF THE THING CAN BE DONE.

"When the Van Sant campaigners zealously repeat, as they are now doing in various quarters of the state, that Clough is not part of the combine, they must credit their hearers with MEMORIES LESS THAN AN INCH LONG AND WITH A VACUUM IN THE BRAIN-PAN. HE IS THE OPEN, CONSPICUOUS, CONFESSED HEAD AND SOUL AND LEADER OF IT. The first that was ever known or heard of the "STATE HOUSE SYNDICATE" was after that conference where the governor (Clough) laid his plans before those whom he sought to interest, to cajole, or to browbeat. The story was soon public property; and so elated were the participants in this arrangement with what they regarded as their shrewdness and their certain success, that they did not deny, they fairly blushed with pride and bubbled over the hope, when their part in it was mentioned. The governor, himself (Clough), who does not boast delicacy or finesse among his happy qualities, TOOK NO PAINS TO CONCEAL THE ARRANGEMENT OR TO OBSCURE THE PARTNERSHIP.

"That was many months ago, and since then THE CAMPAIGN OF VAN SANT HAS BEEN CARRIED ON MOST CONTINUOUSLY AND AUDACIOUSLY FROM THE STATE CAPITOL. It is there that conferences are held, plans matured, information brought and pressure brought to bear. WAS IT NOT FROM THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OIL INSPECTOR, WHOM CLOUGH CHERISHES AS HIS FRIEND AND AT WHOSE HOUSE HE LIVES, that there went out a circular requiring all deputies to declare themselves for Van Sant? Was it not the governor who carried his interest and his spleen so far as to make military appointments depend upon the attitude of officers toward his personal pet? And has he not for the last few months administered his office practically with the sole idea of cementing and continuing his power through another term? THESE ARE FACTS SO PATENT THAT EVEN THE MOST IGNORANT VOTER MUST BE AWARE OF THEM.

"The Clough-Van Sant combination is, nevertheless, learning something. IT IS BEGINNING TO WINCE BEFORE THE POPULAR INDIGNATION AT THIS PRE-DETERMINATION OF THE PEOPLE'S WILL. IT SEEMS NOW THAT POPULAR OPINION IS HOSTILE TO THE MACHINE. And at the last it is endeavoring, as far as may be, to cut loose from an alliance that savors of coming disaster. NOW IT WOULD CONVINCE THE PEOPLE, IF IT COULD, THAT THERE IS NO COMBINATION, NO MACHINE, NO CLOUGH FINGER IN THE PIE. IT IS TOO LATE TO CONCEAL OR PREVENT THE TRUTH, AND THE CONSEQUENCES MUST BE BORNE. BUT THE CONFESSION OF WEAKNESS AND FEAR IS AN INTERESTING CONTRIBUTION TO A REMARKABLE CAMPAIGN."

The above and other articles of the same sort, besides being most edifying, will serve to mark the campaign, as it progresses, and emphasize the comparison of Editor Bixby in 1898, in opposing Van Sant and emphasizing his unfitness as candidate and as governor, and the Bixby of 1900, doing what he can for his own candidate while really desiring his defeat, and paving the way for better things for Bixby, when this, as another obstacle to his personal success is out of the way.

Of the general effect of the Van Sant "opener," the Minneapolis Times says: "Some Republicans can be found who are far from satisfied with the meeting of Republicans in Berglund's hall Tuesday night, the meeting at which Captain Van Sant fired the opening gun of the Republican campaign in Minneapolis.

"These Republicans are willing to admit that there was a large crowd out to listen to Captain Van Sant and cheer him with words of encouragement, but they insist that altogether the speeches failed to create any marked enthusiasm."

Speaking of the Van Sant Minneapolis meeting, the chairman introduced the captain in a glowing speech on the Eleventh ward, said that from that spot on the banks of the Mississippi, one could go to any part of the world. Upon which Captain Van, as if thinking of Salt river, remarked that St. Paul was the only place he wanted to go to just now.

Apparently Tams Bixby has removed to St. Paul for the season, in order to run Billy Masterman's campaign for him. Tams has been East and back, and reports are still out of agreement, as to what he accomplished. Tams' intimates give it out that Hanna shelled out satisfactorily, but Chairman Masterman's friends are sour and glum, and say that they don't know what Tams accomplished. There are many signs of disagreement in the goppite committee. In fact, on the side, the Masterman men drop hints that they don't propose to be side-tracked by the Bixbyites, but intend to have their share of the say so. Meanwhile carloads of supplies have gone into the fifteen or twenty rooms that have been secured for "headquarters, hindquarters or what ever it will be, making the showing of a large amount of business to be done in the Endicott building.

It is not unlikely that the feeling of dissatisfaction said to exist at state Republican headquarters can be traced to the fact that Manager Bixby in the past has "stuck it into" so many with whom he is now associated in the work for Van Sant. Plenty of men on the present committee have within two years past been bitter enemies of Bixby. Such, especially, are those who held the astute Tams responsible for the former defeat of the Van Sant ambition to be the candidate for governor. Tams did his opposition fighting through his paper, the Redwing Republican, than which no paper in the state had more bitter things to say against Van Sant up to the time of his defeat in the convention by Eustis, which was largely charged to the Bixby tactics. It was the Bixby paper which sent broadcast the charges that the Clough machinery especially the Oil Inspector's machinery, was being used to force Van Sant and defeat upon the party.

From the same source came the reflections which have been cast upon the Van Sant military record, it having been Bixby's paper, which charged that Van was never a captain in the army, but got his title from running steamboats. Bixby's paper called him the "Winona Raftsman" and made other contemptible references.

CAPT. VAN SANT AND HIS MANAGER.

St. Paul Globe: The Republican campaign in Minnesota is now in full swing. The task of oiling up the old machine has made rapid progress under the skilled direction of the familiar Tams Bixby, and, except for a few preliminary groans, it will move as silently and greasily as ever. The people of Minnesota will then be able to gaze upon the spectacle of the Hon. Tams Bixby managing a campaign for the Hon. Samuel R. Van Sant, the man whom two years ago he declared it would be absurd for the Republican party to nominate, and whom he bitterly opposed for the main reason that even in counties where Van Sant had secured the delegations to the state convention he would poll thousands of votes less than would William Henry Eustis.

Mr. Eustis was the nominee, defeating Van Sant, thanks to the able management of Tams Bixby, and everybody—except perhaps Mr. Eustis—knows now what happened to Eustis. He was defeated at the polls by more than twenty thousand votes. Yet less than two years ago, Mr. Bixby, now the manager of Van Sant's campaign, declared that even in counties where Van Sant was popular he could not poll as many votes as would Eustis.

IN REGARD TO DEMOCRATIC NEWSPAPERS.

Hearst's Chicago American is rapidly acquiring large circulation in the Twin Cities and the other parts of the state. It is one of the best and greatest newspapers, to our mind, that has ever been produced in this or any country. While closely following the Journal, it has features also not given the New York production, differing from that as the West differs from the slower East.

We are informed by the manager that the demands are so great for papers that he has not had time as yet to perfect systematic circulation arrangements as far from Chicago as this, especially as to the country papers, concerning which, and some system for clubbing and for exchange we had written the management. This he said would be considered in time. Meanwhile all should take the paper from the nearest newsdealers, or order subscriptions direct.

Let us all push for circulation for the good it will do the cause, as well as for the individual satisfaction at obtaining so great a paper devoted to our political cause. With such papers as the American, the Chronicle, and all the other large ones that are with us this year that were opposed in '96, and especially with the numerous German papers that are also with us this year, and opposed last campaingn, it is vastly different than it was four years ago.

And speaking of German papers, our German friends throughout the state will rejoice at the hard knocks being given the Republicans by the St. Paul Volkszeitung, by Col. F. W. Bergmeier, since he purchased the controlling interest in the paper. It is one of the best German dailies in the country, and both daily and weekly editions should have largely increased circulation by the orders of our friends.

We have received many inquiries concerning the proposed new Democratic daily at Minneapolis, and would say this in answer to all interested, to our papers and committeemen.

Good men, including practical newspaper men and men financially able to publish a paper, stand ready to launch one, the moment they are assured that there is support for it—as soon as convinced that Democrats and reformers generally will take it. They want 20,000 readers assured, and have taken steps, by appeal to the party supporters, to see if these can be pledged, and the result is so far very flattering for success. The way to give encouragement is to send to the gentlemen, addressing H. L. Chaffee an order or pledge for a certain number of subscriptions. Clubs are being pledged in the towns of the state all the way from 25 to 100. Money can be sent instead, and should be sent to the Germania Bank, Minneapolis, which bank receives the same in trust, to return the same to remitter if the paper is not started.

If the Democrats of Minnesota get a move on them they can have a good, strong party paper, at the drop of the hat. Financially backing the enterprise is Mr. George R. Porter, principal owner of the bank referred to, and abundantly able to assure the financial success of the paper if he undertakes it. Mr. W. H. Williams, at one time business manager of the Penny Press, and principal owner of the Commercial Company, heads the practical end of the enterprise. All arrangements for dispatches, machinery, etc., etc., are ready to be perfected.

Insurance company statements, especially the big ones, and especially the big "lifers," are said almost invariably to show immense comparative losses in earnings. It is quite likely that not so much money will be shoved into the Hanna campaign this year by this class of corporations.

Bank of St. Hilaire.
HANNAY & CO., Bankers.
Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.
A General Banking Business Transacted.
St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!
DAN PATERSON, Prop.
Dray in Connection.
The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place
BIG - RED - BARN
Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store
ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED
ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"
Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!
K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.
Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
Office east of the city well.
ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED
Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.
Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.
Send for sample copy FREE. Address,
VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building. WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE INSURANCE
DO YOU NEED SOME?
The Best is the Cheapest.
I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State
Call for rates.
H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.
JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:
Roll Carding—per pound.....5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.....15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.....20 c
LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.
LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
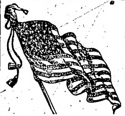
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.
IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.
Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn. as second-class mail matter.
Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.
TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.
SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.
ADVERTISING rates will be made known on application and are very reasonable.
REMITTANCES should be made on postal notes postoffice or express orders. Short time subscriptions in two cent stamps.
CORRESPONDENCE from all points in the vicinity of St. Hilaire desired. Make communications concise, writing upon only one side of the paper.
WEDNESDAY, AUG., 8, 1900.



NATIONAL TICKET.

For President—
WILLIAM J. BRYAN,
of Nebraska.
For Vice-President—
ADLAI E. STEVENSON,
of Illinois.

For Congressman 7th District—
M. J. DALY.

The Minneapolis American.

A new democratic daily newspaper, Fearless, Fair, Loyal, Aggressive.

For the Flag, the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and equal rights.

Against Trusts, Monopolies, Imperialism, Militarism, Special Privileges.

Demonstrate your appreciation of our efforts and remit at once. Payable order Germania Bank, Minneapolis, 3 months $1.00, 6 months $2.00, 1 year $4.00. Our plan has been endorsed by leading Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans.

Address "Minneapolis American"

Send for subscription blanks and get up a club.

LINCOLN, NEB., July 30, 1900
"The Minneapolis American."
My Dear Sir:

I am very much gratified to learn that steps are being taken to establish a Democratic paper in Minneapolis, to be known as the Minneapolis American. With the strong opposition which there is in your state to Republican policies, you ought to be able to secure a large circulation at once. The name is good, for the paper will stand for an American system of government, as well as for financial and industrial independence. I hope your paper will prove as great a success as Hearst's Chicago American.

Very truly yours,
W. J. BRYAN.

Bargains.

The remainder of our wash goods consisting of dimities, lawns, silk stripe zephyr, pongee zephyr, etc., will be closed out regardless of cost to make room for our fall and winter goods. Come and secure some real bargains.

E. M. HOFF.

Miss Lula Dainard has been confined to her bed since Monday.

Manager Cohn of the Greatwestern Clothing store left Friday for a week's stay at Minneapolis.

QUEER WEDDING PRESENTS.

Gifts That Were Not Appreciated by Those Who Received Them.

Even at a marriage feast, as it seems, there will sometimes be the envious or the jealous or the malicious.

A well known author received from a rival man of letters a scrapbook containing a collection of all the adverse criticisms his works had ever received, while a popular artist was presented with a set of elementary works upon self instruction in drawing and painting.

Not long since a gentleman who is a passionate devotee of hunting received as a bridal gift from an anonymous donor a complete set of false limbs, a set of artificial teeth and a couple of glass eyes—the whole of which must have cost a considerable sum—accompanied by a note, the writer of which trusted that, by reason of the recipient's many falls while following the hounds, some or all of these substitutes would ultimately prove of use.

An elderly, crusty tradesman, on espousing a spinster of mature age, was presented by a London undertaker with two coffins for himself and wife, "which, unlike most of the other offerings you will receive, are sure to be of service." The bridegroom resented this singular if useful gift, and it took all the efforts of mutual friends to prevent a breach of the peace.

Equally vexatious was the gift received from his neighbors by an infirm octogenarian who wedded a pleasure loving woman more than 50 years his junior. It was a large brass cage, "intended"—so ran the subscribers' note—"to restrain the wayward flights of a giddy young wife who has married a decrepit old fool for his money."

The husband of a lady whose great beauty hardly atoned for her sharp tongue found among his wedding presents a scold's bridle or branks, a gift from his wife's sisters, with the hope that, "if Kate makes your life as unbearable as she has made ours, you will not hesitate to put the accompanying offering to its original use."—London Answers.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

WANTED HIS FARE RUNG UP.

An Italian Who Demanded Music of the Street Car Conductor.

The conductor of a Brooklyn trolley car had a peculiar experience with an Italian one night last week. The Italian wanted to ride with music thrown in for his 5 cents. A passenger described the incident:

"I boarded the car with six other passengers, including an Italian, at the suburban end of the road on one of the late trips. The car had gone a short distance when the conductor began to collect the fares. The Italian was on the rear seat, and his money was collected last. Everything went well for about half a mile, when the Italian jumped to his feet and waved his hands at the conductor. The conductor went to the excited man and asked him what the trouble was. The Italian said:

"'Me wanta my fiva centa back.'

"The conductor told him that he could not have the money. The Italian insisted:

"'Every boda getta music for a fiva centa; me no got.'

"The conductor grasped the situation at once, and, seeing that he was accused of 'nickeling,' started to clear himself. He showed the Italian that there were seven passengers on the car and that that number of fares were registered. He also explained why the Italian did not get any music for his nickel. He said:

"'While collecting the fares in the front part of the car I rang up one fare too much, and if I rang up yours I would be out 5 cents.'

"While this explanation was going on the man from Italy was still shouting for his 'fiva centa,' and did not stop until he got off the car farther down, still jabbering at the conductor."—New York Sun.

SHE WAS ABSENTMINDED.

A Quarter Which a Beggar Was Not to Spend For Drink.

"For God's sake give a hungry man a little money to buy something to eat," entreated a beggar of a woman in West Third street. The beggar was by no means absentminded, but the individual to whom he spoke was. She passed on several yards without noticing him, when it suddenly occurred to her that to a man, perhaps starving, who had asked bread she had given a stone, or at least a stony stare. So she took 25 cents from her purse and, turning quickly, hurried after a man passing down the street.

"Here," she said, touching him on the arm; "here is a quarter for you, and I hope you will not buy liquor with it."

Before the astonished person to whom she had given the money could utter a word she had departed.

"I am sure I don't know why young women should run after me on the street to give me money," ejaculated the man, "but I will spend it for drink since she particularly requested me not to."

A few steps farther on he was met by a seedy looking fellow who began, "For God's sake, give," etc.

"Yes, my man, I think this was intended for you. A young woman sent it to you, but you are not to spend it for drink." And he passed on with a light heart, while the beggar tested the quarter suspiciously, casting an eager glance ahead at the nearest saloon.—New York Press.

He Dodged.

There is a young man in Brooklyn who needs a tonic of some kind, else he would not have failed to embrace as attractive an opportunity as ever comes to one. He accompanied a charming young woman to a church wedding on the park slope and arrived at about the time the bride and groom were due. The young woman with him was dressed somewhat as the bride was expected to be clad, and as she walked up the main aisle of the church with her escort the organist began to play the wedding march. The couple, however, instead of going on to the altar, stopped in one of the pews not far from the front. One of the ushers came forward and told them that the clergyman was waiting for them, and their friends near, perceiving the situation, urged them to respond to the summons. The young woman said she was ready and willing, but the young man, to his everlasting disgrace, refused to move, and if he lives to his dying day the people who know the girl say that Hugh will not have another such chance for happiness.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Real Jan Ridd.

A writer, giving some personal memories of Mr. Blackmore, says he could not bear with patience any praise of "Lorna Doone." All the world has been told that "Lorna Doone" is his greatest work, the work in which his fame will live, "but," says the writer, "strange to say, in as far as his gentle nature was capable of irritation he almost resented the mere mention of the book. Once I inquired of him was there a real Jan Ridd.

"'Oh, yes,' he said, filling his pipe anew.

"'And was he the glorious chap he's made out to be in "Lorna Doone?"'

"'Certainly not,' said Mr. Blackmore; 'he was a coarse brute.'"—New England Home Magazine.

An Odorless Disinfectant.

If one objects to the odor of carbolic acid, he may use for the plumbing an odorless disinfectant prepared as follows: Dissolve half a pound of permanganate of potash in four gallons of water and pour this carefully down the pipes. This solution, if allowed to stand in bowls or basins, will stain them purple. The stains may be removed with a weak solution of oxalic acid. The acid must be rinsed off immediately after it has been used.—Ladies' Home Journal.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

THE HARDY GOAT.

It Can Be Made Valuable as a Dairy Animal.

The usefulness of the goat in clearing foul lands and the profitableness of the animal for its hair, skin and even carcass are becoming pretty well understood. But the goat is valuable as a dairy animal. If the cows, for instance, are being used for supplying a city milk trade, the keeping of goats for the home milk supply would be an excellent policy. The goat will live where a cow would starve, and, while it, like every domestic animal, will do best on good pasture, it will live and yield milk on astonishingly little food.

The animal and its milk are almost entirely exempt from disease. The milk is more nutritious than that of the cow and agrees with stomachs that cow's milk frequently offends. The animal requires only the cheapest kind of shelter, but it needs shelter from the storms and in winter. If by reason of drought soiling is necessary, leaves, vegetable refuse, peelings of the apple or potato, bread crusts or stale bread, if they are sweet and clean, will be all the feed that is needed.

All goats, however, will not eat the same food, and the feeder will have to study the appetites of the individual animal. Frequent feeding and a variety of food in winter will be found beneficial. Roots, oilmeal, oats, corn (of the latter in the whole state the goat is very fond), are proper feed, especially for the milking goat. Rock salt is greatly relished. The flavor of goat's milk cannot be distinguished from that of cow's milk if it is properly cared for. From three to four pints a day is the average yield of a good milker. The milk is so rich and of such a character that in making pastry it will take the place of eggs.—Epitomist.

SIVA AND DEVI.

The Fearful Devil of the Hindoos and His Principal Wife.

Siva is both typical of destruction and of reproduction. But the latter attribute was doubtless a later addition to the sum of his qualities. The original conception of this deity was that of a power delighting in destruction, in the achievement of physical evil and wrong and in hurling death and devastation upon the people and their land. He is represented in the sacred books of the Hindoos as "the terrible destroyer," "the one who delights in the destruction of men." But in all this there is no whisper as yet of any moral qualities of evil. The conception is entirely one of physical power, used with the utmost malevolence and injustice against men.

Along with his principal wife, who is variously called Devi, Durga, Uma and Kali, he is portrayed as the incarnation of physical evil, wrong, injustice or misfortune. In the "Puranas" Siva is described as wandering about surrounded by ghosts and goblins, inebriated, naked and with disheveled hair, covered with the ashes of a funeral pile, ornamented with human skulls and bones, sometimes laughing and sometimes crying. Devi, his consort, is represented with a hideous and a terrible countenance streaming with blood, encircled with snakes, hung round with skulls and human heads and in all respects resembling a fury rather than a goddess. The only pleasure which Siva and Devi feel is when their altars are drenched with blood, which, of course, could not be shed without the destruction of some form of life.—Westminster Review.

Pilkerton Won the Race.

At one of the regattas of the National Association of American Oarsmen during the early nineties James Pilkerton, for many years the champion sculler of America, was matched to row double against another team. He and his mate were the champions, and the general belief was that they would win without effort. But the night before the regatta public opinion suddenly and mysteriously changed. Mr. Pilkerton knew that this was not caused by any new development of strength in his opponent or any loss of skill on his own part. After making some quiet inquiries he discovered that there was talk of his rowing mate having been bought up by the other side and of an arrangement to throw the race.

He didn't say anything about his suspicions, but when the two men were seated in the shell and were well out into the deep water he leaned over to his mate and said:

"Look her, you blooming cutthroat! You've got to swim, drown or win this race! You know me!" He won.—Saturday Evening Post.

Watch Springs.

The watch carried by the average man is composed of 98 pieces, and its manufacture embraces more than 2,000 distinct and separate operations.

Hairspring wire weighs one-twentieth of a grain to the inch. One mile of wire weighs less than half a pound.

The balance gives five vibrations every second, 300 every minute, 18,000 every hour, 432,000 every day and 157,680,000 every year.

The value of springs when finished and placed in watches is enormous in proportion to the material from which they are made. A ton of steel made up into hairsprings when in watches is worth more than 12½ times the value of the same weight in pure gold.

A Gallant Clergyman.

It is said that the Rev. Sydney Smith could be gallant as well as witty on occasion.

"Oh, Mr. Smith, I cannot bring this flower to perfection," said a young lady to him once as she showed him about her conservatory.

Whereupon he took her by the hand and said, "Then let me bring perfection to the flower."

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., July 21, 1900.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on September 18th 1900, viz: Levant G. Rice, H. E. 19760, for the se¼ nw¼ and ne¼ sw¼ sec. 32, twp. 153 N, range 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:—Halva Hulvason, Hans Fredrickson, George German, of Thief River Falls, Minn., and Louis Hendrickson of St. Hilaire, Minn.

52-5 SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give FARM, STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.35.

NOTICE.

Department of the Interior,
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota.

PUBLIC SALE.—ISOLATED TRACT.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office under authority in him vested by section 2455 U. S. R. S., as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895 (28 Stat., 687) we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 1st day of September 1900, at ten o'clock a. m., the following tract of land to-wit:

SE¼ NE¼ Sec. 1, T. 151 N., R. 43 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the said sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated July 20th, 1900.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.
Mscl. App. No. 296—3161.
52-5.

—Screen doors and windows made to order at I. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.
LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.
ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice, Neat and accurate work guaranteed.
S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

UNCLE SAM'S MONOGRAM WHISKEY
A Mellow, Time-honored Stimulant of Absolute Purity?
BENZ & SONS, ST. PAUL MINNEAPOLIS

Ba Shop
BAT
Haircutting, Shav
Razors honed and put i order.
J. H. PENNO, Prop.
ST. HILAIRE MINNESOTA

For A Quiet Supper Have Hamm's St. Paul Beer
1st RAT—What beer does the family use?
2d RAT—Hamm's, of course, or they would lose ME!
Theo. Hamm Brewing Co.
Tel. 972 – St. Paul, Minn.
Agents Everywhere.

NORTHERN PACIFIC YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
RUNS
THROUGH CARS
TO
ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG
To HELENA
BUTTE
SPOKANE
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND
PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS
Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

20,000 Acres
Of Wild and Improved Lands for sale in Marshall and Red Lake Counties!
Prairie Lands,
Speculators Lands,
Timber Lands.
HIMLE LAND & LOAN COMPANY,
Purchasers of N. P. Ry. Co. lands in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.
Call on or address
FRED G. WELLS, Local Mgr.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
$150,000 to Loan on Farm Lands.

First Mortgage Loans.
I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the LOWEST
possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on
H. E. IVES.

UNCLE SAM Is not In the Shoe Business, And Neither Am I, But I can Interest You in CIGARS.
ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM
J. B. Cigars.
ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.
J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

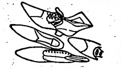
A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed. Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

For Fine Goods
Good Goods
New Goods
Up to Date Goods
Visit Us as we are the only Exclusive Clothing and Gents Furnishing House in the C

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.
GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE
Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.
Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.
M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route
Electric Light in Every Berth
A special feature of the Burlington's Chicago Limited. When you retire, turn on the light. After you are comfortably ensconced between the sheets, you can read by it. When you are sleepy, a twist of the wrist—and the light's out. Leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m., St. Paul 8:05 p. m., daily. Arrives Chicago 9:25 next morning. Scenic Day Express leaves Minneapolis 7:40 a. m., St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday, arriving Chicago same evening. Ask your home agent for tickets via this line.
P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. Agent, CHICAGO, ILL.
GEO. P. LYMAM, Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent ST. PAUL, MINN.

Cigars.
J. B. SENATE
DEALER IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.
(Brink Bros. Old Stand) St. Hilaire, Minnesota



L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

NEW MEAT MARKET.
L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

It's Time Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
O. F. Post, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. G.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 334 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Mrs. L. Lacoursiere, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant
T. J. Thorkelson
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
...IAN
SURGEON.
...or night.
...ted.
...pposity M. E.
...ILAIRE, MINN.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van B. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes
Alex Patnode	Gervias	Red Lake Falls

The Ideal Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS.
PROMPT SERVICE.
OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd STORE
(SECOND HAND STORE.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA

New Restaurant
[Brink Bros. Corner Building.]
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.
If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
C. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the SPECTATOR. Official county and village paper.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	64½	Oats	19
Wheat No. 2	62½	Barley	28
Wheat No. 3	58½	Flax	122
Eggs (per doz).	9	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

Dance Friday evening at the Hotel Markham.

I. Dahleen spent Sunday at Thief River Falls.

—For screen doors and windows go to I. Dahleen's.

The gang saws at the mill will be put in operation tomorrow.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

Banker Hannay made a business trip to the county seat Monday.

A million and a half drive of logs were brought down yesterday.

Farmers are working early and late these days cutting the golden grain.

Surveyor Ralph of Crookston was here on business last Friday and Saturday.

Dr. Watson of Red Lake Falls was here on professional business last Friday.

Take in the first-class entertainment at the M. E. church next Wednesday evening.

Congressman Eddy is up in Roseau county this week getting acquainted with the people.

Leonard Homes received a car load of binding twine and another of shelled corn last week.

Miss Henrietta Zaiser of Red Lake Falls was visiting with the Hannay family last week.

County Commissioner Johnson was in the village Monday after twine and his harvest groceries.

Al. and Ched Rouse, formerly of this place but not of Bemidji were visitors here a few days last week.

Alex Thompson and two daughters of Crookston were visiting friends here last Friday and Saturday.

The republicans have bunched their candidates this year—as high as three may be seen on one button.

The two year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Erick Hanson died last night after an illness of only a few days.

A number of St. Hilairites took in the base ball dance given at Thief River Falls last Friday evening.

A social dance will be given at the Hotel Markham Friday evening Aug. 10th. Everybody invited to attend.

If all towns in Minnesota were as well organized as St. Hilaire there would be no need of game wardens.

Jas. Mathews, an all around head push for the Crookston Lumber Company spent a few days in St. Hilaire last week.

Mrs. Olof Musbeck, sister of Mrs. Erick Hansen of this village, died yesterday at her home eight miles east of Euclid.

Mrs. Ed. Bridge returned yesterday from a three weeks absence at Minneapolis where she has been visiting with friends.

O. O. Opperud lost his large barn by fire last Saturday caused by lightening. He managed to save all his live stock however.

Where the St. Hilaire Lumber Company are building their new dam, hail fell to the depth of three inches last Saturday.

Steve Whithey, the genial conductor on the Fargo-St. Vincent line was here between trains last Saturday greeting old time acquaintances.

A crew of river drivers came up from Red Lake Falls Monday to look after logs belonging to the Lumber Company of the lower Falls.

—The Himle Land and Loan Co., will loan money on farm lands at legal rate, no commission, call on or address, FRED G. WELLS, Thief River Falls.

A few McKinley-Roosevelt-Van Sant buttons found their way into St. Hilaire Saturday for the first time—and that is the day the cyclone struck these parts.

Two loads of Royal Neighbors from this village drove to Thief River Falls last Wednesday to enjoy the usual good time generally had at a social session.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

—The English American circus had all kinds of trouble at Cass Lake. This is the same one that showed at Thief River Falls. An account will be seen on fourth page.

C. C. Bergan of Fargo was here last Monday and before he left for home he bought the John Stroberg farm for $1,000. Mr. Bergan intends to move to the farm this week.

Erick Hansen is confined to his bed with an attack of typhoid fever. He has more than his share of trouble. His sister-in-law died yesterday and his two year old child last night.

Street Commissioner Harris, with a few assistants are buzy building a new sidewalk on Minnesota avenue which will be a great accommodation to those living on the west side of the track.

The Clulow Concert Company will give a first-class entertainment at the M. E. church next Wednesday evening August 15th. You cannot afford to miss it. Admission 15 and 25 cents.

E. M. Hoff was considerably bruised up yesterday caused by stopping his run-a-way horse that had got beyond control of his daughter Clare and Miss Hilman of Crookston while out taking a ride.

Rev. Dr. Forbes, who was to preach here last Friday evening was taken sick last week and all dates cancelled. He was compelled to return to his home at Duluth as he was entirely broken down.

Al. Lammers the logging contractor on the Clearwater was here between trains Monday enroute to Red Lake Falls where he expects his crew of men and a drive of forty million feet of logs in a few days.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends and neighbors for their attention and assistance during the illness, death and burial of our son, Martin Hall, and particularly to the Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbors.

MR. AND MRS. PETER HALL.

It has just leaked out that nine out of every ten that went up against the shell game at the circus recently held at Thief River Falls were subscribers of no newspapers. The Press of that city says the list of mourners was too long to print. These are the same fellows, we suppose, that say a county paper aint worth two cents a week—Yep—same fellows.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

The Minnesota State Fair will be held at Hamline, midway between the two great northwestern cities, St. Paul and Minneapolis, during the week of September 3 to 8 and promises to be better than ever. The premiums and purses offered aggregate over $40,000, and it is now certain that there will be comprehensive exhibits in all departments. The 200 acre grounds have been newly fenced; buildings have been put in perfect repair and newly painted and everything is in most excellent condition. Not only are the exhibits to be varied, interesting and comprehensive but the amusement program will be especially strong as well. The purses offered for the races aggregate $22,500. There will be pacing races, trotting races, two running races and a band concert each afternoon besides many special and up-to-date attractions. Each evening the grounds will be brilliantly lighted and a splendid program will be carried out in front of the grand stand. There will be running races, a band concert, a long list of special athletic exhibitions, closing each night with a brilliant spectacular fireworks display. The whole week will be one of pleasure and instruction.

The soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and permanent cures, have made it a great favorite with the people everywhere. For sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

Council Proceedings.

Regular meeting of the village council Monday August 6th 1900 at the village hall. Members present Rapp, Patterson, Weagant, Thorkelson and Johnson. Meeting called to order by Pres. Rapp. On motion the minutes of last regular and special meetings were read and approved.

On motion the following bills were allowed:

Dan Patterson team work	33 40
St. Hilaire Lumber Co. lumber	150 52
Joel B Owens work on sidewalk	6 00
H W Peterson " "	3 75
S Harris street work	32 00
A C Adams team work	16 65
C G Rapp lumber as per bill	14 28
H A Johnson marshall salary etc	43 35
Mike Olson work as per bill	6 50
J C Dahl blacksmith work as per bill	7 10
O. H. Peters work as per bill	10 75

On motion the bill of C. A. Chelin was laid on the table till next meeting.

On motion the street commissioners report was accepted as read.

On motion the village marshal report was accepted as read.

On motion it was resolved that the village of St. Hilaire raised $2,500 by taxation for current expenses for the ensuing year.

On motion the recorder was instructed to write county auditor of Polk county in regard to taxes due the village of St. Hilaire.

On motion meeting adjourned.

Attest:—
J. L. JOHNSON, Recorder.
C. G. RAPP President.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Aug. 27th and 28th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 27th and 28th.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

A YOUNG CYCLONE.

Red Lake County Visited by a Destructive Hail and Wind Storm.

O. W. Brink Loses His Large Barn and J. Hendrickson His House.

Last Saturday forenoon (August 4th) between nine and ten o'clock the first destructive hail and wind storm ever known in these parts had the right-of-wdy for fully half an hour which was little short of a tornado in violence. It was accompanied by a continuous rumbling of thunder and the air was full of electricity during that time. It is impossible to estimate the damage done throughout the county as the storm raised and dipped in various places in the townships of Polk Centre, Black River, Sanders and Rocksbury. The storm came from the northwest and seems to have split about a mile and a half northwest of this village, one part going east while the other to the northeast, the latter destroying most everything to the width of about two miles while the former only dipped here and there.

O. W. Brink is the heaviest loser, as his large barn 40x200 was completely demolished. Six horses were in the barn when it collapsed. A courier was sent to this village and in less then fifteen minutes a hundred or more willing hands armed with axes, etc., managed to save five out of the six horses that were pinned down by the roof and tons of hay which fell upon them. The house was located a short distance away but no damage was done outside the falling down of a tall brick chimney.

John Hendrickson was the next loser in the building line. His log house and contents were distributed for a mile or more along the path of the cyclone—in fact two trunks of clothes have not been found up to date. Queer capers of the storm were witnessed here. The south wall was only partly blown down—the blooming flower plants in the window and the clock on the shelf were not touched and looked as though the best of care had received their attention, while but a few inches from there such things as tea spoons and the like were twisted out of shape and broken. The stove in the kitchen was turned around but nothing broke. Logs were carried and distributed for a long distance, partitions driven into the ground and twisted off. Mrs. Hendrickson was the only one in the house at the time but does not recollect a thing that happened. She found herself at a neighbors house but does not know how she got there. It is a myrical how she escaped unhurt. At a poplar grove near this place the trees were stripped of their foliage and the ground was literally covered to the depth of several inches. The grain in this same vicinity was either threshed out by the wind and hail or driven into the ground—likewise the garden track.

Dan Patterson had four men and teams in the hay field west of there and each had their experience—the teams became unmanageable and ran away—Ole Peterson had his shoulder broken, Joe Owens was struck in the chest by a hayrack and rendered unconscious for a time while Gus Fellman was picked up and dropped several times like a rubber ball and the other escaped without injury.

The country over which the storm swept had in most part an excellent crop—especially so in the town of Rocksbury. This is the first time in many years that the farmers in this particular township carried no hail insurance.

A. M. Hanson of Black River reports 30 acres of wheat thrashed out with the aid of hail on his north farm.

Among the losers in the town of Rocksbury are: Messrs. Branvold, Erickson, Engelstad, Vold, Huseby, Anderson, Rundorf, Wiste, Hendrickson and Ole Loberg, partial; while the crops of Chas Wilson, H. O. Rod, R. Olen and C. Falk are a total loss. Some of the above farmers have no one to blame but themselves as the grain in some of the fields were fit to cut three and four days previous to the storm—haying seems to have been of more importance to them—so we are told. "Cut hay while the sun shines" is good; but cut wheat when it is ripe is better.

Somewhere in the neighborhood of fifty inhabitants of this village didn't like the looks of the approaching storm and took refuge in the cyclone cellar of Leonard Holmes.

Several granaries between here and the sand ridge were moved off their foundation and others turned over.

The farms of Messrs. Geskey, Johnson and Kratka were in direct line of the cyclone but it raised before touching the former's field and dipping again after clearing the latter. They have been congratulating themselves ever since on their good luck.

The prairie northwest or town is covered with dead chickens caused by the hail.

About fifty tons of Dan Patterson's hay was scattered all over the country.

Ed. Aubol had an excellent stand of wheat, but its about all pounded into the ground—likewise the field of grain belonging to Ernest Swenson.

Many of the farmers in the towns of Black River and Polk Centre lost part or all of their crops.

—If you want to make a loan or sell your farm call on or address FRED G. WELLS, Thief River Falls.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Aug. 27th and 28th.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

Should be Driven Off.

Thousands of tons of hay in the stacks, and upon the meadows were burned up the first of the week by the Indians living on this section of the reservation. Several parties had put up hay on the reservation, paying the Indians for the stumpage and before it was removed, the Indians demanded pay a second time. This the parties putting up the hay refused to do, and the Indians set fire to the hay in the stack. The wind being from the south drove the flames northward and a large portion of eastern Marshall and Roseau counties were burned over. Numerous settlers have lost buildings and tons of hay have been destroyed. All are heavily engaged in the stock raising business and by reason of their meadows being burned over and their hay in stack burned, will suffer many hardships.

Just how long a little band of forty or fifty drunken and degenerated Indians will continue to devastate one of the most fertile regions in the state, it is hard to say, but one thing is centain, unless the Indians are removed to the lake, where they belong, and this section of the reservation thrown open to settlement, there will continue to be trouble. Under the present conditions the Indians living across the river from Thief River Falls are not only a menace to the whites, but are in a state of degeneration both morally and physically that is a pity to behold.—Thief River Falls News.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

The Peoples Party county convention was held in Red Lake Falls last Wednesday and the following ticket nominated:

Auditor—Adam Zeh of Red Lake Falls.

Treasurer—O. T. Tandberg of Rocksbury.

Supt. of Schools—Frank Jeffers of Red Lake Falls.

Register of Deeds—Samuel Gibeau of Lambert.

Sheriff—E. A. Moran of Red Lake Falls.

Co. Attorney—F. A. Grady of Red Lake Falls.

Judge of Probate—J. L. Johnson of St. Hilaire.

Coroner—Joseph Belair of Red Lake Falls.

Surveyor—Phil Zeh of Thief River Falls.

Commissioner 2nd district, Tom Belair, of Red Lake Falls.

Commissioner 4th district, George Jarmon of Thief River Falls.

S. A. Swanson of Red Lake Falls, was named for Representative, with the privilege of naming his delegates. This is equivalent to the nomination as Red Lake county has the controlling vote in the convention.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

A Scientific Investigation.

The food value of the various beverages has always been an enteresting question. Wine and beer are prescribed by physicians as particularly valuable in building up the health of broken down men and women. In some parts of Europe, wine takes the place of water as the drink of the people, while in America the use of beer is becoming more and more the ideal beverage. This is due not only to the fact that the American people are becoming more accustomed to its use and learning its value, but also to the further fact that the art of brewing has advanced to the point where an ideal food beverage is produced.

Although there is less than five, and usually not more than three, per cent of alcohol in beer, it is interesting to note the result of scientific investigations in Germany and Russia, which have recently established that alcohol has a decided food-value, notwithstanding the false education which the American public has received to the contrary. Both men and women were employed in these experiments.

It is found that alcohol takes the place of fat in food, furnishing the heat for the body. In small quantities it increases the appetite and helps digestion. It also diminishes the requirements of food, by lessening waste of tissue.

This is just what the Minneapolis Brewing Company has always contended in connection with its "Golden Grain Belt" beers. These beers are "liquid food" pure and wholesome. A bottle of "Extra Pale" or "Gilt Edge" will greatly improve your dinner. Your larder is never completely furnished without a case of "Golden Grain Belt" beers. Order from your nearest dealer or you can be supplied by Alexander Thompson, Crookston.

During the civil war, as well as in our late war with Spain, diarrhoea was one of the most troublesome diseases the army had to contend with. In many instances it became chronic and the old soldiers still suffer from it. Mr. David Taylor of Wind Ridge, Greene Co., Pa., is one of these. He uses Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and says he never found anything that would give him such relief. It is for sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewelry Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly,
PROF. J. Q. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and Optician.

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right
And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries
Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware
We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of
Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO Buy
Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Like the Deadly Under-Current which grasps one without warning, the mucous membrane which lines the entire body suddenly becomes weakened in some spot and disease is established. It may be of the lungs, the head, throat, stomach, bowels, or any other organ. Wherever it is, and whatever it seems, it all springs from the same cause—or inflammation of this delicate pink membrane.

CATARRH

The system is weakened in winter. The delicate lining is more susceptible to irritation or inflammation, and thus we have pneumonia, grip, colds, coughs, fevers, etc., all catarrhal conditions which may easily be checked by one catarrh cure—Pe-ru-na.

That's the only way out of it. You may dose forever—you will not be well until you try the true cure and that is Pe-ru-na. You may think your trouble is some other disease and not catarrh. Call it what you will, one thing is sure, your system is affected and must be treated, and Pe-ru-na is the only remedy which reaches the right place and does cure.

A Pertinent Inquiry.

He—Do you believe in ghosts?

She—No; do you?

He—Sure thing; I saw one last night.

She—How did it look?

He—It appeared in the form of a donkey.

She—Were you standing in front of a mirror when you saw it?—Chicago News.

Best for the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

A Way to the Desired Result.

"No, sir; I cannot permit any man who drinks to be attentive to my daughter."

"Then why not let me marry her?"—Smart Set.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES do not stain the hands or spot the kettle.

The easiest job a man ever undertakes is running someone else's.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. SAMUEL, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

Life is a struggle in which everybody tries to get what he wants and to forget what he deserves.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND
TRADE MARK
SLICKER
WILL KEEP YOU DRY.

Don't be fooled with a mackintosh or rubber coat. If you want a coat that will keep you dry in the hardest storm buy the Fish Brand Slicker. If not for sale in your town, write for catalogue to A. J. TOWER, Boston, Mass.

Easy Monthly Payments

We sell Regina Music Boxes for public places with money slot attachments, and for home use without attachments, on easy Monthly Payments. With money attachments they are

A Constant Source of Revenue

and soon pay for themselves. They can be placed in all kinds of business houses.

We Repair Music Boxes.
Correspondence invited.

NATIONAL NOVELTY CO.,
519 First Ave. So., - - - Minneapolis, Minn.

DO NOT BUY
WELL DRILLING
MACHINERY until you see our new Catalogue No. 29. We will furnish it to you FREE. Write to our address, either Harvey, Ill., Chicago, Ill., or Dallas, Texas.
F. C. AUSTIN MFG. CO.
Factories at Harvey, Ill.

MONEY FOR SOLDIERS' HEIRS

Heirs of Union Soldiers who made homesteads of less than 160 acres before June 22, 1874 (no matter if abandoned), if the additional homestead right was not sold or used, should address, with full particulars, HENRY N. COPP, Washington, D. C.

LADIES! When doctors and others fail to relieve you, try N. F. M. R.; it never fails, box free. Mrs. B. L. Rowan, Milwaukee, Wis.

N. W. N. U. —No. 32.— 1900.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

RIOT AT CASS LAKE

THREE COMPANIES OF MILITIA ORDERED OUT.

Desperadoes Have Been Creating a Reign of Terror in Cass Lake, Grand Rapids and Other Towns in Northern Minnesota — Sheriff Beaten and His Prisoner Taken Away—Gov. Lind Is Asked for Troops and Orders Out the Three Companies at Duluth.

Cass Lake, Minn., Aug. 6.—A circus exhibited here Thursday. A sheriff and deputy from Hubbard county had warrants for the arrest of crooks who were following the show, for alleged depredations at Park Rapids. While trying to serve the warrants one of the deputies was beaten and papers and arms taken away from him. Later in the evening citizens tried to have the train held so as to get warrants for the arrest of the gang. While so doing the railroad office was invaded by the gang and Sheriff Alexander brutally beaten and left for dead. They were followed to Grand Rapids Friday, where one of them was captured, but Saturday evening, while court was being held, the court house was broken open and the prisoner released by force of arms. Gov. Lind was asked for aid to quell the disturbance.

Troops Ordered Out.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 6.—Three companies of the local militia, under command of Maj. F. H. Bidwell, left by special train over the Northern Pacific last night for Carlton to apprehend Manager English of the New Syndicate show, the notorious "Doc" Baker and the alleged ring leaders of the desperadoes who have been creating a reign of terror in Cass Lake, Grand Rapids and other towns in Northern Minnesota during the past three or four days. The seriousness of the situation was apparent to Sheriff Hardy of Carlton county, who, when he heard that the aggregation was headed toward Carlton, wired Gov. Lind and asked that the state troops be called out, as he apprehended dire results if they were allowed to enter the town and commit depredations the same as they have been doing. Accordingly the governor issued orders to Maj. Bidwell yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock to proceed at once to Carlton with Companies A, C and G.

GOV. LIND'S ACTION.

Orders the Circus Train to Be Held at Cloquet.

Mora, Minn., Aug. 6.—On Gov. Lind's arrival here at 3 o'clock yesterday morning he found a long message that men connected with the Syndicate circus, recently at Cass Lake, had assaulted and almost killed the sheriff and his deputy who sought to execute the law, that subsequently, when arrests were made for the assault, the whole circus mob, some fifty strong, attacked the court house, broke doors and windows and liberated the prisoners, that the circus was at Virginia, in St. Louis county, and would be at Hibbing to-day, and asking for assistance.

The governor immediately directed the sheriff of St. Louis county to aid the Cass county officials to make the arrests as soon as they arrived with papers and authorized him to call on the national guard for assistance. The circus people for some reason abandoned the Hibbing exhibition and secured an extra and started for West Superior yesterday afternoon. A delay at Cloquet on account of a washout enabled the officers and the governor to learn of the movements of the train. The governor immediately wired Supt. Philbin that the circus train held at Cloquet carried five fugitives from justice and directed that it be held until officers arrived with warrants. This order was acknowledged, and officers, accompanied by the national guard, started for Cloquet.

A MILLION DOLLAR FIRE.

Ashland, Wis., Suffers From a Terrible Conflagration.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 6.—Nearly one million dollars' worth of lumber was burned in the Baker & Stewart and Keystone Lumber companies' yards at Ashland Saturday afternoon. Almost 50,000,000 feet of lumber was burned and two of the Keystone's tramways and four out of five of the Baker & Stewart tramways were burned to the water's edge with all their lumber. The fire started in the Baker & Stewart yards, and at once jumped a quarter of a mile to the Keystone yards, setting fire to the west tramway, leaped over the middle tramway, which did not burn, and caught on the east tramway. The fire next leaped across the slip to the lime, salt and cement dock, destroying the warehouses—containing several thousand dollars' worth of merchandise and also destroying a quarter of a mile of dock and railway track. Over 400 pounds of dynamite was used in blowing up the lumber piles, and after a three hours' desperate fight both mills were saved.

Largest Iron Ore Shipments.

West Superior, Wis., Aug. 6.—Over 277,000 tons of iron ore was shipped from the Great Northern docks here in July, that being the heaviest ever shipped from this port. Coal receipts were 400,000 tons.

Does Severe Damage.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Aug. 6.—A severe storm, rain, wind and hail, swept across this county from the southwest to northeast, seriously damaging crops and destroying several buildings.

Two Are Shot.

Valley City, N. D., Aug. 6. — J. D. Freeman, a prominent real estate agent, shot and seriously wounded Thomas Linly and Richard Hittsman. Freeman said the young men were annoying him. He was arrested.

Found Dead in Field.

Le Sueur, Minn., Aug. 6. — George Ramsey was found dead in his harvest field. He lay between the binder and horses. It is supposed his death was either from heart failure or a kick from a horse.

High Prices for Chinese Pottery.

London—Unusually high prices were recently paid for pieces of Nanking, Chinese pottery owing to the feeling that the present Chinese troubles will make such pottery difficult of procurement. Three vases, each ten inches high, brought $1,155.

Two Patrick Henrys.

Washington—The next congress will include two men of the same name from Mississippi. The present member from the sixth district is Patrick Henry, and another Patrick Henry will represent the third.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, Aug. 6. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 74 3-4@75 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 73 1-2@74c. Corn — No. 3 yellow, 40@40 1-2c; No. 3, 39 1-2@40c. Oats—No. 3 white, 27@27 1-2c; No. 3, 26 1-2@26 3-4c.

Duluth, Aug. 6.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 79 1-4c; September, 78 3-4c; December, 79 1-4c; No. 1 Northern, cash, 77 1-4c; September, 76 3-4c; December, 77 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, cash, 75 1-2c; No. 3, 72 1-4c; oats, 23 1-2c; rye, 47c; barley, 39c; flax, spot, $1.38; August, $1.35; September, $1.34 1-2; October, $1.30; November, $1.28.

Minneapolis, Aug. 6. — Wheat — No. 1 hard, 76 3-4c; No. Northern, 74 3-4c; No. 2 Northern, 73 1-2c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 38 1-2@39c; No. 3, 38 1-4@38 1-2c; No. 4, 37 1-2@38c. Oats—Sample, 25@25 1-2c; ordinary, 24@24 3-4c. Barley, 39@43c. Rye—No. 2, 47 1-2@48 1-2c; No. 3, 46 1-2@47c.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 77@78c; No. 3 red, 73@77c; No. 2 hard winter, 71 1-2@75 1-2c; No. 3 hard winter, 72@73c; No. 1 Northern spring, 75 1-2c; No. 2 Northern spring, 73 1-2@74 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 69@73 1-2c. Corn—No. 2, 38 3-4c; No. 3, 38 1-2c. Oats—No. 2, 22c; No. 3, 21 1-2c.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 6. — Flour is dull. Wheat lower; No. 1 Northern, 76 1-2@77c; No. 2 Northern, 74@74 1-2c. Rye lower; No. 1, 53c. Barley steady; No. 2, 49@50c; sample, 40@48c. Oats dull; No. 2 white, 25 3-4@26c.

Sioux City, Iowa, Aug. 6.—Cattle—Beeves, $4.75 @ 5.30; cows, bulls and mixed, $2.50@3.50; stockers and feeders, $3.50@4; calves and yearlings, $3.50@4.50. Hogs, $5@5.22; bulk, $5.10@5.15.

Chicago, Aug. 6. — Cattle — Good to prime steers, $5.25 @ 6; poor to medium, $4.50@5.20; stockers and feeders, $3 @ 4.70; cows and heifers, $3 @ 5; Texas-fed steers, $4.40@5.15. Hogs — Mixed and butchers, $5.15@5.45; good to choice heavy, $5.15@5.45; rough heavy, $4.95@5.10; light, $5.20@5.45; bulk of sales, $5.20@5.40. Sheep, $3.40@4.60; lambs, $4.25@5.85.

South St. Paul, Aug. 6. — Cattle — Choice butcher cows and heifers, $3.75 @4.25; fair to good, $2.85@3.60; thin cows and canners; $2 @ 2.75; choice butcher steers, $4.75@5.15; fair to good, $4.25@4.60; fat bulls, $3.25@3.50; bologna bulls, $2.75@3.10; veal calves, $3.50@4.50; good to choice stock cows and heifers, $2.75@3; fair to good, $2.50@2.75; common and tailings, $2@2.40; heifer calves, $2.50@3; good to choice stockers and feeders, $3.25 @ 3.75; fair to good, $3@3.25; common and tailings, $2.50 @ 2.90; steer calves, $3.25 @ 3.60; stock and feeding bulls, $2.75@3; feed cows, $2.50@2.75; stags and oxen, $3@4; milkers and springers, $25@27.50. Hogs — Mixed and butchers, $5.25 @ 5.35; good to prime heavy, $5.10 @ 5.35; rough heavy, $4.65 @ 4.70; stags and boars, $2@4.60; pigs and skips, $1.25@4.50. Sheep—Butcher, thin killers, $2@2.50; fair to good fat, $3.50@4; good to choice fat, $3.50@4; stock, $2.50@2.75; feeding sheep, $2.75@3; stock and feeding lambs, common to good, $2.75@3; good to choice, $3@3.25; butcher lambs, common to medium, $4@4.50; good to choice, $4.50@5.50; bucks, $2@2.75.

ARE RESCUED FROM A FIRE.

Negro Saves Six Children From a Burning Building.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 6. — Six children would have perished in smoke and flames which threatened to destroy a two and a half-story double frame building but for the bravery of Thomas Williams, a negro living in the neighborhood, who, after discovering the fire, roused the occupants, Mrs. Samantha Early and Mr. and Mrs. Peasley, from partial suffocation, and, helping them to flee to a place of safety, went back three times into the burning structure at the peril of his own life and carried out six helpless children.

TO PROVIDE FOR LEPERS.

Building Will Be Erected in the Philippines by the Government.

Washington, Aug. 6. — Gen. MacArthur has convened a board consisting of Maj. Louis M. Maus, surgeon; Capt. H. Ahren, Ninth infantry, and Capt. W. E. Horton, assistant quartermaster, to select a location in the Philippine archipelago for segregation of lepers, to prepare plans and estimates for suitable buildings thereon and estimates of salaries for the necessary officials and employes.

HEAVY STORM IN ENGLAND.

Welsh Coast Strewn With Wreckage of Many Boats.

London, Aug. 6.—Channel traffic was interrupted by a gale and the Welsh coast is strewn with wrecks of coasters and pleasure craft. The racing yacht Corsair was struck in collision with a steam fishing boat off Ramsgate. A steam yacht, believed to be the Fairy Queen, was sunk off Lapwell. Crops have been much damaged. Telegraph wires in Great Britain and over half the continent are partially down.

BOAT BURNS IN BAY.

Vessel Used for Dredging Totally Destroyed—Crew Is Rescued.

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 6. — Dredge boat No. 2, owned by Rittenhous & Moore, was destroyed by fire in the middle of Tampa bay. Twenty persons were aboard when the fire began, but were rescued by two tug boats which came to their aid. The craft was quickly consumed. It was valued at $75,000, and had insurance on it to the amount of $30,000.

Strike Leader Sentenced.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 6.—William Wagner, leader of the recent coal miners' strike in the George's creek region, has been sentenced to six months in the house of correction. The charge against him was unlawful assembly, and he was also fined $25 and costs in a libel case. He will appeal in both cases.

Drowned While Bathing.

Redwood Falls, Minn., Aug. 6.—While bathing in the Minnesota river at Morton John Weelberg, a tailor, got beyond his depth and was drowned. He was thirty years old and had a sister residing at Pipestone.

Prairies Burn.

Pierre, S. D., Aug. 6.—Reports have come in of extensive prairie fires in Potter county and Northern Sully, destroying range grass and hay, which is serious on account of the scarcity of both this year.

Washington—Lieut. Gen. Miles is considering changes in the uniforms of army officers. The contemplated changes are in the interest of economy and greater adaptability for service, and have been suggested mainly by the requirements of duty on foreign stations.

Duse's Daughter Studying.

Rome—Eleanora Duse's nineteen-year-old daughter, Elisabetta Marchetti, is studying to be a school teacher at Munich. She is said to be the image of her mother.

AN EXTENSIVE ADDITION

Being Made to the Indiana Mineral Springs (Indiana) Hotel

AT AN OUTLAY OF $30,000.

Growth of Enterprise Representing Expenditure of $250,000—Successful Management of H. L. Kramer.

Ten years ago the ground where the magnificent hotel property of the Indiana Mineral Springs Company is located at Indiana Mineral Springs, Indiana was wholly unimproved and almost a wilderness. Now, owing to the discovery of the valuable medicinal qualities of the springs and the healing virtue of the soil itself, together with the enterprise of Major H. L. Kramer, there is located there one of the finest sanitariums in the United States. The natural picturesque surroundings have been made more attractive and the hotel is a model of comfort and elegance.

For the greater accommodation of guests who come in constantly increasing numbers from every section of the United States, arrangements have now been made for the enlargement of the hotel buildings. The contract was let yesterday by Major Kramer for additions that will cause an outlay of over $30,000. The improvements will consist of a new bath house and an addition to the hotel. The addition will be two stories in height and will occupy a ground space 80x160 feet. It provides forty additional guest chambers. The entire addition will be handsomely and elegantly furnished. The bath house, when completed, will be the finest in the United States.

Besides the bath house and the guest chambers there will be on the first floor a dining hall, a music room, a billiard hall, physician's offices and a barber shop. In connection with the bath house there will be ladies and gentlemen's dressing rooms and cooling rooms. The dressing and cooling rooms will be elaborately decorated and the floors will be laid in white tile. In both cooling rooms will be built large ornamental fire places which will be used for heating purposes in addition to the regular steam heating. The work will be entirely completed in 90 days.

The improvement and the entire arrangements of the hotel and grounds are made, keeping in view the artistic effect of the whole, and when the improvements arranged for are completed the hotel and surroundings will be much more attractive than before.

Major Kramer states that a still further addition to the hotel is contemplated, and that plans are now being prepared for an additional structure to contain 150 rooms for guests.

Already a quarter of a million dollars has been expended on the Indiana Mineral Springs enterprise and under the present management greater growth and development in the future is assured.—Attica Daily Ledger.

Courageous.

"Sometimes," said Mr. Blykins, "I am surprised at my own courage."

"Why, you never went to war," answered his wife.

"There are other risks than those of the battle field. Every time I pick up a newspaper I find an article on 'the dangers to our political system,' 'dangers to public morals,' 'danger of eating,' 'dangers that lurk in the atmosphere,' and so on, without end. I tell you it takes a mighty nervy man to go on eating and breathing."—Washington Star.

The Dueber Watch Works, at Canton, O., form the finest and most complete watch plant in the world. The twin factories producing both watch movements and watch cases are devoted exclusively to the manufacture of high-grade watch movements and watch cases. Every resource and every effort is concentrated in the single direction of making watch movements and watch cases as nearly perfect as lies within human power. All common watches are pendant set, and consequently dangerous and unreliable. The Hampden 17 jewel watch is Lever Set and pronounced by all experts as the most reliable and accurate watch on the market. In buying a watch, get the very best you can afford. It will be the cheapest in the end and give the greatest satisfaction. Railroad men, in the nature of their employment, are necessarily good judges of a timekeeper. They will tell you that no watch made equals the "Special Railway 23 Jewel" manufactured by the Hampden Watch Co., Canton, Ohio. Thousands of these watches are the standard in train service, and their accuracy of movement and reliability under all conditions have earned for them the enviable reputation of surpassing all others in the world. The latest production of the Dueber-Hampden factories is the smallest ladies' watch made in America. The name of this unique production is "The Four Hundred." Any lady who is the proud possessor of one of these gems has a thing of utility and beauty not exceeded by anything that money can purchase. The mechanical equipment of the Dueber-Hampden Watch factories is of the finest quality, and its experienced workmen stand without peers in the watch industry. To-day the Dueber-Hampden watch is supreme; and the Dueber-Hampden Works the greatest watch plant in the world. All first-class jewelers keep these goods, demand the Dueber-Hampden watches and accept no substitute.—Irish World, July 7th, 1900.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

James Burke, Minneapolis, Minn., pipe-coupling; Jake Friedlander, Fargo, N. D., manifolding device; Frank Kremer, Duluth, Minn., train anchor; Henry J. Lawrence, Elmore, Minn., expansion drill; Oscar Nygren, Lake City, Minn., check valve; Bengt. Peterson, Dassel, Minn., flue cleaner; Robert Seeger, St. Paul, Minn., vapor burner.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 and 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes.

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N.Y.

Different in the Morning.

Mrs. Ridgely—Come, John, get up. It's 5 o'clock. You said you wanted to get up early this morning and mow the lawn.

Mr. Ridgely (yawning)—Well, I've slept on it, n', changed my min'. Snrich! (Which, being explained, stands for a snore.)—Chicago Times-Herald.

His Last Hope Gone.

"Alas!" sighed the oyster, as he felt himself being conveyed from the plate on the end of the table knife, "alas! this is an end to all my hopes of getting into good society."—What to Eat.

A MAIL CONTRACT

Secured by a Stage Line to Protect the Bullion Carried.

"Until very recent years," said a man who used to live in the west, to the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "there has always been more or less scandal connected with the 'star routes' of the postal service. Star routes are those over which mail is carried by special contract, and the expense of keeping up some of them has certainly been monstrous. In other cases, however, the price paid has been ridiculously low. I remember one route in Nevada where the service was kept up over a distance of about eighty miles for $5 a year, when the actual expense was $25 a trip. How that contract was really made profitable involves a curious little story, which I will tell without mentioning names, because the parties interested still have business relations with the department. The stretch of road to which I refer lay between two pretty lively mining camps, and a stage line plying over it did a very fair business. Among other things it frequently carried bullion, and holdups were of no uncommon occurrence. The rugged, lonely character of the country was peculiarly favorable to that kind of deviltry, and the stage people were at their wits' end to know what to do to stop it. At last they had a bright idea, and put in a bid for carrying the mail, which had been handled by a private contractor, a cart and a mule. They made their bid $5 so as to be certain of getting the job, and then had a heavy, iron-bound compartment constructed in the boot of each of the stages for carrying both the pouches and their regular express matter. To break it open would have taken at least ten or fifteen minutes, and that meant delaying the mails. The Western desperado has a holy horror of running foul of Uncle Sam, because he knows that means relentless hunting down, with all the resources of the government behind the pursuit, and as soon as the stages became mail carriers they ceased to be molested. So the five-dollar contract was really a good business proposition. After the country became more settled it was kept up merely as an advertisement. It gave the line a certain air of stability, like the words 'Government Depository' on the window of a bank."

AGE OF NERVES.

It Is Also an Age of Chatter, Says Lord Russell.

Lord Russell of Killowen says this is an age of chatter and that no one has time to think of anything seriously. Our young men talk of sport, our girls read nothing deeper than illustrated magazines; we speak in jerks; the topics of the day are treated homeopathically. Without doubt there is much in what the lord chief justice of England says, but what would he have us do? This is part of our modern system of life; take out one brick and the entire structure would fall. Of course, it is regrettable in many ways that we live in a mental as well as a physical rush nowadays, but Lord Russell should realize that we cannot be wise, grave, thoughtful and proportionately slow in some things and slappish, time-saving in others. The pace is set for us, and we must needs follow it. Something must suffer as we rush along, and thus we become feather-brained chatterboxes with indifferent manners and a lamentable lack of taste. Our only consolation must be that matters will be worse in a generation or two, unless the wheel comes full circle by that time. Apropos of this modern haste which the lord chief justice deplores, the medical and scientific world is seriously discussing the chances of our descendants retaining their sanity. Nervous diseases are markedly on the increase, even the Eskimos, once wholly free from the diseases and failings of civilization, are developing nervous disorders, owing to increased trading operations and the undue consumption of coffee. In European countries, however, people are outgrowing lunatic asylums. Obviously, therefore, the time has come to go backward a little. If only we could stop telegrams, make it impossible to travel anywhere faster than thirty miles an hour, have the sense to curb our pitiful little social ambitions and live quietly, in the country, if possible, there might be some hope for us; as we cannot, or will not, the only thing to do is trust to luck.

The Million Guinea Fund.

Robert William Perk, member of Parliament for the Louth division of Lancashire, Eng., is the founder of the "1,000,000 guinea" fund for the cause of Methodism. Subscriptions are limited to Methodists of England, Scotland and Wales, and the fund after being raised, will be expended in that territory alone. The basic idea of the fund is that contributions of one guinea shall be made by 1,000,000 people, whose names shall be inscribed on the historic roll of Methodism's British army. The fund is to be raised by the end of this year. It is the purpose of Mr. Perk, who is one of the most radical Methodists of Great Britain, that $1,000,000 of the fund shall go into the educational training of preachers. For chapels, schools and mission halls $1,350,000 is to be expended. The fund is of such magnitude that even the great Thanksgiving fund of the Wesleyans ($1,000,000) in 1860 sinks into insignificance.

Paderewski's Secret.

How any great pianoforte player keeps his hand supple has often been a matter for wonder, but M. Paderewski, the king of pianists, has revealed the whole secret. "The night before I play I turn my hands over to my valet, and he rubs my fingers until they tingle," declares M. Paderewski. "Then he takes one finger after the other and turns and twists it in the palm of his hand, always turning the one way. That makes the fingers supple, and keeps the knuckles in good working order. Last he rubs the palms of each hand very hard—as hard as I can stand it. Just before I go on the platform to play, I have a basin of hot water brought to my dressing room. In this I immerse my hands. Hot! I should say so; just about as hot as it is possible for a man to stand it."—London Tit-Bits.

Use of Weary Waggles.

"What good are you?" asked the farmer, as he found a dusty pilgrim yawning on his hay.

"What good are we?" echoed the knight of the road. "Why, if we didn't smoke butts in farmers' barns dey'd never git insurance money to pay de mortgages off de res' ob de farm."—Chicago News.

The American Working Man.

Much comparison has been made between the endurance of the Chinese and the American working man. Those with authority say that the average working man of America is as superior to the Chinese as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is to any other dyspepsia cure. The Bitters also cures constipation, indigestion and prevents malaria.

A Suspicion.

"Don't you admire the little poem, 'We are Seven?'" inquired the literary girl.

"You mean the one in which the little girl keeps on repeating that phrase every time a question is asked?" inquired the young man, with wide ears.

"Yes."

"Well, to tell you the truth, I never could quite understand it. But I will say this much: That little girl wasn't frank and ingenious in her statements. She was too wise. She was more than seven."—Washington Star.

Are You Using Allen's Foot-Ease?

It is the only cure for Swollen, Smarting, Burning, Sweating Feet, Corns and Bunions. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

A Spoilsport.

"Hello, Hardluck! This isn't really you?"

"Yes. I got out of the hospital only this morning."

"Now, isn't that too confounded bad?"

"Why, why?"

"Because, hang it all! I meant to take half a day off and come to see you this afternoon."—Harper's Bazar.

O—I—C

When a preparation has an advertised reputation that is world-wide, it means that preparation is meritorious. If you go into a store to buy an article that has achieved universal popularity like Cascarets Candy Cathartic for example, you feel it has the endorsement of the world. The judgment of the people is infallible because it is impersonal. The retailer who wants to sell you "something else" in place of the article you ask for, has an ax to grind. Don't it stand to reason? He's trying to sell something that is not what he represents it to be. Why? Because he expects to derive an extra profit out of your credulity. Are you easy? Don't you see through his little game? The man who will try and sell you a substitute for CASCARETS is a fraud. Beware of him! He is trying to steal the honestly earned benefits of a reputation which another business man has paid for, and if his conscience will allow him to go so far, he will go farther. If he cheats his customer in one way, he will in another and it is not safe to do business with him. Beware of the CASCARET substitutor. Remember CASCARETS are never sold in bulk but in metal boxes with the long tailed "C" on every box and each tablet stamped C. C. C.

Great Success.

Friend—You took your son into your establishment some months ago, to teach him the business, I understand. How did it turn out?

Business man (wearily)—Great success. He's teaching me now.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by druggists, price 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Lots of women have dresses they are afraid to wear.

Some articles must be described. White's Yucatan needs no description; it's the real thing.

A rhymster and a poet bear the same relations as a yaller cur and a dog.

Carter's Ink

is so good and so cheap that no family can afford to be without it. Is yours Carter's?

Women live by convention, men in spite of it.

A man is poor, indeed, who is poor in charity.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Probably Adam and Eve began with Platonic friendship.

We eat with our eyes as well as our palate.

When the hair is thin and gray, PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM renews the growth and color.
HINDERCORNS, the best cure for corns. 15cts.

A man has a mind; a woman has a brain.

Lydia E. Pinkham's

Vegetable Compound cures the ills peculiar to women. It tones up their general health, eases down overwrought nerves, cures those awful backaches and regulates menstruation.

It does this because it acts directly on the female organism and makes it healthy, relieving and curing all inflammation and displacements.

Nothing else is just as good and many things that may be suggested are dangerous. This great medicine has a constant record of cure. Thousands of women testify to it. Read their letters constantly appearing in this paper.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY.

Genuine
Carter's
Little Liver Pills.
Must Bear Signature of
Brent Good
See Fac-Simile Wrapper Below.

Very small and as easy to take as sugar.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
FOR HEADACHE.
FOR DIZZINESS.
FOR BILIOUSNESS.
FOR TORPID LIVER.
FOR CONSTIPATION.
FOR SALLOW SKIN.
FOR THE COMPLEXION
Price 25 Cents. Purely Vegetable.
CURE SICK HEADACHE.

EDUCATIONAL.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME,

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.

Classics, Letters, Economics and History, Journalism, Art, Science, Pharmacy, Law, Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, Architecture.

Thorough Preparatory and Commercial Courses. Ecclesiastical students at special rates. Rooms Free. Junior or Senior Year, Collegiate Courses. Rooms to Rent, moderate charges. St. Edward's Hall, for boys under 13. The 57th Year will open September 4th, 1900. Catalogues Free. Address REV. A. MORRISSEY, C. S. C., President.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Cross. Chartered 1855. Thorough English and Classical education. Regular Collegiate Degrees.

In Preparatory Department students carefully prepared for Collegiate course. Physical and Chemical Laboratories well equipped. Conservatory of Music and School of Art. Gymnasium under direction of graduate of Boston Normal School of Gymnastics. Catalogue free. The 45th year opens Sept. 4, 1900. Address,

DIRECTRESS OF THE ACADEMY,
St. Mary's Academy, - Notre Dame, Indiana

SACRED HEART COLLEGE,

WATERTOWN, WISCONSIN.
Branch of Notre Dame University, Indiana.

Thorough Classical, English, Commercial and Preparatory Courses. Terms Moderate. Buildings heated by steam. Home comforts. For further information and catalogues, apply to
REV. J. O'ROURKE, C. S. C., President.

BOOKLETS FREE, SAMPLE BOTTLES BY MAIL 25c
J. & C. MAGUIRE'S EXTRACT
BENNE PLANT
CURES Colic, Cholera Morbus, Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Bowel Complaints—NEVER FAILS! In the market since 1841. Recommended by leading Physicians. Used by our Army and Navy. Sold by all Druggists.
J. & C. MAGUIRE MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Burlington Route

A Map of the United States

A handsome map of the United States, 38 by 48 inches in size, ruled to show the "time divisions" of the country, printed in four colors, and mounted on a roller for hanging up, will be sent to any address on receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS. Postal or Express Money Order or Coin preferred. Apply to
GEO. P. LYMAN, Ass't Gen'l Pass. Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XX | ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1900. | NUMBER 4.

SECOND BATTLE

BRYAN FIRES THE FIRST GUN IN HIS SECOND BATTLE.

His Great Speech at Indianapolis—Republican Imperial Expansion and Asinine Contraction.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Aug. 13, 1900.

The most important political event of the past week was the great speech delivered in Indianapolis by W. J. Bryan on the occasion when he was formally notified of his nomination for the presidency. It was a strong card for the reform parties. Like all of Bryan's speeches it was replete with the lofty sentiments of the highest patriotism. It illustrates as well as any of the many other great speeches by him the clear head and the big heart of the man. He never blunders. During these four years since he became the recognized leader he never has said anything for which he or his friends have had to apologize, or which they might have wished to have left unsaid. Some of the imperialist organs are finding fault with his Indianapolis speech, of course, but it is for what he did not say rather than for what he did say. They pretend to belittle it, but it is causing them much worry just the same. The leading Republican organ of Minnesota has been thrown into a fit by it, and devotes several columns to an effort to show that the speech is of no importance anyhow. The Sioux Falls Daily Press hit the nail squarely on the head when it predicted some days in advance exactly how the speech would be received by the G. O. P. press. This is what the paper says:

"The speech of acceptance of Mr. Bryan is due in a day or two. Then will the distressed Republican editors have something to write about. Alas; it will not be fresh and new, for it is morally certain they will go over the same old story again, finding the same faults and making the same specious criticisms.

"If Mr. Bryan says anything at all about finances these Republican editors will denounce him for "trying to debase the currency" of the banks, etc. They will rave and storm and fume about "impending national disaster" and the like stuff.

"If Mr. Bryan hits the trusts some pretty hard blows these trust defenders will wriggle and squirm and say Bryan is insincere and that he didn't have sense enough to know two years before the trust era began that the trusts would now be in control of the government. They will say the trusts are a good thing, and that anyway the Republican party is the original trust-smashing party.

"If Mr. Bryan bears down heavily on the principles of free government and reminds the people that ours is a nation in which the people are sovereigns, and that it is contrary to the spirit of our institutions for our government to be doing the very things that brought on the revolt which ended in American independence—if Mr. Bryan hits imperialism a few body blows, the imperialist editors will shout in chorus that he has "abandoned" free silver and is fighting a phantom.

"We have no sort of expectation that Bryan will please any of the Hanna editors in his speech of acceptance. Neither will Mr. Stevenson."

On the one hand we have expansion by means of a war of criminal aggression and conquest, and on the other hand we have humiliating contraction for the benefit of Great Britain. The modus vivendi to which Mr. McKinley has consented in the Alaskan boundary dispute makes a magnificent land gift to England. The remarkable explanation offered for the administration by Senator Scott of West Virginia is this:

"Instead of having ceded to Great Britain territory as large as the state of Rhode Island, not one inch has been surrendered to that country. On the other hand, England surrendered to us nineteen-twentieths of the land whose possession had been in dispute."

In plain language this means that the administration has done well by giving England only a part of the territory which she demanded, but to which she had no sort of valid pretension. Instead of complaining we should be grateful to the president for not allowing England to take more than she did.

Governor John Lind is nothing if not prompt to act when occasion demands. There was no unnecessary delay in dealing with the Indian scare some time ago, and neither was there any now in taking measures to protect the people in the northern part of the state who were being terrorized by a gang of lawless circus men. The governor is awake all the time. The people have come to understand thoroughly that he is to be trusted to do his duty without fear or favor, and in the fall they will be glad of the chance to record their wish that he shall serve for two years more.

It was stated in this bulletin last week that Van Sant was a falsifier when in his Minneapolis speech he quoted Mr. Bryan as saying that this country would manufacture no goods for export in the event of McKinley's election. Every person of sense knows without being told that Bryan never could have made such a silly remark. To make assurance doubly sure, however, a St. Paul friend of Mr. Bryan sent him the excerpt in question from Van Sant's speech and received an answer in which Mr. Bryan declares that he has been misquoted by the Republican candidate for governor of this state.

By the way, is Theodore Roosevelt in a position to pose as a shining light in the matter of honesty? He condemns some seven or eight million American voters as guilty of dishonesty because they do not believe in the 200-cent dollar which has been saddled on the people for the benefit of the bondholders. But how about the noisy candidate's own record? The people will remember how he not long ago was caught in an attempt to avoid payment of his taxes. When the assessor came around and wanted him to pay taxes on his personal property in New York, Roosevelt made oath that he was a resident of the District of Columbia, where he was holding down a job as assistant secretary of war. Later he was nominated for governor of New York and some mischievous person made the point that the candidate was not eligible as he was not a resident of the state. Then Roosevelt discovered that he had been mistaken in claiming to have his home in Washington. He rushed around and paid his taxes in order that he might run for the governorship. It will hardly do for him to set himself up as the one great representative of the honest people.

"The expansion of Canadian traffic in the last four years is the greatest in any equal period in the history of the Dominion," is the way the papers announce it. Too bad that the Canadians are shut out from the privilege of endorsing the author of all this prosperity by voting for McKinley.

Prosperity has broken out in a fresh spot in Iowa. Britt will entertain the convention of the "National Association of Tramps." Here is an opportunity for your Uncle "Mark" to tap a barrel in exchange for an official endorsement of the "administration."

The Pioneer Press says, editorially, that the anarchist who assassinated King Humbert was only a student in the same school in which William J. Bryan is a professor. This is entirely in harmony with its other position that the assassin of Goebel is a patriot. Some simple-minded people may not be able to subscribe to either of these doctrines. However, there is no question but that both are of the genuine Republican brand.

Our Republican neighbors across the Wisconsin line have a dose of Hannaism on their hands, quite the equal of the forcing of Sherman out of public life in Ohio, to make room for the great boss. Their well loved Senator Spooner is the victim in this case, and Hanna and McKinley have issued the ukase, that Spooner must go to his political graveyard. It is in order to make room for Henry C. Payne. The whole chapter is a black one, and will be fully aired as the time goes on. This imperialism which makes and unmakes senators as well as carries on wars of conquest, is of the real old-fashioned kind —Caesar's kind.

The schoolmasters this year are for Bryan, scores of able educationalists have declared for him, who bitterly opposed us in 1896. In Indiana there is said to be a regular stampede of faculty professors to the Bryan standard. Carry the news to Prexy Northrup. He should catch on.

Wheat has been rising gradually in the face of the disaster from drouth, and so has silver, without drouth, to the highest point of years. But when normal conditions return the raisers of wheat will continue to be in deadly competition with the wheat raisers of the silver countries. The fact all the time remains that free coinage would relieve our producers from such ruinous competition—from the "50-cent wheat" that is always with us under the Republican-English policy.

There was joy among the Republicans some time ago when their papers were able to report the wonderful news that a "Democratic McKinley club" had been organized in the city of Argentine, Kan. It was nothing but a hoax, of course, but some of the Republicans really took the matter seriously and were exceedingly glad. Here is the story as told by the Argentine Republic:

"It was in the little town of Argentine, Kan., that some politicians got together in a sidewalk conference not long ago and did something which no one else in all the United States had thought of doing—organized a "Democratic" McKinley club.

"With an ex-constable that had been out of office for a year, an old negro ex-slave who had once voted for a Democratic justice of the peace, and four rank Republicans that were never identified with the party of Mr. Bryan, the "Democratic" club was launched with a great deal of noise and bluster by the Republican papers and amid a great deal of mirth and laughter from the people of the little city where the joke was perpetrated.

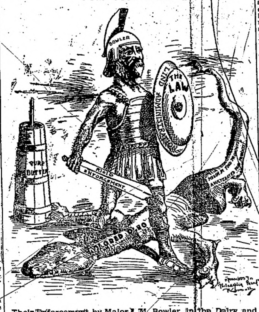
"While the club was new the Republicans of the town rented a hall one night and gave it a christening, where free beer and cigars were dispensed and the members were made to feel that prosperity had really come to Kansas, but this did not last long. The beer ran out, no more cigars were to be had and the joke became stale.

"An effort to get up a second smoker has failed and the club has busted. Another keg of beer might revive it, but so far no one in Argentine cares enough for the influence of its members to put up the necessary amount for the refreshments, and the old negro, the ex-constable and the McKinley "Democrats" are in a deplorable state of disorganization.

"There is in each ward of Argentine a Free Silver Republican club that has a growing and respectable membership, composed of men who never before voted anything but the Republican ticket and who could not be influenced by any other motive than the knowledge that their convictions are right."

P. S.

PURE FOOD LAWS.



Their Enforcement by Major J. M. Bowler, in the Dairy and Food Department.

LIND'S ADMINISTRATION

What the Governor's Departments Are Doing in Discharge of Duty.

Good Work Done by Major Bowler in the Dairy and Food Department.

Review of Labor Commissioner's Department Before McHale Assumed Charge.

Major J. M. Bowler, state dairy and food commissioner, has closed his books for the fiscal year, writes the St. Paul Globe, Aug. 4, and has tabulated a statement for his annual report of the number of convictions secured by the department for violation of pure food laws and the amount in fines collected.

The pure food laws of Minnesota, under which the state department operates, prohibit the sale of adulterated food products of nearly every description, and the department through its seven inspectors has prosecuted nearly 200 cases, that have for the most part resulted in convictions. The department during the fiscal year just closed has secured more convictions than ever before in the history of the commission.

Prosecutions are usually instituted in the municipal courts and upon the presentation of the analysis of the state chemist the minimum fine of $25 is as a rule imposed. In but few instances have larger fines been imposed. The law seeks rather to improve the quality of manufactured food products placed on the Minnesota market than to impose hardship on small dealers.

In all through convictions secured the department collected in fines $5,088, scattered all over the state and representing a large variety of offenses.

Convictions were secured by the department during the year as follows:

Serving oleomargarine without proper sign	79
Selling baking powder not properly labeled	14
Vending watered milk	5
Selling low wine vinegar as pure	10
Cream adulterated with preservatives	2
Imitation honey, adulterated with glucose	3
Renovated and process butter	14
Adulterated lard	19
Skim milk	8
Yeast powder not properly labeled	1
Adulterated milk	4
Adulterated cloves and spices	4
Mixed paint, adulterated and labeled "strictly pure"	1
White lead adulterated, sold as pure	3
Selling milk without a license	1
Adulterated jelly	1
Butter made with unclean milk	1
Total	180

Very few cases brought by the state failed, and less than a dozen dismissals are recorded on the records of the state dairy commissioner's office.

Butter finds a greater amount of substitute than perhaps any other food product that the housewife buys. One incentive for the purchase of oleomargarine is the difference in cost, particularly in winter.

But five farmers were accused of selling watered milk and all of these paid the minimum fine of $25. Considering the large number of dairymen in the state this is a most satisfactory showing, as the department keeps very careful check upon the dairymen, especially in the large cities, where they are required to take out a state license. But firms are accused of putting preservatives in their cream, and they each paid a fine of $25. The nineteen cases of adulterated lard enriched the state's exchequer to the extent of $375. Owing to the question as to the legality of the new baking powder law requiring that the ingredients of the package be plainly printed on the outside, but fourteen cases were prosecuted by Major Bowler, and these for the most part in the cities. However, in the future the law will be dispensed without fear or favor, and the manufacturers of any powder not complying with the law will find their customers in hot water. Eight convictions not included in the table above of milkmen whose cow product did not come up to the prescribed standard in butter fats were of dairymen in the Twin Cities.

THE BUREAU OF LABOR.

The Minnesota Bureau of Labor was created by an act of legislature in 1887 in response to urgent demands by the organized labor of the state. For four years it was conducted in the interest of the working people so far as its then limited means rendered possible. At the end of that time it was more liberally endowed and converted into an auxiliary of the dominant Republican machine and placed in charge of a preacher-politician named L. G. Powers, whose skill in the use of sophistry and display of figures made him as desirable to his masters, the Republican ringleaders, as his self-seeking proclivities and impudent perversion of public means to selfish ends rendered him odious to the general public.

From April, 1891, to January, 1899, seven years and nine months, the state department of labor remained in charge of this servile tool of the corrupt political element in power in the state. The main object of his first term, as is shown by his report for 1891-2 was to meet the then prevailing outcry against the plundering methods of the "wheat ring" and "milling ring," which "rings," together with their servants, at that time constituted the state administration. His task consisted in proving by expert juggling with figures that, although it only cost 19 cents per barrel to manufacture flour, the millers were justified in appropriating, as they did, one-third of the grain as their part for grinding the other two-thirds. He did it by figuring out how much more flour a day's wages would bring in Minnesota in 1891 than it did in New England a hundred years before.

During the following term, or the years 1893 and 1894, the efforts of the Labor Bureau were directed towards quieting the unrest of the farmers of the state, who were being ground down by mortgage holders and money sharks, as the natural result of Republican misrule. In this case it was demonstrated by an enormous amount of figuring that the farmers merely imagined themselves encumbered with mortgages. That the mortgages that seemed to oppress them so seriously were more than offset by the large number of mortgage redemptions recorded in the state for the ten years preceding.

The third term, 1895-6, was devoted exclusively to securing material with which to combat the silver question, the issue on which was fought the presidential campaign of 1896. By a most formidable array of figures it was demonstrated that a single gold brick, to which some Shylock had a string, was far more safe as a basis for a national financial structure than a double standard foundation built of sixteen of silver to each one of gold. It was a difficult task, and required the united efforts of seven men and numerous specials all of two years to accomplish, besides a mint of the people's money.

The fourth and last report, that for the years 1897-8, of this accomplished sophist and juggler with figures is devoted to a review of the remarkable feats accomplished by the Labor Bureau during its clerico-politico administration by L. G. Powers. His masters, however, seeing that no benefit was to be derived by them from this report, refused to appropriate the money for its publication. Hence that document exists in manuscript only and so far as the labor interests of the state are concerned, the Labor Bureau of Minnesota has published nothing concerning the subject since 1894, notwithstanding the thousands of dollars annually paid by the people for the purpose.

Such in brief is the history and career of the Minnesota Bureau of Labor under Republican political manipulation for eight years previous to January, 1899, when a new order of things was inaugurated in the department of labor, as well as in various other state departments, by the reform governor, John Lind. This governor, instead of following the example of his Republican predecessors by appointing as chief of the bureau some political mountebank whose qualifications would subserve some partisan or personal end, placed in charge a man chosen from the ranks of labor by the laboring classes themselves, and surrounded him with assistants competent and anxious to do their duty in carrying on the functions of the Labor Bureau as originally contemplated by those who were instrumental in its creation. All mere theory exploitation was abandoned, and the work of the department systematized and directed along practical lines. A system of keeping a continuous record of the work of the department was introduced. Special efforts were directed towards making a thorough inspection of the factories, workshops, mills and mines of the state, ordering and compelling to be made such changes and improvements as circumstances called for, securing from each establishment reports concerning the sanitary condition, safety in case of fire, means of protection against accidents, besides statements concerning the number of employes, length of working day, how many weeks operated during the year, rate of wages, how often paid, etc. And the fact that during the first eighteen months of the present administration 6,160 such reports were secured, recorded and placed on file for tabulating purposes, indicates that the work was zealously prosecuted. These inspections also involved the issuing of, and compelling compliance with, over 500 orders for the improvement of conditions surrounding laboring people, including, among other things, the erection of at least twenty fire escapes on factory and workshop buildings, in many of which working people had for years been huddled together without means of escape in case of fire.

The manner in which the laws regulating the employment of children had been enforced was shown by the fact that, with one solitary exception, every child employing establishment in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth was found upon inspection to be violating every provision of said law, and, in the majority of cases, to be wholly ignorant of the existence of any law at all on the subject. In the above named cities alone about 300 children were found to be thus illegally employed. In view of such a state of affairs it was deemed necessary first to instruct the parties concerned as to the requirements of the law and insist upon compliance therewith, and then on subsequent inspections resort to the courts in cases of wilful violations. The result has been a marked improvement, though it necessarily required several arrests and convictions to convince the employers of children that the department was in earnest in this matter.

The collection of material for statistics has progressed simultaneously with factory inspection and law enforcement. The field or organized labor has been fully canvassed with a view to ascertain the number, strength and general status of labor unions in the state. Particular attention has been given to the wage question, to mining statistics, and to data concerning the mining, logging and lumber industries —important and interesting subjects which have heretofore been ignored by the manipulators of the Labor Bureau. Why these subjects, relating to the greatest industrial interests of the state, should have been totally ignored by the Labor Bureau during the eight years it was in charge of the Republican ringleaders' preacher-politician, is not difficult to explain when it is considered that it was more important for party success to devote the efforts of the bureau to furnishing eastern and foreign money lenders with statistics concerning Minnesota mortgages and redemptions, than to show the industrial development of the state; more conducive to personal and partisan gain to confuse the people with bombastic discourses and distracting tables on the purchasing power of gold in all lands and ages than to enlighten them on the condition of labor in the state of Minnesota. These subjects were ignored because it would have been contrary to Republican policy to have shown, as investigations now show, that Minnesota has an organized body of skilled laborers numbering 18,000 to 20,000 men to hold organized greed within certain bounds; and it would have been contrary to said policy to have gone into mining statistics sufficiently to have shown that while the laborers who do the mining receive from 10 to 15 per cent. of the results, transportation companies receive from 50 to 60 per cent., thereby effectually monopolizing the mining business in the hands of those who own or control the transportation facilities in conjunction with the mines. It might also have been unwise, from a Republican standpoint, to have shown, as will now be shown, that an army of from 15,000 to 20,000 men are occupied every winter in chopping down the pine forests of Minnesota, removing from one to one and a half billion feet of logs every season; it might have raised the question as to whose pine it is that the lumber barons have for a generation or more been removing, and it might have suggested a desire in the public mind to institute a comparison between the cost of the raw material, the cost of labor and the selling prices of lumber. And it certainly would have been disastrous to the Republican party to have gone into the wage question sufficiently to have shown, as do the statistics now in hand, that the weekly wages of nearly one-half of the employes in the various industries of the state are less than $10, and that only about 15 per cent of the whole number employed receive over $15 per week, while more than 15 per cent. receive less than $7.00 per week.

John E. Kennedy of Oshawa called at this office yesterday and made the statement that he bought prison twine last February and at 10 cts. per pound and was very well pleased with it, in fact the best he had ever used, and did not break or miss a bundle. He also said that at the time he placed his order, a local agent was present and wanted 12½ cts. per pound.

Another centenarian who made the retreat from Moscow with Napoleon has died in Chicago. But what's the use of speaking of the Moscow affair, when in the spring we shall have the McKinley move out from the White House?

BRYAN IS NOTIFIED

FORMAL CEREMONY OCCURS AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Made the Occasion of a Popular Demonstration—Marks the Beginning of the Democratic National Campaign—Stevenson Is Also Informed of His Nomination—Mr. Bryan in His Speech Promised, if Elected, to Convene Congress Immediately to Remedy the Philippine Situation.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 9.—Hon. W. J. Bryan and Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson were yesterday in this city officially and formally notified of their nominations by the Democras at their recent Kansas City convention to the offices respectively of president and vice president of the United States. The ceremony was made the occasion of a popular demonstration, and with it the Democrats may be fairly said to have begun their national campaign. The notification occurred in the military park, a beautifully shaded tract of ground in the center of the city. The park contains probably thirty acres of ground, and it was well Covered With People.

The ceremony was preceded by a parade through the principal streets of the city, which was participated in by a number of visiting and local Democratic clubs. These acted as an escort to the notification party, and the cavalcade was an imposing one. The meeting began a few minutes after 3 o'clock and concluded at 5:40. In this period of time five speeches were made. Mayor Taggart added a welcoming address to the two notification speeches of Representatives Richardson and Thomas and the responses made by Mr. Bryan and Mr. Stevenson. The meeting was called to order in a brief speech of welcome by Mayor Thomas Taggart of this city, who concluded his remarks by introducing Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas.

Senator Jones Presides.

Senator Jones made no speech upon taking the chair, but confined his remarks to the simple introduction of the speakers to the audience. Mr. Richardson, to whose lot as permanent chairman of the national convention fell the duty of notifying Mr. Bryan of his nomination, made the first of the notification addresses. Probably no man ever made an important speech under greater difficulties than those which beset Mr. Richardson, but he acquitted himself creditably under the circumstances. He arose to face a Sea of Upturned Faces.

The sun was throwing its rays directly upon many of them, and besides they were there to hear Mr. Bryan. There were loud cries of "Cut it short," "Give Bryan a chance," "We can't stand it here," and other signs of impatience. For a time Mr. Richardson did not appear perturbed by this clamor, but when there appeared to be real danger of serious results he brought his remarks to a somewhat precipitate close, speaking for only fifteen minutes. Notwithstanding the general confusion Mr. Richardson was applauded in many places, and especially so when he referred to the "Sulu slavery and oriental harems" included in the Philippine acquisition.

Mr. Bryan Introduced.

There was an immediate change of deportment on the part of the crowd when Mr. Bryan arose. He was introduced at 3:20 by Chairman Jones, and as if ordered for the occasion, a light breeze sprang up, which evidently had the effect of bringing some relief to the overheated and much crowded mass of people. Mr. Bryan read his speech, departing not from his manuscript except in a word of explanation at the beginning of his address. The Democratic leader never appeared to better advantage. His face was slightly flushed but his eye was clear and calm and his voice was never more completely at his command. Apparently

No Strong Point Was Lost

to any one present. Among the sentiments of the speech which were applauded with especial zest were those declaring that under existing circumstances "we dare not educate the Filipinos lest they learn to read the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States; that he would never agree to exchange the glory of this country for that of all the empires; that "it is not necessary to own a people in order to trade with them," and that the command "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel" has no gatling gun attachment. There was also general cheering over the promise to

Convene Congress Immediately

to remedy the Philippine situation if elected. This declaration was as follows:

"If elected, I shall convene congress in extraordinary session as soon as I am inaugurated, and recommend an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose—first, to establish a stable form of government in the Philippine islands, just as we are now establishing a stable government in the island of Cuba; second, to give independence to the Filipinos, just as we have promised to give independence to the Cubans; third, to protect the Filipinos from outside interference while they work out their destiny, just as we have protected the republics of Central and South America, and are, by the Monroe doctrine, pledged to protect Cuba."

But no part of the address received the

Earnest Commendation

that was bestowed upon the peroration. This called out an outburst that was both tumultuous and prolonged. Mr. Bryan concluded at 4:40, and was promptly followed by Gov. C. S. Thomas of Colorado, who introduced Mr. Stevenson. Mr. Thomas spoke for only ten minutes, but he made a very effective speech. He received very general attention and was given frequent and generous applause. Mr. Stevenson was apparently slightly nervous as for him to take the stand, but he soon gained confidence as he proceeded. Mr. Bryan lead the liberal applause which greeted the appearance of his fellow candidate as he advanced to the front, and many points of the speech were liberally punctured by a repetition of applause as the speech proceeded. He read from his manuscript, but held the majority of his audience to the end. Mr. Stevenson closed amid liberal applause at 5:40 o'clock, and Senator Jones immediately declared the meeting adjourned sine die.

The Time Approached

ATLAS ELEVATOR BURNED.

Loss to Building and Contents About $5,000.

Redwood Falls, Minn., Aug. 9.—The elevator of the Atlas Elevator Company of Minneapolis, in which the Van Dusen interests are quite heavy, and located on the Northwestern tracks in this city, was burned yesterday. The fire was of incendiary origin. It was with difficulty that the fire department kept the flames from communicating to adjoining elevators and coal sheds, an din order to make the work more effective the firebug had placed large stones in two hydrants near the elevator and clogged up the nozzles of two sets of hose. The elevator had about 1,000 or more bushels of wheat. An empty Northwestern car standing on the south side of the building was destroyed by the flames. The loss is about $5,000. This is the fourth Van Dusen elevator destroyed at this place since 1894, and each one was the work of a firebug, who seems to have an insane prejudice against the Van Dusen interests.

FIRE IN A MINE.

No Lives Lost but Miners Have a Close Call.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 9.—The shaft house of the Parrott mine was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, entailing a loss of $100,000, upon which there is about $30,000 insurance. The fire started in the carpenter shop of the mine and the flames were soon communicated to the shaft house adjoining. Before warning could be gotten to the miners working below the fire had complete possession of the shaft. The mine is 1,600 feet deep and employs about 200 men on a shift. These miners were rescued through the levels of an adjoining mine. No lives were lost, though several of the men engaged in fighting the flames were seriously burned.

Two Men Seriously Injured.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 9.—Carl Sales and George Pierce were crossing a small bridge three miles west of West Salem yesterday afternoon with a traction engine and separator. The bridge collapsed and both men were caught between the machines. Pierce's back was broken and he will die. Sales had a leg broken and was otherwise injured.

Overlooked Much Cash.

Dickinson, N. D., Aug. 9.—Highwaymen entered the postoffice building at New England and robbed the till of $70. In their haste they overlooked $500 in cash and checks contained in the safe. Deputy postmaster Noble was confronted with a big gun and walked out some distance from town, where the two robbers left him and rode away.

Drowned While Bathing.

Winona, Minn., Aug. 9.—William Lueck, a fourteen-year-old boy, was drowned in a creek near this city. He was in bathing with a companion and got into a hole beyond his depth. His companion summoned aid and the body was taken out after it had been in the water only a few minutes.

An Old Resident Dead.

Belle Plaine, Minn., Aug. 9.—William Fitzgerald, a prominent business man of this place, died of lung trouble. He was town clerk for twenty-five years and treasurer of the Hibernian Insurance for twelve years. He was also a prominent member of the Foresters.

Indian Arrested for Murder.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 9.—W. G. Porter, assistant United States attorney, whose headquarters are in this city, has been notified of the arrest at Pine Ridge agency of Clayton High Wolf, a Sioux belonging to that agency, on the charge of murder.

Yellowstone Park Fires Quenched.

Mammoth Hot Springs, Wyo., Aug. 9.—Reports received from the vicinity of Shoshone Lake are that the fires have been put out by a soaking rain, and investigation shows that the loss is not serious and that travel has not been inconvenienced.

Sawmills Will Close Down.

Winona, Minn., Aug. 9.—Unless there is a sudden rise in the river all the saw mills in this city will be compelled to close to-night, as they have only enough logs to last them until then. This means that 1,500 men will be out of employment.

Electrical Storm.

Devils Lake, N. D., Aug. 9.—The greatest electrical storm for years passed over this whole section of North Dakota. Lightning and thunder were almost incessant for an hour or more. No damage done. Rain fell in abundance.

Another Farmer Takes His Life.

Cooperstown, N. D., Aug. 9.—James Saunders, a young unmarried farmer living ten miles southeast of here, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself in the forehead with a revolver. Reason for the act is unknown.

Elevator Fire.

Redwood Falls, Minn., Aug. 9.—The elevator of the Atlas Elevator company located at this place, was totally consumed by fire. Twelve thousand bushels of wheat were also burned. Loss, $10,000.

Found Dead in a Granary.

Cooperstown, N. D., Aug. 9.—James Saunders, a farmer living southeast of town, was found dead on the Myers farm Tuesday morning with a bullet hole in his forehead. It is thought he committed suicide.

Died From Injuries.

St. James, Minn., Aug. 9.—A six-year-old son of John Brabender was accidentally shot by a playmate and died in a few hours.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED
ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"
Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured.
Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE
TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE
INSURANCE
DO
YOU
NEED
SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound..........5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound..........15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.....20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.
LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year: four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn, as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

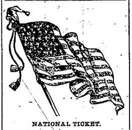
SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

ADVERTISING rates will be made known on application and are very reasonable.

REMITTANCES should be made on postal notes postoffice or express orders. Short time subscriptions in two cent stamps.

CORRESPONDENCE from all points in the vicinity of St. Hilaire desired. Make communications concise, writing upon only one side of the paper.

WEDNESDAY, AUG., 15, 1900.



NATIONAL TICKET.

For President—
WILLIAM J. BRYAN,
of Nebraska.
For Vice-President—
ADLAI E. STEVENSON,
of Illinois.

For Congressman 7th District—
M. J. DALY.

A Salty Tale.

The old saying that the way to catch a bird is to put salt on its tail has been verified by little Jimmy Delew, who lives in Naudain street. Jimmy was sent by his grandmother for two bags of salt for some domestic operation already in progress. After an hour's absence he returned in a high state of excitement, crying, "I've got the bird!" Sure enough, he had a sparrow clutched tightly in his fist. "But where's the salt?" asked his grandmother. "Oh, the salt!" said Jimmy. "Why, that's around the corner in the middle of the street."

Investigation showed that the boy, returning from his errand, saw some sparrows on the car track. He opened one bag and poured out the contents, which the birds proceeded to investigate. Then he threw the contents of the other bag on top of the sparrows, submerging them sufficiently to capture one before it could extricate itself from the avalanche of salt.—Philadelphia Record.

The Latin Quarter.

Thackeray said of the Quartier Latin; the noted art district of Paris: "The life of the young artist here is the easiest, merriest, dirtiest existence possible. He comes to Paris probably at 16 from his province, his parents settle £40 a year on him and pay his master, he establishes himself in the Pays Latin, he arrives at his atelier at a tolerably early hour and labors among a score of companions as merry and as poor as himself." The students' quarter is located south of the Seine, where the principal colleges and schools have been situated for many centuries and where numerous students have lived.

Very Different.

A man may stand on a sinking ship at sea or plunge through the vortex of destruction upon the field of battle and still be self possessed, but it's different with him when he finds that he has been sitting on fresh paint.—Chicago Times-Herald.

The greatest of all human benefits that, at least, without which no other benefit can be truly enjoyed, is independence.—Parke Godwin.

We find it hard to love those we measure ourselves against—especially if the pattern is a little large.—H. A. Kendall.

MRS. OLIPHANT'S LAST VERSES.

[Dictated on June 21, 1897.]

On the edge of the world I lie, I lie,
Happy and dying and dazed and poor,
Looking up from the vast great floor
Of the infinite world that rises above
To God and to faith and to love, love, love!
What words have I to that world to speak,
Old and weary and dazed and weak,
From the very low to the very high?
Only this, and this is all:
From the fresh green soil to the wide blue sky,
From greatness to weariness, life to death,
One God have we on whom to call,
One great bond from which none can fall;
Love below, which is life and breath,
And Love above, which surthineth all.

Not to Be Discouraged.

"Polite society" is often at its wits' end to devise means of getting rid of people who are not wanted as callers or visitors, but who will not take a hint, for polite society cannot say in so many words, "I do not want you to come again." A French paper repeats this dialogue between two ladies:

"And so you still receive that dreadful Mme. Comeagain?"

"Impossible to get her to take a hint! Do you know, the last time she called I never offered her a chair!"

"And what was the result?"

"Result? Why, the next time she came she brought a folding camp stool!"

By a Modern Æsop.

In the days when Children understood the language of Everything a Boy was telling his Troubles to the Eggs.

"They always Beat me," he Complained, "unless I am Good."

"They will not beat us," observed the Eggs, "unless we are Good."

Moral.—There must be some Mistake in those Jokes about Omelets.—Baltimore American.

Where He Didn't Study.

"My gracious!" cried the sympathetic girl. "Your dog seems half starved. He looks as if he hadn't had anything to eat for a week."

"Neither he has, poor fellow!" replied the college student. "I forgot all about him."

"Why, where was he?"

"Locked up in my study room!"—Philadelphia Record.

NEWSPAPER SCOOPS.

THE BANE AND THE NIGHTMARE OF A JOURNALIST'S LIFE.

What a "Beat" Means to the Man With a "Nose For News"—The Peculiarities of Securing Inside News by Washington Correspondents.

They were all newspaper men, and they were all so united on the proposition under consideration that they did not interrupt the man who was doing the talking.

"Scoops," said the sharp nosed reporter to the others, "are the bane and the nightmare of a newspaper man's life, from the proprietor and managing editor down to the Maltese office cat. Many a man occupies a 'desk' today because of a good 'beat,' and many another man is engaged in a more humble occupation because he failed to see one. Scoops constitute the seesaw of journalistic life.

"A newspaper man is as touchy on this subject as a woman on her back hair; justly so, because a standard is formed by which his journalistic talents are largely rated and his salary in accordance. If the city editor asks him too often why he 'didn't get it,' he finally 'gets it' where the fowl gets the ax, and a new man appears on his former assignment.

"Editors, however, are usually considerate with a good man, for the latter will scoop his rival as often as he himself is scooped—perhaps oftener—and it thus evens itself up. Sometimes, however, the wielder of the blue pencil has an attack of acute indigestion, like the rest of us, and things are apt to be unpleasant.

"A good, big 'beat' fills the entire office with hilarious joy, and particularly the lucky reporter rejoices. It ofttimes means an increase in salary. The office of the chief rival contemporary is thrown into corresponding gloom.

"The city editor is the adjutant general of the force. Usually he is as considerate as his duty to the proprietor permits. Nearly all are graduates from the ranks. Where the magazine 'newspaper story' writer finds the city editor he usually portrays has always been a deep, dull mystery to me. He may treat outsiders (to be kind to the magazine story writer) as their 'stories' sometimes relate, but to his force he does not carry a drawn sword in his left hand and a pen dipped in redhot caustic in his right. He knows that of the men under him many are his peers, capable of taking his desk at a moment's notice and running it as well as he.

"The now you have it and now you haven't it in our profession is well illustrated by a little occurrence that happened in Washington a few years ago, and it proves the element of luck in the matter of securing news.

"It was undecided whether congress would pass as read a certain very important national measure. The New York papers were especially 'anxious' about it. The drift of opinion among the correspondents was that it would not so pass. On Monday night, say, the correspondent of one of the metropolitan morning dailies wired his paper that it positively would not go through. This paper had been 'talking that end' of the bill all along.

"The correspondent of a rival morning paper had drawn the same conclusions from his day's investigations at the capitol. He was on his way down the west marble steps when he met a member to whose opinion on the probable fate of the bill he attached great weight. The member declared that the bill would positively be passed, unamended and unchanged, at the opening of the session the following day.

"The correspondent cast his own contrary opinions and those of the members he had interviewed to the winds. He wired that night that the bill would certainly pass the following day. It did. Its passage was a surprise to the country.

"Before night the other correspondent was 'relieved' of his position by telegraph. One made a bold hazard against his own judgment, took that of another and won. The other conscientiously obeyed the dictates of his conclusions, based largely upon the opinions of men who were in a position to advise him correctly, and lost.

"This case also illustrates the peculiarity of securing news by Washington correspondents. It is sui generis. Rules which obtain in other cities are impracticable here. Most of the correspondents are picked men, who earn and command good salaries. But one of their most important functions is to make acquaintances with men in official and congressional life. It is an important element in his profession to know who to 'see' about a piece of news, and the little interview in question between the correspondent and the congressman on the west steps is but an example of everyday episodes in the life of a Washington correspondent."—Washington Star.

Change For Both.

"You need a change," said the doctor. "I think you should take a trip to Europe."

"Well, doctor," said the man with a large and expensive family, "you need a change, too, I'm thinking."

"Really?"

"Yes. You want to change your mind."—Philadelphia Press.

Agreed.

The Mistress—Bridget, you must stay until I get another girl.

Bridget—That was my intenshun, anyway. I want her to know the koind ov a woman ye are!—Harper's Bazar.

Solomon was the wisest of men. He knew enough to cut his copy up into short paragraphs. In that way he succeeded in getting his writings read.—Boston Transcript.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

IN THE STORM.

My child, your hero may not be,
In truth, a hero all the time;
Remember, it must chance that he
Shall still have rugged steeps to climb.
Don't place him on too high a plane
In fancy; then he will not fall
In your esteem and may attain
To something noble after all.

My boy, don't think your sweetheart bears
A halo on her golden hair;
A crown of purity she wears,
And you must help to keep it there.
But she will have her trying moods
And be not always kind and sweet;
These are life's nerving interludes—
Sad pitfalls for unwary feet.

You both are far from perfect yet,
And quarrels will, unhaply, come;
Both may be wrong; so don't forget,
In anger's blind delirium,
That sweet concessions each must make
And tender promises renew
Or else a loving heart may break
And sorrow come to dwell with you.
—Pearson's Weekly.

TRICK OF A WOMAN SHARPER

She Found a Lace Handkerchief and Quickly Turned It Into Cash.

"I lost a $3 lace handkerchief today, but I learned one of the tricks of the light fingered people in Chicago," remarked a North Side woman as she came back from a shopping excursion.

"Was it worth $3?" asked her husband.

"Hardly, but it's interesting. I bought a lace handkerchief, and as I walked to the car I stopped to buy a newspaper. I had my purse in my hand and a number of things, of course, and I laid the parcel containing the handkerchief and the check for it down on the corner of a fruit stand near by. After I got to the car I thought of my package. I hurried back, and the package wasn't there.

"'Where is the little package I left here?' I asked the Italian vender.

"'Zatta litt' pape?'

"'Yes.'

"'Other lady took it.'

"I wanted that handkerchief especially to give to a friend for a birthday present. I went to the store again and picked out another handkerchief.

"'I am sorry the first one didn't suit you,' the clerk said.

"'Why, I lost it!' I replied in astonishment.

"'You don't say so!' said the clerk. 'Why, about ten minutes ago a nice looking woman came in here with that handkerchief, and we took it back and refunded the money. She said that you were her niece and that you were out shopping together. You decided the handkerchief was not just what you wanted, and she came back to return it. We gave her a ticket for the $3, and she cashed it.'"—Chicago Inter Ocean.

QUEER EFFECTS OF WHIMS.

Men Who Could Dress Well on Money Wasted For Cigars.

"It's a curious thing how some people will sacrifice themselves to their whims," said a man who prides himself upon his study of human nature. "I don't mean wealthy people, for they can usually afford to do as they like. I am speaking now of people in moderate or less than moderate circumstances. I have in mind a young man whose tastes run to expensive neckwear. He wouldn't think of wearing a tie that costs less than $2, and he has stacks of them. Now, he can't afford this luxury, so he has to stint himself by wearing $3 shoes and $15 ready made suits. He doesn't realize the incongruity of his attire and is perfectly happy if his tie is all right.

"Another chap I know doesn't pay the slightest attention to his personal appearance and is usually rather frayed looking. That's because he spends his money on expensive cigarettes. He smokes only the highest priced imported Egyptian brand, and they cost him 4 cents apiece. He is a fiend and smokes probably 40 a day. You could not hire him to smoke a domestic cigarette which costs half a cent, yet if he did he could afford to dress himself as he should. I could cite numerous instances of this tendency to one extravagance which have come under my personal observation. I can only explain it as a lack of mental balance."—Philadelphia Record.

Washington Church Kodak Fiends.

"The story that a Washington woman sent notices to the ministers of the capital of the opening of her summer home with the request that they be read from the pulpit may be a libel, although I have been told that it is a fact," said a man who has been in Washington for several months, "but I'll tell you what I have seen there—men and women carrying kodaks into their pews on Sunday. No; not to take a snap shot of the minister, but the Washington kodak fiend stops on his way to church to make shots, and after the service he lingers on his way home to do likewise. There is no other place in the country where the kodak fiend is so insatiate as he is in the capital."—New York Sun.

Peculiar Problem.

Subtract 45 from 45 and have 45 left. It can be done, strange to say. Here is the method: Put down the numerals 1 to 9 in a row in reverse order; underneath place the same numerals in regular order. The sum of the figures in each row is 45; subtract the lower row from the upper:

987654321=45
123456789=45

864197532=45

The sum of the third row of figures is also 45. Thus you have taken 45 from 45 and have 45 as a remainder.

If a census of the colored people were to be taken, we would find that there are few black-Smiths among them.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The metal in the big bell of Moscow weighs nearly 200 tons and is valued at several thousand pounds.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 21 1900.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on September 18th 1900, viz: Levant G. Rice, H. E. 19760, for the se¼ nw¼ and ne¼ sw¼ sec. 32, twp. 153 N, range 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:—Halva Hulvason, Hans Frederickson, George German, of Thief River Falls, Minn., and Louis Hendrickson of St. Hilaire, Minn.

52-5. SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give FARM, STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.35.

NOTICE.

Department of the Interior.
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota.

PUBLIC SALE.—ISOLATED TRACT.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office under authority in him vested by section 2455 U. S. R. S., as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895 (28 Stat., 687) we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 1st day of September 1900, at ten o'clock a. m., the following tract of land to-wit:

SE¼ NE¼ Sec. 1, T. 151 N., R. 43 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the said sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated July 20th, 1900.

SYLVESTER PETERSON,
Mscl. App. No. 296—3161. Register.
52-5

Order for Hearing and Notice of Application for Appointment of Administrator.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Red Lake. } ss In Probate Court. Special Term, August 10th A. D. 1900.

In the matter of the estate of Philip L. Weber, deceased:

On receiving and filing the Petition of K. O. Gigstad of the village of St. Hilaire and county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, representing, among other things, that Philip L. Weber late of the town of Hemet, county of Riverside and State of California on the sixth day of August A. D. 1898 at the town of Hemet in the county of Riverside and State of California died intestate, and being a resident of said Riverside county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a creditor of said deceased and praying that administration of said estate be to K. O. Gigstad granted:

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before this Court, on Monday the 17th day of September A. D. 1900 at ten o'clock A. M. at the probate office in said county.

Ordered Further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the St. Hilaire Spectator a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire in the said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 10th day of August A. D. 1900.

By the Court,
[SEAL] JOHN T. KNIGHT,
3-6 Judge of Probate.

—Screen doors and windows made to order at I. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

$22.50
will buy
$1,000
Fire Insurance For 5
YEARS.
On Your Farm Buildings in a Reliable Company.
Call on
H. E. IVES.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.
—o—
Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.
Razors honed and put in first-class order.
J. H. PENNO, Prop.
ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

—Every farmer who writes a letter occasionally should get envelopes with his name and address printed in the corner. We will furnish 100 of the best quality printed in any style for the small sum of 75 cts. Send in your order

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC
YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
RUNS
THROUGH CARS
TO
ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG
To HELENA
BUTTE
SPOKANE
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND
PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U.S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U.S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

20,000 Acres

Of Wild and Improved Lands for sale in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

Prairie Lands,
Speculators Lands,
Timber Lands.

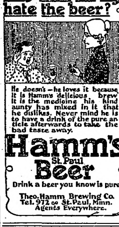
HIMLE LAND & LOAN COMPANY,
Purchasers of N. P. Ry. Co. lands in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

Call on or address
FRED G. WELLS, Local Mgr.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

$150,000 to Loan on Farm Lands.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.
LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.
ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.



Why does the boy hate the beer?

He doesn't—he loves it because it is Hamm's delicious brew. It is the medicine his kind aunty has mixed in it that he dislikes. Never mind he is to have a drink of the pure article afterwards to take the bad taste away.

Hamm's St. Paul Beer
Drink a beer you know is pure.
Theo. Hamm Brewing Co.
Tel. 972 co St. Paul, Minn.
Agents Everywhere.

UNCLE SAM
Is not
In the Shoe
Business,
And Neither
Am I,
But I can
Interest
You in
CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

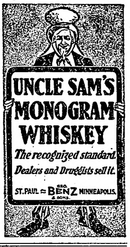
J.B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to THE SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.



UNCLE SAM'S
MONOGRAM WHISKEY
The recognized standard.
Dealers and Druggists sell it.
ST. PAUL GEO. BENZ & SONS. MINNEAPOLIS.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route

Electric Light in Every Berth

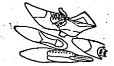
A special feature of the Burglington's Chicago Limited. When you retire, turn on the light. After you are comfortably ensconced between the sheets, you can read by it. When you are sleepy, a twist of the wrist—and the light's out. Leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m., St. Paul 8:05 p. m., daily. Arrives Chicago 9:25 next morning. Scenic Day Express leaves Minneapolis 7:40 a. m., St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday, arriving Chicago same evening. Ask your home agent for tickets via this line.

P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. Agent, CHICAGO, ILL.
GEO. P. LYMAM, Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent ST. PAUL, MINN.

Cigars.

J. B. SENATE
DEALER IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.
(Brink Bros. Old Stand) St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.



NEW MEAT MARKET.
L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

It's Time

Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
O. F. Post, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3550.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. G.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Mrs. L. Lacoursiere, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant
T. J. Thorkelson
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario.
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes
Alex Patnode	Gervias	Red Lake Falls

The Ideal
Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS.
PROMPT SERVICE.
OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd STORE
(Second Hand Store.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
St. Hilaire, Minnesota

New Restaurant
[Brink Bros. Corner Building.]
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.

If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
O. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the Spectator. Official county and village paper.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.64½	Oats	.19
Wheat No. 2	.62½	Barley	.28
Wheat No. 3	.58½	Flax	.122
Eggs (per doz).	9	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

Wild plums are very plentiful this year.

The fall term of school commences September 4th.

—For screen doors and windows go to I. Dahleen's.

Ole Wiste of Hallock is here visiting his parents.

The roads are in a horrible shape at the present time.

S. A. Swanson was up from the county seat yesterday.

Most of the farmers will finish cutting grain this week.

Chas. Rapp made a flying trip to the upper Falls yesterday.

Attorney Richardson was down from the upper Falls Monday.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

Erick Hanson is still wrestling with an attack of typhoid fever.

Take in the first-class entertainment at the M. E. church to-night.

A crew of river drivers came up from Red Lake Falls Monday.

E. J. Brink and Al Lehman spent yesterday at Thief River Falls.

Will Olson made a trip to Detroit last week to consult a specialist.

The dance given at Hotel Markham last Friday night was well attended.

Dr. Francis of Thief River Falls was here on a professional visit Saturday.

A bicycle isnt any better then a sled for getting over the country just now.

Mrs. Dr. Blomburgh drove out to Garnes Saturday on a visit to relatives.

The heavy rains of the past week put out all the bog fires on the reservation.

W. Lemieux and Joe Paradis of Red Lake Falls were here between trains yesterday.

Frank Juliot, the Crookston harpist furnished the music for the dance last Friday night.

Mowing weeds in pastures before they mature seed makes cleaner pastures next year.

Editor Nordby of Ada was here between trains Monday enroute to Red Lake Falls on business matters.

J. B. Armstrong the Red Lake Falls cigar manufacturer was here the first of the week interviewing the trade.

Peter Hall is at the Riverside hospital, Crookston, where he is being treated for a case of typhoid fever.

Mr. Taylor of Glenwood was here the first part of the week adjusting the loss done by the recent hail storm.

The wheat fields have been dead ripe for nearly a week but in many places its impossible to get a binder into the field.

The St. Hilaire Lumber Company expect to have their new dam five miles up river completed by the end of this week.

Farmers located on sandy soil are warned to plow all stuble fields this fall so the grasshopper eggs can be killed.

Miss Henrietta Zaiser leaves to-day for her home at Red Lake Falls after spending a few days with the Hannay family.

I. G. Idzorek, traveling agent for the Wis. Minn. & Pacific Ry. Company of Minneapolis was in town a short time Monday.

A couple of youths made a trip to Thief River the first of the week—missed the train and walked home—tired boys.

Gus. Fellman and Joel Owens, both who were tossed around by the windstorm of the 4th inst. are down with the mumps.

A few electric belts were sold last evening at a dollar per by a stranger that knew how to draw a crowd in front of the bank.

Marshal Johnson arrested a man yesterday as he was about to take the train south, for jumping a board bill at Thief River Falls.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

About half a dozen of St. Hilairites will join the Red Men when they institute at Thief River Falls, either Friday or next Monday.

H. E. Mussey, ex-editor of the Thief River Falls Press passed through here Monday on an extended visit to his old home in Michigan.

Died: The youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson last Sauturday of summer complaint. The child was about 18 months old.

C. C. Bergan of Fargo, N. Dak., the man who bought the Stroberg farm came up to-day and is busy moving his property to his farm.

Our graveled streets have stood the test and the more it rains the better they get. Better sell the grader and invest the proceeds in gravel.

Banker Hannay will leave to-day for Cass Lake where he will spend his two weeks vacation fishing and camping at that beautiful summer resort.

How many dogs are there in this village running at large without a license? Enforce the law or do away with the ordinance relating to dogs.

—The Himle Land and Loan Co., will loan money on farm lands at legal rate, no commission, call on or address, Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Chelin went to Crookston last week and had their little daughter's throat operated upon by Dr. Morley the eye ear and throat specialist.

The Clulow Concert Company will give a first-class entertainment in the M. E. church to-night. Admission 15 and 25 cents. You can not afford to miss it.

Ernest Ruck is again holding down the position of "setter" on the night shift at the mill. Ernie is an old stand by for this Company—this being his third year.

On account of the ill health of Manager Cohn, the Greatwestern Clothing house in this village decided to abandon this field and shipped the goods back to Minneapolis.

The grain that is being cut this week is shelling out somewhere in the neighborhood of three bushels per acre—over ripe and very large, plump and heavy the cause.

The night crew at the mill went to work again Monday, as the Company find they have sufficient logs on hand to keep the night and day shift going until freezing up time.

M. Rosenberg of Crookston came up Monday to wind up the affairs of the Greatwestern Clothing House—the goods being packed up and shipped to Minneapolis on that day.

The new sidewalk of three blocks long on Minnesota avenue is now completed and the people living in that neighborhood will dispense with walking throught the mud—such as it has been for the past ten days.

Word has been sent out from state republican headquarters to headquarters of every district to see that no one but republicans be elected to the legislature as every vote is needed to elect a U. S. senator. Now lets see you elect them!

At Frost, Minn., a young man was "adopted" as a member of the local Modern Woodman camp. The next day he went out on the streets and gave to all his acquaintances the secret work of the order. He was "called down" promptly, but excused himself by saying he didn't know it was against the rules.

More than ordinary interest was taken over the Fitzsimmons-Ruhlin fight by some of the St. Hilairites. At least two cases have come to the surface where their respective girls figured in the wager—of course one lost, and there is liable to be a hair pulling match over this same bet regardless of the fact that Fitz won the fight.

High Mass in the new Catholic church will be held Sunday August 19th. The Red Lake Falls choir will be present.

If you know an item kindly tell us about it. Every week we tell what we know. Every week we know that you know things that we don't know. And we know that you know that we don't know it, and still you don't tell us. Now if you tell us what you know, then we'll tell you what we know and also what you know, and our readers will know what they know and what you know and also what we know and what we know that you know that we know you know.—Ex.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

An exchange has well said that a poor man who has to work for a living, and who has to support a wife and family, is of more value to a town or city than a miserly rich man. He does something to produce wealth; the goods he buys for his family puts all his money into circulation in the town in which he lives, while the wealthy miser sends away for the goods he needs—"to get them cheaper"—and allows his codfish aristocracy household to display its cheap gray matter. The laboring class is the backbone of every town and no community can be permanently prosperous that does not recognize this fact. They are the great producers. It is the duty of the public to promote every progressive movement that will give them employment.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Aug. 27th and 28th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 27th and 28th.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Appeal to Hunters.

On September 1st the Minnesota prairies will be alive with sportsmen, and for the next few days their tables and that of their friends will groan with the toothsome young prairie chicken. How about the old chicken in the bag? You do not want them on your own table, and cannot very well be known to give them to your friends, and in most cases they are left to spoil. Why not spare the mother to raise a brood another year, brother sportsman? At best, it only serves to swell the number in the bag, and no true sportsman should kill a bird with only this motive in view. You can easily distinguish the flight of the mother bird from the young during the early part of the season, and a little care will make it possible to spare it. It is a well known fact that older hens are preferred as mothers in growing tame poultry, because they raise much larger and stronger broods. Why should not this apply to prairie chickens as well? Then look at the matter from a human point of view. You know that some belated broods in the early hunting season still need the mother's care in order to live, and even in the more advanced coveys the mother is worth much more to the young chicken left alive than it is to you. Brother sportsman, think this over, and we know the result will be the saving of many a mother to raise another brood. Better cut this out and place it in the inside of your hunting cap.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

The Black River correspondents in the Crookston Times last Friday stated a party of St. Hilaire crackshots were looking over the chicken crop the first of that week. Something wrong—no one from this place has been out this season—too many game wardens here.

A Fisher minister, whose congregation were too poor to purchase hymn books, and being offered the same by a patent medicine house, provided they be allowed to insert their advertisement ordered three dozen for the congregation. He was elated upon receiving them to find no ad in the same. The next Sunday he distributed the books telling his brethern of his good fortune and requesting them to sing 119. His chagrin may be imagined when they sang the hymn: "Hark thy heavenly angels sing Johnson's pills are just the thing; The angleic voices meek and mild—Two for man and one for child."

Democrats are delighted with Col. Bryan's speech of acceptance, especially that portion of it which so clearly points out the difference between legitimate expansion—acquiring territory to become future States—and the imperialism which acquires islands to become colonial possessions. The speech is probably the most complete argument against imperialism ever presented in a single publication, and should be carefully studied by every democrat who wishes to fit himself to demolish every argument the republicans have yet advanced in favor of the imperialistic foreign policy of the McKinley administration.

During the week of September 3-8 the great Minnesota State Fair is scheduled to occur midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis. This fair has made a phenominal growth during recent years and now is beyond doubt entitled to first place in the United States. There are 200 acres in the grounds and over 400,000 square feet of floor in its buildings. Its exhibits are comprehensive in all lines of production, making it a veritable exposition. It has the best grand stand in the northwest; has two perfect race tracks, and its day and night amusement programs are wonderfully interesting. Because the next American Hereford cattle exhibit an event of national character, will be held at this approaching Fair, the railways have extended their half-fare rates to much of the territory of the neighboring states, giving many more than the usual number of people the opportunity for seeing this great event. Visitors will be richly entertained.

Bargains.

The remainder of our wash goods consisting of dimities, lawns, silk stripe zephyr, ponge zephyr, etc., will be closed out regardless of cost to make room for our fall and winter goods. Come and secure some real bargains.
E. M. Hoff.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

About Grasshoppers.

Prof. Otto Lugger, State Entomologist, has issued a circular from the state experimental station in which he calls attention to the fact that there is danger that the two kinds of migratory locust or grasshoppers now found in some parts of the state will greatly multiply. He says that the only effective remedy is to prevent the eggs from hatching and advises the plowing of fields in which the eggs have been laid thus covering them and preventing the young insects from reaching the surface. Eggs are laid during July and August and by fall or early spring plowing farmers can prevent the hatching of their destructive enemy. Where stubble fields are left unplowed in each hundred acres enough grasshoppers can be raised to destroy the crops of many thousands of acres.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

—If you want to make a loan or sell your farm call on or address Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

Announcement.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for nomination to the office of County Auditor, subject to the approval of the republican convention, and if nominated and elected, I promise to conduct the business of the office in a manner that will meet the approbation of every tax-payer of the county.
W. A. Case.

School District Notice.

Whereas, A petition signed by Ole J. Johnson a freeholder who is a legal voter residing in School District No. 125 asking that the w ½ of section 21 twp 152 range 42 be set off from said school district No. 125 and attached to school district No. 148 was presented to the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota, at a session of said board held on the 11th day of July A. D. 1900, for the action of said board thereon.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given that a hearing of parties interested in the matter of said petition will be granted at the next session of said board on the 3rd day of September A. D. 1900 at the office of the County Auditor, in Red Lake Falls in said county.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.
Adam Zeh,
Clerk of the Board.

For The Horse.

Fresh, clean bedding is as welcome to the tired horse as to the tired, or hired, man.

Water horses often as possible; a little at a time is better than a deluge at long intervals.

Better a shady out-door feeding and resting place at noon time than a filthy hot, fly-infested stable.

It is asking a deal of a farmer to do much currying of horses at this season, yet the more of it done the better for the horse.

Work the horses easily for the first hour or so after eating. They can do their hardest work easiest after the last meal is partly digested.

It is doubtful if any one little detail of farming pays better than keeping horse stables clean and sweet during the summer. And if kept flyless there is good profit in them.

Give a little water before feeding, even if horse is warm; then give hay, and last good, clean oats; and give a good long nooning. Both man and beast will do more and better work for it.

For sweet charity's sake, do not inflict pain upon your horse. Cruel yanking on the reins, stroke of lash or kick from a heavy boot the patient, noble, faithful horse should be a stranger too. If he does not do your bidding on the instant it is because he does not understand what you want. Be patient. The abused horse—one that is constantly expecting a blow—cannot be as valuable a servant as the kindly treated one. Farm, Stock and Home.

The soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and permanent cures, have made it a great favorite with the people everywhere. For sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

The Coming World's Drink.

Civilized men and savages have, in every age and climate, had a national drink of some kind. Sometimes it was made from grapes, sometimes from wheat or barley, sometimes from sugar cane or the century plant: in at least one country, Russia, the Tartars made their favorite drink from fermented milk. But the Encyclopedia Britannica yields the palm of popularity the world over to beer. It says that "where beer has once been introduced it has generally become the national beverage and it is now in universal use in the northern and temperate parts of Europe and Asia."

Beer has made steady progress toward becoming the national beverage of the Americans, if, indeed, it has not reached that position already. The increase in the use and popularity of beer has had a marked effect in decreasing the consumption of stronger beverages which is due, no doubt, in a large degree, to the food value which beer is recognized to possess.

The "Golder Grain belt" beers of the Minneapolis Brewing Company are brewed with particular regard to their food values. "Extra Pale" and "Gilt Edge" beers are recognized throughout the Northwest for their aid to nutrition. A case of pints or quarts would complete your larder. Order from the dealer near you, or Alex. Thompson, Crookston will supply you.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Aug. 27th and 28th.

During the civil war, as well as in our late war with Spain, diarrhoea was one of the most troublesome diseases the army had to contend with. In many instances it became chronic and the old soldiers still suffer from it. Mr. David Taylor of Wind Ridge, Greene Co., Pa., is one of these. He uses Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and says he never found anything that would give him such relief. It is for sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.
I am yours truly,
Prof. J. Q. Adams,
Watchmaker and Optician.

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right
And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries
Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware
We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of
Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

How to Avoid Library Fines.

Ida—Do you read many new novels these days?

May—No, indeed, dear. You see, when I get a new novel I can't refrain from glancing over the last pages, and after I see how the story ends, what is the use of my going through the rest of the pages?—Chicago News.

Passing of the Horse.

So soon as nature sees an improvement there is a change. The candle gave way to electricity and the horse to the automobile. The fact that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has been sold for half a century, proves its value. There is nothing to equal it for stomach or liver trouble. Be sure to give it a trial.

Making It All Right.

Mrs. Young Wife—You are sure there are five pounds of sugar in this package? It seems very light.

Grocer—That, madam, is because it is entirely free from sand.—Boston Transcript.

Best for the Bowels.

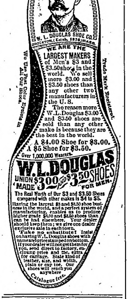
No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Bin Thar.

Little Black Joe—Hullo, Jerry; whar y' gwine?"

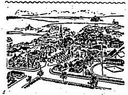
Little Black Jerry—I ain' a-gwine nowhar; I done bin whar I'm a-gwine.—Indianapolis Journal.

A woman needs to be as fascinating after marriage as before.



W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE CO.
BROCKTON. (Estab. 1876) MASS.
WE ARE THE LARGEST MAKERS of Men's $3 and $3.50 shoes in the world. We sell more $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than any other two manufacturers in the U. S.
The reason more W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes are sold than any other make is because they are the best in the world.
A $4.00 Shoe for $3.00.
A $5 Shoe for $3.50.
Over 1,000,000 Wearers.
W. L. DOUGLAS UNION MADE $3.00 AND $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN.
The Real Worth of Our $3 and $3.50 Shoes compared with other makes is $4 to $5.
Having the largest $3 and $3.50 shoe business in the world, and a perfect system of manufacturing, enables us to produce higher grade $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than can be had elsewhere. Your dealer should keep them; we give one dealer exclusive sale in each town.
Take no substitute! Insist on having W. L. Douglas shoes with name and price stamped on bottom. If your dealer will not get them for you, send direct to factory, enclosing price and 25c. extra for carriage. State kind of leather, size, and width, plain or cap toe. Our shoes will reach you anywhere.
Catalogue free.
We Use Fast Color Eyelets in All Our Shoes
Trade Mark Registered

EDUCATIONAL.



THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME,
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.
Classics, Letters, Economics and History, Journalism, Art, Science, Pharmacy, Law, Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, Architecture.
Thorough Preparatory and Commercial Courses. Ecclesiastical students at special rates. Rooms Free. Junior or Senior Year, Collegiate Courses. Rooms to Rent, moderate charges. St. Edward's Hall, for boys under 13.
The 57th Year will open September 4th, 1900.
Catalogues Free. Address
REV. A. MORRISSEY, C. S. C., President.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA
Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Cross. Chartered 1855. Thorough English and Classical education. Regular Collegiate Degrees.
In Preparatory Department students carefully prepared for Collegiate course. Physical and Chemical Laboratories well equipped. Conservatory of Music and School of Art. Gymnasium under direction of graduate of Boston Normal School of Gymnastics. Catalogue free. The 46th year opens Sept. 4, 1900. Address,
DIRECTRESS OF THE ACADEMY,
St. Mary's Academy, - Notre Dame, Indiana

SACRED HEART COLLEGE,
WATERTOWN, WISCONSIN.
Branch of Notre Dame University, Indiana.
Thorough Classical, English, Commercial and Preparatory Courses. Terms Moderate. Buildings heated by steam. Home comforts. For further information and catalogues, apply to
REV. J. O'ROURKE, C. S. C., President.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND
POMMEL SLICKER
The Best Saddle Coat.
Keeps both rider and saddle perfectly dry in the hardest storms. Substitutes will disappoint. Ask for 1897 Fish Brand Pommel Slicker—it is entirely new. If not for sale in your town, write for catalogue to A. J. TOWER, Boston, Mass.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water.

N. W. N. U. —No 33— 1900

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

CHINA FOR PEACE

WANTS AN "IMMEDIATE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES."

Earl Li Has Been Appointed as Envoy Plenipotentiary to Negotiate With the Powers—Minister Conger Expresses His Ability to "Hold On" Until Relief Comes—Sheng Expresses Grave Fears for Legationers When Defeated Chinese Troops Return to Capital.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Indications of the desire of China for a peaceful settlement of her present difficulties have been multiplying for several days. Official evidence of that desire was presented to the department of state yesterday. It was in the form of an edict promulgated by the emperor Kwang Hsu, appointing Earl Li Hung Chang as envoy plenipotentiary to negotiate with the powers for an "immediate cessation of hostilities" pending a solution of the problems which have grown out of the anti-foreign uprising in the empire. Earl Li is to act directly for the emperor, and a fair inference is that whatever terms of settlement he may reach with the powers will be approved by the imperial government.

Ability to "Hold On."

A belated message from Minister Conger was transmitted to the war department by Gen. Chaffee. It expressed simply his ability to "hold on" until Gen. Chaffee should come to his relief. All the power of this government will be exerted to get relief to him and the other imprisoned legationers at the earliest possible moment.

While it is conceded by the Washington officials that the conference of plenary authority upon Earl Li to negotiate with the powers for a settlement of existing troubles is a step in the right direction, it by no means is assured that the United States government will consent offhand to open negotiations with the distinguished viceroy. The demands of this government upon China have been made plainly and without equivocation. They cannot be misunderstood. Assuming that the Chinese government is acting in good faith, the demands are reasonable and can be complied with readily. As transmitted to the imperial government by the secretary of state through Minister Wu, the demands in brief were:

Our Government Demands.

"That the Chinese government give assurance that the foreign ministers are alive, and if so, in what condition; that the ministers be placed in free communication with their governments, firing upon the legations cease, and all danger to their lives and liberty be removed; that the imperial authorities place themselves in communication with the relief expedition, so that the legationers may be liberated, foreigners protected and order restored."

Until these demands have been acceded to it is highly improbable that the government of the United States, or any of the united powers, all of whom have made practically the same demands upon China, will consent to a "cessation of hostile demonstrations," which are being conducted, at least so far as this government is concerned, with the sole purpose of succoring the besieged legationers in the Chinese capital.

Reply of United States.

Last night Secretary Adee, by direction of President McKinley, presented to Minister Wu, for transmission to his government, the reply of the United States to the imperial edict appointing Li Hung Chang envoy to negotiate with the powers for a cessation of hostilities. The text of the reply will not be made public until to-day. In effect, however, it is a reiteration of the demands previously made by the United States upon China, coupled with a vigorous intimation that no negotiations will be entered into until the Chinese government shall have complied with those demands. This government, inspired by a determination to effect the rescue of the legationers besieged in Peking, takes advantage in its reply to the edict to reiterate the demands previously made upon China. These demands were first made by the president on July 23, and subsequently were reiterated substantially by Acting Secretary Adee, by direction of the president. The demands for the protection of the ministers, for free communication between their respective governments and for the restoration of order in China of the memorandum forwarded to the imperial government by the president yesterday. The iteration and reiteration of the demands must make it perfectly clear to the Chinese government, it is thought, that no negotiations will be entered upon until an entire compliance with them has been made. Should the demands be acceded to there will be no obstacle, it is believed in the way of a settlement of other questions which have arisen out of the pending troubles. Minister Wu declined to make any statement bearing on the reply, not even being willing to say whether or not it had been received by him. Copies have been sent to the United States representatives in Europe and Japan to be submitted to the governments at which they are stationed, and also to the European diplomats stationed here for their information.

Form the Keynote

Wu Is Elated.

Mr. Wu, the Chinese minister here, is very much elated over the appointment of Li Hung Chang as a plenipotentiary to arrange peace with the powers. He sincerely hopes that it will be accepted by them, as the results attained, in his opinion, would be satisfactory to all concerned. "I think Earl Li's designation a capital one," he said. "Aside from the emperor and empress he is the highest official of the Chinese government, and he has the implicit confidence of all Chinamen. In many ways he is eminently qualified to act as an intermediary between his own government and the powers, which may be inclined to treat with him. He has done great work for China and I have great confidence in his wisdom and discretion."

Hart Would Get Out.

London, Aug. 13.—"The sooner we can be got out of this the better, for it is inconvenient for the Chinese government and unsafe for ourselves."

This is a message received last evening from Sir Robert Hart, dated Peking, Aug. 5, and sent in cipher to the Chinese maritime customs office in London. Commenting upon it the Morning Post says:

"It would seem to indicate that the Chinese government is anxious for the safety of the foreigners, or at least to get them safely out of Peking, while Sir Robert Hart evidently expects that they will get out sooner or later."

Sheng, director general of railways and telegraphs, according to a Shanghai dispatch to the Standard, expresses grave fears for the safety of the members of the legations when the defeated Chinese troops return to the capital.

Legations Not Besieged.

The Daily Mail publishes an interview with the Chinese minister in London, Sir Chih Chen Lo Feng Luh, quoting him as urging the foreign ministers to leave Peking. "Some people say," remarked Sir Chih Chen, "that the legations are still besieged. It is not so. When you are besieged you are not allowed communication with the outside world; but here you are receiving messages, cipher messages, from Sir Claude MacDonald."

Commenting upon the various propositions made by China to the powers, the Daily News well expresses the predominating British opinion as follows: "What the Chinese authorities say in effect is this: 'Stop your advance on Peking and we will give your ministers a safe conduct to Tien-tsin. If you do not at once instruct them to leave Peking we cannot answer for the consequences.' To this obvious and there can be but one answer. M. Delcasse has given it in very poignant terms. The ministers cannot leave except under absolutely convincing guarantees of safety. In the speedy advance of the allies lies the only real hope of saving the ministers."

Very Thinly Threat

In the same vein the Daily Telegraph says: "American statesmen take up what seems the only logical attitude when they tell Mr. Conger that they have never for a moment entertained the idea of his placing himself at the mercy of Chinese official pledge."

Inspect Expeditionary Corps.

Marseilles, Aug. 13.—President Loubet, accompanied by M. Delcasse, minister of war, and M. de Lanassan, minister of marine, arrived here yesterday morning at 9 o'clock and proceeded immediately to the reviewing ground, where they inspected the Chinese expeditionary corps. There was much enthusiasm.

CASE OF HOBSON'S CHOICE.

Constructor Wants to Go to China, but Is Needed Elsewhere.

New York, Aug. 13.—Constructor Hobson has asked for the command of a marine detachment in China, and is ready, he says, to assume the duty at once, according to a dispatch to the Herald from Washington. Rear Admiral Remey has cabled that he is opposed to the detailing of Hobson for any such duty. He adds that if Constructor Hobson is able to undertake active work in the field he is in a position to return to Manila or Hongking, where the services of a constructor are required in making repair work. Hobson is still at the naval hospital in Yokohama under treatment for his eyes, and will probably return to this country.

Edward F. Duryea Dead.

New York, Aug. 13.—Edward F. Duryea, the millionaire starch manufacturer, died suddenly at his residence at Glen Cove, L. I. He had been sick three weeks and his death was not unexpected. His wealth is estimated at $3,000,000.

It Came Too Late.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 13.—Within the past week there have been four rains in Fargo, with an aggregate fall of over four inches. Had this amount of moisture fallen two months ago the Red River valley would have had a bonanza crop.

Scarcity of Help.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 13.—In Deuel, Brookings, Coddington and other counties in the northeastern part of the state there is still a great scarcity of farm hands. As high as $3 a day is offered.

A Big Elevator Burned.

Fargo, Aug. 13.—Fire at Abercrombie burned the National elevator, the postoffice building and the residence of William Sperry. The elevator was fired by lightning. The Sperry family narrowly escaped with their lives.

More Troops for Far East.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 13.—Company A, First infantry, stationed at Fort Logan, has received orders to proceed at once to San Francisco. It is expected to sail for Nagasaki on Aug. 21.

Condition of the Treasury.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Saturday's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, showed available cash balances, $141,355,307; gold, $72,625,300.

Light Plant Destroyed.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Aug 13.—A fire here caused a loss of over $100,000. Among the property destroyed or damaged was the Glens Falls Electric and gas plant.

Struck by Lightning.

Clear Lake, Minn., Aug. 13.—Lightning struck and instantly killed David Varley Pierce on the Pierce farm, three miles east. He was twenty-two years of age and unusually popular.

Railroad Wreck.

Lake Charles, La., Aug. 13.—A message from Iowa Station says a train went through a trestle near there last night. Seven passenger coaches were wrecked and forty people injured. One boy was killed. A wrecking train has been sent out.

New Yorkers Cooler.

New York, Aug. 13.—The backbone of the hot spell which for the past week has prevailed in this city, causing many deaths and prostrations, was broken yesterday by a violent thunder storm.

To Play Richard Carvel.

New York—John Drew is to play "Richard Carvel" this season. Charles Frohman announces the new role for the star, and says the play will be produced on Sept. 11, when Mr. Drew will begin his annual engagement at the Empire theater.

To Search for the North Pole.

Berlin—Capt. Banendahl, of the imperial navy, who has been arranging for an expedition in search of the North pole, will sail from Hamburg on Aug. 11, on the Matador.

Kills Assailant in Self-Defense.

Galesburg, Ill.—Warney Gash was shot and instantly killed by Tip Hamilton in the latter's restaurant. Gash struck Hamilton in the face with a club, and had threatened to kill him, when Hamilton fired. The coroner's jury exonerated Hamilton.

Wales Gets Cronje's Sword.

London—The Prince of Wales has been presented, by a British officer, with the sword which Gen. Cronje wore during the early part of the Boer war.

Minnesota in the Civil and Indian Wars—1861-1865.

Adjutant General Lambert of Minnesota explains how copies of the above history may be obtained.

He states that, under the law, each surviving soldier of any organization of Minnesota troops from the Civil War, or upon his death, if he has not received it, the surviving widow, father, mother, oldest son or daughter, brother or sister of the deceased, in the order named, is entitled to a copy of the volume upon proper identification to the satisfaction of the adjutant general. Since the appropriation for the distribution of the volume placed at the disposal of the adjutant general by the legislature is wholly inadequate to send the book by mail or express, he has decided to accumulate applications from each county until a sufficient number are on hand to warrant a shipment by freight to the county auditor, notice of the shipment being sent to each applicant. For shipments by mail or express and for all shipments outside the limits of the state, 40 cents must accompany the application. The necessary blanks for application may be obtained by addressing Brigadier General George C. Lambert, State Capitol, St. Paul, Minn.

The Onion's Humor.

"Your odor is so extremely strong," said the onion to the Limburger cheese, "that it quite takes away my own perfume. At the same time it makes you my debtor."

"And may I ask what I owe you?" inquired the Limburger, in a supercilious tone.

"You owe me an old-fashioned scent," replied the onion.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

O—I—C

When a preparation has an advertised reputation that is world-wide, it means that preparation is meritorious. If you go into a store to buy an article that has achieved universal popularity like Cascarets Candy Cathartic for example, you feel it has the endorsement of the world. The judgment of the people is infallible, because it is impersonal. The retailer, who wants to sell you "something else" in place of the article you ask for, has an ax to grind. Don't it stand to reason? He's trying to sell something that is not what he represents it to be. Why? Because he expects to derive an extra profit out of your credulity. Are you easy? Don't you see through his little game? The man who will try and sell you a substitute for CASCARETS is a fraud. Beware of him! He is trying to steal the honestly earned benefits of a reputation which another business man has paid for, and if his conscience will allow him to go so far, he will go farther. If he cheats his customer in one way, he will in another and it is not safe to do business with him. Beware of the CASCARET substitutor. Remember CASCARETS are never sold in bulk but in metal boxes with the long tailed "C" on every box and each tablet stamped C. C. C.

A Very Serious Case.

Mrs. Briske—Johnny, did the doctor call while I was out?

Little Johnny (stopping his play—Yes'm. He felt my pulse an' looked at my tongue, an' shook his head, an' said it was a very serious case, an' he left this paper, an' said he'd call again before night.

Mrs. Briske—Gracious me! It wasn't you I wanted him to see; it was the baby.—Tid-Bits.

EXTRACT OF BENNE PLANT.
It Is Nature's Own Remedy.
First used by the Mississippi river steamboat men in the "early forties," who drank their "Benne Tedd" from the hands of the colored "aunties." They steeped the leaves in hot water, and the verdict of these steamboat men was that it "did the business."
In 1841, James and Constance Maguire secured some of these miraculous leaves, and, upon investigation, discovered that they are identical with the Sesam. Ind. (Benne-Leaves), and as the same indicates, native of India, containing a mucilaginous substance of soothing and healing properties. Nature here furnished a remedy for diseases such as Colic, Cholera Morbus, Diarrhœa, Dysentery and kindred ailments. After experimenting, the Messrs. Maguire succeeded in chemically combining the use of the Benne-leaves with other vegetable substances, and so furnished a remedy that has saved thousands of lives.
Prepared by THE J. & G. MAGUIRE MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

Answered the Inquiry.

"What did you tell those people about the flat, Eliza?"

"They asked me if it was good walking distance, and I told them it was."

"Gracious! Good walking distance from where?"

"How do I know? They didn't say, and I wasn't going to be inquisitive."—Chicago Record.

When cycling, take a bar of White's Yucatan. You can ride further and easier.

Knew Something About Women.

"My dear sir," said the old gentleman, in his open-hearted way, "I shall welcome you as a son-in-law."

"Alas!" returned the young man, dejectedly. "My last hope is gone. If I had your opposition, I might hope to win her, but without it there is no chance!"—Chicago Post.

Are You Using Allen's Foot-Ease?
It is the only cure for Swollen, Smarting, Burning, Sweating Feet, Corns and Bunions. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

A Man of Action.

"Pa, I've painted a picture of Daniel in the lions' den."

"Let me see, Jimmy—well, here's Daniel, but where are the lions?"

"Oh, pa, he's killed 'em all an' et 'em!"—Chicago Record.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

No Help for It.

"The trouble with the American people," said the philosopher, "is that they have never learned the art of doing nothing and doing it well."

"Perhaps that's it," replied the man who works for a living, "but, of course, we can't all hold public offices."—Chicago Times-Herald.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

A Prize Pie.

"Here's t' yer health, Sylvester."

"Where'd ye git the liquor?"

"Squeezed it from the mince pie a temperance lady gimme."—Life.

Avoid baldness, gray hair, dandruff and thin locks by using Parker's Hair Balsam. Hindercorns, the best cure for corns. 15cts.

Children behave when out as they behave when at home.

No fewer than thirty-three generals are serving in South Africa.

MURDERS A FRIEND

EXPRESS MESSENGER LANE'S ASSASSIN ARRESTED.

A Former Messenger and Friend of the Dead Man Confesses to a Most Horrible Crime—He Was to Be Married in a Few Days and Needed the Money—His Sweetheart Is Prostrated.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 13.—Charles R. H. Ferrell, a former employe of the Adams Express company, was arrested yesterday afternoon in this city and has confessed to the killing of Messenger Charles Lane and the robbery of the way safe of the Adams Express company on the Pennsylvania eastbound train which arrived in this city at midnight Friday. One thousand dollars of the money which he had stolen was recovered.

Ferrell was to have been married Thursday next to Miss Lillian Costlow, the beautiful young daughter of Patrick Costlow, an engineer on the Pennsylvania lines. He had been discharged from the employ of the Adams Express company about three months ago and had not since been able to secure employment. He confessed that the motive of the robbery was to secure money of which he felt in great need on account of his Approaching Marriage.

The money recovered he had given to Miss Costlow to keep for him, saying that it was money he had saved from his earnings. He was at the home of his affianced and in her company when placed under arrest.

Ferrell is but twenty-two years of age and has a splendid physique, being six feet in height. When the officers took him into custody he assumed a nonchalant demeanor, but when he found he could no longer deceive the officers he made a full confession. After his statement had been taken he was taken to the police station and went into a state of nervous collapse, and orders were given to watch him closely to prevent him doing himself bodily harm. The confession of Ferrell disclosed a premeditated and that seemed almost impossible of belief to those who looked upon the man of gentlemanly and refined appearance who reluctantly told the story of the murder and the robbery. He said that he had become desperate because of his inability to secure employment and a realization of the fact that he must have money to defray the expenses of his approaching marriage. The robbery had been carefully planned and it included the murder of Express Messenger Lane. He knew Lane well. In fact they were friends, and he relied upon Lane's confidence to help him execute the crime. He knew that considerable money was always carried by the messenger on Pennsylvania Train No. 8 between St. Louis and Columbus, and that he was certain to secure a large sum if he

Blood-Curdling Crime

Robbed the Way Safe

on that train. Having provided himself with a Smith & Wesson six shooter, .38 caliber, he went to Urbana Friday morning and waited for No. 8. When the train arrived there Ferrell went at once to the express car and told Lane that he was out of money and asked permission to ride to Columbus with him. Lane consented, never for a moment suspecting the treachery of his pretended friend. For a short time after the train left Urbana they chatted pleasantly. Lane sat in a chair in the back of the car with his back slightly turned. When Ferrell had finally nerved himself for the crime he drew his revolver and stepped up behind Lane unobserved and

Fired Three Shots

in rapid succession into the messenger's back. After he had taken out all the sacks containing the money packages, money orders and way bills, he placed them in a small satchel and waited until the car arrived at Plain City he slipped off the train. He secured a room at a hotel and retired for the night. He came to this city on the morning train, and after going to his room and changing his clothes went to the home of his sweetheart, to whom he gave the money to keep for him. As soon as it was learned that Ferrell had given the money to his sweetheart, Inspector Barron went to the house and secured it. The young lady was by the disclosures. She had not suspected Ferrell of wrongdoing for an instant, and the news was a terrible shock to her and to her parents, who had regarded Ferrell as a model young man. The young lady had never doubted his story that the money which he placed in her keeping had been earned and saved by him as he stated. Ferrell's home is in Steubenville, Ohio. His father is said to be a bridge carpenter and a highly respected citizen of that place.

Utterly Prostrated

SPEEDY BOATS.

Russia Orders Warships Which Can Catch an Ocean Greyhound.

Vienna, Aug. 13.—From St. Petersburg comes a statement that the Russian government has just ordered two large and speedy warships, and work has already been begun on them at the docks there. The two cruisers will be 350 feet long, 40 feet wide, and will have a speed of twenty-five knots an hour. It is estimated that the total cost will be 6,000,000 roubles.

Forest Fires Out.

Detroit, Aug. 13.—A special to the Free Press from East Tawas, Mich., says the forest fires which have been threatening that city were all extinguished by a heavy rainfall.

Tornado in Pennsylvania.

Pittsburg, Aug. 13.—Word has just been received here that at New Kensington, Pa., almost the entire plant of the Pittsburg Reduction company's aluminum works was destroyed by a tornado. The loss is estimated at not less than $100,000, and it will necessitate the closing down of the works for an indefinite period.

Blaze at Hudson.

Hudson, Wis., Aug. 13.—The meat market of Hodgin & Miller was burned with a loss upon building and contents of about $3,000.

New Industrial Commissioner.

Washington—The president has appointed Daniel A. Tompkins of North Carolina a member of the industrial commission, to succeed Ellison A. Smythe, resigned. Mr. Tompkins is identified with the cotton interests of the South.

Richest Infant in the World.

St. Petersburg—The little Grand Duchess Olga, of Russia is the richest infant in the world. The week she was born $5,000,000 was settled on her, and it is said the sum was invested in British and French securities.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Richards S. Cuddihy, St. Paul, Minn., cinder-proof cap or cover; James E. Davidson, Butte, Mont., electric arc lamp; Herman Grams, Dexter, Minn., traction engine; Stephen A. Huntley, Elk Point, S. D., firearm; John J. Ober, Kibbey, Mont., gate hinge; Michael J. Saggen, St. Matthias, Minn., wagon box and hay rack lifter.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 and 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul.

2 to 2 to 2:02.

"How long does the train stop here?" the old lady asked the brakeman.

"Stop here?" answered that functionary. "Four minutes. From 2 to 2 to 2:02."

"I wonder," mused the old lady, "if that man thinks he's a whistle?"—Indianapolis Press.

How's This?
We offer One Hundred Dollars reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.
West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.; Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c per bottle. Sold by all druggists.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A Slight Mistake.

Two negroes in Atlanta were discussing the political situation.

"McKinley am sho'ly a right good man," said one.

"He sholy am," said the other, "but I ain't gwine to vote fo' him."

"Why not?"

"'Cause dat wife of his done all dis heah trust business—dat wife o' his, Hanna."—Atlanta Journal.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes
One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Contradictions.

"Well, Digby, I'm surprised! You're getting gray!"

"Yes—yes; I've lots of gray hairs and precious few of them."—Detroit Free Press.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of the throat and lungs.—Wm. O. Endsley, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

A Truthful Man.

Miss Plainface (earnestly)—But if I had not all this money, do you think you could still be happy with me?

Mr. Seekrox (startled, but equal to the emergency—A—a—a—Happy is not the word for it.—Brooklyn Life.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES produce the fastest and brightest colors of any known dye stuff.

In 1894 the plague destroyed 80,000 of the 1,000,000 inhabitants of Canton.

Is there any state more to be pitied than kittenish, giggling old age?

"MY OWN SELF AGAIN."
Mrs. Gates Writes to Mrs. Pinkham, Follows Her Advice and is Made Well.
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For nearly two and one-half years I have been in feeble health. After my little child came it seemed I could not get my strength again. I have chills and the severest pains in my limbs and top of head and am almost insensible at times: I also have a pain just to the right of breast bone. It is so severe at times that I cannot lie on my right side. Please write me what you think of my case."—MRS. CLARA GATES, Johns P. O., Miss., April 25, 1898.
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as advised and now send you a letter for publication. For several years I was in such wretched health that life was almost a burden. I could hardly walk across the floor, was so feeble. Several of our best physicians attended me, but failed to help. I concluded to write to you for advice. In a few days I received such a kind, motherly letter. I followed your instructions and am my 'old self' again. Was greatly benefited before I had used one bottle. May God bless you for what you are doing for suffering women."—MRS. CLARA GATES, Johns P. O., Miss., Oct. 6, 1899.

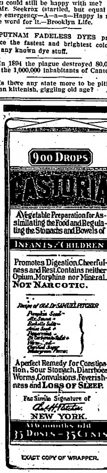
Easy Monthly Payments
We sell Regina Music Boxes for public places with money slot attachments, and for home use without attachments, on easy Monthly Payments. With money attachments they are
A Constant Source of Revenue
and soon pay for themselves. They can be placed in all kinds of business houses.
We Repair Music Boxes.
Correspondence invited.
NATIONAL NOVELTY CO.,
519 First Ave. So., - - - Minneapolis, Minn

DO NOT BUY
WELL DRILLING
MACHINERY until you see our new Catalogue No. 29. We will furnish it to you FREE. Write to our address, either Harvey, Ill., Chicago, Ill., or Dallas, Texas.
F. C. AUSTIN MFG. CO.
Factories at Harvey, Ill.

LADIES! When doctors and others fail to relieve you, try N. F. M. It never fails, box free. Mrs. B. L. Rowan, Milwaukee, Wis.

TOE-GUM Cures Corns 15c: all Druggists. (If it fails—it is free.)

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS / CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhœa, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

(CUT OUT)
FREE
Wm. Donaldson & Co.
GLASS BLOCK STORE,
MINNEAPOLIS, - MINN.
Your name and address on this slip sent to us will secure for you FREE our FALL AND WINTER CATALOGUE OF FASHIONS.
Name.........
Address.........
This Catalogue of some 250 pages, beautifully illustrated, will bring right to your home our great store, with all its possibilities of money-saving. Send for it at once—FREE.
(CUT OUT)

Burlington Route
A Map of the United States
A handsome map of the United States, 38 by 48 inches in size, ruled to show the "time divisions" of the country, printed in four colors, and mounted on a roller for hanging up, will be sent to any address on receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS. Postal or Express Money Order or Coin preferred. Apply to
GEO. P. LYMAN, Asst Gen'l Pass. Agent. C. B. & Q. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

26
2

Supplement to

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, MINN. AUGUST 15, 1900.

Commissioners' Proceedings.

Red Lake Falls, July 21st, 1900.

Pursuant to adjournment of July 11th board met in regular session this day.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present except Commissioner Hansen.

Commissioner Hebert offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

> Whereas, the city of Red Lake Falls has agreed to appropriate $250 out of the city Road & Bridge fund and to pay the same into the County Road & Bridge fund for the purpose of grading road in eastern part of Emardville and through Garnes.
>
> Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the county appropriate the sum of $500, provided the town of Garnes appropriates $125, either in cash or labor. Said work to be done under the supervision of the county road & bridge committee; on the two county roads running east and west through said towns and one road running north and south, connecting said roads, on section line between 13 and 14 and 23 and 24 in town of Emardville, the residents of the southern part of the town of Equality having subscribed $125 in labor on said road.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Sutor and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Petition of Ole J. Johnson, asking to be set off from School dist No. 125 to Dist. No. 148, was read and on motion duly carried the 3rd day of September was set for a day of hearing on same.

On motion duly carried the bond of First State bank of Thief River Falls, as county depository, was approved.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., July 14th, 1900.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minn.

Gentlemen:

We, the board of audit of Red Lake county, Minn., report as follows:

That on the above named date we examined the accounts, books and vouchers of the treasurer of Red Lake county and counted and ascertained the kind, description and amount of funds in the treasury belonging to said county as follows:

Balance in treasury July 14, 1900, as shown by the books of auditor and treasurer	$14244 07 $
Distributed as follows:
Currency		20 00
Silver and coppers		4 14
Deposited in First State Bank, Red Lake Falls		3877 2)
Deposited in Merchants State Bank, Red Lake Falls		4146 73
Deposited in First State Bank, Thief River Falls		4601 21
Deposited in Bank of St. Hilaire		1394 79
	14244 07	14244 07

Respectfully submitted,
Wm. O. L. Demann,
Joseph Perrault,
Adam Zeh,
Board of Audit,
Red Lake Co., Minn.

On motion carried unanimously the report of Board of Audit was approved.

Hearing was then had on the following ditch petition:

Petition to establish a ditch, drain or water course.

PETITION FOR PUBLIC DITCH.

To the board of County Commissioners of the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota:

The undersigned land owners, whose lands will be liable to be effected by, or assessed for, the expense of the construction of the drainage ditch hereinafter described, would respectfully represent that the public health, convenience and welfare require the establishment and construction of a drainage ditch along the following described route in the town of Terrebonne in said county of Red Lake and that the construction of the same would be of public benefit and utility.

A general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said ditch, is as follows:

Commencing at a point on the south line of section 36 in the town of Terrebonne, township 150, range 43, in Red Lake county, Minnesota, about 90 rods east of the southwest corner of said section, thence running in a northwesterly direction through sections 36, 35 and 26, to about the northwest corner of section 26, thence more westerly to a point near the centre of the west line of section 22, thence northwesterly through sections 21, 16 to the centre of the north line of section 16, thence northerly to a point near the centre of sections 9, thence following a small creek in a northwesterly direction through section 9 and to about the centre of section 5, all in said town of Terrebonne, and terminating at the point last mentioned in section 5, having as its outlet a creek.

And your petitioners pray that you will proceed to establish such drainage ditch and cause the same to be constructed as provided by Chapter Ninety-seven (97), General Laws of Minnesota for 1887, and subsequent amendments thereto.

Dated May 20, 1900.

Laurant Gagner,
Jos. Dupont,
his
Leon X Rivard.
mark
Amede Gagner,
Jos. E. Remick,
his
Michael X Champagne,
mark
Henry Prenevost,
George Dupont,
his Onezine X Bruneau.
mark
Philip Fisher,
P. Martell,
his
Alexis X Fournier,
mark
his Telespher X July,
mark
Eldege Beasoliel;
Jos. Laurent,
his
J. B. X Rossignal,
mark
Wm. Dupont,
Petitioners.

Motion made by Hebert seconded by Johnson that petition be accepted

Motion carried unanimously.

On motion of Hebert seconded by Johnson and carried unanimously the following order was made:

Order Appointing Viewers in Ditch Proceedings.

In the matter of the Petition of Laurant Granger and others for a drainage ditch in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota.

State of Minnesota, }
} SS.
County of Red Lake, }

Whereas, a petition bearing date the 20th day of May, 1900, signed by Laurent Granger and others praying for the establishment of a certain drainage ditch in said county, the route of which is more fully described in said petition, and a proper bond accompanying the same, have been filed with the county auditor of said county as by law required.

And whereas, It appears, by satisfactory proof to the board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, that at least thirty (30) days' notice of the pendency of said petition, and the time and place at which the same would be heard, has been given as required by law:

And Whereas, Said board has determined that the construction of said ditch as proposed in said Petition will be of public benefit and utility, and conducive to the public health, convenience and welfare.

Now, Therefore, We, the board of county commissioners of said county, at a Regular session held this day, do hereby accept said petition, do hereby appoint Ole J. Johnson, James Sutor and E. A. Moran, three resident freeholders of said county, and not interested in the construction of said proposed work, and not of kin to any parties interested therein, as viewers, and do specify the 24th day of September, 1900, at 1 o'clock p. m. at the terminus of said ditch as the time and place for said viewers to meet, preparatory to commencing their duties as such viewers, as prescribed by law, and after completing their duties as such viewers to make and file their report with the county auditor of said county, on or before the 8th day of October, 1900.

Dated July 21st. 1900.

By the Board,
Wm. O. L. Demann,
Chairman
Board County Commissioners Red Lake County.

Attest:
Adam Zeh,
County Auditor.

On motion carried unanimously bills were allowed as follows:

County Revenue Fund.
W. A. Schreiter ink stand and paper baskets	3 00
Theodore Gordon witness fees inquest of Wm Vorachek	1 12
Frank Benston witness fees inquest of Wm. Vorachek	1 12
August Brown witness fees inquest of Wm. Vorachek	1 12
Dr H Francis medical witness fees inquest of Wm Vorachek	6 20
Adam Zeh 1 day board of audit	3 00
C E Traverse witness fees state vs Mussey	1 00
C E Traverse justice fees state vs Fred Olson	16 50
S L Heasley deputy sheriff fees state vs Fred Olson	26 35
Alex A Sweans interpeter fees state vs Fred Olson	1 00
Haus L Hanson interpeter fees state vs Fred Olson	1 00
John Holzknecht jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Jas Meehan Jr jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Hans L Hanson jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Jerdon Cary jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Matt Barzen jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Peter Newman jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
George Gibson jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
C E Pearsons jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
John Dalson jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Andrew Erickson jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Benj Hawkins jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Jake Setzler jurors fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
N W Tarrant witness fees state vs Fred Olson	1 00
Rosmus Mortenson witness fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Halvor Rodegaard witness fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Nels Rodegaard witness fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
Christ Rodegaard witness fees state vs Fred Olson	2 00
John L Finke witness fees state vs Fred Olson	1 00
K M Hansen attendance county bd of Equalization, 4 days 40 miles	16 00
J B Hebert attending county board equalization 5 days 40 miles	19 00
O J Johnson attending Co board of equalization 5 days 40 miles	19 00
Jas Sutor attending county board equalization 5 days 20 miles	17 00
Wm O L Demann attending county board of equalization 5 days 14 miles	16 40
J B Hebert attending county commissioners meeting 1 day and mileage and attending poor 1 day and mileage	14 40
O J Johnson attending commissioners meeting 1 day & mileage and 1 day committee work	10 00
James Sutor attending commissioners meeting 1 day & mileage and 1 day committe work	8 00
Wm O L Demann attending commissioners meeting 1 day and mileage, 1 day attending poor 1 day board of audit, 1 day committee work	13 40
County Poor Fund.
Red Lake Falls Milling Co. 100 lbs flour to R. Poutz	2 70
W A Schreiter medicine furnished Juneau, Carpenter and Nelson	16 50
Red Lake Falls Milling Co., 100 lbs flour to R. Poutz	2 00
John Albin board of John Ortenquist, April, May, June, and July	25 00
Dr W O Tessier medical attendance Joseph St. Martin	20 50
Road & Bridge Fund.
Emil E Zeh painting Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire bridges	100 00

Bill of Dr A Ekern for medical attendance Bertha & Ida Steen for $88 laid over.

On motion duly carried meeting adjourned.

Attest:
Adam Zeh,
County Auditor.

Proud of Her Name.

It was at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday school, and the teacher was endeavoring to impress her class with the idea of the Lord's omniscience.

"Why, just think," she said, "He knows the name of every one of you."

Little Hazel Kirschenschlager leaned forward in her chair, with an expression of incredulity on her face.

"Well," she said, after a moment, "perhaps he does know my name, but I'll bet he doesn't know how to spell it."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Something Musical.

McJigger—He's from Chicago, you know.

Thingumbob—I thought he was.

McJigger—You know him then. By sight?

Thingumbob—Yes, and by sound. He gives a soup-eating recital every day at the restaurant where I lunch.—Philadelphia Press.

The Cheerful Idiot.

"I don't believe there is a woman living that isn't able to make her husband do just as she pleases," said the youngest boarder.

"I know dozens of 'em" said the Cheerful Idiot. "They are all single."—Indianapolis Press.

The Strenuous Life.

Isabel—Well, I accomplished a good deal downtown to-day.

Arabella—Does your new coat fit nicely?

Isabel—Oh, I haven't found out yet; but I kept 17 clerks from selling me coats that didn't fit.—Indianapolis Journal.

"You have deceived me!" cried the young husband at their first meal.

Tears gushed from her eyes.

"You told me that you couldn't cook," he continued, "and I find that [illegible] can"—Philadelphia North American.

BLANK PAGE

Minnesota Historical Society

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XX | ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1900. | NUMBER 5.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

FIGHTING IN PEKING

ALLIES ARE BOMBARDING THE INNER CITY.

Startling Statement Made in a Dispatch From Admiral Remey—First Official Confirmation of the Fall of Peking Is Received From Gen. Chaffee—Dowager Empress Is Detained in the Inner City—Chinese Evidently Resolved to Make a Last Stand in the Ancient Capital.

Washington, Aug. 20. — From Gen. Chaffee yesterday the war department received official confirmation of the fall of Peking and the rescue of the besieged legationers. The dispatch of the American commander was not long and contained few details, but the unconcealed satisfaction with which it was received by officials of the administration indicated clearly the anxiety that had been engendered by his prolonged silence. His last communication to the government prior to the receipt of yesterday's advices, was dated Aug. 11 at Matow, almost thirty miles from Peking. The explanation of is suggested in advices received by the navy department from Admiral Remey, who, telegraphing from Taku on the 15th, says the telegraph line between that point and Peking is interrupted. The cablegram from Admiral Remey contains some important information not mentioned by Chaffee. He makes the startling statement, on Japanese authority, that the inner city of Peking was being bombarded by the allied forces. Admiral Remey says also that the dowager empress is detained in the inner city by Prince Yungedo. Advices received Saturday night from the foreign office at Tokio, Japan, by the Japanese legation in this city

His Silence

Confirm and Amplify

previous accounts of the capture of Peking by the allied troops. Following is the text of the dispatch from Gen. Chaffee, as made public by the war department:

"We entered legation grounds at 5 o'clock last night (14th) with Fourteenth, and light battery. Eight wounded during day's fighting: otherwise all well. —Chaffee."

The dispatch was received during the morning and was transmitted immediately to the president at the White House. He expressed his gratification at the news contained, particularly at the

Small Loss Sustained

by the American troops. It will be noted that the dispatch indicates the American troops entered the legation grounds at 5 o'clock on the evening of the 14th inst. By the Washington officials and by the several legation officials to whom it was shown, the date of Gen. Chaffee's communication is regarded as an error of transmission. It is believed that the word "fifteenth" should be "sixteenth." All previous advices, official and unofficial, have indicated that the legations were relieved on the evening of the 15th, Wednesday, after a day of sharp fighting. Minister Wu, the Chinese representative, and Minister Takahira of Japan

Were Quite Positive

on this point, all their official advices being that the entrance to the city of Peking was effected early in the evening of Wednesday, the 15th inst. The fact that only eight of the American force were wounded, none being killed, is regarded as notably fortunate. Admiral Remy's dispatch, which contains much information in a few words, is as follows:

"Chefu, (no date).—Bureau of Navigation, Washington: Taku, 15th.—Telegraph line to Peking interrupted. Information, Japanese sources, empress dowager detained by Prince Yungedo. Inner city, which is being bombarded by allies. Chaffee reports evening 14th. Eight wounded during day's fighting: otherwise all well. —"Remey."

Entered Legation Grounds

The startling feature of the dispatch is that fighting within the city of Peking was continuing, according to the advices of Admiral Remey. The inner, or, as it is popularly known, the forbidden city, evidently had not been taken. Prior to the receipt of the dispatch it was accepted generally as a fact that the dowager empress, in company with the emperor and a large suite, had left Peking. While nothing is said in Admiral Remey's dispatches as to the whereabouts of the emperor, it is deemed

Scarcely Probable

that he left the city without the empress dowager. Some doubt of the accuracy of the information received by Admiral Remey is expressed, particularly as the Chinese minister, Wu, is very positive that the emperor, empress dowager and the entire Chinese court left Peking before the arrival at the gates of the allies. Late Saturday night the Japanese minister, Takahiri, received the following advices from the Japanese foreign office at Tokio: "The Japanese consul at Chefu wired, under date Aug. 17, to the following effect: 'The foreign forces attacked on the eastern side of Peking Wednesday morning. The enemy

Obstinately Resisted.

In the evening the Japanese blew up the Chiao-Yang gate and the Tung Chih gate of the Tartar city and succeeded in entering. In the meantime other foreign forces entered the Chinese city by the Tung Pien gate. Detachments were sent out immediately to the legations and opened communications. The ministers and staffs were found safe. The Japanese loss was over 100, including three officers, namely, Capt. Michiiye and Lieut. Watanabe, wounded, while Lieut. Yazaki was killed. The Chinese loss computed at about 400.'"

LOOKS MORE SERIOUS.

Fighting in Peking Puts a More Serious Aspect on Chinese Affairs.

London, Aug. 20. — Rear Admiral Bruce cables the admiralty from Chefu, Aug. 19, as follows:

"Am informed on the authority of the Japanese that street fighting still continues in Peking, part of which is on fire. Yang Sa (?) prevented the empress from leaving, and a last stand is now being made in the inner city, which is surrounded by the allies and being bombarded."

Rear Admiral Bruce's report of the continuation of fighting in Peking puts a more serious aspect on the Chinese situation than was generally expected here. It appears effectually to dispose of all statements that the empress dowager had fled, although circumstantial accounts of her departure continue to come from Shanghai.

Despite defeat the Chinese are apparently resolved to make a desperate struggle not only in their ancient capital, but also in other parts of the empire. Shang Chi Tung, viceroy at Hankow, and Liu Kun Yi, viceroy at Nanking, according to advices from Shanghai, have threatened the consuls, saying that if the person of the empress dowager is not respected they will withdraw from their present friendly attitude.

Another Shanghai dispatch announces the death of Li Ping Hong, Cheng and Chang Lui Lin in the fighting before Peking.

The mandarins in the southern provinces, according to a dispatch to the Daily Express from Hongkong, have issued an important proclamation recognizing the capture of Peking as a just punishment of reactionary officials and warning the people not to interfere with the foreigners, but also pointing out that the sole object of the powers should be punishment of the "Boxer" and then the restoration of peace, confining, however, their operations to the north.

-doubts:I M.ad-w ,osHP cmr cm .emm

ROBERTS' FIRM STAND.

No Mercy for Those Who Break Their Oaths.

Pretoria, Aug. 20. — Lord Roberts' proclamation, after reciting the fact that many have broken the oath to maintain neutrality and that the leniency extended to the burghers is not appreciated, warns all who break their oath in the future that they will be punished by death, imprisonment or fine. He declares that all burghers in districts occupied by the British, except those who take the oath will be regarded as prisoners of war and transported, and that buildings on farms where the enemy or his scouts are harbored, will be liable to be razed.

SHAH ESCAPES.

Second Attempt Made on the Life of the Persian Ruler.

Paris, Aug. 20.—The Siecle says, a private telegram from Ostend states that an attack similar in all points to that made by the anarchist in Paris on Aug. 2 was made Saturday on the shah of Persia. Details of the assault are lacking. The Echo de Paris publishes the bare statement from Ostend that an attempt had been made upon the life of the shah, adding that owing to the lateness of the hour it was impossible to obtain confirmation of the report.

RAIN A LUXURY.

Ore Handler Demands Higher Pay Because of Wet.

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—The ore handlers at the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio ore dock refused to unload the steamer Simon J. Murphy until they were paid 28 cents per ton instead of 22 cents, on account of the ore being wet. The increased cost of unloading this cargo was $1,500. Capt. John Mitchell, the owner of the largest fleet of boats on the lakes, declares that he will not carry ore to any dock where the increased charge is made.

ARE THROWN OUT.

American Fire Brigade Disqualified for Professionalism.

Paris, Aug. 20.—The Kansas City fire brigade has been disqualified for securing prizes at the international exhibition of fire apparatus at Vincennes on the ground of professionalism, the staff being paid. The men were permitted, however, to give an exhibition. As regards speed in preparing their apparatus for reaching the top of buildings, and the height and distance of projecting water, they outclassed all competitors.

MANY PERSONS ARE INJURED.

Bridge at Paris Exposition Collapses and Thirty Persons Are Injured.

Paris, Aug. 20.—Another accident has occurred at the exposition, the bridge over the Boulevard la Tour Maubourg, joining one part of the show with another, having fallen. According to the first account of the accident thirty persons were injured, five of them seriously.

Father Killed in Self-Defense.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 20. — James M. Burnham, publisher of a paper at Waymore, Neb., shot and killed his father, Capt. Collins A. Burnheim, at their home yesterday. A coroner's jury immediately exonerated the son. Both father and son were prominent political workers in the county in which they reside. The killing was in self-defense.

Drouth in Kansas.

Kansas City, Aug. 20.—Two-thirds of Kansas west of the three easternmost tiers of counties is experiencing one of the most severe drouths in the history of the state, and the general opinion is that the Kansas corn crop will be the smallest, in proportion to its requirements for feeding, that has been raised in many years.

Klondike Is American.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 20.—The steamer Amur has just arrived from Skagway. Advices brought say that Richard Mansfield White of New York, mine owner and explorer, in an interview given at Skagway, contends that the Klondike is in American territory.

Sprung a Leak and Sunk.

Escanaba, Mich., Aug. 20—The wooden steamer Argonaut sprung aleak yesterday after taking on a cargo of iron ore and sunk at her dock.

Harvesting in Progress.

Devils Lake, N. D., Aug. 20.—Harvesting is progressing and the yield will exceed estimates of the state where hail struck.

Day's Record of Fatalities.

Pittsburg, Aug. 20.—Four drownings and one death from burning is Pittsburg's fatal accident record for the day.

FORGOT TO VOTE

THE RECORD OF THE GENIAL CAPTAIN AS A LEGISLATOR.

Troubled With Absence of Mind or Absence of Body. The Matter With the Commercial Travelers—Republicans Relying on a Whoop and a Snort—Shameful Treatment of the Captain by His Own Organs—Other Points of a Political Nature.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Aug. 20, 1900.

"By their fruits ye shall know them."

The fruits of a public man are his public acts. The public acts of a legislator are recorded in the journal of the house of which he has been a member.

Not many years ago (not so many that the ink has faded) the present Republican candidate for governor of Minnesota was a member of the house of representatives. To avoid all possibility of mistake, let it be said that his name is Samuel R. Van Sant, otherwise known as the "Captain." Like all other members of that worthy assembly, he left behind him a record, to bless or to damn, as the case may be.

Let us take a look at it. The Captain, being such a "jolly" good fellow, will not mind it, and, being a candidate for governor, he is, of course, anxious that his zeal and devotion to duty in the minor position should count in his favor, now that he aspires to serve the people in a more important office. What more natural than to expect promotion for duty well done?

So here goes: It was in the year 1893 that the Captain carved out for himself the record which now will be examined.

The first measure of importance to be met with in the journal of the house is H. F. No. 26. This was a very meritorious bill. It aimed to protect the rights of citizenship by making it a misdemeanor on the part of employers to require, as a condition of employment, the surrender by any person of his rights as a citizen. This measure was conceived with the idea of protecting those who were not in a position to protect themselves. The worthy Captain would be the very man to bear down hard on a bill of this kind and to sit up nights thinking how to secure its passage. Let us see how he voted. Thunder and lightning! What can have been the matter with the Captain? HE FORGOT TO VOTE. There must have been some misunderstanding somewhere. Perhaps the Captain had not got onto the ropes yet.

The next bill of a somewhat similar character was H. F. No. 95, a bill for the protection of employes. What does the record say?

Forgot to vote again? Well, well, sure enough. Captain, you will have to do better than this if you want the votes of the laboring men.

Next comes H. F. 324, a bill prohibiting pawnbrokers from charging more than 10 per cent interest. Surely the Captain's heart bleeds for these poor people who find it necessary to patronize the pawnbroker? Let us see the record. Did he forget to vote this time also? Well yes, he did, of course. He is the prosperity candidate, and will have nothing to do with such low-down trash as the people who patronize the pawnbrokers. In the language of the classics, to —ll with 'em.

Now let us try a senate file for a change. Here is one, S. F. 266, a bill for an act to compel street railway companies to protect certain of their employes (motormen) from the inclemencies of the weather. Now, if there ever was a measure that had merit in it, this is the one. The motormen used to have to stand out on the open platform, no matter how cold and stormy it might be. It was such an inhumane and unnecessary hardship that public opinion demanded a stop put to it; but, hanged if the Captain did not again forget to vote.

For fear that this thing may become tiresome, perhaps it would be best to postpone moralizing and go at the facts as revealed by the record without further comment.

H. H. 502 provides for the erection of grain elevators on the right of way of railroads and is designed to prevent monopoly in the local grain markets. The Captain forgot to vote.

H. F. 674 declares express companies to be common carriers and as such subject to regulation. T. O. f. t. v. (To save space these letters will be understood as meaning that the Captain, as usual, forgot to vote.)

H. F. 784 prohibits pools and trusts in Minnesota. T. O. f. t. v.

S. F. 114 authorizes the levy and collection of taxes on inheritances, etc. T. O. f. t. v.

S. F. 127 requires railroad companies to give notice of the time when belated passenger trains are expected to arrive. T. O. f. t. v.

S. F. 577 provides for the appointment of a committee to investigate certain frauds upon the state in connection with the sale of public lands. T. O. f. t. v.

H. F. 56 provides for the building of sidetracks to elevators and mills situated on lands adjacent to the right of way of railroads. T. O. f. t. v.

H. F. 340 provides for the interchange of cars at junction points. T. O. f. t. v.

H. F. 274 provides for the stopping of trains at county seats. The Captain here cleared his throat, spat on his hands, manned his soul with firmness, donned his rough rider hat, and voted against the bill.

P. S. If he had been permitted to have his way he would now be campaigning with a parachute attachment to help him get off the trains at some of the county seats.

The Captain's record for 1895 is reserved for some future occasion.

It is now generally known that the great army of commercial travelers are supporting the Democratic and Peoples party ticket this year. They have good reason. They understand the situation and know that the Republican policy has bred the trusts which have robbed thousands of traveling men of their employment. According to a list prepared by James W. Jump, chairman of the national Democratic committee of commercial travelers, 100 of the big combinations have absorbed 2,314 independent concerns, and thereby relieved at least 40,000 men of their jobs. Furthermore, the office force in almost every independent concern was cut ownd proportionately in a greater degree. "The salaries of a number of independent superintendents and managers were cut off and lumped in one, to be handed out in gross to some favored individual who happened to be on the right spot when the business was fenced in with barbed wire."

Mr. Monett, the former Republican attorney general of Ohio, keeps his eyes and ears open, and as a result he sizes up the Republican plan of campaign in this wise: "One glance at Teddie's hat and a whoop and a snort from a rural postmaster, and our leaders think they will accomplish more than all logical arguments and anti-trust speeches."

Apropos of the talk about the New York ice trust, the Sioux Falls Daily Press gets back at our friend the enemy thusly: About all the Republicans can say of the alleged Democrats who got mixed up with Platt's men in the New York ice trust is that they look and act very much as if they were not Democrats. And this is not so uncomplimentary to the Democratic party, either.

"It is emblematic of Americanism. It typifies the best thoughts and highest aspirations of Americans. There is no reason why it should not be worn by every man who believes that no mission or destiny can be too broad or high or noble for the American republic." So says one of the stalwart Republican dailies of Chicago. And what may this wonderful thing be over which the paper raves? This proudest emblem of the Republican party; a thing over which to grow maudlin? This highest emblem of Americanism is not the Stars and Stripes. No, it is—Roosevelt's slouch hat.

Will somebody please explain. The Republican campaign managers and their organs in Minnesota are asserting that Governor Lind's administration has weakened the reform forces and his own chances of re-election. At the same time these same managers and organs figure out a majority of 60,000 for their national ticket and not less than 10,000 for Van Sant in this state. How does it happen, anyhow, that Van Sant is going to run some 50,000 votes behind his ticket, in spite of the fact that he is so strong and Lind is so weak among the voters?

The imperialists are in desperate straits trying to show that Thomas Jefferson and some others whose memories are revered by all good Democrats occupied the ground now held by the Republican party in favor of acquiring new territory by fair means or foul. One of the organs now introduces Stephen A. Douglas as a Democrat whose patriotism caused him to declare in favor of the Republican policy of expansion. An extract is published from a speech delivered by Douglas in his famous debate with Lincoln, in which "The Little Giant" said:

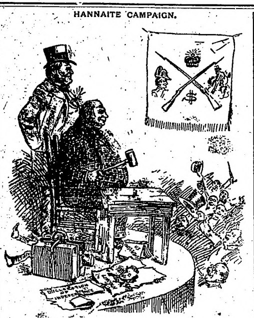
"Whenever it becomes necessary in our growth and progress to acquire more territory I am in favor of it without reference to the question of slavery, and when we have acquired it I will leave the people free to do as they please, either to make it slave or free territory, as they may prefer."

This is quoted by the Republican organ to show that Douglas, though a Democrat, was of one mind with the latter day imperialists.

The genial Captain Van Sant is receiving shameful treatment at the hands of the leading organs of his own party. He addressed two meetings in Minneapolis the other day, and he certainly had the right to expect that the Republican dailies would report a part at least of what was said by their candidate for the governorship. But in point of fact they pay less attention to his remarks than to those of the ordinary ward heeler. The Journal, for instance, says of the first meeting, at which the Captain made the chief address, that he "made a rattling talk along the line of national issues." At the other meeting everybody crowded up around him and insisted upon a handshake, "after which he cut loose in his usual effective fashion."

This is all. No part of any of his speeches is reported. The Captain might with good reason protest against such shabby treatment. If there were any ladies present at any of the meetings the Captain said, of course, that he was glad to see them and that if the ladies could vote he would be elected without a doubt. He never fails to make this witty remark when occasion offers. This much, at least, the papers might have reported, even though they did not care to quote anything else of what their candidate said when he "cut loose in his usual effective fashion."

HANNAITE CAMPAIGN.



Mark Swings the Gavel in G. O. P. Campaign Meetings.
—National Watchman.

MORALITY SIDE OF IT

William Lloyd Garrison on the McKinley Criminal Aggression.

The Morality Side of Our War of Conquest in the Philippines.

Other Political Pointers on the Campaign Now Under Way.

In a recent publication William Lloyd Garrison, of Boston, son of the great Emancipator Garrison, thus presents the morality side of the McKinley war of criminal aggression in the Philippines:

It is to be hoped that in time we shall obtain faithful pictures of life in camp and field. Today it is difficult to find a medium of publication when the facts conflict with the theories of the administration. That a tacit censorship exists in the Republican press is palapable to every one who tries to get an insertion of unwelcome truth. The soldiers' letters, written privately, without thought of publicity, have revealed a depth of depravity and brutality so terrible that the last resort of the leading newspapers has been to throw discredit on their truth.

Bishop Potter, after six days in Manila, comes back to tell us of the sobriety and good habits of the American soldier in the tropics. He did not see one drunken soldier, nor does he allude to the licentiousness of army men. It happened that on the very day his testimony was given to the world there called upon me an army official who had spent six months at Manila. Naturally I inquired if his observation and opinion coincided with those of the bishop, whose warning that the true question with which the nation must deal is not "What shall we do with the Philippines, but what shall the Philippines do with us?" had not been forgotten. My informant is a man of medical education, a careful observer of reflective mind, and exceedingly deliberate in speech. This is the substance of his reply:

He left San Francisco with the first troops sent to the Philippines. The Western regiment to which he was attached numbered about 1,300 men. Before sailing from San Francisco, not only was drunkenness prevalent, but 460 men were registered for venereal diseases.

Arrived in Manila, they found but few houses of ill-repute, with less than a score of total occupants, but immediately from all quarters came a great and sudden accession. From Vladivostock, Singapore, Yokohama, Hong Kong, Calcutta and other treaty ports abandoned women poured in to the new and active market. Social vice makes no distinction of race or color. These importations included Russians, Germans, French and Italians. Three hundred were reported as arriving on one steamer. They found cordial welcome, and their houses were guarded by United States soldiers under orders to protect the traffic.

My visitor affirmed that, when he left Manila, in the Calla Alix, a street in the northwestern part of the city, these notorious houses occupied both sides of the way for three-quarters of a mile, the windows filled with soliciting women in garbs too scandalous for description. The blessings of American civilization were beginning among a chaste and temperate people. Actual war upon the the natives, although imminent, had not yet begun.

On the arrival of the regiment, there existed, according to my informant, one brewery, one distillery, one garden for the sale of beer and spirits, and several hotels, clubs and restaurants, where liquor was served with meals. Among 8,000 Spanish prisoners not a single case of drunkenness was observable. With the arrival of troops, the grog-shops multiplied and flourished, over 400 cursing the conquered city. That the officers were no better than the men was the conviction of my informant. It was a coincident that on the very day of Bishop Potter's speech the government recorted the dismissal from the army by court martial of Maj. Kirkman and Lieuts. Gregg and Bailey for "drunkenness in the streets of Manila."

The regimental canteen, my caller affirmed, was worse than the grog-shop. The temptation is ever present, and any good resolutions or feelings of disgust after a spree were quickly dispelled by another drink. On the financial side, a soldier's was limited at the saloon. Not so at the canteen, where his pay was held as secruity for his drink, and often entirely absorbed. A soldier is obliged to seek a grog-shop, but the canteen seeks him.

If one questions whether such necessarily anonymous testimony as I report is to be compared with that of the great and good bishop of New York, let him read the chapter of horrors detailed in the New York Voice by Frank M. Wells, late chaplain of United States volunteers, which he gave verbally to President McKinley and Secretary Root. Chaplain Pierce has laid stress upon the number of huts from which maddening native liquors were dispensed, but it is not made plain that these were not in such evidence before our troops arrived, for whose trade they were established. Chaplain Wells, in a recent interview with the editor of the New York Philanthropist, testified: "Whispy and bad women are running more men into death in the Philippines than are being killed by Filipino bullets or injured by other causes."

Drunkenness, lust, gambling, brutality and other vices that annihilate conscience are in full swing in Manila. Not only are these natives polluted by this contact with superior civilization, but the soldiers who return to the United States bring with them the seeds of disease and contagion, to be sown broadcast. Who can estimate the ravages among our own people in consequence?

We have a president belonging to the great Methodist denomination, which, probably includes the largest per cent of prohibitionists of any religious organization in the country. The souls of many of its members are stirred over the question whether their distinguished communicant turns his wineglass down on festive occasions or ventures to take a drop. We have a secretary of the navy who is president of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence society. Contributions for it are annually solicited to save a few drunkards from the gutter. Mr. McKinley has but to speak the word to close every grog shop in Manila and remedy the canteen abomination. He can find excuses for arbitrary power to the extent of nullifying the principles of republican government and disregarding the constitution, but not to clean out the saloons in the Philippines. Nor has the total abstainer, Secretary Long, yet made his influence felt against this national enormity, which destroys more human beings in a day than this Massachusetts society can rescue in a lifetime. Let the responsibility be placed where it belongs.

This is a difficult subject to handle without offence, but it needs exposure and emphasis more than any other aspect of war. Death closes the account, and wounds of flesh may heal, but the soul degredation and dissemination of vice through the great enginery of the army entails incalculable curse. Nothing should stir the indignation and purpose of women like this sin against the human race. From Cuba and Porto Rico comes the same story. The trail of armies is the trail of the serpent, and no fine phrases like those of Bishop Potter can for a moment obscure the devlish work in which the countrymen of Washington and Lincoln are now engaged. Two thousand years after the birth of the Prince of Peace, and pious lips, in His name, shielding the crime and the criminals!

—WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON.

Boston, May, 1900.

WILL THE LIGHT GO OUT?

August 9th a Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle sent to his paper a message quoting Admiral Dewey in these words: "I regard the news from the Philippines as particularly encouraging. Aguinaldo's lieutenants are surrendering, one after another. Whatever show of resistance to our authority there is at present in the Philippines will be kept up until after our election in November. The insurrection is kept alive by the leaders, who hold out to the soldiers the hope of Bryan's election." And on the same day this despatch was sent by all the Washington correspondents and the Associated Press to all the princpal papers throughout the country. On the next day Admiral Dewey gave to the press a statement denying that he had made use of words saying or intimating "that whatever show of resistance to our authority there is at present in the Philippines will be kept up until after our election in November. The insurrection is kept alive by the leaders who hold out to the soldiers the hope of Bryan's election." This denial was published in at least some of the leading newspapers of the country.

It is clear that Admiral Dewey gave an interview to the correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle. If it is accepted that Admiral Dewey is a truthful man the conclusion is that the correspondent lied, or that the correspondent misinterpreted what Admiral Dewey did say. It does not matter very much in our view whether Admiral Dewey used the words or not, whether they express his opinion or not. It is evident that they do express the charge which has many times been repeated by the supporters of the McKinley administration, and if the correspondent purposely misquoted Admiral Dewey it was with premeditation and done in order to hold up Bryan and his supporters to the scorn and hatred of the people, and in effect to charge them with disloyalty. The inference is that in resorting to deceit and lying and in the attempt to show that Admiral Dewey, a supposed Democrat, denounced Bryan and his followers as traitors, the Republican leaders are in desperate straits. They fear defeat, and hope by an appeal to the patriotism of the people to save themselves.

There is one view of the matter which does not seem to have penetrated the mind of the administration supporters, who are maddened by the splendors of imperialism, namely, that the Filipinos, if they are holding out with the hope of Bryan's election, are more intelligent than they have been considered. That they clearly see the difference between the liberty and government that will be vouchsafed to them by McKinley and that which will be granted to them by Bryan, and their love of independence and self-government is so great that they are ready and willing to make the most awful sacrifices in order to secure them. They do not take kindly to imperialism. They are unwilling to accept that degree of self-government which "is consistent with their welfare and our duties," promised them by the Republican platform. They have no confidence in the generosity or magnanimity of the Republicans, and believe that their conception and measurement of the degree of self-government which they will be allowed to participate in if the Republican policy is continued, bears no resemblance to the object for which they have so long struggled, the right of independence and liberty. They have always been subjects, and they long to become citizens. And the correspondent, as the mouthpiece of the administration, has again revealed to the world that the great American republic, which has been in the past the bright ray of hope to the oppressed natives and the example and encouragement of all efforts of their people to throw off despotism has been dimmed, and that the light will go out forever if McKinley is re-elected. The question to be decided at the November election is: Shall that Light of Liberty and Equality fail?" Even the benighted people of the Philippines can see, according to Admiral Dewey, or at least according to those who would use his testimony, that this is the impending issue. What shall be the answer? Will the light go out, or will it shine all the brighter after November 3rd?

When I say that the contest of 1900 is a contest between Democracy on the one hand and plutocracy on the other I do not mean to say that all our opponents have deliberately chosen to give to organized wealth a predominating influence in the affairs of the government, but I do assert that on the important issues of the day the Republican party is dominated by those influences which constantly tend to elevate pecuniary considerations and ignore human rights.

The Democratic party is not making war upon the honest acquisition of wealth; it has no desire to discourage industry, economy and thrift. On the contrary, it gives to every citizen the greatest possible stimulus to honest toil when it promises him protection in the enjoyment of the proceeds of his labor. Property rights are most secure when human rights are respected.

Republicans who gloried in our independence when the nation was less powerful now look with favor upon a foreign alliance. Republicans who three years ago condemned "forcible annexation" as immoral and even criminal, are now sure that it is both immoral and criminal to oppose forcible annexation.

If it is right for the United States to hold the Philippine islands permanently and imitate European empires in the government of colonies the Republican party ought to state its position and defend it, but it must expect the subject races to protest against such a policy and to resist to the extent of their ability.

If the Republicans are prepared to censure all who have used language calculated to make the Filipinos hate foreign domination let them condemn the speech of Patrick Henry. When he uttered that passionate appeal, "Give me liberty or give me death," he expressed a sentiment which still echoes in the hearts of men.

We cannot repudiate the principle of self-government in the Philippines without weakening that principle here. Even now we are beginning to see the paralyzing influence of imperialism.

A large standing army is not only a pecuniary burden to the people and, if accomplished by compulsory service, a constant source of irritation, but it is ever a menace to a Republican form of government.

Force can defend a right, but force has never yet created a right. If it was true, as declared in the resolutions of intervention, that the Cubans "are and of right ought to be freed and independent" (language taken from the Declaration of Independence). It es equally true that the Filipinos "are and of right ought to be free and independent."

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.

Chattel Loans.

Foreign & Domestic Xchange

INSURANCE.

Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY Notice in "Inventive Age" Book "How to obtain Patents" FREE

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY

D. COLLINS

THE

Photograper.

ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED

FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)

Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

FIRE INSURANCE

DO YOU NEED SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound.........5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.........15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.....20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.

LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn. as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

ADVERTISING rates will be made known on application and are very reasonable.

REMITTANCES should be made on postal notes postoffice or express orders. Short time subscriptions in two cent stamps.

CORRESPONDENCE from all points in the vicinity of St. Hilaire desired. Make communications concise, writing upon only one side of the paper.

WEDNESDAY, AUG., 22, 1900.

NATIONAL TICKET.

For President—
WILLIAM J. BRYAN,
of Nebraska.

For Vice-President—
ADLAI E. STEVENSON,
of Illinois.

For Congressman 7th District—
M. J. DALY.

Kate Masterson's First Poem.

Kate Masterson, the poet and humorist, thus describes the beginning of her literary career:

"I was at school in Brooklyn when I first sent a poem to Judge, signing it Kittie K. It was accepted and published with an illustration, and my cup of joy was brimming. When I got a check for $2, I effervesced. I then sent some verses to Puck, which was then edited by H. C. Bunner. They were also signed Kittie K., but were written from a masculine point of view, and, as I wrote a very gentlemanly hand, Bunner evidently came to the conclusion that I was a boy. He sent me some very funny letters, and I replied, keeping up the idea that I was a very fresh, slangy boy. He accepted the verses, 'She Stood on the Stair,' and they were published in a Christmas number with a picture. As this was only the second poem I had sold in my life, you can imagine how wildly anxious I was to have it appear. I bothered Bunner with inquiries, for, of course that was the only poem on earth to me just then. I recollect finally writing him, 'Do you think my poem will be published during my lifetime?'

"He wrote me, 'My dear boy, I cannot say if your poem will be published during your lifetime, as I do not know when you are going to die.'"—Saturday Evening Post.

Base Apathy.

"Say, Thompson, did you ever notice that I was brutally indifferent to my children?"

"Certainly not. You're quite the contrary, Holmes."

"Well, do I look like a miscreant who would be only too glad to abandon them to the mercy of strangers?"

"Of course not. Whatever put such an idea into your head?"

"Or have I the reputation of being so selfish that I would not disturb or exert myself in the slightest to secure their safety from the most desperate danger?"

"No, indeed. Who's been accusing you of such things?"

"My wife."

"Your wife? Why?"

"Why, little Johnny got himself lost for a couple of hours the other day, and all I did was to notify the police, hire every private detective in town and rouse all the neighbors to help hunt for him."

"Wasn't that enough?"

"No. She insists that I am a brutal, selfish miscreant and several other things because I refused to do all she wanted me to."

"Why, what more was possible?"

"Make the governor order out the militia to help hunt."—Harper's Bazar.

Able to Hear It.

It is well known that Joseph Medill of the Chicago Tribune was somewhat deaf, although his ability at times to hear what was said in an ordinary tone of voice was frequently remarked.

It is related of him that he dropped into the business department of the office one day to make an inquiry about something that had occurred to him, and a young man who had been in his employ only a few months undertook in a loud tone of voice to enlighten him.

"What did you say?" asked Mr. Medill, putting his hand to his ear.

The young man repeated the question in a still louder voice.

"I can't hear you," said the editor.

"Oh, chase yourself around the block, you old granny!" muttered the impatient employee just above his breath.

"I am not an old granny," said Mr. Medill, turning away, "and I shall not chase myself around the block."

The fresh young man made immediate arrangements to say goodby to his job, but the great editor probably thought that the lesson he had received was sufficient and did not disturb him.

The Same Thing.

"I'm sorry we haven't much of a dinner," said Spatts to Bloobumper, whom he had urged to stay for that meal. "You ought to have dropped in last evening. We had a stunning dinner then."

"Why, papa," chirped Sammy Spatts, "that's just what you told Mr. Taddells at dinner yesterday!"—Detroit Free Press.

She Walked on Him.

"Did you propose to her? What was the result?"

"Well, she took me for a walk."

"Ah! To give you a chance to tell her, eh?"

"Not at all. I say she took me for a walk because she used me as if I was one. She got on to me with both feet."—Philadelphia Press.

THEY TOOK CHANCES.

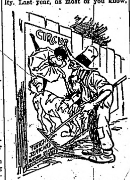
ALL WERE WILLING TO RISK THE CIRCUS POSTERS AGAIN.

Pap Perkins, the Jericho Postmaster, Tells the Arguments That Were Used, the P'ints That Were Made and How the Decision Came.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

It was Moses Harper who begun it. Some one told him that a circus advertisin wagon was slowly but surely approaching the town of Jericho, and he let it be known that he would show up at the postoffice in the evenin and have sunthin to say to interest the full United States. Nobody could guess whether Moses had found a new way of gittin a hired man up at 4 o'clock in the mornin or was goin to experiment on growin broomsticks, and the crowd was holdin its breath when he showed up. Moses didn't lose no valuable time tryin to find out whether Porto Rico belonged to the United States or to a tobacco trust, but put on his spectacles and said:

"Citizens of Jericho—The tocsin has sounded! and we are here tonight to counsel together in the cause of morality. Last year, as most of you know, Jonas Teachout, whose barn faces the highway a mile outside of this town, allowed the circus wagon to paste up pictures on three sides of the buildin. How many tickets for the circus he got in exchange I do not know, and it has nuthin to do with the question. What I'm sayin is that them pictures, in my solemn belief, shocked the morals of this community fur worse than as if ten saloons had been opened in the town. The circus wagon is ag'in approachin. It is creepin along in its sly, insiduous way, leavin the blight of destruction in its path, and if sunthin ain't done Jonas Teachout's barn will ag'in be enwrapped in the allurin colors of vice and degradation. I move that it is the sense of this meetin, and of the community in gineral, that Jonas be struggled with."



"THE ALLURIN COLORS OF VICE AND DEGRADATION."

"It appears to me," says Deacon Spooner as Moses sat down, "that a p'int has bin made. When Moses talks of allurin colors of vice and degradation, I seem to see before me them pictures of wimen jumpin through paper hoops. However, I'd like to hear from Silas Lapham. I reckon he's interested in the moral welfare of this community."

"I ain't blamin Jonas 'tall," says Silas. "He got 12 deadhead tickets fur the use of his barn, and I don't believe anybody was the wickeder fur it. If a man can't gaze at circus pictures without goin away and stealin a bar'l of soft soap, then he ain't no man. Did any wife run away from her husband because of them pictures? Did any husband elope with the hired gal because of them?"

"That's a p'int, and I says it's a p'int!" exclaims the deacon as he hustles about. "Them circus pictures was on that barn fur two months, but what fam'ly was busted up through their influence? It's fur Moses to specify whar vice got its toehold."

"I ain't sayin that any fam'lies was busted up," continues Moses, "but I'm talkin 'bout the gineral influence on gineral morality. A circus picture is nuthin but a picture, but it suggests lemonade and peanuts and whisky and poker and bein out late nights. They are like pizen ivy. You come across it in the woods, and it is fair to look upon, and it seems to be rooted in innocence and thrivin in morality. You handle it, and you begin to itch and scratch and find yourself pizened. Like a hydra headed sarpint, it lays in wait to work destruction to the unwary. I hope this meetin and this community air with me and that it will be decided to wrassle with Jonas Teachout."

"Moses didn't seem to make a p'int on the peanuts and lemonade," says the deacon as he scratches his ear, "but he was powerful strong on that pizen ivy bein rooted in innocence. I kin almost see whar circus pictures might influence me to go home and pound my old cow with a sled stake if she didn't keep her tail still while I was milkin, but I'm willin to hear more argyments. Enos Williams, you driv' by that barn twice a day all summer. How did them pictures affect you?"

"Not much different from a huskin bee," says Enos. "I didn't feel no feelin's of wickedness stealin o'er me, but I did sort of make a fool of myself. I found a soft spot in the barnyard and tried to turn a handspring, and fur about two hours they thought my neck was busted. I'm thinkin that hard cider has more giner'l influence on gineral morality in this community than circus pictures."

"It's a p'int!" shouts the deacon as he waves his cane on high; "it's a p'int nobody kin git over! It's hard cider that's backin vice all over this county and h'istin innocence over the fence whenever they meet. However, it may be that circus pictures also have their influence. Moses, have you got any more argyments?"

"Of what use?" says Moses as he heaves a sigh and turns away. "Wasn't Sodam warned? Did Sodam heed it? When vice stalks rampant through every household in Jericho and innocence is driv' to the fields to sit under a blackberry bush and weep, then remember what I have said here tonight. I ain't denyin that hard cider is bluntin our morality, but when you add circus pictures to hard cider what do you do?"

"Yes, Sodam was warned, and Sodam fell," says the deacon as he shakes his head, "but I'd like to hear from Lish Billings on this matter."

"It's purty late," says Lish.

"How purty late?"

"Why, Jonas has rented his barn ag'in and got 21 deadhead tickets, and here's one he give me. How's that fur a p'int?"

The meetin stood appalled fur a minit, and then Deacon Spooner looks around and says:

"Jonas has got 20 tickets left, and that means he has 16 more to give away outside his fam'ly. Fellow countrymen, do you take it that this meetin has pledged herself?"

"No, no, no!" shouted the crowd.

"Is it the opinion of this meetin that Jonas Teachout ought to be wrassled with?"

"No, no, no!"

"Then I'm appealin directly to Moses Harper. Moses, will you withdraw them remarks about the blight of destruction, the allurin colors of vice and innocence weepin under a blackberry bush?"

"I might," says Moses after a little reflection, "but I want to be let down easy."

"It shall be done. I'm offerin the followin resolution to be voted on: 'Resolved, That circus pictures on a barn may or may not affect the moral standard of a community, but we are willin to chance it this year.' All in favor or ag'in will manifest it in the usual way."

The resolution was carried with a whoop, and the crowd piled over itself to get outdoors and look around for Jonas Teachout and beg fur deadhead tickets, and Moses Harper wasn't one of the last.

M. QUAD.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

HIRED GIRL'S PROGRESS.

Fable Showing Wisdom of Silence Concerning Some Things.

Once upon a time there came into the city from the country a girl. The girl wandered from her happy home to secure employment among the wealthy families of the city, and when she made known the fact that she was willing to work many persons sought her and implored her to engage with them in domestic pursuits. The girl was overwhelmed with offers, but finally made a selection and settled in a family that valued her services very highly. The girl was happy until one day her employer met a neighbor, a very dear friend, and told her of her good fortune in finding the country girl. And this neighbor met another very dear friend and told her of her other friend's good luck, and thus did it become generally known that there was a good "hired girl" in the neighborhood.

And from that time on the mistress and the girl were unhappy until one day the very dear friend gave the girl $1.50 more a week than she was earning in her first place, and in this manner did the girl become happy again, while her mistress and the very dear friend ceased to be on speaking terms. And then the girl became unhappy again until the other very dear friend engaged her at an advance of $1, and the other dear friend and the first dear friend ceased to talk over the back fence. And then the good girl wore fine dresses and fine hats, and one day a dashing young man led her to the altar, and now the three friends and the poor country girl are all very happy.

Moral.—Don't talk good about your hired girl.—Detroit Free Press.

A Dachshund Tragedy.

"Stimler's collar button rolled under the bureau."

"Yes."

"And he 'sicked' his dachshund after it."

"Go on."

"The bureau is heavy and stands close to the floor."

"Proceed."

"The dachshund is the thinnest dachshund that ever breathed, and he could just squeeze under the bureau."

"Well?"

"Well, the dachshund reached the collar button and at once swallowed it. It stuck half way down and thickened the dog so that he couldn't pull himself past the lump. So Stimler had to call in the janitor of the flat, and they lifted the bureau off the dog."

"What about the button?"

"Stimler said he'd let the dog keep the button. He might need it."

"Need it?"

"Yes, in case somebody collared him."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Long Lightning Conductor.

Bavaria boasts that it has the longest lightning conductor in the world. It rises some yards above the top of the meteorological station on the Zugspitze, the highest point in the German empire, and runs down the side of the mountain to the bottom of the Hollenthal, where there is running water all the year round. The length of the rod is five and a half kilometers, nearly three miles and a half.

A philosopher says that every failure is a step toward success. This explains why some men become richer every time they fail.—Chicago News.

It is unfortunate that every one's memory is best in retaining things it would be more genteel to forget.—Atchison Globe.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 21, 1900.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on September 18th 1900, viz: Levant G. Rice, H. E. 19760, for the se¼ nw¼ and ne¼ sw¼ sec. 32, twp. 153 N, range 42 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:—Hulva Hulvason, Hans Frederickson, George German, of Thief River Falls, Minn., and Louis Hendrickson of St. Hilaire, Minn.

52-5 SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to give FARM, STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.35.

NOTICE.

Department of the Interior.
United States Land Office.
Crookston, Minnesota.

PUBLIC SALE,—ISOLATED TRACT.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office under authority in him vested by section 2455 U. S. R. S., as amended by the Act of February 26, 1895, (28 Stat., 687) we will proceed to offer at public sale for cash at this office on the 1st day of September 1900, at ten o'clock a. m., the following tract of land to-wit:

SE¼ NE¼ Sec. 1, T. 151 N., R. 43 W.

Any and all persons claiming adversly the above described lands are advised to file their claims in this office on or before the day above designated for the commencement of the said sale otherwise their rights will be forfeited.

Dated July 20th, 1900.

SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

Miscl. App. No. 296—3161.
52-5

Order for Hearing and Notice of Application for Appointment of Administrator.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Red Lake. } ss In Probate Court. Special Term, August 10th A. D. 1900.

In the matter of the estate of Philip L. Weber, deceased.

On receiving and filing the Petition of K. O. Gigstad of the village of St. Hilaire and county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, representing, among other things, that Philip L. Weber late of the town of Hemet, county of Riverside and State of California on the sixth day of August A. D. 1898 at the town of Hemet in the county of Riverside and State of California died intestate, and being a resident of said Riverside county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a creditor of said deceased and praying that administration of said estate be to K. O. Gigstad granted:

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before this Court, on Monday the 17th day of September A. D. 1900 at ten o'clock A. M. at the probate office in said county.

Ordered Further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the St. Hilaire Spectator a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire in the said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 10th day of August A. D. 1900.

By the Court,
JOHN T. KNIGHT,
Judge of Probate.

[SEAL]
3-6

—Screen doors and windows made to order at I. Dahleen's, one door north of Bank of St. Hilaire.

$22.50 will buy $1,000 Fire Insurance For 5 YEARS. On Your Farm Buildings in a Reliable Company. Call on H. E. IVES.

Barber Shop

—AND—

BATH ROOMS.

Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Razors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

—Every farmer who writes a letter occasionally should get envelopes with his name and address printed in the corner. We will furnish 100 of the best quality printed in any style for the small sum of 75 cts. Send in your order

A. O. LETVIG,

TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.

A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed. Repairing a Specialty.

WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

RUNS THROUGH CARS

TO ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

To HELENA
BUTTE
SPOKANE
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND

PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES. OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured. A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

20,000 Acres

Of Wild and Improved Lands for sale in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

Prairie Lands,
Speculators Lands,
Timber Lands.

HIMLE LAND & LOAN COMPANY,

Purchasers of N. P. Ry. Co. lands in Marshall and Red Lake Counties.

Call on or address

FRED G. WELLS, Local Mgr.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

$150,000 to Loan on Farm Lands.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

UNCLE SAM Is not In the Shoe Business, And Neither Am I, But I can Interest You in CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

J. B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

Necessary

For the Picnic Lunch • Twenty-Four Bottles of Satisfaction in Every Case

HAMM'S BEER

Supplied by Agents Everywhere, or THEO. HAMM BREWING CO., St. Paul, Minn.

At your service—

UNCLE SAM'S MONOGRAM WHISKEY

For General or Medicinal Use.

GEO. BENZ & SONS. ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Burlington Route

Electric Light in Every Berth

A special feature of the Burglington's Chicago Limited. When you retire, turn on the light. After you are comfortably ensconced between the sheets, you can read by it. When you are sleepy, a twist of the wrist—and the light's out. Leaves Minneapolis 7:20 p. m., St. Paul 8:05 p. m., daily. Arrives Chicago 9:25 next morning. Scenic Day Express leaves Minneapolis 7:40 a. m., St. Paul 8:15 a. m., except Sunday, arriving Chicago same evening. Ask your home agent for tickets via this line.

P. S. EUSTIS, Gen'l Pass. Agent, CHICAGO, ILL.

GEO. P. LYMAM, Ass't. Gen'l Pass. Agent ST. PAUL, MINN.

Cigars.

J. B. SENATE

DEALER IN

Wines & Liquors

Minneapolis Beer.

(Brink Bros. Old Stand) St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES!

Repairing a Specialty.

ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

NEW MEAT MARKET.

L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

It's Time
Now then
If you are
Looking frr
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
O. F. Post, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. G.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 634 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Mrs. L. Lacoursiere, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

C. G. Rapp	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
A. H. Weagant
T. J. Thorkelson
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist	Karl M. Hansen
Commissioner 5th Dist	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Umbreit	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
P. Engelstad	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes
Alex Patnode	Gervias	Red Lake Falls

The Ideal Lunch Room.
In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.
FIRST-CLASS MEALS.
PROMPT SERVICE.
OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.
A. F. LANG, Prop.

2nd STORE
(Second Hand Store.)
Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.
C. A. SKEIE.
St. Hilaire, Minnesota

New Restaurant
(Brink Bros. Corner Building.)
Meals and Lunch Served at All Hours.
Please give me a call and I will try to give you satisfaction.

If you looking for amusement we have a
Billiard & Pool Room.
C. G. JOHNSON.

Now is the time to get the Spectator. Official county and village paper.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.63½	Oats	.17
Wheat No. 2	.60½	Barley	.28
Wheat No. 3	.57½	Flax	.124
Eggs (per doz).	9	Butter (per lb)	12½

LOCAL NEWS.

Have you paid your dog tax?

But very little grain is now standing.

—For screen doors and windows go to I. Dahleen's.

Wild plums are ripe and reported as being very plentiful.

Messrs. Miller, Fritz and Ives spent Sunday at Crookston.

Marshal Johnson has been on the sick list since yesterday.

Five game wardens lingered here between trains last Friday.

Miss Sadie Powers of Wylie visited with Mrs. Collins Sunday.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

J. G. Brady of Wylie was an over Sunday visitor in our village.

The sound of the threshing machine is again heard in this country.

Dont forget to plow firebreaks around your hay stacks on the prairie.

E. J. Brink returned Monday after spending a few days at Crookston.

Rev. Father Ansgar celebrated High Mass in the new Catholic church Sunday.

Sheriff Sampson and Coroner Belair were up from Red Lake Falls yesterday.

Attorney Lee of the upper Falls was here between trains Saturday enroute south.

Robt. Farr, representing the Duluth Shoe House was interviewing the trade yesterday.

Miss Lova Johnson left Saturday on an extended visit with relatives at Grafton, N. D.

Never eat pie with a knife. If you can't get through the lower crust, send for a broadaxe.

John Rassmusson of Crookston was here yesterday looking after Theo. Hamm's interests.

A curiosity in the shape of an ossified man was the main attraction last Saturday afternoon.

Geo. Turvall and wife of Thief River Falls was here a short time yesterday enroute to Crookston.

Christ Bjerk, the Holt postmaster was here Friday and Saturday visiting with his brother M. E.

A great many farmers will stack their grain this year and thresh after completing their fall plowing.

J. L. Johnson reports of seeing a lynx Monday in the woods between Wall street and the old dam,

U. S. Commissioner Browning and Editor Eastman of Thief River Falls was here a short time Saturday.

Miss Henrietta Olson of Fosston who has been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Post returned home yesterday.

Hundreds of tons of hay will be pressed and shipped out of here this fall and winter. Most of it will go to Dakota.

Hazel-nut picking is good this year and the young folks are making daily raids to the "good fields" of hazel bushes.

L. T. Bergh, the McCormick collector went to Grand Forks yesterday to interview the head push of that firm in the northwest.

Miss Selina and Carrie Hoff returned to-day from a four weeks absence at Park River, N. D., where they had been visiting relatives.

Walter McAndress left Saturday for Crystal, N. Dak., where he will remain for some time, looking after his interests in a threshing machine,

A country postmaster never knows what trouble is until he tries to deliver a circular which comes adressed to "The Best Musician in Town."

Messrs. Blomburgh, Bjerk, Paradis, Brink, Philips and J. Hogquist went to Thief River Monday evening and joined the Improved Order of Red Men.

J. W. Wheeler, cashier of the First National Bank of Crookston was here a couple of days last week straightening out a land deal which he is interested in.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

The weed crop on the G. N. right-of-way in this village will run heavy to seed unless cut soon—and there are other places in town with a like crop.

When a bride has been married about three months she begins to write home for the old clothes she thought she would never have occassion to use again.

President Shevlin of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company came up from Minneapolis yesterday to look after his large interests here. He found it in the best of shape.

Erick Hanson is giving the typhoid fever a hard tussel—having successfully fought it for 21 days and getting the best of his antagonist, which we are pleased to state.

N. P. Rasmusson and wife of Valley City, N. D., arrived here yesterday on the sad mission of attending the funeral of their brother in-law, Mr. Peter Hall, which occurs to-day.

All the railways of the state announce a half fare rate for everybody going to the state fair. The state fair, this year, will be larger and better than ever. The date is September 3-8.

Lost: On Monday evening a bird dog, with white brown spots, wearing a nickle plated collar with name and address of owner. For return of or information about the dog will be rewarded at this office.

With a never failure ice crop—from December to March—we wonder at those who put up ice insist upon running out at this time of the year—but such is about the case with three different firms in this village.

The soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and permanent cures, have made it a great favorite with the people everywhere. For sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Kaufer, H. M. Kaus and daughter Josie, Mrs. W. A. Schreiter and daughter Lulu, Adam Schmitz and Nick Nimisgerm drove up from Red Lake Falls Sunday to sing in the choir in the Catholic church.

J. Penno and J. Barton armed themselves with guns Monday and took after the lynx seen across the river Monday. They didn't find the game they were looking for but they shot something "equally as good"—a skunk.

Pain's spectacular fireworks exhibitions are known all over the world. The best spectacle Pain has ever produced, "Dewey's Fleet in the Battles of Manila," has been engaged for each night of the state fair—September 3-8. It will be realistic and brilliant beyond description.

W. A. Case deputy head consul for the Modern Woodmen of America is at Deer River this week picking out select material for a camp at that place. The News of that place says he will have no trouble in instituting a camp this week as there is no lodge of any kind there. Everybody wants to join and the only trouble is to keep "objectional" material out.

One of the slick Hanna campaign methods is to send canvassers over the country offering a farm paper weekly a year and a buggy whip for 25 cents! The republicans know the value of having their reading matter in the homes of the people. They know how to farm the farmer. The whip ought to come handy after election instead of a selfkicking machine.

Anna Adams and Ardillo C. Adams together with Susanna Cunningham and Geo. Cunningham of St. Hilaire have brought suit against the city for alleged damages which aggregates $40-000. The ladies sue for fifteen thousand each and the men for five. This is the outcome of the accident at the R. R. crossing this spring, when the fastenings of a carriage seat gave away and precipitated the occupants of the rear seat to the ground causing painful injuries.—Thief River Falls Press.

—If you want to make a loan or sell your farm call on or address Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

Will Mr. Eddy Explain.

Morris Sun (Rep.)—Eddy's first vote on the Porto Rican bill might and probably would have been overlooked, for it was regarded as a mistake such as any public man might make. It is very different with regard to his second vote on this bill however, for he had in the meantime learned that the sentiment of his district was opposed to the principle of the measure, knew that Senator Davis had denounced and Senator Nelson condemned the tariff provision as wrong and pernicious, yet despite all this Mr. Eddy's last vote defied public opinion and ignored the position our senators had taken.

The farmer, says an observant exchange, doesn't have to solicit patronage from anyone. He doesn't have to enter into competition and strife with his neighbors like a merchant; he does not have to wrangle for a living like a lawyer; doesn't have to depend on collections reluctantly doled out as editors in fact he can be the most independent man on God's green earth if he manages his affairs in a business-like manner. He has more time and equal opportunities for improving his mind, he has fewer alternatives for corrupting his morals, and his occupation is more conductive to the highest development of his physical power than any other.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Aug. 27th and 28th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 27th and 28th.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Died at Crookston.

Just two weeks ago to-day Mr. Peter Hall went to Crookston and entered the Riverside hospital for the purpose of receiving treatment for a case of typhoid fever. From time to time word was received by members of the family to the effect that he was improving and the damage point passed. Saturday night his case grew worse and on Monday morning a message was received announcing his death. The remains were brought to this village yesterday and taken to the Holmes' undertaking rooms while awaiting the arrival of relatives from the east who came in on to-day's train.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Myers at the M. E. church this afternoon at two o'clock, after which the remains will be interred in the Swedish Lutheran cemetery alongside of those of his son Martin, who was burried less than a month ago.

The deceased was born in Denmark July 25th 1845 and emigrated to this country in 1867, settling at Kellogg, Wabasha county, this state. On July 31, 1876 he took unto himself a wife in the person of Mathilda Ann Harncane, who at present is living but in delicate health.

He moved to St. Hilaire in 1890, and embarked in the mercantile business which he successfully carried on up to the time of his death.

Aside from his wife he leaves two sons and one daughter, a father and two brothers living in this village and two sisters living in the states.

The many friends of the family in and about St. Hilaire will sympathize with the bereaved and extend to them their heartfelt sympathy.

The little daughter of Mrs. P. N. Anderson is in Crookston under the care of Dr. Morley, the eye specialist.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

For the week ending August 20, 1900.

The cutting of all the small grains, except flax, is practically finished in the state, though there are some areas of wheat that have been abandoned because the ground was too wet for the operation of binders till the grain was too ripe. Shock thrashing is begun in Kittson county and it is fairly well advanced further south, though the week has not been a favorable one for either thrashing or stacking. Considerable grain that has been thrashed since the heavy rains of the previous week is damp, and where shocks were wet they have been opened to dry before the grain was put in stack. It is said that the shocks are drying out nicely, and that with dry weather thrashing will go on rapidly. The wheat that was thrashed before the rains is excellent in quality, and in nearly all parts of the state the yields are very much better than was thought possible some weeks ago. Considerable flax has been cut, and that still standing is in all stages from the blossom to maturity. Corn is growing rapidly, and in most fields there are ripe stalks, but owing to the irregular germination of the seed the fields are very uneven. Considerable wild hay has been cut recently, but a good deal has been spoiled by rain. Plowing is going on nicely in southern portions, but the flies and heat have been severe on horses.

—The Himle Land and Loan Co., will loan money on farm lands at legal rate, no commission, call on or address, Fred G. Wells, Thief River Falls.

From Farm, Stock and Home.

Take no chances of losing grain or hay this year by doing poor stacking.

Green weeds turned under ripen no seed to grow next year, but they help fatten the land for its next crop.

A light blanket of straw over the tomato patch will lengthen the season of that healthful fruit, by protecting it from frost.

There is one commendable sort of expansion that is needed in the Northwest, and that there is room for—the expansion of herds and flocks.

Let poor crops admonish you to be more careful than ever about signing an innocent looking paper for a stranger that may turn up as a promisory note in the hands of an innocent purchaser(?)

Human history proves that as the number of the people of a nation who ceased to think for themselves and lost the courage to express their thoughts, increased, the nation began to wane in power and influence.

"Will the people endorse imperialism or the policy of acquiring territory and subjects by conquest?" Can't say; it's difficult to tell what a people will do who can be set wild by a few speculators in bull and cow Belgian hares;

Liquid Bread.

Drink liquid bread—"Golden Grain Belt" beers. It nourishes and it costs so little that you cannot afford to be without it. Bottled in pints or quarts. Order from your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Bargains.

The remainder of our wash goods consisting of dimities, lawns, silk stripe zephyr, ponge zephyr, etc., will be closed out regardless of cost to make room for our fall and winter goods. Come and secure some real bargains.

E. M. Hoff.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

Announcement.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for nomination to the office of County Auditor, subject to the approval of the republican convention, and if nominated and elected, I promise to conduct the business of the office in a manner that will meet the approbation of every tax-payer of the county.

W. A. Case.

A Sure Go.

A subscription paper was circulated among our business men early this week that met with universal favor. Nearly a hundred of the solid citizens of the city, representing every business trade and profession signed the agreement which was to organize a commercial club in this city for the purpose of agitating the opening of the Red Lake reservation lying within the boundaries of Red Lake and Marshall counties. The land in question is the richest in this part of the country, but is of no use to the Indians who refuse to cultivate it. In fact it is practically deserted by them for the country around the lake where game is abundant. There are eleven full townships in this tract and it is occupied by less than ten Indian families who live entirely on a narrow strip along the river and at that only a portion of the time. It is high time that this slice of idle land, comprising a third of this county should be thrown open to settlement and it is to present the case to the lawmakers that the club is formed.—Thief River Falls Press.

"In the six national elections since Grant was President," said Col. J. B. Cleaver, of Tenn., "the democrats have had a plurality of the popular vote four times and the republicans but twice. Garfield had a plurality in 1880, although it amounted to but 7,000 votes and McKinley in 1896. In 1876 Tilden had a plurality over Hayes; in 1884 Cleveland over Blain; in 1888 Cleveland over Harrison and again in 1892 Cleveland over Harrison. Because McKinley had a plurality of 600,000 four years ago is no reason why Bryan should not have a plurality this year. Greater changes than that have taken place, even years ago when the total vote was much smaller. In 1892 Grant had a plurality of 760,000, and in 1896 Tildens plurality was 250,000, a change of more than a million votes. When you stop to think that the vote in 1896 was something like 13,600,000, as against 6,400,000 in 1872, more than as much again, it isn't hard to believe that Bryan has a show of wiping out that plurality of 600,000 and himself receiving a plurality of the votes."

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Aug. 27th and 28th.

The Belgian Hare Again.

"Notwithstanding the warm weather a very cold frost has struck the Belgian hare business in Southern California. The growers are simply up against it. Their prices are still fancy, but there are no sales, and people are not eating hare with avidity. They want a taste, and having had a taste are satisfied. The hare meat is pronounced insipid, and needs a good deal of what the old woman called 'hireing' to make it palatable. Like other forms of game, they are good once in a while. But if people eat hare once in a while, that does not make so very much of a market, and one good rabbitry will supply a town like Tulare. If chickens did not lay eggs it would scarcely pay to raise them as they are now raised, for chicken once a week, to beef and bacon twenty times, is about the American ratio. With Belgain hare once a month most families will be satisfied. The craze has spent its force and it is time for people to be getting sick and turning the things loose to be rounded up with drivers and killed with clubs, all the same as jack rabbits."—Tular (Cal.) Register.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

New Industry.

A new and profitable industry is said to have sprung up all around the banks of the ponds and small lakes near Wabash, Indiana. The common cat tail, which grows in profusion in the marshes near the water's edge, has become a valuable article of commerce and sells at the lake at a cent a pound. The cat tails have largely superseded wool, cotton and hair upholstering and are said to be admirable substitutes, while they cost far less than the material mentioned. Since the first of March over ten tons of the commodity have been gathered and paid for at Syracuse on Turkey Lake alone. The demand far exceeds the supply and is increasing.—Ex.

During the civil war, as well as in our late war with Spain, diarrhoea was one of the most troublesome diseases the army had to contend with. In many instances it became chronic and the old soldiers still suffer from it. Mr. David Taylor of Wind Ridge, Greene Co., Pa., is one of these. He uses Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and says he never found anything that would give him such relief. It is for sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th and 25th and 26th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewelry Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly
Prof. J. Q. Adams,
Watchmaker and Optician.

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right
And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries
Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware
We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment —or—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

Taking a Mean Advantage.

"How is your husband's divorce case going on?"

"I don't know; the stingy wretch won't buy me a new costume, and so I can't go to the court to defend myself."—Pick-Me-Up.

$25,000 For Flying Machines.

Our government is to devote $25,000 for experimenting with flying machines for use in the army. This is a large sum and yet it cannot compare with that spent by those who experiment with so-called dyspepsia cures. Take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is made expressly to cure constipation, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

Finical.

"You have traveled abroad?" inquired the well meaning conversationalist.

And the man who worries about words answered, stiffly:

"Possibly you will inform me of some way in which I could have been abroad without traveling?"—Washington Star.

Best for the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Sure Cry Either Way.

Toto was crying.

"What's the matter?" asked one of her father's friends.

"Is'e lost my two cents," she wailed.

"Well, never mind, here are two cents," said the friend.

Soon Toto was crying harder than ever.

"What's the matter now?" she was asked.

"I'm crying because if I hadn't lost my two cents, I'd had four now," was her reply.—Outis.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. All druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Miss Pinkie's Forethought.

Jane—That Mr. Shallowpate is at the door. Shall I tell him you are engaged?

Miss Pinkie—Show him into the parlor, Jane.

"Yes, miss."

"And Jane, after he has laid his box of chocolates on the mantlepiece tell him I am out.—Exchange.

BENNE PLANT FOR CHILDREN.

A Specific for Summer Complaint.

During these warm days of midsummer, parents cannot be too watchful. It is the safe thing to have this well known family specific always in the house to check the first appearance of any bowel trouble in the children. Get a bottle of EXTRACT OF BENNE PLANT today. It may save the life of your child. Prepared by THE J. & G. MAGUIRE MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Consistent Circus.

"Why, Dollie, where's Marie? I thought you were playing circus."

"Well, she got mad and went home 'cause I wouldn't give her any peanuts. I was the monkey and she was the tiger, and tigers don't eat peanuts."—Bazar.

What's His Address?

Borrows—Easy, is he?

Graphter—Well, I should say. I wrote to him once and asked him to lend me $2. It seems I spelled "two" "too," and forgot to cross the "t." He sent me $100.—Philadelphia Press.

Pale and Weak Women

Beauty and strength in women vanish early in life because of monthly pain or some menstrual irregularity. Many suffer silently and see their best gifts fade away.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

helps women preserve roundness of form and freshness of face because it makes their entire female organism healthy. It carries women safely through the various natural crises and is the safeguard of woman's health.

The truth about this great medicine is told in the letters from women being published in this paper constantly.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND

SLICKER

WILL KEEP YOU DRY.

Don't be fooled with a mackintosh or rubber coat. If you want a coat that will keep you dry in the hardest storm buy the Fish Brand Slicker. If not for sale in your town, write for catalogue to A. J. TOWER, Boston, Mass.

LADIES! When doctors and others fail to relieve you, try N. F. M. H.; it never fails, box free. Mrs. R. L. Rowan, Milwaukee, Wis.

N. W. N. U. —No 34.— 1900.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

DECLARE FOR BRYAN

BOUTWELL TURNS HIS BACK ON THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

A Two-Days' Session Is Held by the Anti-Imperialists in Indianapolis—Bourke Cockran Sends a Letter of Regrets, which Is Read Amid Great Enthusiasm—Resolutions Were Adopted the Second Day Declaring Opposition to McKinley and Favoring Bryan for President.

Indianapolis, Aug. 15.—The first day's session of the national convention of the National Anti-Imperialistic league was somewhat disappointing so far as the attendance of delegates was concerned. About 300 accredited delegates were present, but more are promised for to-morrow. The public meeting in the evening was much better attended and the reading of Bourke Cockran's letter was the signal for tremendous applause.

Boutwell a Bryanite.

But the greatest demonstration of the convention so far come in the afternoon when the venerable George S. Boutwell, ex-governor of Massachusetts, and secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of President Grant, concluded his address as permanent chairman with the declaration that he had turned his back on the Republican party and should support Bryan for president. Delegates rose in their seats and tendered the ex-governor an ovation that lasted several minutes.

George J. Mercer of Philadelphia called the convention to order and presented Edwin Burritt Smith of Chicago as temporary chairman. Prof. A. H. Tolman of the University of Chicago read the Declaration of Independence. Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati invoked the divine blessing on the deliberations of the body, after which Mr. Smith delivered his address which was in favor of Bryan.

Short Addresses.

After a short recess for luncheon, the convention met again at half past two. Chairman Smith called for short addresses from delegates. Those who responded were Dr. A. W. Croffut of Washington, John A. Beatty of Columbus, Judge Moses Hallet of Denver, Edgar A. Bancroft of Chicago and Gammaliel Bradford of Boston. Dr. Croffut said he had long been a Republican, but should this year give his support to Bryan.

Dr. Beatty said: "I have been a Republican for fifty years, and I propose to continue a Republican until I die. I pray that God will forgive me for voting for McKinley in 1896. I did not think he would turn his back upon the eternal principles of the republic. If Cleveland, or Reed or Bryan had been president there would have been no war in the Philippines, no butchery of inoffensive Christian people; no deaths of brave American soldiers there, but our flag would now have been hailed with acclamation by a new republic."

Judg Hallett of Colorado said that his state was sure to go for Bryan, whatever the action of the convention.

Mr. Bancroft said he was still faithful to the Republicanism of 1860, but could not adhere to the Republican party of 1900.

Demonstration for Boutwell.

The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of George S. Boutwell for permanent chairman. Gov. Boutwell was accorded a great demonstration when he took the gavel. He said:

"This is an historic occasion. If the peril of this country is what we think it is, if the question before us and before your contrymen is the question of continuance of the republic, then no graver mission has been committed to an assembly of men than to this convention.

"We are opposed to imprialism. We are in favor of a republican form of government. We respect the teachings of our ancestry, the glory of the history they have left to us, and standing between the past and the future it is our duty to transmit to posterity the principles of the fathers and the institutions that they founded. That is your duty to the states of this Union.

Republic to Empire.

"This body may not represent an organized constituency, but it is a representation for itself and the people of this country and the generations that are advancing to take our places, and it is a representation that has a right to speak, a representation that will be heard at Washington to-day, heard over the world; speaking, as we do, for the preservation of republican institutions, representing the American republic, the light of which, if it shall go out, will never be rekindled on the surface of the earth. I charge that the policy upon which this administration has entered will mean the abandonment of the principles upon which our government was founded; that it will change the republic into an empire. The first of the means before us for the preservation of the Union, if our allegation is true, is the Overthrow of the Administration.

"We are told there is peace in the Philippines and that our 60,000 soldiers there are merely performing police duty. The president has said the Philippines are ours, and there will be no abatement of our rights and no scuttle policy. This seems to indicate that we have entered upon a colonial policy.

"There has been put forth recently a statement of the conditions that will be required of the people of Cuba if they become independent. They are to have no power to declare war without the consent of the United States; the United States is to have veto power over the legislation of Cuba; the United States is to have a certain well defined supervision over the Cuban treasury; the United States is to retain for a period of years, if not indefinitely, the fortifications which command the port of Havana. How do these provisions accord with the promises made to the people of Cuba?

"The Troubles in China

have been aggravated and the ministers and citizens of the various governments have been put in peril through the policy of their governments. It is not true that in past years there has been discussion among the various states of Europe as to the partition of China? All this talk has caused a revolution in China, putting the missionaries and ambassadors of the various powers in peril of their lives. Instead of being a fortunate occurrence, the fact that we were in the Philippines has been the principal cause of the revolution in China. Is the government of the United States to place its troops under the command of a prince of Germany; or, on the other hand, is the United States to assume command of the troops of the other nations and be responsible for the results? If a revolution was to occur in London and our ambassador was to be in danger of his life, would we send a force up the Thames to bombard London? No; we would appeal to the various diplomatic channels before undertaking force. Was it not a declaration of war when we trained our guns upon the citadels of the Chinese empire? Who authorized it? Under the Constitution congress alone can declare war. Can the chief magistrate make war in the absence of a congressional declaration of war? I suppose if I say anything in extenuation of the Chinese policy some one in Washington or elsewhere would say that I had

Spoken Against My Own Country,

but I want to say the American people will speak for liberty and justice, even though their words may inflame the fires of liberty the world over.

"Who does not see that the day of England's downfall is approaching? And we are asked to follow her example and tread in the imperial footsteps of Great Britain, knowing that those steps are leading the British empire to destruction. Now is the time for the people to arrest this progress to ruin, and the laboring men of this country are the men to whom I appeal. If we accept imperialism, it means that some people shall do the thinking and the rest do the working, then the course of liberty cannot be saved."

Gov. Boutwell asked the negro voters to work against imperialism for the sake of the 10,000,000 colored population in the Philippines, and claimed the fact that some negroes were deprived of their rights in the South was no excuse for the oppression of the Filipinos.

Leaves the Republican Party.

"How is the overthrow of the administration to be accomplished?" concluded Mr. Boutwell. "In my youth I had no disguises. I turned aside and left the Democratic party when it surrendered to slavery. In my age I leave the Republican party now that it has surrendered itself to despotic and tyrannical motives. I helped create the Republican party; a party at that time of justice and principle and honesty. I now believe it is a party of injustice and despotism and I will help destroy it. And how? There is but one available means, and you know what that is. I am for Bryan. I am for Bryan in spite of what he may believe concerning the currency or finances of the country. This question to which we invite the country's attention is a question of life or death to the republic. In such a crisis shall we stop to consider whether silver should be worth more or less than it is? If a mistake is made in the next administration, should Bryan be elected, the people can remedy it in four and eight years, the country would not be destroyed. If the currency is impaired we can redeem it. It was impaired during the Civil war, and we redeemed it after the war closed."

At the conclusion of Mr. Boutwell's address the committee on resolutions was announced. The committee will report the platform to-morrow.

A public meeting was held to-night at Tomlinson hall at which addresses were delivered by Morefield Storey of Boston, Sigmund Zeisler of Chicago, Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati and Patrick O'Ferrell of Washington.

BOURKE COCKRAN ABSENT.

Business Engagements Kept Him Away From the Convention.

Following is the letter sent by W. Bourke Cockran to Edwin Burritt Smith in response to an invitation to attend and address the congress.

"New York, Aug. 14, 1900.—My Dear Sir: I regret very much that owing to business enagagements here I will be unable to attend the liberal convention at Indianapolis on the 15th. The attitude of anti-imperialists to imperialism cannot be open to doubt, and therefore I assume the object of the convention is not to express opposition but to devise a method of making that opposition effective. The issue of imperialism has been squarely raised between the two parties; it must be plain that the only way in which a citizen can exercise any direct influence upon the result is by voting for the Republican candidate who supports it or the Democratic candidate who opposes it.

"Nothing can be accomplished by nominating a third candidate that cannot be accomplished equally by abstention from the polls, except that the citizen who remains at home on election day passes unnoticed, while he who votes a third ticket attracts attention. The difference between a silent and a vociferous refusal to exercise the suffrage is not worth discussion, since abstention from civic duty is never commendable. When the republic is in danger the only place for the patriot is in the ranks of its active defenders. Absence from the field of contest or shooting in the air can never be justified.

"It cannot be denied that while anti-imperialists unanimously approve Mr. Bryan's position on imperialism, many of them hesitate to vote for his election to the presidency because they regard his views upon other questions with distrust and apprehension. We cannot hope to deal intelligently with the issues of this campaign until we liberate ourselves from the domination of the questions, discussions and passions of the last campaign. Within four years political conditions have changed decisively, and, as conditions change, issues change with them. The question which the people must decide now is radically different from that submitted to them in 1896. Then the election of Mr. Bryan would have placed the Democratic party in complete control of the legislative as well as of the executive branch of the government, with full power to enact all its beliefs into law, while now his election will result not in placing the control of the government in the hands of the Democratic party, but in dividing its control between the two parties. Whatever may be the result of this election, the senate will remain Republican for two years certainly, and probably for four.

"Even if the people raised Mr. Bryan to the presidency in November, the Democratic party cannot possibly achieve any power of legislation during the existence of the next congress, and without legislative sanction no change in the standard of value, no reorganization of the supreme court, no modification whatever of our financial, industrial or political systems could be accomplished.

"There is one issue which the popular verdict will settle irrevocably, and that is the issue of imperialism. If the Republican party be successful, its control of the judicial, as well as of the executive and legislative departments of the government, will be absolute, and its disposition to exercise all its power for the enforcement of an imperialistic policy cannot be doubted. At the end of four years imperialism will be so firmly imbedded in our political life that it can never be expelled.

"Mr. Bryan's election of itself would put a quietus on the imperialistic adventure. No policy specifically condemned by the people has ever been adopted into our system, and imperialism would prove no exception to the rule. Mr. Hoar's suggestion that the senate would refuse to follow a Democratic president in a policy of humanity approved by the people does faint justice to his own patriotic capacity when—liberated from the exigencies of a campaign for re-election—his intellect and his conscience would be restored to harmonious and effective co-operation. Imperialism, rebuked at the polls and shown to be unprofitable, would not have a single supporter in the country. Within a month of election Senator Hoar could reduce his noble conceptions of freedom and duty to definite proposals of pacification, which both parties would accept. The country having pronounced for justice, politicians of every shape and description will be eager to do justice, and when the desire for justice is sincere the way to justice is soon discovered.

"Since the election of Mr. Bryan is certain to deliver the country from the imminent peril of imperialism, can the liberty convention hesitate to support him because of impalpable danger arising from his opinions on subjects with which, as president, he cannot possibly deal? I confess it is hard to understand the attitude of those gentlemen who would have supported him if the convention had been silent or evasive on the free coinage of silver, but who hesitate to support him on a platform which excludes that question from the serious discussions of the contest by relegating it to a subordinate position. The Democratic platform declares that imperialism is the paramount issue of the campaign, and Mr. Bryan's speech at Indianapolis accepts this conception of the issue, emphasizing it and vindicates it. But a declaration that imperialism is a paramount issue is equivalent to a declaration that it is the sole issue, for no presidential election ever decided more than one question. In my judgment, the platform actually adopted by the Democratic convention should be much more satisfactory to sound money men than any of the substitutes suggested by older and more conservative managers. Since nobody pretends that Mr. Bryan's opinions on the questions raised by the Chicago platform of 1896 have been changed his refusal to disguise them in any way is highly creditable to his honesty, and honesty is the first essential of patriotic presidential service. Mr. Bryan's conversion to a belief in sound money would, in my opinion be a cause for national rejoicing, but any abandonment or abasement of the frankness and sincerity which have always distinguished him would be little short of a national calamity. We need not accept Mr. Bryan as an infallible or even as a sound authority on economics, to acknowledge that his integrity, his truthfulness and absolute sincerity have been among the most salutary influences of this generation on our political life. It is certain that this country is indebted to him for the gold standard law, which, though it has the defects of its party origin, is the best contribution of our national stability since the resumption of specie payments. If the Democratic platform of 1896 had been evasive, as unquestionably it would have been if the so-called conservatives had controlled the convention, can anybody doubt that the Republicans would have met evasion with evasion and that the financial issue would be still unsettled, hanging like a sinister shadow over our industrial system? Mr. Bryan's frank, sincere and unequivocal advocacy of the free coinage of silver forced the Republican party reluctantly to declare in favor of the gold standard. The result was not that which Mr. Bryan sought; none the less it was produced by him. Because he was sincerely wrong he forced the Republican politicians to become insincerely right. To this sincerity of Mr. Bryan the country is indebted for the opportunity to pass squarely and decisively on the issue of imperialism. If the republic is to be overthrown the assault must now be made in the open light of day. It is no longer possible to strangle it under cover of misleading or hypocritical phrases.

"In this open fight for liberty, surely every anti-imperialist should be ready to bear his part. Hesitation to avail ourselves of the leadership under which alone opposition to imperialism can be made effective, through distrust of the leader's views on economic questions not now in issue, would be as senseless as hesitation to employ a surgeon on whose skill depended the sole prospect of life, through dislike of his religious beliefs.

"It can hardly be necessary to say that we who four years ago sacrificed our political prospects and personal associations rather than lend even passive support of silence to declarations which we believed to be subversive of order, will pursue the same course again if these questions should ever occur. The best evidence of our capacity to deal with the issues of 1902 or 1904, whatever they may be, is to deal intelligently now with the issues of 1900. On that issue Mr. Bryan stands for justice, liberty and the constitution, and since all these would be imperiled by his defeat it is to be hoped that the liberty convention will not be swerved from supporting him by prejudices springing from past antagonisms or by groundless apprehensions of the future.

—"W. Bourke Cockran."

CLOSING DAY.

Anti-Imperialists Adjourn After Indorsing Bryan.

Indianapolis, Aug. 16.—The anti-imperialist convention adjourned to-night after adopting resolutions urging the defeat of President McKinley and the election of Bryan. Only about twenty votes were cast against the resolutions. A substitute eliminating the name of Bryan was defeated, only about fifteen delegates voting for it. The resolutions were discussed all day. Many delegates declared that the convention was Merely a Democratic Annex.

The following resolution was adopted to the platform as reported:

"That in declaring that the principles of the Declaration of Independence apply to all men, this congress means to include the negro race in America as well as the Philippines. We deprecate all efforts, whether in the South or in the North, to deprive the negro of his rights as a citizen under the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States."

The congress concluded to-night with an address at Tomlinson hall by Charles A. Towne of Minnesota.

The Resolutions.

Following are the resolutions adopted as reported by the committee:

"This liberty congress of anti-imperialists recognizes a great national crisis, which menaces the republic upon whose future depends in such large measure the hope of freedom throughout the world. For the first time in our country's history the president has undertaken to subjugate a foreign people and to rule them by despotic power. He has thrown the protection of the American flag over slavery and polygamy in Sulu islands. He has arrogated to himself the power to impose upon the inhabitants of the Philippines government without their consent and taxation without representation. He is waging war upon them for asserting the very principles for the maintenance of which our forefathers pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor. He claims for himself and congress authority to govern the territory of the United States without constitutional restraint.

"We believe in the Declaration of Independence. Its truths, not less self-evident to-day than when first announced by our fathers, are of universal application and cannot be abandoned while government by the people endures.

"We believe in the Constitution of the United States. It gives the president and congress certain limited powers and secures to every man within the limit of our jurisdiction certain essential rights. We deny that either the president or congress can govern any person anywhere outside the Constitution.

Opposed to McKinley.

"We are absolutely opposed to the policy of President McKinley, which proposes to govern millions of men without their consent, which in Porto Rico establishes taxation without representation and government by the arbitrary will of a legislature unfettered by constitutional restraint, and in the Philippines prosecutes a war of conquest and demands unconditional surrender from a people who are of right free and independent. The struggle of men for freedom has ever been a struggle for constitutional liberty.

"There is no liberty if the citizen has no right which the legislature may not invade, if he may be taxed by a legislature in which he is not represented, or if he is not protected by fundamental law against the arbitrary action of executive power. The policy of the president offers the inhabitants of Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines no hope of independence, no prospect of American citizenship; no constitutional protection; no representation in the congress which taxes him. This is the government of men by arbitrary power without their consent; this is imperialism.

"There is no room under the free flag of America for subjects. The president and congress, who derive all their powers from the constitution, can govern no man without regard to its limitations.

"We believe that the greatest safeguard of liberty is a free press, and we demand that he censorship in the Philippine islands, which keeps from the American people the knowledge of what is done in their name, be abolished.

"We are entitled to know the truth, and we insist that the powers which the president holds in trust for us shall not be used to suppress it.

"Imperialism."

"Because we thus believe, we oppose the re-election of Mr. McKinley. The supreme purpose of the people in this momentous campaign should be to stamp with their final disapproval this attempt to grasp imperial power. A self-governing people can have no more imperative duy than to drive from public life a chief magistrate who, whether in weakness or of wicked purpose, has used his temporary authority to subvert the character of their government and to destroy their national ideals.

"We therefore, in the belief that it is essential at this crisis for the American people to again declare their faith in the universal application of the Declaration of Independence and to reassert their will that their servants shall not have or exercise any powers whatever other than those conferred by the Constitution, earnestly make the following recommendations to our countrymen:

First—That without regard to their views on minor questions of domestic policy, they withhold their votes from Mr. McKinley, in order to stamp with their disapproval what he has done.

"Second—That they vote for those candidates for congress in their respective districts who will oppose the policy of imperialism.

For Bryan.

"Third—While we welcome any other method of opposing the re-election of Mr. McKinley, we advise direct support of Mr. Bryan as the most effective means of crushing imperialism.

"We are convinced of Mr. Bryan's sincerity and of his earnest purpose to secure to the Filipinos their independence. His position and the declaration contained in the platform of his party on the vital issues of the campaign meet our unqualified approval.

"We recommend that the executive committees of the American Anti-Imperialist league and its allied leagues continue and extend their organizations, preserving the independence of the movement, and that they take the most active possible part in the pending political campaign.

"Until now the policy which has turned the Filipinos from warm friends to bitter enemies, which has slaughtered thousands of them and laid waste their country, has been the policy of every man who votes to re-elect him, and who thus becomes, with him, responsible, for every drop of blood thereafter shed."

CASE OF LADY AND THE TIGER.

A Caged Animal in the Zoo Is Far Different From One in the Woods.

Suddenly there was a sound—monkeys trooping through the jungle, high in the trees, grasping the plant branches and shaking them well with rage. A tiger must be in the neighborhood. Another second — the jungle grass waved and cracked and out into the open emerged and advanced slowly a picture of fearful beauty. A tiger seen in the Zoo gives no faint idea of what one of his species is, seen under its proper conditions. Beasts in captivity are underfed and have no muscle, but here before us was a specimen who had always "done himself well," was fit as a prize fighter, every square inch of him developed to perfection. On he came, his cruel eyes lazily blinking in the sun. His long, slouching walk, suggestive of such latent strength, betrayed the vast muscle working firmly through the loose, glossy skin, which was clear red and white, with its double stripes and the W mark on the head. The sight of such majectic power, as he swung majectically along, licking his lips and his mustache after his feed, was one of the things not soon to be forgotten, and, while it had a bracing effect on the nerves, at the same time struck rather a chilling sensation. . . . . With my last barrel I fired. There was no time for a long and steady aim, but, as the smoke cleared away, what relief! The tiger had dropped to the ground. With nine lives—catlike—he was not dead; he walked off and disappeared.—From "A Sportsman in India."

HE WASN'T GROWLING.

The Summer Boarder Was Merely Seeking Information as to Prices.

"What!" carpingly exclaimed the summer boarder from the city, as he glared, pop-eyedly, at the altitudinous bill which the honest agriculturist had just presented him. "Ninety-six dollars and thirty cents for two weeks' board for myself, wife and three small boys? Now, look here, Mr. Hooks—"

"Ye had the use of the hoss and carryall whenever ye wanted 'em," interrupted old Farmer Hooks, doggedly. "Your boys eft up considerable many of my apples, and, then, there's the fishin' and the scenery, and the—er—grangers' picnic, and Uncle Hiram Tinker's funeral, and the eclipse of the moon, and—er—ah!—all that, and—"

"But, pshaw, man! the only time we used your old carryall the horse was so balky that we had to lead him most of the way, and the vehicle broke down and I paid more for having it repaired than it was worth. Your green apples made the boys sick to within a hair's breadth of an agonizing death, and to the extent of a $9 doctor bill. I caught cold, but no fish, fishing. We didn't eat any of the scenery, nor do we expect to carry any of it away with us. We are in no way responsible for the late Mr. Tinker's funeral, and, I may add, did not particularly enjoy it. We did not attend the grangers' picnic, and, as for paying you for the eclipse of the moon, I'll be—"

"Lookee here! You don't mean to insinuate that I'm tryin' to gouge ye?"

"Oh, no; certainly not! But, by the way, the present wealth of the United States is estimated at $100,000,000,000, and—er—"

"Wall?"

"Well, I was merely wondering if you were trying to get it all at once?"—Puck.

2 to 2 to 2:02.

"How long does the train stop here?" the old lady asked the brakeman.

"Stop here?" answered that functionary. "Four minutes. From 2 to 2 to 2:02."

"I wonder," mused the old lady, "if that man thinks he's a whistle?"—Indianapolis Press.

EIGHTH ANNUAL ESTIMATE.

H. V. Jones Presents His Figures for the Three States.

H. V. Jones, the commercial editor of the Minneapolis Journal, has published his eighth annual estimate of the wheat crop in Minnesota and the two Dakotas in part as follows:

	Total Acreage.	Average Cut.
Minnesota	6,000,000	6,000,000
North Dakota	4,800,000	3,000,000
South Dakota	3,800,000	3,200,000
Totals	14,600,000	12,200,000

	Av. Yield on Total Acreage.	Av. Last Year.
Minnesota	13⅓	10
North Dakota	5	14
South Dakota	8½	10

	Estimated Yield 1900.	Decrease from 1899
Minnesota	80,000,000	15,000,000
North Dakota	24,000,000	46,000,000
South Dakota	32,000,000	6,000,000
Totals	136,000,000	67,000,000

The States of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota have raised approximately 136,000,000 bushels of wheat. This is about 67,000,000 bushels less than the three states raised in 1899.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Edward H. Allison, Fort Yates, N. D., game or toy; Benjamin F. Keeney, Watertown, S. D., boiler washout device; Herbert W. Kingsbury, Winona, Minn., safety grating; Simeon C. Lawlor, Duluth, Minn., window cleaner; Jacob Markus, Harrison, S. D., veterinary obstetrical instrument; Haldora Olson, Duluth, Minn., obtsetrical appliance; Henry G. Roth, Minneapolis, Minn., cabinet; William J. Stewart, Minneapolis, Minn., knife guard; James Wyvell, Breckenridge, Minn., organ.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 and 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul.

Fly Paper Philosophy.

"After all your talk about sensational journalism," exclaimed the fly on the edge of the sugar bowl, "I'm surprised at you."

"What about?" gasped the captured fly, vainly endeavoring to extricat himself from the sticky trap.

"Well, I notice that the paper you're stuck on is decidedly yellow."—Philadelphia Press.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by druggists 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

The Intellectual Girl.

"It's a great drawback to have sense."

"What do you mean?"

"When a girl has sense all the men she likes best are afraid of her."—Chicago Record.

Are You Using Allen's Foot-Ease?

It is the only cure for Swollen, Smarting, Burning, Sweating Feet, Corns and Bunions. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Easily Satisfied.

"Sir," said the young college graduate, "I would like a situation in any capacity, I care not how menial, where I would have a chance for a rapid rise."

"Well," grunted the quarry superintendent, "in that case I think I can satisfy you. Just go over and look down that powder hole and see if the fuse is gone out."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Fright.

When a woman gets frightened at night she ust pulls the bed clothes over her head, says she is terrified out of her wits, and goes to sleep. But, with a man it is different. He says he is not afraid, pushes the clothes down, and lies trembling awake for two or three hours, straining his ears at every sound.—Pick-Me-Up.

We refund 10c for every package of PUTNAM FADELESS DYES that fails to give satisfaction. Monroe Drug Co., Unionville, Mo.

Why They Mourn.

Dicker—What is the flag o nthe life insurance building at half-mast for?

Ticker—Dead policy-holder, probably.—Harlem Life.

Baseball players; Golf players; all players chew White's Yucatan whilst playing.

The bow-legged man has an open gate of his own.

Alloys used in Japanese bronzes contain a large percentage of lead.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The native hen of New Zealand is an expert rat-killer.

Every Boy and Girl

should learn to write with Carter's Ink, because it is the best in the world. "Inklings in Ink" free. Carter's Ink Co., Boston.

Only children play ball. Men make a business of it.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'BRIEN, 322 Third Ave., N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

The muscles of the human jaw exert a force of 534 pounds.

Neglect your hair and you lose it. PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM renews the growth and color. HINDERCORNS, the best cure for corns. 15cts.

Pretty nearly every church has had or is going to have a strawberry festival.

Georgia and Alabama have fine wheat crops.

The tripping feet—the sparkling eye—the graceful movement—belong not alone to the budding maiden. These graces are the right—aye duty of every woman until the hair whitens—and regal dignity replaces them.

The mother who guards her strength has so much more to devote to the care and education of her dear ones. She should be a comfort—a cheer—always.

Yet how many feel that they have the strength to properly balance the home? The world is listless, weary and morbid. Its blood moves sluggishly and is full of impurities. It needs a kindling, invigorating tonic to set it afire—it needs Pe-ru-na,

THE ONE MEDICINE

in the world which women may rely upon positively. Pe-ru-na is good for everyone, but particularly for women. The various weaknesses which afflict their delicate organism spring from inflammation or catarrh of the mucous lining, and Pe-ru-na is a specific for catarrh in any organ of the body. Any congestion of a mucous membrane simply means catarrh of the organ affected. This is why Pe-ru-na cures all sorts of troubles where other remedies fail. If there is a catarrhal affection the matter with you anywhere Pe-ru-na will cure you.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY.

Genuine

Carter's Little Liver Pills.

Must Bear Signature of

Brent Good

See Fac-Simile Wrapper Below.

Very small and as easy to take as sugar.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

FOR HEADACHE.
FOR DIZZINESS.
FOR BILIOUSNESS.
FOR TORPID LIVER.
FOR CONSTIPATION.
FOR SALLOW SKIN.
FOR THE COMPLEXION

GENUINE MUST HAVE SIGNATURE.

Price 25 Cents | Purely Vegetable. Brent Good

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Easy Monthly Payments

We sell Regina Music Boxes for public places with money slot attachments, and for home use without attachments, on easy Monthly Payments. With money attachments they are

A Constant Source of Revenue

and soon pay for themselves. They can be placed in all kinds of business houses.

We Repair Music Boxes.

Correspondence invited.

NATIONAL NOVELTY CO.,

519 First Ave. So., - - - Minneapolis, Minn

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Cross. Chartered 1855. Thorough English and Classical education. Regular Collegiate Degrees.

In Preparatory Department students carefully prepared for Collegiate course. Physical and Chemical Laboratories well equipped. Conservatory of Music and School of Art. Gymnasium under direction of graduate of Boston Normal School of Gymnastics. Catalogue free. The 46th year opens Sept. 4, 1900. Address,

DIRECTRESS OF THE ACADEMY,
St. Mary's Academy, - Notre Dame, Indiana

DO NOT BUY

WELL DRILLING MACHINERY until you see our new Catalogue No. 25. We will furnish it to you FREE. Write to our address, either Harvey, Ill., Chicago, Ill., or Dallas, Texas.

F. C. AUSTIN MFG. CO.
Factories at Harvey, Ill.

MONEY FOR SOLDIERS' HEIRS

Heirs of Union Soldiers who made homesteads of less than 160 acres before June 22, 1874 (no matter if abandoned), if the additional homestead right was not sold or used, should address, with full particulars, HENRY N. COPP, Washington, D. C.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

(CUT OUT)

FREE

Wm. Donaldson & Co.
GLASS BLOCK STORE,
MINNEAPOLIS, - MINN.

Your name and address on this slip sent to us will secure for you FREE our FALL AND WINTER CATALOGUE OF FASHIONS.

Name..

Address..

This Catalogue of some 250 pages, beautifully illustrated, will bring right to your home our great store, with all its possibilities of money-saving. Send for it at once—FREE.

(CUT OUT)

Minnesota Historical Society

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOLUME XX ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 29, 1900. NUMBER 6.

IS AGAIN NOTIFIED

BRYAN INFORMED OF HIS NOMINATION BY POPULISTS.

Ceremonies at Topeka, Kan., Witnessed by a Great Crowd of People—Mr. Bryan Is Also Notified of the Indorsement of His Candidacy by the United States Monetary League—Thomas W. Paterson Makes the Address for the Populists and A. W. Rucker Performs a Like Ceremony for the Monetary League.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 25.—William J. Bryan yesterday received the second official notification of his nomination for the presidency. This notification came from the Populist party and Thomas M. Patterson of Colorado acted as the mouthpiece of the party in making it. Mr. Bryan was at the same time informed of the indorsement of his candidacy by the United States Monetary League, this notification being given by A. W. Rucker. The ceremonies occurred in the spacious and beautiful grounds of the state capital, and were witnessed by a large number of people. In many respects the meeting paralleled the Indianapolis notification. This was true in the fact that both were held in parks; in that the weather and that the impatience of the crowd compelled the speakers preceding Mr. Bryan to curtail their remarks. The entire proceeding covered only about an hour and a half of time. There was little delay after the arrival of Mr. Bryan and the other notables. State Chairman Ridgeley of the Populist party promptly assumed the chair and he immediately introduced James A. Troutman, who as the representative of the mayor of Topeka, made a brief speech welcoming Mr. Bryan to the city. Mr. Troutman was formerly lieutenant governor of the state and is Republican in politics. His speech was personally complimentary to Mr. Bryan and was further an appeal for the exercise of the franchise by all good and intelligent citizens as

Was Intensely Hot

The Best Safeguard

of our institutions. He referred to the vast throng of people "before him as an evidence of the high regard in which the distinguished visitor is held, and said that while he was not authorized to assure Mr. Bryan of the electoral vote of Kansas, he would assure him of the admiration of every citizen of the state. Mr. Troutman was followed by Frank Doster, chief justice of the state, who extended the welcome of the state at large. Mr. Douster was followed by ex-Congressman Jerry Simpson, who was introduced as the permanent chairman, in the absence of National Chairman Butler. Mr. Simpson compared Mr. Bryan with Lincoln, and he predicted that he would lead the people back to the landmark of humane liberty which Lincoln had so

Materially Assisted

in establishing. "Let us trust that Nebraska and Kansas, standing side by side as in 1860, will again give their support to a candidate who has, as the candidate of that time had, but one code of morals, which embraces, as did Lincoln's, all men of all times, regardless of color or environment."

With this Mr. Simpson introduced Mr. Patterson, who, as chairman of the national Populist convention, became chairman of the notification committee. Mr. Patterson was received with applause and many of his points were loudly cheered, but like Judge Douster, he materially reduced the length of his speech because of the heat and of the impatience of the audience. Judge A. W. Rucker, who the information of his indorsement by the United States Monetary League, had also to yield to the demands of the audience for a curtailment of his speech. He was given an opportunity to be briefly heard and to make a number of points which met with the approval of the auditors. When Mr. Rucker took his seat Mr. Simpson lost no time in introducing Mr. Bryan, who was received with a burst of applause. Mr. Bryan read the greater part of his address from manuscript and the delivery consumed about forty minutes. When he ceased speaking those present were invited to shake hands with him, and many availed themselves of this opportunity to formally greet him.

Conveyed to Mr. Bryan

Mr. Bryan's Speech.

"Mr. Chairman and Members of the Notification Committee: In accepting the presidential nomination which you tender on behalf of the Populist party, I desire to give emphatic recognition to the educational work done by your party. Alliances and the labor organizations from which they sprung have done much to arouse the people to a study of economic and industrial questions. Believing, as I do, that truth grows not in seclusion but in the open field, and that it thrives best in the sunlight of full and free debate, I have confidence that the discussion which your party has compelled will aid in reaching that true solution of pending problems toward which all honest citizens aim.

"In 1896 the money question was of paramount importance and the allies in that campaign united in the demand for the immediate restoration of silver by the independent action of this country at 16 to 1, the ratio which had existed since 1834.

"They were defeated, but that did not end the discussion. The Democrats were defeated in 1888, but that did not put an end to tariff reform. The Republican were defeated in 1892, but that did not permanently overthrow the protective tariff.

"Defeat at the polls does not necessarily decide a great problem.

"Experience and experience alone settle questions. If an increase in the volume of the currency since 1890, although unpromised by the Republicans, and unexpected, has brought improvement in industrial conditions, this improvement, instead of answering the arguments put forth in favor of bimetallism, only confirms the contention of those who insisted that more money would make better times. The Republican party, however, while claiming credit for makes no permanent provision for an adequate supply of standard money. It denies the necessity for more real money, while it permits national banks to expand the volume of paper promises to pay money.

The Increase in Circulation.

"If the Populists felt justified in opposing the Republican party when it sought to conceal its gold standard tendencies under the mask of international bimetallism, the opposition should be more pronounced in proportion as the Republican party more openly espouses gold monometallism.

"In 1896 the reform forces charged the Republican party with intending to retire greenbacks. This charge, denied at the time, has been confessed by the financial bill which converts greenbacks when once redeemed into gold certificates and extends new privileges to banks of issue. It is true that the Populists believe in an irredeemable greenback, while the Democrats believe in but the vital question at this time, so far as paper money is concerned, is whether the government or banks shall issue it. There will be time enough to discuss the redeemability of the greenback when the greenback itself is saved from the annihilation which now threatens it.

A Greenback Redeemable in Coin,

"If belief in an income tax justified a party in 1896, what excuse can he find for aiding the Republican party now, when even the exigencies of war have not been sufficient to bring that party to the support of the income tax principle?

"Populists believe in arbitration now as much as they did in 1896, and are as much opposed to government by injunction and the blacklist as they were then, and upon these subjects they have as much reason for co-operation with the Democratic party to-day as they had four years ago. Democrats and Populists alike favor that principle of direct legislation. If any differences exist as to the extent to which the principle should be applied, these differences can be Reconciled by Experiment.

"Democrats and Populists agree that Chinese and other Oriental labor should be excluded from the United States. Democrats and Populists desire to so enlarge the scope of the interstate commerce act to enable the commission to protect both persons and places from discrimination, and the public at large from excessive railroad rates.

"The Populists approve the demand set forth in the Democratic platform for a labor bureau, with a cabinet officer at its head. Such an official would keep the administration in close touch with the wage-earning portion of the population, and go far toward securing such remedial legislation as the toilers need.

"In 1896 the Populists united with the Democrats in opposing the trusts, although the question at that time appeared like a cloud scarcely larger than a man's hand. To-day that cloud well-night overspreads the industrial sky.

"The fact that the trusts support the Republican party ought to be sufficient proof that they expect protection from it. The Republican party cannot be relied upon to extinguish the trusts so long as it draws its campaign contributions from their overflowing vaults.

Prosperity Admitted.

"The prosperity argument which the Republicans bring forward to answer all complaints against the administration will not deceive the farmer. He knows that two factors enter into his income; first, the size of his crop, and second, the price which he receives for the same. He does not return thanks to the party in power for favorable weather and a bountiful harvest, and he knows that the Republican party has no policy which insures a permanent increase in agricultural prices. Since he sells his surplus in foreign markets he is not a beneficiary of the tariff, and since he produces merchandise and not money he does not profit by the appreciation of the dollar.

"Our opponents have tried to make it appear that we are inconsistent when we desire a general rise in prices and yet oppose an arbitrary rise in protected manufacturers or trust-made goods. There is no conflict whatever between these two propositions. If a general rise in prices occurs because of a permanent increase in the volume of money, all things adjust themselves to the new level, and if the volume of money then increases in proportion to the demand for money, the price level remains the same and business can be done with fairness to all.

Free Silver, for Instance.

"If, however, the rise is arbitrary and only affects a part of the products of labor, those whose products do not participate in the rise suffer because the purchasing power of their income is decreased. If a bad monetary system drags down the price of the famer's poduct, while monopolies raise the price of what he buys, he burns the candle at both ends and must expect to suffer in comparison with those who belong to the classes more favored by legislation.

"It is sometimes urged by partisan Populists that four years more of Republican misrule would so aggravate economic conditions as to make reforms easier. No one can afford to aid in making matters worse in the hope of being able to make them better afterward, for in so doing he assumes responsibilities which he may not be able to remedy. No Populist, however sanguine, believes it possible to

Elect a Populist President

at this time, but the Populist party may be able to determine whether a Democrat or a Republican will be elected. Mr. Chairman, the Populist convention, which your committee represents, thought it better to share with the Democrats in the honor of securing some of the refoms desired by your party than to bear the odium of remaining neutral in this great crisis, or of giving open or secret aid to the Republican party, which opposes all the reforms for which the Populists contend.

"Those who labor to improve the conditions which surround their fellowmen are apt to become impatient; but they must remember that it takes time to work out great reforms. Let me illustrate by calling your attention to the slow growth of public opinion in support of a proposition to which there has been practically no open opposition. President Johnson in 1868 recommended a constitutional amendment providing for election of United States senators by

A Direct Vote of the People,

but it met with no response. About twelve years later, Gen. Weaver, then a member or congress, tried to secure the passage of a resolution submitting such an amendment, but his efforts were futile. In 1892 the resolution recommended by President Johnson and urged by Congressman Weaver finally passed the house of representatives, but it has not yet reached a vote in the senate, and now, after eight years more of public discussion, the proposition for the first time received the indorsement of the national convention of one of the great parties. If the fusion forces win a victory this fall we shall see this reform accomplished before the next presidential election.

"Militarism."

